
-ulum suffix denoting:

1. From inside of.
2. Pertaining to (the inside of). V. §§ 77 & 102.

(601) -ulus*, -ulutsəro*, hm. a woman's brother, husband's brother. Forms: o·lus, gu·lus, mu·lus; milutsəro, —, u·lutsəro. — ja o·smo mu·lus my wife's brother. mu·lusə i·i, e·i (a woman's) brother's son, daughter. ma·mamo mu·lus maternal uncle. je uŋε gu·mimo mu·lus ap'a I am not your mother's brother. 14.14. hin muŋgo ya mu·lusʌn an uncle or a brother of hers. 306.1. o·lus. 14.18, 18.2; mu·lus. 306.14.

000 um N., cp, uŋ, thou.

-um 1. Ablative suffix.

2. Adjective suffix. V. §§ 78. & 102.

[601] umʌgus IUB, co-wife; H. saut. (A later authority gives the word as -mʌngus*)

umər, umər age, lifetime. — umərə uyum ba I am the elder. kiŋε umər bə·rum me.imi how old will this man be? umər xa so long as you live. N. thamε imo umərulu but sʌfʌriŋ ε·tubai.i the Tham has made many journeys in his (life)time. Ar.

umi·d, ume·d y hope, expectation. — umi·d bila, or mai bila there is hope, it is expected, there is reason to hope. ume·d api jimʌlər ju·ʌsε there is no hope, possibility, of (his) coming tomorrow. ʌma umi·d ε·ču bom but she kept hoping. 58.12. umi·d ε·ykərtsumo she abandoned hope. 58.18. Prs.

000 umi·dwa·r hopeful; expectant (mother), pregnant. 388.2. Prs.

*-umus, pl. *-umušo, x. Pn.pf. o·, gu·, yu·, mu·; mi·, mo·, u·.

1. Tongue. thʌmɛ momus čur'uk ma·či the Tham will cut out your tongue(s) for you. 328.1. phu·ɛ yu·mus, a tongue, or flame, of fire.
2. Lie, falsehood.

a. The Pn.pf. referring to the liar: *-umušo o·tʌs or senʌs to tell lies. bɛ·sɛ gumušo oč'a? why dost thou lie? 164.2. yu·mušo oč'ai.i he is lying. 148.25. momušo o·ča·n you are lying. 136.6. yu·mušo o·tum inɛ ɛ·čʌtɛ bʌlda the burden (responsibility) (be) on the shoulders of him who has lied! 46.4.

Sometimes with ɛtʌs in place of o·tʌs, and sometimes with senʌs, or with both:

bɛsɛ gu·mušo sča? or se.iba? why dost thou lie? u·ɛ uyo·n u·mušo nɛ senumʌn they all lied. gumušo o·sen don't lie!

b. Used predicatively and absolutely (i.e. without direct reference to any particular person) the 3rd pers. forms with initial yu· and u· appear to be used. The Eng. equivalent is frequently the adj. "untrue":

gutɛ čʌγa u·mus bila this story is untrue. gukɛ čʌγamiŋ u·mušo bitsʌn these statements are untrue. gutɛ bor yu·mus, or, u·mus, or, u·mušo bila this (saying) is a lie, untrue. But: gu·mus bila (what you say) is a lie (lit. your lie).

c. It appears possible to use *-umušo as the subject of the verb: u·mušo bi.ɛn . . . (sic).

uŋ IYB, um Nz. and GH. Kh., um N. thou. V. § 119. 000 upal šo x a kind of grub.

*-uri IUB, N. -mots nail (of finger, toe), H. naxun. — yuri his nail; mi.urimots our nails. N. auri my nail. iuri his nail.

urk -ai.i, N. pl. urkaiints, x wolf. — urko bat wolf-skin. urkai.ik dun tale qaš ifayo ši bim a pack of wolves coming, had eaten seven cubits off his staff. 222.10. (Cp. Ishkashmi, ṛrk wolf).

urusi -mots x rifled gun (matchlock?) (Cp. Kho. urusi (tourk), a kind of gun ("Russian").

*-urvš y concern, affair, business. Forms: orvš, gurvš, —; — morvš, urvš — je be orvš bilum what business was it of mine? je be orvš ke senam (etam) . . . what concern (was it) of mine that I said (did) . . . 'eteŋe be gurvš mene ke manišš what concern (is it) of yours to whom it may belong? 58.32.

*-us, obl. sg. -usmu-, pl. -ušints wife. 601 Forms: os, gus, yus; —, —, us. pl. ošints, —, yušints. — kin hin ja os bo this one is my wife. 182.4. ja osmo mulos my wife's brother. muyore yusmur mosimi (her) husband said to his wife. 232.5, 210.13. hin . . . hiran yusmu ka . . . di bam a man had come with his wife. 292.1. ine hir yusmo gute čayatsum xuš n'iman the man, being pleased with his wife's suggestion. 36.20. Boratalinge oi bom Hurukutse us bom she was the daughter of the B. and the wife of the H. i.e. she was married into the H. tribe. 258.3, cp. 256.4. jamavat appears always to be used 601 for the Vocative, and frequently for the other cases.

000 vsko x and y, cp. iʷski and iʷsken, v. §§ 187 and 206, three. With the Pn.pf., v. § 133. — iʷtse uʷsko nuyen taking those three things. 28.18.

vskuʷin IUB hm (kin), H. bəraʷdəri. V. svkuʷin.

vsquʷin N., EOL, v. svkuʷin.

vstaʷd, vstaʷt, pl. vstaʷd(t)iŋ, vstaʷtiŋ hm craftsman, skilled craftsman; musician. — dʌq stʌs vstaʷd blacksmith. čʌk stʌs vstaʷd carpenter. buʷt vstaʷd bai.i he is a very skilful craftsman. Gərmʌhʌlmʌs juwʌn vstaʷtʌn men kə apaʷn there is (lit. are) no craftsman like G. M. M. 168.13. vstaʷdiŋ dulʷn . . . tʌmʌša sčaʷn bringing the musicians . . . they make an entertainment. 300.9. da eγərešo vstaʷtiŋ altʌmbuʷʌn then eight music-playing craftsmen, i.e. musicians, bandsmen. 336.5. Prs.

vstaʷdi craftsmanship, technical skill. — vstaʷdi.s ka stai.i he has done it, made it, with skill. Prs.

uʷ̌ y debt. — ayeṭs uʷ̌ bila debt is on me, i.e. I am in debt. ayeṭs uʷ̌ diʷbila debt has come on me, i.e. I have got into debt. ja tsundo rupi.a iʷneṭs uʷ̌ bila, jaʷr joyʌs bai.i he owes me five rupees, he is to pay (them) to me. iʷne tsundo rupi.a jaʷeṭs uʷ̌ bila, yuʷyʌs ba I owe him 5 rupees, I have to pay him. gʷʷʌṭs uʷ̌ apiʷ ke . . . if your father has no debts. Prov. 44. uʷ̌ ičiʌs the debt-giver i.e. the debtor. (-ʷ̌ confirmed by IUB, cp. Sh. uʷ̌.).

423 ʷʷšʌki term applied to land given to foster-parents, or relations, for service or cash-payment. No obligation in regard to forced labour attaches

423 to it. Something in the nature of a fief, explained by the H. jagir. — berumʌn bušai.i wšʌki ičimi he gave him some "ušʌki" land. 46.1. wšʌki γinʌŋ stum bušai "ušʌki" land acquired by purchase. (-šə- base of *-wše.ʌs + suffix -ki?)

601 wšʌm -rišo foster-. — wšʌm aya (or, a.u) my foster-father. 28.1. wšʌm yu his foster-father. 32.13. wšʌm mama, aćo, ayʌs my foster-mother, brother, sister. ine wšʌm maper hir that old man who had fostered (him). 26.24. wšʌm mama guyaiyʌm I will take you as my foster-mother. 362.10. Lʌŋa Brwmo wšʌm muwimur se.ibo L. B. says to her foster-mother. 122.1. thʌme ivi (e..i) inər wšʌm yumi the Tham gave out his son (daughter) to him to foster. (The exact force of wšʌm here is obscure).

I also recorded wšʌm -rišo as the equivalent of "mid-wife" and "nurse", but I do not imagine that it can bear these meanings except so far as the function in question may be performed by a foster-mother.

(Form of Static Pc. of wše.ʌs).

000 ušʌŋ IUB limbs, parts of body, H. jor. (Later information: *-šʌŋ y pl. occurs usually in the phrase *-lčin *-šʌŋ eye and limbs).

*-wše.ʌs (*-wšai.ʌs), *-wšeč-, Impv. *-wša, Ppa. n-wšʌn to rear, nurture, foster, cherish. Pn.pf. + i: oš-, guš-, yuš-, —; myuš-, —, uš-. — ine je ošʌmi he reared, or fostered me. ine uŋ gušʌmi he fostered you. ine hʌγur yušʌmi he reared the horse. ine hʌγurišo ušʌmi he reared the horses. Šahsawda Bahram mapere yuša bʌm the old man had fostered S. B. 22.17.

56 a

000 dʌltʌs ne yuršen (or, yuršu) rear ye him well (or, rear thou). 92.9. guse (bʌskʌrsf) n'i.uršʌn (or nyušʌn, ni.ušʌn) rearing this (ram). 62.18, 100.4. yuršʌm ise bulovšo "the fatted ones". 368.14, 373.19. bust γərštiŋ ? se.ʌs bai.i he is a great cherisher of the poor. 34.12. mi my'ušai.ʌs pavlša the King who cherishes us. 40.12.

usguvin, pl. usguvyo, creditor, also debtor. (usf + guvin, v. § 21. b.).

usfulom by reason of, because of. — taiyʌsə usfulom by reason of (the fire) going out.

ušuto cuckold, H. daiyuu.

usf -ʌnts, N. -ršo, x camel. — hiv usf, boryəva usf male camel. gus usf female camel. turma avlto ta ut'ʌntsʌtom guks γenʌŋ this gold (that is loaded) on 1200 camels. 88.26. (-f IUB, cp. H. ũf; Sh. ũf).

*-uf *-riŋ feet and hands. — akovle gust guriŋ ła.o sti wash your feet and hands here. 174.1. ust uriŋ šavəsčər ninʌn they went off to "wash their hands and feet" i.e. for purposes of nature. 118.7. yust iriŋ duvə.ərimi he sought his foot and hand (to -kiss). 52.15. (Cp. -ufis and -riŋ).

utinʌs, ytinʌs, uti-, Ppa. n'utin to fill (pour?) s.t. into s.t. — sərmutsiŋ dərtsər n'utsun ut'iv bavn. Ut'inʌsvlo ʌkivl se.ibavn . . . taking the bags to the threshing-floor they fill them. While filling them they say thus . 332.8. sərmutsvlo ut'ibavn they fill (the grain) into the bag. n'utin having filled the bag. 332.6. (Cp. t(h)iyʌs to pour?)

-ufis (-r-), pl. -ufiŋ, y. N. pl. -utiŋ, -utivšo(?) -utivnts(?) foot (of man); lower leg (below knee or hock of quadruped). Forms: o(tis), gu-, yu-, mu-; IUB mitɨs, mitiŋ and myutiŋ, motiŋ, utiŋ. 000

N. 1. autiṣ, 3. iutiṣ. — yutiŋ jutiŋ bitsʌn his feet are small. 156.19. haṭar nala utie iarčan they put down their foot (sc. feet) at the same moment in the house. 304.17. wałto yutiŋ . . . oḍu.ar oγ'unumo the four trotters (or lower legs, of the sheep or goat) she gave to the guests. 232.7.

(From later information it is clear that in the sg. -utis is ordinarily x and in the pl. normally y. For an illustration of the former cp. utɨs galji bim. 220.6).

utɨkum IUB straight, like a camel, H. sidha, ūt ki ṭarah. (Equivalent to "as the crow flies"?).

utsimo v. -tsimo.

utsiyenʌs food taken with one when away from home, "shepherd's bread". — uʌle ḳapik utsiyenʌs aʌita pɨtimots bim they had with them two cakes of bread as outdoor food. 28.2(utsiyenʌs ditsu ke mu ḳičen produc the food and we shall eat it now. 30.1. (-tsi yenʌs).

u ui they themselves, V. ui and 1. -i.

uy'ʌm -ṛšo sweet, tasty, savoury. — gutse baʌit uyʌm bi.en these apples are sweet. uyʌm nʌs a sweet smell, perfume. uyʌm nasaŋs askuriŋ sweet-scented flowers. uyʌm baiyu sweet salt(?). uyʌmʌn amolum sučʌm tsa? where would I get a tasty thing from? 138.22. uyʌm učore ka with sweet voices. 182.1.

ūyʌmo secretly. — hikum sis ūyʌmo Šišporor ovimi he sent a party of men secretly to S. 240.3. uyʌnčimo receptional. V. -yʌnčimo*. — uyʌnčimo hərip music played when welcoming a guest of honour. 000 uyʌrʌs v. -yʌrʌs*. — uyʌrʌs diš place for (animals) to graze, i.e. grazing-ground, pasture.

-uyər*, -uyer*, -šo hm. husband. Forms: oyər, guyər, muyər; mi.uyəršo, —, uyəršo. — ja oyərʌn bai.i I have a husband. 24.12. čevi ja oyərʌle bi the key is with my husband. 24.16. muyəre senimi her husband said. 34.9. muyərər senumo she said to her husband. 36.17, 68.10,13. guke γenʌŋ guyəre gor dotsai.i your husband has sent you this gold. 56.27. uvimo uyəršuər senumʌn (the women) said to their husbands. 262.11. N. -uyer -rəo*; aruyer my husband. 601

The place of -uyər* is very often taken by jʌmaʌt.

-uyʌs* -uč-, Impv. -u, Ppa. n-un(in)* to give (h and x objects), v. § 231. d. Forms: joyʌs, guyʌs, yuyʌs, muyʌs; myuyʌs, —, uyʌs. 000

The Pn.pf. refers to the Indirect Object, the person or thing to whom the thing is given. This does not prevent the Indirect Object's being expressed also as noun or independent pronoun.

When the Indir. Obj. is the 1st person sg. the Pn.pf. a- is replaced by ja, and we get the infinitive ja + -uyʌs* → joyʌs, to give (h or x object) to me. When the verb is negative the Pn.pf. a- reappears, v. § 255.

Forms of the Affirmative of this type which have been recorded are:
Fut. 2nd sg. jočuma. 106.3, 118.22. — 3rd sg. bf. joreo. 50.22.
Pres. 2nd sg. joč'a. 62.16. —

OOO Pret. 3rd sg. hm. jo·mi. 62.18.
Impv. 2nd sg. jo. 60.16, 62.24, 90.22, 96.18, 104.11, etc. jo·ka. 92.15. N. ja·u. — Infin. jo·yas. 118.24. — tu·m ču·ran (x) jo give me another knife.
guli.en (x) jo give me a dried apricot.
hayuran (x) jar jo give me a horse.
thi jo·mi he gave it to me gratis.

In the case of the other persons of the Pn.pf.s the forms are according to rule.

The following are a few typical examples, the direct object being always h or x. —

Fut. gu·čam I shall give to you. 106.4, 112.6.
Pres. gu·ča ba why should I give (her) to you? 96.19. — yu·ča ba I am giving to him, going to give to him. 106.6. u·ča ba I am going to give to them. 116.18. u·čai.i he gives to them. 373.4, 368,2, 300.8. iyučan they give to him. 342.11. mučan they give to her. — u·čan they give to them. 340.15.
Pret. gu·yam I gave to you. 62.15. yuyam I gave to him. yu·mi he gave to him. 62.10, 112.12. u·mi he gave to them. 112.5. —
Plup. guya baiyam I had given to you. 44.17. yu·am he had given to him. 28.15. — Impv. inər yu give to him. mu give to her. u·ər u· give to them. menər ke u·u give it also to others. 60.17. — Infin. yu·sas bər promise of giving (her) to him. 936. myuyas to give to us. u·yasər rai etimi he decided to give (his daughters) to men. 116.17, cp. 298.8.

58 a

000 Ppa. nyuʷnin having given (her) to him. 262.10. — nuʷn, nuʷnin having given to them. 34.6.

St. pc. ja gurʌm bʌskʌrst ka tsu take away too the ram given thee by me. 62.21. —

Pres. base + ər.

ivna yuʷčer yuʷy pʌsoʷm imʌnumi the father grudged to give him (his son) to him. 106.1. —

Negative Forms.

bese aiyau.uča? why don't you give me (your daughter)? 96.19. aiy'au.uma thou didst not give me (a kid). 344.9. aiyawa, (Vernac. ms. oʷjoʷba) thou hast not given me (a kid). 370.9. ayau don't give to me. 118.24. eʷuča ba I won't give to him. 106.6. eʷučai.i he does not give to him. 112.4. ečʷučʌm no people used to give to him. 366.12, 378.2. oʷmi he did not give to them. 114.9. oʷmʌn, oʷumʌn they did not give to them. 242.14. oʷuwʌm they had not given to them. 296.3. oʷyʌsər on his not giving to them. 114.10.—

*-uyai.ʌs(?) v.i. to become dry, dry up. — uʷ ka in ka uʷyʌmʌn they and he too became dry. 160.8. (Cp. yuʷyʌs, v. § 232).

uyoʷn uyoʷn, oyoʷn, 3rd pers. form of *-yoʷn. Adj. and Pron. all the, the whole of, the entire, all.

Though the Pn.pf. is plural, this form is used as a generalised 3rd pers. form with nouns of all categories, whether singular or plural.

It normally follows the noun that it qualifies and takes case suffixes. mʌl uyoʷnulo through the whole field. 252.12 For more detailed account and examples, v. § 178.

58 b

uyum, pl. uyoŋko (uyumko, uyomko, oyomko). OOO

1. Big, great, large (of size, age, social position). — esetsum ke uyumʌn dotsuma than it (a horse) you have sent me a bigger thing (an elephant). 76.24. uyum ha a large house. hʌn uyum bumʌn yʌtsm dimi a great boulder came down from above. 294.5. uyum mʌnʌte hurušai he sits on a large platform.
2. It is used with words referring to age. — umərs uyum, dimʌnʌsə uyum, dəniŋs uyum, ba you are the greater in age, by (date of) birth, by years. All meaning: you are the elder, the senior.

   So by itself it comes to mean elder, eldest.

   jatsum uyum bai.i he is older than I. uyum gori . . . dum'obo your eldest daughter . . . . has come. 136.26, cp. 116.5, 368.15.

   It is also used of children growing up.
3. Chiefly in the plural, it is used for headman, chief man, elder, man of authority. — waltí giramo uyoŋko the headmen of the "Four Tribes" (of Central Hunza).
4. A person of consideration, entitled to respect, H. izzʌtmʌnd; a notable. (Not always distinguishable from the last meaning) — uyum sis bo she is a woman of consideration. uyumko gušiŋʌnts bam they are women entitled to respect. uyoŋkuiwər da šʌdəršuwər . . . hukum ɛtimi he gave orders to the elders (or notables) and followers. 41.3. ho uyoŋko uyawɛ kɛ hʌnikuts oršam then they set dishes also before the notables. 340.13. 000 uyuᵛmkv̄, y. greatness, authority. — uyumkvī ne hurutimi he abode, practising greatness, i.e. exercising authority, governing. 266.14.

In the following it seems to be used as an adjective. There is probably some error:

buᵛt uyuᵛmkvī gumai.ima you will become very great. 72.9.

'uᵛyumo, variant of uᵛimo, their own. 126.14, 92.5.

*-uᵛy, *-u, pl. *-utsəro father; father's brother. 601

The -y was to me more often than not imperceptible. To the following forms it may be added to taste: aᵛu (au), guᵛ, yuᵛ, muᵛ; myuᵛ, maᵛu, uᵛu (uᵛy).

The non-coalescence of the 1st sg. Pn.pf. a- with the u- is noteworthy. The combination appears as: aᵛu-, au-, au.u-. — le aᵛu O, my father! (as a term of respect). 282.6, cp. aya. auᵛ ʌmi.e bagoᵛ daiya ba I have come in place of my father and mother.282.8. au.e tinjo my father's bones. 80.22. ja au.ʊər maᵛri.e gʌlt ʌdəraᵛ di bilum the turn for (providing) supplies for the monster had come to my father. 282.7. ja altʌn au.utsəro oᵛsqʌnʌm he had killed my two father's-brothers. 266.10. je uŋe guᵛy (guᵛye i) ap'a I am not your father (your father's son). 14.13. uᵛŋe guᵛy gutsəro altʌn 'oᵛsqʌnai i he has killed your father and your father's two brothers. 264.18. muᵛ ke muᵛmi.e muyetsumʌn her father and mother saw her. 282.19. muᵛmi ke muᵛu.ər oᵛsumo she said to her mother and 601 father. 280.12. jvt ine yuɣyər ɛnimi the younger said to his father. 372.2. yuʷtsəruʷ təraq bel ovraʷn you have exterminated his fathers (i.e. his father and father's-brothers). 242.15. mi myu kʌtʌṭe guča bai.i our father is lying on the bed. 260.8. uɣ dimi their father came. 110.13. uʷe (uɣe) iʷmo mavl . . traq ovtimi their father divided his property among them. 372.5.

What appears to be a genitive in ça is found in the following, but perhaps it is referable to a hypothetical *-ya cp. aya.

guʷa haʷlər gutsər . . . muʷa haʷlər niʷmo go to your father's house . . . she went to her father's house. 282.18,19.

N. has uyum *-uy father's elder brother. jvt *-uy father's younger brother. makučim *-uy father's intermediate brother.

In Hz. I have recorded uyuʷm aya etc., but it is legitimate to say:

ja aʷu ɛ ɛčo my father's brother.

*-uyas v. yuɣyas, v.i. to dry up (h and x subjects).

000 uzər, uzur entreaty; excuse. — uzur ɛtumo . . . gatuŋ aɣun she entreated . . . give me my clothes. 14.10. da uzur ɛtimi . . . jaʷr asuin again he entreated, implored tell me . . . 38.13. uzur ɛtas to make an excuse. Ar.

uʷžo, uju, pl. uʷžumuts, otter. (Cp. Sh. uʷju, Skr. udrá-).

B.

ba verb substantive, I am; thou art. The parts of this verb, which lacks an infinitive, are based on; ba-, bo-, bi-. For the paradigm see §§ 269, 270.

ba, bʌ kiss — ba ɛtas to kiss, H. čuʷmna. yuʷtis iriŋɛṭe ba (or, baʷn)

60 a

000 sči bo she kisses his foot and hand. 138.3.

Used especially of the action of touching something with the fingers and then kissing them or putting them to the lips:

hʌnikʌṭe tsʌp ne bʌ ne gəromo ke gəromi . . the bridegroom and bride, touching the dishes and kissing (their fingers). 304.17, Cp. 18. Thʌme tsʌp ne b'ʌ ne hʌlər nim . . . horuṭai.i the Tham, touching (the dish) and kissing (his fingers), going to the house, sits down . . . 340.1. Cp. 70.7.

In this phrase bʌ ne sounds like one word, b'ʌne. The kiss direct is expressed by bʌn stʌs. bʌn is probably ba + ʌn = a kiss.

ariŋeṭe bʌn stimi he kissed my hand. ine ilčumotsʌṭe bʌn stimi, ine ifʌtiyʌṭe bʌn stimi, ine kirts bimʌn uyonʌṭe bʌn stimi he kissed (the child) on its eyes, he kissed it on the forehead, he kissed it on all its limbs. 90.23.

I have hilas bʌn stimi, he kissed the child, but I think this must be wrong, as in all other examples where the object kissed is expressed it has the suffix -ʌṭe. 92.16, 138.3, 368.9, 373.12.

bʌba v. bʌb'a.

bʌbo v. bʌpo.

bʌbuk[1]-rão (x). — čili bʌbuk very small bead. EOL. (Perhaps "juniper berry." Cp. Sh. čili juniper tree).

bʌdʌm v. bʌdʌm.

625 baḍigar the Mir's "Bodyguard". Small bodies of armed men maintained by the Mirs of Hunza and Nagir with the sanction and assistance of the Government of India. 340.17. Eng.

60 b

[1] [see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 541-Analyst]

baˑdša, paˑdša, king. 2.1 (et passim). 000 V. § 50. Prs.

baγo, pl. baγoćiŋ (e.g. of bread), baγomiŋ (of land), the pl. form baγotiŋ (cp. 32.16) is denied, y share, portion, fraction.

1. aˑlto baˑgo ganimi he took a double share. jaˑr besan baˑgo jućila the share that falls (comes) to me.366.3. jaˑr baˑgo ha ači give me (a) house for my share, or my share of houses(?). 112.11. baˑgo stas to apportion, share (bread, land etc.) IUB. tiˑki baˑgo manaˑs to become the share of the earth, i.e to be wasted, H. xaˑk ka ḫiṣa, yaˑns borbaˑd, homa. N. alto bego two-thirds. iski bego three quarters.
2. Substitute (for), in place of auˑami.s baˑgo daiya ba I have come as a substitute for my father and mother. 282.8, 42.1.
3. On the part of, on behalf of. guˑimo jaˑni jamaˑr ja baˑγo (sic) ju sti salute your relations from me. EOL. (Cp. Sh. baˑgo share, baˑgoˑski to divide, to apportion).

baγairi v. baγeˑri.

baγeˑrŋ v. baγe.

baγobaˑn, baγbaˑn (hn) gardener. 64.3, 382.11. Prs.

bahri (x) a kind of black-eyed hawk. Prs.

baˑi, bai.i a sum, formerly of 12, now of 16 rupees. It is divided into 2 xor. — hin xuraˑbgu.inaṣ bai.i γanṣše bap bila. ṭurma alta rupi.a mai.i bi.an there is a tax of a "bal" of gold on each Jemadar of Goldwashers. It amounts to 12 rupees. 348.7. (Cp. Sh. baˑi, bai.i, twelve). 436 651 baˑj (y) toll, tax. Prs.

61 a

ba·k[1/A] punishment. — ba·k ʌtʌs to force s.o. to answer, to question under pressure. — tik ba·q sućʌn let us enquire of the land and force it to answer. 250.16. (The ground is beaten to make it answer). ba·q stumʌn, ba·q stin they forced him to answer; force him to answer. ba·q atumʌn they forced me to answer. ǰʌpik gatu.e gans ba·k umai.ibʌ·n they beg exigently for food and clothing. 000 bakinç, bʌkinç, pl. baki.aŋ. N. bʌki·nś, pl. bʌkæŋ razor.

ba·l v. bʌl, wall.

ba·l ʌtʌs to suspend s.t., to lower s.t. (?), to let s.t. down (?). — ǰʌpik ks tsil sʌms xa gor ba·l ns besantse dʌ·skuǰ . . . let her letting down through the smoke hole bread and water to 'you lower it on something. 50.27. (Cp. Sh. bʌl tho.rki).

ba·latrʌŋ surcingle (of leather). Prs.

ba·li, (v. bʌli).

ba·lɤ arrived at puberty, adult. Ar. Prs.

ba·lɤ(i), balɤ·ɤi puberty ("14 or 15 years of age"). — a·ltʌr dʌn ni·mi bal'ɤɤr dʌǰqʌltimi twenty years passed and he reached puberty. 88.18. (A final -i is probably absorbed by the ending -ɤr). Ar. Prs.

balo·ski, Balti (belonging to Baltistan). — balo·ski baǰ the Balti language. (V. Index of Proper Names svv. Balo, Balo·ts).

1. ba·lt[1/A] sg. and pl., also pl. -rśo, x apple (fruit). — uyʌm ba·ltrśo sweet apples. gutse ba·lt uyʌm bi.en these apples are sweet.
2. ba·lt[1/A] iŋ y apple-tree. Also: ba·lts tom apple-tree.

ba·ltʌs ba·lć, Impv. ba·lt, neg. apa·lt, Ppa. nupa·ltin, v.t. to wash (y things).

61 b

[1/A] [see corrigenda et addenda category 116, p. 542 - Analysis]

000 — gots pati bavlt wash this (woman's) shirt. gatoŋ bavltas to wash clothes. miškil (mishil?) mirig bavltas to wash our hands and faces. (Cp. yavltas to wash (h & x objects). v. § 231. h. Ca. °-shaltas).

bavs v. ba, kiss.

bavsa v. bakavsa, pretext. Prs.

1. bavg y "charas" (hemp drug). — bavg minavs, bavg tashavs to smoke "charas". H.

2. bavg v. 2 bag, the Call to Prayer. Prs.

601 bavpo, bavbo, bapo, -tsavo his grandfather, (paternal or maternal). (Like bavbo this word is appropriated to Royal Families). — bavpotsavo hav (our) grandfather's cows. 248.5. (Here = "mother's fathers", i.e. probably the father and his brothers).

bavpos dani ayavdavs they play the B. D. "the Grandfather's slow time music". 302.6. (Here bapo is said to be "the Grandfather of the Mir").

000 bapots IUB felt socks, or stockings, H. wanda ka jurab. (Cp. Sh. bayavtig. Prs. payavt?) bavg °-atas v. under bavk.

bavgi remaining; remainder. — bavgi zahi rem the remaining three tribes. 248.4. Pl. the other ones. 286.8. Av.

bav contemporary, one's own kind, congenial (?) H. kam'umr, kamjirna, kamdam. — dunatsavs, le mi bakav yav bav the way of the world, my dear friend and fellow. 260.3. bavakullah God bless you!' 240.3. Av.

bavdum pl. hx -sto, y -ig, xy bavtuko; N. bavd'um pl. bavjuko, red. — bavdum hava red ant.

bavzi, bavi.ag —? — dustak bavzi, dustak bavi.ag (miscellaneous?)

62 a

1/1 [see corrigenda at addenda, category 116, p. 542 - Analyst]

000 things. jaṭ bavṛṭ = jaṭpaṭ old folk This supplementary word has no meaning of its own; it only conveys a vague sence of multiplicity.

bav IUE, given as variant of bavz, hawk. Ar. Prs.

bavṛ -iq (y) language, speech. — angrezi bavṛ the English language. balatu.e bavṛ ke.ibai.i he knows the language of birds. 96.5. Wani bavṛate kampir maper jat gumur se.ibam in the Wakhi language they call an elderly (or old) woman "kampir". 286.16.

In the Index of Proper Names vide: arumawṛaki, gu.iraki, balorki, balorto, kaśmiri. (Cp. Sh. bavṛ, language).

bavṛa a kind of yellow-eyed hawk (female), Sparrow-hawk(?). — bavṛa čup, ditto (male). Prs.

bawur believing, crediting; belief, credence. — bawur *-manas to believe, give credence (lit. to become believing). bawur amamai.i bam ke if you (pl.) don't believe. 252.24. sis bawur ommanuman the people did not believe. 284.4. Cp. 250.8, 252.6, 270.3.

In none of these is any object expressed.

I have once recorded:

bawur (or, dag) ataṛa ba apparently with the meaning of I don't believe. ataṛa ba is the 1st sg. pres. of the neg. a-duṛtas, which usually replaces the positive duṛu-yas (with y object) when the neg. prefix is present. Prs.

bayan statement, narrative, account. — ṛmo bayan atimi he made his own statement. 380.1. Ar. Prs.

bavz, bav kind of yellow-eyed hawk (female). — ṛimale . . . bavz ṛkorer niṭan tomorrow we shall go a-hawking. 4.10. Prs.

62 b

[see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 542 - Analyst]

baʿzaʿr -iŋ y collection of shops, "bazar", market. — baʿzaʿren bila there is a bazar. baʿzaʿrefer ni go to the bazar. 58.16, 60.11, 19, 66.16, 72.19. Prs. 000 baʿzi IUB trick, deception, H. makkari. Cp. bazi, Prs.

baʿzzaʿs claim, demands; disputing, discussion. — jaka besan baʿzzaʿs oʿmanj there must be no disputing(?) with me. 58.28. je ke uŋ baʿzzaʿs besan oʿmanj there must be no claims (disputing?) between thee and me. 62.9. Prs.

bab'a, baʿba father.

This term is used properly only in Royal Families (according to a Nagiri informant in the families also af Saiyids). For commoners to use it among themselves implies arrogance and insolence which demand punishment. Compare the history of the Tapkients, p. 238. 601 554

The corresponding term for mother is "rizi".

These words are said to have come down from the time of Alexander the Great who was accompanied by Diram Titag and Diram Moghul. uʿ uʿmiʿer "rizi, baʿba" se.ibam they used to address their father(s) and mother(s) as "rizi baʿba". 238.6.

Muʿnolum Daʿdo apparently claimed equality with rajas: 000 ine sinomo "mi bab'a goʿr qau ečai.i" she said to him: "my father summons you". 180.6. And Shahzada B. addressing the "White Deu" said: šu.a bab'a uʿŋe baba daʿrai your father (the King) has sent me. 30.14. uʿŋe babaʿr . . . gute haiyen tsu take this token to (the King) your father.

63a

136.15, 18. le baba Wazir, bəbaʿlər nukoʿn O father's Wazir, you going to (the King my) father. 136.25. Cp. 94.15. Prs.(?). ooo

1. bəbəl, babəl.

a. Suspended, hanging, IUB H. laṭkana. — kuʿto babəl ne suspending the bag. 140.16. bəbəl etəs v.t. to swing s.t. bəbəl mənaʿe v.i. to swing. -skil bəbəl etəs* to scowl. 1

b. A kind of leapfrog. (Cp. d-əspə-pələs* v.t. to whirl through the air, and Sh. bəbəla floating, in the air etc., reduplication of bəl, suspended).

2. bəbəl N. -iŋ y earth cliff (crumbly). (Cp. 1. bəbəl & bəlbəl).

bəbər -čuko (= joko?).

1. Equal, alike, H. bəraʿbər. — meltə-lik bəbər baʿn we are both alike, equal. 148.10. kuʿe uyoʿnəŋe bəbər bušai.i trəŋ ne gučəm (gučičəm?) dividing up the land I shall give you (a share) equal with all these others. 114.14. kuʿe uyoʿn bəbər hik trəŋ oʿčičəm (i.e. učičəm) I shall give them all (jointly) an equal half-share. 114.17.

Through the idea of equal halves we get:

goʿne bəbər midnight, bəbər gən half-way.

2. Even, level, exact, tallying (of accounts). — hisaʿb bəbər etimi he kept the accounts exactly, he made it tally. 104.19. oʿltəlike hisaʿb bəbər diʿmi (the accounts) of both came out even. 52.23.

3. Share, equal share. — bəber eti divide up equally. hik bəbər, aʿlto bəbər, iski bəbər 1, 2, 3, equal shares. (Equivalent to Prs. & H. bəraʿbər and probably derived from it).

63 b

1 [See Corrigenda et addanda, Category 116, p. 542 - Analyst]

000 bʌbərum hot (of taste); hot, ardent (of temper); smart, sharp. — marvč bʌbərum bi.ʌn pepper is hot. bʌbʌrum mʌltʌš old (strong-tasted ?) ghee. EOL. bʌbərumʌn bai.i he is a hot-tempered(?), keen(?) man. bʌbərum šau.ʌn etimi he gave him a smart slap (in the face).

bʌč -eŋ y fissure (in ice). — γʌmuʷe bʌč fissure in ice. (Cp. bʌγ).[1] bʌčʌn (state of) being. Recorded only twice, in the form bačʌntse.

1. je bʌčʌntse, merely mentioned and explained as equivalent to Kho. ma asika (in my being, at the time of my being).
2. In the following where it is glossed: Bu. bʌmʌntse, H. honese. — Nuvširwaʷn tʌxtʌte bʌčʌntse (or, bʌmʌntse) owing to (at the time of?) N.'s being on the throne. 96.22. (Probably based on the verb ba etc. Cp. biličʌn apparently the y equivalent of bʌčʌn. V. § 271).

bʌčen being(?), becoming(?), as(?), in place of(?). Occurring in one passage only, but repeated seven times. Glossed "become", "as", "instead of". It is probably identical with bʌčʌn. — oʷlus bʌčen aγun as being(?) my brother, give me (my clothes). 14.12 ff., 18.1 ff.

1. bʌda, -miŋ, bʌdʌŋ, y step, pace.

a. hik bʌda one pace. aʷlto bʌda diš bila there is a space of two paces. aʷlto bʌdamiŋ bitsa there are two paces. hʌn bʌdaʷn biša take one step. hilese bʌda bišʌmi the child toddled (said of child or person recovering from injury who can just take a step or two). iʷne yʌkʌl bʌda bršʌču bo she steps towards him. 120.7. tʌlo

64a

[1] [see Corrigenda et addenda category 116, p. 542 - Analyst]

000 bʌdʌŋ gutsʼərumer when they have preceeded seven paces. 312.8. (jakun) tsundo bʌdʌŋ gi·mi (the donkey) advanced, moved on, five paces. 200.14.

b. Sole (of foot or boot), pl. bʌdʌŋ, kʌfša yʌ·rum bʌda the (lower) sole of the shoe. (Cp. Eng. "tread" = "part of boot sole that rests on the ground").

136 2. bʌda -muts x the Woolly Flying Squirrel (Eupetaurus Cinereus).

It occurs in various localities in the Gilgit region and is said to be found in the Šišpər nullah in Hunza. Its name in Shina is čərgeɨ.

See my letter in the "Journal of the Natural History Society of Bombay" of 1st. October 1924, and Editor's note in which it is stated that "so far it has only been recorded from Gilgit".

000 bʌdʌl changed; (as noun) y substitute, equivalent. — bʌdʌl ɛtʌs v.t. to change. ma rʌŋ bʌdʌl mʌni·la your colour has changed. 90.12. bʌdʌl mʌni bi it has become, been, changed. ji.ɛ bʌdʌl (bila) blood-price, ransom. Ar. Prs.

bʌdʌla revenge, vengeance. — ja i·nɛ bʌdʌla gʌnʌm I took his revenge, i.e. I avenged him. ja i·ntsum bʌdʌla ɛtʌm I took revenge on him. Prs. H.

bʌḍʌli·k, (bʌrʌli·k), -uts, -rəo (EOL), x small metal bowl (for drinking from). — i·tɛ bʌḍʌli·kulum tsil the water (that is) in the bowl. 106.17 ff. ri·lə bʌḍʌli·k copper bowl. (IYB and self -ḍ-, self also -r-, EOL -ṛ-. Cp. Sh. bʌḍəli·k).

bʌdʌm, ba·dʌm, x almond; y, pl. -iŋ, ičiŋ, almond tree. — bʌdʌm bi.ɛn there are almonds. bʌdʌmɛ hʌni.ɛn (bi) an almond (kernel). bʌdʌmɛ hʌni

64 b

(bi.en) almond kernels. bʌdʌme torman bila there is an almond tree. Prs. 000 bʌdbʌxt unfortunate, unlucky. Prs.

bʌdnaʷm spoken ill of, defamed, slandered. Prs.

bʌdnaʷmi y ill-repute, disgrace. — iʷn bʌdnaʷmi maniʷla he has fallen into evil repute, he has been disgraced. Prs.

bʌdšʌkəl evil-looking, ugly. Prs. (+ Ar.).

bʌdsuʷrʌt N. -iʷnts ugly. Prs. (+ Ar.).

-tsi bʌɣʌlteʷʌs*, bʌɣʌltai.ʌs, -tsi bʌɣʌlteč-*, -ač- to be mad, to go mad.

The Pn.pf. with -tsi* corresponds to the subject of the verb. I know of no other parallel construction.

Pres. aʷtsi bʌɣʌlteča ba I am mad. gutsi bʌɣʌlteča you are mad. iʷtsi bʌɣʌltačai he is mad, he is an idiot.

Impf. iʷtsi bʌɣʌltečʌm he was mad.

Pret. aʷtsi bʌɣʌlte.ʌm I went mad. gutsi bʌɣʌltʌma? have you gone mad? 70.18.

Perf. be mʌma, aʷtsi apaɣʌltaiya ba No, mother, I have not gone mad. 70.18. gutsi bʌɣʌlta ba you have gone mad. 210.1.

The Noun Agent form is also used in the sense of the adj. mad: aʷtsi bʌɣʌlte.ʌs ba I am mad (a madman). gutsi bʌɣʌlte.ʌs ba you are mad. iʷtsi bʌɣʌlte.ʌs bʌm he was mad. iʷtsi bʌɣʌlte.ʌs sis a mad person, idiot.

bʌɣʌraʷço hmf. hideous creature, scare-crow, bogle(?) (term applied to children, servants etc.). — kiʷn bʌɣʌraʷço this figure of fun(?) scare-crow. 124.7. (bʌɣərk rʌʷço. rʌʷço is related to raʷçi = guardian angel).

bʌɣ'ərk, -rəo, -u, evil, evil-doing, evil-natured, quarrelsome.

(The word seems to cover such ideas as "bad-tempered", "fierce", "violent", "avaricious", "stingy" (H. bʌxiv̩), as applied to human beings). bʌγərkrši̇o hirivk evil men. aγʌmo bʌγərku bʌn my relations are evil people. 246.13. inɛ ʌjʌb bʌγərk ʌpərts sisʌn bai.i he is an extraordinarily ill-tempered, quarrelsome fellow. EOL. bʌγərkɛ tsiriv̩ʒ root of evil (a term of abuse for evil-doers). 000 bʌγ'ərkkuʒ y evil. (Opposed to nivki). — jʌrtsum bʌγərk(k)uš ʌçuvči evil will not come from me. 90.13. jɛ bʌγərk(k)uš aiy'evčʌm I will not do evil. 90.14.

bʌγbe.aγo lynx. (Cp. Sh. bʌgbe.aγo. Hz: šunuṭ).

bʌγ'eviŋ, bʌγai.rŋ̩'y d. pl. -ičiŋ, cowdung. — gʌtuŋ . . . bʌγeɪrŋɛ tʌsʌlɛ ɛtʌm I held (her) clothes in cowdung smoke. 16.20. Cp. 14,8, 18.5.

Cowdung is antipathetic to peris. 776
The smoke of it when burned deprives them of the power to fly. Cp. also 382.5. n.

bʌγeɪri, bʌγairi, bʌγair only, except that. — men kɛ o.ivtsa ba, bʌγeɪri hikulto Irkrši̇ər huyɛs tsuya baiyʌm tsilɛ buvk yuγrmi I have seen no one, only one day I had taken the goats to Irkiši and I became thirsty. 268.10. bʌγair Bʌxti sɛnʌs hivʌn duγʌsin only a man called B. escaping. 272.9. bʌγairi S.ɛ givli.etə wʌvum bʌt dərum xa bila only the stone placed by Š. over the peg is still there. 196.14. bʌγeɪri menen hivʌne ivmo ʌvltʌn yu kʌš ovti kɛ bʌvdša dyuweši only if someone slays his two sons will the King survive. 38.24. Ar. Prs. 000 bʌγu -čiŋ, -mičiŋ y double armful (whatever can be embraced by the two ~~arms~~

65 b
[see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p.542 - Analyst]

000 — bʌγu.ʌn ʂɪqa an armful of grass. bʌγu ɛtʌs to embrace. bʌγučiŋ ɛtʌs to turn over cut-crops to dry them (done by women).

bʌγ'ʊndo y yeast, leavened dough. — bʌγʊndo juʿʌn mʌnuʿma you have become like dough, i.e. lazy, slack.

bʌγ'ʊndo, -mʊts x leavened bread. — In Hz. the term is said to be applied to bəru.ɛ ʊltoʿpomʊts, small buckwheat cakes.

bʌγ'ʊndokrʂ, (ba-), pl. baγʊndoki.ʌnts, x. 1. A vessel for keeping fermenting dough in, H. xʌmiʿrdaʿn.
2. A lazy, soft, man.
baγʊndikrʂ bʌpʌγʊm juwʌn oʿmʌn don't be like a fermenting dough-vessel. (This is said to a slackster). (IUB bʌγʊndikrʂ = H. aʿtęki xʌmiʿr rʌkhneka bʌrtʌn).

bʌhaʿna, baʿna pretext. — šikərɛ baʿna nɛ dukuʿisʌm making a pretext of hunting I got you out. 8.12. Cp. 240.1. Prs.

bʌja o'clock. — bervm bʌja? at what o'clock? mišiʿndi bʌjaʿr at six o'clock. t'orimi bʌja xa till 10 o'clock. 326.9. H.

bʌja ɛtʌs to set up, establish, — Islaʿm bʌja ɛʿči he will establish Islam. 92.6. Prs.

bʌk biʿk chatter(?), at length(?), in detail(?). — inɛ tʌmaʿm haʿlʌt bʌk biʿk mosʊmo he told her all the circumstances in detail(?). 382.17 . . . (Cp. H. bʌkʔ).

bʌkoʿr, bʌkʊr, pl. bʌkoʿriŋ, bak'uʿriŋ, y. a sod of turf, divot. 132.23.

b'ʌkʊr, -šo x roofed pen or small hut for lambs and kids. (Cp. Sh. baʿkur — shed, or hut, for kids).

bʌxmʌl y velvet. Prs. (mʌxmʌl).

66 a

000 bʌxšɪnda stʌs to forgive. — bʌxšɪnda dʊmərʌs to ask for forgiveness.

bʌxšiš y present, gift; pardon. — bessʌn bʌxšiš inev iči give him some present. av bʌxšiš sti pardon me. 74.11. bʌtəŋ dusumʌntsʊm bʌxšiš dumərčʌn they ask pardon of those who brought the stones. 312.7. bʌxšiš stʊma ke ... if you forgive me. 368.5. Prs.

bʌxt y fortune, luck. — bʌxttsʊm by good luck. šu.a bʌxt fortunate, lucky. bʌxt γunikrš unfortunate. bʌxt dolʌt se.ibai.i "(it is your) good fortune and prosperity" he says. 332.9. Prs.

bʌl, bʌl, -eŋ y wall. — turi.ʌŋ bʌltse deli bʌn they have fixed horns on the wall.

ʰʌl, -iŋ y.

1. Marrow, H. mʌγz. — ivse tinj'o.ulʊm bʌliŋ duwʌq ne di.usin gʌnimi smashing them and extracting the marrow that was in its bones he took it. 134.7.

   (duwʌq ne requires an object, timjo, and tinj'o.ulʊm may be an adj. qualifying bʌliŋ or an abl. dependent on di.usin).

   ivte bʌl uyom all the marrow. 136.17. Cp. 138.4, 8.

2. Kernel of walnut, IUB bʌliŋ, IYB lili.e bʌl(iŋ) = H. giri ʌxrotki, mʌγz i čʌr-mʌγz.

   hʌγurər bʌliŋe bʌspur gimər on putting down for the horses horse-food of walnut kernels. 378.9.

bʌla y calamity, misfortune. — gute hʌn jʌr bʌlʌn mʌnivla this is a calamity that has befallen me. 118.16. bur bʌla gʌn bila it is a road of great calamity, i.e. peril or danger (?). 124.18. Ar. Prs.

66 b

1. balas, balič-, v.i. to burn. — pfu balići, balićila, balićilum the fire will burn, is burning, was burning. pfu balimi the fire burnt. N. balići bila, Plup. bali bilum. (Cp. 2. balas? Ca. 1. -aspalas). 000

2. balas, balič- to fall, to make its appearance (of y subjects only). — ayalulum bere xa balimi lightning came down from the sky. ʒrqame ji balimi (new) life has come (fallen) into the vegetation. kot tayayan xa ap'alila . . . bese kha balićila? this mud has not fallen down! . . . why should it fall down? 170.9. ja bufai.afe gan balila a road has fallen on (crossed) my land. ime ite suwat gawe tsilor bali bilum that appearance of him had fallen on the water below (i.e. his reflection). 262.21. γωxan čas itimi γωmowan balimi he tore up a clod and a hole appeared. 54.4. Cp. 172,21, 186.9, 372.9.

balan manas, balanej manas to writhe, wallow. (Cp. Sh. bal'an b. to roll about).

balaŋ, -iŋ y (curtain-)pole. !

balas, pl. balašo, x bird. — ovmamulo balašu.ik čal etis some birds fought, or quarrelled, in the sky. 96.4. balašu.s bas the language of birds. 96.5. guse han balasane han iesw se.ibi this one bird says to that one. 96.18. Cp. 96.25. (Cp. Sh. balats, balas).

balats N. -ršo, bird. (Variant of balas).

balbal, -iŋ y a rock that leans outwards, projecting or overhanging rock. (V. 2. babal. Cp. Sh. bal berki, to be suspended, to hang).

67a

[see Corrigenda et addenda, Category 16, p. 542 - Analyst]

balban, pl. balbæiŋ, N. balbaniŋ y a big hole. 000 balçum IUB —? — balçum mɐrɐ. Prov. 16.

Perhaps a miswriting for baltɐum ← bal + tɐɐ + um, being-on-the-wall.

balda, pl. baldaŋ, y load, burden. — ɣaṡil baldaŋ nɐ making (fire)wood up into loads. 128.7. balda ganas to carry a load. menɐ kɐ baldaŋ nɐka carrying people's loads. 158.7. balda ɐvi.ɐyɐr han pfutan bim there was a Deu to make carry the load. 174.18, haɣvrɐṡ balda ɐvɐyɐn, or ɐvɐdzli put up the load on the horse. haɣvriṡo.ɐṡ baldaŋ ɐvɐyɐn, or ɐvɐdili, or ɐvɐti put the loads on the horses. Cp. -ayenas and -adilas. traŋ balda a half-load.

baldakrɐ -iŋ y large (skin) bag (taking about 240 to 290 lbs. of grain).

baldakwin, -kwyo hm carrier of loads, porter, "cooly" — baldakwinan ditsu.in fetch a cooly. 342.17, 348.10.

baldan, baldan, pl. b'aldaiyo; N. bald'an, baldayo, x whetstone (obtained in the neighbourhood of Baba Ghwundi), hone.
(IUB has baldɐn بَلْدَيْنْ but this is almost certainly a slip, as there is no reason to doubt that the latter part of the word is dan, a stone).

bald'i, pl. baldents, N. baldimots, x porch, verandah. — baldyulu hurw sit in the (upper) verandah. 50.25. sɐrkɐ baldi a room made on the top of roof (for sake of the view).

balgal balgal loose, slack, not taut (as of suspended rope, rope-bridge etc.). (Cp. jafal).

balgičiŋ y pl. back of shoulders, upper part of back. — yate balgičiŋɐr bɐr'enin, but daldaljuko bitsa look above at his shoulders, they are very broad. 154.19, 158.6.

67 b

[See corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 542 - Analysis]

ooo bʌlguʷin pl. bʌlguʷyo hm a man who has several grown-up working sons, a man with large family of males. — Xʌmər bʌlguʷin bʌm Khamer was a man with a number of grown-up sons. 250.4. (Cp. opposite xumuʷin).

bʌlγʌn having a sore, galled. — ise hʌγur sēčiŋeṭe bʌlγʌn imʌni bi that horse has become sore-backed. (Cp. Sh. bʌlgʌn)

1. bʹʌli sg. and pl., N. pl. -muts, measure of wine = 1 hipərs = 4 čuti = about 5½ lbs. — hik bʌli, aʷlto bʌli. IUB a large earthenware vessel, H. mʌṭi ka bʌra bʌrtʌn, mʌṭka. N. earthenware pot (imported).

2. bʌlʹiʷ -ʌtʌs to put one thing on top of another, to pile up, heap up. rupiʷa hʌhʌnʌṭe bʌli ortaʷn they have piled up the rupees one on another.

bʌlk, baʷlk Nz., pl. bʌlkoŋ, y plank, board, shelf. — gute baʷlk baʷltse deʷli, or eʷgərʌṭ fix this plank, shelf, to the wall.

bʌlki, bʌlke indeed, in fact; on the contrary; rather. — be, bʌlki uŋər hiʷi mʌniʷla No! on the contrary, you have got the larger amount. 250.8. je hʌljaiyʌse yʌški apʹi, bʌlki uŋ hʌljaiyʌstse yʌški bi it is not suitable for me to ride, rather is it suitable for you to ride. 6.16. bʌlke Mʌtum Daskutsər ke učan indeed they give it even to the people of Matum Das. 318.10. Cp. 346.2. Prs.

bʌloʷḷ, pl. bʌlowʌnts, N. bʌloʷḷrso, cooking pot (made of a kind of soft local stone). — bʌloʷḷ dʌn the stone in question, of which cooking pots and lamps are made. bʌloʷḷdʌnt čirʌq a stone lamp. V. s.v. pʃultiŋiṣ. (Cp. Sh. bʌloʷḷ).

68 a

000 baltaᵛnas, baltai- to be discontented (with). — uᵛŋtsum baltaᵛna ba I have become discontented with you. 1st sg. Fut. baltʿaiyam; 1st sg. Pret. baltaᵛnam.

baluᵛyas, baluᵛč- to be lost, † get lost. (Of y subjects only, é.g. clothes, needle, foot-tracks). iᵛtsu baluᵛ bilum the track had got lost, disappeared. 6.4. 3rd sg. Pret. baluᵛmi; 3rd sg. Perf. y balu bila. (Cp. waᵛlas, to get lost (of h and x subjects) and Cs. -aspalas,* to lose).

bam, baman, bame, bamaṭe Static Pc. of ba, v. § 389.

bambuᵛla N. — bambuᵛla biš tom-cat.

1. ban closed, shut. — ban etas to close, shut. gusi sanduq ban bi this box is shut. Prs. (band).
2. ban, -oᵛŋo, -oᵛmo, y anything used for tying with, tape, etc. — huᵛčo ban thong, or lace, for tying on pabboos (footwear). kati ban webbing etc. used for stringing bedstead. Prs. band closed. — han band furuᵛwan a closed pumpkin. 384.21 Prs.

banda human being, person. — banda čape maza the taste of human flesh. 66.18. Prs.

bandegi service (to God as slaves). — lei Xudayor bandegi etumrão O (ye) who do service to God. 90.5. Prs.

bandixaᵛna y prison, jail. Prs.

bandobas arrangements, preparations. — bandobas etuman they made preparations (to go). . 120.22. hayorate bandobase ka nuljan he came along, riding his horse in fine style (?). 122.21. Prs.

bani aᵛdam human being. — bani aᵛdame rdim bi it had a human body. 102.7. Ar.

68b

bʌn'o x meat and food given annually by the Mir of Hunza to the people on certain festivals: 574

1. At the Bopfau: one ox, one very small kid, one very small lamb.
2. At Nauroʿz: the flesh of an ox and bread brought from the Masjid near the Baltit polo-ground and distributed to the people of the "12 kanants" the name of each section being called out in turn. 318. — bʌno dišam . . . tsor Baltit-kutsər učam they bring the "bano" . . . first they give it to the people of Baltit. 318.7. (Cp. Sh. bʌn'o = baʿgo, share).

1.. bʌŋ y resin, gum (of fruit trees), H. gond. — bʌŋ duʿšila gum exudes. 278
The resin of apricot and peach trees is eaten dissolved in water and is said to be strengthening. It is also used as adhesive gum. Others say apricot resin is a remedy for heartburn

2. bʌŋ, baʿŋ the Call to Prayer 000 Axomdərui.ε mʌzʌrʌtε bʌŋ qau the Mullahs call out the Call Prayer over the grave. 312.9. Prs bʌŋut, -iŋ y fortified camp, cantonment; pl. separate bodies of men. — imε bʌŋut dεlim padša that King who has made entrenchments. 32.2. (Cp. Sh. bʌŋut, bʌŋuts, Kho. bʌŋqut, both meaning breastwork of stones, 'sangar').

bʌp, -ičʌŋ y.

1. Tribute (as paid by Mirs of Hunza and Nagir to Kashmir), tax. -- bʌp iči.ʌs to pay tribute to him. iŋi.ε bʌp gai.rmi he will take tribute of their beards. 92.20. Giʿltum thʌmu.ε Čupuʿrsʌntsum bʌp suʿčʌm The Gilgit Thams used to collect tribute from Chupūrsan

280.2. Cp. 348.8. baiyu.e bʌp Bʌlo·tse osa·n the Baltis have imposed a salttax. 274.7. baiyu.e bʌp . . . thamu.ər uč'imʌn they paid a salt-tax to the Thams. 274.9 Cp. 280.5, 344.8. 000

2. Custom, rule, condition, H. šart, dʌstu·r. — uŋʌte gute bʌp osʌm I have imposed obligation(?) on you. 194.10. Cp. 342.17. (Cp. Sh. bʌp).

bʌpʌyʌs (bap-), bʌpʌč-, v.i. to boil, ferment. — bʌpʌyum tsil boiling water. tsil bʌpʌčimi, bapʌčila, bapʌyimi the water will boil, is boiling, boiled. Čupu·rsʌn . . . imo ra·ʌti bʌpʌyimi Ch. spontaneously boiled up. 286.10. nup'ʌpʌyin boiling up. 272.8. baγundikiš bʌpʌyum juwʌn (a man) like a vessel of fermenting dough, a babbler(?). Cs. espʌpʌyʌs to cause to boil.

bʌq N. x sg. sour curds. — bʌq šiyʌs to eat sour curds. (Cp. Sh. meli bʌk, buttermilk after the liquid has been drained off).

1. bər, -iŋ y saying, speech, word; promise; affair, matter, business, H. bart, Sh. mo·r. — ine besʌn bərʌn ečai.i? what does he say? 78.18. yu·s gute bər dumo·yel but xvš mʌn'umo his wife, hearing this saying (i.e. what her husband said) was greatly delighted. 34.15. uŋe bər men atoyelšʌn let none hear your speech (i.e. hear you speak). 50.15. ime ite bərtsum ho·lə atuwšo bom she used never to go outside that which was said, i.e. never disobeyed his instructions. 34.9. e· yu·yʌse bər 'ečiča.i.i he does not give a promise to give him his daughter. 298.7. yu·yʌsər bər ičičai.i he promises to give (her) to him. 298.8. yərum bər bila there is an 000 old-time saying. hʌn bər nɛ making one statement i.e. saying one thing; unanimously; with one voice; with one accord. uŋ kɛ guʷsɛ hʌn bər nɛ* you and your wife unanimously. 44.22. Cp. 106.11. hʌn bərʌn bila there is a matter . . . a piece of business. bɛskə bər api it is a matter of no consequence; it doesn't matter. 74.12. gutə bərer dʌk dəsuʷyʌm I believed this report, affair etc. bəriŋ udəri ɛtʌs a seeker of information, spy.

2. bər, -kiŋ (and -miŋ?), y nullah, ravine, valley.

Larger than hər; appears in quasi-Proper Names e.g. Bərəndo Bər, Šišpər Bər etc. (Cp. Sh. bər, as in Kərga.ɛ Bər).

3. bər, -ʌnts x a piece (of woven rug). — šərma bər one small goat's hair rug. (Cp. Sh. bər, width of cloth, Kho. baʷr, width or piece of cloth, trʌŋ baʷr, narrow width, or piece, of cloth).

bəraʷbər equal, alike, duly, certainly, by all means. — bəraʷbər maʷr duʷšʌm I shall duly bring them (the boys' heads) to you. 156.11. Prs. (Cp. bʌbər).

bəraʷɛ, bərič-, Ppa. nuper, to thresh (by making oxen trample the cut corn on the threshing-floor). — guʷr bəričʌm, bərʌʷm I'll thresh, I threshed, the wheat. heri.ɛ dərts bəričʌm. Nuper . . . they thresh the barley (cut) crop. Having threshed it . . . 332.1. (Cp. -ʌwərʌs*. V. §§ 236. A. & 241, Note).

bərʌntsʌl, -šo x catgut. The simple form also appears to be plural: bərʌntsʌl bi.ɛn there is catgut.

bərbaʷd wasted. — bərbaʷd ɛtʌs to waste. Prs.

000 bərč, -iŋ y.

1. Lightning, H. bxjli, bʌrq. — bərč lʌm mʌnimi lightning flashed, it lightened. ayʌšulum bərč xa bʌlimi lightening came down from the sky.
2. Intense cold. — čʌγurəmɛ bərč bʌlimi, or duʷimi it became extremely cold. haʷlɛ bərč duʷčila it is very cold in the house.

bərči, bərče.

1. (gen +) bərči mʌnaʷ to comply with, agree to, obey, be obedient to (orders, wishes of s.o.) mu mumi.ɛ bərče oʷmai.ibo she doesn't obey her father and mother. 30.5. kinɛ bərči mɛ.imi he will comply with his instructions, obey him. 92.22. ʌkurəmʌn muyɛri (-ɛ) bərči boʷm kɛ . . . she was so complaisant, obedient to her husband's wishes . . 34.8. uŋɛ bərči oʷmʌnəm disobedient to you. 378.14. Xʌmərɛ sɛnimi . . . Xuru bərči (or, rɛza) imʌnimi Kha. said . . . Khu. agreed (to what he said). 252.1.
2. bərči *-ʌtʌs persuade, make conform. — yuʷy . . . iʷi bərči ečai.i the father (tries to) placate, persuade his son. 370.6. (The parallel version 374.6 has iʷ ɛʷmilʌsər duγ'uʷuʷskinimi). (Probably 1. bər + -tsi, -tsɛ. Cp. § 71).

bər'ɛʷnʌs, bərɛ-, Impv. bərɛʷn, Ppa. nupərɛn. to look; to look at (dat.); watch, look for, look about. — koʷlə bər'ɛn look here. iʷnɛ hiʷər bərɛʷn look at that man, watch that man. iʷnɛ yʌtisər bərɛʷnin look at his head. 154.21. apər'ɛn, ap'ərʌn don't look. 50.26. 27. miyʌkʌl ap'ərɛn don't look at, towards, us. Pʌŋču.ər hik kɛ bʌrɛʷnin ine bɛr ɛčai.i ke . . . just have a look at P. (and see) what he is doing. 126.7. ɯɛ altʌn sis . . . nuɛn bəreibaɛn. Bəre.imʌn ke šuɛa ɛpʌčər γʌšil bitsa The two men go and look. When they look (they see that) he has excellent firewood with him. 126.9. bəre.imi ke is a stock phrase: "when he looks (he sees) something is happening . . ." i.e. "he looks and sees something is happening". hik ke bareyʌn let us have another look. 122.18. iɛn yər nupərʌn . . . gutsərčai he proceeds, looking straight ahead. 122.17, Cp. 14.4. iɛni.ɯlo kəruɛr bər'enɯmo she looked in his beard for lice. 282.10. yaɛs ap'ərʌnum not looking down. 52.2. Cs. -ʌbəranʌs. 000 bər'enč watching, look out, H. ɛntzraɛ. — bərenč ne baei, he is keeping a look out. pfu bər'enč (ɛtʌs) pl. pfu bəraɛ to kindle) an alarm fire, beacon fire. (From bəraɛnʌs).

bər'ɛs, baɛ'ɛs, Pl. bər'ɛšo, N. bʌris, Pl. bʌrɛšo, x artery, vein, pulse. — bərɛs bust hʌmʌlkum bi his pulse is very quick. ja jiɛ b'ərɛsər bər'en examine my life's artery, i.e. feel my pulse. 146.19.

b'ərginʌs, pl. bərginʌšo x.

1. Edging round rim of anything.
2. A small piece of wood, charcoal etc. used in repairing a hole in a "mashk"[1] The skin adjoining the hole is gathered together round the bərginʌs and is secured with ligatures above and below the latter. 415
3. A stick used when prodding ghee to test whether the milk has become sufficiently solid. The stick is placed vertically in it, and if 234

71a

[1] [a skin bag for carrying water. — Analyst] it stands up by itself the milk is 234 ready for the next process.

ɔriŋkṭ IUB. 000

1. Chatter-box, buckstick, H. bakwawi.
2. Tale-bearer, calumniator, H. suxan-čin.
3. Liar, H. duruṛgu. (Pl. of 1. bɔr + kṭ).

bɔrkat.

1. Blessing, blessings, prosperity. — mar bɔrkat blessings on you! 340.20. gor bɔrkat manij blessings be on you! 286.4.
2. Portion, share. — dywasuman uṛgɔr bɔrkat (the food) that is left over be your portion. 212.14. Ar. Pra.

bɔrpit, -iŋ y leather strap. — cəčçoma bɔrpit leather waist-belt. bɔrpitana taq gota baiyam I had bound you (sc. your head) with a leather strap. 158.18. (Cp. Sh. pfarpit).

bɔrtsil, -iŋ a small stream in a nullah. — furu.ulum dele bɔrtsilaŋ duwaštimi streams of oil flowed from the pumpkin, H. nale nale. 384.24. (2. bɔr + tsil?).

bɔru, baru, y pl., double pl. bɔrosiŋ. buckwheat. — yaṛqay baru bitter buckwheat. 132.15. (Cp. Sh. bɔru.o).

baruh'andri -iŋ y cranesbill (plant).

bɔrzan manas v.i. to turn over (as of fish in water. H. tarapna.

bas, -oṛgo x ploughshare (wooden, for shallow ploughing). — čumar bas modern iron ploughshare. IUB. H. halmṭ lagai ka lakri, phal achini ya hiṛsumi.

bas, v. bask, extra, too much. 50.16.

b'asa pl. basaŋ, N. basamiŋ, y halting for night, halting-place, stage, day's march, H. manzil. — bɔruman basa bila? how many days' march is it?

000 berumaṇ basaṇ me.imi? how many stages will it be? akoʻle hik, aʻlto, basa maiyam I shall halt here one day, two days. ite basa.ulo tsil api there is no water at that stage. 124.15, cp. 126.20. bas amanum diśulo at the place where I spent the night. Tsil Biśulo basa mana baiyam I had halted the night at T. B. 224.2. haʻle basa manimi he put up for the night in the house. 686.22. (Cp. Sh. bas, Kho. bas).

basaw, basić-, Impv. bass, Ppa. nupʼas(in). St. Pc. basum.

1. To fall (of dew, snow), to alight, settle (of bird). — gye (y pl.) basitsan snow has fallen (and is lying). tal basimi the pigeon alighted.
2. To sit down. — in nikʼirat basumor on his sitting down after dancing. 318.2. Nuśirwan taxtaṭe basimi N. has seated himself on the throne. 92.28.
3. To sit down and be quiet, keep still, keep quiet. — ye bass sit down and be quiet!, shut up!. jap bass sit still, don't move. nupʼasin horut sit down! basum I kept silent, made no reply.
4. To cease work, come to a stand still — yai.iṇ basimi (or, horutimi) the mill stopped, came to a standstill. 204.6.
5. To subside, go down. — doqum basimi the swelling subsided, went down. N. nupas jurin come slowly (?)

Other parts:

3rd sg. Fut. basići; 3rd sg. y Pres. basićila.

3rd pl. y Pres. basićiṭsan.

3rd sg. y Perf. basiʻla, basi bila. (Ca. -aspaxas*. Cp. du.sas ‖ duwasas?).

000 b'asi, pl. hasuṇ, N. hasaṇ y garden, orchard. — hasi.s yatikuin person in charge of garden, gardener. 64.2. has'ver divni he came to the garden. 64.6. (hoṛ) hasi.ulo bilaan there were vegetables in the garden. 64.1. hasi-lom asqurig dowa fetching flowers from the garden. 282.11. hasi.ulom lidi.o garden violet. Cp. 10.13 ff.

hasikuin N., pl. hasikuyo, gardener.

hask, N. pl. -avuṇ, extra, spare; in excess, more (than). — pywaan hask manimi.s a little (charcoal x pl.) has remained over. 184.6. (lamu) lokan ziṛ-d hask jaṛ-d ṛtimi he drew (the bow) a little further (than the others). 170.6. (zi.ṛ-d here seems to be redundant). avtuuultvtum hik has (hask?) hawtoma ke . . . if you remain one (day) in excess of forty . . . 60.16. oskotrom hask hakiṭaṇ ovanaf may there never (not) be more than 3 houses (here). 284.16. (Cp. Sh. hasko, too much, more).

haskaraf, b'askaraf, pl. haskarato, haskarilo wether, ram (over 2 years old, castrated). — has haskarais jirpa ovów they fine them one wether. 324.5. haskarais ilsiv thamar kaborò ne roasting the breast of the wether for the Tham. 328.18. (The trsl., "he-goat", given in the Texts is wrong, and hugere in l. 10 may refer to either sheep or goats).

Cp. 62.10 ff., 340.9, 342.14.

haskoṛò extra, spare. — IUB haskoṛò more than one's share, H. apne bijpa se zijyada. (Cp. hask and Sh. haskoṛ-o, f. -i, spare, superfluous).

haspuv y pl., N. double pl. -iṇ, grain for horse, horse food. — ṛsur haspuv ɛyun don't give it (the horse) grain. hiṭoṭi hazpuv wazivir ivvi how they give a "hiṭoṭi" of grain (for his horse) to the Wazir. 342.9. halige hazpuv gimur Ḗ.B.ɛ ch ṭaṭam on their putting down horse food of walnuts Sh. B. used to eat it (y pl.). 278.9. (Cp. Sh. hazpuv). 000 hazum, (of a person) equable, forbearing, self-controlled, mild; H. halīm, sahir, narm. (St. Pe. of hazuv).

1. haṭ, -anda, N. -ānda, x bridge (general term). — sindafum, hurafum, haṭ the bridge over the river, over the nullah. haṭ-talanum maqso share (of communal labour of the region, or people) beyond the (Gulmit) bridge. (IUB -j).

2. haṭ let him be! — ɛdalin, ṭaṭ haṭ ɛlin don't beat him, let him be as he is. 130.14. (3rd sg. hm of -j form of be. V. § 271).

haṭ'a -mate x "lungi", turban, H. pagṛī, pagrī. — hate n'ɛvtan making him put on a lungi. 300.6. (IUB -j-. Cp. Sh. paṭ'o turban).

haṭṭur '-iq y loophole.

1. haṭ, -eq y flat stone, flagstone, shale. — hateq duwati.as (duwate.as?) dan stone that "goes off" into thin sheets, i.e. shale. je yuwe natan hateq ugurur burying me put flat stones over the grave. 218.6 ff. (Three or four thin stones are normally put over the grave-cavity). hateq dowin bring flat stones. 278.5. han uywu hatan bilum there was a big flat stone. 304.11 ff. Cp. 196.15, 210.5, 226.1, 312.5. (Cp. Sh. haṭ stone (general word; Kho. haṭ, slab of stone). [764]

2. haṭ, hare, pl. hartiq y (not used alone), hrase haṭ plain, boiled rice. ɛylu.s haṭ

000 mashed potatoes. (Cp. Sh., Kho. bat, cooked rice; Kshm. bata, boiled rice).

3. bat, -o·ŋo y skin (of sheep, goat, marten, tiger, leopard, bear, wolf, fox, man); leather (of ditto). — a·lía huyese bat'oŋo bitsa there are two goats' skins. 342.2. bat dav·l stas to flay. bate čaγa a leather patch (for "pabboos"). batulo γfetiŋ matsičamtse I would stuff ashes into your skin(s) i.e. I would stuff your skins with ashes, 154.2, cp. 150.10. bate bu·la a leather ball.

a. Skin (metaphorically, for) shape, form, likeness. — wazi·ra bator nzki·n ničam entering into the skin i.e. assuming the form, of the Wazir I shall go. 2.10. yd· bator nzkin entering into the skin of a bear. 152.9. i·mo batulo manimi he returned to his own shape. 154.1.

This is a stock phrase in regard to magical transformations. Cp. 122.13, 124.6, etc. (Cp. parallel idiom in Sh. čomor bo·rki).

b. Scrotum (?). Given as the equivalent of this by G.H., but it seems improbable that it is sufficient in itself to carry this meaning.

bata, -muts, -tiŋ bald, scald-headed(-person), hornless.

batow (r), -iŋ y dried apricot (split and stoned). 308.1. (IUB -t-. Cp. perhaps Sh. pfatow).

252 batiŋ dusting-flour, a powdering of flour sprinkled on the board on which dough is rolled out into chupatties, to keep the dough from sticking to it. — γuski.e ɣapik etasulo batiŋ thi·l ne ɣer ečan: γuski balktse oŋorataas gans, when making bread of dough they dust flour on the board and roll 252 it out: (this is) to prevent the dough sticking to the board. ma ha·le ʌkhuʷrʊmʌn bʌʃiŋ ke ʌp'i, in your house there isn't even this much dusting-flour.

000 bʌʃo, pl. bʌʃʊmʊts, x small bundle, bunch, nosegay, bouquet. — ʌskuʷriŋ bʌʃo a bouquet of flowers. bʌʃumʊts ečʊr dumʊmo she began to make nosegays. 382.11. Nuʷr Bʌxīmʊr bʌʃumʊts oča bʌ I am making nosegays for N. B. 382.13. (Cp. Sh. bʌʃi & bʌʃo).

bʌtsin, bʌtsiŋ, pl. bʌtsimiŋ y thigh, hind-leg above hock (of quadrupeds), H. ranʷ, ʃaʷŋ.

1. bʌy y pl., double pl. bʌčeŋ, millet (a small-grained variety), Punj. čiʷna, Panicum Miliaceum(?). — hičoti.en bʌy muγ'ʊnimi he gave her a "hičoti" of millet. 142.28. Cp. 164.16, 262,4. 266.15.

2. bʌy bʌʷy -iŋ y fissure in ice. — γʌmu.e bʌy bila there is a fissure in the ice. γʌmu.e bʌʷy nimi he fell into a crevasse (cp. bʌč).

bʌyʊm, -iso x mare. (Cp. Sh. bʌm).[1] bʌzi(?) ŠY بزي but IUB بازی — baʷzi q.v. (bʌzi is merely a miswriting by ŠY).

bai.i y winter. — bai.i mʌniʷla it has become winter, winter has come. bai.i ya bila winter has set in.

bai.i v. ba.i.

bai.iḍaʷr stʌs IYB, v. bedar, to give cheek to a superior.

bai.imo pertaining to winter. — bai.imo keʷn winter season (i.e. Dec., Jan., Feb.) bai.imo iʷša period following winter solstice, v. s.v. iʷša. bai.imo sa kuʷt bi the winter sun, daytime, is short.

bai.itin, pl. bai.itiyo. x collar-bone, cla-

74a

[1] [See corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 542 - Analyst]

000 viele, H. hāsli, galle ka haḍḍi, Sh. garai. (Cp. tin, bone).

baiyu x and y, x pl. baiyonts salt; rock-salt is x, granular salt is y. V. § 25. b. — sada baiyu (bi), baiyonts (bi.en) rock-salt (from the Punjab). tik baiyu, baiyu tik (bitsan) local earth containing salt. tsil baiyu (bila) salt solution made by filtering water through baiyu.e tik. wlom baiyu local salt. matum (khatum) baiyu salt from below, i.e. from the Punjab. Šimšavlə baiyu Shimshali salt. matum baiyu black salt (from Misgar). baiyu tik, baiyue tik earth containing salt. Cp. 274.5 ff. (Cp. sran and sal).

be v. bə.

be- v. also bi-.

be-adab disrespectful, rude. — be-adab oman! don't be rude! Prs. (Ar.).

be-adapi, be-adabi disrespect, rudeness, discourtesy. — be-adabi ayetin don't behave disrespectfully. ja be-adapi.en eta ba I have committed an act of rudeness. 74.11. Cp. 344.20. Prs. (Ar.).

be-aqəl, bi aqal, be-aqəlkrš stupid, foolish; fool. Prs. (Ar.).

beḍar, beviḍar, bai.iḍar, baḍi.ar, -iŋ, insolence, impertinence, H. gustaxi. — bur bedariŋ er st'am they had done many impertinences to him, i.e. they had repeatedly treated him with insolence. 344.21.

bersa, bersa, bers. A post-verbal exclamation, "is it not?", presuming assent. It is very common in ordinary colloquial ard gives courteous emphasis to a statement of fact: "yes", "certainly", "of course". A similar use of the simple Interrog. be is even commoner. It is probably to be translated as a weak "must" in the following: — ys ja ovlji.s čʌγa evti be.esa now you must(?) tell me the story of my dream. 84.9. wa zʌruv be.rsa and it needs must be(?). 358.9. ʌkivl sen be.rsa you must(?) say so. ○○○ be-izzʌt disgraced. — be izzʌt imʌnimi he was disgraced; treated with disrespect. ins be izzʌt nivmi he went away in disgrace. Prs. (Ar.).

bĕ-izzʌti disrespect, disgrace. Prs. (Ar.).

bevlis, belis, pl. belišo, x ewe (which has had young). — ev belis ivrimi the ewe died. 64.13 ff. Cp. 342.16.

be-pərwa careless, thoughtless, heedless. — be pərwa ovmʌn don't be careless. Prs.

be-pərwa.i carelessness, heedlessness. — be pərwa.i aiysti don't behave heedlessly. Prs.

be-qərʌw restless, uneasy, uncomfortable. 384.11. Prs. (Ar.).

be-rʌhʌm, bi-rʌhʌm cruel, pitiless, unkind. Prs. (Ar).

bevriski pertaining to Doms (bevrits). — bevriski ṭʌlavq, v. sv. tʌlavq.

bevrits, pl. bevričo, musician, bandsman; craftsman; H. Ḍom, miraṣi. — ḍʌmʌlə (ḍʌḍʌnə) eγərʌs bevrits kettle-drummer, big-drummer. 'eγərʌšo berič'u.ər uγʌs dʌstuv bila it is the custom to give them to the bandsmen. 316.10. dʌq etʌs bevrits blacksmith.

bevru, bevvru a certain number of, some. — bevrs (read bevru) kutsʌntsum (or, kutsʌnmo) dəšqʌltimi he arrived after some days. 176.15. beru kutsʌn (or, beruman gontsin) nivmi some days passed. 168.19. V. also bervsʌn. Cp. bevrum and v. § 170).

bevrum, bevvrum.

1. Interrog. Adj. (and Pron.?) how much? how many? V. § 181. — bevʊm denig? how many years? bevʊm denkʊs(e) ba? how old are you? kiʊne ʊmər bevʊm me.imi how much will his age be? how old will he be?

2. Quantitative Adj. (and Pron.?) a certain number of, some. V. § 170. — bewʊrʊm gontsig nimi some days passed. 58.8. (be + r + ʊm. The r seems to denote "quantity". Cp. aku + r + ʊm, this much).

bevʊmʌn, beurumʌn.

1. Interrog. Adj. and Pron. how much? how many? V. § 181. — rupi.a bevʊmʌn bi.en? how many rupees are there? brʌs bevʊmʌn bitsʌn? how much rice is there? (y pl.). kiʊne denig bevʊmʌn me.imi? how many will his years be? i.e. how old will he be?
2. Adverb. — gʊse miʊz bevʊmʌn dʌldʌlʊm bi? how wide is this table?
3. Quantitative Adj. and Pron. a (certain) number, or quantity, of; several; some. V. § 170. — bevʊmʌn heši u.elər ʊtsuyʌm I sent to them a number of times. beurumʌn denig nimi some years passed. 86.19.
4. Correlative Adj. and Pron. — bevʊmʌn . . . ke as much as . . ., as many as . . . § 184, berumʌn dʌyʊ'ʌn umʌle bitsa ke tovrumʌn jaʊr ʌyʊn as much flour as is in your possession, so much give me, i.e. give me as much flour as you have. berumʌn jatsʊm mʌni ke tovʊmʌn . . . as much as came from me, i.e. as much as I was able . . . so much . . . (bevʊm + ʌn).

75 b

000 bevrus, bevrus hx., bevrut y. how large? how big? (in size, rank, or age). — torme gʌmʊn bevrus bi? how big is the base of the tree? mʌl, tom, bevrut bila? how big is the field, the tree? bevrusʌn bai.i? how big, how old is he? bevrutʌn bila? how big is it? (y ag.).

be-šʌk without doubt, doubtless, certainly. Prs. (Ar.).

be-vquʷf, biwvquʷf stupid; fool. Prs. (Ar.).

bʲeyʌm "it is not known". Sh. buʷš. — Kisər ba bʲeyʌm it is not known if you are Kiser. 166.7. beyʌm mene yʌlʌn ke it is not known (I don't know) who tore (broke?) it. EOL.

These are the only two examples recorded, and I cannot place the form.

The Sh. (buʷš) bvš, bəši, known also from other sources, is equally enigmatic.

It is possible that be is the negative and yʌm the static pc. of yaiyʌs, which is a verb of varied meanings.

1. be, be no, not.

a. Primarily an exclamatory particle, not normally used to negative the conception of a verb. — be senimi he said "no", he denied, refused. uŋe senʊmər be ovsena ba I have not said "no" to your instructions. 370.8. uʷe senʊmʌn "be, besʌn eti kuli dyuʷsʌs apai.i" they said: "No, whatever he does he won't escape". 44.8. be, mama No, mother. 38.17. Cp. 250.7, 5, 252.5, 264.21.

b. be (at the end of a clause) not; neither . . . nor. — in muʷto be he is not now (here). 172.12. un ke be, je ke be, meltʌlik niyʌs amiʷmʌnʊmʌn neither you nor I, both of us, had not to go, i.e. neither you nor I had to go. gote duʷro dʌltʌs be this is

76a

000 not a good deed, business. EOL. gutɛ gunts bɛ, tum gunts ju this day not, another day come, i.e. don t come today, come another day. EOL. ku menɔ osqʌnʌs bɛ (let) none be killers (of) these people, i.e. let no one kill them. 86.13.

c. Used after a verb in the interrogative. . . . or not? — šuʌn bila bɛ? is it a good one or not? odori etama bɛ? have you looked for it or not? yər gosa baiyʌma bɛ had I said to you before or not? i.e. had I not said to you before? 114.16. borondomuts . . . bima bɛ? were there rings or not? 80.18. uyomʌtɛ imo ik biloma bɛ was his own name on all of them, or not? 80.19. uŋ juča bɛ ja· ka? are you going to come with me or not? 94.18.

d. bɛ kɛ if not, otherwise. — ar domin, bɛ kɛ ja ʌkər esqaiyʌm open (the door) for me otherwise I will kill myself. 12.9. menen hirʌnɛ imo altʌn yu . . kʌš oti kɛ bardša dyuwešī, bɛ kɛ tsordinɛ irʌs bai.i if some man slays his two sons the King will escape, otherwise he will die tomorrow morning. 40.2. Cp. 40.15, 44.10, 11, 196.9, 242.3. bərenin . . . tsilulo . . . hučo u.iljaiya bɛ kɛ see whether he puts his boots in the water or not. 130.17. (The bɛ kɛ is here final and the kɛ indicates a dependent question). bɛ for bɛ kɛ, 264.24,

e. The nature of bɛ in the following is open to question, but it is probably a negative accompanying the verb. — im esqʌnš bɛ g'omši.iba you are not (won't be) able to kill him. 70.23. im bɛ emai.i bai jɛ ʌsqʌnš

he is not (won't be) able to kill me(?). 70.24. uŋ esqʌn nuse be hokəm ʌv etʌm . . . . dətsu be azʌm . . . . be gow dutsʌm, be ɟuvma? Had you not commanded me, saying "kill him"? . . . had you not said to me "bring them"? had I not brought them to you? did you not eat them? 72.12. Cp. 118.12. V. § 342. ooo

2. be, be.

a. Interrog. Adj. and Pron. what? V. § 163. — uŋe be gu.ik bila? what is your name? 210.10. gəte duvro be dərkaʌr bila? what is the necessity for this? inər be seyʌm? what shall I say to him? Cp. 128.1, 206.5, 262,22, 298.7.

b. How? V. § 163. — hilee be me.i bai.i? how is the boy? be mai bai.i? how is he? 126.14. uŋ haʌl be me.i ba? how are you?

c. What! how! (exclamatory). — be hirum hilesʌn bai.i! what a smart boy he is! be ɟu.a ta.aʌm detsirćai.i! what excellent food he is cooking. 124.10. be jig'a sʌphəren! what a long journey! 360.7.

It is perhaps also exclamatory in some passages in the verse texts be uŋe gʌne dʌsmʌnubowa? What has she given birth to me for you? 358.3. be Xudayse hərʌlt bowa ke ... 362.12. be menər dər ne bowa. . . 364.2.

d. Some, any. V. § 155.

bećuk of what sort? what sort of? how? V. § 166. — haʌl ʌhwaʌl bećuk bila? how are you? kine hir bećuk bai.i? what sort of a man is he? ine ɟi.aʌl bećuk bila? how does he behave? bərenyen (hʌyur) bećuk bi ke see what kind of a horse it is, see what the horse is like. 6.15.

bel, bel, -čaŋ y spade. — bélan nokan taking a spade. 64.12. Prs. ooo bel stock, (y?), Ar. nasl. (Originally given as, heirless, ownerless, H. lawwarīs). — bel niyas the stock to die out, to become ownerless (of land), to become heirless. Xamsra bušuli bel nim pfat manimi Kh.'s land became and remained ownerless. 252.15. tačap bel nimi the race died out completely, he perished without heirs. čanum kans bel nim may the stock (human) of the small village be destroyed! (H. tabah). 364.6. IUB bel nim maimi and bel ničilum.

The Transitive or Causative to bel *-aras to exterminate. V. § 238. hir sis baman uyome tačap bel oruman they exterminated all the males, (leaving them heirless). 240.6. yutsoru.s toraq (?tačap) [1] bel oran you have exterminated his father and his father's brothers. 242.15.

(The apparent genitives, kans, uyome, yutsoru.s, suggest that bel is a noun and this supported by the uses of bel in Shina, e.g. Xodaw theri bel hworot, may God cause your stock to be carried away, i.e. to die out. Cp. belise).

-las, belj-, Impv. bel, neg. apel, Pps. nupel to put on (clothes), don, wear (the object being y). — mamuli gatoŋ bel put on ordinary clothes. beljoko gatoŋ beljai? what sort of clothes does he wear? pači belas to put on a woman's tunic. gatoŋ di.usin ki beljo take out the clothes and let her put them on. 24.19. gatoŋ di usin nupel (she) taking out the clothes and putting them on. 24.21. Cp. 18.4, 316.4. [Ca. *-abilas. Cp. yolas to put on (the object being x)].

77 b

[1] [see corrigenda at addenda, category 116, p. 542 - Analyst]

000 belaṣe how? in what manner? — gote duvo je belaṣe ečam? how shall I do this job? uno belaṣe gurię dimi? how did it come into your hand i.e. possession? belaṣe nič'a? (in your circumstances) how are you going to go? Cp. 66.11, 120.26, 156.18. (bel + aṣe. Cp. bel-joko).

belaṣe . . . ke however, in whatever way, just as, how (in a dependent clause). — gurimo raiaṣe belaṣe joča ke tvilaṣe ju in whatever way you (propose to) come according to your own pleasure, so come i.e. come in whatever way you please. 78.11, 14. ja belaṣe yetsa baiyam ke ite juan av čaya ečai.i just as I had seen, like that, he tells me it, i.e. he tells me it exactly as I saw it. 84.10, 15. belaṣe aiyreqan'a ke ye av čaya eti now tell me how you have not killed him. 72.16. uŋe belaṣe iyumorolum ivkumuts lel ota ke be, ja asqanas da uŋe akei ba? somehow you have detected the young ones in its belly, haven't you? and don't you know then about my being killed? 66.10. uŋe hc.iba gote duvo belaṣe etas bila ke . . . do you know how this work is to be done? (dependent question). Cp. 64.28, 122,1, 160.6.

belaṣum Nz. of what kind? in what manner? H. kaisa? (Presumably -f-).

belę, -iŋ y armour. — čomare belę iron armour. (Cp. Sh. bręć, chain-armour; bilčako, chain-helmet).

belča, -miŋ (y) shovel. Prs.

b'eljoki.ents, beljoko, b'eljokuyo (pl.) of what sort? of what kind? — beljoko gatoŋ beljai.i? what sort of clothes does he wear?

beljoki.ents bi.en? } of what sort are beljokuyo bi.en? } they? (V. § 167).

000 beltse, biltse, (with i·ljum) in later times, in future days, H. pi·čhle ʂʌmaʌnamẽ. — i·ljum beltse. 188.8. i·ljum biltse ačʌʌmutiŋ dʌmaʌmʌnumʌn after our times you have been born rascals. (Cp. bel).

b'ʌpʌy, bʌpʌy, -ršo x yak, H. xuŋgaʌ. — bʌpʌye biške yak's hair. bʌpʌye γuroʌp yak-down (fine wool). bʌpʌy hʌrʌn a male yak. 280.4. Cp. 152.8 ff. (Cp. Sh. bʌpo).

bes, bese, beso why? — bese dukow'a? why have you come? 58.19. beso (bes) tai.i me.iba? why are you thus? 144.28, 358.2. beso te eča? why are you doing thus? 54.16. uʌye ine gus bese moskʌrʌnuma? why did you make the woman late? besʌr (?) guʌkʌrʌnuma? why have you delayed? why are you late?

bese . . . ke in dependent clauses: bese hʌrčaʌn ke 'ʌsu.in tell me why you are weeping? 38.18.

(bese and beso, the commoner forms, are doubtless the general oblique of bes).

bes v. beske.

besʌn x and y.

1. Interrog. Adj. and Pron. what? V. § 162. — gutetum besʌn fai.rda duʌšila? what advantage comes out of (accrues from) this? besʌn rʌŋ bila? what colour is it? uʌne iner besʌn (x) γuʌma? what did you give him? besʌn (x) eʌka ditsai what has he brought with him? besʌn juwaʌnʌn goγe.iba? like what do you seem to see it, i.e. how does it appear to you? besʌnʌr? why? wherefore? 20.15, 54.12, 62.2. besʌnʌfe? with what? how? 126.5. besʌne gʌne? N. for what? what for?

78 b

2. Indef. Adj. and Pron. V. § 153. Some, any; + neg. none, not any; something, anything; + neg. nothing, not anything. — besʌn mʌltʌǰ ʌči give me butter. tum besʌn dustsʌkʌn some other utensil. da besʌn? anything else? besʌn uyom, hər besʌn everything. besʌn ne daiya ba somehow or other ("doing something") I have come. 68.18. gute hale besʌn api there is nothing in this house. besʌn kuli (or, ke) jale api I have nothing at all. 000
3. Indef. Relative. — besʌn . . . ke whatever. V. § 186 (End). besʌn dumərča ke whatever you want. (bes + ʌn, cp. recorded pl. form bes-ik. bes ← be + s, the s apparently signifying "thing". bes appears in beske + neg. ke being a common concomitant of the neg., and in bes, beso why?).

beseke because, since, for.

1. The principal clause is often introduced by itetsom, gutetsom, gute gʌne etc. for that reason, on this account, therefore.

   The order of the clauses varies. ja sʌlamər hər gunts juin, beseke Šahri Banu je jeri motsuyʌse gʌne ərman bilom come every day to pay your respects to me, because I myself desired to marry Sh. B. 18.18. ite bultsom teil ʌkʼərər gaiyʌm bese ke yərom ite bʌsaulo teil api I shall take water for myself from that spring because at that next halting-place there is no water. 124.15. beseke ine γiki stimi ja ineː itetsom (or, ite gʌne) sʌzʼa ičiʌm because he committed theft, therefore I punished him. Cp. 2.8. 120.9, 368.15, 370.15. 000

2. In the following there seems to have been a confusion of thought or construction which has led to besske taking the place of "so that", "in order that":

hərip sč'an besske gəribtiŋ . . . doyelin xuš omʌnʃʌn, nosen. 326.18.

The idea seems to be "Because they say: (or, think to themselves:) 'Let them be happy hearing it' therefore they play", i.e. because they have this feeling therefore they play.

ivte gʌnər . . . durbin wʌščʌm bersekə amolom mosayfɪr men . . . duyʌn kə or tʌkliyf omʌnʃ, nosen. 36.5. He used to direct a telescope on that road, saying to himself: "So that should any travellers come along from anywhere there may be no inconvenience to them."

(bese kə = bese, why? + kə).

besik, pl. of besʌn, what things? — u.ə besik ečam? what (things) are they doing?

Also used of things represented by plural nouns: e.g. tea-leaves, rice, etc.

bersk, bersk. Indef. Adj. and Pron. Only used with negative. Nothing, no. V. § 154. — bersk ivčər ætimi no sound came. 6.5. Cp. 38.17. besske pərwa api it is of no consequence. 18.11. besske be nothing! wlo besske ap'i there is nothing in it.

beskom. — beskom oyom qolælimi everything has gone wrong, been damaged. sodagərə beskom buf dišaci the trader brings every sort of thing.

79 b

000 beršʌl, bešel, bešɪl; bešʌlər, bešelmo —.

1. When? — beršʌl(ər) juʷčuma? when will you come? bešɪl xa hʊruʷi? till when, how long, will he stay? gʊte duʷro beselmʊtsʊm sʊm bila since when has this thing been done?
2. bešʌl bešʌl sometimes, occasionally, now and then. — bešʌl bešʌl sta baiyʌm I had sometimes done it.
3. bešʌl . . . kɛ whenever, as soon as. — bešʌl divmi kɛ whenever he comes (has come). Cp. 194.11, 208.5, 294.1, 374.10.
4. bešʌl (kɛ), bešʌl kʊli, + negative, never. — bešel (kɛ) bɛ, bešel kʊli bɛ never. bešel kɛ ʌkiʷl aiyɛ never do thus. bešel (kə) atiʷmi he never came. jaʷr uʷgɛ bešʌl kɛ hʌn tsiʷrə du.ʌn kʊli aiyaʷ'a you have never given me even a kid. 373.9. Cp. 370.9. bešel kʊli aiyečʌm I shall never do it.

beški, pl. beški.entsik.

1. What sort of? what kind of? — Gilt beški dišʌn bila what sort of a place is Gilgit? beški phʌloʷik dʊmərča? what kind of grain do you want? uʷn haʷl beški ba (or, bila)? how are you?
2. beški.ɛn, bešken, beʷškʌn what sort of a. . . .? beški.ɛn bai.i? what sort of a man is he? beški.ɛn bo? what sort of a woman is she? beški.ɛn bi? what sort of a thing (an animal) is it? kim bešken bai.i? what sort of a fellow is this? 116.10. Cp. 154.15.

bi-, v. also be-, without (used as a privative prefix). E.g. bi-ʌqʌl, be-ʌqəl. Prs. bi.ai.i bi.ai, -mičiŋ; N. biyɛ.i, ỳ illness, disease. — hin hintsɛ niyʌs (or, dʊwnʌs) bi.ai.iko pl. of bi.ɛnum.

000 bi.ai.i a contagious or infectious disease. bi.ai.ər mili ɛti treat (medically) the disease.

bi-čaʷra wretched, miserable, unfortunate; wretch. — bičaʷran bai.i fʌt ɛtin he is a miserable creature, let him go. 158.2, 8. Prs.

bičil-intsx sg. and pl. pomegranate (fruit).

bičil-iŋ y pomegranate tree. Also: bičilɛ tom pomegranate tree.

biçuʃ N. y pl. (?) forked lightning. (Cp. Sh. b'ičuʃ).

bidʌm (be-dʌm?) lifeless, exhausted, played out, H. sust. Prs.

bidil[1] cowardly. — kinɛ ɛʷ bidil bi his heart is cowardly. 144.11. Prs. (be-dɪl).

biḍiŋ noise of thumping, report of gun, sound of drum, etc. — mʌrərulo biḍiŋ maimi there will be a noise in the grave. 218.7. Cp. 218.13.

(The -ḍ- is very marked. I noticed it myself both in Bu. and in Sh. and IYB gave it as ḍ. Cp. Sh. biḍiŋ).

biḍiriʷko IYB, biḍiroko, round. (Cp. Sh. biʷḍiriʷko and biʷḍiruʷko).

biḍiʷro, bɪrḍiʷro round, circular. — bɪrḍiʷro gɪrši a circle. Biḍiʷro Mʌl the "Round Field". 198.9. dər bɪrdiʷro quite round. (-ḍ- IUB and IYB. Cp. Sh. biḍiʷro).

bi.'ɛnum, pl. bi.'ɛʷiko, bi.ai.iko; N. biʷɛnum, biʷɛyɛʷko, thin (of stick etc.), narrow (of line etc.); slender. — bi.ɛnum sɛl a fine needle. (ɛʷçiŋ) buʷt bi.ɛʷiko bitsa (his loins) are very slender. 154.19, 158.8.

bi-gʊna innocent, guiltless. Prs.

bi-haʷl weak after illness, run down. Prs.

bih'el bravo! (expression of praise, applause). — thʌmɛ inɛr bihɛl ɛsimi

80 b

[1] [see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 542 - Analyst]

the Tham said to him "bravo!' thamɪ inɪr bihɪl ɛtimi The Tham applauded him (by clapping him on the shoulder). hɪ bih'ɛl(ɛ) gumanɨl Oho, bravo to you! šabaɪ šabaɪ! Cp. 72.16, 74.6. (Cp. Sh. bɛhrl =? Prs. bɪhrl).

bihrɛ̄t y heaven, paradise. Prs.

bi-huɪ̄ unconscious. 26.8. Prs.

bi-imaɪn faithless, disloyal. Prs. (Ar.).

bi-rnsaɪf unjust. — bi.rnsaɪfan bai.i he is an unjust man. Prs. (Ar.).

bi-rnsaɪfi injustice. — but bi.rnsafi ɛtimi he practised great injustice. Prs. (Ar.).

brjvaɪto MA. evil-looking. (Cp. Sh. brjvuɪto).

bijaɪn N. -rɛ̄o x rainbow. (Cp. Sh. biǰoɪn).

1. biɪk, -ičiŋ y willow-tree. — biɪkɪ toɪm willow-tree. biɪkičiŋ ɛgiyaɛ̄o baɪn they are going to plant willow-trees. 176.4.

2. biɪk afraid, alarmed, startled, anxious; fear, fright. — jɛ biɪk amaiya ba, jɛ biɪk ba I am afraid, anxious. biɪk amanam I started. biɪk imanimi he took fright. tsɪr uyoɪn bik manuman all the guard were afraid. 88.5. biɪk mimanasan bai.i he is dreadful, fear-inspiring in appearance (one we are afraid of). *biɪk -atas to frighten, threaten s.o. yāɪr han biɪkan ɛčam I'll give the bear a fright. 228.6, (Cp. bim, Sh. bijoɪrki, to be afraid).

biɪkkuǰ y fear, dread.

bil full, brim-full. — gilaɪsolo tsil bil bila the tumbler is brim-full of water. bil hik bila it is quite full (said of a measure). (Cp. Kho. biɪl mouth of a vessel (also cover, lid), Sh. bil opening, mouth of vessel, edge (of roof, precipice, river, etc.).

bilas, pl. bilašo, bl. (and m.). 776

1. Female demon, ogress, H. čhorel, bhut. — Ganišolo hin bilasan bem there was a "bilas" in Ganish. 190.1. Cp. 192.9, 200.1.
2. hir bilas male demon, one-eyed ogre, Cyclops. These are apparently much rarer than the female variety. There is said to be one in the Shishper nullah. He has one eye and looks up towards the sky, not towards the ground. When he sees a man he calls out his name. One should make no answer, otherwise he comes and eats one up. People have seen him. — hir bilas manuma you have become a "hir bilas" (said to a youth who is very tall, or troublesome).

bilbinas, b'irbinas birbi- to rise ex[illegible]sively, fill up (of water), H. pani ka ziada čarhjana. — pfəri.olo tsil birbinila the water has filled up in the pond. 000 (Connected with bil and bir?).

b'ili, swinging, H. jhulna.

bilirča N. -mots x swing. (Cp. b'ili, qurbili and bilinčak?).

biličan (state of) being. — Baxtekale wazirri biličantsa owing to (at the time of) the wazirship being in the possession of Bakhtek. 96.23.

(Probably based on the y form of the verb ba. Cp. bačan. V. § 271).

bilinčak, -išo x hammock-cradle (made of blanket and ropes). Cp. birirča?).

bil'is weeding crops and softening and cleaning the ground. — bilis stas to weed, etc.

81 b

[see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 542 - Analyst]

ooo bilij let it be. — (kitaɣ) ko-la bilij nuss fat ɛtam I left the book, saying "let it remain here". 70.5.
(-j form of the y sg. form of the verb ba. V. § 271).

bi-l'um IUB weak, H. kamzov. (Cp. lum).

biltsoɣ, biltsoɣ, pl. biltsoɣo.
1. The name of a wandering beggar woman.
2. A man who constantly moves about and doesn't settle down, a "rolling stone".
3. A quadruped (?).

bim fright, threat(?), intimidation (?). — ɣów kan bimɑn ɛtam I'll threaten the bear(?), give it a fright. 238.6. (Cp. bi-k).

bi-mani perverse, unreasonable. — bimani sis baiɛ he is a perverse fellow, Prs. (Ar.).

bi-masa tasteless, insipid. Prs. (Ar.).

biɣ y sg. and pl. fruit dried and ground like flour, Sh. sarto.

bi.o N. 3rd. pl. pres. x of verb ba = Hz. bi.en.

bir IUB full, Prs. pur. (Cp. bil, birbir and dibiranum).

biraɣo, biraɣo, pl. biraɣuło, biraɣumots, x foal, colt. — kik, alti, tsindi denkus biraɣo a one-year, two-year, five-year (!) old colt. ges biraɣo filly.

birʼal. Only recorded in: ɣtqam birʼal manav to become giddy from eating the first green food of the season.

biranę, biranj x sg. and pl. mulberry (fruit). — biranęɣn a mulberry. biranę bi.an there are mulberries. biranę raę no watching, guarding, the mulberries. 244.12. tik biranj earth-mulberry, i.e. strawberry. (-ę confirmed by IUB. Cp. Sh. marʼoę Kho.

000 mɔrʌç̌, mrʌç̌. Cp. Bu. hɔrʌnç̌ || Sh. hʌrɔç̌).

birʌnç̌, pl. birʌŋ, y mulberry tree.

bir'ʌqʌs, biraqiĉ, Impv. biraq, neg. apiraq, Ppa. nip'iraq(in) to dig. — Alqaš Wazirɔ bir'ʌqimi, tiš ɛ' ʌi A. W. dug and made a pit. 56.20. Cp. 80.22, 252.2, 11. (-q- IUB. Cs. -ʌbiraqʌs*).

birbir quite full, full to the mouth, H. mūh tak bhʌra hɔna. (Cp. bir, also Kho. birbir, brimful).

birdi IUB, N. (N. x) the ground, H. zʌmin. (Cp. Sh. b'irdi).

bir'ɛspʌt y Thursday. (Cp. Sh. brɪspʌt, H. brɪhʌspʌti).

bire, -mots x a wooden vessel about 3 ft. long with a lid, in which dough is kneaded. 272.3.

birga fight, battle. — birga stʌs to fight, have a battle. (Cp. Sh. brɪrga).

birgɔr IUB, birɣɔr, birɣɔr a kind of plant which appears in barley and wheat fields in Baltit and Altit at the end of March and is used as spinach. (Cp. Sh. brɪrgɔl, lesser stitchwort?).

biri x boiling (of liquids and anger). — tsilɛ biri juči bi the water is boiling. biri dɛ̈tsʌs (d-ʌtsʌs*) to make boil. biri dimi (his anger) boiled up. N. tsil biri diti bi (d-tsʌs*) the water is boiling. biri was also recorded in N. as an adjective boiling with y pl. -miŋ. [Cp. Sh. bire, biri with verbs, intrs., wai.ɔrki (to come), and Cs., wɔrɔrki (to cause to come)].

brrik, -ots x a kind of gun. Prs.?

brrkiǰ, birkiǰ, pl. brrkirʌŋ, birki.ʌŋ and brrkiǰiŋ, y treasury, treasure, 56.19. (Cp. Sh. brrkiǰ).

biru N. -mots, male. (Cp. Sh. biru).

bis, pl. ovēo, x fat. — givis bistar diram yilimotrik ev ovi make "diram" bread with ibex fat for him. 182.7.

bi-sabor impatient. Pre. (Ar.).

bisorkas, bisorkiō-, Impv. bisork, Ppa. nipiwir to cut crops, reap. — hersem, gwr, bisorkas to reap the crops, cut the wheat. gur horeg nipiwir reaping the wheat and barley. 880.12. bisorkas khen dirni reaping, i.e. harvest, time has come.

bisorj, pl. bisorag, y sickle.

(-j IUB. Cp. bisorkas and Sh. bisorj).

bisman stas (-atas?) to circumcise. (Cp. Sh. bremaw).

bremsil'a, bremillah in the name of God. — bremilla stas to say "bismilla" (preparatory to doing s.t.). 42.2, 322.7, 382.4, 382.4. Ar.

bisqz y saliva. Some people's saliva, it is said, dries up and they can only eat food with water.

biläiyas, biläi-, Impv. biläz, neg. apēläz, Ppa. nrp'ivtan.

1. To throw, fling, put down; to put on (to cook). (Primarily only with y objects?). — krtesp kha biläami he threw down (or, dropped?) the book. maltaj kha biläami he threw down (or, spilt) the ghee. čap 'akubertiqir da . . . ev biläzem they put down the meat before the elders etc. 340.14. berbat nrpiläan; Trangfertiqir kan kan čak nrpilan putting down "halwa"; putting down one fore-leg (?) each for the Trangfa's. 342.2. čap biläiyas to put on meat (in pot to cook) namali biläzer dwywuli bo she begins to cook (i.e. put on griddle) "namali". 306.8. yuwu namali . . .

93 a

dawafs bikamar when his wife has put the "zamali" on the griddle. 306.9. fari bikoiyas to take omens (from stars etc. before going on a journey, to detect thief etc.), to cast lots(?) Cp. 144.3, 174.8, 306.16. 000

2. To put forward, despatch; shoot (with bow or gun). — hada bikoiyas to take a step, pace. hada ap'ilawi (the donkey) didn't move a step. 300.8. wyonar nat bikami (or, ofarni) he despatched letters to all. 98.10. tshagafs bikami he fired with a gun. 292.8. jamakafs yat ne . . . ite talar bikami, nat wabini he shot with his bow up at the pigeon and brought it down. 148.8.

Often the instrument is not mentioned:

hik bida ham he had fired once. 102.28. ilamrw hawafs eyuwafin nat'ash bi'ami fitting an arrow to his bow, and drawing it, he shot. 148.17. ikafs yutisar bikami he hit the leg of the bed (with his arrow). 260.12.

It is also permitted, however, to treat the weapon as if it were the object of bikoiyas:

tshagafs ten yakalafar bikawan they fired their guns in the direction of it. 184.12.

In all the above examples, except where the meaning is "to shoot", the object of bikoiyas is y. Where it means "to shoot" one would expect the unexpressed object to be hawafs arrow or dowa bullet, but both these words are z. Despite this it seems unquestionable that bikoiyas is properly used only with a y object.

000 When the object is h or x the same notion is conveyed by the verb wałi.as. Cp. in the above:
mal wałimi and nyuwałin, and v.a.v. wałi.as. V. § 231. (Ca. °-abiłaiyas).

biźk y pl., double pl. -miŋ hair (of animals), fur. — teiwi, hayuri, °bepaye, yd°, biźk goat's, horse's, yak's hair, bear's fur. Cp. 104.24, 134.8 ff.

biśkekrṭ hairy. — biśkekrṭ γalγu a hairy caterpillar.

791 biłan, pl. biłaiyo, (piłaiyu. 278,14), hm. and hf., soothsayer, wizard, sorcerer.

A person of either sex with certain supernatural powers, e.g. the ability to tell what is happening at a distance and to foretell the future. Nowadays they exercise these powers at public assemblies where they inhale the smoke of burning juniper twigs and dance till they reach a state of exaltation when their gifts become operative. Eventually they collapse from exhaustion. In earlier days they possessed the power to "bind" malignant supernatural beings. Cp. Texts Nos VI, VII, VIII, IX and XI.

000 To cause bitan's to play their rôle is expressed by several verbs: biłaiyo 'ɣyirałuman } they caused bibiłaiyo uguman } tans to dance.
242.1. Cp. 278.14. S. G. ki H. M. biłan wuwałdir ołuman they had brought S. G. and H. M. to make them act as bitans. 186.1.

(Possibly biłan goes with the names, in apposition).

biłan wuwałdum they set a female bitan to work. 216.11. Cp. 190.5 192.8, 200.16.

84a

000 (ʃ IUB. biʃʌn is a synonym of Sh. daĩyʌl).

biʼts N. -aʼints x front facing of choga. (But Cp. Kho. biʼts, the space between the choga and the breast when the choga is tied round the waist, bosom, Prs. bʌɣʌl. This seems equivalent to Bu. -soɣʊl*).

biʼum, neg. ʌpiʼum, N. they (x pl.) were = Hz. biʼm.

bi-ʼuguʼf v. be-ukuʼf.

biyabaʼn, -iŋ y desert. Prs.

bisaʼr vexed, annoyed. — uŋtsum bisaʼr imanaiʼi he has become vexed with you. 20.12. Prs.

bo y pl., double plural boʼćiŋ. 1. seed (of corn). 2. y sg. semen, H. nutfa, mʌni. — bo ɢiyʌs, bo jʌliʼʌs to sow, scatter seed. Cp. 242.8, 18 ff.

bodo y Wednesday. (Cp. Sh. boʼdo, H. budh).

boɣʊra, boɣʊra uʃ, male camel. Turki.

776 782 boʼin, pl. boʼyo, x some kind of divine or sacred being; in the plural: animals like puppies to which offerings used to be made.

At Hiʼni there used to be animals like puppies for which people used to put offerings at the foot of rocks and trees.

The boʼyo came out of holes and ate the offerings. This cult was maintained by the Hiʼni people till a few years ago when it was stopped by the Hunza authorities. They slaughtered animals in the name of the boʼyo.

According to one statement the boʼyo lived at a spot a little above Hiʼni Fort known as the Dadimo Lart.

There were also boʼyo resembling puppies which lived under a juniper tree in the garden of a man called

Kərəmo Dərbeʃ in Diramitiŋ territory, v. Text No. XIV. 776

See my article in JRAS of July 1929, pp. 507—36. 782 [113]

Sahəla Bo in kə Hə'lasa Bo'in names of two Bo'in's in whose names oaths were taken. 250.9. itsər bo'yo se.ibʌm they called them "bo'yo". 214.5. sivə itsə u.i'liki bʌm people used to worship, or placate, them. 214.4. bo'yo u.i'likinʌs, (pl. u.i'likinʌšo), a bo'yo-worshipper, a heathen, (cp, boi.indu'rgʌs).

bokʌl y pl. seed-grain (of cereals). — guks bokʌlə gur bitsʌŋ this is wheat seed-grain. 000 bo'mo y pl. seed (of corn). (The -mo is only an expletive, conveying at most a sense of multiplicity and indefiniteness). — da bo'mo da u'lji yərər gur hərə n'owsin putting aside wheat and barley for seed and funeral rites. 332.11.

bo'nis a round lump of dough (2 or 3 inches or more in diameter for making cake of bread from). — hʌn bo'nisʌnə tha hə'lər daudo 'sd.im I (can) make "daudo" for 100 troops with one lump of dough. 176.23.

bo'no, -muts x plait of hair rolled up and knotted into a ball at the end. 302

The Hunza women wear their hair in two such plaits one at each side of the head. Formerly the men also wore their hair long and dressed it in bono's or twisted in spirals.

A N. y pl. form "bo'niŋ" was recorded. (Cp. Sh. bo'no).

bopfau "seed-scattering". — bopfau ʃtʌs to perform the ceremony of initiating the seed-sowing in the Spring. V. Text No. XIII. 241

85a

From further very brief notes it appears that the field is first manured in preparation, and the ceremony consists in the Mir's throwing up some barley seed mixed with gold dust, after which he makes some display of ploughing the land. 241

The plough is then taken in succession by the Mir's son and by the Wazir. V. 208 and 212.22.

(bo + pfau q.v. Cp. Sh. bipfau thoʷrki. The Turki equivalent is said to be "čʌγaʷn").

enough, sufficient; plentiful, cheap. — bos bi.en, bilsʌn, mai.imi, mʌnimi. (Cp. Sh. bos. Prs. bʌsʔ) boʷt y clear sky IUB asmaʷn ka ṣaʷf homa. — boʷt ni bila, nivmi it has cleared up, it cleared up. boʷt bila the sky is clear. boʷt eʷrimi he made the sky clear up. 160.8. ooo boʷyʌs, boʷč- to alight (of birds), perch. — mərtʼeŋʌṭe ya kayulo sinda iʷlte boʷči.e (the birds) alight (perch?) on the earth-cliff or strand at the edge of the river. 206.14. 3rd sg. Pret. boʷmi.

boʷyo v. boʷin.

boi.induʷrgʌs, boʷindʌrgʌs, x pl. ancestral spirits, spirits (of the virtuous dead), H. ərwaʷḥ, bʌrzʌrgaʷn, ruʷḥaʷni.aʷt. — boi.induʷrgʌs rɪza umai.imi.e the spirits will approve, be pleased. boi.induʷrgʌs na-rʼɪza ayʼoʷ don't displease the spirits. (Cp. boʷin and durgʌsuʷto).

brāʷ brāʷ etʌs N. to bleat (of sheep). (Cp. Sh. brāʷ thoʷrki; Kho. braʷγ, bleating).

orʌk, -ʌnts x crease, wrinkle. — ifʌṭi.e brʌkants wrinkles on the forehead. (Cp. Sh. brʌk).

ooo bran a loud sudden noise. — bran walas to fall down suddenly with a smack. 182.24. (Cp. Kho. bram, noise, bang; Sh. bran, noise of falling, or exploding(?), pran bo·rki, to explode, burst).

bras y pl., double pl. -iŋ, -miŋ, rice (grain). — bras berruman bitsan how much rice is there? brasi ḍaudo "daudo" made with rice.

Double pl. growing rice. — brasiŋ stan they have planted rice. brasmiŋ bitsa it is (a crop of) rice. (Cp. Tib. h̲bras).

buwa sg. and pl. (and pl. bu.ents), x cow, H. gawe, gawu. — menane buwa nuhalg awltu dowemanimi ke when anyone's cow calves and bears twins (twin-calves). 354.8. buwa amulo h̲alkiwči.en ke wherever the cows have their young. 108.22. buwa ba you are a cow, i.e. a fool.

bu.aṭer, -šo, N. pl. -ršo, young cow, heifer.

bu.au.ukum pertaining to. cows. — bu.au.ukum dilk cow-dung manure.

bubawrak blessed; congratulations. — gow bubawrak maniši! may it be blessed to you! congratulations! 354.5. (Cp. Kho. bumbawrak). Ar. Prs. (mubawrak).

bubawraki y congratulating, wishing joy. Ar. Prs.

buboq, bub'uk -ičiŋ y mass of flesh. — batsini bubuk flesh of thigh, ham. bobok used of buttock and calf of leg EOL. (Cp. Kho. bubuq, bubuk; thul bubuq, the thigh).

bubulo N. -miŋ warm (of liquid), tepid. — tsil bubulo sti warm the water. (Cp. bulbulo and Sh. bubulo, luke-warm).

buwč, -ants x.

1. He-goat (2 or 3 years old, entire). — mi.ome hawkičaŋaṭs buwč fat sečan

86 a

[see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 542 - Analyst]

000 let us leave him free (to wander about) the houses of all of us as a he-goat (the idea being that he should procreate freely). 262.8, 244.7. (Cp. Wakhi buč).

2. IUB gives buč as = H. sa·nḍ, nʌr mʌwerši, sa·nḍ in H. being: "a bull, especially one set at liberty as an act of piety".

buč -ʌŋ y chenar, plane tree. (Cp. Sh. buč, bu·č).

ˈuč'a, pl. bučʌŋ, y trap made of stones (for catching rats, foxes, bears, birds), any kind of trap. — bučʌr girkis wʌlum juʌn like a rat fallen into a trap. 160.6. (Cp. Sh. bʌča.o, trap for leopards, etc.).

buḍo·k, -ršo x bin (for grain etc., smaller than tsʌγur). Recorded in N. as buro·k by EOL.

buḍo·ko, pl. buḍo·kumuts, x foal (very young, 10 days and upwards). IUB a small-sized horse, pony, H. ṭʌṭu, čho·te qʌdka gho·ra.

budul, budu·l- iŋ y rags, torn clothes, H. čithra, phʌṭe kʌpre, (Cp. Sh. budul, budɪl).

buḍulo·γo, boḍo·lo·γo muddy (of water). (Cp. Sh. buḍulo·ko).

bu·'i, bu.i, -mičiŋ y.

1. Shoulder-blade, scapula. — ja bu.i my shoulder-blade.

2. Shovel, N. pl. -mičʌŋ. — hu·nə bu·i wooden shovel. ču·mər bu·i iron shovel. (Cp. Sh. pyō·lo, scapula, shovel; Khp. phi, shoulder-blade, pi.u·, pyu·h, shovel. See also Bu. pfi).

765 bˈu·ɪki, bu.i·ki food eaten only by the relatives of a deceased person on the 7th. day after his death. IUB alms-bread distributed on behalf of a dead person, H. mordake liye xairatki roṭi. — burkyər gumanom a term of abuse. buriki.s mučuṣk (the spatula used for turning funeral bread; originally there was a separate mučuṣk for this purpose), a person who performs every sort of action, good or bad. Cp. 356.3. 765 buk, -ants x throat (external and internal), front of neck, neck. — bukulo šok stas to strangle. ine iri bukər w'ašimi he fell on his son's neck (lit. threw his son on his neck?). bukər (or, gorṣər) šaŋaličiŋ gorgičam he will put chains on thy neck. tsirle buk yuyimi I became thirsty (lit. my throat became dry for water). 268.11. uŋə buk (by) thy throat (what I say is true)! a form of oath or asseveration. (Cp. Kho. buk, throat). 000 buk'ak x pl., double pl. -ints, beans. — bukak dotsirčam they cook beans. 318.12. bukakints bean-crop. (Cp. Sh. bukak).

bukane *-atas to embrace (neck to neck). — bukan' stam I embraced him. bukane metuman, otuman they embraced us, them. bukane m'atuman they embraced you (with a bad sense referring to illicit intercourse). bukane stimi he embraced him, 16.5. (Explained as buk + kane ← kan = along, beside).

bul, i-.an[1] y spring (of water). — yər bulan bila there is a spring on ahead. 124.14 ff. Cp. 128.18 ff., 276.14 ff., 292.9 ff.

bula, bula (y?) polo; originally(?) ball, — baṭs bula a leather-covered ball. bula delas to play polo. 158.10, 316.11, 328.13, 330.8. hayoreṣum bula (ordinary) polo (played) on horseback. 000 qatal bula polo on foot (children's game). N. pl. bulevin, bulavin, bulen. bulevin daljana be? do they play polo or not? EOL.

87a

[1] [see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 542 — Analyst]

It is not clear whether bulevin means "balls" or "games of polo". (Cp. Sh. bo·la, bula, head of polo-stick, polo-stick, polo; Ladakhi, Tibetan bo-lo, ball for playing).

bula sg. and pl., N. pl. -mats, -ik x rām-chikor (large, high-altitude, mountain partridge). — bulan bi there's a ram-chikor. bula bi.en there are ram-chikor. (Cp. Sh. bul'ej).

bulbul (poetic) beloved, mistress. 358.15. Prs.

bulbulo lukewarm (of water), H. nim garm, pani jo thora garm hai. (Cp. bubulo).

1. bulqa, pl. bulqan, or min, y hammer, (Cp. Sh. bulqa farrier's hammer; Kho. borlqa).

2. bulqa pl. bulqan, or -min, y woman's veil. — bulqa bisa bo she has put on a veil. bulqan gibam they have put on veils, are veiled. (Cp. Sh. bulk'a). Ar. (burqa').

bulul x. crystal. — bulule ai.ina mirror of thick glass. Ar. (bullur).

1. burm sg. and pl. x markhor. — burm bi.ana? are there markhor? burme tsir female markhor. burme du markhor kid. (Markhor are not found in Hunza). (Cp. Sh. burm, markhor).

2. burm, burum, dry (of ground), thick (of semi-liquid), IUB H. xuk and garha. — burum kai.i, tayay thick soup, mud.

(Probably used only of y things, cp. buryam from buryai.an. burum, burum

87.b

[see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 542 - Analyst]

000 comes from a parallel verb buryas. (Cp. gurγas and gurγum used of x things. V. § 232).

burn -do, N. pl. bunesíuts x big boulder, very big stone, H. bara pattkar. — turma avita burndo twelve boulders. 148.17. Cp. 190.11, 192.15, 194.5, 294.5 ff.

bon x mountain (grazing-ground), high country, open jungle, H. čarugarh, kuśavda jangal. (Cp. Sh. bon).

bon dado vagabond, wanderer, H. awawagard. — bon dado duśas, or ovas, to expel, exile (people).

buro -tiŋ h helper, assistant. — altas buro a couple of assistants. 348.6. (Cp Sh. buro).

bupur pl., double pl. -iŋ, y down, fine wool ("pashmina"), of birds and animals. — γforsis bupur bites it is duck's down (sometimes woven into pattu as a luxury). givis bupur bupurtiŋ ibex down. (Cp. Sh. bafur) burpoj, pl. burpisats, N. pl. -zio x pumpkin, gourd, H. kaddu. N. "large gourd with waist". (-j IUB)

1. bur setting (of sun): West. — sa bur mani bi the sun has set. sa bur manas hen the time of sunset. lačar bur maisibi the morning star sets. 362.2. ise γfori sa tsi bur omanum, tsilas bien (the general meaning is that the sun remained where it was and had not set.) 294.14 ise sa bur ayistum eurustam he had kept the sun unset. 294.15. bur manas yakal towards the West bur manastar (from the East) to the West. 92.4. (Cp. Sh. bur).

2. bur, -isaŋ, -aŋ, N. -eŋ y a single hair (of man or animal). — bur jowas like a hair. burtsum hi bisuv

000 thinner even than a hair. γuyʌŋi buvʌn bila it is a single human hair. (Cp. *-ʌ̃pur, also Kho. pur, hair & Sh. buri, mane).

'uvu N. -muts x sack. Cp. buri. H. (bora).

buvʌn -ɹŋ y seam, hem. — buvʌn stʌs to stitch, hem. (Cp. Sh. b'oren, close-sewn seam).

b'ordi IUB a great quantity (of), excess(ive), H. bahut zi.ada.

boryʿu -muts x trumpet. Prs.

1. buri -muts x crest (of hill), summit, peak. čiši buri.ər dusʌm I climbed on to the crest of the hill. čiši buri.ər (or, itʌnər) nimo she proceeded to the top of the mountain. 108.11. Cp. 108.15. (Cp. Sh. buri, summit, crest, also mane; Kho. pur, top, end. Cp. 2. bur).
2. buri -muts x sack, gunny bag. (Cp. bura. Sh. bori). H. (bori).
3. bor'i no pl. y silver. — bur bori bila there is much silver. bor'i of silver, silver (adj.). bori.i dustsʌkʌn an article of silver. 306.5. (Cf. burum).

borinda tool for cutting leather. Prs.

borji sign of the Zodiac, planetary station. 362.2. (Poetic). Ar. (Prs.).

borok N. v. bojok.

borondo, borondo, pl. borondumuts x ring (for finger), signet-ring. — ja auci irimo irkʌŋi borondumuts γeniši bima bet had my father, or had he not, gold rings with his own name (on them). 80.18. ermi.entsi itsi tinjovlo borondumuts mai.irmi.i the rings will be on the bones of his fingers. 80.28. Cp. 82.9 ff., 368.13, 373.19. (Cp. Sh. barono).

boruri stʌs to do the second watering of land, i.e. the first after the crops have begun to come up. Kho. pastey. 352.1. (Cp. Sh. buruwi, bur'i). 000 burum, burum, borom, x pl. -ršo, y pl. -iŋ white. — tik burum m.:nitsa the ground has become white (e.g. with hoar frost). borom šam evening dusk, twilight. burum mʌnom sis an elder, an elderly person. ju.s askuriŋ buruminŋ bitsa the apricot blossoms are white. buruminŋ gur bitsa it is white wheat (pl.). -lčiŋs burum nʌna the white of the eye. kərkʌmutse tiŋʌnulum burom del the white of a hen's egg. burum dʌp an aged person (m. or f.) grey-beard. Cp. 64.17, 26, 29; 186.7, 240.14, 290.2. (The same root as 3. buri? Cp. Sh. buro, whiteish (of horse, etc.)).

buruṇč -iŋ y cloud(s) in the sky, cloudy sky.

buruṣ, IUB borots, x milk product obtained by boiling buttermilk ("lʌssi"), Kho. šrpinʌk. — bor'us ditsu.in bring the "buruṣ". 326.12. buruṣ (Ms. buruš) šʌpik pieces of thin bread with "buruṣ" placed between them and butter on top. 328.15, 330.9. (Cp. Sh. bruts, "'lʌssi' heated and water driven off").

buṣ pl. bušoŋo, bušono (Gʌniš form) x bundle (of grass, etc.), bound sheaf. (In Hunza used only of lucerne). — šrqa buṣ a bundle of grass.

buš -oŋo x cat. — buṣ' ivsk kitten. buš ga mʌmu čut "cat take, a drop of milk" (said to cat or child to induce it to come to one). N. bʌmbula buš tomcat. Cp. 158.14, 174.12. (Cp. Sh. buši, Kho. puši).

buš'ai.i, buš'ai.i, -mičiŋ, N. pl. -miŋ, y cultivated ground, land, country, territory, H. zʌmin, mulk, wʌtʌn. — jaˈ(lɛ) bušai.i api I have no land. jɛ ma bušai.ɛ trʌŋ maˈčʌm I shall divide up, apportion, your land for you. 110.24. gʌn bilum: but bušai.i oˈqušɛljʌm there was a road (which) did much damage to the land (for them?) 256.2. Cp. 250.3 ff. buˈt mʌtʌn bušai.ɛnər niˈmi he went off to a very distant country. 372.7. Cp. 372.7. iˈtɛ bušai.ɛ thʌm the king of that country. 24.1. Cp. 104.13. iˈkɛ bušˈai.imičiŋ uyoˈnər xʌt bišʌmi he sent out letters to all those countries. 98.10.

bˈuˈšo, bˈuˈšu, -tiŋ.

1. Cat-eyed, i.e. with green or light-coloured eyes. — iˈlčumutsər bərɛˈniŋ buˈšu.ʌn bai.i look at his eyes; he is cat-eyed. 154.21.

   That the word is actually derived from the word buˈš cat appears plain from the statement of Kiser's mother, v. 158.13 ff.

2. Fair-complexioned, fairish = ʂrkiˈl[1] — uˈɛ bˈuˈšutiŋ sis those fair-complexioned people. 188.4.

bušoˈšo, bušoˈuʂo, pl. bušowʌnts, N. pl. bušoˈšomuts, x.

1. Calf (of cow). — tsi.ər(ɛ) bušoˈšo bull-calf. 104.21, 22. yuˈšʌm bušoˈšo "the fatted calf". 374.12, 368.14. Cp. 186.11.
2. As a term of contempt. — bušoˈšo ba you're a calf, i.e. a fool, yɛ la bušoˈšo get along you fool. (Cp. Werch. boˈšo).

1. buˈt.

1. Adj. and Pron. much, many, numerous. — buˈt zoləm uˈɛtɛ ɛčʌm he used to practice much tyranny on them, 276.2. buˈt guntsiŋ oˈnitsum when many days had not passed.

89 b

[1] [see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 542 - Analyst]

000 372.5. uɐ mahər burt bila in their case the bride-price is much, i.e. big. 304.8. burt tsil dušum tɐɐ much water would have come out. 292.10. Purnu.ɐ huyɐs kɐ da pfʌlo burt mʌnimi Purnu's flocks became many and his grain became much, i.e. his flocks and grain increased greatly. 210.21. burt pʌči bušai.ɐ the greater share of the land. 250.5. As a pron. 252.4, 6.

2. Adverb. very, much, greatly. — iri uɐ yu burt mariŋɐk bʌm those sons of his were very fine fellows. 260.4. burt uyʌm very sweet. 182.1. but uyum hirʌn di.a a very great man has come. 90.2. Cp. 116.5. burt d'ororutumʌn they became greatly attached to him. 116.14. burttsum burt aiyʌš mumʌnumo she was extremely delighted. 122.10.

(-ṭ IUB, IYB, Gh. Kh.).

2. burṭ -ɪšo x boots (European). Eng.

burṭər, b'urtər, -ɪšo x male kid (under 1 year old). 302.12, 342.15. (-ṭ- IUB).

but'əriŋ y pl. sorcery (to gain power over a person, and especially to compel a woman's affections). — iner šɪqa burtəriŋ ɐtimi he worked magic on him.

(Only recorded in this phrase. šɪq'a alone is also credited with the same meaning).

burtxaɐna, pl. -xaɐnʌŋ, (y) idol-house, heathen temple. 92.20. Prs.

butpʌrʌst idolater, heathen. Prs.

butɐn, pl. butuɐyo, x bag, purse; H. bʌṭwa.

Originally used for holding collyrium-case, comb and salt, now also for money, and if big enough for dried apricots.

tili ɐŋə butɐn saddle-bag. (Cp. Sh. pfut'un, small bag, purse).

OOO buʷm v. 2. buʷm. buʷwər -išo x water-melon, H. tʌrbuʷz.

A man told to take a water-melon along a very dangerous road to the Mir, asked: "Am I to hold on to the cliff or to the melon?":

čərtsɛ duɣʌma, lɛ, buʷwərtsɛ duʷɣʌm? (Cp. Sh. buʷwər).

buɣʌl N. -iŋ earthquake. (Cp. Sh. buɣʌl, bū·ɣʌl, bō·ɣɛl).

buʷɣʌm dry, dried (of y pl. things only). — buʷɣʌm ṣɪrqa (y pl.) bitsʌn there is dry grass, hay. buʷɣʌm γai.iŋ (y pl.) bitsa there are dried grapes, raisins. (Static Pc. of buɣai.ʌs q.v. Cp. buʷm).

buʷɣʌs, buʷč-. v.i. to become dry, dry up (of y sg. things only). 3rd sg. Fut. buʷči. 3rd sg. Pret. buʷmi. EOL.

Also 3rd sg. y perf. buʷbila recorded by myself. Static Pc. buʷm, q.v.

buɣʌt -iŋ y representation, petition. — buɣʌt ɛtʌs to petition, state with deference. "omi" nusen ɛʷr buɣʌt ɛtʷmʌn they petitioned him, saying: "don't go". 292.14. (Cp. Sh. buɣɛt, buɣʌt).

buɣai.ʌs, buɣʌč- v.i. to be become dry, dry up (of y pl. things only). 3rd pl. Fut. buɣʌči. 3rd pl. Pret. buɣʌmi. 3rd pl. Perf. buɣa bitsʌn. Static Pc. buɣʌm, q.v. (Cp. with yuɣʌs to become dry (of h and x subjects).

It is asserted that buɣʌs has a cerebral ɣ, but buɣai.ʌs an ordinary ɣ, and this accords with my own observation.

(Trs. or Cs. form ɛspi.ʌs, & N. ɛspuɣʌs. V. § 232).

buɣɛčo N., pl. buɣɛčumuts hm weaver. (Cp. Sh. buɣēṛičo).

90 b

bozorg, bozoruk, pl. bozoruktiŋ, hm holy (man), saint, ascetic. — hin bozorg hirʌn a holy man. 282.23. kiⁿe bozorg ʌwʌlolo teⁿle tomuk mʌnuwʌm this saint had first made his appearance there. 286.20. Prs.

Č.

čha pl. čhai.ints x millet (Punj. kangni, setaria Italica?).

čhaⁿ through, right through. — iⁿtse 12 buⁿdo čaⁿ no (the arrow) passing through the 12 stones. 148.17.

čaⁿdzr N. -iŋ y sheet. Prs.

čaⁿi, N. čaⁿ y sg. and pl. tea. — čaⁿi bila there is tea (liquid, to drink). čaⁿi bitsa there is tea (dry, tea-leaves). Prs. H.

čajʼuⁿš pl. čajuⁿwants x a sort of tea-kettle (copper). Prs.

čaⁿkur N. -ršo hmf youth, young man, young woman. — ja æçu (aⁿyʌs) čaⁿkor bai (bo) my brother (sister) is a young man (woman). (Cp. Sh. čaⁿkor).

čaⁿl y quicksand.

čaⁿlto the fourth day in the future.

çaⁿm *-ʌtʌs v.t. 1. to shove s.t. into, stuff into, thrust into. Pn.pf. referring to Dir. or Indir. Object. — hʌle eⁿsʌn ditsun čaⁿm etimi bringing a fox's heart he stuffed it (into A.K.'s body). 114.3. ʌpfʌyo teⁿle čaⁿm ne thrusting my stick (into the ground) there. 130.19. iⁿse čʌmʼa musoyuči čaⁿm moⁿtʌm he had stuffed, thrust, the brooch inside her clothes (breast). 168.3. iⁿmo tor tiⁿšen buⁿl bilum çaⁿm etimi there was a trace of a spring there and he thrust his whip into it. 276.14. 2. to pull on (boots etc.) — huⁿčo čaⁿm oⁿ pull on the boots.

šuqa ǯiŋečiŋ čam ne gutəər pull on (i.e. put your hands through) the sleeves of your choga and go on. 000

(Cp. Sh. čham thoɪki, to spear (with a fork), to pierce, prick).

čamine, N. čamimi, v. čhamɪne, hungry.

čaŋčaŋ *-ATAs to shut s.o. up. — čaŋčaŋ gočAm (in reply to abuse) I'll reduce you to silence.

čančAn a space of time. — 2 čančAn = 1 pəri(sa) q.v.

čar opposite, facing, level with. — Samaiyər ke BAltit čar bila S. and B. are opposite each other (on different sides of valley). HindiAŋe čar opposite H. (H. Hindi ke samnhe). 264.5. Hindi kane čar in front of Hindi fort. 194.6. (ǯiŋAt) Saiyid Šah čarər dimər when S. S. had come up level with it (the stone shoot). 294.4. hAn xuroncAn aiyAšulo ine tešiyAŋe čarər dinin a cloud coming up in the sky level with (i.e. directly over) his roof. 108.4. (Cp. Sh. čar + gen., opposite, facing, equal to, peer of).

čara y remedy, resource (in regard to some difficulty). — čara biləmAn ata ba I have done what was in my power, what I could. 148.19. čara *-ATAs to possess a remedy, resource.

čara being the subject of *-ATAs and the Pn.pf. referring to the person, v. § 261. II.

dərowər čara ači I shall have a remedy for the affair. ma mene kuli čara amati.a (or, amatimi.a)? were none of you able to do anything to prevent it? 154.6. Prs.

čAča v. ČAča Hərə, Index of Proper Names. Said to be a Wakhi word meaning: hurry up! quickly! 336.9.

91 b

000 čhačhaŋ dripping. — ivtsimo tsil čačaŋ mai.i bila water is dripping from them (ta.očiŋ y pl.). 130.20.

1. čaγa -miŋ, N. pl. -iŋ, y anything said, or recounted, narrative, story, tale; affair, question, matter. — guki čaγamiŋ ivmo ivsolo se.ibai.i he says these things in his heart (to himself). 368.6. ivne hilerse etalo ivki čaγamiŋ devyelimi he heard the remarks made by the boy. 64.19. yorum zamana čaγa a story of former times. 284 (title). kaman čaγa bila there is a small matter (to discuss). čaγa sta to tell a story, narrate, recount, give an account of, report, tell about, talk, etc. gute gurlji.a čaγa iljum gor ečam I'll tell you the story of this dream of yours later, or, about this dream. 80.8. gute čaγa mune gor stam ke if any people have told you about this. 80.15. ye gultumai sti gor čaγa ečam now listen and I shall tell you. 96.14. menale gute čaγa aiy'eti don't talk like this to anyone. 70.28. Cp. 118.18, 182.15, 284.3. (Cp. Sh. čaga).

2. čhaγa, pl. čaγaŋ, y, patch, small piece (of ibex or goat leather). — baṭe čaγa patch of leather (for repairing pabboos) čhaγaltas, čhaγalč- to card, or clear wool (by beating it with sticks). — 1st. pl. fut. čaγalčan, pl. pres čaγalčam, 3rd sg. hf. pres. čaγalčubo, 3rd sg. hf. pret. čaγaltumo.

*-čhaγaltas, *-čhaγalč- to castrate (by crushing the testicles). — ičaγaltas to castrate one goat, or sheep. učaγaltas to castrate several goats or sheep. ičaγaltum castrated.

(This is probably identical with the preceding word, the radical meaning being "beating" or "pounding").

314 čhaγo, pl. čhaγučiŋ, y. A kind of plant which produces hard-wood sticks or switches. Oil is got from it by heating and is applied hot to children (as a remedy?). H. čaboikol (?) — čaγučiŋ duwaša bitum "čaγo's" had come up. 278.4.

000 čhaγurum, N. y pl. -iŋ, cold. — čaγurum amanam I have become cold. čaγurum atsi yami I have got a chill, I got chilled. čaγurum guntaan bila it is a cold day. kuvi (= kulto) čaγurumaan (mai) bila today is a cold (day). čaγurum yami cold (weather) has set in. čaγurum tsil cold water.

čak -iŋ, N. -ičaŋ, y pickaxe, pick, a onesided pick. (Cp. Sh. čak).

čak stas ustavi, N. čaks ustavi, carpenter. (Cp. Sh. čak, a blow (?), čak thozki, to strike with an adze).

čak stas v. čaq (which is the correct form) to chew.

čakor (?) v. ičaqor.

čakro v. čaqro.

čhako habitually foodless, starving; foulmouthed.

čal, čel, čal, pl. čaliŋ, y, quarrel, dispute, wrangle, fight. — daŋ čal bila there is a severe quarrel. hamale čal apike if you have (lit. if there is) no quarrel with (your) neighbour. čal stas, čal °-manas to quarrel, dispute etc. daŋ čal stam they are quarreling hard. asmarnulo balaštu.ik čal etis some birds fought, quarrelled in the air. 96.4. wi horeŋ čal umanumaan they quarrelled among themselves. yus ke muyor čal numan . . . the wife and husband quarrelling . . . . 386.23. Cp. 30.10, 42.10.

čam, čam y pain (acute, stabbing). — daŋ čam severe, acute pain. čam gi bila a stabbing pain has come on. 000 aʳskapʊnʊlo čaʳm heart-burn.

(Perhaps the same as čaʳm (ʳtʌs)).

čʌm. — čʌm čoʳko very steep.

čhʌm y famine, hunger. — kuʳin(mo dʌn) čʌm bila this year there is famine, this is a famine year, H. qahʌṭ-saʳl. iʳtʌ bʊčaiʳʊlo but dʌŋ čʌm diʳmi a very severe famine came into that country ("there arose a mighty famine in that land"). 366.8. iʳtʌ bʊčaiʳʊlo dʌŋ čʌman bʌliʳmi a severe famine fell in that country. 372.9.

čʌmʿa -mʊtʌ x brooch (circular metal plaque with a large hole in the middle and a pin crossing it hinged at one side. A portion of the cloth is drawn through the hole and secured by running the pin through it), buckle, clasp, ring. — mʊndiltʌʳ toŋ čʌma bim on her breast there was a finewrought(?) brooch. 164.5. Cp. pp. 166 & 168. šʌŋʌličiŋʌ yætimʊl hʌn čʌmaʳn aʳr dʿesmʌn make a ring for me at the end of the chain. 174.6, 9. (Cp. Sh. čʌmʿa, GB čhʌma). 301 čʌmʌx, čʌmʌq -ʊtʌ, -iʳntʌ, -rʌo x. "steel" (used with flint to produce fire). (Cp. Sh. čʌmʌk, Khō. čʌmʌx; from T. čʌqmʌq). 000 čʌmərʌʈo half-hard and half-soft (e.g. bad potatoes). (Cp. Sh. čʌmərʌʈo).

čhʌmʌrʌ, čhʌmini, čhʿamine hungry, starving. — jʌ čʌmʌrʌ bʌ I am hungry. uʳʌ čʌmini uʳiʳrʊmʌn they died of hunger. jʌ akʊlʌ čʿʌmine ʌʳirčʌ bʌ I am dying here of hunger. Cp. 32.15, 34.10, 368.2, 373.5. (Cp. čhʌm).

čhʌmʌʳʌ, y sg. dried apricots rubbed down in cold water. — gərʌʳki čʌmʌʳʌ čiʳʌʳʌn in spring time they prepare apricot water. (Cp. Sh. čʌmʌʳʌ).

93a

[See corrigenda et addenda category 116, p. 542 - Analyst] čanoe MA. bug. (Cp. Sh. čemoe). ○○○ čhan, pl. N. -ergo.

1. Empty (of a dish). — goe hafalik čan bi this bowl is empty.
2. Unemployed, unoccupied, free, at liberty, at leisure, H. fawry, malary. — čan be I am at leisure. čan gumaima? will you be free? (Cp. Sh. čon, Kalm. *chon*², Skr. śūnya-).

čhanis constipated (severely, of children). — čanis imonaii he is (has become) constipated.

čanda, čanda -mate x pocket. (Cp. Sh., Kalm. čanda).

čhanon, x pl. -čio, y pl. -čig narrow, confined, restricted (of space, house, etc.), tight (of clothes). — gan bert čanon bile the road is very narrow. ganeŋ čanomiŋ bilaan the roads are narrow. čanon čapuman a tight "chapan". čanomiŋ čapuliŋ tight "chapans". čanomčio koymoto tight "chogus". čanon kan a tight-packed village. 264.6. (čh- IYB and QCB. Recorded by me č- and ǰ-).

1. čaŋ -iČaŋ (y) talons. Pre.
2. čhaŋ y vomiting — *čaŋ -ataa to vomit. čaŋ is the subject of the -ataa*, and the Pn.pf. refers to the sufferer; "vomiting affects x.o." V. § 261. II. numin čaŋ čhimi having drunk he vomited. čaŋ gorti you will vomit. čaŋ ortile they are vomiting. čaŋ ortilem I had vomited. čaŋ ortilem they had vomited. Cp. 84.14, 88.1. čaŋ furgaa to vomit. Here the subject affected would be in the genitive, dependent on čaŋ. (Cp. Sh. čhaŋ čhorki).

-čaŋaraa*[1] pl. -čhaŋarado* x. back of head, occiput. — ičhaŋaraa yami he got hit on the back of the head.

93 b

[1] [See corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 542 - Analyst]

○ ○ ə ẖaqyu —? ẖqyu ẖaqyu crippled, lame, paralysed.

ẖaqyu, ẖaqyi, a very steep descent, declivity. ẖaqyu ẖil, water coming down a steep course.

ẖap, -iq, -mëq, -ẖtaq, ɣ meat, flesh. — hawdz ẖape mazz the taste of human flesh. 95.18, 98.3. ẖap mar (or, merd, or, yemikr) manimi the meat has gone high, bad. Cp. 340.13, 384.6, 390.16, 392.9. (ch IYB, Gh. Kh.).

ẖap hidden, concealed, secret. — ẖkar ẖap ne concealing himself. 12.16. ẖap ati . . . ẖap gorlam hide me . . . I'll hide thee. 182.11. ẖar gorimam . . . 'wakarem ẖap ef'am he had hidden that rib from them. 384.8. ẖap ekem hidden. ẖap lar, ẖap ẖarz a secret affair. ẖakrus gorke . . . ẖe ẖarp ekam I'll hide the donkey foal. 118.26. Cp. 122.12, 156.17, 384.8. (Cp. Kshm. chapun, to be hidden).

ẖap ekar to shoot (with a bow and arrow). — ẖamerdi ẖap ekar, to shoot with a bow. gaar hawdz ẖap ekam I shall shoot this arrow. 156.6. girimets zaki hedi ẖap ne ẖrift aigermanemar ẖe . . . if, shooting (with bow) three times, they are unable to hit the marks. 316.9. (Cp. Sh. ẖap ẖarski, same meaning).

ẖapan, ẖapam, pl. ẖapaiq ɣ long coat, robe. (Cp. Sh. & Kho. & Kabali Pra. ẖapan).

ẖapëimets n pl. "chaplis", sandals. — ẖwzme ẖapëimetsik yerum one of his brothers had given him a pair of chaplis. 99.15. ẖapëimets ellarmi ẖe if he put on the chaplis. 99.16. H.

ẖapap, ẖapap, -iq ɣ scar, mark, patch (of crops in field). — zamme ẖapap the scar of a wound.

94a

[See corrigenda & addenda, category 116, p. 542 - Analyst]

000 ʒapčup quite silent. — ʒapčup ham he was silent. ʒapčup ɛtimi he became silent. ʒapčup ɛtimi he silenced him. (Cp. čup, and H. čupčup).

ʒaq ɛtɛ to chew. (Cp. Sh. čaq, movement of jaws).

ʒaqɛrɛṭo, sticky; N. ʒaqr'ato, pl. ʒaqrɛ-ṭamoṭo, ugly (?). (Cp. Sh. čaqɛrɛṭo, sticky, ugly).

*ʒaqɛ, ʒaqas, -ɛtɛ to crush to powder. — ɛsɛ bum wɛ.ṭɛ wɛ.ɛl čakɛ ɛtimi the boulder falling on them crushed them to powder. 160.7.

ʒaqu N., Hs. čaqu, -mɛṭo x penknife. T. Pra. (čaqu).

1. čhar, -ɛqu, slice, section. — ɣɛrɛ čhar a slice of melon. (čh IYB. Cp. Sh. čhar).

2. čhar -ko x cliff, rocky mountain. — čar dɛwimi the cliff fell down. čar dɛwɛm dɛt a place where the cliff has fallen down. čarɛṭɛm khɛw wɛlimi he fell down from (on) the cliff. 214.10. Cp. 132.20, 164.8 ff., 176.12, 232.2, 244.17, 278.1. (čh IYB. Cp. Sh. čhar, GB čhar; Kho. čhaw, čhar).

*-čhar -iq y. voice, noise, sound. — ɛsɛ ḥwɛ.ṭi čhar bilo he has a good voice. gɛčar čhar ʒaq ṭi beware of making a noise, raising your voice. 50.25. hikɛm ṭiṭik čal wɛmɛn čhɛ wɛr jurilɛm some people quarrelling that noise of theirs was coming, i.e. was heard. 43.30. wɛlɛnɛm ḥɛn čarɛ wɛrɛn dirɛmi from along way off came a sound of people weeping. 88.3. Cf. 192.1.

The "sound" of things naturally appears ordinarily in the form čhar: čhake čhar the report of a gun. Siq gɛčɛ ham, xɛrɛ čhar dirɛmi S. was lying down, the sound of his snoring came, i.e. they heard him snoring.

266.2. Cp. 264.23. hərip giraʌas ičər deryəljai.i he hears the sound of music and dancing. 368.19, 373.24. (čh- IYB, IUB).

čhərə, čhərə, x. pl. small-shot. — čhərə čobaq shotgun. H.

čəraṭi separated, separate, apart. — čəraṭi *-aʌas v.t. to separate. čəraṭi manəə v.i. to become separate, to separate. čəraṭi čəraṭi separated from each other. čəraṭi čəraṭi orti separate them (the quarrellers). čəraṭi ni keeping himself aloof. 262.19. uvisum hin čəraṭi numʌn one separating from them, or, one of them, separating off. 192.14. (Cp. Sh. čəraṭi, separation).

čər'ʌk, -ute (of animal), -ise, (of man) x cleaned carcase of animal, hinder parts of man. i-ljom čərʌk, hindquarters of horse.

čərʌp *-aʌas (only recorded with the form ʌas) to cut down, cut off. — tom čərʌp ʌas to cut down a tree. γuyʌŋ čərʌp ʌas to cut off (a woman's) hair (as a punishment). mo.inə́ fiŋečiŋ čərʌp ne cutting off her own sleeves. 146.16. γaiunčəfə čərʌp ʌimi he cut off with a sword. ʌapik čərʌp ʌti cut the bread (European fashion). EOL. Cp. 84.4, 214.8, 13, 388.11. (č- IYB. Cp. Sh. čərʌp, čərʌb).

čhərbʌn, pl. čhərbaiyo, x hip, one side of buttocks.

čərbu, pl. -čiŋ; N. -mutə, hm. village official, "chaukidar". 322.2, 326.11. (Cp. Sh. Kho. čhərbu).

čərčər, čəčər sound of water falling. (Cp. Kho. čərčər k., of liquid coming out of hole in water skin, to dribble (?), to gurgle (?); Sh. čəčər (= čər + čər) k. to drip).

000 čhərči (to one's) senses. — da ime čərči niwʌl senimi then, falling into his senses, i.e. coming to himself. 368.1.

(The other version of the Prodigal Son has hwər dim. 373.3).

(Perhaps čər + tsi, cp. a + čər + a perturbed. But rather cp. Sh. čərč $\frac{1}{1}$ meaning "consciousness, senses", only recorded in oblique forms: čərčər, čərčit, čərčejo).

1. čhərda, -muts x stallion. — čhərda hayərršo stallions. (Cp. Sh. čhərda, stallion).

534 2. čhərda, pl. -miŋ, čərdʌŋ, y a stringed musical instrument, sort of guitar. Formerly used in Maulai "jamaʿat xana" (places of worship) along with dʌf (tambourines).

Pir Šah Nasir i Xsran of Kohistan and Lutkoh in Chitral, allowed the use of these instruments in order to attract possible converts by musical entertainments.

000 čərk i fʌlʌk the "Milky Way". (Cp. Kho. čar fʌlʌk). Prs.

1. čərx -ičʌŋ y wheel, machine. Prs.
2. čərx x a kind of black-eyed hawk. Prs.

čhəru tightly-twisted thread.

čəruk v. čuruk.

čhʌs IYB circle, or plaque, of gold or silver for Treasury (not confirmed).

čʌs ečʌs to pull out, pluck out, tear out. — dʌn čʌs etimi he pulled out the stone. yuzʌn čʌs etimi he pulled out a clod. 54.4.

čʌs manaʿs, to come out, disperse. — tom čʌs manimi, the tree came away from its roots. tamʌdatsum sis čʌs manumʌn, the people got up and dispersed from the entertainment.

Also used of a tooth. [Cp. Sh. čhʌs thoʿzki to tear out (hair),

95b

$\frac{1}{1}$ [see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 542 - Analyst]

000 pluck off; čhʌs boʿrki to be torn out, broken off; chipped (of hoofs)].

čʌs mʌnaʿs v.i. to stick, adhere. Prs. čʌsp- (?), (not confirmed).

čhʌʃ, pl. čhaʿŋ, y thornbush, pl. thorns. — čaʿŋ cgi.ʌs to plant a hedge of cut thorns. bʌlʌʃe čaʿŋ etsaiyʌs to fix thorns on the top of a wall (as an obstacle to climbing over it). čaʿšulo laʿdus "I found him in the thorns" (seems to be meant to be Shina, v. 268.7. n.). (Cp. Sh. čhāʿʃ).

čhʌʃ -oʿŋo, N. pl. čʌtʿuyoko (?) short (of man), low. — čʌt sis a short person. čʌt hiʿri short men. čʌtoʿŋo sis(ik) short people. ha čʌt bila the house is low. čʌtoʿŋo hakičʌŋ, tom low houses, trees.

čʌʃ, -eŋ, -iŋ y closed crack (showing a line, as in china). — čʌt niʿmi it became cracked. (Cp. Sh. čhʌʃ).

čʌʃ etʌs to pluck, pick, pull (flowers, fruit), to snap, break (string etc.). — baʿlt čʌt ai.s don't pull the apple. gʌsk čʌt eti break the string. eʿs čʌt ne ʿrimi breaking his heart (perhaps: his heart breaking) he died. 152.1, 154.9. (Cp. Sh. čhʌʃ thoʿrki v.t. to pull and break, snap, pluck).

čhau, čaʿo *-ʌtʌs to milk, to draw milk. — buʿa čau etʌs to milk the cow. eʿr mʌmu čaʿo čaʿo netʌn milking (her sheep) for him. 286.2. mai.imo tsiʿr čau aiyʿoʿtin don't milk your goats. 322.3. Diʿrʌmʌtiŋe tsir waʿlkots mʌmu čau.u no the D. milking their goats for four days. 322.4. čau.ʌŋe bi it is a milch (cow), i.e. it is giving milk to its calf. (Cp. Sh. čha.o).

čauli male hawk (of species baʿz), Prs jurra.

che.i -mots x key, lock. — qulpe čе.i the key of the lock. 52.7. qulptse čе.i

oOo wʌšim bim the key was hung on, fixed in, the lock. 54.6. čɛ.i donimi, hiŋ sɪka ɛtimi he opened the lock, he opened the door. 54.6. ɪtɛ hʌn bʌsi.ɛŋɛ čɛ.i ɛr atonin don't open the lock of that one garden for him. 12.1. čɛ·i d'wgom (atugum) bim the lock was open (closed). 12.5. (Cp. Sh. čhɛ·i).

čɛ, čɛ.i cut, gash (made by axe); notch. — ɪtɛ gʌŋi.ɛ čɛ.i hole moltʌn duɛsimi blood issued from the cut made by the axe. 200.6.

čhɛ.imučhɛ.i in little bits, in pieces. — čɛ.imučɛ.i gumʌnum (or, gumʌnʂ) may you (fall down from the mountain and) become little bits! (women's curse). (čh- IYB).

-čɛ = tsɛ (?). (Cp. -či). — xʌbərčɛ apaiyʌm I didn't know what was going on.

čečərum, v. jʌčərum, rough, coarse.

čɛhaŋ this form in Prov. 23 is due to a misuse of symbols in the vernacular Ms. The suggested emendation "dʌntsɛ hʌŋ" is correct, the meaning being "they gnaw or chew, (on) wood and stones."

čɛl v. čʌl.

čhɛmɪliŋ y sg. poison, poisonous.— čɛ·miliŋ bi, bila, bitsa it is poison(ous). čɛmɪlinɛ pfitimots poisonous bread. 182.19. čɛ·mɪliŋə zaɛraɛtɛ dʌm dɛ·ɛtsimi the potency of the poison made him gasp. 182.24. gutsɛ širiɛjuɛyo oɛʂuɛin, ɛtsulo čɛmiliŋ bila don't eat these mushrooms, there is poison in them. EOL. gukɛ pfutɛ mʌltʌrʌŋ oɛʂin, gukɛ čɛmiliŋ bitsʌn don't eat these mushrooms, they are poisonous. EOL. γʌqʌy čɛmiliŋ jwɛ'ʌn bitter like poison. EOL. 388.14.

-či = tsi, tsɛ? Cp. -čɛ. V. § 71.

čiʌn cast-iron. — čiʌne čumaʌr cast-iron. čiʌne tiš cast iron ploughshare. 000

(Perhaps referable to Prs. čuʌdʌn cast metal, through some dialect form. Is there any connection between thi word and čidiʌn?).

-čhiʌs* -čhič-, Impv. -čhi-, Ppa. n-čin*, St.pc. -čhim*. Pn.pf. ʌ- and jʌ-, gu-, i-, mu-; mi-, ma-, u-; (occasionally e- for i-). To give (only of y sg. objects), v. § 231. d.

The Pn.pf. refers to the Indirect Object, the person to whom the thing is given, v. § 249.2. Forms: Fut. γenɪšʌn gučičʌm I shall give thee gold (y sg.), but: guke γenʌŋ moγun give her this gold (y pl.) from (-ʌγunʌs*). čʌp akuʌčičʌm I won't give thee the meat. 104.7. gute (kɪtaʌp) . . . . æčičumà will you give me this (book)? 70.1. ruxsʌt gučiči he will give thee leave. 20.12. tsil bɛlʌte ʌčičo how will she give me water? 50.22. haʌn . . . ičiʌčen let us give him a house. 114.11.

Pres. ja diš bila, ʌmačiča ba it is my place, I am not going to give it to you. 112.20. bušai.i ʌčiča ke if you give me land. 114.19. ruxsʌt ayæčičai.i he doesn't give me leave. bər ičičai.i, ečičai.i he gives him his word, he does not give him his word. 298.7, 8.

Imperf. dəroγo dušmaiyo cʌsqʌnʌsər mʌdʌd ičiči bim the stick used to (would) give him help in killing (his) enemies. 28.19.

The following forms have all been recorded with y sg. objects.

Pret. gučiʌm I gave, have given, to you. 8.5, 58.23, 112.7. učiʌm I gave to them. 92.25. ačima you gave, have given, to me. 20.22, 60.1, 112.3. ičimi he gave to him. 66.16, 98.8, 112.2. ičimo she gave to him. 68.1. učimi he gave to them. 68.6, 110.25. ečimi he did not give to him. 110.25. očimi he did not give to them. 114.8. auučimi (ditto). 112.17. učimʌn they gave to them.

Perf. ači baiʼi he has given to me.

Plup. iči bʌm he had given to him. 112.22, 344.10, 346.5. muči bʌm he had given to her. 70.3.

Imperv. (jaʼr) ači give thou to me. 22.7, 366.3. gʌš kʌm aiyʼači don't give me too small a price for this. 58.23. iči give to him. 114.13. muči give to her. 108.21. ačin give ye to me. 344.21.

The form jʌči give thou to me has been twice recorded. 60.20, 62.4. V. § 255. Cp. N. dʌčiryʌs.

-ǵ form. ja hukum akuʼčiǵ xa akolum oʼni don't go from here till I give you permission (so long as I don't give you permission). jaʼr juwaʼb ačiǵ gomeʼibaʔ can you give me an answer?

Past Pc. Act. ničin having given to him. 380.4. nučin having given to them. 32.11, 66.17.

Static Pc. (Act. and Pass.), (*-čhim). thʌmi rʌxsʌt ačimər niyʌm when the Tham had given me leave I went off. ji ačim dʌmʌn the Lord who has given me life. ji ičim uyon all life-given things. taʼlim ičim baiʼi he has been educated, he is educated. Cp. 60.7, 342,14, 344.2. ji mičim dʌmʌn the Lord who has given us life.

OOO Infin. iči.ʌs; mičiyʌs; uči.ʌs, učiʌs. 342.4, 20.

As Abstract Nouns are all, or mostly, y sg., -či.ʌs comes naturally to be used in a number of more or less metaphorical expressions, e.g. juwa·b *-či.ʌs to answer. xʌbər — to inform. xʌbər miči.ʌs, (or, učiʌs etc.) sis an informant. ruxsʌt *-či.ʌs — to give leave (of absence). ta·lim — to instruct, educate. hukəm — to give permission. dəro — to be useful, serviceable. tʌklif — v.t. to trouble, worry. madʌd — to help. (ch- IYB, Gh. Kh.).

čidi·n, čɪdi·n, pl. čidi·yo (x) — metal cooking-pot (of Kashgari or Indian origin). 308.3. (Cp. Sh. and Kho. čɪdin, čidin; Ishk. čudʌn).

čiji·ŋ, čiri·ŋ bare (of ground naturally bare or grazed bare). — čau čiriŋ quite bare (of ground). čiji·ŋ (or, čiri·ŋ) -ʌs dəlimi he threw him down on the ground. IYB. čɪdrŋ dzi a smooth place. EOL.

čik m. to spring up, sprout (from ground). — ɪzqʌm čik manimi grass has sprung up.

čika, IYB "sour curds drained in a bag", H. dʌhi.

čikʌn pl. čikai.iŋ y embroidery (pattern).

1. či·ki —? — či·ki nimi (or, manimi) (the ball) went out (at polo). (Probably a variant of tsi·k).

2. čiki y musk. — či·ki mujuv the musk weeping-willow. 18.9. ja jimo čikiʌ yoyʌŋ my beloved's musk (scented) tresses. 364.9. (Kho. čikhi mʌdhuv. In Sh. či·ki = small; chi·ki = "sweet-scented plant like saffron").

čilʌm, čilim, -uts, -iso x tobacco-pipe. — čilʌm minaʌm I shall smoke a pipe. čilʌm tʌskaʌs to smoke a pipe. Prs.

000 ʿHamčí x basin (European). Pre. II.

čili — ? — čili ḃrdeḃ, a very small bead. EOL. (Cp. Sh. čili, juniper).

436 čilə-ki, čəlki, -mots x obsolete coin (formerly worth 8 annas). — jəle čəlikiəm api I have no money, "I haven't a penny". (Cp. Punjabi čilki, "A kind of Nanak Shahi rupee . . . a kind of rupee worth ten annas current in the Jammu and Kashmir State". Bhai Maya Singh).

000 čilwidəra pipe-bearer to the King. 20.4, 26.7. Pre.

čimi-li, čimili, -miq, y chip, splinter. — mənəs čim'ili.eq gujpi ḃs . . . if the splinters strike anyone (or perhaps for čimili'en as in 172.8). 172.1.

čhiw, pl. čhiyo, N. čiw, x bird. — — čiw dorlas to shoot (small) birds.

činta active. — činta ḃirak an active man.

čipuphaj -iq y whirlwind.

čiq'ir -ste white-eyed (i.e. with whitish pupil, of horses only).

(Cp. Khe čiyor, čiqor; čiyori, light-eyed, "if there is too much white beside the black of the eye that is called čiyor". - ŠY. Wakhi, čakir, "light-coloured of eyes", Shaw).

čir stas to spin. — gančəli čir stas to spin. (Cp. Sh. čirčir th., to twirl spindle in the fingers).

čiraqnama. — azəma čiraqnama yatai boli the mullah reads, recites the "čiraqnama" (a prayer (du'a) used when three days have elapsed after a funeral). 314.2. Pre.

354 765 čiraq, čir'ak, čiraq, čirar, -ste, -ots x lamp, small stone container with floating wick. — haloqdaas čiraq stone lamp. ḃumare čiraq iron lamp, lantern. čir'ak aspalas to light a

98 b

[see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 542 - Analyst]

lamp. Cp. 314.2. čɪrʌk ɪstayʌs to put out a lamp. iskikots mʌnuʼmər čɪrrʌʼgs huyʼɪs kʌš sčʼan at the end of three days they slaughter the "goat (sheep) of the lamp". 312.20. iskikutsɪ čɪrrʌʼy ɪspʌluman they lighted the "three days" lamp(s). 244.21. 354 765

This refers to the lighting of lamps three days after a funeral, after which a mullah reads the Quran, or prayers, until the lamps are burnt out. After this the people have a feast consisting of 12 seers of pounded wheat with salt and butter added and mutton.

Before the sheep is killed its legs are washed and collyrium is put round its eyes. Prs.

čɪrbɪʼt -ʂo a kind of plant(?). ooo čɪrbɪʼt -ʂo x snipe.

čɪrɪʼŋ v. čɪdɪŋ.

čɪrɪʼpo, -muts x scrap of cloth. — čɪrɪʼpo ɪsu take a scrap of cloth, i.e. a sample. (Cp. Sh. čɪrɪpi shred of cloth, small rag).

čɪʼvo, -muts x top (child's toy). — čɪʼvo ɣʼor ɪtʌs to spin a top.

čɪʂ, -ko x mountain, hill. — čɪʂko čɪʼvko bɪvn the mountains are lofty. čɪʂeʂ duʼsɪmi he climbed up the mountain. čɪʂtsum yʌʼs sokɪmi he came down from, descended, the mountain. čʌt čɪʂ a low hill. ʃot čɪʂ a small hill. čʌtoʼŋo, ʃoʼtʂo čɪʂko low, small hills, hillocks. 156.3, 176.12, 180.8, 212.8, 260.4. (Cp. Sh. čhīʼɣ, GB čhīʼɣ).

čhɪʂ -ko x.

1. Ladder (including log with footnicheс cut in it). — čɪʂs ʂu sokečʌm I'll go down the ladder. 184.7.

2. Bier, stretcher for carrying dead body on. — čiʒʌtɛ gutʌs ny'uwɛšin placing the body on the bier. 310.9—18. (Cp. Sh. čič ladder, GB čhɪč), OOO čiʒikərk, -išo, very yellow. (Cp. ʒikərk).

čhiʒkinʌs, čhiʒki- to complain against, bring an accusation against. - uwər čiški.ʌm I shall make an accusation against them.

čiʒtərʌs, pl. čiʒtərʌšo, x swallow.

čiʒ(ə)riʒ, pl. čiʒər'iʒšo, x upflying spark of fire. — čiʒəriʒ mʌnɛ be very quick, run, gallop quickly.

čhito separate, apart, alone. — *čito -ʌtʌs v.t. to separate. čito čito oʒti separate them (persons quarrelling). čito mʌnaʒs v.i. to separate, go apart. čito horwtai.i he has sat, settled, down alone. čito horwtʌs a recluse. čito bai.i he is alone. čito bʌmʌtɛ goʒr eča ba on our being by ourselves, in private, I shall tell you. 84.18. (Cp. Sh. GB. čhɪto) čiʒu čiʒu ɛtʌs to chirp, to cheep (of bird). (Cp. šyu šyu whistling).

čiʒu čiʒu ɛtʌs to squeak (of rat or mouse).

čiʒ -išo, -iŋ x and y thing. — ʌjʌb čiʒʌn bi it is an extraordinary thing. Prs.

čho ɛtʌs to make gallop. — hʌʒur čo ɛti make the horse gallop. Cp. 158.22, 386.17. (Cp. Sh. čo).

čoʒdo -miŋ y taunt, contumely, showing up s.t. reprehensible on s.o.'s part, sarcasm(?) H. ta'na, burai 'kɛ ʒa'hɪr karna. — jaʒr čoʒdo ʌčimi he taunted me. thʌmɛ Širi BʌdʌtƏr čoʒdo ničin the Tham taking Sh. B. to task(?). 380.4. čoʒdo(ʌtɛ) pušoʒro, one taunt upon another (pušoʒro has no specific meaning). (Cp. Sh. čoʒdo).

čoʒdogaʒro one who disgraces himself, scapegrace, ne'er-do-weel.

000 čo·k recently, lately, just, H. ʌbhi ʌbhi. — čo·k dimʌnum hiles a boy who has just, very lately, been born.

čok(o) upright(?) in čok(o) khʌpʌn a kind of spoon also known as the gu.i·ski khʌpʌn, in which the handle rises up at an angle from the side of the bowl. (Probably identical with čo·ko).

čo·ko perpendicular, upright, steep. — gʌn čʌm čo·ko bila the path is very steep. bʌl čo·ko bila the wall is perpendicular. (č- IYB. Cp. Sh. čo·ko, upright, vertical, čo·k(u), straight; GB. čoke.i ascent. Kho. čo·k-tu, upwards, uphill, steep. Badakhshi Prs. čuk, upright, steep).

čo·ko ča·ko, quite crippled, paralysed, H. lʌŋgra lu·lu. — i·n čo·ko ča·ko imʌnʌm he had become paralysed. 214.9.

*-čho·qurʌŋ y pl. hair cut in a fringe on forehead, forelock. — ičo·kurʌŋ (a boy's) fringe. mučo·kurʌŋ (a girl's) fringe. bušo·šo.ε ičo·kurʌŋ the calf's forelock. 104.23. hʌγurε ičho·qurʌŋ a horse's forelock.

343 789 čokuṭi, -mutε x hut, shelter; hole dug beside the threshing-floor in which the grain used to be stored for three or four days. It was covered over with cloths etc. so that it might not be seen by people, for fear that it might be lessened by the evil eye.

000 čokuṭo hut, shelter.

*-čhonjuš, pl. *-čhonji.ʌŋ, y beak, bill. — ičhonjuš, učhonji.ʌŋ; N. ičunjuš, učunjuyæŋ its beak, their beaks. (Cp. H. čōč).

čop -utε x small heap (of cut corn, grain or flour); heap of earth on which the mark (giri) is fixed for shooting at with bow and arrow from horseback. 316.6.

čopuri, čopəri x caper-plant. — čopurε ʌskuriŋ the flowers of the caper plant.

000 čopuri x sg. and pl., double pl. -muts. caper-seed (used in cooking and in the preparation of a cosmetic).

čoṭ x blow, stroke. — hik čotʌn yuʿyʌm I gave him, it (e.g. polo-ball) a blow; I struck him, it. (Cp. Sh. čoṭ, čuṭ blow; H. čoṭ).

1. čhoṭ y a heap of . . .; x a large quantity of, a large stock of.
2. čhoṭ heaped up, piled up, collected in large quantity or numbers. — phʌlo, tik, čot bitsa the grain, earth, is heaped up, there is a heap of . . . daiyo čot bi.ɛ there is a heap of stones. sis čot bavn people are assembled, crowded together (?), there is a crowd of people. (Cp. Sh. čot, čut heap, pile, assembled, GB choṭ heap).
3. čhoṭ spilt. — gʌž ʌto čoʿt bi.ɛn the matches are spilt (?) (they were lying loose in a heap). amulo čot ɛta you have spilt (or, dropped) it (the food) somewhere. 210.1.

   (In the first example čoʿt may be 2. čhoṭ).
4. čhoṭ broken into bits. — baiyu čhoṭ imʌnimi the (rock) salt has broken into bits. čʌma tʌq čhoṭ imʌnimi the brooch was broken into little bits. 164.17.

čoʿṭʌl -iŋ y.

1. Rhubarb. (Is mixed with tobacco to make it "softer"). N. čoʿtʌl x pl. rhubarb.
2. Flower-bearing (?) stalks of rhubarb used to make musical pipes. — čoṭʌlɛ gʌbʌnts pipes of rhubarb stalks. 378.15. usko čoṭʌl (x) duwaša bim three rhubarb stalks had come up. 378.17. (Cp. Sh. čōʿtʌl rhubarb).

100b

čoʸyo -mots x testicle. 000

1. čhu, pl. čhoŋgo, y.

a. Ear (of corn), bunch (of grapes), head (of polo stick). — γe.iŋe ču a bunch of (grapes), head (of polo stick). mʌtele ču duʷsimi the corn came up with black ears (the literal meaning is uncertain). 240.18, 242.4.

b. Blade of knife.

2. čhu, čho barefoot.

čhučhuṭ dripping. — iʸtsimo teil čučut mai.i bila water is dripping from them (y pl.). 130.20.

(Probably a reduplication of chuṭ. This type of reduplication is common in Shina).

čuʷgudər, čuʷγudər x (sg. and pl.), peach (fruit). y -iŋ, peach tree.

čuʷk'-miŋ y sewing, embroidery. — yʌfe čuʷk embroidery. čuʷk duwaʷesimi the sewing (has) remained over, i.e. is not finished. čuʷke lʌkpiʷe, faʷrtsin an embroidered handkerchief, cap. čuʷk etʌs to sew, mend by sewing, embroider. pʌči čuʷk etobo she has sewn the cotton (cloth). qrsumʌn čuʷk etʌs to mend (sew) a torn (garment). yʌfe čuʷk etom šoqa, pfartsin an embroidered choga, cap. (Cp. Sh. čuk doʷrki to embroider).

čuk v. čuq.

čhukečhu quite barefoot. (Cp. 2. čhu).

čhukus, pl. čhukušo, x.

1. Bow-string. — žʌme čukus bow-string. tərmuke čukus string of pellet-bow.

2. Beam laid along the top of the wall of a house to support the ends of the rafters.

čhul, erroneous form in: čhul meʷše tʌm delji. Prov. 16.[1] The correct reading is either tsulmərij or tsilmai.iʸ

101a

[1] [see corrigenda et addenda category 116, p. 542 - Analyst]

000 čhəmaʿr, čhumər, -iŋ y.

1. Iron. — čəmaʿrɛ ši iron trivet. čiʿanɛ čumaʿr cast-iron. čəmʌr lukʌn ʌči give me a little iron. 172.17.
2. Gen., of iron, iron- (adj.) — idim uyon čumʌrɛ meʿimtsɛ his whole body would have become iron. 110.8. Cp. 144.19, 190,8, 196.13, 382.6. čumaʿrə baiʿi he is hard-hearted, or steadfast.
3. čumaʿrɛ, čumʌr, -ɛšo x frying-pan. — aʿlta čhumʌ'rišo bi.ɛn there are two frying-pans.

N. čuʿmər, čiʿmər; steel.

(chumər IYB, Gh. Kh. Cp. Sh. čiʿmɛr, Kho. čumər, čəmuʿr. V. Morgenstierne Rep. 1926. p. 68 n.)

čhumərpa adj., of iron, ironware. — čumərpa dustsʌk ironware, domestic utensils. 308.5.

čhumo x sg. and pl., double pl. -muts fish. 108.14. (čhuʿmo IYB. Cp. Sh. čhimo, čhumo).

čəmuʿso pl. čəmuʿsəmuts. 1. the grub that eats woollen materials. 2. the fish-insect.

čəmuṭkɛr hf. young woman. — hin čəmuṭkɛr gusʌn ja.o give me a young wife. EOL. (Cp. Sh. čumuhkiər(?), GB. čəmʌṭkɛr; Kho. čumuṭkeʿr).

čuʿna x cement, plaster. H.

1. čup, čup, silent; silence. — čup °ʌtʌs to make silent, to silence. čup oʿtʌm I silenced them. 42.20. raʿčʌkuʿyuʿ herʌs čup ʌtumʌn the guardians silenced their weeping, i.e. ceased weeping. 42.13. čup ʌtʌs to make silence, i.e. be silent. EOL. bese čup nɛ tsuča ba why am I to take it away silently, quietly? 62.17. čup nɛ nukom you going silently. 72.23.

101b

[see corrigenda et addenda category 1.6, p. 542 - Analysis]

000 yʌtis ay'eʌkərtsiǰ xa čup ɛtʌs ap'i until one cuts off its head there will be no silence, or, it will not be silent, or, there will be no silencing it. 56.3. čup mʌnaʷs to be silent. kot bər čup mʌnaʷs ap'i this affair will not remain silent, i.e. secret. 56.5. (Cp. Sh. čup thoʷrki, or boʷrki to be silent. H. čup).

2. čup, čop, in čup dɛlʌs, čup gaʷrtsʌs to jump down. 174.16.

3. čuʷp in baʷša čuʷp, male baʷša (a kind of yellow-eyed hawk). (Cp. Kho. baʷša čop, male baʷša).

1. čuq, -iŋ y sieve (obsol.); a measure of grain, approximately 24 lbs. — hičuq one "čuq", 24 lbs. alto, iʷski, tsindi, tʌlɛ, torim čuq 2, 3, 5, 7, 10 "čuq". iʷskičuk bʌy . . . nikin pouring in 3 "čuq" of millet. 266.15. Cp. 262.4. aʷlto tʌlɛčuqiŋ two 7-čuq = 100 yərbaʷl = 336 lbs. 300.2. torim čuqʌn gur iγ'unimi he gave him 10 "čuq" of wheat (240 lbs.). 60.17. Cp. 338.12, 342.7,12.

2. čuq kind, sort, manner. — ja čuqɛ hirʌn bai.i. wʌgɛ čuqɛ hirʌn bai.i. bɛčuq? šuʷa dəkoʷma? (Cp. bečuk (bečuq) and Sh. čok).

čuqus v. čukus.

čhur, čhur -ʌnts, N. pl. -aʷints, x knife. — tuʷn čuʷrʌn jo give me another knife. dodoʌʃɛ čur isərkimi, he applied the knife to his throat. 42.3. in ki čuʷr aiy'eʌkərtsimi him too the knife did not cut. 42.8. (Cp. Sh. čuʷr, small knife. H. čhur, čhuraʷ, čhuriʷ).

čuʷra, čur'a, -mots, -ints x wicker panier (which holds one maund of broken straw).

čh'urkʌs, pl. čhurk'ʌso, x vessel made of pumpkin for holding milk. 322.4.

000 čoruk -ilo, -ićiŋ x & y piece, bit, fragment (of iron, bread, wood etc.) x or y according to category of the substance. — čorukan, čorukilo, ŋapik a piece, pieces, of bread.

*čoruk, čoruk, -ʌtʌs to cut, trim, cut off. — γuγʌŋ čoruk stʌs to cut, trim (a man's) hair.

The Pn.pf. may refer to the Direct Object, ja amsi čoruk 'stʌm I have bitten my finger (does not appear to mean "bitten off"). 138.11. ownimets čoruk ɔtomʌn they bit their fingers. 138.10. Or it may refer to the Indirect Object, mumupuś čoruk m'ovočor pasom imʌnomi he hesitated to cut off her nose (for her). 176.18. momoo čoruk mɔγɔći he will cut out your tongue(s) for you. 328.1. (Cp. Sh. čoru, čoru thɔrki).

*čoruf -ʌtʌs to bite, sting (of insect, mosquito, flea, ant etc.), to pinch. — kine čoruf goći the flea will bite thee. kirdo čoruf mɔtimi ku when (if) the mosquito bit us. kirdo čoruf mɔtʌstsom dimuγʌćila owing to the mosquito's biting us it itches us (i.e. we feel an itch). (Cp. Sh. čoruf thɔrki, GB. čoruf).

čust, čuwt big, growing up (of a child). Bu. syn. mondʌŋ. — čuwt imʌnimi (the child) grew bigger. 242.20. (Cp.? Kho. čusi, beautiful, handsome, Pra. čust, active, strong).

čuwj stʌs to suck mother's milk (of child, etc.).

*čuwj -ʌwʌtʌs to make suck, suckle. — čuwj swʌtʌs to suckle (male infant, young animal). čuwj mɔwɔćobo she suckles it (female infant). wɔmis mʌmu čuwj so 'wʌtʌmo their mother, making them suck her milk (i.e. suckling them) reared them. 110.14. guse ačas čuł 'ɔtəmo she suckled the lamb. 72.25. (Cp. Sh. čuf thorzhi). ooo čhurši y sg. and pl.; -miq double pl. raw silk. — čuṡiṡ γalγu silkworm. čuṡiṡ puṡuru (or, puṡumoro) silk cocoon. 176.24. čuṡiṡ las remains of cocoon after the silk has been taken off. (Cp. Sh. čhurši).

čhuf, čhufo (recorded in the forms čufan, čufan, čufumaan) a small quantity of a liquid; a few drops; a drop of ... — čufan tsil a little water (for irrigation). 350.2. čufan čuł šilamulo a little water in a cup. 304.2.3. čufan dal a few drops of oil. 320.5. ha.i čufan a little soup. EOL. čufumaan a drop (of rain). 106.19. čurd ga, mamu čhuf "cat take it! (There's) a drop of milk (for you"). This is said when one wants to attract a cat or child. (Cp. 2. čhof).

čuf *-atas to pluck, pick, pull (flowers, fruit); to snap, break off (thread etc.). (The "small word" corresponding to čaf atas).

čutikaj slanderer, backbiter, malicious.

čhofkus, pl. -kuṡo, a basket (in which salt-impregnated earth is placed. Water is then poured over it which drains out bringing with it the salt in solution).

čufo v. čhuf.

čhumukhal IYB.

1. Women's menses.
2. Mourning in the house of deceased person.

čyu' čiru ataa to speak with a small cheeping voice like a bird. — čyu' čiru buf ai.ali don't go on cheeping away! (Cp. čiru čiru).

čyu·čyu· a game (12 a side; hide in the dark and put hand on a stone). 524

D and D.

d- becomes -t- when preceded by the negative prefix a-, or by the causative prefix -ʌs*. 000

d-* denotes d- followed by the simple forms of the pronoun prefixes: gu- i- etc.

d-ʌ-* denotes d- followed by the altered forms of the pronoun prefixes: go- e- etc.

Vide §§ 257, 302 & 308.

da This particle is one of the hardest-worked words in the language. It has many shades of meaning which pass into each other, and in any given case the precise meaning is often difficult to determine.

The following scheme of meanings is offered only as a rough guide:

1. Again. — i·ne da i·te du·ro stimi he did that thing again. yʌf gunts: Š. B. da sailər du·simi the next day Sh. B. again went out for a stroll. 12.4. da tsor jale ju come to me again soon. 24.8, 24.13, 26.10, 38.21, 40.9, 42.4, 102.11,22, 108.13,25, 148.11.
2. Then, and then. — guks pfu·or gi, da je hazir maiya·m throw this (hair) in the fire, and then I shall appear. 22.10. senimi . . . . Da mahrʌmər hukəm stimi . . . . he said ". . . . ." and then he gave orders to his servant . . 44.25. hik (gunts) bʌs(k) horu·təma ks, da gu.i·rča if you remain one day more (than 40), then you will die. 50.16. Cp. 8.17, 10.6, 20.17, 26.13, 32.5, 44.19, 118.14, 140.8, 302.4.

000 3. Further, in addition, moreover, and also, and. — ɨme lɨv ke ɨme gua da uv jotomoh . . . . . dakuwum.an they brought in the man and his wife and also their children. 96.10. ɨnumale mujoy ḫurum bila, da ṭaḫila au ḫalilum the tassel of its tail is white, and further it had fallen (i.e. it is hanging) down over its face. 188.12. Cp. 4.18, 20.4,9, 22,17, 24.7, 26.11, 28.9, 34.10, 34.12, 36.18, 42.20, 44.1, 116.5,13, 124.20, 128.18, 130.4, 136.3—7, 238.6,10.

4. Special cases of 1 and 2 may give equivalents of "more" and "else". — da jo give me again, i.e. give me more. da ke ɣaḫil ɨu bring still more wood (or once more). (TUB, H. aur ḫāl). de lotan something else. da mumun ɨfɨmi.n? has no one else come?

601 dardo -tawo, N. -mute.

1. Grandfather. — ja.ime dardo my paternal grandfather. ɨṭpuṭu dardo my maternal grandfather. dardo je kaḫ ɨta ke I have slain father's father. 266.9. Cp. 182.2.

2. Used of any old man. (Cp. Sh. dardo and H. dardā. A foreign equivalent of -ayī).

000 dakluwum, dakluwum.an as much as this, this much. — čayu dakuwum bila the story is this much, this is all the story. 216.7, 220.10, 224.20, 272.16, 290.11, 288.5. dakuwum.an, 308.6. (-ki- presumably as in akkuwum. da + akkuwum).

dari up (cp. dal). — dari ɨtas to take up, raise, remove, H. uṭhānā. 70.11. tili.aŋ dari ɨti take off the saddle. ḫaf dari ɨtas to remove the skin, to

104a

000 skin, fur. mugurvaki mugzhki dori ne raising her lower and upper bedding. 118.5. dori manare to get up, stand up, rise up. dori mane get up! dori manan ere ottini standing up, he stated. 88.6. dori manimi "he has removed", said of a person who has died of disease (i.e. not by a violent death?). IUB dori manare 1. to get up. 2. to fall in love. H. 'ordy horua. IUB dori! get up! H. ojhe. Pra. horuiro.

ḍamal, ḍamai sg. and pl., also pl. -do, s.
1. Small drum (used in pairs), kettledrum. — ḍamal bi, bi.an. damale ryuran to play, beat, the kettledrum.
2. Testicle. Pra. zorya (a polite substitute for ḍorya, used in answering a question by a child in public). (Cp. Sh. ḍamal.) [1] ḍamalii -mute, hm drummer (for small drum).

darua wine. Pra.

day gallows. — daruje dioveas to hang (a person). Pra.

ḍahal -ko n a "double Čilrai", i.e. a rupee; money. Punj. Eng.

ḍabi -mute n small box. — gajati dabi match box. (Cp. Sh. Khe. ḍabi, Punj. ḍabbi).

d°-ottanas d°-ottó- to be in need of, have need of, require. H. mujhej horua. — wg gugurv je bazaur ot'otana ba I have been in need of nothing from you. 76.5. je parikorio bazaur ot'otana ba I have required nothing of the King. 76.5.

(The exact literal meaning is rather doubtful).

1st Fut. dottaiyam.

3rd sg. hm Pres. dotaii hoii.

dinotanaur for our future needs(?).

104 b

[1] [See corrigenda et addenda, category 11b, p. 642 - Analyst]

000

d-ataqarat* to make fork, to separate. Ca. ut d-taqarat*. Cp. d'ataqer.

datiyat N., datit to give to me. — datitobuli he gives to me. datirni he gave to me. Impv. dati, pl. datin give me.

(From *-ti.a. Cp. Ha. jati give to me. Either da = ja, or d-ti.a* with pronom infix 1st. sg.

dadal atat to drag along, pull along. IUB H. ghasiṭna. — gfash dadal atat bila it is necessary to harrow.

dafaq -ate x big drum. — dafaq kerip so making them play on big drums. 363.16. (dafaq IYB. Otherwise I have recorded it as dafaq, or dwaq. Cp. Sh. dafaq).

dafaqN hm big-drummer.

dader 'mazare to tremble, shake, shiver, H. Lerza karna, kampna. — irig dader mali bila his head shakes. yatin dader malibi his head shakes (as from palsy). dader IUB. Cp. Sh. dader).

dafer x pl., double plural -dafe, -do. Loose stones (up to 3 or 4 lbs. each) in quantity, scree, talus. (Cp. Sh. dafer).

daferkat stony (in sense of having dafer). — daferkat dat a stony place.

d-aelat* v. d-agalat*.

daf -ite, x tambourine. Pra.

dafa. — dafa mazare v.i. to clear out, go off. dafa nawa ni clear out and be off! 140.15. Az. Pra.

d-agawat*, (d-atagawat*, v. d'ogawat.

d-agawat*, (d-atagawat* d-agak*, Impv. d-agua*. Pya. d-agua*. With Pa. infix. dawag, dakawag, dawag, dawawg; —, —, dawg.

1. To pull out, extract, draw out, etc. ooo
The pa.inf. refers to the person or thing from which the direct object is extracted etc.
ćśin ke asumots dووgus having extracted its liver and kidneys. 74.4. ćmmo jinoćig dممممyos pulling out her sleeves (for her). 146.16. ja koyi gun dووgus take hold of my boot and pull it off (for me). ćto dźior . . . nipćممqin ja ممممu tinjo dووgustممم having dug in that place I shall extract (from it) my father's bones. 80.22. Cp. 150.20—22, 70.21, 78.26.

2. To reveal, bring to light, H. nźkalممممu (= to cause to come out?) — ker, fere, dووgusimi he revealed the affair, the conspiracy. ja ممممy yiki dukووgustممم I'll reveal your (act of) theft. gute yiki alووgus don't reveal this theft of mine. 62.19.

3. To cause to extract, to cause to take off, to cause to construct (a water channel). H. nikalممممu. — gotsilممم dووgoir dووgusimi he had the people seized in order to make them construct a water channel. 276.3. Basoq Gairi e dووgusممم gutsil the water-channel constructed by B. G., which B. G. had made (them) construct, had had constructed. 278.4. (V. § 236. b.). Cp. 862.16—21.

d°-ممممممم, d°-ممممم v.t. to grudge, stint.
Only recorded in the form of the neg. Static Participle Passive.
ممممممم ممممممم ممممممم he gives them food without stint. 368.2.

ممممممم, pl. x and y ممممممم.
Large in circumference, thick (of 000 post, stick, thread); robust, stout, fat (of man).

105b

dʌɣanum sil a thick needle. ʂɔr dʌɣanumʌn bi the thread is a thick one. tɔr dʌɣanum(ʌn) bai.i he is a very stout man. tɔr dʌɣanum(ʌn) bi it is a very robust (horse). dʌɣai.rkurik stout people. yutis dʌɣanumʌn bai.i he is a big-headed man. 158.20.

dᵉ-ʼʌɣʌrusʌs dᵉ-ʌɣʌrus̄. Pn.inf + ɣ, sg. 2nd. dok'oɣ-. 3rd. doɣ-, dom'oɣ-. pl. 3rd. doɣ-.

Variants: -ɣor- ‖ -ɣʌr-. 3rd. sg. pret. -umi ‖ imi.

1. To question, ask s.o. Pn.inf. refers to the person interrogated.

The occurrence of this verb with the variable pronoun infix is comparatively rare. Usually we find it in a generalised invariable form, duɣʌrusʌs q.v., or doɣʌrusʌs.

With this invariable form the person questioned is frequently expressed and is put in the ablative, or occasionally dative case.

With dᵉ-ʌɣʌrusʌs the person questioned is usually expressed only in the Pn. infix. In one of two instances in which it is expressed it is in the uninflected nominative or accusative form; in the other it has an -e suffix, but there are grounds for questioning the correctness of this -e.

It is probable that with dᵉ-ʌɣʌrusʌs the person questioned should always, when expressed, be in the uninflected form.

je wɣ dok'oɣ'urʌsʌsur daiyu ba I have come to ask you. 40.16. thamu wʌcir ha ʌkurbirtiŋ(e) ha doɣʌrusʌi.i the Tham asks of the 000 Wazir and Elders. 326.5. wazire dəmʼəγərukai.i the Wazir asks her. 138.17. Cp. 146.24. d'eγərusəmo: "wə amelo guča bam?" she asked him: "where had you slept?" 224.1. d'itəuman, deγərəuman (..., deγərəuman): ". . . he.iba? they fetched him and asked him: "Do you know. . . .?" 28.8.

2. To address, say to. Occasionally thus used to express an assertion, not a question.

Aba Kituγə deγərusəmi: "le.i Pəγču, kuv wəγəγə babor . . . gu(ič)am" A. K. said to him: "O P., I shall give you . . equal with all these others. 114.13. deγərusimi: "wəγə bananir rai ečə ke ano, gov marbəwi ečam." he said to him: "Tell me what you would like and I will present it to you". 138.28. podša Laγə Brəwno dəmaγərukai.i: "Kuer bəčkan bai.i ke ine čakale . . . čaγə eč" The King said to L. B. "tell what sort of a person K. is (and) describe his appearance". 154.14. Cp. 30.13. (Cp. duγərusə).

.γaγaə d*-.γal- to laugh.

Fut. deγalam I shall laugh.
dokəγaləsə thou wilt laugh.
deγali he will laugh.

Pres. deγale ba I laugh. 210.18.

Impf. dəγalam they used to laugh. 116.1. Pres. 116.11.

Pret. dəγaləimi he laughed. 70.10. 3rd. sg. 70.14. dəmaγaləimo, dəmaγaləəmo she laughed. 70,11. (Cp. γaləəw).

d*-.γaγaə d*-.γal.

Pa.inf. + γ. 1st. sg. deγ-, 1st. pl. dimeγ-. To itch.

The Pn.inf. refers to the sufferer and the verb is impersonal: it itches me. 000 daγačila, daγayimi I feel, felt, a sensation of itching. kiṭo čoruṭ metaṭe (QUB metastsum) dimeγačila owing to the mosquito(s) biting us we feel a sensation of itching.

daγai.as, daγayas; daγač-, daγaṭč-.
Impv. day'a neg. ataγa; pl. daγai.in.
Ppa. not'aγan, static pc. daγam.
V.i. to hide, take refuge.
Fut. sg. 1st. daγačam 2nd. daγaṭčuma.
Pret. sg. 1st. daγaiyam. yai.iṇe kiṭe pa day'ami he hid on the near side of the mill. 204.5. Cp. 266.4. uyaṭum notaγan huruṭimi he sat hiding, taking refuge, from them. 262.18. notaγan hiding. 122.2,4,20. not'aγan ɔniičam I shall not go away secretly, by stealth. 32.1. (Cs. -astaqayas).

daγo, daγu, pl. daγumiṇ, daγoṇ y. gum (adhesive), glue, H. sareś IUB. Sh. dok. (Sometimes smeared on paper and put over broken ribs). 757 daγoaṇ, daγoaaṇ y pl. flour. — daγoaṇ jačorum bitsa the flour is coarse. tsilumiṇ daγoaṇ fine flour, H. maida. daγoan pyuuan dosu bring a little flour. 58.16. daγoaaṇ ɔyum fal maiyaṭ taiyaṭ manisci all the flour has come near to being finished. Cp. 298.9, 306.4,7,13, 338.19. 000 daγu daγu IUB game played by children with closed eyes, blindman's buff.

day'uṭi, unprepared, unfinished, raw, H. kaca, aṭuṭ. — daγuṭi gap raw hide. 130.6, 188.1. daγu.i ṣor ši it is untwisted thread, H. kuca.

d°-aγorkas d°-aγorš-
d°-aγoras d°-aγorč } v. §§ 219 & 222.

The second forms were given as shown but do not occur in the texts, in which the verb in any form occurs very seldom. OOD

To obtain, come into possession ; receive, find. Pn.inf. refers to the subject, v. § 249.4.

The long vowels of the Pn. Infix all tend to be dissyllabic.

Forms:

Fut. sg. 1. daʷaγurčam, daʷaγurčam.
2. dukoʷγurčuma, dukoγurčuma.
3. deʷγurči, deiγurči.
hf. domoʷγuršo, neg. atomoγuršo.

Pres. 1st. pl. dimeiγurča bam.

Pret. sg. 1. daʷaγurkam, daʷaγuram.
2. — dukoγuruma.
3. — deiγurimi.

N. Impv. dukoγurk, pl. damaγurkin. dimeiγurkas our finding. dimeiγurkas meibi it is procurable for us, it is a thing we can obtain. hoi amolo duk'oʷγuršama (-uma) will you find, procure, vegetables somewhere? 62.29. but hušti daʷaγurkam I obtained much plunder. goltačer bešan ataʷaγurkam I found nothing to put on your feet. 156.20. Cp. 158.18. deγurkimi he found it. 384.1. amolo ataγurkuman nowhere did they find him. 10.5. dimeiγurkuman we (have) found, recovered, him. 370.16. n. daʷaγurka ba I have found, recovered, him. 368.15, 373.22. dimeiγurkam we have found, recovered, him. 374.16. (-γuiγas appears to be used as a synonym).

d-ʌiγas d*-ʌič* to make stand up, set up, erect.

With, Pn.inf. sg. 3rd. deč, pl. 3rd.

000 dɔvi-. N. sg. dɔvi-, dukɔvi-, devi-, domɔvi-. — devičam I shall set it up. lsɔr Tɔrakutsan thame ... giraṣɔr d'ɔvičai.i the Tham first makes one of the Tɔrakuts stand up to dance, puts him up to dance. 318.1. haiyan d'ɔvičan they set up the mark. 316.6. hir yakalom hin, dasin muyakalom hin jaman sind'abal dɔvičan they make stand up (put up?) as agents a relation from the side of the man and one from the side of the girl. 302.16. Cp. 336.12.

Other forms:

Pret. 3rd. sg. dɔvimi. 148.15. 3rd. pl. dɔvimAn.

Infin. dɔyas, dɔyas.

The adverbs dal and tsal may be used in conjunction with this verb: dal doyas, etc.

N. Pret. 3rd. sg. hm tsal davimi, dukɔvimi, devimi, domɔvimi he made me, thee, him, her stand up. (Ca. of di.eyas, to stand up, of which di.e- is invariable).

dak v. daq.

dak *-atas to drive (animals), follow up (tracks). — bum dak atas to drive the cow. huyem dak ɔtas to drive the goats. tale nal hɔr dak no driving along the seven yoke of oxen. 246.11. utsɔng dak ne following up(?) their tracks (y pl.). 246.22.

dakhil, dakhil, dakhil adv. like this, thus, so. — gutse ja gane dakil mai.i bi.en these (cliffs) are thus on my account, i.e. behave thus for my benefit(?). 156.4. ik'ɔrenɔ dakil n'usen saying thus to himself. 373.10. dakil zailafe in this manner. 210.2. dakilafe in this manner, thus.

108a

In the story-ending:
čʌγa dækilʌʃe bila the story is in this wise (as just narrated). 212.28. čʌγa dakiˑlʌʃe ečaˑn they tell the story thus (as narrated). 230.11, 254.3, 278.8. dʌkiˑlʌʃe uˑiˑwʌsər on their dying in this manner. 214.11.

(da + ʌkhiˑl. IYB dʌkhiˑlʌʃe, and in vernac. Ms. "daˑ akhil" which, however, does not represent the actual pronunciation of the vowels).

ḍʌko, -muts x wooden post supporting roof, pillar, tent-pole. — saγ dʌqomutsʌŋ gut a tent with 1000 poles. 88.4. dʌkotsum haiγai.iŋ tally kept by making notches on the roof-post. Cp. 92.6, 304.19, 328.9.

(Cp. Sh. ḍʌko, Kshm. ḍʌkh support, prop).

dʌxʌl interference. — dʌxʌl ayʌti don't interfere. Ar. Prs.

dʌl cp. daˑl, up, above, on upper side. — dʌl diˑeγʌs to stand up, v. diˑeγʌs. dəriˑa dʌl ne gutsərimi ke when the river flows uphill. 142.27. Baltitʌ γʌʃe Hərəˑtuŋʌ dʌl Uˑltʌrər gan bilum there was a road to Uˑltʌr up the Hərəˑtuŋ above Baltit. 256.2. dʌl aˑpʌt kərwˑtimi he sat beside me on the upper side, i.e. he sat above me. mopʌta dʌl, mopʌtʌ dʌlər beside her. 118.6. guγum dʌl up above you. 148.4. N. dʌl uphill. dʌl ne Eastwards (the trend of the valleys in Hunza proper and Nagir being downwards from East to West). Cp. 174.10.

(Probably only a variant of daˑl).

dʌla -muts x larger irrigation-channel (smaller channel being gutsil). (Cp. Sh. dʌla).

d°-alas, d°-ali.as, d°-alj-. 000

Only in the forms delas, deli.as } 99v. dolas, doli.as }

There are also the Pa.pf. forms °-delas, °-deli.as to strike, hit, shoot, kill etc. (Is this possibly a d°- form of the verb °-alas).

dalbaf floating, in suspense, superficial; IUB II. wpar, zrm, nayuzla — tsilefe dalbat amanam I floated on the water. dalbafsfum boram an ordinary affair, an indifferent matter. H. marmarli bert, dalbaf sfum gurltum.al ečin ke if you listen inattentively. 98.11. dalbat dumas to catch (polo ball) in the air.

dal d.l "up, up" said to plough oxen to make them keep up to the horizontal line. ("Down" in the corresponding sense is zaf). [Cp. dal].

daldalum pl. x and y -ljuko, y -lomig; N. -čilo broad, wide, (of road, plank, back etc.) — halgičig bert daldaljuko bitse his (upper) back is very broad. 184.19.

daldalomkut y breadth, width.

daldi.am St. Pc. of dal diryas.

daldi.an Ppa. of dal diryas.

daldinas, daldirnas, daldi-, Ppa. nutaldin to sift, to strain(?), H. čhanna.

Fut. 1st. sg. daldiram.
Pret. 1st. sg. daldirnam.
Impf. 1st. sg. daldi beryam, IUB.
St. pc. daldinum, IUB.

d'ali upper. — d'ali mut upper end, top end (of room). 304.19. eguntsum dali mut above them all (in a room).

(Perhaps to be taken as one word dalimut).

d'ali, N. -dag y harrow. (Cp. Sh. dale, dale. The Hunza equivalent is pf'ani).

S. Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

dalo the zodiacal month of Dalv (Aquarius commencing in January). 208.1. Ar. Prs. ODO dalt'anas, pl. dalt'anaśo, x hollow in a stone. — dalt'anasvlo tsil bilum there was (rain)water in a hollow in a stone. 268.11.

daltas pl. h x y daltaśko.

1. Good, fine (especially of appearance, health). IUB. H. xuɔ̄b, 'umda, xuɔ̄bɯrat. — daltas nas a nice smell, pleasant perfume. but daltas bai, bau he is, they are, very handsome, good-looking. but daltas bo she is very pretty. daltaśko suwatiŋ beautiful faces. ma daltaśko čayamiŋ stam you had said excellent things. 176.10. kuv gušiŋents daltaśkuvik these are a handsome lot of women. daltas dukoma? daltas ba? have you come well? are you well, in good health? (said to new arrival). kulto lskan daltas awana ba today I am (have become) a little better. EOL. 138.22, 160.22, 162.20, 164,6. 210.9. 244.11, 358.6, 364.13.
2. Well. — daltas osum bi it is well-secured, put away daltas kurusai.i, ficai.i, mi bai i he sits (lives?) eats, drinks well. i-mo dukan daltas tam ma cleaning his shop well. 166.16.

daltaskuł y excellence, good health, beauty. — ise čaya but daltaskuł bila his is a very fine story. (daltaskuł is perhaps the subject of bila, or else it is used adjectivally). ayu jot gorto daltaskułafe yami he has recovered your younger brother safe and sound(?) happily (?). 370.4.

daltum, used only in the combination -as daltum. canl (human).

109b

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

000 1. dʌm y breath, IUB H. sdʷs, dʌm. — dʌm dʊsuʷyʌs to breathe, draw breath. dʌm dɛlʌs to breathe hard, pant (from running), gasp (of dying person). esər dʌm di bila his breath has come to his heart, i.e. he is breathing still, but near death. EOL. dʌm dišaiyʌs the breath to be stopped. dʌm dišʌmi (he was) suffocated. IUB. dʌmtsum niyʌs to go faint, H. sust homa. čemeling zaʷrəʷtɛ dʌm devetsimi the force of the poison made it fetch its breath, gasp (?). 132.24. hik dʌm immediately, forthwith. 134.5, 162.14. (But Cp. Sh. ḍʌm, time, occasion). Cp. 110.9. Prs.

2. dʌm breathing on, spell, charm, incantation. — uʷ jadu nɛ dʌm nɛ iʷɛ buʷntsum hoʷlɛ duʷsʌs aiy'stumʌn they, working magic and making spells, did not allow it (the donkey) to come out of the boulder. 200.14. iʷi dʌm sɛ̌ume he himself working an enchantment. 192.13. Cp. 194.4,13, 190 9. Prs.

(The same word as 1. dʌm).

3. dʌm x — ? — dʌm diʷtsʌs to charge (an enemy), attack. dʌm diʷdaʷn they charge. dʌm diʷtsumʌn they charged.

1. ḍʌm stʌs (*-ʌtʌsr), IUB. to put to flight, drive off. (Cp. Sh. dʌm thoʷrki to drive game).

2. ḍʌm *-ʌtʌs, IUB, to beat (quick-time music). ḍʌm aʷti beat quick time for me.

3. ḍʌm *-ʌtʌs to massage (by beating). — dʌm stʌs to beat upon, thump. mundiʷltɛ dʌm nɛ Akiʷl sɛ̌ube beating her breast she speaks as follows . . . 118.10. A

(Probably the same as 2. ḍʌm *-ʌtʌs) dʌmʌl v. ḍʌmʌl.

110a

A [See corrigenda et addenda, Calcor. y 116, p. 542 - Analyst]

000 1. dʌm'ʌn, pl. dʌmaiyo, hm. master, owner, lord; Lord, God. IUB H. aʷqa, malɪk, Xʊdaʷʊand — ha dʌmʌn the master of the house, host. 340.2. bʊšai.ɛ dʌmʌn owner of the land, landlord. au.ɛ, mi.uʷ dʌmʌn my father's, our father's master i.e. the Mir, Tham. jí dʌmʌn the Lord of Life, i.e. God. ji.ɛ mičim dʌmʌn the Lord who has given us life. dʌmʌn yaʷɛ under the control of the master. H. maʷlɪk ke zeʷr fʌrmaʷn. IUB. dʌmʌn yʌltsɛ by the kindness, blessing, of the master. H. maʷlɪk ke mɪhərbaʷnise. IUB. dʌmʌn yʌlʊlo in the shade, under the protection of the master. H. aʷqa ke saʷyamẽ. IUB. Cp. 214.12, 216.2. (Cp. Sh. dʌb'on, Skr. damana?)

2. dʌmʌn real, own (as opposed to step relation), H. ḥaqiʷqi. IUB. dʌm..n maʷma own mother (not, step-mother). oʷsmo muyu baʷn, dʌmʌn apaʷn they are my wife's sons, they are not my own. Cp. 388.14. (Cp. Sh. dʌb'un).

ḍʌm'ʌn N. (also Hz.) time; occasion. — hik, alto, iski ḍʌm.ʌn once, twice, thrice.

d-ʌmʌtʌlʌs d*-ʌmʌtʌlj-*, to yawn.

Pres. sg. 1. daʷmʌtʌlja ba I am yawning.
2. dukoʷmʌtʌlja.
3. m deʷmʌtʌljai.i.
f dumoʷmʌtʌljo.

ʌtuk oʷmʌtʌl! don't yawn!
dimeʷmʌtʌlʌs our yawning.

dʌmbʌlʊm slight (ascent), easy (ascent).

ḍʌmb'u -muts x mouth piece of musical pipe, "surnai". (Cp. Sh. ḍʌmbu, mouthpiece of surnai). A ḍʌm ḍʌm stʌs 1YB to sound, beat (drums). — hərib ḍʌm ḍʌm stimi he beat out music (on the drum). (Presumably the same as 2. *ḍʌm -ʌtʌs).

1106

A [see corrigenda at addenda category 116, p.542 - Analyst]

ḍʌm ḍum'ul in dense crowd, thronging (lit. packed like fine earth), (sis) ḍʌmḍʌmul bʌm there is a crowd of people. 000 dʌmjʌr, dʌmijʌr y trouble inconvenience, worry. — bʌt dʌmijʌr ʌtimi he put them to great trouble. 276.6. N. dʌmijʌr ḳeyʌs to suffer, experience, trouble. dʌmijʌr °-ʌsiʌrʌs to cause trouble to s.o. (Cp. Sh. dʌmijʌr).

dʌmkʌtai N. y bronchitis, asthma. (Probably Sh. dʌm + kʌte.i. Cp. Sh. kʌto, GB khʌṭo short).

ḍʌmo, pl. ḍʌmʌmʌts, x.

1. Straight young branch, sapling. Sh. kyeŋ. — hʌn dʌmu.ʌn fʌt ʌtumʌn they left one (sapling) shoot (growing from stump of cut-down tree). 214.11.
2. Thick stick (3" in diameter), cudgel. IYB club, wooden-pounder, Bu. ḍiŋʌr. Cp. 200.12.

dʌmši, dʌmši, °-ʌtʌs to approve, choose, select, prefer. — ʌr hʌrʌŋtsʌm dʌmši no juwʌyo utʌmʌn they selected and took away young men from among them. 120.3. dʌmši ačʌ ke if you approve of me. 172.17. (Cp. Sh. dʌmši thoʌki).

dʌn pl. daiyo x stone. — uyʌm dʌn big stone, small boulder. duxʌrʌs dʌn "splitting stone", shale. bʌteŋ duwʌši.ʌs (duwʌše.ʌsʌ) dʌn stone that splits into flat sheets, shale. dʌn °-ʌtʌs to stone someone. 276.9. dʌn dʌnʌṭe ʌskʌriʌmʌ galloping (his horse) over the stones. 122.8. dʌnʌṭʌm bʌkʌk IUB "the bean on the stone" (H. pathʌrpʌr bʌqʌla).

(Said of a man when all band together in hostility to him and leave him by himself — H. sab dušman bankar ik laxṣko tanha čhoṛna). 000

dani -muts x slow-time music (for dancing to). 533

Said to have been brought from Chitral by Wazir Asadullah Beg, grandfather of Wazir Shukrullah Beg and Jemadar Imam Yar Beg.

bapoʷ dani, or thamə dani a tune played when the Mir should be going to sleep at his midday siesta, also when the Wazirs dance. 202.6.

Bapo refers to the Mir's grandfather. It is also played at marriages. The ḍamal, ḍaḍaŋ and sonai are all employed. (Cp. Sh. dhani, Kho. daṇi).

dantsil y sulphur. — dantsile bun a boulder so called near Murtaza-abad in Hunza. There are sulphurous springs there, the water of which is hot enough to cook meat, eggs, etc. and in which the local people wash their clothes. (Cp. Sh. dantsal, sulphur). 000 daŋ y sleep. H. nind, xab. — je daŋ juči·la my sleep is coming, i.e. I am becoming sleepy. I am sleepy. tapu daŋ atimi at night I did not get to sleep. daŋtsum ditalimi he woke up from sleep. 20.5. daŋ dosuyas "to bring sleep", i.e. to go to sleep. je duṛŋ daŋ dosučam I shall sleep for a little. jadu·učai.i tsor daŋ dosutas (or, dantse nifen) he does magic that they may go early to sleep. 118.1. N. daŋ d-atsas* to put s.o. to sleep. (d-atsas*, Ca. of dosuyas). *daŋ -asas, or daŋtsum d-astsalas* to cause to wake (-asas* being in effect the Ca. of niyas to go. Cp. the 6th. example above). Lanja Brumoʷio daŋ movimi 000 he made L. B.'s sleep depart from her, i.e. he wakened her. 118.8. Laŋa Brumo daŋtsum domostaalimi he woke up L. B. from sleep i.e. he wakened her. 118.8. (Cp. Kho. daŋ dik, to drop off to sleep, no

1. ɖaŋ pl. ɖaŋo hard (literal and metaphorical), stiff, severe (of pain, famine). — daŋo hiri, gušiŋats hard (tough?) men, women. ese daŋ stout-hearted, valiant. tsu daŋ very hard. tsu ɖaŋ very hard. IYB. daŋ čam a severe famine. 366.8, 372.9. (Cp. Kho. ɖaŋ, ɖaŋ).

2. ɖaŋ s'as to bake, cook (bread). — šapik daŋ sti bake bread. gšiti besasafe daŋ es'as with what are we to bake bread? 126.7. Cp. 126.12,16,22, 128.4, 180.3, 306.12.

(The same word as 1. ɖaŋ and so to "harden" by firing the dough).

3. ɖaŋ stas to keep; store, lay up, hoard, H. rakhnā karna.

ɖaŋal -ilo x lever, crowbar, H. jabal. — čumare daŋal iron crowbar.

ɖaŋal'at -ilo x aqueduct, water channel (crossing an irrigation channel).

776 ɖaŋalafh'as a kind of "bilas", wild woman monster who devoured men, H. čuvel.

According to another account (M. M. P.) the D. is not a "bilas" but the consort of a Deu or Jinn.

D.'s live in the mountains, but come to inhabited places at night. hin daŋalatasas he there is a d. 198.8. Cp. 204.4 ff.

000 ɖaŋalieki IYB a kind of grape. — ɖaŋalieki čum a kind of vine.

ɖaŋarowo IYB half-sour half-sweet (of wine).

ɖaŋ ɖaŋ stas to knock. — hiŋafe ɖas ɖaŋ stas to knock at the door. (Cp Sh. daŋ(daŋ) th.).

○○○ ḍaṇḥ'as °-manas IYB to be bewildered, confused, H. hairan.

dap -iṇ y strip of teased wool of two fingers' breadth ready for spinning (prepared by hand by women), flake. — burum dap an aged person, greybeard. gye dapiṇ flakes of snow. (Cp. Sh. dap, a small ball(?) of wool, Kho. darpi, strip of cleaned cotton, flake of snow).

1. ḍap suddenly and quickly. — Purus ite wriṇise dap durnimi P. laid hold of that hand quickly and firmly. 210.6. (Ch. Kho. ḍap, suddenly, without warning).

2. ḍap IYB a store-room, pantry; according to others: plank, shelf. (Cp. Sh. ḍap, wooden cupboard).

d°-apfaltas, d°-apfalt- with Pa. infix, 3rd. sg. d'epf-, 3rd. pl. d'epf-, v.t. to break up, burst, blow up, blast. — bum d'epfaltam I'll break up the boulder. bum depfaltimi he broke up the boulder. bumdo depfaltam I'll break up the boulders. ovopalt don't break it up.

(Tra. of dufaltas. Cp. also °-faltas. Some say that the correct form of this verb is d°-apaltas).

d°-apirkanas d°-apirkni- to stumble (of man or horse). Pa. inf. + p darp-, dulup-, derp-; 3rd pl. derp-. — darpirkniyam I shall stumble. deprirkimimi he stumbled. je dapirkanam ki darpirkanam da uṇ ofurkupirkni.rma? if I stumbled, I stumbled, won't you stumble too?

(This is a verbal catch to be repeated quickly like the English: "school cool-scuttle" or "round the rugged rocks the ragged ragamuffin ran".) (Cp. pirkanas).

112 b

d-ɹpirtɹɹɹ d*-ɹpirŝ-*, Impv. d-ɹpirtɹ*. Pn. inf. + p sg. —, dokorp, dorp. 3rd pl. dorp.

1. Cs. (d-ɹ-ɹpirtɹɹɹ*) to cause s.o. to pull out, eradicate. ɹrme dorpirtɹm I shall make them pull out my tooth. (ɹrme) dokorpirtɹm I shall make you pull out (my tooth). ɹtrpirtɹ don't make him pull it out. (Cs. of d-pirtɹɹ*).
2. Trs. (d-ɹpirtɹɹ*), the Pn. Infin referring to the Indir. obj. — ɹrme dorpirtɹɹ ɹmbur (their) tooth-extracting pliers, dentist's pliers. Kobardo "ja eɹɹ dɹŝmɹɹ tsirŝ dorpirtɹ (or, dorpirtɹ)" ɹɹɹ dɹrɹm K. had sent me saying "Pull out the root of my son's enemy (for him, for them). 92.24. Cp. 94.16. (Cp. d-pirtɹɹ*).

dɹpɹŝi, dɹpiŝi dɹlɹɹ to kick (of man or horse). — hɹyɹrɹ im dɹpɹŝi dɹlimi the horse kicked him. dɹpiŝi nidilin giving it (the donkey) a kick. 118.3. (For -ɹŝi cp. tohɹqɹŝi, s.v. tohɹq).

d-ɹpokurɹɹ, d*-ɹpokurŝ*, to praise, extol. — dokorpokurŝo she will praise thee 168.10. d'ɹrɹpokurɹrɹmɹ she praised him. 168.14. (Cp. dɹfɹrɹrɹɹ).

dɹq, dɹk (The correct form is dɹk) y hope, expectation, belief. — ja dɹk bilɹ I have hope, I hope. ja dɹk ɹrpi, or ɹfuŝilɹ I have no hope. gutɹ borɹr dɹq dɹɹrɹyɹm I believed this statement, matter. jɹ-ŝɹ dɹq ɹ'uŝɹmɹmɹ ba? will you (pl.) believe me or not? 80.24. dɹq ɹtrŝɹ ba I don't believe. ɹɹ belɹfɹ dɹq ɹtrŝɹ bɹrɹ? how should we not believe? 83.1.

(In regard to ɹtrŝɹ bɹrɹ v. s.v bɹrɹrɹ, but according to later information ɹtrɹrɹŝɹ ba and — bɹrɹ ɹɹ also permissible in the last two examples). N. ja dak dila umr hal daltas mermi I hope you are well. (Cp. Sh. dak, hope, trust, reliance). 000 daq stas, dak stas (The correct form is dak), to hammer. — gusular byrlem di.usin'daq ayatomafe without taking it out of the forge and hammering it. 162.7. daq stas ustard (or, berita) blacksmith. N. daka ustard blacksmith. (Cp. Sh. dak thorzki, or dorzki, to knock on, strike on).

daqadaq stas. (The correct form is dakudak), to tap. — zergere daqadaq etem the goldsmith was hammering, tapping, away. 160.13.

daqo v. d'ako pillar.

d'-aqqqqyas* v. d'qqqqyas.

1. dar, -mig y leisure, opportunity, H. fursat. — be manar dar ne bona? 354.2 seems to mean: What, is she in the habit of making an opportunity for all and sundry? Cp. § 168. (Cp. Sh. dar, intention, desire, will; and perhaps, opportunity).

2. dar trembling fear, H. karap. (Cp. Ba. dadar, Sh. GB. dar dar berki to palpitate (of the heart).

1. dar -ants x hole in ground for storing butter in. — maltafe dar small storeroom for butter. (Cp. Sh. dar).

2. dar quite, totally: full (of moon). — halants dar mani bi the moon has become full. dar manum halants the full moon. dar hdivo grki a quite circular line. dar hdivo full (of moon). (Cp. Sh. far-barra, all-whitish?).

dar N. -sto x ridge (of hill). (Cp. Sh. darr, Punj. dhar).

dar'ak y sign, trace. — taile bealo darak api there is no trace of water. 138.10.

ooo (Used in same sense in Pasht. & Khow., & probably Sh.). Ar. Prs.? d-ʌrʌs, d*-ʌrē-*, Impv. d-ʌri*, Ppa. d-ʌrin*.

1. To send, despatch. As distinguished from -ʌrʌs, d*-ʌrʌs* views the "sending" from the point of view of the place to which the object is sent. — jarlər derri, dumorri send him, her, to me. sisʌn ʌr derri send a man to me. mʌma . . . darrubo mother has sent me (here). 132.11. Thʌmi da darʌs bai.i the Tham is going to send me again. da ja harlər hik dukorʌs bai.i he will send thee to my house once again. 68.9. uŋi bʌba darrai your father has sent me (to you). 30.14. Baltitər tsil niyʌl derčʌn releasing the water they send it on (by the irrigation channel) to Baltit. 350.7. (The narrator regarding the operation from the standpoint of Baltit). Cp. 90.3, 294.13.
2. To spread, lay out. — bərenin bəsʌn yʌfi derčai.i see what bedding he spreads over himself. 124.8.

dəri pl. dəreŋ y window. — dəri.ulo hərutum bom she was sitting at the window. 24.3. dəreŋulo bʌm he was at the windows (i.e. set of windows). 64.6. dəri.i ulo . . . girmi he went in through the window. Cp. 38.7, 42,16. Cp. Sh. dəri. Cp. Prs. dəriča).

dəri.a y river. — dəri.a dʌl ni gulərimi ki when the river flows uphill. 142.27. Cp. 382.21. Prs.

dəkur, S. pl. -ilo, required, wanted, necessary. — akurumʌn kʌyur bəsʌn dəkur bi.an? what need is there of so many horses? kʌn ʌkil kʌlkʌn jur dəkur bila I need a plank like

114a

000 this. dorkev qpi it is unnecessary. nurto (ava) nizas dorkev it is necessary for you to go now. Pra.

dorm.an, pl. dormai.iq y a piece of clear, level ground. (Cp. Pkht. dirm.and, threshing floor?).

dorm.onda IUB in want, destitute, without resources, H. muhtaj, na'zaj. Pra.

doro v. duro, work, affair etc. 80.20, 190.16. — dorowar zlaj ch find a remedy for the business.

doro IYB wooden roller (for rolling polo-ground).

dorotyo -do -ilo -ado, a stick, staff, rod, H. sotji. 28.17, 32.3, 130.26, 160.3, 176.4. (Synonym, -yf.ayo).

dorta -aq y cut crops (brought in to, or deposited beside the threshing-floor), threshing floor, H. xirman. — ko gawa dorta ko da horw ko dosawa then bringing in the wheat harvest (cut wheat) and then the buck-wheat. 332.11. karto dorta horiawa they thresh the barley harvest (cut barley). 332.1. aramaiq dortaar wafawa ufi hawa they take the bags to the threshing floor and fill them. 332.2. gar horaq nipiraar dortaq nel.an dorta pitawa cutting the wheat and barley, having prepared threshing floors, they put it down in heaps for threshing. 330.12.

I also got the following, in trying to ascertain the word for "threshing-floor": dorti pi.am (pitawa), dorta.aq pi hawa, dorta.aq horiqawa.

doru hunting big game (ibex, markhor, etc.), "sport". — dorowar nitam he used to go hunting. 22.19. Cp. 102.20. dorowanar nimi he went on a hunting trip. 102.19. doru ata to hunt. doru is said not to mean the game animals. Cp. 26.4.5, 290.8. (Cp. 000 Sh. dzvu).

dzvuk'so EGL pl. dzvulop.sots s wooden door-bolt. (Cp. sevilm).

(Others give the words as dzvion, pl. dzvlop.sots).

dzvuu yet. — dzvuu zo up to now, up till the present, still, yet, hitherto. 190.13, 196.16, 206.12, 220.7, 270.5. (Cp. Sh. dzvuu and dzvuu lovig).

dzvuts -ilin, -tig hm heater. — dzvuts lurk heating dog. (Cp. Sh. -dzvudz).

dzvgi -tig hm tether. H.

d.se, dze -mig y unoccupied, uninhabited land; uncultivated plain, waste, desert. — gate dzé d.se bile this place is waste. ahard tsil apim, d.se bile it is uncultivated land, without habitation (without water). kogere d.se.sfe fan.in take the flocks to the uncultivated land (to graze). wrgr bukai i d.se m.zuimi your land has become waste. 142.22. Cp. 6.10, 8.13, 86.14,16,17, 240.11. (Cp. Sh. dzve, Khn. d.se, dzve).

d°-.zuny.se d°-.zuzi to provision the faults of s.o., to run down, speak ill of. — je wu dzlu-zuzi.zuu I shall speak ill of you. dzu-zyimi he spoke ill of me. dzuzyimi he spoke ill of him. dzuzyimi he spoke ill of them. dzu.zy speak ill of him!

d°-.se.sl.sf.se d°-.se.sl.sé to wrap up. H. l.sperfmt, to cover one's opposite number at polo. — gate kzhrp kuy.zuelo dzu.sl.sf wrap this book up in paper. je wg g.sklilo dzlu.sl.sf.zuu I shall wrap you up in a blanket. dzu.sl.sf.zuu, dzu.sl.sf.zuu I shall wrap him, them up. (-f- IUB. Cp. Sh. e.sl thurzki, to fold, wrap up in).

115a

d°-.ɛɛilɛɛ d°-.ɛɛilj- to wet (of water, rain). — hewrilɛ dekɛɛilji, dɛɛilji, dɛɛilji the rain will wet thee, him, them. hewrilɛ dɛɛilimi, dekɛɛilimi, dimɛɛilimi the rain wet me, thee, us. gɛkɛr .ɛhɛrɛ don't wet yourself. (Tr. of d°-.ɛilɛɛ. Cp. also, however, dɛlɛɛ & °-.ɛlɛɛ). 000

dɛɛin pl. dɛɛin.ɛɛts bf girl, lass, woman (unmarried and till 1 year after marriage), "the bride" at time of wedding. — jɛt dɛɛin a little girl. gɛrɛɛ dɛɛin marriageable girl. 585

Gen. dɛɛ'ɛɛns. 302.14.
Dat. dɛɛɛnɛɛr. 304.2.
Abl. dɛɛinɛɛtɛɛn. 304.1. dɛɛinɛɛtɛɛ. 344.13.
Pl. dɛɛin'ɛɛts. 304.15, 316.12. mɛkɛrɛɛn dɛɛin girl who accompanies bride for the first day after her marriage. 304.2. Cp. 28.19, 268.6, 292.3.

d°-.ɛɛkɛr.ŋɛɛ v. drɛkɛr.ŋɛɛ. 000

d°-.ɛɛkɛrtɛɛ v.i. to make rain, or pour, down. (Cp. °-.ɛɛkɛrtɛɛ, 4).

d°-.ɛɛkɛf.ɛɛ d°-.ɛɛkɛf- to stop, prevent, hold up, block, impede. — ɛhrɛkɛf don't prevent him. drɛkɛfimi, drɛkɛfɛɛi he prevented, has prevented, him. gɛtɛl dɛɛ ditto Xɛrɛɛ Batɛlɛ drɛŋɛf.ɛɛ excavating the water-channel and bringing it along he had stopped it at the Kh. B. 382.12. (Tr. of d°-kɛf.ɛɛ).

d°-.ɛɛhɛr.ɛɛ d°-.ɛɛhɛr- to decrease, reduce, deduct. — drɛhɛr.ɛɛ, drɛhɛr.ɛɛ. (Ca. and Tr. of d°-khɛr.ɛɛ).

°-.ɛɛlɛŋ.ɛɛ d°-.ɛɛlɛŋ-, Impv. d°-.ɛɛlɛ, Pps. d°-.ɛɛlɛɛ. To make descend, lower, let down, put down, set down, pull down, H. ɛɛɛɛɛɛ. — dɛkɛrɛɛlɛŋ.ɛɛ, I'll make you get down, I'll set you down. dreskumi he made me get down, set me down. ha.a diśeur dreskumi the horse made him get down in a pleasant place. 6.8. hawimas le gafe loti. dreskumas. drekoyasar ... ensimi when they look they see that he is up (in the tree). They make him get down. When they had made him get down he said ... 264.4. ḍapik le tail xima so ... dreksf let her lower bread and water down through the smoke-hole. 52.1. dreksm wilgi the let-down cord. 52.1. gutas ḍiṭtum dreksa putting down the corpse from the bier. 210.13. (gutas) ... masowar dreksuti ... dreksm he lowers the body into the grave ... having lowered it ... 210.14. alam dreksa lower, strike, the flag. Cp. 84.13, 92.5. (Cs. of dearksa).

°.sam.sa.sa d°.samsi to give birth to, bear, create. — pura ortu wagu dream.sam hawa his wife had given birth to twin sons. 110.14. ja dekoram.sma hoiyam I had given birth to you. he wap gone dream.sas hawa? what! has my mother borne me for you? 258.3. pfopot.sa dream.sormer you have given birth to a bastard. 268.9. d°.sam.sa.sa "to give birth to" appears to be used chiefly of human beings, but I was given the forms dreamsimi and dreamihi and there is hawa nakafy ortu dream.simi the cow has calved and given birth to twins. 254.1.

To make, fashion, remake (what has been broken), complete. — jimak yuto durro dream.sa.sar (or, pura ekasar) kakid ofi try to complete this work tomorrow. Cp. 162.6, 166.12–14, 172.23, 174.5, 176.24.

116a

○○○ (Ca. of d°-m.ɪm.ɪs which is doubtless derived from m.ɪnɪv to be, become. A statement of a birth is usually so phrased that d°-m.ɪn.ɪs can be used and not d°-ɪnm.ɪn.ɪs)

d°-.ɪnm.ɪŋ.ɪs d°-.ɪnm.ɪ-, Pps. d°-.ɪnm.ɪŋ. To reconcile, bring together, make agree. — dimɪrum.ɪŋum.ɪn they reconciled us (with each other). drum.ɪŋum.ɪn they reconciled them with each other. jɪt gum ki ɪrɪn bɪrɪ yɪr ɪnm ɪdɪ bɪr jɪn.ɪn ɪn drum.ɪŋ pɪr ɪnmɪ . . . the old woman too, making her words agree with what the man had said to it, said to the bear . . . 230.4. kaiyɪki kaiyɪ d'rum.ɪŋ.ɪm I suited the (quantity of) salt to the soup, i.e. I put in the amount of salt it required. (Ca. of d°-mɪŋ.ɪs).

1. d°-.ɪnmil.ɪs, d°-.ɪnmilj- to render impure.

(Only recorded in the form drum'i.ɪs). 1st. sg. Fut. drumilj.ɪm, Pret. drumil.ɪm. — gɪtɪŋ drumilɪ kaiy.ɪm I had rendered (the Peri's) clothes impure. 18.5. (Ca. of d°-mil.ɪs. The Pres. Base drumilɪ- given in § 220 is not corroborated).

2. d°-.ɪnmil.ɪs, d°-.ɪnmilj- to placate. H. rɪrɪ kɪrɪn. (Cp. °-.ɪnmil.ɪs).

d.ɪnmɪzɪ pl. d.ɪnmɪz.ɪŋ y glove. (Cp. Sh. GB. d.ɪnmɪzɪ). Prs.

d°-.ɪnpap'.ɪl.ɪs, d°-.ɪnp.ɪp.ɪlj- to carry away, whirl away (thro' the air). — tɪdɪ drupɪp.ɪlimɪ the wind carried it (him) away. ɪbɪtɪn drupɪp.ɪli bɪrɪn (the horse) had carried him off thro' the air. 10.1.

(Denominative based on b.ɪbal').

[°-.ɪnp.ɪ.ɪs d°-.ɪnp.ɪ-, Impv. d°-.ɪnp.ɪs, to protect, save, rescue. — ji d.ɪnp.ɪs! protect me! gukɪr drupɪs! take care of yourself! look out! ja dzepmanem 000 gane in order to save me. 44.16. dokrepatam I'll save you. dzrepashini he will save us.

(Probably a Ca. of *d*ᵊ-ranan, *d*ᵊ-ranan to remain, survive etc., in association with which it occurs, v. 44.18 & 20. Cp. § 304).

*d*ᵊ-repirenen, *d*ᵊ-repirai, Impr. *d*ᵊ-repiren, to fill to the brim, to fill full. — d'erepiren, pa Xoder! fill me full O God! (i.e. satisfy me with food, or blessing?) 222.5. drepirelyam I shall fill it full. drepirenem I filled it full. (Ca. of dibirenen. Cp. also bir).

*d*ᵊ-reqafen, *d*ᵊ-reqafi.

1. To choose, select. — ritu ker reqafem d'reqafam I shall choose (men) from among them. gatetanem d'reqafam I chose one of them. dok'reqafam I (have) selected you. d'reqafem kevi selected men.
2. To sort out, clear up, clean (grain). — rupiru elem pagkafi dreqafi sort out the small change from the money. gele pafelo d'reqafi clean this grain.
3. To ascertain the facts of a case, investigate a matter, to examine and decide a case. — ta kowdine dreqafen gane two thrugder are going to his palace with a view to investigating the matter the most morning. 42.22. ja gane dorenqafi determine my guilt (or innocence) for me. ew dreqafen ang he you are the person to settle (the case) for me.

(Tra. of dereqafen).

dasta, pl. dastaq grip, hilt. — yatenqa dasta grip of a sword. Tra.

*d*ᵊ*-ostɛ.ŋ.ɛ*, (occasionally *d*ᵊ*-ostɛ.ŋ.ɛ*), *d*ᵊ*-ostɛ.ɛ*-, *d*ᵊ*-ostɛ*. ooo

1. To prop up, support, stay. — bɛw.ɛn ditɛm ɛf.ɛyɛ.ŋɛ (i) d'ɛstɛ.yɛmi bringing a boulder he propped it up on, or with, his stick. 158.26. kɛw jɛ dɛwɛyɛ.ɛfɛ dɛstɛ.yɛ Is I have propped up this (boulder) on my stick. 160.2.

   Then follow:

   dɛstɛ.yɛ bɛ and dɛstɛ.yɛ ɛ dɛstɛ.yɛ.

2. To protect from, deliver from, uphold; to hold up (an enemy), withstand.

3. To assist a person (who is getting into difficulties), to support, reinforce (troops), to fix (a stone securely in a dry stone wall).

*d*ᵊ*-ostɛ.ɛ.wɛ.ɛ* v. dɛstɛ.ɛ.wɛ.ɛ.

*d*ᵊ*-ostɛ.ɛ.ɛ*, *d*ᵊ*-ostɛ.ɛ.ɛ*, Impv. & Pps. *d*ᵊ*-ostɛ.ɛ*, v.i. to awaken, wake up, rouse. — jɛ mɛrɛ ɛn dɛstɛ.ɛ.ɛ.ɛm I shall waken him now. jɛ mɛrɛ ɛn dɛkɛstɛ.ɛ.ɛ.ɛm I shall waken you now. ɛn dɛstɛ.ɛ.ɛm, dɛwɛstɛ.ɛ.ɛ.ɛm I wakened him, her. jɛ ɛ.ɛstɛ.ɛ, mɛ ɛtɛmɛstɛ.ɛ don't waken me, us. ɛtɛstɛ.ɛ, ɛtɛstɛ.ɛ don't waken him, them. ɛtɛlɛk dɛstɛ.ɛ wakening both of them. 40.21. ɛn mɛrɛkɛn dɛstɛ.ɛimi he wakened her sisters. 118.7—9.

   (Cp. of *d*ᵊ*-ɛ.ɛ.ɛ*, from which it seems probable that the second ɛ is intrusive).

dɛstɛr -ig y custom, practice, habit, rule. — qɛdɛm ɛɛmɛrɛtɛm dɛstɛr bɛlɛ it is the custom from ancient times. 208.1. kɛrɛ.ɛtɛ dɛstɛr.ɛfɛ according to the "aberiat" custom, law. 310.6. Cp. 306.17, 338.2. Dre.

117 b

A [See corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 542 - Analyst]

000 d-.ssuljaiy.ss, d*-.ssulj.st-*, Impv. d-.ssulja* to fill up (with food or wealth), to satisfy, sate. — dessulja, ya Xodaya! fill me (with food or wealth) O God! 332.4. dessulja, dimessulja satisfy (etc.) him, us. da-ssulj.sm.ss they filled me. jiltsem dessulj.smi he "fed me up", disgusted me, with life. (Cx. of dwljaiy.ss, which is a d-. form from holjai.ss, to mount, fill up (v.i.), swell up).

*d.s

́ikin* pl. d.sےےikire (s) single upright stone.

d-.sےe.ss, d*-.sےs.st-*, Impv. d-.sےa*.

Variants: Past base d-.sےe-, d*-.sےai-, d*-.sےi-*.

Pres. base d-.sےeé-*.

1. To stop, hinder, prevent. — je um dekeé.sےm I'll stop, prevent, you. ow mi dimeé.sm.ss they stopped us. in deےa stop him! u deےa stop, or, prevent them. je at.sےa don't hinder me. u ateےa don't hinder them. miy.sےtsem deےa prevent them from going. gote dwre st.sےtsem deےa prevent him from doing this.
2. To block, dam up (water). — tsil deےey.ss to dam up the water. Cp. detsaiy.ss which occurs in the texts with this meaning. v. 204.6.7, 350.8.
3. To enclose, shut in, surround, hem in. — b.ssi deےe.ss bila the garden is to be enclosed. b.ssi deé.sےsm I'll enclose the garden. m.sےsriq deےam bitsa the graves are enclosed. (ite) m.sےsr itsgawi deé.sm bila the grave is enclosed round about (by a wall). 220.6. yin deےe.sm I shut in the thief (when he was found in the house).

○○○ rtigev t.ši (or, t.storv.ši) dokoréčam we shall surround you, hem you in. (Cx. of dičaiy.ši).

d°-ašq.ltas, d°-ašq.lč-, Ppa. d°-ašq.lt(in).

1. To arrive (at), reach.

The pa. infix usually refers to the subject of the verb.

The principal forms recorded are:

Fut. sg. 1. d.ašq.lčam pl. —
2. dokoriq.lčema —
3. m. dorq.lči dorq.lčem.an.

Pret. sg. 1. d.ašq.ltam pl. —
2. dokoq.ltema —
3. dorq.ltimi dorq.ltum.an.

Perf. 3rd. sg. m. dorq.ltui.i. 128.15.

Ppa. doq.ltin. 132.9. dorq.lt, dorq.ltin. 150.15.

The "point of arrival", when a place, takes the suffix -er, -ter.

When it is a person the suffix -.ši, -.šer, or the postposition °-.ap.ter is used.

Astorrer dokorq.ltema you arrived at Astor. ru jarle dorq.ltimi he reached me. basar dorq.ltum.an. Dorq.lčum.an le . . . they arrived at the halting place. When they arrive. . . . 128.8. Cp. 128.6, 126.2. Brunkaparlomow.ši d.ašq.ltas be . . . han burl.antser d.ašq.ltas be I am just going to come to B. k. d. . . . I am just going to come to a spring. 128.18. ep.ater dorq.ltum.an. Dorq.lt . . . they came up to (the calf). Having come up . . . 134.14. mato Šakri Burno mop.ater d.ašq.ltam I have reached Sh. B. 30.7. Cp. 150.15.

2. + °-lji-, i-lji, iljem and ablative: to overtake, come up with. — a-lji dokorq.lčema you will overtake me. u jartum iljem doq.ltum.an they overtook me. mamatsum iljum dəšqaltam I shall overtake you. wutsum ivji dəšqaltam I overtook them.

2. Frequently used absolutely: to arrive. — tsat mano, dəšqaltam wait! I have arrived. 144.9. ja gots xat tape dərəqalti.a tape ju if this letter of mine arrives at night, come (that) night. 94.1.
4. To arrive at puberty. — aya, ja mwto dəšqaltam, ja mema.an hir.anw yuwya.as manij Father, I have now come of age, I should be given to some man (as wife). EOL.
5. With the Pa. Infix referring to an object the meaning is: to overtake. — itsi soltan dərəqaltər anw manumo pursuing him, she came near to overtaking him. 204,10. A.K. utsi tsmi. Dərəqaltər tsi.anw manimi B.K. pursued them. He was near to overtaking them. . . . 144.8.

dat.aywr, dat.aywr, tat'aywr y fever. — uma dat.aywr di bila? "has your fever come?" i.e. have you got fever? zanzan dat.aywr jučila fever with shivering comes (on me you, him etc.). ja tat'aywr jučila, di bila, di bilam I have, have had, had hill, fever.

(The forms tat'aywr, tatawr are by some said to be vulgar).

d-.atanas* to make straight, straighten. — dərtsanas, dərtsanas. (Ca. of dats.anas, based on ts.han, straight).

d-.atas d*-.ato*, Impv. d-.ato*. The vowels of the pronoun infixes are always long and are very often diphthongised. So: dava-, doko-, dvv-, dumow-; —, —, dow-.

1. To cause to bring, make fetch. — Pastus 'oyum d'ustum P. had made me take it and bring it. 138.8. ówa yonsi . . . tsil dumotsi (dumotum) he is, he was, making the queen fetch water. 20.8. Lagu Brumo tsil dumotsimi he made L. B. fetch water. 176.17. in je ustu dustimi (or, -stimi) he made me bring it on my mind, i.e. he reminded me. dum dostimi it made him fetch his breath. 132.24.

2. The Causative of idioms in which dotum, dosuyus are used to express the experiencing of a sensation or the entering into a condition.

a. (-more dosuyus to become angry, annoyed). — omore ostus don't annoy me, don't worry me. uyu in hoto imore dotu why do you worry him? je imore dotu lo I am worrying him.

b. (hivi ditus N. v.i. to boil). — hivi dostus to make it boil, v.t. to boil it.

c. (mazu dosuyus to experience a pleasant taste?) — hoi mazu dostimi (the food) made him experience a very pleasant taste, i.e. gave him pleasure. 138.5. mazu dustum it had given me pleasure (said of food, or when a scoundrel or an enemy is beaten etc.).

d. (dag dosuyus to go to sleep). — N. dag domotsu put her to sleep.

e. N. -us d*-ustus* to encourage (make take heart). — as dostu, gire dokotum, gore dokotum.

3. The form dotum, dostus is used with the meaning to send (a thing or an animal by human instrumentality).

000 The operation is regarded from the point of view of the destination in which it differs from the analogous ɔtsuy.ɛs.

The meaning has apparently developed from "to make them bring s.t.", "to make people bring s.t.". The interest has become centred on the object conveyed and the plural pronoun infix has become stereotyped for the conveyor, irrespective of number and identity. Cp. § 244. — padśa mirbarni gur dɔdi the King will send you a present. 168.11. gulu γєw.ŋ gurgɔrɔ gur dɔdusi.i your husband has sent you this gold (by me). 56.27. Cp. 58.7. hɛγur gur dɔdusi.i he has sent you the horse (by us). 76.13,22. ɔwɔtsum ke ŋgwrm.ɛn dɔtsumɔ you have sent me a bigger one than it. 76.24. gum . . . d'ɔtsu.in send this (to me here). dɔtsum.ɛn γurm.ɛn they sent it and gave it to him. 166.12.

It is possible that dɔutsɛs may be used in a similar sense, amounting to "to send". I have recorded:
hɛγur dɔutsu send the horse.
hɛγur ɔtsutsu don't send the horse.
But some context would be required to show that the conception was "send" rather than "make him bring". (*d*ᵊ*-ɔtsɛs* supplies the Causative of both *d*ᵊ*-tsɛs* and dɔutsɛs, v. § 241).

*d*ᵊ*-ɔtsuiγ.ɛs* v. dɔtsuiγ.ɛs.

dɔtsh'ɛ́i -mɔtɔ hm witness, fl. gw'ɔrd, 'ɔrkɔd. — dɔtsɔri bɔiɔ he is the witness. dɔtsɔri ɔrɔtɔ bɔiγ.ɔm I had appointed him witness.

*d*ᵊ*-ɔtsi.ɛs*. *d*ᵊ*-ɔtsiɔ*, Impv. *d*ᵊ*-ɔtɔ*, Ppa. *d*ᵊ*-ɔtsin*.

1. To pull in, pull up, (belt, horse etc.).

000 2. To squeeze, pinch (of tight coat, boots etc.). — detsi.as, dimetsi.as to squeeze him, us. dukotsiči it will squeeze you. dastsimi, dukotsimi, devtsimi it squeezed me, you, him. dayuv gape dukotsin akil jočig manilku the raw hide having squeezed, compressed, you (your feet) have become small like this. 158.1. dotsin v. a.v. (Cp. °-atsi.as).

d°.atsir.as, d°.atsirč. Impv. d°.atsiri. Ppa. d°.atsirin to cook (general), to bake (bricks). — tigan detsiri cook the egg. tigaiyo dotsiri cook the eggs. detsirum diščik baked (burnt) brick. dotsirum diščik baked bricks. be ha.a ta.arm dotsirčai.i what excellent food he is cooking! 124.11. hau yatia.an wali ham dotsirčer they had put on a (goat's, sheep's) head in order to cook it. 232.2. imtsu., im.afs, or ine iri-ytam, dotsiri cook it by him, i.e. have it cooked by him, make him cook it. EOL. Cp. 69.12, 72.13, 74.4, 300.84, 318.12. Cp. diri.as v.i. to cook. Perhaps: d°.atsir.as ← d°.atsir.as ← d°.as-diri.as).

d.atu y autumn. — d.atu divmi autumn has come. d.atu dwvimi autumn has passed, ended. d.atu y.mi autumn has set in. d.atu goru.a in autumn and spring. 348.8. her d.atwor every autumn. 336.1, 344.6.

d.atukuv y autumn season. — d.atukuv walimi (halimi?) autumn has begun.

d.atumo, d.atumo.

1. Pertaining to autumn (Sept., Oct., Nov.). — d.atumo (kyem) autumn time.
2. In autumn. — d.atumo tha salo ... dukem in autumn they bring 100 moulds of salt. 274.10. Cp. 334.7.

d-ʌ.ʌrwʃʌ* d-ʌ.ʌrwē-* to have one's heart attached to, to be fond of, be enamoured of, to like, H. dil lagiowa. ○○○

The pn. infix refers to the subject. After the negative prefix the Pn. Infixes -u'ko-, -u'mo- and -iu'o- are reduced to -uku-, -umu- and -imi-. — Giltolo dauʌrwēs ba (or, dawrwēs ba) I like Gilgit, I am attached to G. Giltolo ʌtauʌrwēs ba (or, ʌtawr-) I don't like Gilgit. Giltolo dokorwēs? do you like G.? dawrwēsi.i he likes it. ʌtawrwēs bo she doesn't like it. dauʌrwēsʌw they like (it). ʌtawrwēsʌw they don't like (it). Pawʌ.s kārs Š.B.B. Thʌm dywwsimi, ʌt'ʌwrwēsimi Š.B.B. Thʌm remained in P.'s house, (but) he did not like it. 212.2. bart d'ʌpwrwēsʌn Pʌqēw.s tʌmaks nirtrin on seeing the spectacle of P. they became greatly enamoured of him (dil lagiya). 116.14. IUB dauʌrwēsʌn mainī = H. dil laga horga.

(A derivative from kārwʃʌs).

d-ʌwʌrʌnʌs*[1] d-ʌwʌrwī-* to require, be in need of.

d.ʌwʌrī x inkstand, inkpot. Ar. Prs.

d-ʌwʌlʌs, d*-ʌwʌlj-* to make fly (away), blow away. — tirlo kʌrʌʃig ʌpʌw dewʌlji the wind will blow all the papers away. EOL. tirī ʌpiw; belʌfi dewʌlimi there was no wind, how would it blow them away? EOL. (Cs. of duwʌlʌs to fly).

d-ʌwʌltʌs, d*-ʌwʌlē-*, to disgrace, show up, expose (s.o.), to humiliate, IUB H. be- 'ʌzzʌt karwa, 'ʌzzʌt ʌqawa. — dukowʌlēʌm I'll show you up, give you away. IUB. dewʌlēʌm, dewʌltimi, st.pc. dewʌltum.

(A d-ʌ-* form of bar-ltʌs to wash; the meaning being 'o wash out,

121a

[1] [See corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 542-Analyst] wash off, one's good name, dignity, etc.). ○○○ dʌw'ʌni race. — dʌwʌniʌr to -ʌtʌr to gallop in a race. Prs.

d-ʌgelʌr d*-ʌgelj-*, Impv. d-ʌgel*, Ppa. d-ʌgel(in)* to hear (a.t.), to hear.

The Pa. infix refers to the subject. The subject with all tenses is usually the simple form of the nominative.

The following are average forms for the Future and Preterite:

Fut.	Sg.	1.	daiʌlʌm.
		2.	dakveljoma.
		3. mx	dʌʌlji.
		f	damoyelju.
Pret.	Sg.	1.	ji daiʌlʌm.
		2.	dak'oyeloma.
		3. mx	dryelimi.
		f	damoyeloma.
Fut.	Pl.	1.	dimeyeljʌn.
		2.	dʌmayeljomʌn.
		3.	doyeljomʌn. 906.19.
Pret.	Pl.	1.	dimeyelimʌn.
		2.	dʌmayelimʌn.
		3.	doyelimʌn.

hariɣ gʌrʌtʌn iʌr dryeljaiʌ he hears the sound of music and dancing. 365.19. ɣʌf nʌmʌn ʌfeyeljaiʌ being deaf he doesn't hear. ʌmʌ sʌmʌn dʌɣʌ ɣʌlʌf dʌmaiʌljʌm you hear wrongly what he says. 128.12. gʌlʌ dʌɣʌ wʌ d'oyeljʌm. D'oyelin ʌiʌm they hear this speech. Having heard it they go off. 128.12. ʌahʌr daiyela ki (1st sg. pret. short form) if I heard news. 358.15.

Pret. 58.18, 124.18, 176.7, 373.24.
Impf. 29.9.
Perf. 35.11, 58.20. 178.5, 228.16.
Plup. neg. ʌf'ʌiyela baiyʌm. 230.3.
Impv. sg. dakoyel, dakeyʌl. 232.6.
pl. dʌmaiʌlin.

000 ~~d~~ Form.
mene ber ɯŋ ɑtɑrki.ɑlj (see that) you hear no one speaking. 50.15.
More correct forms are dukoyɑlj, negative ɑtɑkiŋ.ɑlj.
ɯŋ ber mɑn ɑtoyɑlj.ɑn let none hear you speak! 50.15, v. § 321.5.
Pps. 3rd. sg. m. doyɑl, doyel, doyelin, doyɑlin. 4.9, 370.4. 374.
3rd. sg. f. dumoyel. 34.15.
3rd. pl. doyel, doyelin. 196.24, [180.1.
Ss. Pc. Passive.
daiyelow (daiyelɑmɑ) ɑ.ɑyu the thing heard by me. dukoyelow ɑ.ɑyu the thing heard by you. doyelow ɑ.ɑyu the thing heard by him.

d.ɑŋ -ɑnts, -oŋo, N. daiy -oŋo stout, robust, fat. (Cp. Sh. dai, fat on top of soup, & dau, fat meat).

d.ɑŋ'u, daiŋu, measuring. IUB II. moŋ, paimoŋ. — kɑfɑn d.ɑŋ'u nɑtɑn measuring the shroud. 310.4.

dai.ɑcin ba v. d°-yaiy.ɑn.

daiy.ɑn, dai.ɑć- to fade (of a flower). — dai.ɑći, dai.ɑmi it will fade, is faded.

ɟawfo, ɟawfaw y name of a kind of food, kind of gruel, Pra. ɑrd. — daudo ɑć.ɑn I shall make "daudo". xɑmɑlitin daudo "daudo" made with "xɑmɑli". lazin ɟawfo "ɟawfo with stripe of dough in it". brɑse daudo ɑiw "daudo". korwto daudo "daudo" made with "korwt". 333.9. daudo ov dosw'ɑrw they bring "daudo" for them. 312.19. (Cp. Sh. ɟawfo, Khn. ɟawfaw).

daw.o, daw.u, N. dɑw, pl. dɑw.ɑnts, daw.ɑmots. x griddle (for cooking flaps of bread on). H. tawa. — ffolɑwo gɑntɑ daw.u w.ɑćɑw on such and such a day we shall "put on" the griddle (part of the marriage ceremoney). 208.13, 209.8. namali dauife bil.mer when she has put the "namali" on the griddle. 208.8. kan dawan a griddle. 208.3. (Cp. Sh. tawi).

*d*ᵐ*-caqarsa, d*ᵐ*-daqaré* v.i. to spread out, to be extended, to open (v.i.). H. phailna, phailjerna.

Only recorded in the following forms given by IUB.

daihaqarsa, daihaqarirbem, daihaqarimi, daihaqarem. (Cp daiakar. A denominative based on jaqar the correct form of jakar).

dwqyarsa, dwqyaré v.i. to bend, bend down (with sg. obj.).

(From a verb *d*ᵐ*-aqyarsa*.[1] Cp. the corresponding latex dwqyarsa).

dagami N. cooked (of fruit). — ondagami uncooked (of fruit).

(Ought probably to be "ripe" and "unripe" and is probably the 3rd. sg. pret. of *d*ᵐ*-yamsa, diyamsa* to ripen).

The g is marked as peculiar which is frequently the case in the Magir records where in Ha. I have y.)

dri(y)sa, dristara v. *d*ᵐ*-ariyasa*.

drami.sa, dramit, Imp. drami, Fpa. dramin.

1. To collect, accumulate, acquire. H. sanchaina, kamana.

Fut. 1st. sg. dramit.am.

Pret. 1st. sg. drami.am.

kat drami kaiá he has accumulated much (property). gaka gaw mainyat nalan drami ka? have you acquired this wheat by (your own) labour. 58,31. dramin mankife zarab ainai having collected it in the end he spoilt it.

2. To collect and store (crops, fruit). — drami.sa kkan the time for gathering fruit (for preserving it).

(From a verb *d*ᵐ*-ami.sa*).

122 b

[1] [See corrigenda et addenda category 116, p. 542 - Analyst]

dewrʌs, dewré, Impv. dewr, to knock down, pull down. — ja ʌs dyurin knocking down my house. 170.2. dewrʌm, dewrʌm, dyurin I shall knock down, I knocked down, knock ye down!

(Probably a Ca. corresponding to 2. dewʌs to fall down).

detʌqur opening out, extending. — detʌkur wrinkup the opʌn of the four fingers when extended laterally.

(Fpa. of d-ʌtʌqurʌs*. Cp. detʌn unrinkup).

ferk, ferk, -ets, N. -rko. x. metal cooking pot. (Cp. Sh. ferk). Fra. H.

f'rkurʌm -iq, y small garden.

del y.

1. Oil. — ferʌ del kerosene oil. Kanis del oil made from apricot kernels. 288.2. hirw del oil made from animal fat. malʌlo del oil extracted from butter. 190.21. ivʌ dʌnʌwʌ del durkilow oil used to come out of that stone. 290.2. Cp. 290.10 272.3, 290.5.

2. Contents of an egg. — hwkurwdu tiqʌ'ʌkilow burwʌ del white of (hen's) egg. tiqʌnolow ʌwʌrk del yolk of an egg. H. (ferk).

*-delʌs, *-delʌʌs, *-delj
delʌs, delʌʌs, delj } Impv. delʌ.

Fpa. { u*-delʌ(m).
widelʌ(m).

i. The form with pa.pf. seems chiefly to be used when the Direct Object is a human being. Only this form can be used with the Negative prefix.

Where the object is 3rd. sg. hm or x, or sg. or pl. y the pa.pf. does not usually appear.

It will be remembered that in such cases delas is the appropriate form of d°-alas and though this verb has become generalised to delas it is still no doubt felt to be adequate in its legitimate place. 000

The constant Ppa. prefix of delas appears to be ni- which cannot be distinguished from that of i + delas.

ii. The vowel of the base e tends to become i, ɪ when unaccented.

iii. The form of the verb with the past base deli- occurs invariably in the impv. sg. and sporadically in the Infin. and in parts of past tenses.

The present base is always delj-.

1. To beat, strike, smite, hit, shoot.

The instrument used occurs variously in the general oblique form, with the suffix -ats, with the suffixes -ak and -rski.

The spot, or particular part of the thing hit is expressed in the locative, i.e. with the suffix -ato, or where the blow is a descending one the postposition ra is employed.

°-delas, °-deliias.

besans ra adeljo? Gow tras nuko gideljo ba. On what part are you going to hit me? Cleaving your heart in two I am going to strike you. 148.12. ja idelam I beat him. ins ardiljan we shall not hit him. 280.8, modelimi. Numardilin . . . he beat her. Having beaten her . . . 114.7. mi bese midelja? why do you beat us? 264.10. nimsa nardilin tag ortan going and beating them let us smash them in pieces. 248.6. adelima you have hit me. 148.18. adilimas ‖ adilumas they have hit me (with arrow). 146.19. Cp. 148.14.

delas.

000 gose pfot mi . . . deljam we are going to beat this Div. 176.6. hai.an delam I hit the mark. čama . . . delimi he hit the broo' 164.17. ime khate yurtisolo delj.am I shall hit (with my arrow) the leg of his bed. 260.8. tik pfetige delomam they pelted him with earth and ashes. 284.23. jamek deli shoot him with (your) bow. 146.10. huntsafe delimi he hit him with (his) arrow. 146.11. hik dam da tikte delimi then all of a sudden he struck him (i.e. flung him) on the ground. 174.17. Š. G.e delom čumore girli the iron peg knocked in by Sh. G. 196.13. Cp. 64.13, 148.5. 338.2.

deli.as.

'a in deli.am I beat him. ja ime pfute han imenolo tobaqafe deli.a ba I have hit with my gun one of the Div's teeth. 292.11.

2. To kill, slay. It is not always possible to say whether the meaning is 1 or 2.

-delas.

ma hime ke edilam (i.e. a + idelam) none of you have killed it (the Golden Calf). 136.3,7. edilyma? haven't you killed it? 136.11. menen ke edilaii. 138.27.

delas.

ja deljam I shall kill (the calf). 136.10. umene deljuman ke whether any of them will kill it. 120.27. ašder ja dela ba I have killed the monster. 284.9. kin mene keli delj ayermaimas no one (pl.) will be able to kill him. 110.11. ime ašder delom ima hir the man who had 000 slain the monster. 284.8. dʌ ʌldər dəlʊmɪ ĉʌɣa ʊr ɪtʊmʌn then they told them of the slaying of the monster. 284.3. Cp. 172.12, 124.2, 134.19. (dəlin) 292.7.

dəli.ʌs.

kʊs tʊmʌnɪ dəli bʊi.i someone else has killed it (the calf). 136.3,7. ʌxənə pfʊt mɑ dəli bʌm kɪ . . . if you (pl.) had killed the Div. 292.10. Cp. 138.5. (Cp. dᵊ-ʌlʌs and dəlʌs).

3. To cut down.

dəlʌs, dəli.ʌs.

ɪtɪ tɪli gʌmʊntsʊm dəlin cut down that walnut tree from the roots. 200.4. ɪtɪ gʌl . . . dəlimi he cut down the juniper. 214.6. mi gʌl bəsɪ dəli baʔ why have you cut down our juniper. 216.1.

4. To bite, sting.

ɪrkərɪ ʌdəlimi the wasp stung me.

5. To put in (on), apply, affix.

dəlʌs, dəli.ʌs.

gʊtɪ bɑɪlk bɑɪltɪ dəli fix this plank to the wall. hʌn bʌsi.ɪntɪ qʊlf dəlʊm bim on (the gate of) one garden there was a padlock fixed. 16.11. bʌʃtɪ rʌŋ dəli.ʌs to apply colour to the skin, i.e. to dye it. bʌʃtɪ rʌŋ dəlʊm bilɑ the skin is dyed. iscɪtɪ tʊri.ʌŋ . . . dəli bɑm they have fixed up, put up, horns on it (the boulder). 290.8. (biškɪ) k.:ɑntsʊr dəlimʌn they put (the hair) in bags. 134.15. ʌlʌmičiŋ ɪ idrlin putting up flags. 206.16.

Here may be mentioned:

ɪnɪ bʌŋʊt dəlim padša ka jʌŋ ɪćʌm I shall fight with the King who has made breastworks. 32.2.

6. To sprinkle (i.e. to strike or throw s.t. on s.t.). — dʌsin dʌɣoʷwʌŋ modeljai.i he sprinkles the girl with flour. 298.9. dau dʌɣoʷʌŋ ʷidilin sprinkling the griddle with flour. 306.13. ooo

7. In Compound Verbal Expressions, v. § 266.2.

a. In combination with words denoting some form of physical activity, forming Intransitives.
hʌl nidilin leaping. 150.1,7.
prik delimi je jumped. 132.22.
čup delimi he jumped down. 174.16.
tʌm delʌs to bathe. 172.3.

b. With the simple forms of words denoting instruments, forming Transitives. hʌɣor tor delimi he whipped up the horse. 146.17. iss burnulo . . . gili mudelimi he pegged her down (secured her with a peg) in that boulder. 194.1. Cp. 194.4,5, 200.11.

This phrase was also recorded with modelimi as from *-ʌdilʌs, 194.7,13,14. As however, the accent is on -del- the -o- is probably only a variant of -u-, -o-.

I have taken -ʌk, -k in jʌmsk to be an instrumental suffix (v. section 1. above). On the same principle, tiškʌk mudelʌm he stabbed her with a dagger. 198.10. torʌk delimi gave (the horse) a cut with the whip. 150.12, are not to be regarded as compounds.

So also probably: dʌprski d. & tobʌqrski d.
Bula delʌs, to play polo, is ambiguous as in Bu. bula seems to mean the ball and in Shina the polo-stick. V. 328.14, 330.8,9. (Cp. dᵊ-ʌlʌs, dᵊlʌs, dᵊli.ʌs). 000 dᵊlgus pl. dᵊlg.ʌs, dᵊlgoyʌnts oil-bottle (small pumpkin holding about 2 lbs. of oil, used for holding apricot-kernel oil, a woman's cosmetic). 308.2. (Cp. Sh. tilgus). 415 ᵊrmiyʌs, dᵊrmiyʌs, (also dᵊrmi.ʌs) dᵊrmić- Impv. d'ᵊrmi, Ppa. dᵊrmin v.t. to spill, pour out, empty out, throw out (water, wine, oil, milk), to bale out, ladle out (water, grain). — filta yf'stiŋ tsilᵊr nʌkin ulʌćᵊr d'ᵊrmićʌn putting the ashes of the wick into water they pour them (water and ashes) out in the "ulʌći", 314.4. tsil uyᵊn γᵊlkulum d'ᵊrmimʌn they baled the water out of tank. 262.19. tsil dᵊrmiᵊn gus γʌlʌγp eti throwing out the water, wipe this (vessel). EOL. (Cs. of dimiyʌs. Also recorded as dᵊrmiγʌs. Apparently not connected with dᵊrmi.ʌs). 000 den, pl. denig, dᵊnmiq, y.

Na. has deni for the sg., and possibly also for the pl. He has also a genitive or adjectival form denuᵊm, denym. There is also an oblique form denmo.

Year.

1. For "this year", "last year", "next year" etc., v. § 412. b.
2. With Numerals the singular form is often used instead of the plural. The numerals are in the z forms.
3. The uninflected form of the noun can denote either the period of a particular year or of a series of years:
   tʌmini yᵊr den ki bim last year and the year before that it was (still) there. 214.12. berumʌn denig

000 akɨlaʃɨ bust dʌmijaʷ oʷtimi for a number of years he had put them to great trouble in this way. 276.6. Cp. 280.6.

4. Passage of time, or time that has lapsed is indicated by the verb mʌnaʷ which may provide the equivalent of the English idiom with "ago":
hik den manimi a year has passed, a year ago. toʷrimi den(iŋ) mʌnimi ten years ago. aʷlto den maimi in jaʷlɨ bai it is, will be, two years he is with me i.e. he has been, will have been, with me for two years. gutɨ dustsʌkər (or, dustsʌkɨ) toʷrimi den maimi, or, manimi this thing will be, or is, 10 years old. Nz. kiʷnɨ hilesɨ berum deni manimi? how old is this boy?
The independent passage of time can also be expressed by niyʌs: beʌʷrumʌn denig nimi some years passed. 86.19.

5. The values of the various case-suffixes and postpositions in temporal connections are illustrated in the Grammar. A few examples will suffice here:
hɨk denɨ . . . diʷmi one year he came. 210.4. Cp. 242.19. yʌʃ denər . . . mundaʷg imʌnimi next year he had become (lit. became) big. 242.19. toʷrimi dentsum akoʷlɨ baiɨ he is here since ten years i.e. he has been here for ten years. aʷlto iʷski denigtsum after 2 or 3 years. 244.3. Cp. 244.24. berum denʌntsum after some years. 264.8. berumʌn denigtsum iʷlji after some years, some years later. 296.4, 258.6. berumʌn denigtsum iʷljum

000 after some years, some years later. 240.11. dentsum den, dʷnmo den year by year, yearly. 242.3, akuʷum deniguło je uʷṇ xrdmʌt ɛčɑ bɑ through the course of so many years, for so many years. I am doing (i.e. I have been doing) you service. 374.8. Cp. 370.7. torimi denolo in 10 years. Cp. 210.3. beʷumʌn denin̥ xɑ (or xɑʷin̥ər) up to, for some years. 192.6, 196.4. hɪk den, aʷlto denmin̥, iʷski den hɔrænolo in the course of one year, two years, three years.

6. Nz. ku.iʷnmo denum pfʌmol this year's fruit. Nz. hik denum bap one year's tax. Nz. denin̥ər di bai.i he has reached puberty (15 years), or has reached old age.

denkus years-of-age. — Nz. kinɛ hiles berum denkuse bai.i of how many years of age is this boy?

In all other examples it appears to be used adjectivally: turmatɛrndi denkus mʌnuwai.a? has he become 15 years of age? (attained puberty). berum denkus ba? how old are you? berum denkus me.imo? how old will she be? kinɛ hiles torimi denkus bai.i this boy is 10 years of age. gusɛ hʌɣur torimi denkus bi this horse is ten years old. hik, aʷlti, tsindi, denkus birʌɣo a one-, two-, five-year-old colt. hik, aʷlto, iʷski, waʷlto denkus tsiər a one-, two-, three-, four-year-old steer.

denum v. den 6.

deʷqulʌnʌs, dequlai-, Impv. deʷqulan to knead (dough), H. gundna. — dʌɣoʷʌʒ dʷskulai.i bo she kneads the flour. 306.7. ɣuski dʷequlʌnumər after kneading the dough. 272.3.

126 b dɛqvqu·yʌs, dɛqvqvč- v.t. to tangle, to cause to become tangled. — dɛqvqvčvma you will tangle (it). dɛqvqu·mi he tangled (it). (d-ʌqvqu·yʌs*. Cs. of doxvqʌs). OOO dɛ·rginʌs, dɛ·rgi- v.t. to spin. — dɛ·rgiyʌm I shall spin (it).

d'ɛ·skərʌyʌs, d'ɛ·skərʌč- v.t. to heat. — tsil dɛskərʌy heat water. deskərʌčʌm, dɛskərʌyʌm I shall heat. I heated (it). tsil d'ɛ·sqʌračʌn they heat water. 310.8.

(If the verb can apply to other than y objects it may be assumed to be only one form of d-ʌskərʌyʌs*. Perhaps based on N. and Werch. gər-um, Hz. gər-u·rum hot).

d'ɛ·skərtsʌs (d'ɛ-ʌskərtsʌs*) to make pour down.

1. dɛ·smʌnʌs v. d-ʌsmʌnʌs*.
2. dɛ·smʌnʌs to cause to coagulate, to "set" milk. — mʌmu dɛsmʌn coagulate the milk.

(Cs. of dumʌnʌs to coagulate, set, take shape, the y-subject form of d-mʌnʌs*).

dɛ·smilʌs v. d-ʌsmilʌs*.

dɛ·stsuyʌs, dɛstu·yʌs; dɛ·stsuč-, dɛstuč-, Impv. dɛ·stsuy, dɛstu·y, Neg. atɛ·stsuy v.t. to melt.

(Hypothetical d-ʌstu·yʌs* Cs. of duyʌs. Regarding -sts- ‖ -st- Cp. d-ʌstsʌlʌs* and d-ʌstsʌyʌs*. The -st- form was recorded from Nagir. Cp. also ɛ·stum implying a transitive form ɛstuyʌs, without the d-* prefix, parallel to duyʌs).

dɛtsʌiyʌs, dɛtsʌč- to stop, dam up (water). — tsil dɛtsʌčər du·sumo she went out to stop the water (from running away). 204.6. ime tsʌk dɛtsʌš xa until she closed the sluice. 204.7. čutʌn tsil detsadʌn they stop, detain, a little of the water. 350.3. ○○○ detsin. — detsin wʌ'ltsup the breadth of the four fingers when pressed together. Cp. deĉʌqor wʌ'ltsup the same with the fingers separated. (detsin is the Ppa. of d-atsi.ʌs*).

d'etsirʌs pl. d'etsirʌšo hm cook. — detsirʌs kole apai.i the cook is not here. detsirʌšo kole man apʌn there are no cooks here.

(Noun Agent form of d-atsirʌs*).

detsirʌm cooked. (St.pc. passive of d-atsirʌs*).

d-γʌnʌs, d*-γai-,* Ppa. d-γʌn.*

1. To be worn out, exhausted, (of man). — dʌγai.ʌm, dʌγʌnʌm I shall be, I became, worn out. dukuγai.ʌma, dukuγai.ima you will be worn out. jamirptsa dukuγʌnʌs Pʌrno Γatowiŋ you are a Γatowiŋ, son of Pʌrno, who wear yourself out for others, i.e. you only work for others, you are an altruist. matsi dʌγʌn dʌγʌn beske atʌγorkʌm wearing myself out on you (your work) I got nothing.
2. To wear out, become old (of cloth), to be exhausted used up (of food). IUB. diγʌnʌs, H. pʌrʌna hʌna. — IUB. diγai bim it was becoming old, H. pʌrʌna hʌrʌha tha. gatu diγʌn the cloth having worn out, having become old, worn. gatu diγʌnimi the cloth wore out. N. diγʌnʌm -rio old.

(Cp. dʌγ'ʌnʌs which in spite of its form is intransitive and is to be regarded as a variant of dʌγʌnʌs, a generalised form of d-γʌnʌs* with y subjects.

000 Is it possible that -ʌsqʌnʌs to kill is derived from the γʌsʌs of d-γʌnʌsʔ).

d*-γʊnʌs, d*-γu.i- (with h and x subjects, duγʊnʌs with y subjects) v.i, to ripen (of fruit, crops), to become mature. IUB. (vowel -u- and -o-) H. pʌkjʌna, tai.ʌr hojʌna, 'umər pʊra hojʌna. — diγu.imi it will ripen. diγuni bi it has ripened. bʌlt (x pl.) duγʊnimi.ʌ the apples ripened. mʌl (y sg.), γʌriŋ (y pl.) duγunimi the wine matured, the grapes ripened. Nz. gave doγonʌs. doγonimi.ʌ they ripened. (x pl.). hərkičiŋ, bošai.i, doγorimi the crops, "land", will ripen. (Cp. N. degoni).

diʌ, diʌ a form of 3rd sg. m. pret. of juʌyʌs.

di.ʌnʌtdʌr, di.ʌnʌtʌr honest, upright, virtuous. — di.ʌnʌtdʌrʌn bai.i he is an upright man. (Ar.) Prs.

di.ʌrtsʌs di.ʌrš- to rain, H. bʌrʌna, bʌrrš hʌna, — hərʌlt di.ʌršila it is raining. (hərʌlt) di.ʌrtsiʌla it has rained. bʌt di.ʌrtsimi it rained heavily: 158.26. hərʌlt di.ʌrtsʌstʌm dʌrš oγoγn diʌlimi all the place has become wet from the falling of the rain. EOL.

IUB. di.ʌršilʌm, di.ʌrtsʌm maimi. (Cp. d*-ʌskərtsʌs. V. § 236. b.).

di.ʌši.ʌs, di.ʌšič- to be released, to be free, unrestrained, H. khʌljʌna, ʌzʌd h. — The meanings of the following examples are open to question. ʌdim di.ʌšimi, di.ʌšiči (the animal) became, will become, randy. modim di.ʌšimi[1] the female came on heat (the mo- must refer to a human being).

dib'irʌnʌs, dib'irai- to become full, be filled full.

128 a

[1] [see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 547. Analyst]

000 (Form of d-birʌnʌs*, Ca. d-ʌspi-ʌnʌs*. Cp. bir).

ḍiḍ'iṇ smooth and bare (of ground). (Cp. Sh. ḍiḍiṇ).

di.ɛyʌs, di.ɛč, Impv. di.e, di.ɛ, neg. ati.a, Ppa. di.en, St.pc. di.em.

V.i. to stand up, rise up, get up.

Frequently re-inforced by dʌl. dʌl di.ɛʌs to stand up, rise and remain standing, H. ʊfhkhʌra homa. qazi di.ɛčai.i astam ɛčər the Qazi rises up to decide the case. 80.13. gotʌs di.ɛči bi. Di.en.... the corpse gets up, sits up. Sitting up ... 312.12. Pʌṇču dʌl di.ɛmi P. stood up. 112.5,10 uɛ d'i.ɛmʌn they got up. 118.7. gučn ba kɛ di.ɛ. Di.ɛ ba kɛ rʌl mʌnɛ if you have lain down, stand up. If you have stood up, prepare yourself. 174.16. hin di.en dunimi ɛka one getting up tackled him. 106.8. Cp. 70.12, 118.2, 338.6, 340.2. hiṇtsɛ dʌldi.ɛm bʌm he was standing at the door. Other parts:

Fut. 1st. sg. di.ɛčʌm.
Pret. 1st. sg. di.ɛ(y)ʌm.
Perf. 1st. sg. dʌl di.ɛya ba.
Impf. 3rd. sg. or pl. di.ɛčʌm.
3rd. sg. neg. dʌl ati.ɛmi.
3rd. sg. m. dʌl di.e bai.i.
Impv. 2nd. pl. dʌl di.ɛin, neg. sg. dʌl ati.a. (Ca. d-ʌ.iyʌs*).

digi.ɛyʌs, digiyaiyʌs, digi.ɛč to fall down. — dorrolo . . . iskičuk bʌy nikin dig'iɛ(y)ʌsər having put 3 čuqs of millet in the hopper, on its (all) having fallen (from the hopper into the mill), i.e. when it has all been ground. 262.4.

Fut. 3rd. sg. (phʌlo) digi.ɛči.
Pret. 3rd. sg. digi.emi.
(A d-* form of giyai.ʌs).

diγanas v. d-γanas*.

diγinas, diγ'i- to run down a steep place (to save trouble), to rush down. 000

Fut. 1st. sg. diγ'iγam.

Pret. 1st. sg. diγinam,

3rd. m. diγinimi, f. diγinumo. umosa ka di'inuman they rushed down in a rage. 248.3. (di- invariable).

dikaṭas dikaš- v.i. to choke; to get caught, entangled, to catch in s.t., H. band hona, fāṭjana (phāṭjana). hunts iγumarulo dik stimi (i.e. dikatimi?) the arrow caught in his bowels. 146.12.

Fut. 3rd. sg. dikaši.

(Form of d-kaṭas*. Cp. dukhaṭas. The -k- and -kh- are corroborated).

dikhiras, dikhirč- to decrease, become less, wane, H. kam hona, ghaṭna. — halants guntsatsum dikirči bi the moon is waning day by day.

IUB. Impf. 3rd. sg. y dikirčilum. dikhirum maimi H. kam huva hoga.

(A form of d-khiras*. Ca. d-askiras*).

dilá N: (it) is (3rd. sg. y subject). Corresponds to Hz. bila.

dilawar brave, courageous. Prs.

dilas, dilj- to become wet, get wet, to be soaked. — hir dilai the man has got wet. hiri dilan, hayor(ilo) dilian, gatuŋ dilitsan the men, horses, clothes, have got wet. dilastum oni.am owing to getting wet I didn't go.

Fut. 3rd. sg diljí, Pret. 3rd. sg. m. dilimi. EOL.

(Curious as apparently duplicating disilas in meaning. It is a d-*form of ilas).

dilk y pl. double pl. -iŋ manure, dung, H. khad, hail. — hunyaskum dilk

129a

goat's dung manure. bu.au.ukum dilk cowdung manure. dilkɛ jʌqər pitchfork for manure. 000

d'iltər -iŋ y buttermilk, H. lassi, Prs. *dur*γ. — diltərə γʌʔ dumi.en the buttermilk has become frothy(?). wa·lto tsundowan d'iltəriŋ nɛtʌn making some 4 or 5 (bowls of?) buttermilk. 324.1. da mʌska kɛ d'iltər nuk'a then taking butter and buttermilk. 324.1.

di·lum damp (of flour, mud, bread). (St.pc. of di·lʌs).

di·lum N. (it) was (y sg. subject). Corresponds to Hz. bilum.

*-ḍim, ḍim, -uts x body, person, self. — inɛ bani.a·dʌmɛ idi·m bi he has a human body. 102.7,9,15. gusɛ dutsʌnum adi·m this straight body of mine. 360.2. ja adi·mulum ru· the soul in my body. 362.6. u·ŋɛ gudim šu.a bi.a? ja adim šu.a bi Are you well in health? I am well. EOL. idi·m the back (of a choga). N. u·ɛ tsundo ayu ud'im kɛ han han (dəroγo) nu·skərts those five sons of mine cutting a stick each per person, or, for themselves. 176.5. ha·lum jʌma·ʌt ud'im kɛ han pfili ečan the people of the house make a piece of bread for each person (of themselves). 320.4. udimʌfɛ a·lto hanikuts učan they give them 2 dishes to each party separately. 340.16. gukɛ γenʌŋ ʌdi·mʌfɛ ečam I shall appropriate this gold for myself. 54.18. Cp. 54.20. adi·m I by myself, I alone; mudim she by herself, she alone. midi·mʌfɛ ba·n we are alone mi-, ma-, u-dimuts.

(Cp. Sh. ḍim, body, person, trunk of tree; Kho. ḍi·m, trunk of tree).

129 b

000 ḍim a loud noise of beating. — yu·tis ḍim stimi, or, ḍimḍim stimi he stamped (his foot in anger). -ndiltsɪ ḍim stʌs* to beat the breast. tom ḍim bʌl'ila the tree has fallen at full length with a loud noise.

di·m st. pc. 3rd. sg. m, x and y of ju·yas.

dime·γurkʌs obtainable (for us). — hʌzaʌr dime·γurkʌs me.ibi perhaps it will be obtainable, perhaps we shall be able to obtain it.

(Infin. form with 1st. pl. pn. infix of d-ʌγurkʌs*).

dim'ilʌs, dim'ilj- to be rendered impure, defiled, H. čhuṭ hona, napak, nʌjɪs. di·miljilum, di·mi·limi.

(Form of d-milʌs*. Cs. d-ʌsmilʌs*. Cp. Sh. dimɪle.i he having been rendered impure).

dimi·yʌs dim'ič- v.i. to spill, be spilt: to fall. — pfʌlo dimičitsa the grain is falling. tsil dimi·čila the water is spilling. tsil, pfʌlo, dimimi the water, grain, was spilt, fell. pfʌlo ku·in dimi·mi this year the grain has increased (?). (Cs. de·miyʌs).

di·n y the faith, the religion. Prs.

di·n, di·nin, Nz. di·ni, 3rd. sg. hm. x y Ppa of ju·yʌs.

dinaʌr (poetical term for) lover, the beloved. 358.15 ff., 362.6. (Prs. di·naʌr, a gold coin, also, "name of a kind of bird, the sun", Steingass). Prs.

d'indiṣ pl. dindirʌŋ, N. -iŋ y rowan tree, mountain ash.

dints.h'i·rʌs, dints.h'i·rč- v.i. to spread out, overflow, H. phailna. — sinda dintsi·rimi the river overflowed.

Fut. 3rd. sg. dints'i·rči.

Perf. 3rd. sg. y dintsirila.

(di- invariable, The aspiration of 000 the ts in this Intrs. vb. is asserted as against the plain ts of the Trs. vb.).

d'ɪntsirʌs v. d'ᵊ-ntsirʌs v.t. to spread out, strew.

This and the preceding intransitive verb, as I got them, were distinguished by the accent. They were not differentiated by IUB in writing.

liŋ 1. Blue, green, ŠY nirʌs, IUB sʌbz.
2. lapis lazuli, H. lajwərd.

diŋ mayun a blue bead, male mallard.

ḍiŋər club, wooden pounder, Bu. ḍʌmo.

dip a wink; dip etʌs to wink. — ine inər ilčin dip etimi he winked his eye at him, he winked to him. Fut. 1st. sg. dip ečʌm.

Cp. Sh. dip thorki, to close the eye, to wink).

1. ḍir, x and y, x pl. -ʌnts (y pl. -miz, Biddulph).

i. x boundary, dividing line, or small irrigation channel, between fields.

ii. y closed frontier; enmity, hostility.

The y form is said to denote a "closed boundary".

mi ke u hərʌŋulo dir bi (or, bila) there is a (closed) boundary between us and them. yərum dir hərʌŋulo bilumulo formerly when there was enmity between them. 354.11. (As between Hunza and Nagir when there was hostility between them). Cp. 116.17. dirʌṭe on the border.

iii. forbidden, prohibited.

ma hartsum be mene ḍir metarna? has anyone forbidden us your house?

(IYB ḍir. Cp. Sh. dɪr).

ḍir -rʌo x over-hanging rock, a slightly sloping field.

130b

3. dir -ło x long, straight juniper stem or pole. — gal dir trunk of young juniper tree, juniper pole (formerly used as roof beams, 4" or 5" in diameter). ɮal dirłu nuyen carrying juniper poles. 256.8. gal dir juuan gumʌna (imʌnai, you have (he has) become like a juniper stick (i.e. dry and roughbarked), emaciated and haggard.

diraʷ v. diri.ʌs.

diraʷco, diraʷco sloping down, downward slope. — diraʷco bila it is a slight slope down.

diram a special kind of flour.

Wheat is damped and placed in a dish and covered over until it begins to sprout. It is then taken out and dried in the sun and ground up.

One part of this "diram dʌyoʷʌn" is taken and mixed with two parts of ordinary flour and made into bread, which is called "diram pfiti'," v. 182.7.

diram is made at two times of the year and a bowl of it is given to a bride by her father's family after the marriage. Cp. 308.2. (Cp. Sh. dirʌm).

ḍiri rolling. — ḍiri mʌnaʷ v.i. to roll. ḍiri ełʌs v.t. to roll. (Cp. Sh. dir thoʷki, to roll).

diri N. cooked, audiri raw.

1. d'iri.ʌs, d'iriċ St. pc. d'irim.
2. dir'aʷ, dir'iċ St. pc. dirum, d'iri.ʌs (in fact d'ᵊ-ri.ʌs) is used with h and x subjects.

dir'aʷ (invariable) with y subjects.

Both mean v.i. to cook, to be come cooked; to ripen (of fruit).

1. Also means: to become experienced (of persons).
2. Also means: to become turned (of milk)

Fut. 3rd. sg. diriči. OOO Pres. 3rd. sg. x d'iriči bi, y diričila.
pl. y diričitsan.
Impf. 3rd. sg. y diričilum.
Pret. 3rd. sg. x d'irimi, y dirimi.
(yatsa) d'iričor tai.ar mani bim (the head) had become on the point of being cooked. 232.3. gose dustakulo iki diričiršan they (y pl.) are cooking in this vessel. EOL. dirum maimi it will have become cooked.

(Cp. *d'iri as, Ca. d-atsiras* with -ts- for -st-, cp. Werch. d-astor*).

diriđal -iq y escape-channel of water passing out from below a mill. — tsile diriđals hole du.asimi the water ejected them by the escape-channel. 206.10.

điru, điro -muts x bullet, little ball. — lsirtsi diru yami the bullet hit the goat (ibex). 102.23. diru.s gal bullet wound. 358.5. milis diro a pill.

(điru IYB. Cp. Sh. dirju, diru, GB. điru).

đis manas to come into contact with to come together, H. milna, skatta hona, Syn. Ru. juk manas. — hanantsi đis manas irtsi čorkowals đerđaltimi he came to the cliffs that clash together against each other, the "Symplegades". 156.3.

disaras, disarč- to be saturated, fully watered, H. sirab hona.
Pres. 3rd. sg. y bufai.i disarčila.
Impf. 3rd. sg. y disarčilum.
Perf. 3rd. sg. y disarila.
St.pc. disarum.

(The verb is in fact d-saras* with Ca. d-asaras*).

d-isas* in: dukurisas, dumurisas, durisas, to take out, etc., you, her, them. V. sv. d-usas.

131 b

[See corrigend et addenda category 116, p. 593 - Analyst]

000 disi·ɪlas, disilj- to become wet, H. tor huma. — burk disi·limi (his) throat became wet, i.e. (his) thirst was satisfied.
(Cp. burk yuryimi (his) throat became dry i.e. (he) became thirsty).
3rd. sg. Fut. disi·lji.
Impf. y disi·ljilum.
Perf. x disi·li li.
disi·lum maimi it will have become wet. IUB.
(The verb is really d-ɪsi·las*, Cp. d-ɪsilas*).

diš -mig y place: room (space). — Diratsil sinas han dišan bila there is a place called Diratsil. 226.1. jar ɪura dišmig ayunumu you have given me good places. 112.14. ma ɢutšo dutsun ja dršulo brse yarr ocur? why do you bring your corpses and bury them in my place? 112.19. api ɪsum dišulo it is not in the place in which he had put it. 166.20. azzmatyarr dišulo in the place of a servant. 20.4. ɪrus dišulo in his place, instead of him. (Cp. bargo). urgir marle dišulo sinda huma guči am I have given you, instead of property, the river-ford. 112.7. tsile basan diš api, bur bila there is no room for water (i.e. water is superabundant), there is much of it. 126.3. ɪrus harle gurr ka maltais basan diš ɪmanumi in his house there was no room for wheat and ghee, i.e. they were beyond reckoning. 142.6. (Cp. Sh. dis).

dišaki grain that is ground into flour for consumption during the current year. — dišaki dirus taking out the grain for the year's consumption. 334.1.

dišaiyas dršuć- to be stopped, dammed up (of water), to be impeded (of 000 breath). — Šimšaʿla pfəri diʿšd bi the Šimšaʿl lake has been dammed up, blocked (i.e. the stream has been blocked so that it has formed a lake).

A recurring phenomenon liable to produce floods by the eventual bursting through of the accumulated water. dʌm (or, muʿ) dišʌmi (his) breath was stopped, he suffocated.

Fut. 3rd. sg. dɪšæči.

(This verb appears to occur only with the -i- Pn. Pf. Cs. dᵊ-ʌšɪ.ʌs).

diṭ̌ça, -miq, -q. y seedling (of tree). — diṭ̌ça.mum marq seedling plants. (marq pl. of 1. mrṭ̌).

diṭ̌çik sg. and pl., also pl. ints x brick, sun-dried brick. — diṭ̌çik ɪtʌs, — ɪtʌs. — dolʌs, — du.ɪsʌs to make bricks. dɪtuirum diṭ̌çik a kiln-burnt brick. dotuirum(ɪšo) diṭ̌çik ɪšo burnt bricks. (Cp. Sh. dɪštik).

diṭ̌kiyʌs, diṭ̌kiç-, to grow, come up, sprout (of plant, tree, horns). H. uʿgna. — tom, turʌq, diṭ̌kiçi the tree, the horns, will grow. (hʌn) ɪrkaʿ(n) diṭ̌kiʿla a blade of grass has come up. jakuntu turr diṭ̌kiʿmʌr when horns have grown on a donkey. 142.27.

(The verb is really dᵊ-ṭkiyʌs).

diṭ̌ʿuʿʌs v. dᵊ-suʿʌs to undo, untie.

ditsʌs v. dᵊ-tsʌs to bring.

di.uʿlʌs, di.uʿlj- neg. Impv. ʌti.ul.

1. To wind. — loʿto di.uʿlʌs, sar di.uʿlʌs to wind a ball (of thread), to wind thread.
2. To roof. — ha di.uʿlʌs to roof a house.

Fut. 1st. sg. di.uʿljʌm.

Pret. 1st. sg. di.uʿlʌm.

di.usʌs v. dᵊ-usʌs to take out etc.

diuʿna mad. — uʿq diuʿna gumʌna you have gone mad. 210.1. Prs.

d'iy)ɐrʌyʌs, d'iɐrʌč- to become warm, hot, to warm up of oneself. pfu·tɐ d'iɐrʌčʌm I shall warm up at the fire. Pret. 2nd. sg. d'iɐrʌyuma; 3rd. pl. d'iɐrʌyuman. ○○○

(There is also a verb d-yɐrʌyʌs* to become warmed by an external instrumentality).

d-kʌfʌs* v. d'ikʌfʌs and d'ukhʌčʌs.

d-khi·rʌs* v. dikhi·rʌs.

d-kufʌs, d*-kuš-* to become thin, lean, in poor condition (of person or animal). da·kušʌm I shall become thin, EOL. dikuši it will become thin.

di·ku·šu bai he is } becoming thin N., domu·kušu bo she is } (šča·to maimi).

sis diku·tai the man } has become thin.
gus domu·kuto bo the woman kayor d'iku·ti bi the horse dâku·tʌm I became thin.

diku·timi he, it (x) became thin.

St. pc. d-kufom*, thin, emaciated, in poor condition.

(With pl. subjects there is an alternative form of the verb: d-kučaiʌs, d*-kučač-* yielding: e.g. St. pc. 3rd. pers. pl. dukučʌmišo || dukufumišo).

d-mayʌs, d*-mʌyʌs; d*-mač-, d*-mʌč,* Impv. d-may.*

1. To be on good terms, come to terms, make peace, make it up, be reconciled, make friends. II. mɪlna, mu.a·fɪq ho·na. IUB do·sti karna.

Fut. sg.

1. d'ʌmačʌm neg. ati'ʌmačʌm.
3. m. dimʌči atimʌči.
pl. 1. dimimačʌn atimimačʌn.

Pret. pl.

1. dimimʌyumʌn we made it up.
2. damamʌyumʌn you made it up.
3. dumʌyumʌn they made it up ja·ka ʃ'imayum apai.i he is not on good terms with me. yu e.i ka afum'ayuman the father and the daughter did not make it up. 164.3. Cp. 250.3.

2. To fit (of clothes, wood work); to suit, be convenient. — gusi ʃoya ʃaw dimati bi this choga fits well.

This verb, however, occurs frequently in the generalised form dumayas, dumayas, which is also used when the subject is y.

mi mi horay dumarda hem we are making peace among ourselves. ji dumayum I came to terms. ja akya ba, mai.i dumayin I don't know about it, settle it among yourselves. ile wazi atsi (itsi) aformatila that time doesn't suit me (him). gafug atsi (itsi) dumayimi the clothes fitted me (him).

(This verb was frequently recorded with -γ- as the final consonant of the past base. Originally I recorded it from Nz. as dumaʃ̌as, dumajas, once even with -ʃ- in mihoray dimimolonda hem we are friends among ourselves).

This is consonant with other experience of what I have decided to be ʃ, appearing as a kind of l, r, or ł in the mouths of individuals or in particular words.

(Cs. d-ayayas*).

d-manas, d*-mai-* to be born, to come into existence; to be made. — dumaiyam I shall be born; dumanam I was born. hilasan dimai.imi, dim'aimi, dimanai a boy will be, was, has been born. dasi·nan dumumai.imo, dumumanomo, dumumanu be a girl will be, was, has been born. i·ts

000 ditolo d'amaiyam I shall be born in that place. 108.23. ite ditolo d'amanas ba I am to be born in that place. 108.19. jatsum atu·lomana you have not been born of me. 18.2. Cp. 264.16. hin ke wu.iyen dimanimi another son was born to her. 110.8. goyen dumumane (pret.) ke if a daughter is born to you. 56.15, 58.1. tsundo gur d'umanij ma up to the time that, i.e. when, five sons had been born. 246.5. mudefum, or iljom, dimanum the last-born, latest, or final-born child. hilman dimanam . . . bakoiowan ke . . . dimani bim, a boy had been born and a calf had also been born. 104.21. dostak tyulo ilbrengi d'imanimi the article came into existence of itself in the forge. 162.6. (čamu) Kuuri dukanefe dimanum bim the brooch had been made in K.'s shop. 164.15. Cp. 166.11.

(See also dumanas which is the form assumed by the verb when the subject is y'.

d°-manas is a d°- form of manan or °-manas. The Ca. is d°-asmanas.

d°-mmas, d°-mare to take s.t. from (the hands of) s.o. — balda d'imarčam I shall take his load from him (and carry it), I shall relieve him of his load. 212.6. dukumarča ba I am going to take the load from you. dukumarčama? shall I take it from you?

(jatsum) kitab damar ov., take (lit. taking) the book from me (and) put it down.

d°-mafnas, d°-mab-, Ppa. d°-mafe to wrap up, roll up, fold up, close up. — je ung galilo dukumabam I'll wrap you up in a blanket.

OOO Also recorded in the form dimatsas etc. With y subjects it appears in the form dumatsas:

1. guts krtaᵊp kaγasulo dumats wrap this book up in paper. — (krtaᵊb) nuq'atan dum'atsimi . . . dumats having read the book he shut (folded? or rolled?) it up . . . having shut it. 70.10. aiyaᵊrtki dumašam I shall roll up, fold up, my bedding.
2. dumatsas' to remove and stack cut crops.

dᵊ-milas, v. sv. dimilas.

dᵊ-ntsiras, dᵊ-tsirč- v.t. to spread out, unroll, strew. H. brčhaᵊna.—d'iᵊntsiras to spread (bedding, clothes i.e. y objects). d'uᵊntsiras to spread (people, fruit, carpets i.e. h. and x pl. diᵊntsirčam, d'iᵊntsiram I shall spread, I spread. (Cp. dints.hiᵊras the corresponding intrs. verb. Cp. also Sh. v.t. dinširoᵊtki, to spread out, lay out, e.g. a carpet).

dᵊ-qaras, dᵊ-qarč- to split, divide. — γaši·l diqaras to split firewood. foromuts duqaras to split logs. itan diqaras to divide the hair (with a piece of stick). gančeče itan diqarai.i he has divided his hair with a stick ("spindle"). diqarčai.i diqariᵊmi.

do.'aᵊ v. du.'aᵊ.

ḍoᵊḍo -mots x larynx, (by extension, wind-pipe, throat). — doᵊḍo.s maγon adam's apple (a point seized when fighting). doᵊḍo γunikiš (a term of abuse for a man, implying that he has a prominent larynx). uᵊ doᵊḍo aiyoᵊskərtsimi (the knife) did not cut their throats. 44.19. Cp. 42.3. (Sh. ḍoᵊḍo).

[See corrigenda et addenda category 116, p. 543 - Analyst] 134b dofoɣurʌs IUB, dəpfoɣurʌs, dofoɣurč- to praise oneself, boast, H. xud sɪtaʻrɪ̈ kʌrna, ʌpne taʻrif kʌrna.

Impf. dofoɣurčʌm, Pret. 3rd. sg. dofoɣurimi.
St.pc. dofoɣurum.
(Intrs. corresponding to dᵉ-ʌpuɣurʌs)

doʻgunʌs to make (people) seize, lay hold of, to make (people) begin to. — yˈotsilʌn doʻgrəər doʻgunimi he had the people seized in order to make them make the water-channel, or, he made the people begin to make them . . . etc. 276.3. isɪ hər ˈiljiər jaʻɨ nɪ dˈoʻugun . . . ɣʌtenčʌtɪ dəljʌm making people lay hold of the ox (by the head) and pulling it out backwards . . . they used to smite it with a sword. 338.1.

(This verb is really dᵉ-ʌgonʌs, Cs. of duʻnʌs, with 3rd. pl. Pn. Infix).

doɣaʻʌtʌs, doɣaʻʌčai.ʌs; doɣaʻʌš-, doɣaʻʌčʌč-; Impv. duɣaʻʌt. v.i. to separate out, disperse(?), be selected; to be cleared up, finally settled (of a case).
Fut. sg. 1. doɣaʻʌšʌm. 2. doɣaʻʌšuma.
Pret. sg. 1. doɣaʻʌtʌm. 2. doɣaʻʌtuma.
Ali.abaʻdulo doɣˈaʻʌčʌn ʌsbaʻb nuka hurʻučʌmʌn. 238.11.

(doɣaʻʌčai.ʌs and its forms are only used with plural subjects. Doɣaʻʌčʌn in the example is the Past Pc. Act.) ^1 doɣˈʌnʌs, duɣˈʌnʌs, doɣai- to be finished, exhausted, used up, to come to an end, syn. Bu. fʌš mʌnaʻs.

Fut. 3rd. sg. doɣai.imi.
Impf. 3rd. sg. y duɣai.i bilum.
Pret. 3rd. sg. duɣˈʌnimi. atoɣˈʌnʌs ɣenɪŋik inexhaustible quantities of gold. 54.7. itɪ bʌl ʌtˈoɣʌnimi the marrow was not exhausted. 138.15.

135a

^1 [see Corrigenda et addenda category 116, p. 543 - Analyst]

(This is the form of dᵊ-γʌnʌs which is used when the subject is y). 000 doγˈʌrʊsʌs, doγʌrʊš-, Impv. doγˈʌrʊs, Ppa. doγərʊs(in). Also: dʊγ-, duγ-. Nz. sometimes duγaʷrʊsʌs.

The Pret. 3rd. sg. m. has the ending -umi as well as -imi.

1. To ask (s.o.), enquire of, question (s.o.)

The person questioned is usually expressed by a noun or independent pronoun and is put in the ablative. Occasionally the dative is used.

gərʊnimʊtsʊm ʌxʊnɛ . . doγʌrʊšai.i kinɛ hirər uŋ rɪzˈa nʊsen the "ʌxon" asks the bride: "are you content with this man?" 302.18. itsimo dˈoγərušaʷn they enquire of him. 312.15. inɛ dʌsinmʊtsʊm doγʌrʊsimi he enquired of the girl. 282.5. jatsum atoγərus don't ask me. 96.8. atuʷγʊrʊsumʌʃɛ without asking. da haʷlʌttsum doγˈərusimi then he enquired for his health, asked how he was. 16.6. dʊγʌrušər eʷra ba I have sent him to enquire. 10.4, 10.11, 20.6, 26.9, 38.11, 44.2,6,21, 64.23, 222.13, 228.14, 246.16, 248.8, 252.3, 264.11.

With Dative:

iʷnɛ hilɛʷsər doγʌrʊsumi: "le.i eʷi . . ." he asked the boy: "O my son . . .?" 106.14. uʷer dʊγʌrʊsʌm "ma bɛʷsɛ heʷrčaʷn?" nʊsen I asked them "why are you weeping?" 4.44. Cp. 338.6.

2. To make a claim against, to demand . . — kʌmʌn ačiʷma kɛ axaʷrʌtɛ gʊntsʊlo gʊtsˈimo doγərušʌm should you give me too little, I shall 000 make a claim against you at the Last Day. 58.25.

(A generalised form o d-ʌγʌrʊsʌs* q. v.).

doγʊnʌs Nz. v. d-γʊnʌs*.

doγʊm v. doyʊm.

doʿiγʌs, doʿičʌn, v. d-ʌ.iγʌs*.

doxʿərʌs, doxʿərč-.

1. To open (of flower), to come into blossom, H. khɪljʌna (khɪlna).

Fut. 3rd. sg. doxʿərči.

Pret. 3rd. sg. doxərinɪ.

Hunzulo jʊŋ doxərčʊmɪ (as) the apricot trees (are) coming into blossom in Hunza. 320.1.

2. V.i. to split (of wood).

(The second meaning is probably the primary one and the word is the same as duxərʌs, and duqərʌ EOL, v.s.v. duxərʌs, where othe examples of its use are given. All are presumably generalised d-* forms of -xərʌs*). !

doxʊqʌs, doxʊqʊč- v.i. to be tangled, tangle

Fut. 3rd. sg. doxʊqʊči.

Pret. 3rd. sg. doxʊqʊnɪ.

doxʊqʊm tirtʊm juʌs mʌnʊma you have become like a tangled bobbin.

(Identical with dʊxʊqʊγʌs (q.v.) which appears to be the more correct form. The corresponding transitive verb is d-ʌqʊqʊʿγʌs* v. s.v. dʌqʊqʊʿγʌs).

doʿlʌs, doʿliʌs, doʿlj, to beat, strike, hit, shoot, kill.

doʿlʌs as a form of d-ʌlʌs* appears to be used correctly i.e. only when the object is h or x pl.

doγʊnɪ doʿljʌ let us beat them after questioning them. 248.8. (hoʿl) bilʌfi doljʊma ki somehow you will beat, slay, (the army). 132.21. giriniʊts doli (or, doli) niγʊmʌnʊmʌn ki if they

136a

! [see corrigenda et addenda category 116, p. 543-Analyst]

000 have not been able, if they fail, to hit the marks. 316.9. či.u dolas to shoot birds (small game). dišči' dolas to make bricks. γatrnçaţ. dolias daiyela baiyam I had heard of striking (people) with the sword. 228.11. oltalik Kirgiz tobaqaţe doli bam The Kirgiz had slain both of them with guns, had shot the two of them. 344.5.

Pres. 3rd. sg. doljai.

Pret. 3rd. sg. dolam.

(Cp. d-alas* and delas).

dolat y property, wealth, riches. — in epači burt dolat bila he has great wealth. donats dolat worldly wealth. imo dolat wor trang ne učimi he divided and gave his property to them. 366.4. baxt dolat luck and prosperity(?). 332.9. Ar. Prs.

dolatman, daulatman rich, wealthy. 100.1. (Ar.) Prs.

1. ḍom, ḍoum strong, powerful, hard, severe, difficult. — ḍouman baia xair ke is he not a strong man? 162.25. A. Wazir burt ḍom baiši A. Wazir is very hard (metaphorical). 70.22. burt ḍom duro bila it is a very hard, serious, business. 50.24. jale ḍom ktarpan bila I have a difficult book in my possession. 68.24.

2. ḍom -ants x heap of earth, mound ("in plain or talus fan"). ise domulo čumere gili . . . modelimi he secured her with an iron peg in the mound. 194.13.

(Doubtless identical with ~~A.~~[1] ḍong).

3. ḍom manas to run away, to scatter, be scattered about.

ḍomaḍom confused, at a loss, wandering about, H. sargardan. — ḍomaḍom

136 b

[1] [see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 543- Analyst]

manas to be confused, wander about. IYB. 000

(Probably 3. ḍom duplicated).

don, pl. doyo, x woman's head-sheet. — don monwaščan they throw a head-sheet (veil) over her (head), or, make her put on . . . 304.11.

(Cp. Sh. doʌn, don).

1. domas, dononas, dori-; Impv. don, neg. aton, to undo, unfasten, open (door, cupboard, lock). — sərik dononas to undo a bolt. hiŋ don to open the door. basiʌne čeri er atonin don't open the lock (sc. on the door) of the garden for him. 12.1. basiʌ hiŋ doyʌn let us open the door of the garden. 12.11. ma atori ban ke akər esqaiʌm if you don't open (it) I will kill myself. 16.13.

Fut. sg. 1st. doyʌm, 3.rd. dorimi.
Pres. sg. 3rd. m dori baiʌ.
Pret. sg. 1st. domʌm, 3rd. m. domimi.
f. domomo. 24.20.
pl. 3rd. domomʌn. 12.11.
neg. atomomʌn. 12.5.
Impv. pl. donin. 12.9.

(In the past base o tends to become ovo).

2. domʌs N. variant of dunʌs.

ḍoŋ IYB mound, elevation in level place, humped.

(Variant of 2. ḍom. Cp. doŋqʌm).

ḍ'oŋɣoraʌs, ḍ'oŋɣorč- v.i. to bend, bend over (of tree), lean over (side of horse when playing polo). — ḍʌŋ bila, kʌm ḍoŋɣorčila it is stiff and bends little.

(Intrans. of ḍ-ʌʌŋɣorʌs* v. s.v. ḍeŋɣorʌs. Cp. ḍuḍuŋ and Sh. toŋ, stooping, bent).

ḍoŋh'ər IYB mustard (of plant and oil). (Cp. Sh. duŋhʌr).

137a

[see corrigenda et addenda category 116, p. 543 - Analyst]

ḍoŋqam -ršo, -iŋ rough, undulating. (Probably ✗. ḍoŋ + qam). ○○○ doomayas. doomač- v.t. to exchange s.t. permanently with that of s.o. else. Fut. 1st. sg. doomačam.

ine ka hayor doomayam I exchanged horses with him (permanently).
atoomay, dont exchange . . . .
(Connected with d-mayas* and d-asmayas*, the idea apparently being "to make something equivalent to s.t. else". "to match things").

ḍoq on the shoulders. — doq numuyen taking the girl up on his shoulders. 244.14. (Cp. Kho. ḍok on the back).

doqas doqič-, (and doquč-?) p.pc. doq, doqin, v.i. to swell. — ja ariŋ (uŋ gurin) doqila my hand (your hand), has swollen. doqum basimi the swelling went down. doq ilčin juan mani bi swelling, it has come like an eye-ball. (Cp. Kho. ḍok, mound heap, ball of hand).

ḍor, -ants x N. dor, -aints, receiver in which grain is put in mill, hopper. — yai.ine doroulo . . . . bay nikin putting, pouring millet into the hopper of the mill. 262.4. Cp. 266.15. (Cp. Sh. & Kho. ḍor).

1. doras v. d-aras* to send them.
2. doras, dorč- to fall down (of cliff, stones, house). — hakičaŋ imo ravati dorčitsan, dorimi, doritsan the houses are falling, fell, have fallen, down of themselves. čor, mort, dorimi (dorči) the cliff, earthcliff, fell down (will fall down). čorko dorimi.en the cliffs fell down. čor dorum dzš the place where the cliff has fallen down. žiŋat burt dorčilum the stone-slide was coming down, was very active

137b

[see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 543- Analyst]

000 i.e. a lot of stones were coming down the stone-shoot. 294.4.

(Intrs. of dɐ·urʌs (i.e. dᵊ-ʌ.urʌs). Perhaps a dᵊ- form based on the same root as Sh. hur-ijo·rki, to fall down of an earth cliff etc. Cp. Werch. dohor-).

3. dorʌs, dorč-, Ppa. dor, v.t. to grind in a water mill, IUB H. čʌki čʌla·na, čʌkmē pi·sna.—phalo do·rčai.i, do·rimi he is grinding, he ground, the grain. yai.ɛŋulo γɐnʌŋ do·rču bo·m she was grinding gold in a mill. 204.4. Cp. 300.1,3, 334.2,5,7.

(Perhaps related to 2. do·rʌs).

doro N., v. du'ro.

došolʌs IUB, dušolʌs, dušolj- to be obtained, received (from s.o.), H. krsise ha·srl ho·na.

Impf. 3rd. sg. y dušoljilum.
Pret. 3rd. sg. m. dušolimi.
St.pc. dušolum.

do·tsʌs, do·otsʌs, v. dᵊ-ʌtsʌs, to make them bring, to send.

d'o·u, do·wum v. do·γum.

do·γum, doy (recorded: do·γum, do·γu·m, do·wum, do·γu, do·u) right (hand).

doγum ariŋ, ašʌk my right hand, arm. do·u iriŋɛ with his right hand. 166.1. doγu pʌči ni.ʌs bila one must go to the right. doγu·m iri·ŋum i·sɛ pfultiŋiš the right-hand bellows. 166.4. Cp. 92.1, 96.3, 312.1.

do·zʌx, zo·zʌx y Hell. (Cp. Sh. zo·zʌk).

dᵊ-pirkʌnʌs v. dᵊ-ʌpirkʌnʌs.

d'ᵊ-pirtsʌs, d'ᵊ-pirš- to pull up, root out, eradicate, H. ukha·γna. — tsirištsum dipi·rtsʌs to pull (tree, person) up by the roots. dukuᵛpiršʌm I'll eradicate you. kok tsɐrʌŋ dipi·rtsʌm you had pulled out this door-frame. 170.9. hɐri pfyu·ɛn dipirtsin tearing a little 000 barley up (by the roots). 328.8. (Cs. d-ʌpirtsʌs*).

drʌŋ mʌnaˑs to dismount, get down. — hʌγorɛtʊm drʌŋ mʌnɛ dismount from the horse. hʌγurtsum drʌŋ numa dismounting from the horse. 122.11,24. (Cp. Sh. dərʌŋ boˑɪki, to dismount).

d-riˑʌs, d*-raˑs*, v. diriˑʌs, v.i. to cook, be cooking. — gusɛ dustsˈʌkulo itsɛ aˑlu duˑrići biˑɛn those potatoes (x pl.) are cooking in this pot. EOL. brʌs diˑrićiˑtsʌn the rice (y pl.) is cooking. EOL.

d-silʌs* v. disˈiˑlʌs.

dˈ-šunʌs, d*-šuˑnʌs, d*-šu-*, Impv. d-šʊn* to untie, undo, loosen (anything tied up e.g. man, horse, bedding, boot, knot, rope, hair). — dukˈuˑšuyʌm I shall untie you. dˈišuyʌm I shall untie etc. him, it. dʌmaˑšuyʌm I shall untie you (pl.). jɛ dʌšʊn undo me. (Trans. of dušˈunʌs).

d-tʌlʌs, d*-tʌlj-*. Impv. d-tʌl*, Pps. d-tʌl*, v.i. to awake, wake up. — datʌljʌm, ditʌlji I shall wake up, he will wake up, ditʌljaiˑi he is waking up. dʌtʌlʌm I woke up. dʌŋtsʊm ditʌlimi. Ditʌl . . . . he woke from sleep. Having wakened up. 20.5. Cp. 180,5. dumuˑtʌlɪmo she woke up. 110.1. dukuˑtʌl wake up! atukuˑtʌl, goˑyɛn don't wake up, sleep. atitʌlimi, atumutʌlumo he, she, didn't wake up. atˈutʌlumʌn they didn't wake up. 40.7. (Cs. d-ʌst(s)ʌlʌs*).

d-tsʌs, d*-s-*, Impv. d-tso*.

The principal forms recorded are given in § 302.

1. To bring, fetch (only h and x objects). (With y objects dusuˑyʌs or suˑyʌs are used, v. § 231 d). dumuˑtso bring her. 138.2.

138 b

akaʷbərtiŋ haʷlər dušaʷn they bring the elders into the house. 340.5. Cp. 332.8. kin amulum ditsumaʔ from where did you get (bring) this (child)? 268.6. hʌγur diʷtsʌs to bring one's horse along, to ride along to ride past. dʌndʌneʃe eʷskəršume ditsimi making his horse gallop over the stones he rode along. 122.8. Wazire tsʌγəra dišai.i, ho gušpurtəru.e dišaʷn (The sense is:) The Wazir rides down the ground to shoot with bow and arrow at the mark and then the gushpurs ride down. 316.7.

(tsʌγəra denotes "archery", and hʌγur is understood as the object of dišai.i, dišaʷn).

2. ditsʌs is used with some x nouns to form compound verbal expressions: dʌm ditsʌs to charge (an enemy). biri ditsʌs to boil, v.i. Cp. 8.10,13, 14.3,17, 18.7, 40.1, 58.8, 66.7,17, 68.6, 72.11,13, 74.2,3,5, 128.11, 138.2, 152.3,4, 162.12, 174.19, 208.10, 344.5, 346.8.

(V. also dusuʷyʌs used with y objects. The Cs. common to both is d-ʌtsʌs* v. § 241).

d-ts.hʿiginʌs, d*-ts.hʿigi-* v.i. to hang, to be hanging, be suspended. — baʷz dits.hʿigini bi, the hawk (has fallen and) is hanging suspended (by the string). hir mərtolo dits.hʿigi bai.i, the man is hanging suspended on the face of the earth cliff. xʌlta gilulo dits.hʿiginum bi, the haversack is hung up (hanging) on the peg.

(With this and the following verb cp. dʿ-ntsirʌs*).

*d*ʿ-tsikinʌs, d*-tsiki-*, Impv. d-tsikin*, v.t to hang up, suspend. — dukuʷtsiki.ʌm, ditsiki.ʌm I'll hang you up, I'll hang up him, it. dʌtsikimi he'll hang me up. dimitsikimʌn they will hang us up ("in Hell"). ditsikinʌm I hung him, it, up. gi·lulo ditsikinʌm (or, wʌšim) bi is hung on, hanging on, a nail. ditsikinʌs bi it is to be hung up. dutsikinʌs bi.ɛn they (x pl.) are to be hung up. guyɛtis himʌltərtsɛ dukoʳtsiki.ʌm I'll hang up your head (for you) on the gateway. 72.5.

(Apparently d-ʌtsikinʌs* with Pn.-inf. referring to indirect object).

ʌstʌmɛ šʌŋʌličiŋ i·nɛ himʌltərtsɛ d'itsikimi he will hang up chains of justice from his gateway. 88.7.

du,' -wʌnts, N. -ʌ·i·nts, x kid (up to one year old of either sex, including buʳtər, sumfʌlikrš and hʌlka·s du), H. buzγa·la, Sh. čʌl, — hʌn tsi·rʌnɛ du·ʌn a goat-kid. 370.9, 374.9. gi·ri duwʌnts ibex kids. bu·mɛ du markhor kid.

du.'a·, duw'a, do.'a· y prayer, supplication (to God), invocation. — du.a ɛtʌs to offer up a prayer. 294.6, 312.6. mor du.'a· nɛtʌn invoking a blessing on her. 286.3. γunikrš du.'a nɛ uttering a curse, invoking a curse. 284.24. Ar. Prs.

du.a·ni y two annas, a two-anna bit. H.

du.asʌs v. d-u.ɛsʌs*.

du.ʌk du.ʌk ɛtʌs v.i. to knock, tap on. — hiŋʌṭɛ du.ʌq du.ʌq ɛtʌs to knock at the door. Cp. duwʌq q.v.).

du.ʌŋ du.ʌŋ ɛtʌs v.i. to knock. — hiŋʌṭɛ du.ʌŋ du.ʌŋ ɛtʌs to knock at the door. IYB. duwʌŋ duwʌŋ ɛtʌs to knock against s.t. accidentally (as a child's head against a wall).

dučhaγurʌs, dučhaγurč- to be, become, cold H. ṭhʌnḍa hoʳna, or. hojaʳna.

139 b

000 Pres. 3rd. sg. y dvčhaγvrčila.
Impf. 3rd. sg. y dvčhaγvrčilvm.
Pret. 3rd. sg. dvčhaγurimi.
St.pe dvčhaγvrum.

(Denominative from čhʌγu·rvm. This invariable form is used only with y subjects. When the subject is h or x there is a variable Pn. Infix, d-čhʌγvrʌs*).

ḍuḍu·ŋ stooping. Cp. ḍo·ŋγvras.

ḍuḍu·r a kind of apricot tree.

ḍ'uḍvr -iŋ y, a small hole. — ḍ'uḍvriŋər gi.ʌmʌn "they have taken refuge in small holes (in battle)".

ḍvḍu·ro, pl. ḍvḍu·r-išo, -vmvts, x.

1. Bud.
2. Bells worn by dancers on their ankles.
3. Teat, nipple.

mərdakayε ḍuḍu·ro green capsule of poppy.

(Cp. Sh. dodo·ro, small bell, & ḍvḍu·ro).

d-u.εsʌs* etc. d-u.εš.*

The forms of this verb vary considerably and it is impossible to refer them to a single invariable base.

Besides d-u.εs-* we find d-uwʌs-*, d-u.ʌs-*, d-wʌs-*, d-(u)wεs-*.

When the subject is y there seems always to be du- followed by -wa·s-, -a·s-, -wa·ʌs-, or -wa·εs-. It appears therefore that with y subjects the pronoun infix is stabilised in the form of -u- and that the accent tends to fall on the following vowel strengthening it to a·. Occasionally, however, we have du·(w)ʌs-. Some forms of this verb are given in § 304. Others will be found below:

The primary meaning appears to be "to remain", of which the other

OOO meanings can be regarded as merely special aspects. For convenience they may be roughly classified as follows:

1. To remain, remain over, stay behind, to continue (to be).
2. To survive, escape, get off, be saved; to recover, get well.
3. To be left out, to be passed over.

1. ivlji dyu.ɛsʌs, dywʌsʌs to remain behind (subject h or x sg.). duwavʌsʌs to remain (y subject). dʌŋ ativmi dauwʌsʌm sleep did not come, I remained, i.e. remained sleepless. šʌpik hʌnikulo ati.u.ɛsimi no food remained in the bowl. 210.3. pfərɪlo dumuwʌsumo she remained behind in the pond. 14.10. čavmine bevum dɛn dimivʌsumʌn we have remained, continued, hungry for some years. 34.10. b'erumʌn guntsiŋ buvt aravmɛ ka du(w)ʌsumʌn for some days they continued in great comfort. 36.15. dyu.ʌsum ivsɛ šər the remaining bough. 214.9. dyuvʌsumʌn wŋər bərkʌt (the food) that has remained over be your portion! 212.14. dyu.ʌsumʌn čʌp kɛ šʌpik the bread and meat remaining over (agreeing with šʌpik x). 208.9. yʌški 'ataw'ʌsa ba I have not remained worthy. 373.8.

With a y subject we have: čuvk duwavɛsimi the sewing has remained over, i.e. is not finished. bʌni.avdʌmɛ čʌp du.avsimi it remained human flesh, lit. human flesh remained. mavr gutɛ tsil du.avʌši this water will (always) remain for you. 292.11. (mʌltaš) bɛska atuvasimi nothing has remained (of the butter). 140.14. bɛska du·ro at'u·(w)ʌsimi no work has remained. 162.11. duwa·sumʌn (tsil) gəro·nu.ər ičičai.i he gives what remains (of the water) to the bridegroom. 304.3. gina·ni.ər altaˑŋuts duw'a·sumər when eight days remain to the Gina·ni . . . 326.8. duwa·sum čʌp, pfʌlo, mʌltaʔ, tsil, pʌči, pilam the meat, grain, ghee, water, cotton cloth, woollen homespun left over. duwa·sum(ʌn) tʌn.xa arrears, balance, of pay,

2. e·rčʌma dau.ešʌm kə (see) whether I shall die or recover, survive. 146.19. Cp. 50.9. duku·ešma; duku·esʌs ba, duk'u·eša you will recover; you are going to recover. 50.10, 146.20. hirʌn dyu·ʌsin Šimša·lər di bʌm a man escaping, or surviving, had come to Shimshal. 272.9 xʌtərtsum dyu.esimi he escaped from the danger. daweša ba I am going to escape, survive, 44.11. dau.ʌsʌm I escaped, survived. 44.20. atiw'eše.aʔ dyuweši.aʔ will he not escape? will he escape? 38.22,23. di.u·ʌsʌs apai.i he is not going to escape. 38.24. γʌli·e numʌn i·re i·re nimʌn dyu.esimi having fallen ill and nearly died, he recovered. dyu.ʌsimi he has been saved, he has escaped. 42.10. gusmo hʌ ke bušai.i du.'a·simi the woman's house and land remained, escaped (destruction). 286.12.

3. dau.esʌm I was left out. — dyu·esimi he was left out, passed over (said of a man who has not received his share in a distribution). (Cs. d-ʌspʌsʌs*. Possibly related to bʌsa·s, v. § 304).

000

dufaltas, dufalč-, v.i. to burst (of gun, dam, boil, blister). — tubak dufalči, dufaltimi the gun will burst, burst. pfəri dufaltimi the tank (or, dammed up water) burst. sər bilum, tsʰil dufaltila there was a flood, the water has burst out.

(Trs. dᵃ-Afaltas, Cp. also ᵃ-faltas).

dufareskinas, dufareski- v.i. to spread (of a sore or skin disease), to increase in girth (of a tree).

Impf. 3rd. sg. m. dufareski bam.

Pret. 3rd. sg. dufareskinimi.

dug'ər N. -iŋ y scissors.

d'uguças. d'uguč-, Impv. dugo (-u), neg. atugo (-u), to fasten (door-bolt, or lock). — sərik dugu.ai.i he has fastened the bolt. sərik atugu don't fasten the bolt. sərik dugum bi the bolt is fastened, closed. čeʿi d'ugum bim the lock was closed. 12.5. čeʿi atugum bim the lock was not closed.

Fut. 1st. sg. dugučam.

Pret. 1st. sg. dugu.am.

duγatas v. doγatas.

du'γanas, v. do'γanas.

duγanderas, duγanderč-, (do-), to be, become crooked; (of a person) to become contrary, opposed, to s.o.

Perf. 3rd sg. x duγanderi bi.
y duγanderila.

Plup. 3rd. sg. x duγanderi bim.
y duγanderilum.

(Denominative from γander, crooked).

duγarusas v. doγarusas duγuʿi y midday. — duγuʿi bila, manila it is, has become, midday. duγuʿi xa up till midday. 330.5. duγuʿi manumtsum after midday is passed. 330.7.

duγuʿimo pertaining to midday. — duγuʿimo ken midday (time). Nz.

000 duγuʿimo ʌsi midday breakfast (a Raja's meal). duγuʿimo pʃiti midday bread (a children's meal).

duγ'uʿrskinʌs, duγuʿrski-, Impv. duγuʿskin.

Also: duγuʿsk-, duγuʿsk-, duγuʿsk-, doγuʿrsk-, to begin, commence. tʌle kutsunmo duγuʿski.ʌm I shall begin in (after) 7 days.

A dependent verb is usually put in the dative of the infinitive: ʿrnʌsər duγuʿrskinimi he began to say. kuʿr mʌnʌvʿər duγ'uʿrskinimi he began to patrol up and down. 42.15. ʿinu ʿrsmilʌsər duγ'uʿrskinimi he began to persuade him. 374.6.

Other idioms are: xuši ʿtʌstʌr doγ'uʿrskinumʌn they began to make rejoicing. 573.22. xʌmali bišʌčər duγuʿski bo she is beginning to make the "xʌmali" bread. 306.8. šʌpik dʌŋ ʿtʌsi (for ʿtʌsər i) doγuʿrskimai.i he has begun to make bread. 126.10.

Fut. 1st. sg. duγuʿski.ʌm, duγuʿrskiyʌm.
Pret. 1st. sg. duγuʿrskinʌm.
2nd. duγuʿrskinuma.

601 du.iʿčo N. step (relation). — dü.iʿčo baba, mama step-father, step-mother. ·duʿiʿčo aʿču, aʿyʌs my step-brother, step-sister, (man speaking).

000 duʿinʌt, dunʌt, dunʌ.a y the world. — dunʌʿtʌ dolʌt wordly wealth. in juucaʿnʌn du.inʌtulo apai.i there is no one like him in the world. 30.16. Cp. 22.2, 92.28. Ar. Prs. (Cp. Sh. dunyʌt).

duʿisʌs v. dᵊ-usʌs.

585 duʿk -ʌŋ y.

1. Spindle, used for spinning goat's hair.

585 2. y sg. and pl., a present formerly given by a man to his bride. It was originally 12 yards of "latta" (sized cotton cloth). This was kept and passed on to the next generation, old and dirty. It was called the "du·kr paći".

Rs. 5 is now nominally fixed as its pecuniary equivalent, but this is actually paid only if the woman is divorced.

3. (metaphor.) right, claim.

IUB gives duk = right, woman's dowry, H. ḥaq, mahr 'aurat ka. V. s.v. gər. (Cp. perhaps Sh. du·k, debt).

000 dukan -iŋ duk'an y shop. — dukanolo ja·ka hərAŋ baí.i he is partner with me in the shop. Kizəri dukanəṭs dimAnom bim it had been made in K.'s shop. 164.15. dukanəṭər (dimi, dumomo) (he came, she came) to the shop. Prs. 160.12, 164.10, 166.15.

dukandar hm shop-keeper. Prs.

dukh'arAs dukh'arć- to deny, repudiate, reject, refuse compliance, H. munkir hona, inkar karna, na· mana.

dukhAṭAs, dukhAs-, v. dikAṭAs, to be stopped, closed, impeded, H. band hona.

(Form of d°-kAṭAs used when the subject is y).

duke duke with great pleasure, very gladly, I ask for nothing better. — duke duke ićhi give it to him very gladly.

dukon Ppa. 2nd. sg. of juryAs thou having come.

ḍukuri -muts x any very small hut, hovel, N. henhouse. Hz. also used contemptuously of a house. (Cp. Sh. ḍukuri).

142 b duxˈərʌs, duˈxərē-.

1. To open (of flowers), H. khilna. 000
— gusi šutuko duqərčər taiyar bim this bud was on the point of opening. EOL.

2. To expand (of the heart), to become happy. IUB, H. dil khuljana, dil xuš hona. — -ʌs duxˈʌrʌs to become happy. is duxˈʌri bim his heart had become happy.

3. To split. — duxərʌsdʌn "splitting stone" i.e. shale (occurring in the Baltit Nullah).

(Identical with doxˈərʌs, q.v.).

duxʌšn -niŋ y festival day, day of rejoicing, H. mela, xušika koi din.

duxau.ukuts x a sheep sacrificed on the third day after a person's death (the word appears to be only used in curses). — duxau.ukuts(ər) šiqʌn they eat it for d. duxau.ukutsər gumʌnč (or gumʌnum) may you be used for d. (or, may you be for (?) the d.! (a curse).

(Cp. Sh. dukhani, duxani with similar sense and use).

duxərquyʌs, dəxərquč- to be entangled, involved, H. uljha jana.

Impf. 3rd. sg. y duxərqərčilum.
Pret. 3rd. sg. duxərquni.
St.pc. duxərqum.

(Identical with daxuqʌs q.v.).

dul collyrium (black stuff painted on eyelids). A mineral found in the Hasanabad Nullah in Hunza. Used for small children to protect their eyes, and by amorous young men — šauqin juwan). — dul -ʌtʌs to apply collyrium to s.o. ultəlik dustʌl dul no gatuŋ no utsumʌn waking up both (the children) and applying collyrium to them and dressing them 302 751 751 up . . . they took them away. 40.21. 751

143a

(Cp. Sh. dul).

dulduŋ, duldoŋ, duldun, -ičiŋ y bread-oven; fixed earthen fireplace (in houses of the well-to-do.), H. tanur, čulha. 000 (Cp. Wkh. dildong a special kind of fire-place and open oven[1] Morgenstierne derives dildong from Prs. dēgdān. "Etym. Vocab. of Pashto", p. 21).

duld'oŋgi, duldoŋi thick bread (Wakhi) made in "duldoŋ". — wa·lto duldoŋi four pieces of duldoŋgi bread. 340.11.

duld'um, duldom, y. a rising cloud (as of dust), a great quantity of.

du·ljaiyas (-eyas) du·ljać- to be full (of food), to be sated, to have enough, H. rajna.
Fut. 1st. sg. du·ljaćam, 3rd. du·ljaći.
Pret. 1st. sg. du·ljaiyam.
je du·ljeya ba I have become full, sated. je jitsum, duni.atsum, mamatsum du·ljaiyam I am "fed up" with life, the world, you, gute watantsum du·ljaiyam I am "fed up" with this country. EOL. uyon du·ljaman all had their fill (of the marrow), were satisfied. 138.15.
(A d-* derivative from huljaiyas. Cs. d-asuljaiyas*).

dult'alanas, dultalai-, to become (fruitful). — Hunzo d'ultalaimi, Hunza will become fruitful again i.e. the crops will flourish. 242,3. šune iski denum ik dultalai.i bila, a vine bears fruit (i.e. begins to bear) after 3 years.
(A d-* derivative of *tal'enas, -ltalanas, which can have the meaning of "to turn into," "become").

dultapi.as, dultapuyas (also with -y-), dultapuč- v.i. to wither (with y subjects), — dultapoči, dultapimi it

143 b

[1] [see corrigenda et addenda. category 116, p. 543 - Analyst]

000 will wither, it withered deltapem withered.

del'u, pl. delowik, N. del'umeik, x thin rope, cord; string, thread (for suspending amulet and charms). — dwiś ne delwaję čak мамаи slipping down from the window by a rope. 38.7. ówe bregdor delwaję dwwimi he climbed up by the rope into his palace. 42.13. (Cp. Sh. delw, dwlu).

1. doma, duma, -meik, x all patched, ragged clothes. — loga domaya yoldi he has dressed in rags and tatters.
2. duma, doma, -meik x tail of fat-tailed sheep. — duma ubwi he gives them (it) fat tail. 340.16. Pra. dumbr.

dumayas v. *d*ᵃ*-mayas* 2.

dumanas dumai-.

1. To come into being, take shape. — duro dumanimi the affair succeeded, took shape. yatrečas ine drigalo dumanę may a sword come into being, take shape, in his hand. 160.14. ave dakomahage yat ov dumaimi a 1000-poled tent will come into existence for him. 88.4. duv'o upow (pavo) dumanimi all the work was completed. 102.11.
2. To take solid form, solidify, freeze, coagulate, curdle. — tail dumanida the water has frozen. мамо dumanida the milk has curdled, coagulated, set. dumarow мамо coagulated milk.

(The form of *d*ᵃ*-manas*, used with y subjects).

dumaras, dumaré. Impr. dumar, Pps. dumar.

1. To demand, ask for, request, want, procure, H. mangna. — ja wy ślamtom dumarda So I am asking the Tham for you. ślamtom

000 dumɔraa wasiv ja apaɔr dɔrɔaw I asked the Tham to send the Wasi to me. beiki ɣfaloik dumɔrɔa what kind of grain do you want? kɔrkɔmatu jotomatu aɔlu dumɔrɔa ba I want two chickens. tobak dumɔr asking for a gun. 42.15. gɔtɔimo dumɔrɔi ka 'ɔrɔa if he asks (lit. asked) you (for the things) don't give them to him. 210.14. Cp. 212.7. -rig dumɔraa* to seek (a person's) hand (in order to kiss it as a token of respect), to kiss s.o's hand. Cp. Sh. kat bɔtɔhɔrki. hin hinɔ iriŋgig dumɔrumaa they kissed each other's hand(s). 90.10. ɔr ɔɔdir ɔɔ ɔriŋ dumɔr nidɔrɔ paying their respects to him and kissing his hand, they depart 314.10. gɔɔɔ gɔgɔrɔ akil ugɔrɔ ɔlɔrɔa? mɔnikiraa dumɔr'a? have your wife and children reared it up like this, or have you got it from some one else? 62.13. Cp. 294,12,13. ɔiɔv dumɔr procure, buy, a goat.

2. To respond to, answer. — ja salam ɔlumɔrimi, he dida' respond to, take notice of, my salutation.

V. Texts, 180.11.n., dumɔrimi is correct and not an error for dumagimi as suggested.

hilumɔ ɣɔr di.'ndɔrɔ, da hilumɔ dumɔrɔrɔ one party start a song and then another party sing in response, 327.4.

(Generalised form of d-mɔraa*).

dumɔl y cloud (of dust, smoke, water i.e. spray?). Syn. Bo. dul'dom.

dumɔlɔaa v. d-mɔlɔaa*.

d'umbal.ɣɔr -ilo x breechloader (gun). Fys.

144 b dəmoʿqʌs to fall out (of hair). Pres. 3rd. sg. y dəmoʿqičila. 000 dəmoʿqəm moulted, bald-head! (term of contempt). IUB. "with feathers-burnt", having lost its feathers through weakness. Also a term of contempt for a man: pʌr suʿxta, baʿl o pʌr jrske kʌmzoʿrise uʃhrʌhe hōʿ, rnsaʿn ko bhi tʌnzan kʌhe jaʿta hai.

(St. Pc. of dəmoʿqʌs. As applied to human beings the metaphor is based on an enfeebled sheep whose wool is falling out, ʌšaʿto belis).

dumoʿdʌm, dumoʿdai.i v. d-ʌtsʌs*.

1. dəm'oʿyo 3rd. sg. hf Pret. of juʿyʌs.

2. dum'oʿyo x a kind of cake made with flour, butter, and milk.

dum'ol a kind of very fine alluvial earth occurring in stratified deposits.

-dəmos, -dəmots, N. -duʿmus*, pl. -dəmočo*, N. -duʿmočo*, knee, hock. — -dəmusə pfuʿl* knee-cap. iʿlji iʿdəmos (the horse's) hock. -dəmočowʌʃt hoʿruʿtʌs* to kneel. ayo ečəmə mədumočotsə duʿn . . . dumoʿmo groaning and grasping her knees (with her hands) she came to . . . 108.20.

dən N., no plural, flock, herd. (Cp. Sh. ek dən lač a herd of goats).

dunaʿt, dəni.a, v. duʿinat.

duʿnʌs, duʿ-, Impv. dun, neg. atuʿn, Ppa. duʿn, St.pc. duʿnəm.

1. To seize, lay hold of, catch, arrest, grasp, hold on to, H. pʌkʌrna. The object seized usually takes the suffix -tsə (and -tsi* forms) and occasionally -ulo. — (čərkowə) huʿntsətsə duʿnimi ke ja hʌyərtsə duʿimi if (the clashing cliffs) catch the arrow, then they will catch my horse. 156,6,8. (Should be x pl. duʿnimi.ə and duʿimi.ə?) inɛ iriŋtsɛ dun catch him by the hand. Cp. 210.6. tɔri(tsɛ) dun catch the polo-ball. bɛstsɛ dun gutsɔrɔai.i he walks holding on to something (as of child, or person with injured leg). ɑtsi dunumʌn they have laid hands on me. 256.6. Cp. 142.26.

With -ulo/

mutɔtulo dun seizing her hand, seizing her by the hand. 114.7. ɔkgumutsulo dun seizing them by the necks. 206.9.

Miscellaneous:

inɛ ka dunǧ gomaima? will you be able to tackle him, grapple with him? 172.11. ɔltʌlikɛ sulʌm'a dunumʌn the two wrestled. 198.5,9. Cp. 174.17.

2. Used of the action of some physical phenomena, e.g. frost, rust etc. — γʌmu dunimi it will freeze. tsiltsɛ γʌmu dunni bi ice has seized on the water, i.e. the water has frozen. tsilɛtɛ γʌmu dunni bi ice has formed on the surface of the water, i.e. the water has frozen over. γʌtenčtsɛ zʌŋ dunila the sword has rusted. xʌlowʌŋ dunitsʌn soot has seized (it), i.e. it is covered with soot. diltɔrɔ γʌǧ dunni.en, dubi.en froth, foam, has formed on the butter-milk.

3. To begin to, to set to. = guntsiŋ ɛγʌnʌstsɛ (or, ɛγʌnʌsɔr) dunimi he began to count the days. 108.1. šuri.ɛš ɛtʌstɛ dunumʌn they began to rejoice. 368.17. (N. domʌs. Cs. d-ʌgunʌs*).

1. duŋ a short time, a little (time), a space of time(?) — duŋ šu ɛtin rest (pl.) for a little. duŋ jɛk maiyam

000 I shall lie down for a little. Cp. 182.12. 302.7, duʷŋ ʌčoʷwər, duʷŋ ʌčoʷkɛ, duʷŋʌnəm, duʷŋʌnər, juʷči he will come in a little, presently, soon. duʷŋ žiga γʌtʌnimi he read for a long short time, i.e. for some time. 70.10. Cp. 302.4.

2. dəŋ -ʌnts x IUB. pudendum muliebre, vulva, H. aurʌt ki šʌrmgaʷh, (fʌrj)ke dʌrmi.aʷn čiʷz. QUB a membrane above the vagina, Punj. pfʌmʌn(?) pfodde ka.

ḍonḍu, -mots x big black beetle, bee, etc. — mʌči.ɛ ḍonḍu honey-bee.

duʷnkɛ 378.4, 388.1. This is an error for doʷn (kɛ) ~~q.v.~~ meaning: all the same, yet.

1. dor y IUB 1. Sleep, H. nind.
2. Death, H. maut, ʌjəl.

QUB "Sleep from which awakening is difficult", or "from which there is no awakening", hence a euphemism for "death". — yɛ dor dosu go to sleep then (and stay asleep). Xodaʷɛ dor dokoʷtsuš may God make you go to sleep for ever (said in anger).

2. dor N. v. ḍoʷr hopper (of mill).

duʷrʌs(?) IUB revolution of time, H. gʌrdʌš i zʌmaʷna. (Not recognised by QUB).

durʼʌts, duʷrʌts, -išo hm envoy, messenger, agent. — duʷrʌts čʷra baiyʌm I had sent a messenger. (Cp. Sh. durʌts).

duʷrbin, pl. duʷrbiŋo, x telescope. — itɛ gʌnər durbin wʌščʌm he used to train a telescope on the road. 36.5. Prs.

duʷrga evil odour, evil-smelling, H. badbuʷ — nʌsə duʷrga dimi an evil smell came, was felt.

dorgʌsuʷto weak, exhausted, played out, H. aʷjɪz. kʌmzoʷr. IYB morda. (Cp. boi.induʷrgʌs).

146 a

λ[see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 543 - Analyst]

000 duʷginʌs, duʷgi- to swarm round, hang-about, H. gɪrd phɪrna. — akhoʷlɛ dʌltʌs gʊsʌn bo, juwaʷyu.ik buʈʌn duʷgi bam there is a beautiful woman here and crowds of young men swarm round. Also used of spies.

durguʷtsikrš -miŋ y very thin poor cotton cloth, shroud, H. kʌfʌn.

dʊrmˈʊšaʷyʌs IUB dʊrmˈʊšʌč- to be anxious, worried, grieved, aʷjɪɛ *-mʌnʌs, H. fɪkərmʌnd, ɣʌmgiʷn hoʷna.

Fut. 1st. sg. dʊrmʊšʌčʌm.

Pret. 3rd. sg. dʊrmʊšʌmi.

St.pc. dʊrmʊšʌm.

muʷni mu.iʷrʊmo kɛ moʷi dʊrmʊšɛču bo when her mother dies a daughter grieves.

durˈo, dʊrˈo, -iŋ, y work, business, job, affair, thing, H. kaʷm. Sh. koʷm, Khow. koʷrʊm. — iʷnɛ bʊšai.ɛ duro iʷnɛ wʌziʷrɛ ɛčʌm his Wazir used to conduct the work, business, of his land. 2.3. zərgər ɛrpʌčim durˈo the work in the hands of the goldsmith. 162.11. uʷnɛ daulʌt ɣʊnikrš dʊroʷiŋʊlo ɛʷrimi he wasted your property in evil works. 370.11. mika uʷŋɛ bɛʷskɛ dʊro api you have no business with us. 38.17. gʊtɛ duʷro bɛ dərkaʷr bila what is the necessity for this? what need is there to do this? gʊsɛ dustsʌk dʊro miči.ʌs(ʌn) bi this thing gives us work, i.e. is useful to us. gʊsɛ dustsʌk dʊroʷwər (or, dʊroʷwɛ) bi this thing is useful, of use. dʊroʷwər šuʷa api it is useless, unserviceable. kinɛ sis dʊroʷwər bɛsʌn lai.rq (yʌški) apai.i this man is unfit for work, i.e. is incompetent, useless for service. Cp. 98.1, 162.11, 366.7, 372.8.

(V. also dəro. Recorded in N. as, doʷroʷ).

146 b

duroʻyʌs, duroʻčʻ to do work, H. kaʻm kʌrna.

Fut. 1st. sg. duroʻčʌm.
Pres. 3rd. sg. m. duroʻčai.i.
St.pc. duroʻm.

QUB. duroyʼʌm amaiyʌm I shall have done work.

duroʻm maimi he will have done work. H. kaʻm kiʻa hoʻga.

(Denom. from durʼo. Cs. *-ʌduruyʌs).

duroʻskuʻin, pl. duroʻskuʻyo, hm. hired labourer, hired servant. — berumʌn duroskuyoʻr(duroʻski.uʻor)šʌpikučai.i? to how many hired servants does he give food? 368.1, 373.4.

(durʼo + s + kuʻin, v. § 21. b).

durust ɛtʌs Gh. Kh. to repair, mend. 380.11. Prs.

ḍus butting. — ḍus dɛli.ʌs, ḍus duʻnʌs to butt, crash together, shoulder, hustle. aʻlta čiško hʌnhʌntsɛ duʻs dɛlji bim the two mountains were butting, clashing together. 154.14. ḍus dɛlʌsʌn bai.i he is a pugnacious man, one who is always ready to take up a quarrel, fight, argument.

dusʼʌlʌṭʌs, dusʌlʼʌšʻ v.i. to fold up, roll up, double up, (metaph.) to be "crumpled up" (by grief, etc.).

Impf. 3rd. sg. dusʌlʌšʌm.
Pret. 3rd. sg. dusʌlʌṭimi.
St.pc. dusʌlʌṭum.

(Cs. dʻ-ʌsʌlʌṭʌs).

duʻsʌs, duʻšʻ, Impv. duʻs, Ppa. duʻs.

There are two radical conceptions attaching to duʻsʌs to which all the more special meanings of the verb can be traced back.

These are: 1. To come, or, go out from + ablative.
2. To come up, go up, (on to + -ʌṭɛ).

147a

In many of its uses it corresponds to H. nɪkʌlna. OOO

I. 1. To come out, go out, emerge, issue, go off, depart. — xʌliˑfa ... hoˑlə duˑšai.i the Mullah comes out (of the grave). 312.4. iˑsɛ dʌntsum dɛl duˑšilum oil used to come out of that stone. 290.3. buˑt tɛil duˑšum tsɛ much water would have come out. 292.10. guˑimo haˑtsum hoˑlə atuˑs don't come out of your house. 286.6. Cp. 2.3. huˑnts iˑtum pər atuˑsum the arrow not having come out to the other side. 146.11. pfu dusiˑla "fire has come out" (said of a fever patient who has got a hot fit). bɛsʌn fai.ɪda dušiˑla? what good comes of it? iˑmo hai yʌkʌlʌʈər duˑsimi he went off to his own house. 140.17.

iˑk duˑsum "name-come-out", i.e. famous, notorious (of man, horse, gun, thief, liar etc.), — iˑk duˑsum γiˑn bai.i he is a notorious thief. u.iˑk duˑsum γiyu baˑn they are notorious thieves.

2. To get out, get free, escape, recover (from illness). — aˑriŋtsum duˑsimi he got off (safely) out of my hands. buˑšaitsum duˑsimi he escaped from the country. askuˑrtsum duˑsai he has recovered from smallpox.

3. To go out, end. — dʌtu duˑsimi autumn has come to an end. ərmaˑn atuˑsum (their) grief not having ceased. 4.7.

4. To cross (a river, ford). — humatsum duˑsʌs to cross the ford. huma duˑšər in order to cross the ford. 112.24. ja baˑgu.ɛ iti duˑša you cross to the other side of my share (i.e. the ford which had been given to the speaker). 114.1. Cp. 114.8. Pisʌnər duʷsʌm he had crossed (?), escaped (?) to Pisan. 266.11. čʷr nimʌn duʷsimi sindatsum, itsiʷtɛ, Krsər kɛ duʷsimi getting into a fright he crossed the river and K. crossed after him. 176.7.

5. To win (in a game or contest).

II. 6. To rise, come up. — sa duʷsas kɛn sunrise (time). gʌmuʷntsum iʷtɛ gʌl da duʷsilum the juniper had come up grown up, again from the root. 214.7. tiktsum xuronč duʷsimi a mist rose from the ground.

7. To climb (up, on to). — čər-, čiš-, tom-, čɪš-, -ɛṭɛ (-ʌṭər) to climb a cliff, mountain, tree, ladder. iʷtɛ mujuʷrʌṭər duʷsin climbing up into the weeping-willow. 262.17. čišɛ yæte duʷsimi he climbed up the mountain. 212.9. 'AminʌN inɛ mʌzərɛṭɛ duʷsimi kɛ . . huyɛs bu.ʌm duʷsi kɛ . . if anyone climbs on to his grave . . if a goat or cow climbs on to it . . . 220.4.

Other examples: principally of I. 1: 4.15, 8.11, 34.9, 110.4, 200.6, 202.1, 204.7, 206.9, 209.17, 222.6, 228.7,11, 240.18, 262.9, 278.1, 282.16, 284.20, 350.3.

EOL gives the N. form as doʷsʌs. (Cp. the trs. verb d-usʌs*. With plur. subjects this verb appears also in the form duwʌše.ʌs, V. BSOS VIII, 1936, p. 628).

d-usʌs* } d-uš-* } Impv. d-us*, Ppa.
d-isʌs* } d-iš-* } d-us(in)*.

The form d-usʌs* is used when the pronoun infix is -a- or -i-, i.e. when the object is 1st. sg. or hm 3rd. sg., x sg., y sg. or pl.

000 The form d-isʌs* has been recorded with the Pn.infixes -ku-, -mu- and -u-.

With d-usʌs* the accent seems to vary: d'iusʌs and di.'usʌs.

With d-isʌs*, from the few examples available, the accent seems to fall as a rule on the Pronoun infix. To take out, bring out, extract; take off (clothes); turn out, expel, repel.

In general it corresponds to H. nɪkalna.

I. d-usʌs* forms. (dausʌs; diusʌs, di.usʌs, dyusʌs).

1st sg. object:

dausiš aiyo.mʌnɔmʌn they were unable to extract me, i.e. to find me out, detect me. 16.17.

hm. sg. object:

wazir . . . d'i.usai.i he turned out (i.e. dismissed) the Wazir. 352.14,19. asmaner di.usimi (the horse) carried him off (from the earth) to the sky. 8.7. daretə di.usʌs to hang, crucify (a man). dušmʌn diusʌs to expel the enemy. wʌtʌntsɔm dyušʌm I shall expel him from the country. Cp. 284.21, 300.13, 314.10.

x sg. object:

bazaretər gʌšər tɔγli.en diusam they have brought out a wether to the bazar for sale. 66.16, 72.19. ise pfut je mar di.ušʌm I'll fetch out, drive out, the Dīv for you. 292.7. Hʌmʌče gotsil di.usʌm. . . . gotsil d'i.us . . . they had opened up (constructed) the Hʌmʌč water channel . . . having opened up the channel. 352.10. Cp. 310.11, 340.1, 352.7,19.

y sg. object:

hikumε γər di.ušam a party start a song. 302.4. tik . . . di.'uʷsuman they took out the earth. 82.7, 286.3, 310.1. 000

y pl. object:

maiyuʷ jimičiŋ di.'uʷsuman you took out, i.e. sacrificed, the lives of your sons. 44.23. gʌtuŋ di.usin pəritiŋ uyon the Peris all taking off their clothes. 16.17.

So: gʌtuŋ di.usʌs to take off one's clothes, undress.

But: tsʌnduqtsum γaibi gʌtuŋ di.usin nupel . . . taking the magic clothes out of the box and putting them on . . . 24.21. Cp. 134.7, 136.1, 330.4, 368.13, 373.18.

II. d-isʌs forms.*

dukuʷisʌm, dukuʷisin I carried you off (from the earth), having carried you off. 8.12. muʷ haʷtsum dumuʷišaʷn. Dumuʷisʌsulo they bring her out from her father's house. As they bring her out . . . 304.13. Cp. 152.11, 244.15. gəroni bʌmʌn uyon . . . duʷišaʷn they bring out all the bridegrooms. 300.12. gilimuts du.is pull out the nails. eʷkin ka esumuts duʷisimi he extracted its liver and kidneys. 68.11. Cp. 80.23, 82.8.

(It is difficult to believe that there is no connection between d-usʌs* and duʷsʌs having regard to the similarity of form and to the fact that they represent the transitive and intransitive aspects of the same concept.

We have, however, to account for the simple form of the pronoun infix (-i- not -e-) in a trs. verb and for the second radical form d-is-*. V. §§ 236.b. & 303).

dʊsoʷkʌs, dʊsoʷkiᶜ-, Impv. dʊsoʷk, neg. atʊsko, Ppa. dʊsoʷk.

To dismount, get down.

Fut. 1st. sg. dʊsoʷkičʌm.

Pret. 1st. sg. dʊsoʷkʌm.

hʌγʊrtʊm (or, hʌγʊrɛʃʊm) dʊsoʷk dismount from the horse. badša hʌγʊrtʊm soʷkimi. Dʊsoʷk . . . The king dismounted from (his) horse. Having dismounted . . . 6.17. Cp. 24.5. jʌtʌqʊlo dʊsoʷkičai.i. Dʊsoʷkʊmər . . . he dismounts at the platform. When he has dismounted . . . 336.11. ʌtʼuskʊm ʌlqʌš isɛ kʊrsi.ɛʃɛ nin hʊruʷtimi without dismounting Alqaš went and sat down on the chair. 80.2.

Here ʌtʼuskʊm is the neg. St. Pc. 3rd. sg. The -o- has been dropped following on the loss of stress as in the neg. Impv. atʊsko. Cp. nukʼuʃkin the Ppa. of gʊʃuginʌs.

(dʊsoʷkʌs is a dᵉ- form of soʷkʌs).

duʷsti y friendship. — jɛ kɛ uŋɛ duʷsti mʌniʷ kɛ should friendship arise between me and thee. 358.1. Prs.

duʷstsʌk, dostsʌk, duʷstʌk x pl. and y pl.; y double pl. -ičiŋ, -iŋ, article, thing, implement, instrument, utensil, pot, dish; pl. also: kit, apparatus, H. ʌsbaʷb.

x when used of kitchen utensils of wood or metal.

y when used of miscellaneous small things.

duʷstsʌk is normally plural. When a single article is referred to, the suffix -ʌn is usually added.

duʷstsʌk bi.ɛn there are kitchen things. duʷstsʌk bitsa there are a lot of (miscellaneous) things. čumaʷɛ dustsʌkʌn an iron implement, utensil. čuk ɛtʌs dustsʌkʌn, dustsʌk (-iŋ) sewing imple-

149 b

[see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 543 - Analyst]

000 ment, sewing appliances. tuˑm bɛsʌn dustsʌk something else. duˑstsʌk baˑrɪš̌, duˑstsʌk baˑri.ʌŋ things (baˑrɪš̌ is an expletive). hʌmʌlɛ haˑkičʌŋolo uˑŋɛ bɛsʌn duˑstsʌk bitsa kɛ if you have any things, or, whatever things you have, in neighbours' houses. 286.5. tɛˑŋošolo buˑt duˑstsʌk bitsum there was much gear in the palace. 222.4. čumərpa dustsʌkər mutɛˑŋɛ seˑiban they call the ironware utensils "mutɛˑŋɛ". 308.5. zərgərɛ bɛsʌn dostsʌkʌn dɛˑsmʌnʌsər rai bilum kɛ whatever article the goldsmith proposed to make. 162.6.

(It is apparently used here as a synonym for ʌsbaˑb which occurs twice in the same passage).

dʊsuˑyʌs. dʊsuˑč-, Impv. dʊsuˑ, Ppa. dʊsuˑn, dʊsʊn.

1. To bring, fetch (y objects only). Cp. d-tsʌs*.

   For forms of past base tenses v. § 289.

   tsil dʊsuˑčai he brings water. 340.7. Cp. 338.5,9,16. jʌwaˑb dusuˑmʌn they brought answer. 24.8. kitaˑp dʊsˈu bring the book. xʌbər dusuˑma? did you bring news? 42.17. Cp. 58.16,20, 60.12,19. hai.ʌnər nʌzər dʊsˈu aim at the mark.

2. Forming verbal compounds with certain y nouns, most of which denote a state of mind or body, v. § 266.4.

   So: dʌm, dʌŋ, ˈdʌk, -moˑs*, rahm, dʊsuˑyʌs v. s. vv.

   bɛsɛ gumoˑs dʊsuwa? why have you become angry?

3. In the negative, dʊsuˑyʌs is generally replaced by atuˑtsʌs (← a + dutsʌs). The forms atuˑtsʊma (68.17) and 000 atu·ša ba·n (82.2) are therefore correct and the footnotes to those may be cancelled. V. Grammar, Corrigenda, p. 454 ad calc.

QUB however asserted the existence also of negative forms from dʊsu·yʌs, e.g. atu·sʊmi || atu·tsɪrmi.

(d-tsʌs* is used with h and x objects. The Causative of both d-tsʌs* and dʊsu·yʌs is d-ʌtsʌs*).

d'-ušc.ʌs*, / d'-ušʌč-* to be maintained, supported, reared.

Fut. 1st. pl. d'ušʌčʌn.

3rd. pl. h. d'ušʌčʊmʌn.

jʌma·ʌt kɛ aiyu·ɛ ka dʊše.ʌs mʊškɪl bila it is difficult for my wife and children to be supported. 34.5.

(d-* form of -ušc·ʌs*).

dʊšmʌn, pl. dʊšmaiyo, dʊšma·yo, dʊšmʌntiŋ, enemy, foe. 28.17, 88.20, 92.24, 94.16, 362.7. Prs.

dʊšmʌni, dʊšmʌnc·i y enmity, hostility. — dʊšmʌni ɛtʌs to show enmity, act hostilely. Prs.

dʊšo·qiyʌs, dʊšo·qič- v.i. to open out, widen, expand, H. khʊlna, khʊljama, Impf. 3rd. sg. y dʊšo·qičilʊm.

Pret. 3rd. sg. dʊšo·qimi.

St.pc. dʊšo·qʊm.

(Cp. šo·qʊm, šʊqʊm loose, roomy).

dʊšu·nʌs, dʊšu·i- to come undone, be loose. — gʌt dʊšu·i bi, dʊšu·ni bi the knot is coming undone, has come undone. dʊšu·nʌs šo·k a running loop, slip knot. ʌlušʊnʌs šo·k a fixed loop.

St. Pc. dʊšu·nʊm loose, unbound. mu·yuyʌŋ dʊšu·nʊm bitsa, her hair is loose, unbound. (Intrans. of d-šunʌs*).

ḍuṭa·ŋkɛ EOL y dawn. Cp. ṭuṭa·ŋkɛ.

ḍuṭʌŋ pl. x -ɪšo, y -iŋ. EOL dark — (ḍuṭʌŋ IYB, said to be the more correct form of ṭuṭʌŋ q.v.).

150 b

/ [see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p.543-Analyst]

duts.hʌnʌs, duts.hai- to become straight; come true(?) be fulfilled. — uŋe ni.ʌt dutsʌnimi your purpose has been accomplished. 42.9. 000

Fut. 3rd. sg. dutsai.rmi.

duts.hʌnʊm straight. gʊse dutsʌnʊm adi·m this straight body of mine. 360.2. (Denom. from ts.hʌn, straight).

dutsʌs, duwš-, v. d-tsʌs.*

dūtsʌs in atūtsʌs (← a + dutsʌs), atuwš-. Supplying negative forms of dʊsuryʌs q.v. § 3.

duwʊ·sʌs
duwʊ·sʊm } v. d-u.ɛsʌs.*

duwʌlʌs, duwʌlj-.

1. To fly (of bird, or Peri), fly away. — pʊritiŋ uyʊm duwʌlʊmʌn all the peris flew away. 14.9, 16.20. duwʌlš amʊmʌnʊmo she was unable to fly. 14.16, 16.20. hikʊm duwʌlʌšo jʊ·nawʊri·k a pair (o flock) of flying animals, i.e. birds 206.11.
2. In the phrase: -ʌski duwʌlʌs* to remember (with longing, or affection), to long for, think of. 52.26, 56.9. V. s.v. -ʌski.*

(Perhaps the root is -bʌl-, seen in bʌbʌl = bʌl + bʌl).

duwʌltʌlʌs, duwʌltʌlj-, v t. to parch, toast, H. bhunna.

Probably with y objects only.

Fut. 1st. sg. duwʌltʌljʌm.

Pret. 3rd. sg. duwʌltʌlimi.

St.pc. duwʌltʌlʊm.

ḍuwʌŋ v. ḍu.ʌŋ.

ḍuwʌq x, Cp. ḍu.ʌk, smashing s.t. forcibly on s.t., smashing. — i·sɛ tiŋjo·ʊlʊm bʌliŋ duwʌq nɛ divusin gʌni·mi smashing (its bones) and extracting the marrow from the bones, he took it . . . 134.7.

151 a

duwʌq nɛ here cannot well govern bʌliŋ which is the object of diˑusin; "the bones" must be understood with it. 000 gəroˑnu.ɛ moč̌uˑškʌʃɛ duwʌq movčai.i . . . . yuˑse γaisɛ duwʌq ɛčvbo the bridegroom gives her a smack with the "moč̌uˑšk" . . . the wife smacks him with the rolling-pin. 306.10.

(Here duwaq ought to be ḍuwʌk, ḍu.ʌk (q.v. supra). Ḍuwʌq, "smashing on", is the "big word" corresponding to the little word ḍu.ʌk, "tapping on").

dəwʌqʌs, dəwʌqič- to become damp, moist, H. nʌmnaˑk hoˑna; tər hoˑna, hojaˑna.

With y subjects only.

Impf. 3rd. sg. y dəwʌqičiləm.
Pret. 3rd. sg. dəwʌqimi.
St.pc. dəwʌqəm.

duwʌsʌs form of dᵊ-u.ɛsʌs used with y subjects.

duwˈʌšɛ.ʌs (-ɛ.ʌs), duwʌšʌč- (-ɛč-), Impv. pl. duwʌšai.in, Ppa. duwʌšɛn.

1. To come out, go out, go off, set out. — yɛ mu duwˈʌšɛčʌn. Duwʌšamʌn haˑtsəm "Now let us go out". They went out from the house. 52.24. padša yuˑgošʌntsər hukɛm ɛtimi: "Mu duwʌšai.in. Mɛntsɛ pfuˑt mamai.i baˑn kɛ iˑnɛ itsuˑin", nəsɛn. Ho duwʌšʌmʌn the King gave command to his daughters saying: "Now go (or, come) out and take whomever you may fall in love with". Then they went out. 120.1.

(I have on several occasions recorded duwʌšʌmʌn as duwʌšəmʌn. I did not at first realise that the verb had a final -a- in the past

000 base and as the vowel is unaccented in this form the difference is in practice slight. So: odoʷri ɛtʌsər duwˈʌšəmʌn they went out to search for him. 10.5. tinjo duwʌšemi.ɛ the bones came out. 82.8. paʷdša kɛ hol iʷti duwʌšɛ bʌm the King and army had come out (i.e. crossed) over to that side (of the river). 146.22. tum gʌnʌnɛ yər duwʌšɛn coming out ahead by another road. 122.20. bʌtɛŋ duwʌši.ʌs (i.e. duwʌšɛ.ʌs) dʌn shale, v. s.v. bʌt̤. Cp. 120.24, 122,4, 192.14. 214.4, 248.10.

2. To win (cp. Engl. "to come out winner, to come out on top"). — uʷ bolaʷr duwʌšʌmʌn they won at polo. mi hʌlimoʷnər duwʌšʌčʌn we shall win (in) the wager.
3. To come out, spring up, appear, become visible. — hərki.ɛ paʷči mʌnuʷmər iʷtsɛ duwʌšʌči.ɛ when the cultivating season has come, those (birds) come out, make their appearance. 206.13. čʌγučiŋ duwʌša bitsəm "chaghu" canes had sprung up. 278.4. intsɛ askuʷr (duwʌšə) bi.ɛn small pox rash has come out, appeared, on him. gʌtu diγʌn juwʌnts du.ʌšrmi (duwʌšʌmi.ɛ?) the cloth becoming old (i.e. getting worn) the threads of the warp came out, i.e. showed.
4. To recover (from illness). — askuʷrtsəm duwʌša baʷn they have recovered from smallpox.
5. To go, to melt, disappear, (of snow). — gyɛ (v pl.) duwʌšʌčitsa the snow is melting. disappearing. gyɛ duwʌšʌmi, duwʌša bitsa the snow melted, has melted.

000 (Only with pl. subj.s. V. duʷsʌs, note at end).

duyˈərʌs, duyˈərč- v.i. to graze (of animals). H. mʌwcʷši ka xʊd čʌrna. — huyˈesʌn duyˈərči bi the goat (or sheep) is grazing.

Pret. 3rd. sg. duyərimi.

St.pc. duyərʊm.

(Intrans. dᵉ- form of ᵉ-yərʌs v.t. to graze).

duʷyʌs, duʷč-; duʷyaiyʌs, duʷyič- v.i. to melt, liquefy (of butter, sugar, snow etc.)

duʷyʌs is used with a sg. subject and duʷyaiyʌs with a pl. subject.

Nz. gɛ (sg.) dučila the snow is melting (of "a large quantity" i.e. probably continous snow).

Nz. gɛ (pl.) duʷyečitsʌn the snow is melting (of "a sprinkling" i.e. probably patches of snow).

Nz. γʌmu gəruʷʊm numˈʌn duʷyimi the ice, becoming warm, melted.

Nz. γʌmu duʷ(y) tsil mʌnimi the ice, melting, became water.

(Cs. with dᵉ-ʌs-: dʷstsuyʌs q.v. Cp. also ʷstʊm).

dᵉ-ɯərʌs, dᵉ-ɯ(ɯ)ərʌs, dᵉ-ɯerč- to come into existence, to come to life (again).

Recorded only in the following:

ja kinɛ ʷi irʌm mu dyuʷrimi this my son had died and has now come to life again. 368.15, 373.21.

di.u(ɯ)erai.i, dyuʷɯərai.i he has come to life again. 370.15, 374.16.

The following forms were given independently:

Fut 1st. sg. daʷɯərčʌm.

Pres. 3rd. sg. m. dyuʷɯərčai.

Pret. 1st. sg. daʷɯərʌm.

2nd. sg. dukuʷərʊma.

Infin. 3rd. sg. m. dyuʷɯərʌs.

dyuʷɯərʌs bai.i he is going to come to life. duwɔrʌšo ba·n they are going to come to life. 000

d-wʌsʌs* v. d-u.ssʌs.*

(d-yaiyʌsr*) d-(y)eč-* to perceive, feel (a smell). — ja amoltwr·ŋ uyʌm nʌsen daiseča ba I perceive a sweet odour with my nostrils. 176.27. je . . . nʌsen daiseča ba I feel a smell. 16.16.

(Possibly a d-* form of -yaiyʌs* to obtain, receive. I have later however been given forms by QUB which suggest an Infin. of the form d'-ʌiyʌs*, e.g. Pres. sg. 1st. daiviča ba, 2rd. dukoviča; 3rd. hm. devičai and so on).

dyuwrʌs v. d-wɔrʌs.*

dyu.ssʌs v. d-u.ssʌs.*

F.

(See also pf & ph under p).

It is doubtful whether f- occurs as an initial sound in true Burushaski words.

I have myself recorded it chiefly in foreign words and frequently with the alternative of pf which again by some people seems to be replaced by ph.

IUB, however, has used f frequently to represent both initial and medial sounds.

fahmdar intelligent, understanding (adj.). (Cp. fa·m). (Ar.) Prs.

fa·l -iŋ y omen. — fa·l brtaiyʌs to take omens (from stars etc. in regard to a journey, theft etc.).

fa·l giyʌs in the following must mean "to soothsay, divine".

its zʌma·nolo pifaiyu nikirʌt fa·l gi bʌm. 376.14.n. Ar. Prs.

fa·m intelligence, understanding (noun). 68.23. Prs.

fawsi Persian. Prs.

fa·rtsin v. pfartsin cap.

153 a

fʌl -ʊʒo little bit (= a "grain") of meat. ooo (The same as 1. pfʌl).

fʌlʊmʊ, fʌlʌmʊ, folʊmʊ such and such a . . . , So and So. — folʊmʊ ĭ'ts dĭtʊr ŝikʊrʊr he his going to go for hunting to such and such a place (not specified in the narrative). 4.14. fʌlʊmʊ, fʌlʌmʊ, gunisʊ on such and such a day. 298.10. Ar. Prs.

'ʌlʊmi N. pʌlʊmi N. same as fʌlʊmʊ.

fʌl'ʌki v. sv. 2. hĭrak.

fʌl'ʌko, fʌl'ʌkus, pl. fʌl'ʌkumots, fʌl'ʌ-krĭo, x weaver's beam.

*-fʌltʌs, -fʌlĕ-, (-pf-) v.t. to break, break up. — bum ĭfʌlĕʌm, bumdo ufʌlĕʌm I shall break up the boulder, the boulders. ĭfʌltʌs to break (a hole in a wall). Cp. d*-ʌfʌltʌs).

fʌqʌt only; that is all, the end, finis. 212.23. Ar. Prs.

fʊr. — mʊ hukum fʊr ʌkʊrtʌ bʊ I have not disobeyed your commands. 374.8. (Probably a variant of 1. pfʊr back. 1YB Ms. fʊr).

fʊrʊj, fʌrʊ'ĕ, -ĭŝo hm. treasurer, steward (of a King, Mir etc.), H. Xazanči. — bazʌrʊfʊr nimi fʌrʊ'ĕlʊr he went to the bazar to the King's steward. 58.18, ff. Cp. 140.13. (Ar. Prs. farrʊ-ĭ?) fʌrʌŋ IUB Englishman (European?) H. ʌŋgrez. Prs. fʌrʌŋgi (← Frank).

fʊrfʊr v. 2. pfʊr. 196.1.

fʊrĭ carpeting. 88.5. Ar. Prs.

fʌsʊd y disturbance, row, mischief. Ar. Prs.

fʌsʊl y. pl. crops. — fʌsʊl bum bitʌn the crops are good. Ar. Prs.

fʌŝ, pfʌŝ finished, used up, exhausted. Bu. syn. dʊɣʌnʌs.

1. With mʌnʌ and ŝtʌs. — dʌɣʊmʌŋ ʊyʊm fʌŝ mʌnʌmʊr ĭniyʊm mʌnimi all the flour has come near to being exhausted, i.e. the flour is nearly all finished. hʌn hisa kha (i.e. xa) fʌš ṅemi it will be exhausted within (lit. up to) a month. kuv fʌš umʌnḑʌn may these people be finished off, done for! 17.7. tʌmʌm alimʌlʌ bilom ite uyom pfʌš stimi be exhausted all (the knowledge) that the sage possessed. 68.22.

2. fʌš stʌs to search. Bu. syn. odovi stʌs. — Bul'ukimo gʌne fʌš ečʌm they were searching for Buluki. 244.19. Čupurʌsʌn uyornolo Irśavdtsom xʌti moš Ramiṇjʌ xa fʌš stimi he searched throughout all Čupurʌsʌn from I. down to R. 284.17. (Cp. Sh. (p)fʌš, finished etc.).

fʌt, pfʌt, phʌt. — fʌt -ʌtʌs. 1. To release, let go, set loose, leave. 2. To let, allow.

1. fʌt ortin let (the horses) go.
fʌt gorčʌn we shall let thee go.
fʌt ečʌn we shall let it go.
fʌt stomʌn, Kisor gutsorimi they let K. go and he went on his way. 156.16. gʌnolo fʌt stom left behind, left lying on the road. kitarb tirkṣṭe fʌt eti leave the book on the ground. je Š. Behram fʌt ne turmʌn ertsučʌm leaving S. B. I will marry no one else i.e. I'll marry no one but Sh. B. 30.15.
Also: 72.8, 158.6.
fʌt eti niče (ničir) / niče fʌt e } let him go.
niyʌsor fʌt e let him go.
ulo juvʌsor fʌt e let him come in.
niyʌsor fʌt aiyo don't let them go in gorpʌčor ʌsir fʌt ayeti don't allow him (to come) near you

000 thama fat ahmar nilam when the Tham has allowed me I shall go, when he lets me, or leaves me at liberty, I shall go.

2. hatsin ke ilak fat manila his thigh and arm have become out of action, i.e. paralysed.

3. ive nasivna.ak fat omanam I have come upon, lighted on, the treasury. 54.8. (Cp. Sh. fat, pfat, phat left etc., and perhaps fate behind, after).

f'ata, pfata y victory, conquest. — fata etas to conquer, defeat. ine ke berumam ongaanimi, pfata atimi he also slew a number of them and he defeated them. 82.7. Ar. Pers.

-f'aporas*, -faporé-, Ppa. n-pafor to peel, flay, skin. — berit ifaporéam I'll peel the apple. if'aporam I skinned it (the lamb). 74.4. ive fuir if'aporimi he skinned the goat (ibex). 102.24. Cp. 134.5. nipafor having skinned it (the calf, lamb). 68.8, 134.5. hayur ke ifaporimi ive ke ifaporimi. Nupafor . . . he flayed both the horse and S. M. Having flayed them . . . 150.9.

f'apori, fat'ori -mig y section, part of (apple, walnut). — tilis hanpatimo ivis f'aporido (faporiser) in the one half of a walnut shell. 136.17. Cp. 138.4.

-f'afi*, -phafi -mets* n forehead. — ifafi lot atimi he frowned. ive ifafiger hereem look at his forehead. 154.21. efafi (ifafi?) fotan him his forehead is small. 158.16. (-fafi* IUB. phafi N.).

faiała, faida y advantage, benefit, profit, good. — guiefum beam faiała dwiila (or, maiła bila) what advantage comes out of this? What good comes of this? ikow faiʒda etas a self-seeking, selfish person. mi gwastawa hawa farida what would be the good of our telling you? 38.16. jaw faiʒda ɪmawas hoi he is going to be of service to me. 92.8. Ar. Prs.

154 b

faiʒala, faiʒela decision, settlement. — faiʒala ɪbawas they decided, settled, the matter. faiʒala mawiwi it has been decided. Ar. Prs.

farkaj pl. farkiʒats swindler, cheat. H. ḥad fel, dhoḥabaz.

fi IUB, v: pfi, mill dues, payment in flour made to miller who grinds the grain, H. ṭaki ki mazdawi. aya jo niyakar 'rwaswa lete hai.

fiʒel y conduct, behaviour, (QUB a word used by the Wazir family). — iwa fiʒel boček bila? how does he behave? Ar. (fi'el).

frkar IUB reflection, thought, H. fikar, ziʒel. Ar. Prs.

filal -iq y mint, H. pudina. (Sh. pfilil).

filam v. pilam woollen homespun.

filta, pilta IUB -ewts z wick; match (of matchlock), fuse. H. fatila, batti. — filta pfetiq tailar azk'in throwing the ashes of the wick into water. 814.4. filtaʒi tobaq matchlock gun. (milizqe) filta fuse (for blasting-charge). (Cp. Sh. fylta). Ar. Prs. (fatila).

fiʒ etas breaking wind, fart, H. gwz.

fikaj IUB farter.

fulard y steel. Prs.

falawa v. falawa.

falyw v. pfalgo feather. Prov. 6.

farsat y leisure, spare time. — farsat ayi there is no time (for it). Ar. Prs.

G.

(See also γ).

Initial γ- is by some in many cases pronounced g-. 000

This appeared in the pronunciation of Nz. and is found in EOL's Nagir records. Medial -γ- is also sometimes similarly replaced.

Regarding the pronunciation of initial γ- as ɣ- v. Gram. pp. XXVIII and XXX.

There appears to be a g which is produced with the tongue more retracted than with the normal g. V. § 6.c.

Initial g- changes to -k- after the negative prefix a-, and the n- prefix of the Ppa., and the Causative *-ʌs-. v. § 10.

1. ga pl. gai.ʌs impv. take! also a mere exclamation to demand attention, "look here", H. lo, le·lo — ga, gutsi uγʌn take these (pebbles) and count them. 52.20. "i·ts γenzā ʌči". "yi ga, ei", nusen ičimo "Give me that gold". She gave it to him, saying: "There, take it my son" 62.29. yi gai.in, mav duʿtsʌm now take (these heads), I have brought them for you. 176.13. bu·ī ga, ma·mu čhuf look here cat! there's a drop of milk, or, spilt milk. (This is probably better than the rendering s.v. 2. čhuf). talryʌm ga bav glossed H. lo! abhi hʌm pārvṭn, bail! 246.15.

The meaning seems to be: Look ox! I am turning round (do you turn round too). Cp. also herga.

(Perhaps related to gʌnʌs to take, of which there is a form of the Ppa. lacking the -n viz. nuka. Cp. § 325).

2. ga v. γa crow.

155 b

OOO gaʸhe, gaʸhi + negative, never. — gaʸhi menər čʌγa aiyɛčʌm I shall never tell anyone. 118.25. jɛ gaʸhe açučʌm I will never come. 76.15. Cp. 34.9.

gaʸl -iŋ y wound, sore. — kiʸnɛ gaʸl mʌniʸla he has been wounded. kinɛ jɛ gaʸl aʸtimi he wounded me. gaʸlʌṭɛ mʌli.ʌm ɛʸdilʌs to put ointment on the sore. gaʸlʌṭɛ mili xʌš ɛtʌs to rub "medicine" on the wound, sore. diʸruɛ gaʸl bullet-wound. 358.4. (Cp. Sh. gaʸl).

qaʸlin EOL pl. gaʸliʸyo carpet.

(The g is marked as peculiar. Probably N. variant of qʌli, Turk. Prs. qaʸliʸn and gaʸli, knotted-pile carpet. qaʸliʸn is used both in Sh. and Kho.; in the latter for a woven carpet).

gaʸljo, kaʸljo sg. and pl. x a species of wild dog(?). Explained by IUB as H. giʸdʌr and IYB and QUB as šʌγaʸl, i.e. jackal. The jackal however does not occur in the Gilgit region. It was elsewhere given as the equivalent of Sh. kōʸ, Kho. koʸγ, which appears to be a kind of wild dog.

(Leitner gives gál pl. gálju with the remark "this seems to be a kind of ounce, perhaps the baghbiáro of Gilgit".

He thinks that the kō is a species of wild dog, the canis rutilans, v. "Dardistan" p. 66).

gaʸn N. pl. gaʸyo x cp. γa crow.

1. çaʸr y giddiness, H. sʌrmē čʌkkʌr aʸna. — kʌpʌlɛ gaʸr jučila giddiness (of the head) is coming on. gaʸr din wʌlimi giddiness coming (on him) he fell. 132.24. (Cp. Sh. gaʸr).

2. -gaʸr, -gaʸri v. iḍigaʸr.

156a

000 gaʷrčaiyʌs, gaʷrčeʷʌs, gaʷrčʲʌč-, v. gʌʷrtsʌs, to run etc.

A parallel form of gaʷrtsʌs used only with pl. subjects. V. BSOS VIII, 1936, p. 628.

ivtsi gaʷrčʌmʌn . . . ivtsi gʌʷrče.ʌsər . . . they rushed upon him . . . when they rushed upon him . . . 276.9. Cp. 16.18, 134.18.

gaʷ gaʷ ɛtʌs, also gaʷ and gagaʷ, v.t. to stir. — baiyu (ga)gaʷ ɛtʌs to stir round and mix salt in food. kʌpun gaʷ gaʷ ɛtʌs to stir with a spoon. (Cp. 1. gaʷ).

gaʷrtsʌs, garš-, Ppa. nukaʷrts(in). V. also gaʷrčaiyʌs.

1. To run, gallop.
   Pret. 1st. sg. gaʷrtsʌm.
   ər nimʌn gaʷrtsimi. gaʷršəmɛ gaʷršəmɛ hi thaʷnər niči bim (the bear) ran off in alarm. Running on and on he was coming to a place. 228.12. bɛʷs gaʷrš'a why are you running? 228.15. "itɛʷtsəm gaʷrša ba" mosimi "(it is) for that reason I am running" he said to her. 230.3. Cp. 368.9, 373.12.
   hʌγər gaʷrtsimi the horse galloped. həmʌlkəm gaʷrtsʌsʌn bi it is a swift galloper, a good racer.
2. To run away, flee. — ar nimʌn gaʷrši he will be frightened and run away. 144.11. D. M. uyaʷrəm nukaʷrtsin D. M. fleeing from before them. 264.19. Cp. 204.9, 262.13.
3. Accompanied usually by -ʌʃɛ and -tsɛ to rush upon, charge, attack. — uʷɛ hoʷlʌʃɛ gaʷrtsumʌn they charged, attacked the army.
   uyʌʃɛ gaʷrtsʌm I attacked them. iʷnɛ padša yʌkʌlʌʃər hahʌn nɛtʌn gaʷrtsimi raising a shout, he rushed upon, charged, the king. 32.4. 000

4. Accompanied by *-tsi to run after, pursue. — utsi gaʷrtsin follow them up, run after them.
5. To flow, pour down. — mʊltʌn iʷse giʷli.ʌʃər gaʷrtsumər when the blood flowed on to the peg. 196.1. gowr gaʷrši bi the waterfall pours down.
6. Miscellaneous: — kha gaʷrtsʌs (gaʷrš-) to throw oneself down (as from a cliff for suicide). hʌγʊrtsʊm ilji ne kha gaʷrtsʊmo she flung herself down backwards from the horse. 146.17. čop gaʷrtsimi he jumped down. 174.16. N. (ine) dʌtʌγər dilʊm, inšaʷlla gaʷrši he had fever, D. V. it will pass off. Hz. dʌtʌγər gaʷrtsila the fever has passed off. goʷtsile iʷl moʷs diʷn gaʷrtsimi a flood coming down the sluice was carried away. QUB. (aʷstʌm) gaʷrtsʊm bila (or, eskərtsʊm bila) the case is settled, has been settled. je ke ja aʷuy hərʌŋolo gaʷrtsila an estrangement has arisen between me and my father. QUB. iʷl gaʷršila his means of subsistence are cut off. QUB.

(The Ca. is *-ʌskərtsʌs corresponding to 1 and 2 above: to make run, put to flight; corresponding to 5: to make pour down; corresponding to 6 (aʷstʌm gaʷrtsʊm): to settle a case. V. § 236 b).

gaʷša v. quʷbrli.

gaʷtaʷŋ pl. of γʌtenč q.v., swords.

gatu pl. gatʊŋ v. gʌtu cloth, clothes.

gaʷt male, seeking the female, rutting. — hʌn gʷiri hʌldene gaʷtʌn din . . . hərə bim a male ibex (which was rutting?) had urinated. 270.1. gaʿtɛ itɛ hərʌšʌʈɛ mɛ.i hərʌʿto bo our daughter has become pregnant by the urine of the male (rutting?) ibex. 270,4. giʿri gaʿt mai.i bi the ibex is rutting. giʿri gaʿt mʌnimi the ibex has paired, mated(?) = jʌmaʿʌt ɛtimi. QUB. 000 gaʿuʿn N. x sg. and pl. v. γoʿn musk melon. — gaʿuʿn šuʿyʌs to eat musk melons. (Cp. Sh. goʿʌn, GB. gʌwʊn).

gayu sg. and pl., double pl. gayoʿnts x the red-legged hill partridge, "chikor". — gayu tiʿšolu du.ʌlimi the chikor flew down the wind(?) or in the air(?). gayu bʌsimi the chikor alighted. gayu.ər bɛsʌn araʿm? what peace (is there) for the chikor? 356.6.

1. gʌbi pl. gʌbʿents x reed (used for musical instruments and also with tobacco-pipes), tube. — čilimɛ gʌbi tube of tobacco-pipe. čoʈʌle gʌbʌnts stems of rhubarb plant, used for musical pipes. 378.16.
2. gʌbi N. -mʊts x horse's bit. (Cp. Sh. gaʿpi).

gʌčʌnč N. -išo v. gʌsʌnč falcon.

gʌčhɛ, gʌčhi pl. gʌčhɛŋ y twig, especially osier twig, withe.—gʌči isərkʌs to beat with withes. Prov. 14. (Cp. Sh. gʌčhi).

gʌdaĩ ɛtʌs to beg. Prs.

gʌjʌt ɛtʌs.

1. To scrape, scratch. — gʌjʌt ɛtʌs to strike (a match). pfu gʌjʌt ɛtʌs to strike fire (with flint and steel). gʊnts gʌjʌt ɛtimi he struck off a day (from the reckoning). 52.10. paʿdša ɛʿmɛšʌʈɛ gʌjʌt nɛ lʌš ɛtimi the king, scraping (the marrow) with his finger licked it (i.e. he drew his finger over the marrow and then licked it). 138.7.

000 2. To pull off, cut off. — mumuʻpoš gʌjʌt moʻ cut off, pluck off, her nose for her. 152.5,7. Cp. 176.18 where čoruʻk is given as an alternative and gʌjʌt is written with g-.

3. With -tsi to intrigue against; seek excuse to find one at fault, persecute. — iʻtsi gʌjʌt ɛtʌm I intrigued against him. thʌmɛ atsi gʌjʌt ɛčai.i the Mīr is seeking excuse to find me at fault.

gʌjɛri N. -mots x horse-cloth, "jhul". (Cp. Sh. gʌjəri, Kho. gʌjʌri).

gʌjɛti, gʌjʌti N. -mots x Cp. gʌčʌto, match (lucifer). — gʌjɛti kʌč (=khʌš?) ɛtʌs to strike a match. gʌjʌti dʌbi match-box.

(The g is marked as peculiar. Cp. Sh. kʌčʌti, GB kʌčʌti).

gʌkʌči, gakʌči -mots, -šo h stutterer, stammerer. — gakʌčišo, gakʌčimotsik baʻm they are (a lot of) stammerers. gʌkʌči kaʻpo term of contempt for a stutterer (explained as "a kind of bird that stutters", which seems an unfair description of the cuckoo — kaʻpo — whatever its vocal demerits). (Cp. Sh. kakaʻčo, Kho. kaʻkʌči).

491 1. gʌl -ɛŋ, -joŋ(?) y "rope-bridge", suspension bridge (made of cables of twisted birch twigs, of which the ends are anchored on each side of the river under heaps of stones). Punj. (Kaŋgra) jhula.

In the following gʌljon (i.e. gʌljoŋ?) must be a plural form of this word. čomʌrɛ gʌljon gʌičumʌn they will construct iron bridges. 188.5. (Cp. Sh. gʌl, country bridge).

000 2. gʌl -joŋ, -joŋ y juniper tree. 214.2. ff. — gʌl dir v. sv. dir. 256.8.

158 a

000 gʌla (grammatical pl.) x herd, flock. — hik gʌla bi.ɛn there is one herd. gʌlai.ik nuɣyɛn . . . dunumʌn they came . . . taking (i.e. with) herds. 158.23. Prs.

gʌlabaɣn sg.(?) and pl. hm. herdsman. — gʌlabaɣn dunumʌn herdsmen came. 158.23. Prs.

gʌlʌs, gʌlj-, Ppa. nukʌl, v.i. to break. The corresponding transitive verb is yʌlʌs. V. § 229.

Fut. 3rd. sg. gʌlji.

inɛ yutis ya išʌk gʌlji·lɔm (Impf. 3rd. sg. y) his leg or arm used to break. 220.5. ɛtsɛ kɛ utis gʌlji bim their (goat or cow) leg also used to break. 220.6.

(Note that *-utis in the sg. is x). gɔtɛ (žamɛ) gʌli kɛ if this bow were to break. 172.1. gʌlimi it (the polo stick) broke. bʌlk gʌlila the plank has broken. ja bɛsʌn gʌli bi.a? has any part of me broken, been broken? gɔtɛ nukʌl this having broken. 172.1. uɣɛ guriŋ gʌlš may your hand be broken! (sc. "as you have struck me with it" — a woman's curse). gušʌk gʌlš, or gʌlɔm may your arm be broken! gʌlɔm bi, gʌlɔmɪšo bi.ɛn it is broken, they are broken.

Metaphorical:

Alqʌšɛ ximoɣr gʌlimi A.'s desire was broken, i.e. was satisfied. 68.15.

gʌlči occasion, time, turn. — hik gʌlči once. yʌt gʌlčər ʌkil aiyɛ don't do so the next time, another time. yʌt gʌlči (or, gʌlčər) bɛšel dɔkɔma kɛ next time when you come. gɔtɛ gʌlči on this occasion, this time. 78.11.

(Probably gʌlt + či, v. sv. gʌlt & § 71).

158 b

gʌlgi -čʌŋ y. 1. Wing, fin. 2. Wooden side piece of saddle tree (in N. including the padding on under side of it called in Hz. yuʷrγʌli). 000

1. gʌli -mʊts x blanket. — je uʷŋ gʌliʷlo dʊkuʷmʌšʌm I'll wrap you up in a blanket. Cp. 308.4. hʌγʊrɛ gʌli a horse blanket. gʌli gʌtu an outfit of clothes. oʷimʊr gʌli gʌtu nʊmoʷtʌn preparing a set of clothes for their daughter. 282.1.
2. gʌli -mʊts x vertical section of cloth of a choga. — šʊqa indil gʌli front section of choga. meʷkʌt yaʷrʊm gʌli section of choga from armpit down. (Cp. Sh. gaʷliŋ, gʌliŋ, front, or skirt, of coat).

gʌliŋ, galiŋ y pl. steps, stair, staircase, (of stones or cut in earth). 364,7, Prov. 34. (Cp. Sh. gaʷliŋ, path made on a cliff).

gʌliʷz v. γʌlis sick, ill.

gʌlt y v. also gʌlči, occasion, time, turn, chance. — kinɛ . . . hirɛ kaʷr mʌnaʷsʊr gʌlt diʷmi this man's turn came to patrol, 38.2, kinɛ ka gʌlt nɛ sʊlʊma duʷnin you (pl.) wrestle in turn with this (boy), 106.7, da uʷŋʊr gʌlt bišaiyʌm I have given you another turn, chance, 148.11. tsitɛ gʌlt (one's) turn for (irrigation) water. 262.4, 266.15 ff. Cp. 280.7, 350.2.

gʌltar, gʌltʊr -iŋ y small branch.

gʌltʌš -išo x centipede, earwig.

It is credited with entering a person's ear, eating his brains and so rendering him mad.

gʌltoʷr, kʌltoʷr -išo x big wooden water-conduit (xuʷr) carried over a torrent bed (moʷsɛ hʊr). (Cp. Sh. (obsolete) kʌltuʷr, bridge).

qʌmiʷʌs, gʌmič- to pay, repay, recompense (with y objects). — uŋɛ uʷj gʌmiđʌm I'll pay you your debt (i.e. what I owe you). mar gʌmiʷđʌm I'll pay you compensation(?), H. qʌsaʷɛ ʌda karuŋga. (With x objects the form is *-yʌmi.ʌs). 000 gʌmpfuʷri, (gʌz-), -miz y ceremonial axe (carried by the bridegroom at his wedding). 300.7.

gʌmuʷn pl. gʌmuʷyo x bottom, lower part (of anything); stump, root (of tree), trunk up to first branches (probably only of low-branching trees). — Uyuʷm Dʌsɛ gʌmuʷnolo at the lower end of U. D. 204.11. Ґolmɪrtɛ gʌmuʷnolo at the lower end of, below, Gh. 276.3. iʷtɛ tiʷli gʌmuʷntsum delin cut down that walnut tree from the roots. 200.4. gʌmuʷntsum iʷtɛ gʌl da duʷsilum the juniper had come up again from the stump. 214.7. Pl. gʌmuʷyo stubble. N. gʌmuʷnolum lowest. (Cp. Sh. gʌbuʷn).

gʌn, gan -iŋ, -ɛŋ y road, path, track, way. — gʌnolo (IUB gʌn gʌnolo) on the road, on the way. gʌn ni bila the road has gone, i.e. goes . . . . . ja bušai.ɛtɛ gʌn bʌliʷla the road has fallen, i.e. passes, over my land. gutɛ gʌnʌtɛ jɛ hik daiyʌm ba I have once come by this road. 124.21. gutɛ gʌnɛ ju come by this road. 104.15. uŋɛ bušaiyɛ gʌn kɛ akeʷya ba the road to your country also I do not know. 104.13. Cp. 28.5. gʌnɛ xərči travelling expenses. 88.27. gʌn-hɛnum acquainted with the road, a guide. jatsum kɛ burt Šahri Bamu duʷinaʷtɛ gʌn hɛnum bo Sh. B. is much better acquainted with the road to the world than I. 22.2. Cp. 28.17.

(gʌnaʷs?) EOL ga.ič-, v. 2. ʌnaʷs, to leak.

159 b

000 gʌnʌs, gai-, Impv. gʌn, neg. ʌkʌn, Ppa. nokʌn, noka. To take etc. with y objects only. With h and x objects the verb yʌnʌs is used.

1. To take, take with one, carry. — ja γeniš gukəre gai.i ba? are you taking my gold for yourself? 60.4. gote γeniš akərər gaiya ba I am taking the gold for myself. 60.6. tsil gaiyʌm, gaiyen, gʌnumʌn I shall take, let us take, they took, water. 124.15,26, 126.1. γʌšil nokʌn daiya ba I have come bringing fire-wood with me. 126.11. Cp. 128.7, 134.16. tobʌk gaʼtaʼŋ noka . . . nuʼn taking guns and swords and going . . . 194.15, Cp. 120.24. γʌtenč gotsi gʌn take the sword with you. Thʌme jaʼtsom bošai.i ganimi The Tham took (my) land from me. alʌm gai.i baʼn they take, i.e. carry, the flag. 252.18.

   Metaphorical:

   maʼr gʌnʌs to take vengeance, avenge. je maʼr gaiyʌm I shall take revenge. hokəm akʌnʌs not to take, i.e. to disobey, an order. gote čʌγa nokʌn paʼdša eʼrəršuwʌle duʼwʌn they came with the story to the King's sons-in-law. 130.22. ja kʌnaʼo gʌn take my advice. 52.3.

2. To seize, capture. — Hindi gʌnaʼn they have captured, seized, Hindi. 266.21. Sərkaʼr ʌngriʼzi Hunzo nokʌn The British Government having seized Hunza. 196.9.

3. To obtain, get, procure. — inelər nokoʼn hik seʼr mʌltʌš gʌn going (i.e. go) to him (and) get a seer of butter. pʌči gaiyʌm I shall get obtain, cotton cloth. taxpa gaiyʌn I shall get information. 136.25.

000 4. həri.ɛ pfʌl nʊka the barley having formed its grain. 326.4.

5. With γʌmu as subject, with the sense of to freeze (intrs.). — γʌmu gæni bi it has frozen. koktsɛ γʌmu gʌnɛ bi ice has formed on these. 132.5. ta.očiŋtsɛ tʌwa· γʌmu nukʌn hard frost having formed(?) on the foot-bandages. 132.3.

(The Imperative ga "take" is possibly connected with this verb).

gʌnç pl. ga·ŋ y spindle (made of juniper wood; used for spinning thread). V. also s.v. dikʌrʌs.

gʌnɛ, ga·nɛ for, for the sake of, because of, on account of, in order to. — u·ŋɛ gʌnɛ for your sake. gʊtɛ gʌnɛ on this account, because of this. u·ŋ guyɛtsʌsɛ gʌnɛ in order to see you. 8.11. Cp. 14.11, 42.22, 128.7, 156.4. For other examples v. § 81.

gʌŋi -čiŋ, N. -čʌn y axe. — gʌŋi.ɛtɛ ɛ·skərtsʌs to cut with an axe. gʌŋi ma·ŋ bitsa there are tools (axe, saw etc.) (ma·ŋ is pl. of mʌnç adze). -i·tɛ ti·liɛtɛ gʌŋi isərkumʌn they brought down an axe on the walnut tree, i.e. they gave it a chop with an axe. 200.5. Cp. 308.3.

gʌndɪr Nz. v. γʌndɪr crooked.

γʌn-hɛnʊm -ɪšo, v. s.v. gʌn, gnide, etc.

γʌp -ʌnts, N. -ai·nts x hide (of ox, buffalo, camel, horse, donkey). — hərɛ gʌp ox-hide. bu·a gʌp cow-hide. dʌγu·ɛ gʌp raw hide. 158.1. Cp. 134.8,15, 136.1. yʌtamʊrʊm gʌp prepared hide.

gʌpʌl N., v. kʌpʌl, head.

gər -iŋ y marriage. — ki·nɛ f.:lɛmə ɛ.imʊ ka gər ɛtimi he married So and So's daughter. gusɛ i·nɛ hirɛ ka gər ɛtʊmo the woman married that man. ma gər

160 b

ɛča ba I am going to arrange your marriages, I am going to marry you off. 116.19. ja gər kɛ uŋɛ gər nala ečɛn we shall celebrate my marriage and your marriage at the same time. 184.3. M. D.ɛ ka (ɛpi) gər ɛtimi, imo kɛ gər ɛtimi he married his grandmother to M. D. and also effected his own marriage. 184.9. ja ɛiyɛ gər bila my son's marriage is (to come off). 10.10. gəriŋ ɛspʌsʊmʌn they finished off the marriages. Cp. 16,1. gər aiyˈɛtʊm bom she was unmarried. 244.13. 000

For details of the Hunza marriage customs see Text No. 33. See also the entry s.v. duk.

Add: A payment of a "bari", Rs. 12, is made to the Mir. The Mir and Wazir also receive payments of butter, and the four tribal muqaddams are each entitled to 1½ seers (3 lbs.) of butter. In practice they receive a half or a third of this. 585

(Cp. Sh. gər marriage).

gəraˈri scattered, strewn about, lying about. — ʌšdərɛ torʊmʊts fˈərilo gəraˈri ɛtaiɛi he has strewn the fragments of the dragon about in the pond. 284.1. gəraˈri mʌniˈtsa they (y) have been scattered about, they are lying about. uˈɛ guˈtʌšo gəraˈri no fʌt ɛtʊmʌn scattering their corpses about they left them there. 240.9. gəraˈrɛ jʌqər a pitchfork (for tossing threshed crops). 000 gərˈeɛi Hz. -mičiŋ, N. -mičʌŋ y shears.

gəreˈltʊm hərʌy "the tribe of Gərɛlt" a name given to a kind of bird (presumably collectively). They are black with white on the head and have long necks, frequent river-sides 136 and sit and fly in lines — a kind of dipper or cormorant (?). 136

Regarding their reputed origin see 206.12.

gəreẓ (gəreẓi, gəre.i) piebald, variegated in colour. — gəreẓi buʌm a piebald cow. 186.4. 000

(V. γəreẓ, which is supported by QUB).

1. γəri pl. gəreẓ y lamp (with wick floating in oil), light. — gəri 'espʌljʌm, črraq espʌlʌsulo they light lamps ... when they light the lamps ... 314.2. Buri Bumulo gəri me.ibilum there was a light at B. B. 234.3. gəri tiš numʌn thʌmi wind coming, the light went out. gəri.e rʌš lamp-light.

Probably γəri 1 and 2 are the same word.

2. gəri -ẓ y. — -lčine gəri pupil of the eye.

IUB milčin gəri = H. ʌmkh ki putli.

gərib v. γəriᵽ poor.

gərk pl., double pl. -ints, -ents x peas (seeds and growing crops). — gərken a single pea. gərk bi.en there are peas. gərkə hərki etʌm they have sown peas. N. gərk small shot (buck-shot?).

gərkus -išo marriageable. — gərkus dʌsin a marriageable girl. gərkus(išo) dʌsiwʌnts, hilešo marriageable girls, lads. gərkus mʌnu bom she had become marriageable. 268.2.

gərma -muts x a kind of bread (thinner than pfiti) cooked with vegetables.

gərmun x eagle, a large bird used for hawking, H. 'ugab, škkari pʌrind.

gʌrra' N., Mck. collar-bone, clavicle. (Cp. Sh. gʌrai, gʌrra, Kho. gəravi).

gəroni -muts hm and hf (gen. sg. f. -mu). Bride, bridegroom; sg. form as pl., party accompanying bride or bridegroom.

161 b

[see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 543 - Analyst]

000 1. gəroˑni dʌsin bride. gəronimʊts bride and groom. tsʊˑr gəronimʊtsʊm ʌxʊˑnɛ doγˈʌrʊšai.i . . . da gəronitsʊm doγʌrʊšai.i . . . first the mullah enquires of the bride . . . then he enquires of the bridegroom. 302.18. gəronimo muˑɛ haˑlɛ in the house of the bride's father. 304.5. gəroˑni bride. 304.17,19.

2. gəroˑni gʌtʊŋ nɛˑɛtʌn making the bridegroom put on clothes. 300.6. gəroˑni bʌmʌn uyoˑn all the bridegrooms there are. 300.11. gəroˑni bridegroom. 300.10. gəroˑni hilɛˑs bridegroom. 302.11.

3. gəroˑni uˑimo hakičʌŋər ničaˑn the bride's party go off to their own houses. 304.20. Cp. 234.5, 304.13,19. Cp. also 302.10,12,13 said to refer to bridegroom's party.

(Cp. Sh. gəroˑni, party accompanying bridegroom to bride's house).

gəroˑno -mʊts hm bridegroom. — gəroˑno (hilɛˑs) bridegroom. gəroˑnomʊts inˈɛ ka girʌšaˑn the bridegrooms dance with him. 302.7. gəroˑnuˑər (tsil) ičičai.i he gives the bridegroom the water. 304.3. gəroˑnuˑɛ haˑlər to the bridegroom's house. 304.10,15,16. gəroˑno kɛ gəroˑni the bridegroom and bride. 304.17. Cp. 306.9,18.

(gəroˑno would be a regular Sh. masculine form corresponding to a feminine gəroˑni and it seems probable that the words originally meant bridegroom and bride, though Sh. gəroˑni now means bridegroom's party).

gəru y, gəruˑki y spring (from the spring equinox to the summer solstice), spring-time, "Early Spring" (about the month of March). — gəru (or, 000 gəruˑki) di bila, mʌniˑla spring has come. it has become spring. dʌtu gəruˑ mʌrˑu ččˑam they wash for gold in autumn and spring. 348.6. gəru aisi atuˑmʌčila spring doesn't suit me.

262 "People are slack in spring and sleep much. They extract apricot-water (gəruˑki čʌmuˑs diˑuˑšan) and eat wheat bread if available. In winter they eat buck-wheat and barley bread". Vide also Text No. 39 end.

000 gəruki v. gəru.

gəruˑkus period following Thuˑmušeliŋ (midwinter), when the days slightly lengthen and the air is warm like an ox's breath (hərɛ ši yaˑnɪs gəruˑrum maiˑi bila).

gəruˑm N. y pl. -iŋ hot. — sa gəruˑm mʌni bi the sun has become hot. (Cp. Hz. gəruˑrum, Werch. gəruˑm).

gəruˑmkuš, gəruˑŋkuš McK. and GR. typhoid fever. (Cp. Hz. gəruˑrumkuš).

gəruˑmo pertaining to spring (V. s.v. gəru, but usually referring to earlier part of that period). — gəruˑmo ken spring season. gəruˑmo wʌxˈulo in spring-time. 100.1.

Used independently:

gəruˑmo in spring. 186.1, 274.10, 334.8, 350.1. gərumulsum from (the beginning of) spring. 350.4.

(Derived from gəru).

gəruˑrum pl. h and x -ršo.

1. Hot, warm. — iˑtɪ bər . . . but abaˑd da gəruˑrum bilum that nullah was (then) very populous and warm. 238.4. pfu juwʌn gəruˑrum as hot as fire. hiˑš gəruˑrum very warm (of sun, or fever patient). (taˑočiŋ) pfuˑʌtɪ gəruˑrum nɪ warming (the foot-bandages) at the fire. 132.6. Cp. 326.2.

162 b

2. Friendly, well-disposed. — gəruᵊrum sisʌn an intimate friend. 298.3. ja gəruᵊrumʌšo baᵊm they are friends to me.

3. As a noun: heat. — gəruᵊrum (-ʌ ʌbʌb)-tsum owing to the heat. buᵊt (or, hiᵊʌ) gəruᵊrum bila there is great heat (or, it is very hot?)

gəruᵊrumkuʃ y heat, warmth: affection, well-wishing, gratitude; fever. — uᵊʌs šu.akuʃe gəruᵊrumkuʃ ja ʌsulo bila I am grateful for your kindness. EOL. ("gratitude for your goodness is in my heart"). gəruᵊrumkuʃ uᵊʌs gosulo bila, baᵊ? are you grateful or not? EOL. i-toi gəruᵊrumkuʃ ʌuᵊila he has got fever. QUB.

gərzʌŋgaᵊt N. -ršo x seesaw. (Cp. Kho. zʌŋgu, a swing. Paht. zʌŋgeᵊdəl, to swing).

1. gʌs pl. gʌšu hf princess. — uᵊʌ gʌšuᵊr to those princesses. 116,12. hin gʌsʌn baᵊm, iᵊnmo muᵊik Buᵊbuli Gʌs bilum there was a Princess, her name was Princess Buᵊbuli. 142.21.

2. gʌs pl. gʌšu x woof yarn. — gʌs diᵊwlʌs to wind up woollen yarn. gʌšuᵊʌ loʃo ball of yarn for woof.

3. gʌs, gʌz sg. and pl. yard. — hik, alto gʌs one yard, two yards. aᵊlto ta gʌs ᵊka nuᵊm going with it 200 yards. 310.11. Prs. H.

gʌsʌnč, gʌšʌnč pl. gʌsaᵊnts, gʌsaᵊnč x hawk (general term). 102.15, 246.15.

gʌš -miŋ y price, cost, value, sale. — gʌš beᵊrumʌn bila? what is the price? gʌš beᵊrumʌn sča? how much do you make the price? i.e. how much are you asking for it? buʃ gʌšᵊr bi it is very costly. hiᵊʌn gʌš bila it is very highly priced. gosʌ gʌš mimutsum gʌn recover its price from us. gaš ɛtas to sell. γɛnɛš xɔrʌn ačimi, "Gots gaš ma ivɛs tɔγoli ditɛo" azmi he gave me a "khar" of gold and said: "sell (or pay?) this and buy the lamb". 72.21. gašɔr yanas (ganas) to buy, purchase. γɛnɛšɛn bila gaštɔr dusuya ba there is gold I have brought to sell. 58.20. guts γɛnɛšɛ gaš akɔγa ba I don't know the price, value of this gold. 62.6. γɛnilɛ gaštsum kaman ačima ke . . . if you give me less than the value of the gold . . . 58.24. ɛts gaš tsundo rupia bian Rs. 5 are the price of it i.e. it costs, is worth, Rs. 5. 204.7. (Cp. Sh. gaγ).

gaštsum salt sweet (i.e. tasting both salt and sweet). — šakɔrs čaiolo baiγu ɛtumɔr gaštsum maiá bila when salt is addbd to tea with sugar in it, the tea becomes gaštsum.

gaši pl. gašeŋ y fir, pine tree.

gašil N. and Nz., v. γašil, stick, firewood.

gašk -o x rope (thick, for tying loads, for swings etc.). — gaškolo ikɔr wašimi he hanged himself on a rope (suicide). gašk čat sti break, snap, the rope. gaško n'uyen . . . joŋs šɔrkotsɛ tʌk novʌn qu mai.ibaŋ taking ropes and tying them to the branches of apricot trees, they swing. 316.12. |

1. gaškur -iŋ y a tree bearing a small, sour, green kind of cherry.
2. gaškur sg. and pl. x the fruit of the preceding.

1. gaf -ants, N. -avints x.
   a. Knot (in string etc.). — gaf wašiʌs to tie a knot.
   b. Knot (in wood), swelling caused in tree by suppressed shoot.
   c. Knuckle (of finger). — memiʌntɔ gafʌnts the knuckles of our fingers.

000

d. A point of completion or maturity. — yoṡ gaf a whole year, H. ari bhar. yoṡ gafo gonisiṇ nitsan counting the days of a whole year. 104.15. V. also s.v. yoṡ. (Cp. Sh. gaf, knot in wood, node of reed etc.).

2. gaf y enmity, grudge, spite, malice, H. hima, Ilu. synonym ṡsl. — i-ne jaṡka gaf bila he has enmity against me, he bears me malice. gaf ayoṡ don't bear spite. (Cp. Sh. gaf, enmity, malice, spite).

gafow, gafić.

1. Accompanied by -ñsi, -ise, to bite (of dog, horse, snake), to apply the mouth to [illegible] the snake bit me. ese gutsi gafići it (the dog) will bite you. imek gafow to bite with (its) teeth. tsiltse gafimi he put his mouth to the water (in order to drink). 146.8. tsiltse gafi bi it (cow etc.) has drunk. tsiltse gafuwati.i he has drunk (kneeling down and lapping up water).

2. To stick into, penetrate a little. — a-lta hwase khale yutiṇulo gafi bi.s two arrows have stuck into the legs of the bed. 260.16. ersafor lim kaman gafimi the arrow-head penetrated a little into his heart. 148.18. tiṡik tikulo gafum bila ki if the dagger is sticking (upright) in the ground. 198.11,13. Cp. 218.8.

3. To be effective, carry weight. — ja lor thamale gafićila what I say carries weight with the Mir, i.e. is accepted by him. QUB. (Cs. -agafas*).

gafal, kafal on foot. — gafal bai.i he is on foot. gafal niyas, or gutowas to walk, go on foot. kafal bu-la foot

164a

OOO polo (played by children). (Cp. Sh. gʌtʌl).

gʌtʌmʊrʌs, gʌtʌm'ʊrč-, Ppa. nʊk'ʌtʌmʊr to wash by kneading and wringing, to full, to soften skin, hide, for use (by kneading and wringing).

(Used with y objects only; with x objects the form yʌtʌmʊrʌs is used). pʃilʌm gʌtʌmʊrʌs to wash "pattu" (homespun). bʌt gʌtʌmʊrʌs to prepare a skin. pʃilʌmičiŋ gʌtʌmʊrʌs Γʌtʊrsiŋ Gh. the pattu-fuller. (ta.očiŋ) nuk'ʌtʌmʊr kneading, or, wringing, the foot-bandages. 132.7.

gʌtʃi assembled, collected, together. — sis gʌtʃi bʌm people are assembled, there is a crowd. gʌtʃi gʌtʃi in a herd, [illegible] assemble, collect, gather together. pʃutu uyom gʌti ortimi he assembled all the dīva. 28.4. uyomtsom . . . tinjo d'umʊr gʌti ortʊmʌn requiring the bones from all of them, they collected them. 234.6. Cp. 110.24, 284.3. gʌtʃi mʌnʌs v.i. to assemble, collect, gather together. tsʊrdins uyom gʌti mʌniʃʌn tomorrow morning let all (the people) assemble. 4.11. uv sis gʌti numʌn those people coming together. 284.13. Cp. 116.19,22, 328.18. (Cp. Sh. gʌtʃi).

gʌtʃkrj̄ 1. Knotty (of wood). 2. Bearing a grudge, inimical, spiteful, malicious. — gʌtʃkrʃʌn bai.i he is (a) grudge-bearing, spiteful (person). (Cp. 1. & 2. gʌtʃ).

gʌts.hir -rīo vulture, lammergeier, H. mʊrdarxwʊr pʌrind, gidh, Sh. gitgin(?) — gʌtsirīo goʃum (or, guʃurj̄(en)) may vultures eat you! (a woman's curse).

(Perhaps a metathesised form of Sh. girč, vulture).

164 b

gafu x, Ha. x pl. gafowiz, N. x pl. gafowuz; y pl. gafog.

1. x sg. cloth, clothing, woman's shirt. x pl. Ha. chogus, N. women's shirts.
2. y pl. clothes (ordinary word), dress.

1. gafu. The meaning cloth does not often occur. — gafwiso fiko waliso to put a patch on cloth. mem gafu old clothes. Prov. 28. gwiasor gafuso tag hem they were hard up for clothing to wear. 34.3. tapik gafu ditso get food and clothing. 56.14. Cp. 34.6, 58.4. gali gafu a set of clothes. 280.14. wolti fair pafiso gafog cówu; ówo ford gafu sochem they prepare four sets of cotton clothes; they call them "the new clothing". 304.10.

   Here ówo as representing gafog (y pl.) should be ówo, but it has been attracted into the category (not the number?) of the following gafu. ówo gafu mengusu gwiju ho her mother-in-law puts on that shirt (previously referred to as pafi). 306.5.

2. gafog is the word ordinarily used for clothes in general. — gafog hwt beinsu there are a lot of clothes. gafog so causing them to put on clothes. 40.21. gafog tsaafi so mogwusimi; bwlomo after holding the clothes in the smoke, he gave them to her and she put them on. 14.16. Cp. 14. pusim, 16.19. tsandoytsem gafog dimain sapel taking the clothes out of the box and putting them on. 34.30. Cp. 206.6, 316.4,5, 368.12.

   Note the use of gwiso with the x object gafu, and bolso with the y object gafog.

165

gafwiso *-masaw to menstruate, be menstruous. — gafwiso mumasum gua a menstruous woman. gafwiso mumasu he she has become menstruous. 000

(The word is doubtless connected with gafu. Cp. Sh. ghido clothes; ghidaj berki to menstruate).

gaswaari governorship. — gaswaari.e xtiiaw powers of governor. 346.2. Eng.

gaz v. 3. gas yard.

gaf.iu *-afas N., Cp. ɣafam, to bite, seize. N. kuio gafam ofimi the dog bit me.

gaf.ifo sg. and pl., Double pl. gafafomoto match, matches. (Cp. gafofi and Sh. kaf.ati. The word is said to come from the noise of striking a match. If so, Cp. gafaf).

gai.ip v. 1. ga.

gwagas v. gwagas.

geltig x the projecting bones of the ankle. — ortso geltig my ankle. (Probably tig for tin bone).

geetas N. geet., impv. giat, to play. (The same word as giatas).

ge, gye, ge, gye ɣ sg. and pl.; Double pl. getig, N. gemig snow. — gye fakas bila there is a little snow. ge dapig snow-flakes. getig, getig snow drifts. gye.e pfuri manitas there is a sprinkling of snow on the ground.

With furyas to come:

ge di bitas snow has come (e.g. has appeared on the hills etc.). ge furitas snow is coming.

With giyai.as to fall:

gye giyafi, gi.atitas (gi.atitas) snow will fall, is falling. gye giyawi (gi.awi), gi.a bitas (gye bitas) snow fell, has fallen.

165 b

000 With basev to settle (on the ground):
gye basičitan snow is settling on the ground. gye basitan snow has fallen and is lying.

With duwaśeas to go away disappear (melt):
ge dawaśičites, duwaśu bites the snow is disappearing, has disappeared.

With dwyas to melt:
Nx. ge dučiła (sg.) the snow is melting (of a large quantity).
Nx. ge dwyičitan (pl.) the snow is melting (of a sprinkling of snow).

The sg. possibly denotes a single continuous stretch of snow; the pl., patches, or a thin sprinkling of snow. QUB however considered that the meanings of these two examples should be transposed.

goč x white plaster (a kind of earth found at Marłazrubad). Prs. (gač?) gevayas, gevaśas (gevas), pl. -ilo & gevaśiyanła widowed; widow, widower. — gevayas (-ias) baiś, ho he is a widower, she is a widow. gevayaśilo bava they are widowed. gevayas gus; gevayas gušiyanła widow woman; widow women. gevayas hiv widower. (Cp. Sh. giyavs, giavs, widow, or widower).

gevąź pl. gevąźyą y small bag (made of skin; smaller than mavł).

gandźi x food esp. [illegible] for a journey (including thick bread). Prs. farda (i rawł). 120.22.

(gan road + pźi thick bread?).

gadiyor'im N. y pl. thunder. (Cp. Sh. gayim, gayam, gaźam, thunder, gava gawąź, a noise, banging).

gil QUB y anus (Cp. gif).

giśiw pl. giśiyo x ring, finger-ring, earring.

000 gilas, glas tumbler. Eng.

girli, grli -mots x peg, tent-peg, nail. — hune girli, čumare girli wooden peg; iron peg, nail. gilimots du.is pull out the nails, pegs. girlolo wašim bi it is hanging on a peg. basi.olo belisan girli deli bam he had pegged out (i.e. attached to a peg) a sheep in the garden. 64.8. gili mudelimi or, modelimi) he fixed her down, secured her, with a peg. 194.2,7. Cp. 88.5, 190.11. (Cp. Sh. kirli).

giligimom, giligimom pl. y -iŋ, x & y grl'iko thin (of paper etc.). (Cp. Werch. grlimom).

giltir -rio x pod, legume, IUB H. mafar wayera ki phal.

grltiras v. yrltiras. 374.10.

grnani, ginani x sg. the harvest festival; small sheaf of barley (brought home before the reaping); the grain thereof (which is eaten); IUB H. na.e fayl kafne ka rasmiu din. V. Text No. 38.

The second meaning is probably the original one. — folama gontas grnani fi.as bi on such and such a day the "ginani" is to be eaten, i.e. the "ginani" is to be celebrated. 326.11. tsor thamo thamum ginani diśor duwaśaćan first they go out from the Tham's residence to fetch the "ginani". 328.4. sərafan turma tsundi.olo . . . grnani mai.i bi . . . aśtərulo grnani sć'an on the 15th. of Sərafan . . . the "ginani" takes place, is held . . . on the 20th. they celebrate the "ginani". 326.1. grn'ani.ər alt'amots duwasomər when eight days remain till the "ginani". 326.8.

(Cp. Sh. ganorni).

166 b ginḍaʷər, ginḍauʷər the "sinjid" tree, jujube tree and fruit; IUB, Punj. beʷri (zizyphus jujuba). Ar. Pers. ʿunnaʷb jʌŋgʌli. 000 ginḍaʷər ʧhin Nz. a kind of bird, starling (?).

1. giraʷm, girʌm h pl. community, clan, IUB H. gurohʰ, qaum; Bu. synonym roʷm. — waʷlti giraʷm (baʷn) the "Four Tribes" of Baltit, viz. Diramitiŋ, Xuʷrukuts, Bərʌʷtʌliŋ and Burorŋ. — waʷlti giraʷmo uyoŋko the headmen of the Four Tribes. Bʌltitum waʷlti girʌm gʌti nəma Hʌmačatiŋε ka astʿʌm ɛtumʌn the Four Tribes of Baltit assembling instituted a case(?) with the Hʌmačaʷtiŋ. 258.1. waʷlti giramər rʌjʌkiʷər qau ɛti call on the Four Tribes for communal labour. The translation "tribes" exaggerates the significance of these divisions. 621

2. girʿaʷm, gʿirʌm -ičiŋ, N. -iŋ y.

a. Isolated houses or hamlets situated among the cultivated lands outside the "Khan", the formerly fortified village.—Zuŋaʷ[illegible]ε girʿamulər to the hamlet of Zungating. 320.1.

b. Roofed cattle-house, for goats and sheep.

(Presumably the same word as the preceding and ultimately deriving from Skr. grāma-).

gɪraʷn dear, expensive, costly. Prs. 000 girʿʌn, pl. girʿaiyo x wicker basket or panier (for carrying grass, manure etc. on the back). 336.8. — girʿʌnε niʷʌs the proceeding of the bride accompanied by the bridegroom, 4 to 8 days after their marriage, to her father's house when they bring back a present of bread and dried apricots (ɣfiʷtimuts kε bʌʧerin). 585

167 a

gɪrəriːt(?) Nz. v. γɪrγit. 000 girˈʌtʌs, girʌš-, Impv. girˈʌt, neg. ʌkˈirʌt, Ppa. nikˈirʌt(in) to dance, to play. — duγu.i xa gɪrʌšaːn they dance till midday. 330.5. pfutu girʌši bim the DIVs were dancing. 234.3. girʌšər deːičai.i he puts him up to dance. 318.1. biːtʌn girʌtumo the "bītan" danced. "girʌt" esimi teːrumʌnər, Dərbɛːšo girʌtimi. Nɪkiːrʌt . . . . he said to him "dance". Thereupon D. danced. Having danced . . . 182.5. girʌtʌsɛ ičər the sound of dancing. 368.19, 373.24. hʌn girʌtʌs hərɪːpʌn a dance-tune. 234.15. Cp. 302.7, 316.13, 234.4,5, 378.9. joṭəmuts ukhˈərər girʌšaːn the children are playing (by themselves). QUB. (Cs. *-ʌgirʌtʌs).

girča, kirča (of sheep affected by) a certain disease (said by some to be caused by worms in the liver). — bɛlis girčˈaː wʌli bi the sheep has fallen sick (of girča). Hʌsʌnabaːdulo buṭ girča umai.i biːɛ in H. sheep suffer much from girča.

girgaːr *-mʌnʌs to be restless, = beːqərarr *-mʌnʌs.

girgin pl. girgˈiːyo x a small "mashk" (water-skin), H. mʌškiːza.

1. girgir x pl. a kind of pulse, H. daːl mʌsuːr.

2. girgir sg. and pl. x female mallard. (Cp. diŋ maγun male mallard).

girgɪš y the injurious emanation of a "pari" or other supernatural being. — *-tsi . . . . yaiyʌs to be affected, or smitten by such influence. gutsi girgɪšʌn (or, tiːš) ya bila has a fairy blast smitten you?

1. gˈiri sg. and pl. x ibex, said also to be used of other wild sheep (?) or goats, not including the oorial. —

167 b

000 giri.ɛn an ibex. giri bi.ɛna? are there any ibex? giri haldɛn big male. giri tsir female. giri žai.rt male 2 or 3 years old. giri du kid. hʌnumʌn giri tsirʌn bi there is a single female ibex. 102.20. girɪ.ɛ čʌp ibex meat. 104.7. girɪ amɔlo hʌlk'iči.ɛn kɛ where the ibex bear their young. 108.10. Cp. 108.12, 270.1.

526 2. g'irɪ -mɔts x plaque about 2" × 1½", fixed on a small heap of earth and fired at with bows and arrows from horseback. It is made of dry pumpkin-shell, or, on state occasions of wood covered with silver foil. — g'irɪ.ɛ čop nɛ de.ičaɪn making the mound for the mark, they set it up. 316.6. amɪnɛ g'iri dɛlimi kɛ whoever hits the mark. 316.8.

000 g'irkɪs N. girkits, pl. g'irkičo x.

1. Small species of rat (intermediate in size between the European rat and mouse). — (ʏʌširɛ pfirɪnč) girkis dɛlʌsər kuli kɛ api there isn't a scrap of stick even to beat a rat with. Cp. 160.6.

2. Muscle (biceps and calf of leg). — pirni girkɪs muscle of calf of leg. Cp. Latin mus: musculum.

(The plural -čo suggests that the N. form girkits is the original form of the singular).

girm'inʌs, girm'i-, Impv. girm'in, neg. ʌk'ɪrmin, Ppa. nɪk'irmin, to write.
Fut. 1st. sg. gɪrmiyʌm.
Pres. 1st. sg. girmiya ba.
Pret. 1st. sg. ja girmirnʌm. girminimi "hikɔlto mʌnimi" nɔsɛ he wrote: "One day has passed". 52.8. ja girmina ba. Gɔtɛ girminɔmər uɪŋ bərɛɪn I have written it down. You look at this written statement. 52.21.

168 a

000 ečuwɛ girmi·nʌm, "ja eiyɛ gər bila" his brother had written "It is my son's marriage". 10.10. uyo·nɛ u.i·kiči.ʒ girminʌšo bitsʌn the names of all of them are to be written down. itsɛ buro·ndomotsʌṭɛ Bʌxti Jʌma·lɛ i·k gi-m'inom bila B. J.'s name is written (i.e. engraved) on all the rings. 82 10.

giryi·tom (?) N. v. γɪrγit.

giš'ʌšku·in, giṣʌšku.in, -ku·yo hm. weaver. (The second form though incorrect is said to be now in frequent use. The form giṣʌsku.in is not confirmed and should be deleted in § 21. b.).

giš'aiyʌs, gišač-, Impv. giša, neg. aki·ša, to weave, knit. (Usually with y obj.s).

Fut. 1st. sg. gišačʌm.
Pres. 3rd. sg. f. giša·čo bo.
3rd. pl. h. gišačʌ·n.
Pret. 3rd. sg. m. gišæmi.
f. giša·mo.

pfilʌmʌn gi·šačai.i he is weaving a piece of pattu (homespun). 184.5. pilʌm gišaiyʌs hi·sk a loom for weaving pattu, jora·b gišaiyʌs to knit socks. (Cp. yʌšiʌš).

grš'i'-mots x.

1 Line. — bɪdi·ro grṣi a circle. Cp. 92.2.

2. Limit, boundary. — gusɛ gor grṣi di.usʌm I have fixed this boundary for you. QUB.

3. Demarcated section. — ṭo·gɛ grṣi a section, holding, of irrigated grass-land. QUB. (Cp. Sh. krṣ'i, a line).

grt, git N. Mck. GR. anus. (Cp. Hz. gik. git is said to be also Sh.).

giyʌlt IUB spoon, ladle, H. čʌmča. (For giyʌlt, güyʌlt q.v. Cp. also γi.ʌlt. Cp. khuṭgiyʌlt, tadpole).

168 b

[see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 543 - Analyst]

5. Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

1. giyʌs, gič-, Impv. gi, neg. ʌki, Ppa. nɪkiˑn, St.pc. giˑm. 000

a. V.i. to go into, enter into, to project oneself(?). — hiˑnɛ ulo gičai.i, giˑmi he goes, went, in at the door. 160.15. haˑlər gəroˑni giˑmər when the bridal party have gone into the house. iˑn wʌziˑre bʌtər gi bʌm he had entered into the skin, i.e. assumed the form, of the Wazir. 4.1. homaˑr giˑmi he entered the ford. 176.2. pfəri.ər giˑmo she entered the pond. 14.6. Cp. 200.15. hərʌŋ giˑmi he interfered, interrupted. EOL. hərʌŋ ʌki don't interfere, don't interrupt.

b. Metaphorical. — mɛnʌn yaˑrɛ giyʌs to take refuge with someome. dʌn yaˑrɛ giyʌs to take refuge behind a stone(?). (of pain etc.) to come on, take possession of one. aˑriŋolo šuˑl giˑmi "pain has entered my hand", my hand has begun to tingle (after being cold). mošwˑl giyʌs (a woman's) labour pains to come on. mošul gičilom, giˑm bila her labour continued(?), her labour has come on and is in progress. 102.2,8. mošul nikiˑn her labour pains having come on. 110.1.

Other parts:
Fut. 1st. sg. gičʌm.
Perf. 3rd. sg. y gi bila.

(This verb can be conceived as a sort of reflexive of 2. giyʌs, but that it is so in fact cannot be proved.

The -g I almost always marked as "retracted", but the -k- in nikiˑn did not seem to correspond to it in that respect, I was not tempted to write it q and IYB Ms. has نكيمن).

169 a

It is probable that the y of the infinitive is really y, and the -č- of the Pres. Base -ç-. 000

(From one fairly certain example it appears that the form *-ʌgiyʌs can act as the Cs. of this verb).

2. giyʌs, guyʌs, gič-, guč-, Impv. gi, gu. v.t. to throw down, put down, throw in, pour into.

guyʌs, is used when the direct object is h pl. or x pl. The forms are the same as those of 1. giyʌs except that in those derived from guyʌs -u- takes the place of -i-. V. § 230.2.

yæṭɛ tiʷk gimi he threw earth (into the hole) on the top of him. 56.21. yʌṭɛ tiʷk gičaʷn they throw, or fill in, earth on the top. 312.5. (dišʌki) sərmutsiŋər nikin putting (the grain) in sacks. 334.1. dorr dəsuʷn tsʌγərər nikiʷn having ground (the grain) and brought it back and put it in the bin. 334.5. Cp. 22.10, 328.11, 330.12, 334.3. tik ʌkiʷm mʌzərʌṭɛ hərutʌmʌn without filling in the earth they sat down at the grave, 218.12. giʷm bitsa (the earth) has been filled in.

(ʌkiʷm may belong either to 1. giyʌs or to 2. giyʌs. It was explained first as H. nʌhī ḍaʷlkʌr and then as ḍaʷla huʷa).

bo giyʌs to sow seed. tʌlo bʌ́dʌŋ giʷmər when they have taken 7 paces. 312.10. Cp. 200.13. pai.iga gučaʷn they put (the horses) on the race course(?), they make them race. (padšahaʷntiŋ) yuʷkʌṭər guʷči he will fling (kings) on the bier. 92.5. guyu . . . kʌš oʷčər guʷma you threw down your sons (intending) to slay them. 44.19. hʌ̃njiʷl guʷʌs haʷn bila there is a house for putting charcoal in. 164.5. Cp. 164.7.9. bʌtər tinjo nəkwn throwing the bones into the skin. 234.9. Cp. 206.10.

The Pn.pf. appears in:

bitaiyo uguʷmʌn they put on "bitans" (to dance). 242.1.

(V. note under 1. giyʌs. There is nothing to distinguish the two verbs of this form except their functions. Cs. *-ʌgiyʌs. V. § 245).

giyˈai.ʌs, gi.ai.ʌs, giyˈʌč-, gi.ʌč-. Used only with pl. subjects.

1. To fall (of snow and hail), come down (of rainbow). V. s.v. gɛ where a number of forms will be found. — gyɛ gi.aʷyʌstsum drš oyom diʷlimi by the falling of the snow the ground all became wet. EOL. hiʷo gi(y)ʌči.ɛn hail is falling hiʷo gi(y)ʌmi.ɛ hail fell. niʷrunʌŋrši giya bi.ɛ rainbows have come down i.e. appeared.

   Metaphorical:

   uyom isɛ bum yaʷrər giyˈamʌn all got under, took refuge under, the boulder. 160.1. mosʌmots gi.a biʷm her time had come, she was near to child-birth. 242.9.

2. kəru, žiki, giya bi.ɛn lice, nits, have fallen, descended, i.e. made their appearance. Glossed H. pʌra. There is a parallel idiom in Sh. with poʷrki to fall.

3. To be the loser (in polo) — bulaʷr gi.ʌmʌn they lost at polo. mɛn gi.ʌmʌn kɛ whichever should lose (in a game of polo). 388.11. N. jɛ aʷyɛkʌl gi.ʌmʌn my side lost at polo (giyai.ʌs is the form of giyʌ with an -a- theme. V. BSOS VII 1936, p. 628. Cp. digi.eyʌs).

006 ġiyaˑs, ġyaˑs, ç̣uyaˑs, pl. ġiyaˑnčo, hmf. infant, baby, sucking infant. — kin jot ġiyaˑsʌnər to this small infant. 90.25. Cp. 100.2, 108.29. ff. gʊs ġyaˑs gʌti numʌn the womenfolk (lit. woman and child) assembling. 262.11. guˑs ġuyaˑs women (and children). 330.3.

ġiyʌl (ġuyʌl), -iŋ y thin bread made from watery dough (of all kinds of grain). Sh. goˑli, Kho. rɛšiˑki. — γaˑgʌy̧ bərɯ.ɛ ġiyʌliŋik pieces of bitter buckwheat bread. 132.15.

glaˑs v. gilaˑs.

go v. 2. goˑn.

goˑa N. v. γuˑa no-moon.

goˑra -mʊts x cradle. Prs. (gʌhwaˑra).

gˈoʌs v. goˑz.

goˑbi y sg. and pl., d. pl. -čiŋ, cabbage. H.

goˑdər -iŋ y big thick wall. — šʌbərɪŋɛ goˑdər wall round polo-ground. Cp. 158.10. khʌnɛ goˑdər wall of fortified village.

goˑko -mʊts x donkey-foal. 118.4—120.8. (Cp. Sh. goˑko, "donkey-foal", given as a name to children).

goˑmʊr N. -iŋ, v. γamur, hole.

1. goˑn, gʊn .dawn, Punj. lo. — goˑn oˑmʌnš xa diˑɛmi he got up while it was not yet dawn. 132.1. goˑn mʌnaˑsər on its becoming dawn, when it was dawn. 132.3. goˑn sʌŋ mʌnimi morning twilight has come. goˑnɛ lʌčaˑr the morning star. goˑnɛ bʌbər midnight. Cp. 42.23, 118.7, 176.26, 326.13. V. also s.v. ṭwˑk.

2. goˑn(a), gʊn, goˑin(a); go get along, come along, go ahead, proceed, H. čhʌliˑyɛ, čhʌlo.

I understood it to be said that go, goˑn was singular and goˑin plural. go does not occur in the texts.

170 b

mama . . . gonna senomo "Mother . . . come on" she said. 122.2. ye gon, ai.i well, come along, my daughter. 122.2. gonin maltirčam go on and I'll show you. 282.25. Cp. 74.8. 152.18, 284.13. OOO

3. gon N. v. γon.

gonholalas pl. -holalašo x bat (zool.). (1. gon + holalas?).

gonikiš N., gunikiš Nz., v. γunikiš bad.

gono a foul-smelling person, H. badbuwala. (Cp. Sh. gon, smell; gono, smelly, stinking).

gonšere all night. — g'onšere g'on manišxa all through the night till dawn. 326.12. Cp. 128.22, 130.10.25.

1. gor (gu + ər) to thee, for thee. 26.16 etc. V. § 123.

2. gor -išo x water-fall, water-shoot. — gor garši bi the waterfall pours down. hure gor garši bi the water from runnel (roof-drain) pours down.

gork'un N. pl. gorkoyo x small stone cooking-pot. (Cp. gurkun).

gor'o N. x pl. coarse shingle beside river course. (Cp. γor'o).

1. gos v. 1. guyos.

2. gos v. 2. guyos.

gosil N. v. gotsil.

gofi -muts x a kind of waterfowl.

gotsil -šo x a small irrigation-channel, Sh. yap. — Bərbəre gotsil the Berber water-channel (Baltit). 352.6. Baltittsum gotsil ditsun bringing the water-channel from Baltit (to Aliabad). 240.12. Ultare Bərtsum gotsil tsuam they had carried an irrigation channel from the Ultar Beg. 352.11. gotsil diusas to construct an irrigation channel. gotsil diusiš ayomanuman they were unable to construct the water-channel. 276.6.

171 a

000

Cp. 352.12,19. go·tsil do·gusʌs to cause people to construct a water-channel (H. nikʌlwa·na), i.e. to cause to be constructed. no·birʌk ḍʌḍʌŋ hə·ri·p no gotsil do.ugusimi making them dig and beat drums he made them construct, carry through, the channel. 352.16. Cp. 276.3, 352.21.

go·yʌs, go·č-, Impv. go·, neg. ʌka·o.

1. To pick, pluck (flowers), H. čhu·nna.
2. To pick up.

asku·riŋ go·yʌs to pick flowers.

čʌma pfu·kʌŋ nuk'a·un(i·n) picking up the fragments of the brooch. 164.19.

go·z, go·ʌs y pasture, grass land, meadow. — turʌŋ i·tɛ go·zulo (g'o·ʌsulo) nɛ.igʌt digging its horns into the meadow. 132.23.

(Said to be a Turki word go·z, ga·z, but as regards the latter Steingass gives the Persian ga·z, pasture).

gubaʷr N. y pl. dust in air, mist from ground. Prs. (γubaʷr).

guç -ʌnts x line, or angle, of meeting, especially of vertical and horizontal planes. — iltʌltə·riŋɛ guč angle, or line, of junction of shoulder and neck (of ox). 338.1. (Cp. Sh. Kho. gu·ç, base, foundation, angle, usually line or angle of junction of an object with the ground).

gučhʌšpʌl bedtime, the time following bedtime (i.e. 9 or 10 p.m.). — gučhʌšpʌl mʌnimi it has become bedtime.

(gučhʌš- is apparently the -š form of gučhaiyʌs. -pʌl is perhaps to be compared with Sh. -bʌl. wai.o·rki to come, wai.o·bʌl at the time of coming).

guč'aiyʌs, guč'ʌč-, Impv. gučha, Ppa. nukuʷčʌn, St. Pc. guč'ʌm.

171 b

000 1. To lie down, to be lying down, to lie down to sleep, to lie sleeping, to go to sleep.

(The essential idea appears to be that of lying down, the idea of sleeping being secondary, but usually present, and sometimes dominant. It was repeatedly explained by, or given as the equivalent of H. sɔ·na, sɔ·jama).

gučaiyʌsər eyɛnɔmtsɛ gau mʌnimi when he had lain down and had gone to sleep there was a shout. 180.4. yā . . . yuɜmo ka guča bi the bear is lying with his wife. 228.4. Cp. 306.18.

(The Perf. and Plup. are commonly used with the force of the Pres. and Imperfect).

guča ba kɛ di.ɛ, dive ba kɛ rʌl mʌnɛ if you are lying down get up, if you are up get ready. 174.15. gučʌmo. Nukučen' m'oyɛnɔmo. Moyɛnʌsər . . . She lay down, having lain down she went to sleep, After she had gone to sleep. 108.17. gučaiyʌs kɛn mʌnimi it has become lying down time, it is bedtime. Cp. 42.23, 260.6,8, 264.22 ff. uŋ amɔlo guča bʌm? where had you slept? 224.1. yuɜɛ sərik nɛ guča bom . . . . atučʌlɔmʌn his wife fastening the bolt had gone to bed . . . . they did not wake up. 40.7. Siŋ guča bʌm, xɔrɛ ičər jučilɔm S. was lying down, the sound of his snoring was heard (lit. coming). 266.2. Cp. 264.22. gučaču bom she was sleeping. N. gučaiyʌs drš camping ground ("sleeping place"). Cp. 42.23, 172.21, 260.6,8.

000 2. To be brought to bed, to be delivered of a child, to give birth (of woman only). — muri besʌn ʌrt'imʌnimi, akuʳčʌmo a son was not born to her, she was not delivered. 102.2. akuʳčʌčubo . . . guʳča bo she is not brought to bed . . . she has been delivered. 102.5. Cp. 104.21. uŋ gočaʳma kɛ, goyʌn dum'umʌno kɛ . . . if you are delivered and a daughter is born to you . . . 56.15. guč'ʌmɛ haʳlɔm from the house of the woman who has given birth. guč'ʌm gɔsmɔr to the woman who has given birth. Cp. 242.9,13, 244.24, 268.4.

gɔdɔŋ nodding (with sleep). — dʌŋɛ (or, dʌŋtsɛ) gɔdɔŋ imai.i bai.i he is nodding with sleep.

gɔdurʳ -ɪšo x big shallow wooden bowl. (Cp. Sh. & Kho. gɔdurʳ).

guguʳi thyself, thou thyself. V. s.v. 1. *-i, and § 142. — uʳn guyuʳi ni go yourself. uʳŋɛ bɛʳsə guguʳi delima? why did you hit (him) yourself?

guguʳrus v. gukuʳrus.

guʳk'ʌŋ, -ɛŋ y chisel. (Cp. Sh. guʳk).

guγoʳs v. 2. guyoʳs.

1. guʳi thyself. V. s.v. 1. *-i, and § 142. — guʳi ʌʳim γɛnɪš the gold which you yourself have given me. 60.7. Cp. 118.12.

2. guʳi thy son v. s.v. 2. *-i.

guʳimo, goʳimo, guyɔmo thy own. V. s.v. 1. *-i (2), and § 143. Cp. 50.12, 94.7.

gɔkɛ, guʳkɛ y pl., sg. gɔtɛ, cp. khiʳnɛ. V. § 135.

Demonstrative Adj. and Pron. these, these ones. — guʳkɛ (sc. biʳškɛ y pl.) pfuʳɔr gi throw these (i.e. this hair) in the fire. 22.10.

172 b

[see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p.543-Analyst] gukuvus, gogurus, pl. gukuvṛšo x. 000

1. Puppy.—kuks gukuvṛšo juʌn like puppies. 214.3.
2. This year's young of the "Ram Chikor" (snow-partridge). (Cp. Sh. kukuv, puppy, and Bu. P. N. Šon Gukuv).

gul, gul relations by marriage; relationship by marriage? IUB H. naṭa, vṛšta; Kho. xṛltabari. — ins ka gul mʌnaʌor rai ešmi ka . . . if (the youth's father) wants there to be marriage-relationship with him (the prospective bride's father). . . 298.2. gul ka ečukoʌnor for the bride's relations and the bridegroom's tribal brethren. 300.2. 601 gulab v. γulap rose. Pra. 000 gulgul aloes, a sweet-scented drug, H. 'ud, ek dawai xušbudar.

guli, goli x sg. and pl., dried apricots with the stones in them; any small round object. — goli.en jo give me a dried apricot. goṭe guli a lump of "gur" (crude sugar). sur guli a ball of thread.

gulsuvi a kind of flower. Pra.?

gumaʌn y suspicion, expectation, supposition. — kisuṭe gumaʌn bila suspicion rests on this man. gumaʌn bila jimʌle juči there is expectation that he will come tomorrow, i.e. he will probably come tomorrow. ja gumaʌn bila; ja gumaʌn eča ba . . I suspect, think, imagine. Pra.

1. gun v. 1. gon dawn.
2. gun v. 2. gon come along.
3. gun v. γon musk-melon.

gun'a -mig y sin, fault. — ja beʌan guna bila? what fault is it of mine? guna apim innocent, guiltless. guna apimaṭe in the absence of fault, innocently. Pra.

173a

gunagav -ṡko guilty, sinful, blameworthy. Prs. 000

1. g'undaru x sg. and pl. cherry-plum, H. aluča. (Cp. Sh. gildor'u, guldoru).
2. g'undaru pl. gundarog, -ug y cherry-plum tree.

gunerṡṭo, gunerṭo, pl. gunerṡṭomats, gunerṭotiŋ understanding, intelligent, competent, reflective, H. qarbil, qarbir. — gunerṡṭowan bai.i he is an intelligent fellow. (Cp. Sh. gunerski, to think, of which gunerṭo would be a regular agent form).

gunī v. kunī corner.

gunts, gunts -iŋ y day. — kan gunts, kan gunṡen one day. 52.13, 50.17. avito, usko, wavito gunṡiŋ 2, 3, 4, days. bur gunṡiŋ korangio ornitsum after many days had not elapsed, i.e. before long. 366.5. kan gunṡanaio . . . ṡtimi one day he did . . . 2.5. kor gunts every day, daily. gunts ki kan ṭuṡ wašimi he put down one pebble per day, i.e. each day. 52.9. gunts dorawr niṡam, he used to go out to hunt every day. 32.19. gunṡamo gunts korait diawṡimi it rained day by day, daily. gunṡatsum gunts asṡto insri.ins from day to day becoming weaker. 110.15. yaf gunṡe, yaf gunṡer next day. 12.4,15. ṡto gunṡe pfor numa returning that day. 12.14. yor gunts, ilertsum yor gunts the day before last, the day before that. V. § 412.

gup'altiŋ, gupla-ltiŋ y pl., double pl. -ṡiŋ. trousers (man's or woman's), H. pajama. — ja gupaltiŋṡitsa they are my trousers. (Cp. N. gorpaltiŋ).

gup'as, gupas pl. gupasiŋ y cotton. — gupasi ṭuṡ cotton seed. gupasi gafu cotton cloth.

173b

○○○ gur y pl., double pl. -iṇ, -eṇ, wheat. — ku.in gur ḥu.a manimi wheat has turned out good this year. gurin ku.in ḥu.a manimi the wheat crops(?) have done well this year. gurr ḥapik wheat bread. ṡiki gurulo kin jut giṇurr.an paida manimi a small child turned up in that wheat. 102.2. gurr ṭilants wheat-pits (pits in wh. wheat is stored). 140.1. gur ḥarṇ nip'irur cutting the wheat and barley (crops). 330.12. gur-ḥari n'o.ṡein putting aside the wheat and barley (grain). 332.11. gurr dirts ... dosurr bringing in the cut wheat. 332.10.

Wheat is eaten, when available, from spring onwards, v. Text 39 end. Cp. 140.9,18, 142.3,5,7, 234.8.

gurr N. error for γωυ? downhill.

gur N., cp. Hu. gur, to thee.

gurr tran (tsḥal?) Name of a constellation. ("Heap of Wheat"?).

gurg'an y pl. wheat sown in autumn. y sg. the sowing of wheat in autumn.

gurγinas, gurgi- to grind on a stone (y objects, e.g. spices, tobacco, snuff, grain). This is done by men as well as women. (Cp. γurγinas used with x objects).

1. gurgur manar IUB to take counsel. consult H. salaḥ karna, mashwara karna. QUB gave this word the form γωrγωr. (Cp. Sh. gurgur berzi, to talk together, discuss. Kho. gurgur kurik, to talk love, talk together).

2. -tsi gurgur manar* to throng after, crowd after s.o. (of children, servants etc.). — sis atsi.ats gurgur mai.ibum people crowd after me.

g'urgui y a (pleasant) mild wind. — ṡ'inimo ny'am g'urgui.an γ.ṡiṡila gots dṡṡalo in the hot-weather a pleasant mild breeze blows here. QUB.

000 gorkun pl. gorkoyo x.

1. A small cooking pot made of baloṭ stone. — Xama gorkun pot for cooking vegetables.
2. A shallow vessel of baloṭ stone in which oil is expressed from kernels, del di.ʍʌʌ gorkun. (Cp. gorkun).

gurv self-coloured (of woollen homespun), greyish. — gurv pilʌm grey pattu. ṭikurk gurv yellowish-brown. bawdum gurv reddish-brown. gurv used of human complexion denotes, I believe, wheat-coloured, something darker than bwṭu. The word is also used to describe ripe barley. (Cp. Sh. gurv self-coloured, grey, brown).

gurpʌltiṇ N. trousers. (Cp. Hz. gupʌltiṇ).

gurçots N. pl. gurçoto x frog. — gurkots delʌs to swim with breast-stroke (i.e. like a frog?) (Cp. Hz. γurkun).

gurtsurv, gurtsuryʌs N. gurtsurv-, Impv. gurtsu to dive.

Pret. 1st. sg. gurtsuryʌm.

(Cp. Hz. γurtsurv).

γur'u assembly, community, — le.i Islʌmʌ γur'u O community of Islam! 90.5. Prs.

gus, gus, gen. gusmo, pl. guṭiṇʌnts (-ents), N. Nz. guṭi.ents, hf. woman (married); female, ! for forms v. § 56. — gus ʍʌʌu be she (the girl) has become a woman. hin jʌt guʌʌmo hʌ hiçtur nimi he went up to the door of the house of an old woman. 286.1,11,15,17. talo mariṇ guṭiṇʌnts seven fine women. 180.10 ff. gus giyʌv women (and children), womenfolk, IUB H. ʍʌsturvʌt. 262.11, 330.3. hin hurutum guʌʌn . . . bom there was a pregnant woman. 242.7. Cp. 22.15, 24.4,9, 66.20,22, 78.5, 114.5,25,

174 b

! [see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 543 - Analyst]

210.17, 228.13 ff., 310.9, 316.4,11. 000 gus hok a bitch, female dog.

gusʌnomkuš N. length, v. γusʌnum.

gusɛ x sg., pl. gulsɛ, cp. khi·nɛ v. §§ 135, 136.

Demonstrative Adj. and Pron. this, this one.

gusɛ yor nɛ ma deli bʌm you had shot this (ibex) first. 104.4. gusɛ hʌγoreṭe holja mount this horse. 6.14.

guspen, guspfen x pl., d. pl. gusperyo orbicular dung (goat's, sheep's, camel's).

*-ʌs gusuryʌs N. *-ʌs gusuč, Impv. 2nd. sg. gos gusu to fear, be afraid. je hoktsum (bola delʌstsum) but as gusuča ba I am greatly afraid of the dog (of playing polo). gus gusu fear thou. gus augusu don't be afraid. es gusuryʌs (he) to be afraid.

(Originally recorded only in N., but later given by QUB for Hz. as. — *-ʌs gusuryʌs, *-ʌs gusas, Impv. 2nd. sg. gos gus'e, neg. gos ʌk'us.

For the variation in the infinitive ending, cp. N. gortsas ‖ gortsuryʌs v. s.v.).

gušiski pertaining to woman, women's, H. zanana, 'aurʌtana. — gušiski mʌltsiḷ, pfortsin, gupʌltiṇ women's abuse, cap, trousers. gušiski γʌlise women's illness, i.e. menstruation, H. ḥaiẓ. 114.5.

gušpur, -iko, -tiṇ, -toro, hm. prince, "son of a Raja", male member of ruling family, IUB H. raja ka lʌrka. Cp. 238.8, 316.7, 340.18,19, 342,21. (Cp. Sh. gušpur).

gušpure.iki pertaining to Gushpūrs, "gušpuri". — Misgari ilbʌn gušpure.iki bila the "ilbʌn" of Misgar is "gušpuri", allotted to a Gušpur. 344.1. Cp. 346.10.

175a

g'ufugomas, g'ufugi-, Pgn. nuk'wtkin to take counsel, consult. — mi mi hovaq gufugipen let us take counsel among ourselves, let us take counsel together. fwaj ofaor gufuqinomaon they took counsel to plot against . . . 276.8. marig gaor ha nuk'wtkin taking counsel with superior persons. 336.10. Cp. 298.11.

Pres. 1st. pl. gufugipa hova.

(As regards the loss of the vowel in nuk'wt(o)kin, cp. al'wakow, v. s.v. dzaokas).

guf, guf -eq y tent. — ots guf ugowolo wyamon hovimots as many chairs as will fit into the whole of that tent. 88.8. Cp. 88.4,5. (Cp. Sh. guf).

gurfas, gufas pl. gurfako, -ako a dead body, corpse (principally, if not exclusively, human), IUB. H. murdo, lord. — ow ow gufas wimo hoto eowatowaon they kept the corpse in their own house. 112.20. ovomo gufas a dead body. gaowaon (-owa?) gurfas ha you're a dead corpse, i.e. lifeless, lazy. gurfas ugowa hovimig ofowa they are weeping in the absence of the corpse, i.e. for someone who has died away from home. hovimi manow gurfas carrion, a dead body that is unlawful for food. gurfaho.s hayor a "corpse-horse", i.e. a bier (an old expression). 112.16,19, 114.22. 240.9, 310.12, 312.10, 374.16.

gufo, gufo y sg. pl. gufo, cp. Ekiss v. §§ 125, 126.

Demonstrative Adj. and Pron. this, this one. — gufokow ti hovaq gloy epi there is no remedy apart from this. 2.9. ow gufo doljam I'll kill him now forthwith. 172.12.

(After gufo sc. waxt, time).

175 b

841 guji pl. gujenda, EOL. -inda, n hut, shed. — kwkwmatar guji a hen-house. gujiaio in the hut, etc. kwf ymikki ewaiar gujiaon him there was a very evil uninhabitable(?) hut. 112.12. Cp. 114.8,9,26.

This is said to refer to a hut in which it was formerly the practice to isolate women for seven days during menstruation. This practice has been abandoned and women only bathe according to the prescriptions of the Shara' law and use separate bedding for 3 or 4 days.

000 gukhawar, gukhawi, Fpa. -ukwtaw to walk, go on, proceed, pass, flow, H. rahaw — kwa gukawar ainan a man who is a good guer, walker. kwwdiar je gukawriam I shall go on tomorrow. 139.2,17. kwwdiwar dwi nanan gukawanan. Kukwtar . . . . kwdiar kwkgalhwanan getting up in the morning they proceeded on their way. Proceeding . . . . they came to the spring. 139.8. gukawiyaw gukawiyaw going on and on. 144.10. dwia dal na gukawiwi ke . . . when the river flows uphill . . . 142.27. 8.6, 22.12, 26.3, 134.9, 144.8, 244.1, 272.10.

gulu n pl., sg. gunu. cp. khinu, v. §§ 158, 156.

Demonstrative Adj. and Pron. these, those ones. — gulu kwdi ugaan kiam those apples are sweet.

gului v. gulul.

gulumu — [illegible], Pp. § 149 n., 555., from thee.

gunu -tig h witness. — na gunutig dofar bring them as witnesses. 80.15. Pra.

gunwi y evidence, testimony. — awa gunwi ainii ki my heart gives me 000 (this) evidence, i.e. I testify with conviction. Pys. ganarlaw St. Pe. 2nd. sg. of * warlas you lost one! fugitive! (a term of contempt). H. farawi, lawarwzy(?). 264.11.

gaŋ.as, gaŋ.as v. 2. giŋ.as.

gaŋamli, gaŋamo variants of ga.imo thy own. 44.17, 106.22.

gaŋ.ilaw Kashmiri.

gaŋ.il v. giŋ.il.

gaŋ.ilt -aro x ladle v. giŋ.ilt.

415 1. gaŋ'ra pl. gaŋ'rawanda x grinding-stone (an oval stone with which things are ground by hand on another flat stone, zal). (Sometimes recorded as gara).

000 2. gaŋ'ra, gaŋ'ra, pl. ga.rdo, ga.rdo, gaŋardo x small field (intermediate in size between khetjiw and jw).
(Also recorded as gara).

gaŋawa livelihood, subsistence. Pys.

gaŋara v. giŋara.

gaŋoiŋ.as v. giŋoiŋ.as.

gaŋ, gaŋ v. gi, snow.

γ.

(See also under g).

Initial γ- was in some cases pronounced by Ns. as g- and is sometimes similarly represented in EOL's Nagir records. Regarding the pronunciation of initial γ- as gγ- vide Gram. p. XXVIII l. 6 ff. and p. XXX Additional Note.

It is possible that a "retracted" γ corresponding to g occasionally occurs, e.g. in γίνα.

Initial γ- is changed to an unvoiced stop after the negative prefix a-, the n-prefix of the Pya., and the causative -as-. I think that the resulting sound is -q-.

176 b

ga, gaya, ga, pl. gayo, gaiyu, gayu x crow, H. kawwa, غراب. — Ana gaya || Ana gayana a crow. gaiyu gujum may the crows eat you! (said by women to an oppressive husband or son). ua gayu ujuʔan! may the crows eat them! 256.11. Cp. Prov.s 8 and 39.

galiʔ v. galiʔe sick.

gamʿes v. gamis wealthy.

*-gaya pl. *-gayo x heel, H. ʿqb.

gaqay, gaqaway bitter. H kara.a. — gaqay barwa giyaliqik bread of bitter buckwheat. 132.15. gaqaʔilo, gaqayinta, Anai bitter kernels.

gaqʿayum, gaqʿayum bitter, sour. — bal gaqayum bila it (the bread) is very bitter. 132.17. mal gaqʿayum bila the wine is sour. gaqawamiq gawayan bali he is a speaker of bitter things, i.e. he is a bitter-tongued fellow. Cp. Prov. 22.

gaqala pl. gaqalo enemy. — gaqala bawa a heavy, immobile thing (boulder). gaqala bawa talʿeli ba you have become an immobile boulder, i.e. you dont make a move to work, you are not responsive to an order. H. kabbal, barbarous. QUH. IYB gave gaqalo bawa.

gar v. gir sing.

galʿemd, galʿemd, pl. galiʔq, galaq, gardaq.
1. Sword. — galemd ismkimi Ana*ya la in ka alto traq otimi* he brought down his sword and cut horse and man together in two. 150.8. galemdate deljam they used to smite (the ox) with a sword. 328.1. ewo galemd yudgittoem dinsimi he drew his sword from the scabbard. 282.16. bobak galemd, bobak γʌlaŋ arms, weapons. 192.12. tobʌk gaʌtaŋ arms, weapons. 194.15. γʌʌtenčʌ yʌn sword hilt. Cp. 148.24 ff., 160.14.

2. Hz. & N. Stick for playing tip-cat with.

γayum, γʌʌyum, γauyum (gauyum), cp. γʌg, left (hand). — γayum ašʌk, ariŋ my left arm, hand. γauyum iriŋs iʌs pfultinzš the left-hand bellows. 166.5.

γʌdʌm (sound of) spl. sh. (Cp. Sh. gʌdʌm, "noise of a stone falling into water").

γʌg, for γay, cp. γayum, left (hand). — γʌg pa kurutimi he sat on the left-hand side. 96.3.

γʌkauy v. γauqay.

γʌkʌli, N. gʌkæli, -muts x scarecrow. — γʌkʌl(i?) juʌn (term of abuse), "stuck pig".

γʌlʌt -iŋ, γʌltiŋ, γʌltesŋ y error, mistake; incorrect(ly), wrong(ly), false. — γʌlʌt se.iba you say wrongly, what you say is wrong. 186.7. ma ine senʌs čʌγa γʌlʌt dumai.ʌljaʌn you hear wrongly, you mishear what he says. 128.12. B. J.s senum its taʌn bil'a, γʌltiŋ bila? is what B. J. said true, or is it false? 82.17. Ar. Prs.

γʌlγu -muts, -nts, γʌlγunts x any small creeping thing, grub, worm, weevil, maggot, "bugs". — γʌlγu čurust goči the "insect" will bite you. γʌlγu dutsimi he has got worms(?) ("said of a child whose lips have turned white"). ustsi (mustsi) γʌlγu dumi.s "bugs" have come on my (our) heart, i.e. I (we) have heartburn, a taste in the throat. IUB imelum γʌlγu "tooth-bug", a person who gives one γʌlivɩ, γʌlivɩ, galivɩ, pl. γʌlivɩzɩo, γʌ.ivɩ-tiŋ, γʌlivɩ̣o.

000 trouble. H. davt ke kivɩ, tʌklif denewavla. bɪsqa γʌlγu a soft grub, soft weevil (in flour). (bisqa is said to be the word meaning "saliva"). biškʌkrš γʌlγu hairy caterpillar.

1. Ill, sick, unwell; sick person. — ivɩ γʌlivɩ nimʌn ivɩčər (tai.avɩ?) imʌnimi he becoming ill, came near to dying. γʌlivɩ imʌnimi he fell ill. 294.10. Cp. 376.5. γʌlivɩər mili ɩti physic, treat, the sick man.
2. Illness, N. galis -iŋ (γ). — gušivski galivɩ menstruation. 114.5. (Cp. Sh. galivɩ, ill).

γʌlisavɩ̣o chronically ill, ailing, sickly. (The ending -avɩ̣o is that of a Sh. participle or adj.).

γʌlivɩzkuš y illness, sickness, disease.

1. γʌm, γʌm y sorrow, grief, H. γʌm, rʌnj, mavtrm. — γʌm avpi, menikuvər kɩ uv it is no matter, give it to someone (pl.). badša ivʌsɩ γʌmulo hɩrča bʌn we are weeping in grief for the King's dying. 38.20. Ar. Prs.
2. γʌm ɩtʌs to bark (of a dog). Prov. 1.

1> γʌmgiv̄n sad, sorrowful, unhappy. — Š. Bekravm but γʌmgiv̄n vuma horutʌm Š. B. had sat down (i.e. was sitting) very sorrowfully. 16.8. (Ar.) Prs.

γʌmɩs, γʌm'ɩs, γavm'ɩs, pl. γʌm'ɩšc wealthy, rich. — but γavm'ɩs hirʌs bai.i he is a very rich man. ivɩ γʌmɩs hivɩ of that wealthy man. 100.3.

γʌmɩn, N. gʌmu, pl. γʌ*mvnts*, γʌ*monts* s ice, frost; glacier, H. γʌx, jʌm'a hʌvɩ bʌrf. — γʌmuɩ čɩ icicle γʌmu gorɩvrum numʌn dɩvrimi (i.e. dɩvyimi) the ice, becoming warm, melted. Nz. tsiɩltʌs γʌmi dɩvrimi, dɩvni bi ice

178a

1 [see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p 543 - Analyst]

000 (frost) has seized the water, i.e. the water has frozen. tsiʌleṭe γʌmu duʌni bi the water has frozen over. γʌmu mai.imi it will freeze. γʌmu gʌnʌe to freeze. koktse γʌmu gʌne ': ice (frost) has seized on these, i.e. these have frozen, or, have become covered with ice. 132.5. taʌočiṇtse tʌwaʌ γʌmu nukʌn hard frost having seized the foot-bandages, i.e. they were frozen stiff. 132.3. Batuʌs γʌmu the Batuʌra glacier. ite zʌmaʌna.ulo . . . γʌmoʌnts apim in those days there was no ice, no glacier (in the Hʌsʌnabaʌd nullah). 238.4. (Cp. Sh. gʌmuk ice).

651 γʌn IUB gold-tax, i.e. the tax imposed to pay for the annual gold tribute paid by the Mir of Hunza to Kashmir and to the Chinese representative in Kashgar.

000 1. γʌnʌʌs, γai.ič-, γe.ič-, γaič- and γai-, γəi-, to appear, seem, be visible H. dɪkhaʌi-dʌʌna, nʌʒʌr aʌna, Bu. lel mʌnʌʌs.

The forms recorded of this verb, chiefly without contexts, are as follows:

Fut. sg. 1. γaiyaʌm. 3. γai.imi.

Pres. sg. 3. x γai.iči bi. neg. ʌqai.iči bi.
y γai.ičila. neg. aqai.ičila.
γai.i bila.

Pret. sg. 1. γʌnʌm.
3. γʌnimi. neg. ʌqʼʌnimi.
pl. 3. x γʌnimi e.

Infinitive and Noun Agent γanaʌs. The abnormal Pres. Base in -ič- has been confirmed and appears to be in commoner use than the normal γai-. gute duʌro jaʌr šuʌa γai.ičila, or γai.ibila, or, γʌnʌʌs bila this work, affair, seems to me good.

Similarly: jaʌr šuʌa γʌniʌmi it seemed good to me. šuʌa γʌnʌʌsʌn bai.i he is a fine-looking fellow. 000 toğ ju.ʌn γai.ičі bi it looks, appears, like new, as if it were new. a·lta tsi·r γʌni·mi.ɛ two goats appeared; there appeared to be two goats. 102.21. u·ər γəi.i bila bu·lɛ tsilulo i·l'ai.i it appears to them that he has soaked them in the spring water. 130.20. Cp. 54.5, 262.19, 264.3.

Tō be visible (of village, moon, horse, etc.): — ʌkulutsum NʌmʌY aqai.ičila Nomal (village) is not visible from here. itɛ gunts ɛ Duma·ni aqʌnimi that day Duma·ni (mountain) was not visible. mʌzər nɛ γʌna·s ɛča ba making a grave I am going to make it visible, apparent, i.e. I am going to make a grave that will be visible to all. 70.21. mʌzər nɛ . . . γʌna·s a·r ɛtin . . . mʌzərɛ mʌn nɛ γʌna·s ɛtumʌn. 82.14.

Here γʌna·s is glossed "in my presence", but it is to be taken rather as meaning "making a grave make it visible to me", i.e. "make a real tangible grave that I can see".

(Cp. *-ʌγʌnʌs).

2. γʌna·s, N. g-, γai.ič-, γai- to leak (either of vessel or liquid).

This verb presents the same peculiarities as 1. γʌna·s.

γai.ibi it (the vessel) leaks. gusɛ khači γai.ičі bi this bucket leaks. gusɛ khʌči.ulo (or, khʌčitsum) ts.hil γai.ičila, or, γaibila the water leaks in, or from, this bucket. γʌna·s(ʌn) bi it (the vessel) leaks, it is leaky. N. gusɛ kʌči.ɔ tsil ga.ičі bila the water of (i.e. in) this bucket is leaking.

γʌnʌs, *-γai- v.t. to count. — u·ŋ gu·imo ha·lɛ guntsiŋ iγ'ʌn, jɛ je.imo ha·lɛ iγaiyʌm you count the days in your house, I shall count them in mine. 52.3. gutsɛ uγ'ʌn count these (pebbles). 52.21. gumtsiŋ ɛγ'ʌnʌstsɛ dunimi he began to count the days. 108.1. ooo

Here ɛγ'ʌnʌstsɛ is merely a phonetic variant for iγ'ʌnʌstsɛ.

(The relationship of *-γʌnʌs, *-ʌγʌnʌs and γʌnaʷs is uncertain and obscure).

γʌnḍɪr, N. gʌnd'ər (-ɪšo), cp. gʌndɪr, crooked. (Cp. duγʌnḍɛrʌs).

γʌnkɪš, this term, of which the literal meaning is uncertain, is applied to land which does not produce good crops because they are liable to disease. Hollow or low-lying land (γʊʃuʷm) is of this description.

γʌnkɪš buṣai.ɛn bila.

γ'ʌqʌli, N. gʌkœli, -mʊts x, also QUB -miŋ y a scarecrow. — γʌqʌli ju.ʌn, "like a scarecrow", is used of a single, solitary, isolated person. mʌthʌnʊm γʌqʌli ju.ʌn γʌnimi he appeared from far off a solitary figure. γʌqʌli ju.ʌn hin ɛri bai.i he is a solitary only son.

γər (γar, gər) -iŋ y song, tune, H. gaʷma, giʷt. — γər(iŋ) ɛtʌs to sing. bitaiyo γər ɛtʊmʌn the "bitans" sang. 242.2. γəriŋ šeniskulo ɛčaʷn they sing songs in Šina. 302.3. iʷɛ pfultiŋɪšɛ hoʷlɛ γəriŋ manimi songs, a tune, came out of that bellows. 166.3. gər(iŋ) 166.6, 302.3. Cp. 356.1, 362.11, 368,19.

γəraʷs, γəriʷč-, Impv. γəre, neg. ʌqər to speak, talk. — aq'ərʌs ine γər'iči, γəraʷs in aq'ərči the non-speaker (i.e. the man who should not speak) will speak and the speaker will not speak. 188.8. γakauʷumiŋ (v. γaqʌyʊm)

179 b

OOO γəraʷsʌn bai.i he is a speaker of bitter things. jəčərum ʌqər don't speak roughly. tik kɛ γəriʷmi the ground said (so) too. 252.6.
Fut. 1. sg. γəriʷčʌm.
Pret. 1. sg. γəraʷm.
(*-ʌγərʌs is probably the Cs. of this verb).

γʌγʌm IYB, cp. γəḍʌm, (sound of) speech. (Not known to QUB).

γərʌṣ̌ x pl. a kind of pulse. (Cp. Sh. gəraʷš, Kho. kəraʷš).

γərʌt v. γeʷrʌt.

γʌrau thunder. — ʌyʌšulo γərau mʌnimi it thundered in the sky. (Cp. Sh. γəra.o, γərau.u, noise, disturbance).

γərbaʷnts -išo x shelter under overhanging rock (such as is used by ibex). (QUB gives this word as y with no pl. form).

γərb'el, γərb'ɛl, γərbaʷl -ɪšo x.
1. Fine-meshed sieve for cleaning grain, flour-sieve. — iʷtɛ moʷsulo γərb'el bi the (old woman's) sieve is in the flood. 286.13.
804 2. Measure of grain, equivalent to the hičuq, of 22—24 lbs. (QUB denies that this meaning is current in Hz. Bu, though the Wakhis use γʌlbɛl in this sense).
OOO 3. Yearly allowance of grain payable to a labourer, which from a note would appear to be 9 čuq, H. saʷlaʷna muzd. dur'oskinər γərbel yuʷ give the labourer his yearly allowance. Ar. Prs.

γəreʷy, γərɛʷy, variegated in colour, parti-coloured, piebald. (V. gəreʷy).

γərγər ɛtʌs to gargle, H. kulli kʌrna. — mili.ʌz γərγər ɛti gargle with the medicine.

000 *-γ'ərɪki daily allowance, ration, of grain. — datumɯ ʂečər uγ'ərɪki ivtsi dorčam they grind separately their allowance (of grain) for eating in autumn. 334.7. hirɛ iγəriki turma aʼlto čuq (or, γər-baʼl) pfʌlo, gusmo muγəriki mɪšin čuq a man's allowance (is) 12 čuq of grain (for the year), a woman's allowance (is) 6 čuq. (Cp. *-γəruɯ).

γəriŋ ɛtʌs, v. γər, to sing.

γəriʼp, γəriʼb, gərib, pl. gəriʼbtiŋ, poor, wretched; poor person. — inɛ hir but gərib bʌm the man was very poor. 34.2, pl. 326.13. kim γəriʼbʌn bai.i, fʌt ɛtin he is a poor fellow, let him go. 158.6.20.

γəriʼpis poor fellow, miserable, wretched. — γəriʼpis fʌt ɛtin let the poor fellow go. 158.12,15. γəriʼpis thər'ɛsʌn bai.a xairʌn perhaps he is a wretched orphan.

γəriʼsʌs, γəriʼš-, Impv. γəris, neg. aqəris, to agree, accept a proposal, consent. — ʌq'ərisʌs not to agree. kaki ʌq'ʌrišo bo (our) sister is refusing (to marry a suitor). 30.4. akʼərusimi (for aqʼərisimi) he did not consent (to re-allotment. 114.16.

Fut. 1. sg. γəriʼšʌm.

Pret. 1. sg. γəriʼsʌm.

γərk ɛtʌs to overwhelm, submerge. 284.24. γərk mʌnʌs, γərk *-mʌnʌs to be overwhelmed, submerged. 286.10,12. Ar. Prs.

*-γ'ərkʌs, *-γ'ərš- to plough with oxen. (Cp. -ʌγ'ərkʌs, assumed from such forms as oγ'əršʌm which from later information appear to be mere phonetic variants for uγ'əršʌm etc. '-ʌγərkʌs with the stress on the Pn. pf. is Cs., "to cause s.o. to plough").

180 b

γərqʌs pl. γərqʌčo x lizard, H. čhɪpkʌli, Sh. kɪrkʌli. ooo γərtsapiš the space between two fingers or first finger and thumb. — γərtsapišulo kūrto babʌl ne suspending the bag from between two fingers. 140.15.

(According to QUB this form is an error for γʌltapiš).

*-γ'ərum̄ -iŋ what falls to one's lot, one's share, one's part. — ja·r ʌγərum (or, ba·go) ha ači give me the house that is my share, give me my share of houses. 112.11. gutɛ ja ʌγərum ʌči bai.i he has given me this as my share. 112.26. uyo·ntsum čʌpɛ uγ'ərumɛ tinjo gʌti o·tumʌn they collected from all of them the bones of their share of meat (i.e. of the share of each). 234.6. isɛ ya·lmun ine hirər iγərum yu.ʌm čʌp ɛtʌm the man to whom they had given that rib as his share, had hidden it. 234.8.

(*-γərum by its form is an adjective and is probably to be regarded as such. Cp. *-γərɪki).

1. γʌsa·s, γʌsi·č-, Ppa. nuqʌs to laugh.
Pres. 1. sg. γʌsi·ča ba.
Pret. 1. sg. γʌsa·m.
3rd. sg. m. γʌsi·mi.

With *-tsi to laugh at someone. mɛnɛ gutsi γʌsičumʌn people will laugh at you. uyu·nɛ ʌtsi γʌsi·čumʌn all will laugh at me. 168.23. Cp. 98.2. mitsi γʌsičai.i he is laughing at us. 210.18. i·tsi γʌsu·mʌn they laughed at him. 140.5. itsi nuqʌs laughing at him. 116.11.

(Cp. d*-ʌγʌsʌs. Cs. *-ʌγʌsʌs).

2. γʌsa·s, *-γ'ʌsʌs, *-γʌsič-, -γʌš-. Ppa. n-γʌs, St. Pc. γʌsu·m, *-γ'ʌsum to rot, go bad, become addled; stink.

Pn.pf.s, only i-, u- recorded. OOO Fut. 3rd. sg. iγ'ʌsiči.
Pret. 3rd. sg. iγʌsimi.
uʷγʌsi.ɛn they (fruit etc. x pl.) went bad. tiŋʌn iγʌsi bi the egg has become addled. iγʌsum tiŋʌn an addled egg, a bad egg. čʌp γʌsi bila the meat has gone bad, H. sʌrgiya. uʷγʌsaʷn they have putrified, are putrid, stinking. (Said of corpses and of persons who smell foul). (pfʌlo) γ'ʌsi bitsʌn (the grain) has rotted. γʌsuʷm mʌltʌš, γʌsuʷm čʌp rancid butter, rotten meat. bɛšʌl mi gusɛ tin miʷrumər pur'a niʷγʌs tik mʌnimi kɛ .. when after our death this bone (sc. jaw bones) of ours entirely rotting, has become earth. 202.1.

γʌsiʷš laughing, laughter. — γʌsiʷš diʷmi laughing came, i.e. he etc. was overtaken by a fit of laughter.
(Cp. 1. γʌsaʷs).

γʌski, pl. γʌskɛŋ (and γʌskimičiŋ?), y waist-string of trousers, H. izaʷrbʌnd, naʷra. (Cp. Sh. gʌsk'i).

γʌsuʷm v. 2. γʌsaʷs.

1. γʌš -ʌnts x path, track. — Buluki γʌš the Buluki-track, i.e. B.'s path, track. 246.6.

2. γʌš -ʌnts x sg. and pl. foam, froth, scum. — tsilɛṭɛ γʌš duʷni bi foam has formed on the water. saʷbuʷnə γʌš soap-suds. diltərɛ γʌš duʷni.ɛn, bi.ɛn (on the) butter-milk foam has formed, there is ... γʌš juči bi, di bi, mʌni bi foam appears, has appeared. hʌγ'urɛ ixʌtɛ hoʷlɛ γʌš juʷči bi foam is coming from the horse's mouth.

γʌšaʷp, γʌšʌp, ɛtʌš to wipe. — lʌkpiʷsʌṭɛ guʷskil γʌšaʷp ɛti wipe your face with a handkerchief. gusɛ γʌšaʷp ɛti wipe this (vessel). EOL. sʌpʷkʌṭɛ ooo γʌšaʷp ɛtʊmo she wiped it with a piece of bread. 272.5 iltʌltəriŋe guč γʌšʌp nɛ γʌtɛrnçʌtɛ dɛljʌm they used to smite with a sword with a sweeping cut. (Cp. Sh. kʌšaʷp thoʷɪki). 338.1.

181 b

γʌš'ɛp -išo x.

1. Magpie; chatterbox (said of children).
2. Some part of a match-lock gun, the fuse-holder(?). (Cp. Sh. kʌšʌp, magpie).

γʌšiʷl, N. and Nz. gʌšiʷl, x and y, pl. -iʷnɪs and -iŋ.

1. x individual stick, piece of wood, (both in the rough). — γʌšiʷlɛn a stick. ʊsko γʌšiʷl biɛn there are three sticks. ḍʌŋ γʌšiʷl imʌnimi he became a stiff stick, i.e. he was unable to answer. Nz. ᵏhuʷtuʷiko gʌšiʷliʷk short sticks.
2. y sticks (collective), firewood. — da kɛ γʌšil su bring more wood. γʌšiʷl, or, γʌšiʷliŋ bitsa there is firewood. 126.10. iʷtɛ bʌsaʷ γʌšiʷl api. Gʊtɛ jʌŋgʌltsʊm ho šuʷa γʌšiʷl gaiyʌm at that halting-place there is no (fire)wood, (so) I shall take a good supply of sticks from this jungle. 126.20.

γʌšk -o x 1. withe. 2. wire. — šʌskɛ γʌšk withe of the šʌsk tree. čhumərɛ γʌšk iron wire.

1. γʌšu, γašu x sg. and pl. onion, onion plant. (Cp. Sh. kʌšu).

2. γʌšu, γašu -čiŋ y.

1. tɛrɛ γʌš'u the wild onion.
2. pl. nettles.

γʌt'ʌnʌs, γʌt'ai-, Impv. γʌtʌn, neg. ʌq'ʌtʌn, Ppa. nʊq'ʌtʌn to read; to recite.— gʊtɛ (kɪtaʷp) . . aʷltʊl γʌt aiyʌm I shall read this (book) for a couple of days. 70.1. ʌxʊmɛ . . . xʊtba

000 γʌtai.i bai.i the mullah recites(?) the "Xutba". 302.15. Cp. 314.2, γ'ʌtanimi, γʌt'ʌnimi he read it. 10.10, 70.8 ff. alimʌle sʌbʌq γʌt'ʌnimi he took lessons, studied, with the learned man. 68.21. γʌtai.i ba·n they recite, read. 312.6. krta·p γʌtʌnç̌ (or, gʌṭʌnç̌) ... aiye·mʌnimi he was unable to read the book. 48.5. nuq'ʌtʌn having read it. 70.8,10, 302.17. qura·n γʌtʌnʌsər after reading the qura·n. 314.12.

γʌte·nç̌, v. γate·nç̌, sword.

γʌy left (hand). Cp. γayum.

γʌyu, γayu -tiŋ, γayu·nts, γayumots; N. gʌyu pl. gʌyo·nts lame; cripple, H. lʌngra, lʌŋ. — yʌyu čʌŋgu crippled, lame.

γʌž̌ʌm etʌs, to snatch up, to snatch away. To scratch (the face) with nails or claws. — gʌtuŋ γʌž̌'ʌm ne tʌsaṭe etimi snatching up (her) clothes he held them in the smoke. 14.9, 16.19. (Cp. gʌž̌ʌm. Cp. Sh. gʌjʌm th., to snatch at, lay hands on).

821 787 γʌž̌ʌmi.o x pl. the Pleiades. — γʌž̌ʌmiyu.s ʌw'ʌši.en the Pleiades have overpowered, overthrown, me, H. γa·lib hu·giya hʌma·re upʌr.

Their influence is apparently in general injurious to human interests. If, when going off to bring in grain from the threshing-floor to his house, a man sees the Pleiades, he abandons his intention, as it is an unlucky omen.

000 γaiba·na supernatural, not human, H. kʌra·mʌti. — mĕne se.iba·n (Bʌseŋ Geri) γaiba·na bʌm some say that B. G. was (a) supernatural (being). 278.6. (Ar.) Prs.

γaibi supernatural, magic. — γaibi gʌtuŋ magic clothes. 24.20. (Ar.) Prs.

182 b

γai.rb, γaib, mʌnaʷs to become invisible, vanish, disappear. 284.18, 286.8, 382,5. Ar. Prs. 000

1. γai.rs, γai.is, γais, pl. γai.rło x. — jʊraʷpɛ γai.rs knitting-needle. tʊbʌkɛ γai.rs ramrod (of gun). ʃʌpiʷkɛ γai.rs rolling-pin (for dough). γuʷsɛ γaisɛ duwʌq ɛčʊbo his wife gives him a rap with the rolling-pin. 306.11.

2. γai.rs, γais mʌnaʷs to rear (of a horse). — hʌγʊr γai.rs manimi the horse reared.

γaiyṵ pl. of γa, crow.

γauγa disturbance, row, uproar. — γauγ'a manimi there was a disturbance. 96.4. Prs.

γauγʊm, v. γaγʊm, left (hand).

γe.ičiʷla, for γai.ičila, v. 1. γʌnaʷs. 262.19.

γeʷiŋ, γai.iŋ y pl., double pl. -ičiŋ, grapes, H. ʌŋgur. — γeʷiŋɛ ču bila there is a cluster of grapes. γeʷiŋɛ pfʊ(l)puʷl bi there is a single grape. buγ.ʌm γai.iŋ bitsa there are dry grapes, i.e. raisins.

γeʷl —? — γeʷl *-ʌmʌǯ the little-finger.

γeʷrʌt, γʊrʌt y sense of honour, pride, self respect. — ʌ̌dʊr(ɛ) γeʷrʌtɛ ka duʷsi the dragon came out (of the pond) with a display of consequence (?). 282.14.

The H. gloss juʷ̌ ka sarth violently, furiously, can scarcely be taken literally.

hiʷʊr γeʷrʌt ɛr diʷmi his sense of honour came to the man, i.e. his sense of honour, or self-respect, was roused. 228.5. Ar. Prs.

γeʷrʌtdaʷr self-respecting, jealous of one's honour; generous worker (of an animal). γeʷrʌtdaʷrʌn bai.i, bi he is a big-hearted man, horse etc. (Ar.) Prs.

γerhaʷzʌr absent. Ar. Prs.

183a

1. ɣɛnʒí pl. ɣ'ɛn.ʒ y gold.

In general the sg. seems to denote a lesser, and the plural a larger quantity. The sg. may further take the suffix -ʌn, and the plural the suffix -ʌk, v. § 45.

ʃʌnʌ ɣɛnʒí bilu? is it really gold? 58.21. nɛr ɣɛnʒí peyeiyʌm I'll make you take, entrust you with, a "ner" of gold. 58.17. ɣɛnʒíʌn dʌɛwyʌ bu I have brought some (a small quantity of) gold. 62.2. Cp. 64.8. ɣɛi ʌʒɛwʌlo ɣɛn.ʒ dɛwʌ bɛn she was grinding gold in a mill. 204.4. pɛlo ɣɛn.ʒʌʃɛm ʃɛrmʌ ɛrlu ʌɛwiŋ ɣɛn.ʒ nʌkʌn taking 12 "ness" of gold out of this gold. 58.11. bɛf ɣɛnʒɛrk ʃɛlɛmɛ he saw great quantities of gold. 84.7.

The genitive is used as an adjective equivalent to "golden", "gold-". ɣɛnʒɛ ɛɛrmʌl its golden tail. 134.5. ɛlɛwriʒ ɣɛnʒɛ bilɛm its horns were of gold. 104.22. ɣɛnʒɛ (or, ɣɛn.ʒʌ) dʌɛlʌk gold vessels, articles. ɣɛnʒɛ (or, ɣɛn.ʒʌ) kʌrkʌn gold ornaments, "jewelry". Sg. Cp. 58.16—62.29 (passim), 76.10, 80.18, 196.4. Pl. Cp. 54.18—24, 56.12,25, 58.3,6, 204.8, 206.4—7.

2. ɣɛnʒí, ɣɛnʒí. N. genzí; gen. obl. ɣɛnʒímɛ, pl. ɣ'ɛn.ʒʌlɛ hf. queen, ranee, Tham's wife. — ɛmɛ ɣɛnʒí la ɛmɛ yɛr bɛf ɣɛnikɛ kʌrʌlɛlɛ bɛn his queen (wife) and sons are in very evil circumstances. 20.8. ɣɛnʒímɛr for the "ranee", the Tham's wife. 298.16. pɛʃlʌ ɣɛnʒímɛ ʃʌmʌ the king's queen's brooch. 164,32. Cp. 20.4,9, 80.16.

(Apparently the same word as 1. ɣɛnʒí. Cp. Sh. ɛɛn, gold; ɛɛwi queen, princess).

183 b

000 γəʌʂ̌ʃ̌ʰin some kind of bird. [γəʌʂ̌ + ʃ̌ʰin?].

γí.ʌli N. -ʰki x, v. gíyʌli ladle.

34 γə̂ʌq y resin (of conifers and the 'sinjid" tree).

Pine resin is used for burning, sinjid resin is used by women for their hair.

γiʌq dwells resin has exuded.

(The latter part of the word is ʌq q.v.).

000 γə́ʃ̌γq 1. Uncooked milk. 2. A small quantity of liquid. — γə́ʃ̌γq ɛ́ti sip (a liquid).

γəʃ̌γp ɛ́ʌɛ to gulp down (water). — ɛ́ʌ (ʌsl) ugɛ́n γəʃ̌γp ɛ́ʌɛ.i he gulps down all the water. 304.4.

γə́ʰki y theft, robbery. — ja γə́ʰki ɛ́ta ʌa I have committed theft, stolen, robbed. Cp. 60.13. γə́ʰki ʌ.ɛsi ʌi a theft has taken place (probably: an x thing has been stolen). γə́ʰki ɛ́ʌʌ.ɛn they stole (something). ʌanʌ́r ɛ́nr γə́ʰki ɛ́ʌɛsi, ja ɛ́nr ɛ́ʌ́ gɛ́nɛ ʌ.ɛ́ʌ ɛ́ʰki.ɛn because he committed theft, therefore I punished him. ʌ.ʌ.ɛ́ʌ.ɛn γə́ʰki ɛ́ʌʌ.ʌ.ɛ́ʌ? have you looted a bazar? 60.11. gɛ́ʌ γə́ʰki this theft. 62.19. Cp. 62.16,18, 296.6.

(When I first recorded the word the γ seemed to me peculiar, cp. γə́ʌ.

IYB also gave γəi.ʰki, cp. Leitner "ghiinn" thief).

γəʃ̌ʃ̌ʌ́ʌ, (ɡ-), γəʃ̌ʃ̌ʌ́ʌ́-, Impv. γəʃ̌ʃ̌ʌ́ʌ, neg. ʌgəʃ̌ʃ̌ʌ́ʌ, Fpa. ʌ́ɡəʃ̌ʃ̌ʌ́ʌ. To be extravagant in regard to dress and food, to do oneself well, to show off, make a display. Pers. sarʌ kardʌn.

Fut. 1. sg. γəʃ̌ʃ̌ʌ́ʌ́ʌ́ʌm.

Pret. 1. sg. γəʃ̌ʃ̌ʌ́ʌm.

3. sg. m. γəʃ̌ʃ̌ʌ́ʌ́.i.

ʃi, mina, γəʃ̌ʃ̌ʌ́ʌ eat and drink and 600 give yourself a good time. 124.1. kwt ʌqaltir don't be wasteful, extravagant (said to wife, husband, children, servants). ararus ʌs ʌqirtir kurw stay (here) and take your ease and do yourself well. 142.14. ga.imo kayuhtiqs ku galtiv give yourself a good time with your friends. 374.10.

γίγu, N. giγu; pl. γίγu, γίγ.ʌnʌ, γ'ίγ.ʌq, N. giγuqq thief. — kiruʌ γίγuʌ mari tsu ko this thief has carried ij off herself. 168.1. kuv γίγuʌnʌ (or, γίγ.ʌq) kurw these are thieves. 168.2.

(The γ was on some occasions marked as retracted, and once or twice was replaced by g, as also with γiki. The pl. giγ.ʌq, as normally a g form, is anomalous).

γʌγγίl, γʌγγίlʌw y pl. -iq soft. — dʌγu.i gap . . miltum.ʌl juw.ʌs γʌγγil m.ʌnʌw ki raw hide will become soft like our (i.e. one's) ear. 128.20, 130.7. ek (ka.ʌtiq) pakiʌs γʌγγitiq mai.imi the (foot bandages) will become nice and soft. 128.22, 130.13. ʌka γʌγγilʌw m.ʌnʌmi ku . . . when they have become soft. 130.10. ka.ʌtiq γʌγγiltʌmiq kilʌw the foot bandages were soft. 132.2. (The N. records give giγγilʌw -iq fine).

γiriγ ʌl.ʌ (*-ʌl.ʌ) v.t. to swallow. 110.6. (Cp. Sh. giriγ thrahi to swallow).

γʌtirti -miq y 1. groin. 2. animal's "armpit". (Cp. Sh. getirti, armpit).

γ'ʌγʌndʌl -iko x dove, H. fanfa. (Cp. Werch. γʌndʌl).

γʌkʌrʌs, γʌkʌrʌlʌ pl. γʌkʌrʌlʌ x raven. — γʌkʌrʌlʌ gaiwij may the ravens eat you! (a woman's curse).

γʌrʌ (γʌrʌ, γʌr) x sg. and pl., also pl. γʌγγʌ, musk-melon, H. x.arbuza.

γʌr'ʌ x pl. stones. (Cp. Werch. γʌrʌ).

184 b

γoγ.ɪŋ v. γuγ.ɪŋ, human hair. ooo

1. γuγu -aɪŋ y 1. descent, decline, slope down; downhill, H. sʌrui. — bɪt γuγu bilɪ it is a steep descent. 2. in descent, declining, (of the sun). — ɪt γuγu mʌnɪ bi the sun has begun to decline, i.e. it is afternoon.

(QUR. γ'uγu, with a high tone in first syllable).

2. -γuγu; EOL. gʌ.ʌ, pl. gʌ.ʌmots, a period when moon is invisible (at night), new moon. — γuγu (hɪsi) the moonless portion of month. γuγu fuʃʌŋkut the darkness of no-moon. γuγu manɪmi it has become new moon. fuʃ.ɪŋ γuγu bɪm it was dark (and) moonless. 198.2. gunu gewʌlte in this time of no-moon. EOI.

(QUR. γuγ'a, γuγ'a, with low tone in both syllables).

γulu v. γuγu.

1. γul y grudge, enmity. — jɪrɪk γul bilɪ (he) has a grudge against me. ɪmɪlɪ γul ɪmɪnɪ he harboured a grudge in his heart.

(With γul 1 and 2 cp. gaʃ 1 and 2).

2. γul y pl.

a. Small refuse left after winnowing and clearing up grain and straw.

b. Rotten wood. ɪmɪlɪ γul bilɪm jɪrgɪrɪ bilɪ it is a poplar tree with rotten wood at the core.

(Cp. Sh. γul, very small remains of kheema, dust left after winnowing).

γulɪrɪ, γulɪ.γ, gulɪrɪ y rose. — γulɪrɪ ʌsluγ rose-flower. bɪrɪdum, bɪkɪrɪ, γulɪrɪ red, yellow, rose. pɪr.ʌndɪ γulɪrɪ cultivated (grafted) rose. Prs.

γulɪw (-γ'ulʌ), γulɪwɪ- (-γ'ulj-).

1. V.i. to burn, be burnt. — ʌz γulɪwčilɪ, γulɪwɪ, γulu bilɪ the house is burning, was burnt. bɪu been burnt. gunɨ γulunɨ may your beard be burnt! (a curse). gupinišo uγulɨʌn may your hair be burnt! hun iγ'ulimi the wood was burnt. γul'ʌs gumʌnɨ may you be burnt (a curse). (i)γunlum ɨʌpik jan ayau don't give me burnt bread. uγunlumišo ɨʌpik burnt bread (pl.). 000

2. To burn as the result of extreme cold, be frostbitten (?). — aniγ γulunči, γulumi my hand will be, was, frostbitten (described as becoming stiff and numb).

(Cp. *-ʌsqulʌs).

γulčin, gulčin, qulčin pl. γulčiyo hm. head-cook (of rajas etc. only), H. xansaman. 644

M. M. P. supplies the following note: "'Superintendent of the Kitchen of the Tham'". There are two γulčin, one the superintendent who has charge of the flour for the kitchen and superintends the baking of bread by women; the other is a cook who cooks ʌdlan'. (= meat and vegetable dishes?). 60.20 ff., 340.9,12.

(Cp. Sh. qulčin, land steward (?). Kho. γulčin, official in charge of grain).

γulk -ʌnts x underground water-tank, cistern. — γulk uʌdi.ʌs to construct a tank. mujur yaris hʌn γulkʌn bim under the weeping-willow was a tank, pond. 262.17 ff. 312

As far as I have seen there are no wells in Hunza-Nagir fed by subsurface springs. The γulk is a pit dug in the ground and filled periodically from an irrigation channel. It is roofed over a little above ground-level, one side being left open; but in this story the γulk cannot have been covered over.

000 So also in 384.10,11 it appears to have been an open pit or trench. (Cp. Sh. gulka).

262 ɣow'aldi alternate layers of this bread (ɣawali) and curdled milk over which milk and oil are poured. 321.1. (Cp. Sh. gulwaldʼu, a dish made of sour milk, butter & this bread).

000 *-ɣawar, *-ɣowar y bowels, (generally) the "inside", body, H. wojard. — ɣawar dzg wanilo his bowels have become hard, i.e. he is constipated. ɣawar ɣwaz wali medicine to make his bowels move, purgative. ayawar hililow wanila my bowels have become soft (after operient). wilo wayawarulow hel ta qow wanilal a cry came out from her inside. 108.9. hawla . . . ɣawarulo dik ɣilal (i.e. dikaʼilal) the arrow stuck in his innards. 146.12. wilo ɣakwanto hiz ɣawarulo there are two young ones in its inside. 64.16.

ɣow'ar, ɣowar -eq y hole (small, in strap etc.), H. wawra. — ɣowar eli make a hole. hahilo wilo ɣowaɣq hilaz . . . hin ɣowar wanalo there are two (bullet) holes in the skin . . . there should be one hole. 102.26. ji gatagolu ɣowar eiali don't make a hole in my clothes. EOL. Cp. 64.4.

1. ɣow -ando a wooden block in mechanism of door-bolt which carries the drop peg (ɣawlaz).

2. ɣow -ando a stocks. — ɣowar (or, ɣowolo) wadiwaz they put (him) in the stocks.

ɣawa pl. ɣaɣo a quail. (Cp. Sh. gawa).

*-ɣawaz, v. *-ɣowaz, to give.

ɣawi, pl. ɣawiq y mice, H. ɣawaq.

ɣawikel. ɣawikez, (No. p), pl. ko ɣawikezalo, y ɣawikeq bad, evil,

1960

000 wicked, ugly, ill-favoured, H. kul, kuva. — ʌʌp ɣmukij m.nimi the most want bad. ɣmukij.mdo nie evil persons. ɣmukij.ŋ kerij kilim they are bad words, evil sayings. ɣmukij.ŋ dawrij ele ka ka . . . if I have one evil things. 98.1. Cp. 93.21, *ch.*11, 112.12, 194.24, 314.6. ɣmukijʌn (or, kulikakʌn) kui i he is an ugly fellow. ɣmu ɣmukijʌ ɣdi kuler in his own skin of ugliness(?), in his own hideous form. 123.13. Cp. 116.9, 130.20, 140.21, 366.7.

(Occasionally the initial ɣ- or g- was faint and I recorded mukij.mdo Ns., and ɣmu ɣdi mukij m.mile his name has become bad, he has fallen into disgrace, ill-repute. EOL. has gmukij).

ɣmukijkij y evilness, ill-humouring, ill-favouredness. 130.19.

ɣmu'u, N. gmu u and y.

a seed (not of cereals), H. kuva, kuj. — gugʌdi ɣmu cotton-seed. Dir.m.dig Hawra.o ma'ale ahardi ɣmu here the D. are the seed of the original population of Hawra. 343.3.

y seaves, H. ʌʌ'ji. — ni.m ɣmu'u human seaves. (Cp. Sh. gmu'u seed (not of cereals).

1. ɣuŋ'u pl. ɣuŋmdo a goitre. — ɣmu ɣadir ɣuŋu di ki goitre of his throat has come, i.e. he has goitre.

2. ɣuŋ'u pl. ɣuŋmdo a dells, gorge, precipitous-sided dells in the mountains with water in it. — Hawrilale ɣuŋ'uw nimi'ew . . . mawi ɣuŋu.ele . . . we are going to the D. gorge . . . they having gone into the gorge. 260.11.

ɣuŋ'ukij pl. ɣuŋuki.mdo h a goitrous person.

ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵭ pl. ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵩ y. human excrement, sometimes (cow) dung. H. gur. — ḥᵊᵣᵊ ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵭ cow's dung (fresh). Prov. 8. (Cp. *-ᵭᵊᵣᵊᵩᵊᵭ). 000 ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣ m. QUB to talk and consult together secretly. (Cp. gurgur).

ᵧ'ᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊᵣ, pl. ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊᵩᵊ and ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ'ᵊ, frog. H. mᵊrᵊḡᵊḥ. (Cp. N. gurgule).

ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵩ y pl. yak's fine (body)wool. — ḥᵊᵩᵊᵩᵊ ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵩ yak's "pashmina".

ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ, ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊᵩᵊ, ᵧᵊᵣᵊ'ᵊ- to dive, plunge into, be plunged into, sink into.
Fut. 1. sg. ᵧᵊᵣᵊ'ᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ.
Pret. 1. sg. ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ.
3. sg. ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ.
ᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ ᵭᵊᵣᵊ (ᵭᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ, or, ᵭᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ) ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ they both there sank, plunged (into the ground, or, cliff). 278.13. ᵭᵊᵣᵊ ḥᵊᵣᵊᵣ ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ ᵭᵊᵣ the cliff into which the horse had sunk, or, plunged. 278.1. ᵭᵊᵣᵊ ᵭᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ ᵭᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ the dagger had stuck (upright) in the ground. (Perhaps ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ ᵭᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ was plunged in the ground). 318.14.
(Cp. N. gurkare to dive. How far ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ really differs in meaning from *-ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ is not certain, but ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ seems generally to be used in the sense of "dive", "plunge into", and *-ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ in that of "sink").

*-ᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ, *-ᵧᵊᵣᵊ- to sink, be drowned;
Fut. sg. 1. ᵊᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ.
2. ᵊᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ.
Pret. sg. 1. ᵊᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ.
Impv. sg. ᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊᵧᵊᵣᵊ.
Some Ed. mod. forms have been recorded with o- and u- for i- and u-. ᵊᵧᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ ᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ ᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ ᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ I had come near to drowning. EOL. ᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ, ᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ ᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ ᵊᵣᵊᵣᵊ O youngsters, take care of yourselves, you will be drowned in the water. EOL. ées γwib gaγwatimi the unfortunate fellow was drowned. EOL. weγwis atiwaximi ivimi being drowned he did not escape, and (so) died. EOL. (Cx. '-aspwiaa). 000 γwtinkrás a disease in which hair and skin of sufferer fall off (occurs in Gojhat). — γwtinkrás hi.ni the — disease. γwtinkrás walaiá he has contracted the — disease.

(The -a is probably an inflectional ending. QUB. did not accept this form, for which he gave γwtinkrí q.v.)

γwe, γwa, pl. γwás, γwówgo(?) x clod, lump of hard earth or dried clay. Pre. halwa. — γwaxw ías atimi he pulled out a clod. 54.4. Ásx γ'waxw ás dilawx bringing a clod of earth. 312.3.

1. γwe'.xwxw, N. g., pl. h. x y γwaxi.rko long, tall (of man); long way off, distant. — γwa.xwxw hir, gua, halk, gaa, γwíra, hur a tall man, woman; a long plank, road, foot, hair. γwaxi.rko hiri, gulíγwís, halkoγ, γwíríγ, huri.aγ tall men, women; long planks, feet, hairs. wa.ix γwe'.xwxw hokai.xwr gulawimi he proceeded to a far distant country. 372.6. N. wwx γwγ.aγ hal γwaryako hilas your hair is very long.

2. γwe'.xwxw -sis x snake.

(Probably "the long one" to avoid directly naming the inauspicious reptile).

γwaki y dough; doughy, half-cooked. IUB. II. γwaníka hara xamír arís ka. — γwaki dwγwi.xwx to knead dough. 272.2. (Jopéá) γwaki hi the bread is doughy, i.e. half-cooked.

γwaí washing, bathing. — γwaí wa.ilas γ.aíraγ ha.aγ wwíbí making him have

000 a bath and put on fresh clothes. 32.8. γesoiu.ε ni.ał nałan saying the prayer for the washing of the dead. 310.6. ivum'iner . . . γesol ełai.i he washes the deceased. 310.7. Ar. Prs.

*-γwj pl. *-γwγaŋ y woman's privy parts, vulva, IUB. H. farj, ḥarugah i 'aurat. Only recorded in the singular: mwγwj. 230.7. (McK. gives mwγwj = vagina).

γuſçikſ QUB leprosy, H. juzami. — γuſçikſo biłai.i leprosy. γuſçkſo wałai.i he has contracted (lit. fallen into) leprosy.

γuſ, N. g-, pl. hmf. -oγo, -oγmo, N. pl. -eγałe deaf. — γuſ ni-m.an ałey'eljai.i being deaf he doesn't hear.

415 γuti, pl. gutente, gutimote x soft leather bag (used for holding gunpowder for charging a gun). — γuti.ałum mili.eŋ gunpowder from the bag, i.e. for charging a gun. (Cp. Sh. kuti, Kho. guti).

-uſ oγpus pl. γuſorpudo, γuſorpoγante x hole in ground (small in comparison with tiu); hollow, depression. — pfiti makuli ḥ.um.an γuſorpus ełoγu they make a slight depression (with the thumb) in the middle of the cake of bread. 320.5.

343 γuſurl -ido, N. pl. gufulzio, x big wicker container (narrower at mouth than base), N. "basket for grain".

(Cp. Sh. gufurl a cylindrical wattle-and-daub structure of above mentioned form (3 or 4 feet high and 2 or 3 feet in diameter at base) in which grain is stored on the roof of a house).

000 γuſ'om, γuſ'wm, N. g-, -ido deep. — pfirimote γuſomido biłan the ponds are deep. (Cp. Sh. gufurmo, deep).

γuγ.aŋ, γoγ.aŋ, *-γuγ.aŋ y pl., N. guγ.aŋ, double pl. -ełaŋ, human hair (of head, of men, women and children). Children have all the top of the head shaved, a fringe being left on the forehead and round the sides and back.

000
302

When married a woman grows her hair long and wears it in 2 plaits, one on each side of the face. The ends of the plaits are rolled into 2 balls at the level of the chest.

Men used to wear their hair long, but now have it "bobbed", or cut, in European fashion or shave the head.

000

The word is usually used without the pa.pf. Biddulph gives it with the prefix, and Leitner (p. 30) gives ɯɯγɯγ.ąą for a woman's hair, but otherwise says that the prefix, which was in universal use 20 years earlier, had by then been dropped. His book is dated 1889.

I have recorded it only twice with the prefix:

γɯγ.ąą his hair. ɯɯγɯγ.ąą ɓak ɛ́ɓɔ́ɓɔ she is combing her hair.

but: γɯγ.ąą ɓak ɛ́ɓɛ to comb the hair. γɯγ.ąą ɓɔ́ɓɔ́k ɛ́ɓɛ to cut (a man's) hair. γɯγ.ąą ɓɔ́ɓɔ́p ɛ́ɓɛ to cut off (a woman's) hair (as punishment). γɯγ.ąą (ɓɔ́) ɛ́ɓɛ to shave the head. ɓɔ́ ɓɔ́ɓɔ́ γɯγ.ąą ɛ́ɓɛ́ he used to shave the Thom's hair. 276.3. γɯγ.ąą (a woman's) long hair. γɯγ.ąą ɛ́ɓɔ́ɓɔ́ɓɔ́ I shall cut off my hair for him. 258.16. Cp. 292.17. (Cp. *-ɓɔγɯγ.ąą).

H.

ɓɔ pl. ɓɔ́ɓɔ́.ąą, ɓɔ́ɓɔ́.ąą f house, home; room; household.

I. Forms.

Gen. and Gen. Obl.: ɓɔγ, — ɓɔγ ɗ̀ɔɔ.ɔɔ the master of the house, host 249.2.

Dat.: The ordinary dative form hav has only been once recorded. — ista hav ki gumi he poured (the charcoal) into that house (or, room) also. 164.7.

Loc.: The locative in -ulo has not been found. The place of the dative and locative forms is supplied by: havle and havlor.

havle usually denotes "rest" at, or in, the house, but is sometimes used after verbs of motion: to the house. — uv havle han yaṅisan wabi ham in their house (home) they had put on a head (to cook). 23[illegible]. Cp. 52.2, 228.4, 300.8, 314.7. ruz havle mis going to the man's house. 298.4. Cp. 328.8, 338.19.

havlor denotes "motion" to, or into, the house. It is not always possible to say which. — havlor juṅi ki when he comes to his house, returns home. 234.12. Cp. 228.2,4, 232.4, 242.8, 298.2,8, 302.11, 322.7 etc.

havlor sumow going into the house. 304.18. Cp. 52.15, 340.5, 274.5.

Abl.: The ablative is represented by both havlum, and havlom. — wimo havlum ḷrum yakalafor gulasumas they proceeded from their own house in the direction of Iran. 26.3. Cp. 50.13, 228.11, 304.13, 310.10, 314.9. rumo havlum . . . ṇmaq ṅuk'as taking gold from his own house . . . he came . . . 56.25. Cp. 234.15, 306.22, 312.19, 324.2.

havlum is also used adjectivally: "pertaining to the house, of the house". — ha·lum jama·at the people of the house. 320.4. Cp. 328.10,12.

000

The plural: ha·kičaŋ takes the ordinary inflections: — ha·kičaŋər 228.1, 304.20, 306.15, 318.11. hakičaŋtsum. 342.9. hakičaŋulo. 318.12. hakičaŋulum. 328.15.

II. Meanings.

Home is of course only one's own house. — u·imo ha·lər jučə·n they return to their home(s). 324.3. u·imo hakičaŋər ničə·n they go off to their homes. 330.10.

Household is the conception of a house as containing a unit of population. — berumaŋ ha·kičaŋ bitsaŋ? how many houses, households are there? Cp. 272.11, 270.5.

Room. The meaning room appears definitely in the passage. 172.21—23, e.g. — gučai.sər haŋ (or, h'aŋ) a room for sleeping in, and perhaps in 164.5 ff.

III. Phrases.

ha stas to build a house.
ha di.wlas to roof a house.
ha dewras to knock down a house. 170.2. ha xa jučəw they come as far as the house. 304.15.

hâ· stas to breathe hard, pant (as when climbing).

haγots v. haγuts.

1. hak'a stas to shout (when attacking), to charge. — padša yakalatər hakas wstas raising a battle-cry and charge against the king. 32.4. Sa hakas ostomo S. making them shout, or attack. 192.12. Cp. 124.12, 144.1* 194.15.

1896

000 2. hah'a ɛtʌs to eat first-fruits, handsel, H. nʌɣiv̀ kʌrna. — hʌnivkulo šʌpivk kɪ čʌp bila havhav stin there is bread and meat in the dish, handsel them. 208.12. birʌnč haha ɛɛtʌs to make someone handsel the mulberries. 32.12.

havjʌt y necessity, need. — tɛlər nivʌsər havjʌt api there is no need to go there. Ar. Prs.

(h)aj'ɔli hʌjɔli, y v. ʌjɔli marriage-songs (sung at weddings). — dʌzinmo yʌkʌlʌfum hajɔli ɛčʌm they sing marriage-songs referring to the bride. 304.14. (Presumably not derived from Ar. ḥʌjla).

havkim -tiŋ, '-dəro, hm governor, ruler. Ar. Prs.

havl y state, condition. — hʌl'ɛsɛ havl bɛčuk bila? how is the boy? Ar. Prs.

havl ʌhwavl y circumstances, state, condition. — havl ʌhwavl bɛčuk ba, or bila? how are you? Ar. Prs.

havlʌt state, position, state of affairs. — bur γunikɛš havlʌtulo bʌm they were in a very evil state. 20.3.

havn = ha + ʌn, "a house", "a room", treated as a simple form to which -ʌn is again added in: Š. B. hʌn havnʌnulo (= havnulo) mɔrstʌqimi he hid Š. B. in a room. 16.4.

haŋ = hʌŋ, gnawing, chewing. — dʌntɛs haŋ. Prov. 23.

haw v. 1. hər. 246.15.

1. hawɛ pl. havšo x. — tivliɔ hawɛ complete walnut in shell.

2. hawɛ pl. havšo x live coal. EOL, spark.

havzir present. — ji havzir maiyʌm I shall become present, I shall appear. 22.10. Ar. Prs.

hʌbʌši Abyssinian, Ethiopian. 86.9. Ar. Prs.

hʌfkwin, v. hʌpkwin. 18.3.

190 a

006 hʌγʊm pl. hx -išo, y -iŋ, wet, damp, moist, (of bread, cloth, wood etc.), IUB. H. tʌr, gi·la.

hʌγ'ʊr -išo, N. -ints, x horse.

Sing. also used as plur.

ʊ·i . . . sisʊr hʌγʊr tsu·in take out horses for those people. 36.8. amʊlo hʌγʊr halkičiʌn ke . . . where the horses foal . . . 108.19. gustašu.ɔ hʌγʊr bier (old expression).

hʌγʊrtʃe holjaiyʌs, pfʌl mʌna·s to mount, ride, a horse.

hʌγʊrtsʊm dʊsɔ·kʌs, sɔ·kʌs, drʌŋ mʌna·s to dismount from a horse. hʌγʊr eskɔrtsʌs to gallop a horse. hʌγʊr di·tsʌs to bring one's horse along riding it.

For examples see the various verbs. Cp. 4.17 ff., 76.10, 96.1, 112.24, 122.6 ff., 146.13 ff., 150.9, 156.5, 276.10 ff., 284.15, 286.24, 342.10, 386.17.

hʌγʊrkʊ·in, hʌγ'urku.in, pl. -kuryo, -ki.u, hm. horseman, rider. 316.9.

hʌγʊrtsʌp, hʌγʊrtsa·pi gusset (under armpit of choga). — šʊqa hʌγʊrtsa·pi gusset in chogn (cloak).

(Cp. Sh. ag'ʊrsʌp, gore under sleeve of shirt).

hʌγʊts, hʌγ'ʊts, pl. -išo, hʌγʊčo, N. hʌgʊts -ints x mountain-pass. — tha·nʊm hʌγʊts a high pass. hʌγʊts(tsʊm) tʌle·nʌs to cross a pass. hʌγʊtsʊlo iriŋ jʌk mʌnimi his hand was frostbitten on the pass. Cp. 254.1.

hʌk y steam, H. bhap. — hʌk bila, duršila there is steam, steam is coming out.

hʌki·m hm. learned man, doctor. 48.2. Ar. Prs.

h'ʌkinʌs, hʌki·, Impv. hʌkiz, p·g. 'ɔ·hʌkin to learn.

Fut. 1. sg. hʌkiyʌm.

Pret. 1. sg. hʌkinʌm.

hin hirʌn ʒ yusʌn but juwaʿbʌwaʿlʌ tʿʌ (i.e. ti) čʌγamiʒ ʌtʌs hʌkinʌm a man and his wife had learnt to converse without many words (answer and question). 232.1. (Cs. -ʌ.ikinʌs).

1. hʌl (. . . hʌl) or, either (. . . or). — hʌl Kʌsʌr gugu.i ba, hʌl gopʌčin kinʌ hiles bai.i . . . either you yourself are Kiser, or this boy with you is he. 152.21. hʌl gusʌ hʌl ʌse ʌtʌs gumʌnʒ you should have done either this or that. EOL. hʌl uʌn niyʌs gumʌnʒ, hʌl jʌ niyʌs ʌmʌnʒʌ either you must go, or I must go. Nz.

It is sometimes expressed only in the second clause.

jʌ be gusʌs ba? hʌl ja besʌn γʌli bi.ʌ? Am I a woman? or has some part of me been broken? 78.9. jʌ jʌmaʿʌt bʌmʌ lʌl oʿmʌnimi, hʌl iʿʌumʌ lʌl oʿmʌnimi there is nothing known of my husband's being alive, or of his being dead nothing is known. 58.14. (The construction does not seem to be quite logical). hʌl ʌkhil mʌniʿʒ ya tail nʌniʿʒ let it be either this way or that.

In the following it can only mean "all right", "very well". Perhaps there is some mistake.

hʌl fʌt ʌin čʌrʌp ʌiyʿʌta ba very well, let it go and I won't cut it (the horses tail) off. 156.13.

2. hʌl, hʌʿl jo x fox. — hʌʿlʌ bʌʒ foxskin. hʌlʌ γwʌlγʌʒ a fox's hole, earth, lair. hʌlʌ ʌsʌn a fox's heart. 114.2. hʌlʌ iwʌt "fox's body", said of ears of barley when the beard and husks have turned yellowish or reddish. 326.4.

3. hʌl dʌlʌs, hʌl γʌwtʌs to jump, leap, spring. — γʌtʌiltʌum hʌl dʌlimi he jumped over the water-channel. mizəfər ʜʌl delimi he jumped on to the table. gutə diltsəm ʜʌl nidilin leaping from this place. 150.1,7. telum Mori Dawər ʜʌl 'edrlimi he made (his horse) leap from there to M. D. 276.11. ʜʌl gawrtsʌs to jump (long jump). (Cp. Sh. ʜʌwl, long pace, stride, and ʜʌl dowrki to jump over). 000 ʌla, N. pl. ʜʌlaŋ, y goal (at polo). — ʜʌla manimi a goal has been scored, it was a goal. ʜʌla nimi (the ball) went through the goal. N. ʜʌla etʌs to score a goal. N. ʜʌltsik v. s.v. tsik. Cp. Hz. čiki. (Cp. Kho. ʜʌl).

ʌladʌn, pl. -daiyo x goal-stone (i.e. goal-post, the goals at polo being originally marked by stones). ʜʌladʌn yom gawrtsimi (the ball) went over the goal-post. Su Malikə ʜʌladʌnʌtə yʌtrs čərʌp netʌn S. M. cutting off his head on the goal-stone. No. 47 end 388.12. (Cp. Kho. ʜʌldunʌ).

ʌlagom -iŋ y furrow (the first furrow made, cp. pforoŋ).

(ʜʌl- is probably the same as the Sh. ʜʌl, plough).

ʌlawl lawful, permissible by law (esp. to eat). — jə ʜʌlawl bʌ I am lawful, i.e. it is lawful to slay me. 134.2. ušo ʜʌlawlšio three beings (that are) lawful for food. 64.14. Cp. 60.9. Ar. Prs. ʌlaliwto exuding oil, or, grease (of a stone). — ivtə bʌt ʜʌlaliwto bila that stone is oil-exuding. 226.12.

ʌlants, N. ʜʌlans, EOL. pl. -ršo, x moon. — dor manom ʜʌlants the full moon. tormanʌltilum ʜʌlants moon of the 14th. day, i.e. full moon. tormatsindilum ʜʌlants moon of the 15th day, i.e. waning(?). ʜʌlan'ts dikiwči the 000 moon is waning. hʌlantsɔ sʌŋkuš moonlight. gusɛ hʌlantsɔtsɛ in this time of moon. EOL.

hʌlç -eŋ, -iŋ y torchwood.

halden, halden, pl. hʌldeyo, x he-goat (full-grown, and in the case of domestic goats castrated). — giri halden a full-grown male ibex. 270.1.

314 hʌli pl. hʌleŋ y birch bark (used as wrapping material and formerly as paper), Sb. juŋ. — hʌli.ulo maltʌš dumʌšan they wrap up butter in birch-bark. yerum khene hʌliyʌte girmibʌm in former times they used to write on birch-bark. EOL. gute hʌliyʌte girmin write on this birch-bark. EOL.

526 halimon -iŋ and halimoiŋ, y wager, bet, stake. — halimon etʌš to make a wager. halimone bula polo for a wager; polo-match played in which the losers present the winners with a sheep, goat, etc. halimonɔr bula deluman they played polo for a stake. halimon uči ban they have paid up the stake to them. (Cp. Sb. halibon).

000 1. halkaɛ, halk'ić-, Ppa. nuh'alk.in) to bear young, to give birth, (of mammalian animals).

Fut. 3rd. sg. halkiɛči.

Pres. 3rd. sg. halkiɛči bi.

Pret. 3rd. sg. halkiɛmi.

giri amulo halk'ičian ks . . . where the ibex bear their young . . . 108.10. beliło halkaɛ diłɔr atsu take me to the bearing-place of the sheep i.e. where the sheep lamb. 108.24. Cp. 108.12,19,22,25. menan: bɛɛu nuhalq aɛltu doɛmanimi ks? . . . if anyone's cow calving, gave birth to twins . . . 254.1. Cp. 66.21, 72.24. han halquɛm

000 belisʌn a sheep that had had a lamb (and so was with milk). 286.2.

(In these examples -q- ought to be -k-).

2. hʌlkaʿs as the noun-agent form is used to denote or describe an animal actually, or ultimately capable of bearing young, i.e. a female. — hʌlkaʿs du female kid (under 1-year old). hʌlkaʿs mʌmoši female lamb. buruʿm iʿrs hʌlkaʿsʌn bi the white one is a female. 64.26,29.

hʌlkiʿ̥, pl. hʌlki.ʌŋ, womb y H. rʌhim — iʿmimo hʌlkiʿšʌr mu giʿmi he has now entered into his mother's vomb. 88.21.

hʌltsiʿk N. v. tsiʿk.

1. hʌmʌl-iso h neighbour; neighbouring. — hʌmʌls ka čʌl apiʿ ks ... if there is (i.e. if you have) no quarrel with your neighbour. Prov. 45. hʌmʌl sis neighbours. hʌmʌl haʿkičʌŋ neighbouring (or, neighbours') houses. hʌmʌls haʿkičʌŋolo uʿŋi bʌsʌn duʿtsʌk bitsa ks if you have any things in your neighbours' houses. 286.5. Cp. 362.9. (Cp. Sh. hʌmʌl).

2. hʌmʌl the month of Hamal i.e. Aries, (commences 21st March). Ar. Prs. hʌmeʿša, hʌmiʿša, EOL. hʌmeʿš constantly, always, ever. 116.15, 362.1. Prs.

hʌmiʿšo IUB. a kind of small insect which attacks lucerne. H. ek qism ka kiʿra jo rʌška ko lʌgta hai. (Not known to QUB.).

hʌn x y; hin h; hik z one; a. — hʌn hʌyʌr, bʌyʌm, gʌp, ha one horse, mare, hide, house.

V. §§ 187 ff. and § 43.2. N. hʌn ses (sis) tumʌn that other one (x, y).

(See also references under hin).

hʌn, v. ha.

1926

hʌn ḍʌm IUB. simple and stupid, honest and simple, H. sa·da lo·ḥ, si·dha sa·dha. 000 hʌn hʌn, hʌnʌn, hʌna·n x y; hin hin h.

1. One another, each other. V. § 134. 96.7, 154.13, 156.3.
2. hʌn hʌn one each. V. § 207.

(See also references under hin).

hʌni sg. and pl., double pl. hʌnents, x kernel (of apricot, peach, cherry etc.), apricot-kernel, H. giri. — bʌdʌme hʌni.ʌn bi it is an almond kernel. bʌdʌme hʌni bi.ʌn there are almond kernels. a·lto čukʌn hʌn'i očʌ·n they make (ready) 2 chuqs of apricot kernels. 308.1. (Cp. Sh. hʌni).

hʌnik -uts x. 415 531

1. Big wooden vessel for food (shallower than a bowl, and deeper than a dish or platter). — maltʌls hʌnik a dish of butter. 340.1. Cp. 340 13—19, 342.1,2.

Regarding the old Bopfan haniks at Baltit and Yasin see Text No. XIII, p. 208.

The former, said to date from the time of Alexander the Great(?), I have seen and handled. It is cut out of a single piece of chenar wood and is 29" in diameter. The upper surface presents a gentle uniform concave curve, and bears 3 sets of lines, each set consisting of 3 slightly incised lines. It is crossed by four copper bands which intersect at the centre and divide the circle into 8 equal sectors.

On the underside and towards the centre four protuberances of wood have been left to act as feet. Nearer the circumference 4 iron handles are attached to it by iron chains.

2. The word is also used to denote a dish with food on it, a dish of food. — badigardɔr tsundo hanikuts ućum they give five dishes (of food) to the Bodyguard. 340.17. Cp. 304.19.

han ilćinaŋs one-eyed. — han ilćinaŋs sis a one-eyed person.

hanisarr. — hanisarr baiʃ he is a trimmer, changeable, fickle.

From the name of the Gilgit River, Hanisari, which like other rivers of its kind is liable in places to change its course in its bed.

QUB. says it is also used of "a big man who restrains all his feelings".

h'anjil x pl., double pl. -ints, charcoal. — hanjilik dutsu bring some charcoal. hanjil pyuwan duriuma? durtuʃ g'omzima? hwz, dwtam will you fetch a little charcoal? Can you bring it? Good, I'll bring it. 162.12 f. Cp. 164.1—12, 150.10,12.

hanjwko pl. alike, similar; the same, identical. — ćiltalik halkorg hanjwko bitsan the two planks are alike. gusu ko gusu hanjwko bi this (animal) and this one are (lit. is) alike. (han + jwko).

hanpa one side, one direction; aside. H. ekaw, ektaraf. — hanpa (laŋ) mana get to one side, get out of the way. Cp. 26.20.

hantsil N. y blood and water.

hanuman x and y, cp. hinuman h, by itself, alone, solitary. — han ruŋanulo hanuman giri tsirran bi in a pasture there is a female ibex alone by itself. 102.20.

hanjaŋs senseless, stupid, H. berkuf, ber'aqil. — berulo sarrate ranikstan da hanjaŋsrs hanu because he was hagwrɨf hard, self-willed, refractory, IUB H. warfɨrwarw, QUB xast, xarkɨl. — gɨf hagwrɨf waɨ-ibi, gɨf xpɨrw hawa hilirlow waɨ-i bi a knot is hard, knotless wood is soft. hwɨ hagwrɨf xrɨ.ɨn hɨɨ.i, rwo rɨ ɨhɨ.i he is a refractory person, he acts as he pleases.

193 b

000 ugly in appearance and a stupid fellow. 116.2.

601 Hapkwin, hafkwin hsf. spouse, husband, or wife. — hapkwin hɨɨen ɨyɨw as my husband give me (my clothes). 14.16, 18.8. Dat. m. hapkwinɨer, f. hapkwinmer.

000 hag y right; party. — ɨyɨw wɨy (rrɨ.ɨf) ɨfɨx hag hilow it was right for you to do honour to his son, you were in the right to . . . 92.17. ja hagolo hɨɨ.i he is of my party, he is a partisan of mine. 92.12. (So QUB. Correct the translation given with the text accordingly). Ar. Pra.

hagɨy -ɨlɨg, y cornelian. Ar. Pra. ('agɨy).

1. hɨr -o n. Sg. also used as pl. ox (male), bullock (used for ploughing). H. hɨɨl, IUB. hɨrzopɨrw — ɨrhɨr ɨfɨw hɨr castrated ox, bullock. teindɨr hɨr(o) entire ox(en), bull(s). hɨr hɨrɨ (hɨ.ɨn) cattle. hɨn hɨpɨg hɨr.ɨn a bull-yak. 280.4. tɨlɨ n.ɨl hɨr seven yoke of oxen. 246.10. hɨr ɨy'ɨrkɨnɨlo while ploughing with the oxen. 246.14. hɨr dɨrhɨr . . . ɨgwɨh ɨrɨ.ɨw they had sent their sons to fetch the oxen. 246.10. Cp. 245.9—248.12. tɨlɨyɨ.ɨw pɨ hɨrw look out, oxen, I am going to turn (said by ploughman to plough oxen). 246.15. hɨr pɨ, hɨr pɨ (said to plough oxen to make them go slowly).

2. hɨr, hɨr -mɨg, (-rɨ) y small nullah, ravine; N. torrent and bed. — hɨr.ɨfɨw hal bridge over nullah. Mamu Hwe dal nrain going up the Mamu Hwe (Milk Nullah). 276.12.

3. hor -ilo n a weevil (that eats the substance out of old wheat). — hwrik gi.n ilon weevils have appeared in it, have attacked it.

4. hor every. — hor gunh every day. 342.6. hor dun every year. 342.16. hor hanan everything. hor hanan mrtsr gwrlum.an they will show you every kind of attention. 10.14. hor hin everyone. hor hine ahil mihaki everyone says so. hor ilit everything. hor waat every time. Pre.

horell, horalt, pl. horellig y.

1. Rain, H. barsā. — horaltan a rainstorm, shower of rain. horaltan rakarimi he made a rainstorm pour, i.e. he brought down a shower of rain. 158.26. Cp. 122.12. rwo ranali horaltan numa a rainstorm coming of itself (i.e. without warning?) 240.12. horellig much or continuous rain, rains. horellig di hilam the rains had come. horell di.wrtsilem it had rained. horalt tsil rain water, a puddle. horelto amarnalo zrwwlan numan a rain-cloud appearing in the sky. 106.18. horelto rolowan a drop of rain. 106.4. ren ir lo horelliawe (i.e. pure) dyn.animi he himself remained in the rain. 160.2.

2. Rain-clouds, overcast sky. — horalt di hilo clouds have come up, the sky is overcast.

horum unlawful, not permitted as food. — horum ima.nom gurlan carrion. 64.14. Ar. Pre.

1. horey horag -ilo n enclosure, fold (for animals); camping place (in high pasture grounds for flocks and their herdsmen. — hapro nagen hoorpor dirai taking his flocks with him he returned to the camping ground. 192.12. Cp. Hoorjung = Hoory + jung, v. Index of Proper Names.

(Cp. Sh. hooro, which will be found in the maps marking the site of camps in the summer pasture grounds).

2. hoory, hooy, pl. hooshindoro, a free and independent tribe owing allegiance to no one. (There are none such nowadays). — dusalalo jarnamrik wasaimis, ito wik Garetium Hooy (or, Hoory) bila they turned into flying animals, their name is the Garetti Tribe. 206.12.14. Hunzulo Safar Hoory ansaio hikum rum ko qadim zamanulo abad hum a tribal community called Safar Hoory were established in Hunza in ancient times. mathaw gum wikicig: Diram Hoory, Safar Hoory, Bowtale Hoory . . . famous tribe names: the D. H., etc.

(From their meanings it is doubtful whether 1. hoory and 2. hooy are the same word. Cp. however giraw, village and tribe, community).

hoomuzda -muts bastard, of illegitimate birth; ill-begotten. A general term of abuse. 80.10, 112.35, 128.10, 174.33. (Ar.) Pre.

hooud, pl. hooug, y pitchfork (five-pronged wooden fork for separating straw and grain). (Cp. Sh. hooro). [112] hoong, hoong.

1. Among, between, in the midst of, in the course of, in the middle. Cp. § 92. — sis wo hoong ashum people are saying among themselves. u wi hoong wiler cuyamman they among themselves killed themselves i.e. they (mutually) killed each other. 32.8. hikum sin wi hərəŋ čal wamən some people quarrelling among themselves. 42.19. hərəŋ trəŋ čin divide it among you. hərəŋ piyət to intervene, interfere, join in.

000

The locative, hərəŋpilo, is very commonly used.

kən hinz, kik don, ərito dəmniŋ čuki don hərəŋpilo in the course of 1 month, 1 year, 2 years, 3 years. Hunzo ki Nagur hərəŋpilo sinda bila the river is between Hunza and Nagir. mi ki u hərəŋpilo dir ki it is the boundary between us and them. ərilikik hərəŋpilo čwl čin kən the two were conversing with each other. ji k' wuŋ hərəŋpilo nimi relations have ceased, all is over, between me and you. 92.7. 96.10. 106.10. 116.4. 354.11.

hərəŋtum from among, cf. wu Kuyu qəum hərəŋtum kin sizən čwimi a man of the K. tribe died. 112.15. Cp. 114.5, 120.2.

2. Shared, jointly owned, in partnership, jointly. IUB. II. čarəkat. — gəriŋ hərəŋ ki the mill is jointly owned, is joint property. dukanilo jəku hərəŋ bili he is partner with me in the shop. Baltistən ki Horukəmur . . . čil hərəŋ bila the water is common property to i.e. is jointly owned by, the B. and H. 350.5. Horukəwtə ki Dirəmstiŋ ki Bootaliŋ hərəŋ Ultər hugən čwəfəmən the H., D. and K. jointly, or in partnership settled their flocks in Ultar. 258.5.

3. hərəŋtali. — budəis hərəŋtali gən ni bila the road has gone

000 (goes) through the middle of the cultivation.

Cp. iḍigavrtʌli, V. § 84.

4. Also, once recorded, without explanation: hərʌŋuči.

hərʌŋolum being-in-the-middle. — hərʌŋo:ʌm dzš interval, intervening space.

hərʌŋoi, pl. hərʌŋoyʌnts, intermediary, go-between (in arranging marriages); pimp. H. dallal. — hin imo jarmʌn ya gəruvvum sisʌn hərʌŋoi e durmərčər 'evrčai.i he sends a relation of his own or an intimate friend as intermediary to ask for the (other man's) daughter. 298.3 ff.

hərʌj y urine. — ja hərʌj jučila my urine comes, i.e. I feel a desire to urinate. 176.28. h'ərešen dimi a desire to urinate has come (on me). 54.2. Cp. 270.4.

(Cp. hərai.ʌs).

hərai.ʌs, hərʌčʌs, Impv. hər'a, neg. 'ovəra. Ppa. nuh'ərə to urinate, make water, to stale.

Fut. 1. sg. hərʌčʌm.
Pret. 1. sg. hərai.ʌm.
3. sg. m x hərəmi.

g'iri halden . . . hərə bim a male ibex had staled. 270.2. Cp. 172.22, 174.2.

hərbuə x pl. cattle (oxen and cows). (hər + buə).

hərčum, hərčum, -iŋ y.

1. Yoke-bar of plough (that rests on the necks of oxen). — hərčum obtilaiyʌs to yoke (oxen). hərčum dituwʌs to unyoke.
2. Butt (of gun). — (tobʌqə) hərčum butt of gun.

hərgə hərgə "look out ox!" (said to oxen when ploughing). (hər + gə).

000 hɔŋgɔ dragon, monster. 1UB. Ponj. wagur watôh. QUB. atdw.

(I have recorded Sh. hɔŋgɔ no meaning, "female snake").

hɔr hɔn n and y hɔr hin h each each one, every one. — hɔr hinɔr ɔ ɔ hɔn rupi.n yw give each one rupee apiece, give them one rupee each.

1. hɔri y sg. and pl., double pl. hɔrɔŋ barley (plant and grain). — hɔri.ɔ pfɔlɔn a grain of barley. hɔri.ɔ ɔnkɔ gɔ talɔ pfɔlɔŋgɔ 5 or 7 grains of barley. 226.10. hɔrio pfɔl ɔnkɔ the barley having formed its grain. 226.4. hɔri pfy'w.ɔn dipirtɔin pulling up a little barley. 239.7. tɔil hɔri.ɔ h'ɔrki.ɔr gɔ.ljɔrɔ they turn on the water for the barley-sowing. 250.6. hɔrɔŋ barley growing in the fields, barley crop. gɔrr hɔrɔŋ mijɔrɔr reaping the wheat and barley. 230.12. hɔri hɔri wooden shovel for winnowing barley. Cp. 228.1,8, 232.1,11, 234.5, 242.19.

2. hɔri famous, renowned. — hɔri hɔri ɔ'ŋgɔtiŋ ɔz'rɔ.ɔs Kɔnɔr jɔ hɔ I am Kɔnɔr, the slayer of (many) famous monsters, or perhaps: I am the famous K., slayer of monsters. 176.11.

QUB. gave: h'ɔri hɔri sin, gɔ.fɔŋ, hɔ.ŋurido = every kind of excellent people, clothes, horses.

hɔriʧi -ɔsiŋ y saw, H. arra. — hɔriʧi.ɔʧ rɔkɔrtɔ.ɔs to cut (off?) with a saw. hɔrɔ hɔriʧi.ɔʧ izɔr.ɔs bi the wood is to be sawn. hɔriʧi.ɔ ɔrɔr the teeth of a saw. (Cp. Sh. hɔr'ɔti, h'ɔrɔti(?), GB. hɔr'ɔʧi).

hɔri.ɔ tɔal name of a constellation(?), the "Heap of Barley"(?).

(Not known to QUB.).

hɔriʒ -ɔnts, -i.ɔnts, -ɔts n music, tune. — uyɔnʧimɔ hɔriʒ music played for the reception of distinguished persons. thama hiqhum hariy ("Thama's dance-music") music played for the Thama when he lies down at midday. kan hariyan sitawafa ‘music play ye a piece of music on the sitar. 190.12, 192.1. hariy ro making them play music. 202.16. yariq ke hariye da pirata kiar dayalima he heard the sound of songs and music and dancing. 269.19. Cp. 278.24. pirata hariyan a dancing-tune, dance music. 234.15. ma hariyan "pfarta hariy" ‘ehara they call that tune the "Div's tune", (sometimes played for a very odd man). 224.16. (Cp. Sh. hariy, hariri).

hari, pl. hariyata, a long-headed wooden shovel.

harkan pirat to make an error, mistake. — aarab spai manki harkan nitai in the presence of the sahib the monkey makes mistakes (from fear).

harki -riq y cultivating, ploughing & sowing; cultivation. — Hunzai harkiriq ehman, mahle ta dawisai they cultivated in Hunza and the corn came up with black ears. 240.17, 244.2. harki ehma haisai mal cultivated land, field. hin hiwan tele harki ellam a man was ploughing there. 384.13. gawa harki ehma? have you sown, cultivated, wheat? gerke harki ehma they have sown peas. harkia tal water for ploughing (and sowing). tal harka harki ir yalgam they water for the ploughing for barley (sowing). 350.6. Cp. 246.7, 350.2. harkiriq (or, haisai) dayamisai the crops have ripened. Nz. (Cp. hirum).

A zrdum in the manner of an ox, ox like. H. lail ki tarah. hir + hum.

197a

000

ʌwʌnu, ʌwʌnu y pl. women's ornaments, jewelry. (Cp. Sh. ʌwʌnu).

ʌwonɔ -ɔ́ŋ, N. -ɔ́ŋ y a kind of tree related to, or resembling the tamarind.

ʌwy.ʌ.ʌ pl. ʌwyɔ́ŋɔ orbicular dung (of goats, camels etc.), N. ʌwyɔ́. (ʌwy.ʌ.ʌ is said to be harder than yuyuu).

ʌwɔ́, pl. ʌwɔ́ŋ, y plough.

ʌwɔ́, ʌwɔ́ m.ʌ.ʌ.ʌ to spring up, get up, rise up abruptly. — Piŋ'e ʌwɔ́ m.ʌ.ʌ.ʌ́ P. sprang up. 112.23. ʌwɔ́ m.ʌ.ʌ! up with you! get up! Cp. 142.24, 312.12.

ʌwɔ́ʌ́ʌ y pl. growing crops. — ʌwɔ́ʌ́ʌ́ ʌwɔ́ ʌ́ʌ́ʌ́ʌ the crops are good. ʌwɔ́ʌ́ʌ́ ʌ́ʌ́ʌ́ʌ́ʌ to cut the crops.

(ʌwɔ́ʌ́ʌ́ suggests a st. pr. and ʌwɔ́ʌ́ & ʌwɔ́ seems formed from a base ʌw-).

ʌwɔ́ʌ́ʌ v. ʌwɔ́ʌ́ʌ.

ʌ.ʌ́ʌ́ pl. N. ʌ.ʌ́ʌ́ʌ́ʌ́ a elephant. — *ʌ.ʌ́ʌ́ʌ́ʌ́ ooo been: a son of hers look (and find out). 244.16, 212.6, 242.5, 242.10, 350.14. (In 242.5 and 350.14 moi mi.en, mawn, mi, should probably be moimi.a, mawn, mi).

hanow v. hanow.

hai, hai.i alas! — hai.i ofas to sigh. hai hai alas, alack, woe, H. hebe. 156.10, 230.5. (Cp. however ha).

haiegra, v. haraw.

haiearo, pl. -ero, haiearge, a beast, animal, quadruped. — ce haiearo.en emeln le sigerfam I won't get that (particular) animal anywhere. 66.18. Ar. Fra.

haigan, hai.'an, pl. haigani.ig; N. haigan, -ig, y mark, target. — hai.mar n.aar dawn alm at the mark. hai.an dalam I hit the mark, target. haigan d'eitera they set up the target. Mere Dawn gofaln W. A. U. Big hai.an ofam W. A. U. Big had marked out, laid out the trace of, the M. D. irrigation channel. 352.20.

1. Score, tally. — dawnyar.afam haigani.ig (bitas) score, record of numbers, kept by making notches on a stick. ifakofawa haigani.ig ditto on pillar of house.

   The above with ofam, ce ewa.en, to make, or keep a record or score in this way.

2. Token (material evidence), sign, memento, trophy. — ewe haigani.ig (ce, nilawig) je lal ofam I shall recognise the tokens of it, its trophies (i.e. golden horns, tail etc. of the golden calf. 134.20. gofe haigan faw take this token, complimentary gift, (to the King), H. hefa (tahfa), 136.16. Cp. 88.19. (Cp. Sh. haigan).

198 a

137 hasiyow, hasiow y pl. caraway seeds. — wahunig hasiyow black caraways.

The plant occurs in the higher areas of the Gilgit region, e.g. below the Darkot Pass in Yasin.

(Cp. Sh. hasiyowa).

060 halwa N. "halwa", a kind of food, sweetened with sugar, probably the equivalent of the Hn. halwā. Ar. Pro.

hawro, hairaro astonished, perplexed, at a loss, bewildered. 29,6.6. 118.12. Ar. Pro.

hariniq, hariniq y pl. much weeping, lamenting. — gwtsa ayow hariniq ctaro they are lamenting in the absence of the corpse (i.e. for some one who has died away from home). hariniq hariip hila (for hi?) it is a dirge. hariniq hariip ctaro (the band) are playing a dirge, or are playing badly, dismally, slowly.

ha, hā, hai an exclamation: halle! — ha ṭlā O ground! 252.4. hā hikel gumanai he, bravo to you! 74.6. hai mo hamaso nagaw O my wise sire! 58.17. -ini hā ctas to attack, set on, assault. hā nal'a ṭini hā- all together attacking, setting on, him. 274.9.

(QUB. distinguishes hai = wa, and hā an exclamation inciting to attack).

1. hamas, hari-, neg. akkari-. Impv. ham, neg. akkam, Ppa. nal'an, to know, understand.

The subject with all tenses usually appears in the General Oblique form. Pres. wajsam ja hart hanya ha I know much more than you. 56.1. Cp. 28.10. gate ayow wag hari ha you know all this. 86.26. Cp. 28.9. wau hari ha gate duro hilate ctas hila ha? do you know how this is to be done?

Dalstáe bené hei heli he knows the language of birds. 98.5. ngyrne hei hare all know.

Fut. je hrynam. I shall know.

Impf. je heryo heiyam I was knowing.

Pret. je hrnam I know. ung hrnanna? did you understand? have you understand?

Perf. je hrna he I have known.

Plup. je hrna heiyam I had known, understand.

Negative:

Pres. je ákrya he I don't know, understand. hete gat hrnrnnan hila he je ákrya he I do not know how much the price of this is. 10.24. Cp. 62.6. N. palerni dere ofas ákrya he I don't know how to do such and such a thing. hit ákrya hern we don't understand this (book). 70.4.

Fut. (= Pres.) je ákrynm I don't know anything about it (angrily). trijeke ek ákrnme you don't understand such things. 66.19. Cp. 72.22.

Pret. rne ákrnmi . . . je he ákrnam he didn't understand it . . . I too didn't understand it. 70.4.

2. hrnas (agent form of the last) one who knows; wise, intelligent; grateful.—hrnas hei he is one who knows. hrnas hirnn hei he is a wise man. hrnas (ákrnas) ninn heli he is a grateful (ungrateful) person.

ma mayern hrnshrik hern you are all wise intelligent men. 159.4,17. ma hrnas nastr you wise girl(s). 159.17.

hrnaslot y wisdom.

hrnig dáltáke maker of fine speeches, sweet-tongued, honeyed. 364.13.

k'ewan, kewan, kwé-, kwó-; Impv. kw. ooo neg. cwor. Ppa. cwkw, to weep, cry, lament.

Fut. 1st. sg. kwéam.

Pres. 3rd. sg. c. kwóiá, f. kwóiko.
pl. 1. kwóia kwa, 2, 3 kwówa.

Impf. 3rd. pl. kwó'an.

Pret. sg. 1. k'ewam, 2. k'ewma,
3. m. k'ewini, f. k'ewmo.
pl. 3. kewwan.

Pres. pc. kwóiwa wówo she went off weeping. 202.2. k'ewtumsto jo ówa ewana (ka) by (constant) weeping I have become blind, or, in the course of weeping. 260.6. kwówa. 140.15.

Ppa. cwkw, cwk'ew having wept. 20.7, [illegible] 6.

Infin. Noun Agent ówo kewan dówi wiri ke . . . when he goes to the weeping place, i.e. to the place where the sound of weeping came from. 20.9.

The forms quoted will be found in the following passages in addition to those passages already mentioned: 20.4—20, 42.17—18, 44.4—7, 202.2—13, 210.9—10.

kewinig (y pl.?) EOL. mourning. — kewinig ówa to mourn. kewinig kewip mourning music. V. kewinig.

kewó y weeping. — kewó wówan a sound of (people) weeping. 28.3.

kwí tamed, accustomed, trained (of animal, man), H. wayif, halad. — kwí wówini it has become tamed.

kwói time, occasion; share. — kik kwói once, on one occasion. ówto kwói twice. ówki kwói three times. 284.21. wówti, twówi, wówwi, kwói 4, 5, 6 times. ówto kwói jaw jo give me two times, i.e., a double share 080 k'ɛ́ɛkwɛn pl. k'ɛ́ɛkwɛ guide, one who has seen and knows a place, or is familiar with some kind of work.

kɛ́ɛ loose (not tied or shut up); free, at liberty. — kɛ́ɛyɛr kɛ́ɛ bi the horse is loose. gɛrɛ́ ɛ́ɛkɛ́ɛnɛ́ɛ kɛ́ɛ ɛ́ɛ́ let (the man) loose on the wheel pin, i.e. give him free access to, give him the run of . . . 140.2. pɛ́ɛdɛ́ɛ kɛ́ɛ ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ The king had given me full liberty, a free hand. 140.16. Cp. 64.11, 183.9, 246.3. (Cp. Sb. kɛ́ɛ loose, free).

kɛ́ɛ́. — kɛ́ɛ́ ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ in one place, in a certain place. 190.1. Cp. 28.19, 266.1—2.

(Probably for kɛ́k, cp. kɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́, kɛ́ɛ́ɛ́, v. § 191).

kɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ one "ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́", v. s.v. ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́.

kɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́, kɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ -ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ y measure for grain, one eighth of a kɛ́ɛ́ɛ́, and so equal to about 2½ or 3 lbs. — kɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ kɛ́ɛ́ ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ he gave her a "kɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́" of millet. 142.28. Cp. 242.10, 254.3.

kɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ care, security, safety. — kɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ kɛ́ɛ́ carefully, safely. 262.20. kɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ ɛ́ɛ́ keep it in safety. kɛ́ɛ́. Pm.

kɛ́ kɛ́ɛ́, for kɛ́ɛ́ kɛ́ɛ́, the one . . . the other; each other, one another. — ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ kɛ́ kɛ́ɛ́ ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ the two struck each other. kɛ́ kɛ́ɛ́ ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ they abused each other.

kɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ to neigh, whinny. — kɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ kɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ the horse neighed.

1. kɛ́k, kɛ́k. the c form of b kɛ́ɛ́, x ɛ́ y kɛ́ɛ́.

a. Gnc. V. §§ 190—192. — kɛ́k ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ one "ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́" (2 lbs.). kɛ́k kɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ one time, once. ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ kɛ́k the 1100. 92.6.

b. Usually with kɛ́: kɛ́k kɛ́ one time, once, once more, perhaps also, just. V. § 194.

000

The following additional examples: hik ke ma hazan ma i ka say once more what you say. 26.9. da hik ke ṭarkimi once again he made a cut. 42.4. hik ke hareyan let us look once more, let us have another look. 122.18. mirma P'aqtu.er hik ke hereain just go and have another look at P. 126.7. ma hik ke namara mithamai ofina just go once more and listen. 126.17. gate gamaje je hik daiyam ka I have come once (before) by this road. 134.21. je ke hereyam, hik teiafer dwiam I shall have a look too, I'll just go up on the roof. 162.22. hik ke gate gali ke mara adeljomaan if this once (by any chance?) broke, would anyone (pl.) beat me? 170.22. ma hayarefe hik ke ofjaiga ka I haven't once even (i.e. I have never) ridden on that horse. 76.18. Cp. 102.25.26, 170.19. hik dam forthwith. 134.5, all of a sudden. 174.2,17. hik dam once. hik nal'a all at the same time, all together, all of a sudden. 272.8, 276.8, 296.9. (Cp. hikan).

2. hik full. This word refers directly to the content and indirectly to the container, e.g. "water is full in the glass", not as in English: "the glass is full of water".

The same idiom occurs in Shina and Khowar.

The container in Bu. is usually put in the form of the General Oblique or Genitive case. It is probably a Locative-equivalent as the Locative with -olo has once been recorded. gilasolo tsil hik bila water is full in the glass, i.e. the glass is full of water. bil hik bila it is brim(?) full

200 b

(of a measure). trep hik bila it is quite full. hik [illegible] to become full (in s.t.), be filled (the content being the subject). hik [illegible] to fill (the pm.pf. referring to the content). [illegible] hik [illegible] (x pl.) [illegible] (or, [illegible]) the charcoal became full in 3 rooms, i.e. three rooms were filled with charcoal; or, he filled charcoal into 3 rooms, i.e. he filled three rooms with charcoal. 164.12.

The remaining examples are rendered only in the transposed form natural to English:

Pa[illegible] ha[illegible] hik [illegible] (y) P.'s bag did not become full, was not filled. 140.10. Cp. 140.8,9.

The nominative form of the container occurs in:

[illegible] hik [illegible] his bag was not filled. 142.1.

And probably in:

pfori hik multan ke tirajo [illegible] the pond was filled with blood and bones. 252.24.

ha may be either nom. or gen. obl. in:

(hanjil) ito ha hik [illegible] that room was filled with charcoal. 164.6.

Similarly I was given as alternatives:

gilase hik tsil sti and tsil glase hik sti fill the tumbler with water. [illegible] hik [illegible] they (the men) filled it (the space under the boulder, by crowding into it). 160.3. Cp. 86.21, 138.6, 342.3.

hik.an sometimes, unexpectedly, H. kabhi, [illegible]. — hik.an hik.an occasionally. (Cp. 1. hik).

ʼikolto one day, a single day. — hikolto i·mi. ʼeilo one day his mother says . . 62.28. Cp. 50.3, 52.8, 228.4, 234., 266.16, 284.12.

(hk + olto, cp. hk-alto this day, today, also -holto in pa(·)holto, hi-pelto q.v.).

hikolwa first.

hikwa a entity consisting of more than one unit. V. § 197.

1. A pair, couple, set. — hikum hawto a pair of "pabbons" (boots). hikum dawal a pair of kettle-drums. hikum qaci a pair of scissors. EOL. Mispawalo (Alisbadalo) hikum [illegible] hawa probably merely means: there is a clan in M. (A.).
2. Party, band, team, small body (of people etc.) a few. — hikum . . . shirlto sisik a party of fair-complexioned men. 188.2. hikum sis a party of men. 240.8. hikum [illegible] . . . hikum (ammam) . . . one lot of people, or a party, said . . . another said . . . 246.1. (p. 302.4.

hilawi.

1. bride, bridegroom, (before marriage). — hilawi dawin bride. hilawi hilas bridegroom.
2. (probably only as aspects of 1.) unmarried, virgin. (Cp. Sh. hilawi, bride; hilel'a, bridegroom).

hil'as s. hil'ado hon. boy, lad, youth (unmarried), child, infant (male).

infant: tok dimanam hilas a newly-born male infant. jot hilas a small child (male). gawantawa hilawan dinanimi huli, dawinan dum'awan kwi jaw jo if a boy should be born to our wife (or) should a girl be born to her give the child to me. 104.10.

201 b

Boy: 28.19, 58.16, 62.1, 64.20,22, 66.6, 72.11, 102.11, 104.21, 106.3 etc.
Youth: 210.9.
Bridegroom: 298.12, 303.14, 304.1.

hilrlom soft (of leather, blanket etc.) — ayemar hilrlom mamila my bowels have become soft (after constipation and laxative).

himayat y help. — jav lokan himayat ati give me a little help. EOL. Ar. Pro.

him'alter -iq y gateway (of castle, fort). — gupelie himalteln dukotalki.an I'll hang up your head (for you) on the gateway. 72.5. Cp. 88.7.

himan x sg. & pl. A kind of plant that springs up in the fields. It has black seeds which are used for washing clothes.

himmat, hirmat y endeavour, magnanimity. — himmat ati hurry, make an effort, "buck up" (said to coolies etc. to stimulate them at work). Cp. Prov. 19. jav lokan hirmat ati give me a little encouragement. Ar. Pro.

hin hmf. cp. han x y, hik x.

1. Numeral adj. and pron. one (person), a. — hin yerib hirane haler nikin entering into the skin of a poor man. 284.21. hin bart maper pfetan hali there is a very old Div. 28.7. hin jat gurannao in the house of a very old woman. 286.1.

   Distributive: hirn hirn ortoma taking (lit. making) them one by one. 206.9. V. §§ 201, 203, 207.

   The accompanying noun may, or may not, bear the suffix -an. V. § 43.2.

2. Indefinite pron. and adj. : — hin may be made definite by a qualifying demonstrative or adjective, v. § 141. hin . . . hin one (person) . . . another. hir hin everyone, v. §§ 121 and 156.

000

3. Reciprocal Pron.:

hin hin / hin ivu / hihivu } one another, each other, v. § 154.

hindu Hindu, infidel, irreligious; bad-tempered, stingy. — wu hindu ho you are an infidel, etc. H.

hinhin, hinivu, v. s.v. hin.

hiwumun alone, by oneself (of human beings). Cp. hawumun.

hinzir.

1. A single garment, a single suit of clothes; wearing a single garment. — hinzir hai.i, or, iwafafe hinzir hi, ofto tsiv hesun epi he has only one garment on, he has no second. QUB.
2. Of one type, or character. — hinzir sisik people of one type, H. ek rag ho, ekhi tarqal ho. QUB.
3. Weak, poor. H. kamzor, ئرىبۇ. IUB.

hiq -oi.iq. N. -s, y door, gate. — hiqfu, hiqafu at the door. 260.8, 64.7. hiqfu mun hawat? is there anyone (pl.) at the door? hiqfu opum, ovofow they were not at the door, they are not sitting at the door. hiqfur, hiqafur to the door. 64.2, 338.19. ifs hami.s hiqfur sirmi he went to the door of the garden. 12.4. Cp. 2.6, 40.6, 160.13, 286.1. hiqafum makarumdiq the confidential servants of the door, the ushers. 4.2. ha hiqs urlo dirmi he went in at the door of the house. 160.15. hiqoi.iqfu qufurus a house-to-house beggar. irsu ĉife hun hiqun arka manimi a door opened in the mountain. 180.8.

Cp. 64.6, 64.5. hinai ayun asku hitan all the doors are open. N. av hiq dow open the door for me. 40.8. Cp. 12.5. 64.4. hiq tam e (ee, eti) shut the door. hiq tam ne gulp wanimi shutting the door he locked it. 62.6. hir gunts hiq tair ne yurtam they used to give him daily (such and such supplies) each house in turn. 280.5.

000

hiro x pl. hail. — hiro giyai.as to hail. hiro gipanis hail fell.

hipuro a measure of grain. A quarter of a hiduq and so about 5 or 6 lbs.

hirpulto day after tomorrow. (V. hilulto and note).

hir, hiv -i, N. pl. hirikants, hum. man (as opposed to woman, Latin "vir"); male (of animals birds etc.). — hut ayum hiran dewrai.i he has sent a very great man. 90.2. hiri ke gulinants men and women. 952.9,10, 316.3. hir sir hawan ayun all the males, all the male population. 240.2,6,8. eltan hiri ispator durunan ne sei-bam: "lei hir" . . . two men came up to him, "O man", they say . . . 104.1. ja aiyuyulants hir'ive wis ha I am going to give my daughters to men (i.e. husbands). 106.18. hiwiki (hirik + e? hiri ke?) dan ilasor itsi gurtamun the men chased after him in order to stone him. 276.9. hir huk male dog.

(The N. pl. hirikants is probably hir + ik + ants).

hir hayur manow to work strenuously all together. IUB. H. mard wa 'aurat mazikar hum karna. — Hunzukuts kinimo be ku be dorts be lira kwiki nal'a ke nal'a derowar hir hayur mai.ibun the people of Hunza in summer all join to working together whether at the apricots, or the threshing floor or the buckwheat cultivation. QUB. 476 hir'ïgnaa, ir'ï-naa pl. hir'ïgnado x. 000

476

1. Soft fleshy stalk of such plants as broad bean, potato, melon, pumpkin, etc.
2. Stalk of a fruit.

h'irimaa pl. hirim'aiyo x an insect resembling a centipede.

'hiriski pertaining to men, man's. — hiriski gforsain a man's cap. hiriski gupalfiq men's trousers. hiriski bl.ai.i gonorrhoea.

hirkoł y manliness, valour, H. mardanagi.

hirom, hir'om, pl. h and x -ido, y -iq, smart, active, sharp, H. hiz. — he hirom hileaa hai.i what a sharp lad he is. hirom pa sharp side, i.e. edge (of knife).

hiaa -moq y a single tooth, mouth. — gufa hiaa this mouth. Na. Haa hiaa one month. Na. Haa hiaawa in a month. Na. hik hiaa one month. Haa hiaa hha up to a month. Na. hiaa waawa fa.haaq at the end of every month. 62.22. gufa hiaar gaaa h.aakarof gurdaa I'll give you this wether for this month. 62.25. Cp. 60.7, 62.21,26, 342.6.

(hiaa appears to be hi, or hik, one + aa month. Two or more months are expressed by aa q.v.).

hisarb, hisarp y account, reckoning. — gufa gunfaafaam waq ha hisarp efi, ja ha hisarb ecaa from this day you keep a reckoning (of the days) and I too shall keep one. 52.5. ailowaalter hufa waaimi, waqa hisarb waai bila he? . . . ja hisarb halor waaimi 40 days have passed. Has your reckoning come to a conclusion: . . . My reckoning has come out exact. 52.17. ołłałiło hisrō łałer disi the account(s) of both of them came off level, exact. 52.22. berowʌn hisrō bila how much is the reckoning? berowʌn hisrō bi.ʌn how many do they (2 pl.) amount to, work out at? Ar. Pre.

1. hirū -ʌg, N. -ʌrig, y comb.
hirū -ʌg, y loom. — pilʌm gilaiyʌn hirū a loom for weaving "pattoo" (woollen homespun). hirūkʌfe sawat sitting at the loom. 184.4. hirūło falʌki a tax recovered from weavers.
(Cp. Sh. hesūo. With falʌki cp. Sh. palʌqo, palorqo weaver's beam(?); and Pre. falʌk(o) beating pole, or falʌq stocks).
3. hirū -ig y wrist. — mirigʌ hirū "the wrist of our hand", i.e. the wrist.
(This meaning is doubtful; I think I have heard the word applied to the back of the hand).

hirūbufo -mats weaver, H. jolaha.
(-bufo may be the same as -burfo in Sh. tallurfo, N. Bu. talaburfo(?), spider, and one may suspect a connection with Sh. burporki to weave).

1. hif y breathing, breath; (with longer vowel) sigh. — hif ełʌn to breathe; to sigh, grieve for. hif bila there is breath (i.e. he etc. is just alive).
(Cp. Sh. hiif breath, also Sh. hiif breath, sigh).
2. hif, hifʌn abundance of, lots of; excessive, too much, excessively. — hifʌn gʌfe bi (bila) it is of very high price, costly. tsiri, mel, tirk hifʌn dusu bring a lot of water, wine, earth. hifʌn gorurum excessively hot. jo hifʌn amolum difʌm? where am I

000

to get a large quantity (i.e. a big present) from? 186.20. ká'i it is plenty, it's lots. 186.21. ungir ká'i m.anila you have got too much (of the land). 256.5. ammar ká'i bila ás ots marhi which has too much (land) tell us that. 260.16.

Ás(m.ayú) (-ás?) s. sg. & pl. buffalo. — ás(m.ayú) ówk a buffalo calf. (Cp. next entry).

Ás(m.ayú) N. -ás buffalo.

(The latter part of this N. form agrees with the Sh. maiyori buffalo, which was also once given me as a N. word).

Ásthara a certain place, one place.

Only recorded in the forms Ásthara (locative) and Ásthaman.

Ásthara Ázyaw ítta bila in one place there is a horse's hoof-mark. 298.1 (trs). Cp. 306.7. Ásthaman aiti him (the bear) was going to a certain place. 229.13. Cp. 29.19.

ás there, thereafter, after this; and so etc. V. § 422 & 420.

In parts of the texts it occurs with extreme frequency, in other parts it is completely lacking.

The following references will illustrate its use: 8.16, 18.19, 108.20,23.27, 110.14,21, 114.22,23, 116.10,15, 120.2, 122.20, 126.12,20, 128.22,23, 130.11,19, 132.22, 138.22, 140.15, 142.5, 142.8,14, 22,26, 292.3,9,13, 294.3,9,20, 298.10, 300.1,3,6,8,9,11,12, 302.1,5,10,12,13, 304.2,10,15,18, 306.13,14,16.

ás m.anaw to be deprived of, H. m.ásnum. — nur ás m.anaw may she lose her father! 264.2. gur ás m.anaw may you be deprived of your father. 264.8. u ás m.anaw may they lose their fathers.

2046

000

hoṭ SY a kind of food, Wersh. ṭṣyot, Sh. ṭapo, Punj. ṭwka. (Cp. Khe. hoṭ, cooked fat. Sh. ṭapo appears to mean food cooked in butter).

hoṛi y sg. and pl. vegetables (green), H. sāg, sabz sāg.

In the singular the word means "cooked vegetables", and in the plural "uncooked vegetables".

'hoṛi (ṛum) ḥiło there is cooked vegetable (soup). hoṛi hoṛi ḥiłto there are garden vegetables. ḥiłamiṇ hoṛi ... ḥoṛi ale ḥiłtum there were green vegetables in the garden. 64.1. hoṛi ḥiṛwima? ... ḥoṛ ḥiṛwiṛum will you give me green vegetables? ... Yes, I will give you some. 64.2. ḥoṛme (ḥoṛm ne?) hoṛi ewła ḥaiṛum? how was I to fetch vegetables? 68.20. hoṛi aṭurtoma? have you not brought vegetables? 68.17.

(V. Gram. p. 454 note on § 329).

1. hoṛl, v. hoṛle. — hoṛl ne outwards, to the outside. pfirzie ḥawurwsoma, hoṛl ne uwr ṛtma she remained in the pond, she entreated to the outside (i.e. she addressed entreaties from the pond to Ś. R. who was outside it). 14.10. Cp. 106.9.

2. hoṛl h pl. armed forces, troops, army. — hoṛl ḥawa there are troops, an armed force. hoṛl wuṛen ḥaṛmawr di ḥoṛi he has come with (lit. taking) an army to slay me. 26.17. hoṛl ḥawure an army has come. 132.11. fa hoṛle for 100 troops, for a force of 100 men. 176.23. Cp. 26.7,16,19, 32.1, 144.5,12.

In the following it appears to be used in apposition: as an army, in force; or else "wuṛen" is to be understood after it.

Hunzukuts Tsimstsfer hoi ni hass the Hunzukuts had proceeded in force against Tsimst. 295.4. Sorkar Angres Hunzwatsr hoi dimi the British Authorities had come in force, or with an army, against Hunza. 344.19.

hoilalas pl. hoilalaio x butterfly, moth. (Cp. gumhoilalas).

hole, hoio.

a. Adv. out, outside.

Usually with a verb of motion; but to "come out" or "go out" and to "take out" are usually expressed by the simple verbs dawas and d°-uasas with the Ablative, though hole may be used to reënforce them:

hole ni go out(side). Cp. 370.6. hole hasas fat aiy'ofi leave nothing outside. 286.6. ima giyat iratsum hole vertimi he spewed (flung) the infant out of his mouth. 110.8. Cp. 114.7, 286.14. imo tagsitsum hole ertsiam he used not to come out of his palace. 2.3. Cp. 286.4. damas hartsum hole dirukers they bring the master (of the house) out of the house. 314.10. hiqtsum hole zarq jutsi i he comes out in front of the house. 340.22.

In all the above the Ablative is probably dependent on the verb and hole is merely an adverb.

b. Postp. out of.

In the following, hole seems to have postpositional powers, the nouns in the general oblique must be dependent on it, as, were they dependent on the verb, they would be in the ablative:

ima pfoltiqile hole yerig manimi tunes came out of that bellows. 166.3,5,6. ima hole hayare iranmals hole hoi dersimi a spring came out of OOO the cliff out of the horse's tail. 278.1.

(korle is probably the general oblique form of kor seen in kor ne, korlpa. The ablative and adjectival form is korlem).

korlguṭ, korlguṭ -iŋ y battle, fight. — korlguṭ bila there is a battle, fight. korlguṭ ɛtɛs to fight a battle. korlguṭor ral bem they are ready to fight.

In the texts it occurs only with niyɛs when for some reason it dispenses with the dative suffix. beṭal mi korlguṭ ɛmolor nimɛn ke whenever we go (went) anywhere to fight. 194.11. ɛmolor korlguṭ niyɛs manimi ke wherever it is necessary to go and fight. 252.17. korlguṭ ni bɛm they had gone to fight.

(Cp. 2. kor).

korlpa outside. — korlpa kurut sit outside. murltum dusin korlpa joŋ nema kurutimi coming out of her belly he sat squatting outside. 110.1. korlpa tɛmɛrlu ɛtɛsor nimi he went to play outside. 264.8. (kor + pa).

korlpɛci outside. — ime korlpɛci yotsumo she saw him (sitting there) outside. 110.2.

korlem Adv. from outside.

Adj. outside, foreign, strange. korlem Kɛsor dim K. came in from outside. korlem sis strangers, outsiders, foreigners. korlem jɛtɛqulo . . . gɛti mɛ.ibem they assemble on the outside meeting-place. 328.18. yum basi.stum korlem pa pʃat numo leaving his wife outside the garden. 40.24.

kos swelling up (of belly). — kos gum'ɛnum may you become swollen-bellied! (a curse used by women).

000

(Cp. Sh. kun, "a disease of cattle and horses in which a swelling appears on chest or throat").

kowor pumpkin, H. kaddu.

kubə·l sin, fault, penalty. — kinɪ açu.e kubə·l wuṇr ǰwɪ may the penalty for (the sin, wrong, done to) this brother of mine fall (come) on you. 110.7. (Glossed: kaq). mi kubə·l gotrum may your sin towards me carry you off(?). 362.8. (Glossed: "right, fault, sin").

(Cp. Sh. ubə·l, sin, "gona"). Ar. (u.kbə·l).

kuṛço x pl., double pl. -mots, -ints pair of "paboos", i.e. boots made of skin, Sh. kuṛri. — gutsɪ kuṛço this pair of paboos. kuṛçomots (several) pairs of paboos. kuṛço iltaiyas to put on a paboo. kuṛço ultaiyas to put on paboos. kuṛço ki ta.oçiṇ . . . s'ultas nolt'as putting on paboos (x pl.) and putting on foot bandages (y pl.). 130.9—10. Cp. 128.23—132.1 passim.

koda, kuda, 'oda -atas to inoculate, vaccinate. — koda atum they have inoculated me. koda atas sis a vaccinator. be kuda (askuru?) wolai.i without vaccination, being unvaccinated, he has contracted smallpox.

(Cp. Kho. kod'a).

kuhoopo N. pl. kuhoopomots x hoopoe.

(The second h is probably an error, Cp. Sh. kupupo and Hz. pupo).

kuk, kuk -ai.i, N. pl. kukuints x dog. — kir kuk male dog. gus kuk bitch. ḍrumts kuk a hunting, sporting, dog. kukai.i ǰumas (a term of abuse) dog-like, "talkative"(?). matum kukans itoto its ta.amar dosku birma? had a black dog put down its paw in the food? 84.13,23. Cp. 102.12, 214.3.

206 b

000

hukəm, hukum -iŋ y order, command, authority; permission. — padša hukəm etimi . . . we ewərdəwər: "Bruŋkapərdənuə dəruər nin" nusen the king gave orders to those sons-in-law of his saying: "Go to hunt B. K. D." 120.21. hukəm ganas to take, i.e. obey, an order. hukəm akanas one who is rebellious, a rebel. pəritiŋ atənəmən bəsi ke pfuti hukəm apim the Peris did not open it because there was not the Div's permission, i.e. because the Div had forbidden it. 12.6. hukəm apimaṣi there not being permission; without orders, contrary to orders. jəw . . . tsər hurutəsər hukəm dumər ask for permission for me to sit on guard, go on sentry duty. 36.23. damantsum hukum nuki ini . . . hərlər d'itsimi getting permission from the owner . . . he brought it to his house. 214.13. Cp. 260.2. Ar. Prs.

hukər -iŋ y tamarisk, Punj. pilchi. (Cp. Sh. hukərə).

hukumat y government, rule. — da inə hukumat eyutsərimi then he carried on the government. 10.6. inə . . hukumat nə he ruling. 260.2. Ar. Prs.

huld'o sg. and pl. a measure of grain, half a hićuṭi (about 1½ lbs.).

huljaiyas (-ayas), huljać- (-æć-, -ać-), Ppa. nuljin, Impv. hulja, neg. ulja, to mount, ride.

Fut. 1st. sg. huljaćam, huljæćam.

Pret. 1st. sg. huljaiyam, huljayam.

inə hayuriṣṭ huljami he mounted the horse. 8.1. Cp. 78.26. hulja baiya bə? has he mounted or not? hulja bəna bə? has she mounted or not? hulja bəna bə? have they mounted or not? ev hʌγvrefe hik ke je ovljaiya ba I have never mounted (or ridden) that horse. 76.14—18. gese hʌγvrefe hulja (ovlja) mount (don't mount) this horse. 6.14. Cp. 76.22. nuljen niyas to ride, go riding along. nuljen jivas to come riding. 76.11,20. ive dive ivno hʌγvrafe . . . . nuljan he came up riding on his horse. 122.21. movafe nuljen riding on the mud-flood. 286.11. Cp. 8.1,19, 76.11, 124.3, 162.18, 284.15. ev hʌγvrafe hik ke huljaiyam apev I have never mounted (or ridden on) that horse. (huljaiyam is here probably the 1st. singular of the static pe., v. § 329). gese je huljaiʌsv (or, huljaiyastse) yaski ap'i this horse is not suitable for me to ride on. 6.15,16. padša i huljaiyas hʌγvr the horse on which the king himself rides, the king's own riding horse. 76.13.

000

hum'a pl. humai.iq y ford. — humatsum duvimi he crossed the ford. Cp. humav duvʌsʌ. 112.24, 114.7. sinda huma gučivam I have given you the river ford. 112.7. humav givmi he entered the ford. 176.2. Cp. 114.22,26.

humʌk -ižo x quiver. — humʌkulum hunts an arrow in the quiver.

hum'ʌlkum (hu-), pl. x -ižo, x -iq.

1. Light (of weight). — humʌlkumiq balkovq light planks.
2. Adj. quick, swift, fast.
   Adv. quickly, soon.
   Noun. hurry, haste.
   šum humʌlkum gutsvrʌs sizʌn a good quick walker. humʌlkum gavrtsʌsʌn a swift racer (of a horse). humʌlkum bedšev xʌbir tsučin let us take the news to the king quickly. 6.7. hʌγvr . . . humʌlkum

2076

humalkum gutərimi the horse kept going on swiftly. 8.5. da humalkum (or, tsorr) jarle ju come to me again quickly, soon. humalkum eti make haste, hurry! humalkum ormar don't be in a hurry. humalkum ai.sti don't hurry. Cp. 26.6, 368.12, 373,18, 384.14.

hurmar x sg. & pl. linseed (from which oil is extracted).

humurin, pl. humuriyo, man with wife but no, or few, grown-up sons. 250.4.

humul dry leaves (collected as fodder).

hum -ants, N. -ants x wood (generic term); timber, log, beam. — hume mirz a wooden table. humar tsor ne splitting a log. 86.14. Cp. 86.16. ire boyo gale hum ine harle bi the wood, timber, of the Boyo juniper is in his house. 216.4.

hul'am y pl.

1. Fine cloth, a gift of honour, H. xillat, QUB.
2. A bride's jewelry. H. larki ki hardi ke zewar. JUB. (not supported by QUB).

hunər -iŋ y skill, accomplishment, gift. — hunəre ka stai.i he has done it with skill, skilfully. je hunəriŋ orčam I'll make them display their accomplishments. 106.6. Cp. 260.7. mamale hunər bisar bila? what special gift do you possess? 176.22. Pra.

hunərmar skilful. Pra.

hunćo, hunčo h x y, hunti z, nine. — hunčo hiri nine men. hunćo hayurišo, ispamots, hakičaŋ nine horses, chogas, houses. hunčo satsom after nine months. 102.1. Cp. 268.4. hunti den, hesti nine years, nine times. hunti ikum nine pairs. hunti tha nine hundred. Cp. §§ 188 ff.

208 a

000 1. hundɔr'es, hund'ɔris pl. hund'ɔrešo, -išo x small cross timbers of roof.

(Cp. hunʔ. Also perhaps the latter part of Kho. kanjar'es = khanj + daris, piece of timber laid along top of wall of house).

2. hund'aris, pl. hund'arišo, x callosity (on hand or foot).

hunti, hunti, v. s.v. hunčo.

h'unti.u·lum, hunti.ulum, N. hunti·lum, ninth.

hunts, pl. hunze, N. huntsišo huntsa·ints, x arrow, H. tir, (IUB, also bullet, H. goli). — huntsʌts delimi he shot him with an arrow. 146.11. gusɔ hunts čʌp ečʌm ke huntsetse dunimi ke . . . if I shoot this arrow and if it catches this arrow . . . 156.6. huntse tɔrko·g the feathers of an arrow. 156.8. žʌmer hunts nyuwešin nutʌsk bišʌmi fitting an arrow to his bow and drawing it he shot. 148.16. Cp. 152.13. hunts d'eugusimi he pulled out the arrow. 150.20, 154.9. Cp. 260.11 ff., Prov. 32.

hu.o·, (huyo·ʔ), wool-bearing animal, sheep. — hu.o·s bʌt sheepskin.

hu.o·kum, (huyo·kumʔ), pertaining to wool-bearing animal. — hu.o·kum bʌt, čhʌp sheep's skin, flesh.

(hupu·poʔ) v. hu·ho·po.

312 hur, -ants, N. hur, -a·ints, x conduit for water, water-shoot (made of hollowed-out log or piece of wood).

Used also of aqueduct channel and mill-race (both made of hollowed log), gutter (for draining roof).

kɔra·lts hur, or, tešis hur runnel for draining rainwater off roof. hirske hur bottom piece of frame of comb of loom. yai.ine hure xa gumo she threw them down the mill-race. 206.10,

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1985
AV7 Burusho AV7

(Cp.? Sh. hur, GB. khur, water-shoot made of hollowed log, wooden aqueduct). 312

hurgas, hurgas thick, stout (of cloth, leather), H. moṭa čiz, Sh. phaṭoro. — hurgas gap, baṭ thick hide, leather. pfilam, pači, hurgas bila the woollen homespun, the cotton cloth, is thick. 000 hurgo, hurgo -ŋ y ascent, slope up; uphill, H. čhaṛhai. — tsan yaṭ ne, buṭ hurgo bila it is a very steep ascent straight up. ḍaŋ (or, buṭ) hurgo bila it is a stiff ascent. N. ine hir hurgo nimi the man went uphill.

huriginas IUB stream, current, wave, H. dari.a ka dhar, mauj.

hurorɣo, N. horogo, y perspiration, sweat. — hurorɣo di bila sweat has come, i.e. I etc. have begun to sweat.

hurš, -ants x stack (of cut crops).

hurt -eŋ y revetting wall (of terraced field). (Cp. Sh. hurṭ).

hurts.hil the water that flows off at the lower side of a field when it is irrigated. (= hurt + ts.hil? Cp. Sh. hũ·tsəl, muddy water coming off irrigated field).

huručaiyas to sit, sit down, abide, remain, settle down; become pregnant. A parallel form to huruṭas q.v., used only with plur. subjects. V. BSOS VIII, 1936, p. 628.

Forms recorded:

Pres. 3rd. pl. huručačan. QUB.

Pret. 3rd. pl. huručaman, -aman, also -uman (the vowel not being stressed is not very distinct). V. pp. 10, 18, 20, 22, 32, 36, 46, 90, 96, 122, 228, 294.

Perf. 3rd. pl. = Present. oltalik hurača ban both are sitting. 30.13. men hurača ban ke whatever women are pregnant. 88.25. kole bisar ovučam why haven't they settled, why don't they live, here? 248.16.

209a

000

Imperative Pl.:

huručai.in = huruṭin. 18.16, 218.6.

Past Pc. Act.:

n'uručam (-an) = nuruṭ. 302.13.

Static Pc.:

huručam bam they are seated, sitting. 180.10.

huruṭas, huruš-, Impv. huruṭ, huru, Ppa. nuruṭ(in).

Negative forms: oruṭ-, oruš-.

1. To sit down, sit.

Pres. uyum manaṣe huruṣai.i he sits down on the big platform. 340.2. (gutas) xat huruṣi bi the corpse sits down. 312.14. Thamor ju netan huruṣam saluting the Tham they sit down. 302.8. oruṣam they do not sit down.

Imperf. tsor huruṣam (guards) used to sit on watch. 192.2.

Pret. ise kursi.ṣṭe nim huruṭimi he went and sat down on the chair. 80.3.

Perf. huruṭai i he has sat down, he is sitting.

Imper. Laṇa Brumo mopaći notaṇan huru sit down in hiding with L. B. 144.22.

Past Pc. Act. Hindilo Siṇe diṣulo n'urutin uyumkuṣ ne huruṭimi sitting down in the place of S. he abode exercising authority in H. 266.14.

Besides this ordinary use of the Ppa. its occasional appearance in combination with the verb "to be" is to be noted:

oltalik nuruṭ bam they both were sitting (there). 186.3. han tili.en bilum iteṭe hin bilasan 000 nurut bom there was a walnut tree and a "bilas" used to sit (or, dwell) on it. 200.1.

In these cases bam etc. is to be regarded as the principal verb and not as an auxiliary to nur. V. § 368.

Static Pc. hin hiran hurutum baiɨ a man is sitting (there). 180.9. dəriulo hərutum borm she was sitting at the window. 24.3. Cp. 184.6. Tham . . . manafe hərutumər after the Tham has taken his seat on the platform. 338.4.

Infin. 182.6.

2. To settle down, be settled, dwell, abide, stay, live.

Fut. 1st. sg. hurušam. 373.9.
3rd. sg. m. hurušɨ.
šukur ne hurušan we shall abide or we may settle down, returning thanks. 34.15.

Pres. 2nd. sg. hurša. 94.7.
3rd. sg. m. hurušaiɨ. 306.1. hin dasinan gəronimu ka hurušabo (i.e. hurušubo) a girl stays with the bride. 306.2.

Imperf. Bərbəre kurulo hurša baiyam I used to live in the Berber cave. 226.7. Tapkiants hurušam. Tele nurut but masti ečam the T. were settled (there). Being settled there they displayed arrogance. 238.5 & 3.

Pret. iski dan hurutimi- he abode there three years. 92.26.

Perf. 1st. sg. hurata ba.
2nd. sg. hurata. 148.3,4.

Imper. akələ hurut stay here. 94.6.

š-Form. hurutiš. 373.1.

210a

000

Infin. and Noun Agent.

The form huruʃʌs is used adjectivally with the meaning:

1. Residential, living. — Čhil Gʌzi.s huruʃʌs dil čorulo bila C. G.'s dwelling-place is in the cliff. 222.2. Cp. 142.22.
2. Resident, inhabitant. — Hunzumo huruʃʌšo sis the inhabitants of Hunza. Aŋulo huruʃʌs sis ba? where do you live? of where are you an inhabitant? ite bušai.s hin huruʃʌs hirʌn a man dwelling in that country, an inhabitant of that country. 372.12.
3. The expression dilulo huruʃʌs is used in the sense of "heir and successor". — yuŋs dilulo huruʃʌs his father's heir and successor. Cp. Siŋs dilulo n'urutin. 266.14.

Other examples of huruʃʌs sit; settle, abide, stay etc. will be found in the following passages:

Fut. 50.16, 52.20.
Pres. 306.2, 314.17, 328.16,17.
Impf. 192.2.
Pret. 2.8, 58.8, 142.12, 262.18, 342,6.
Perf. 248.17.
Impv. 50.21, 50.25, 142.14, 144.22, 166.17, 234.4.
Ppa. 12.17, 190.2.

4. To become pregnant (of a woman). — ine yus huruʃumo his wife became pregnant. 102.1. Cp. 104.18, 244.24, 268.4.

The Perfect gives the sense of being in the present state of pregnancy:

uŋ huruʃa you have become, i.e. you are, pregnant. 58.1. ja jamaʿat huruʃo bo my wife is pregnant. 56.14. Cp. 176.3.

210 b

000

The same sense is given by the Static Participle:
hvruʿṭum bo she is pregnant.
hvruʿṭom bom she was pregnant. 264.7. hin hvruʿṭum gusʌn a pregnant woman. 242.7. Cp. 240.4. ivnɪ guʿs hvrwʿtvmo. Hvruʿtvmtsvm mosamotsɔ gvntsiŋ hisaʿb stvmo The woman became pregnant. From her becoming pregnant (i.e. her conception) she counted the days of her pregnancy. 108.7.
(The occasional recording of hər- instead of hvr- is of no significance.
Cp. the parallel verb hvruʿčaiyʌs used only with plur. subjects. Causative -ʌvruʿtʌs).

hvskinvm IUB evil works, doing everything good and bad, H. bure kaʿm, ʌčča ʌur bura sʌb kaʿm karna. — hʿuskinvm dʿuskinvm dvrʿo sču bo she does every sort of thing, good & bad. QUB.

1. hvʿš sense, intelligence; sensible, intelligent. — hvʿšər diʿn coming to his senses, recovering consciousness. 26.9. Cp. 373.3. hvʿšor wʌlʌsər when he had come to his senses. 182.13. bvṭ hvʿš baiʿi he is very intelligent. Prs.
2. hvʿṣ y wetness (of ground), moisture. — mʌlulo hvʿṣ bila there is wetness in the field, the field is wet.

hvʿṣi -miŋ y loot, plunder, booty. — ugetsvm bvt hvʿṣi daʿaɣvrkʌm (or, ayaiyʌm) I obtained much loot from them. hvʿṣi stʌs to loot, plunder, rob, raid. gʌnulo hin kirʌne maʿl hvʿṣi stvmʌn they robbed, plundered a man's property on the road. hvʿṣi stʌšo sis robbers, brigands. ja ha hvʿṣi mʌnila my house has been plundered. (Cp. Sh. hvʿši dovtki, to plunder.

000

huši.ʌʊ clever. Prs.

huʊškr̥ EOL intelligent. (Prs.).

1. huʊt y quicksand. — sis huʊt nimi the man sank in the quicksand.
2. huʊt the Zodiacal month of Pisces, February-March. 350.6. Ar.

huy'ʊltərts pl. huyʊltərčo hm. herdsman, shepherd. Also used as a term of contempt for inferiors. 28.11, 182.13, 268.3, 322.6. (huyʊs + —?)

huy'ʊs sg. and pl., N. pl. huyʊšo, x small-cattle (i.e. goats and sheep). — huyʊsʌn bi there is a goat, sheep. huyʊs bi.ʊn there are goats, sheep. huyʊs Hʌnumʌn Muʊn yʌkʌlʌfs uyərčər tsuʊmi he took his flocks off in the direction of H. M. to pasture them. 180.3. huy'ʊsʌn a goat. 234.1. isi huyʊs that goat. 234.12. hʌn huyʊs a goat. 314.15. huyʊsi bʌt yʊtis the goat's skin and head 314.5. ʊsko wʌlto huyʊs three or four goats. 314.13. Cp. 28.19, 268.3, 290.7, 312.20, 324.3,5, 340.14, 342.2.

huy'ʊskum pertaining to goats or sheep. — huy'ʊskum dilk goat-, or, sheep-dung manure.

hʊzuʊr, hʌzuʊr peace, comfort, enjoyment. H. ʊrʌm. — hʊzuʊr ne ʒičʌn let us eat (or, enjoy) it in peace. 62.27. hʌzuʊr guri kr ʒi eat it yourself in peace. 142.7. (Cp. Kho. hʊzuʊr).

huʊyo -mʊts x owl; blind. (Cp. Sh. huʊo, owl).

huyoʊ(?) v. huʌoʊ.

J and J.

(See also under ž, ʒ).

ja, v. jʌ. Genitive and Gen. Oblique form of jʌ and the form used when it is the subject of the past tense of a transitive verb.

000 Genitive used as Poss. Adjective, my. — ja diš bila it is my place, the place belongs to me. 112.18.

jaʿdu, v. jʌdu, magic. Prs.

jaʿdugər sg. and pl, hm. magician. Prs.

jaɣun v. s.v. jʌɣuʿima.

jaʿhʌl impetuous, unruly, H. tundru. Ar. Prs.

jaʿhʌli wilfulness, unruliness. Bracketed with hukəm akʌnʌs not to take orders, to disobey. Ar. Prs.

1. jaʿk y pity, compassion, grief. — jaʿk diʿmi, di bila pity came (to me, him etc.) i.e. (I, he etc.) was, have been, moved to pity. — auʿs jaʿk aʿr diʿn hʼerʌm pity for my father coming over me, I wept. 70.16. (Cp. Sh. jaʿk wʌloʿrki to feel pity, Kho. jaʿk).
2. jaʿk dry, dried up, parched. — buḷai.i jaʿk mʌniʿla the land has become dried up.

jaʿl -iŋ y net. (Cp. Sh. Kho. jʌl, H. jaʿl).

jaʿlo -muts x raft (of inflated skins). (Cp. Sh. jaʿlo, žaʿlo; Kho. Psht. jaʿla).

601 jaʿm sg. and pl., EOL pl. -ints, hmf. relation, kinsman (of relations so far removed as to have no claim to inheritance of land etc.) — ja jaʿm bai i he is a relation of mine. ja jaʿm bo she is a relation of mine. jaʿm baʿn they are relations. jaʿm jʌmaʿʌt relations; N. family and relatives. hin iʿmo jaʿmʌn a relation of his own. 298.2. Cp. 302.16. hirər ʌminʌn jaʿm jʌmaʿʌtʌnt iʿrum iʿner . . . ɣusul sčai.i some relation of his washes the dead man. 310.6. mʌthʌnum, ʌsiʿrum, hoʿlum jaʿm(ints) distant, near, outside, relatives. EOL.

(The relation of this word to jʌmaʿʌt, if any, is not clear. The latter was [illegible] given as though it were equivalent to a plural of jaʿm).

212 a

000 jaʷnaʷɔr, jaʷnɔʷɔr -rão, x animal. — hikum duʷalašo jaʷnauʷɔrik umanimiʷ they became a party of flying animals i.e. birds. 206.11. Prs.

jaʷndaʷ sg. and pl. x living thing, animal. — hokz gukʷrišo ju.an jaʷndaʷrik duʷašači bim (some) animals like puppies used to come out. 214.4. ai.inaq ʷnas han jaʷndaʷran bi there is an animal called a marmot. 252.22. Prs.

jaʷŋ manaʷ to clear up (of the weather after rain). — ts.horrdinz di.ʷrhium, nu jaʷŋ manimi it was raining in the morning, now it has cleared up.

jaʷr, N. jaʷr, dative of ja q.v., to me, for me.

jaʷ![1] •-ʌtʌs, jaʷ! •-ʌ., ʒaʷ! •-ʌ. to pull (rope etc.), draw. — ʒaʷ! etum taut, strained tight (of a rope). isz hɔr iʷlji.ɔr jaʷ! ne pulling out the ox backwards (i.e. so as to straighten its neck horizontally). 338.1. (ʒʌmʷ) lukan zi.aʷd bask jaʷ! etimi he drew the bow a little more (than the others). 170.6. gots ɔʷum askiltsum jaʷ! atiʒ gormeima can you draw (i.e. remove) this shame from my face for me? 98.3. EOL gives N. ʒaʷ! as "tight", which may be a secondary meaning. etum being understood.

(Cp. Sh. jaʷs, ʒaʷs thoʷrki).

jaʷ! manaʷ, jaʷ!, jʌ! m. — iʷlji jaʷ! manaʷ to withdraw, retreat, from position to position. iʷlji jaʷ! in the course of some time, some time later. QUB. (The same word as the last).

jaʷu N., from ja + •-uyʌs, to give to me. — jaʷu give thou to me. jau.in give ye to me. jaʷuʷbai he gives to me. jaʷumi he gave to me.

The corresponding Hz. forms are: jo, jomi etc. V. § 255.

212 b

[1] [see corrigenda et addenda, Category 116, p. 543 - Analyst]

jabal -iko x crowbar, jumper. 000 jačorum, jačarum, jičorum, čičorum coarse, coarsely ground (of flour, powder etc.); roughly. — jačorum dayoraŋ coarse flour. jačorum (jičorum) aqor don't speak roughly.

(Cp. Sh. čhičaro coarse (of flour), rough).

jači, from ja + *-čhi.as to give to me, s. § 255, give thou to me. — (yanŋ) kui jači give me (the gold) here. 60.20, 62.4.

jačiv$_d$i-, sg. & pl. x, d.pl. -ŋko, -inis, thistle. (Perhaps also the colocynth plant).

(Cp. Sh. čačiv, Khe. čančiv).

jačo, N. jačo, N. pl. jačoik unripe (of fruit). — jačo jarofi unripe apricot; an immature person.

jaḍau dry (of weather), very clear (of sky). — jaḍau bert nimi it became very clear weather. jaḍau manila it became quite dry.

jadu, jadu magic. — jadu stas to work magic. Paṇčus jadu netan, uv gabuor ʼoyasasor jadu ačaiis P., practising magic, works magic on the princesses to make them laugh. 116.12. Cp. 150.12, 172.5,18, 200.16.

jafat, čafat slack, not tight (as of rope-bridge); relaxed, collapsed. — čeis dumom jafat numurman aus mumanomo having arrived there, collapsing, she became unconscious. 106.28.

jaguiá, (ḱ-), -mets x food brought (for seven days following a death) to the house where someone has died. 765

This is apparently what is called "qurume čapik" in. 314.8.

uṇs čapuiimots durim! may your funeral meats be cooked (an ill wish). QUB.

jayuṇu slime. 116.4. 000

000

jayuima, jayun, from ja + -ayunas to give to me, v. § 255. — hoi jayuima? will you give me vegetables? 64.3. gudi yerayisum pyuman jayun (or, ayun) give me a little of this gold. 54.23.

jahavr N. -ido x ship. Ar. Prs.

jajam -atas, jajam —, jajam —.

1. V.t. to roast, H. kabob karna. — cap jajam stas to roast meat. reumuto jajam no roasting the kidneys. 66.6. Cp. 68.8, 74.5 (where ne seems to indicate the use of invariable stas).
2. With the Pn.pf. referring to the person affected, to burn ("of a wound when water gets into it") v.i. — jajam ačila it burns me, i.e. I feel a burning sensation v. § 261. II.
3. jajam stas to sizzle, fizzle (as of burning hair).

(jajam is said to be onomatopoeic, being based on the sound of a thing roasting).

1. jak -iq y pain (rheumatic?), rheumatism. — jak -atas (of pain) to affect one. jak ačila, gočila, rečila rheumatism is affecting me, you, him i.e. I am etc. suffering from rheumatism. jakiq 'ačilsa I am suffering from (rheumatic) pains (in several places). očiqulo jaq(an) gi bila a pain has come in my legs. EOL. (Cp. Sh. jark pain, rheumatism).
2. jak -atas to burn, scald v.i. — yfuru jak ačči the fire will burn me. tirli jak mevtimi the water scalded us. čak manom čapik scorched bread. jak manev to be frostbitten. čayuteulo irrig jak manimi his hand was frostbitten on the pass. gyrulo jak manev to be frostbitten in the snow.

OOo[3]. jak completely, bodily, QUB H. brikul. — jak dal ne tiktsi delimi picking him up bodily he flung him on the ground 14.1. jakuši, ʒakuši, N. jakari, -mots x weighing-scales (large). (Cp. Sh. čhakuši, GB čakave.

jakər, properly jaqər, -ṡło x fork, (wooden) pitchfork; forked, dividing in two, dual (in non-technical sense). — šapik tiyas jakər a food-eating fork, table-fork. EOL. gorəre jakər pitchfork for turning cut-crops. gurə eltalanas jakər pitchfork for turning wheat. EOL. jakarafi ile kirte ati move it (crops) about with a pitchfork. dilke jakər a pitch fork for shifting manure. tayə jakər forked prop for supporting pergola. jakər gan(ig) forked road(s). jakər ganolo at the fork in the road. jakər ču double-blade, two-bladed (of leaf, grass, knife(?). iski jakər three-bladed. jakər ipfati cloven-hoof (of goat etc.). jakər šər(ko) forked branch(es).

Also with aɹlto.

aɹlto jakər šərk'o bim there were branches forming a fork. 214.8.

(The context seems to imply only one forked stem).

aɹlto jakər (toboq) (a) double-barrelled (gun). aɹlto jakər bor aiati don't say a different thing from what you first said, don't contradict yourself. jakər gutalo dwalamiren a pair of corpses went out(?). ("Said of a pair of dead bodies being carried out together").

It was said that this word could be used of a camera tripod.

(Cp. Sh. čakər, fork).

jakun, jakuṇ ʒ-, pl. jakuṇyo x donkey, ass. — hir jakun, gus jakun male 000 donkey, female donkey. jakuns gorko donkey foal. 118.4—120.10. jakunens mamu ne (or, atum) bim there was a donkey big with young. 118.3. uŋ(or) axirats jakun amanjal may I become your donkey (beast of burden?) in the next world. 54.25,26. ins jakuns ik Qaŋ Jakun bilum the donkey's name was Q. J. 202.4. jakun ba? are you an ass?. EOL. Cp. 102.7. 142.26. (Cp. Sh. ɖakun, jakun).

jali.as, jalić- to scatter. — bo jali.as to sow seed (corn). (Cp. Sh. jalorki to scatter, sprinkle, sow).

527 jalsa y assembly, gathering, festival. 388.9.

(Probably from the official annual gathering of the Chiefs and their principal followers, which takes place in March at the Headquarters of the Political Agency, in Gilgit, and which is known as the Jalsa). Ar.

000 1. jam completely; perfect. QUB H. izikul. — jam jadugor bai.i he is a real magician. IYB.

2. jam *-atas to beat (a tree, with a long stick to knock down fruit) to worry (a person). — ɖu jam oti beat down the apricots. sis jam aiyoti don't worry people.

3. jam *-mamas to feel shame, be affected by s.t. — jam emaibai.i he is unashamed, unaffected.

(This and the preceding are possibly the same, the radical meaning being "to shake". Cp. Sh. jam jam thorki, to shake a thing and turn it round).

601 jamarat sg. and pl. hmf.

1. Spouse, wife, husband.

a. Wife. In the vocative it takes the special form of address: a. as jamarat O wife! 34.9, 40.8.

214 b

In the oblique cases it may, or may not, take the feminine theme -mu-. 601 jamaʿate ka haʿlər ni go home with your wife. 42.11. jamaʿatmur hokəm eti give your wife instructions. 50.21. urg nokom ja jamaʿatalər . . . ɣmag nukʿan ja jamaʿatmulər ni you going to my wife . . . taking the gold go to my wife. 56.10.

b. Husband. In the vocative it takes the particle le, lε.

"le ja jamaʿat, niεn" ssuumo "O my husband", she said, "let us go". 36.1. ja jamaʿate yas my husband's sister. akʿl ja jamaʿatan baiʿi such a (fine) husband is mine. 122.9. Cp. 122.26, 68.7,12.14.

2. Family, people of the house, women-folk. — jarm jamaʿat relations (not living in the house). ha jamaʿat relations living in one house, the people of the house. 266.5. haʿlər dirn jamaʿatər seʿiham arriving home he used to say to the family (or, his wife?). 208.11. thams jamaʿatər ke . . . hanikuts otsuεʿn they send dishes of food also to the Tham's women-folk. 340.18.

(Cp. Sh. jamaʿat, wife, family, members of household).

jambolos IUB large intestine, H. bari antari. (Not known to QUB). 000 jambolos IUB very hairy, a person with a lot of hair on the body. H. riʿada barlwala, ek saxi jis ke jism par riʿada bal hε. QUB a hairy dog, a tree with a thick growth of twigs.

jama, jamak, v. ɣame bow.

215a

jamip.

000 *1. Foreign, outside, H. ग़ैर, begana. — jamip ato a outside person. jamipe tobak yan borrow an outside person's gun. jamip(i)ac dukuyanas Pusno Γaiwig you (are) a P. Γ. who wear yourself out for others.

2. Step- (of relationship). — jamip ayu, jamip au my step-father. jamip mamac, jamip ami my step-mother. jamip ayu hen, daman ayum they are my step-sons, not my own.

jamkat *-manas to be affected by, influenced by, restrained by, QUB H. maylub, asar. — bexan dorostum kuli jamkat ermaishri.i he is not restrained by anything (Cp. 2. jam).

janam'or *-atas to cause s.o. much trouble. — janam'or 'ordimi he gave me a lot of trouble. janam'or atas to make an effort, exert oneself.

821 jand'ora an animal which is said, when there is an eclipse, to have swallowed the sun or moon, as the case may be.

The people on such occasions make a noise by beating griddles etc. and the luminary escapes through a cut in the jandora's throat.

In its function the jandora seems to correspond to the Sh. grō, Kho. grush, grush.

(jander'a has been recorded in Sh. as a dialectal equivalent of jan, snake).

000 janjal disturbance, row, quarrel, H. fsaad, jhagra. (Cp. Kho. jrajarl). Pra.

janjalkaṛ quarrelsome, fighter.

janub y South. — janub yakalafe towards the South, southwards. Ar. Pra.

jaŋ -ičaŋ y war, fighting. — padša ka jaŋ čam I shall fight, do battle, with the King. 32.2. jaŋ ṭaṭo sis warlike people. Cp. 344,22,23. Prs.

jaŋgal -iŋ N. y forest, jungle; wild, uninhabited country. — jaŋgals from a wild, or natural tree (as opposed to a grafted one). jaŋgal is not so thick as mošk. N. Cp. 28.17, 128.3. Prs.

jaŋgali wild (i.e. not domesticated or cultivated). — jaŋgali bolt, badam, ṭu wild apple, almond, apricot. Prs.

jap with force, hard. — yuw ne jap ṭrisas to press down hard. H. ḍabana.

jap *-[illegible] to stay, remain, survive, H. baćjana. — ji gow jap ćiyamaiyam I will not stay with you. 210.8. jap *-ṭas to make stay, keep. ine yuṭinte ḷap ćiyoṭai he cannot keep his wives, cannot make them stay with him, i.e. he divorces them.

jaqor -ṭo x fork. This is the correct form of jakor under which examples are given.

jorajorag, jojajojag ṭas v.t. to stir (a liquid).

jorawaṭo neither dry nor wet (of wood).

jori.aw IYB grief, anxiety, H. yam, fikar. — jori.aw čati he is in anxiety, is worried. (Cp. Sh. joraw, jojaw, vexation, grief).

1. jorjor IUB spark of fire, H. čingari. — jajor manas to spark. QUB.

2. jorjor, QUB jajor, noise of roasting meat, or sputtering hot iron. — jorjor mai.ibila. (Cp. jujur).

jorkus anxious, worried, H. fikrmand. (Cp. jori.aw, and jorkhawa. For the suffix -kus cp. gorkus).

1. jormaj mixed. — jormaj ṭas v.t. to mix (two things, liquids etc.) jormaj

○○○ manaʷ v.i. to mix, mingle with, take part in (game etc.). uʷ ka jərmaʃ numa gir'atimi mingling with them he danced, he joined in and danced with them. 234.4.

2. jərmaʃ x forbidden food. — jərmaʃ ʃiʷma? be ituma? tɔilate alto ta.hiʷr ɣaliʷ gumanuma have you eaten prohibited food or what have you done that you have thus become ill again? čamus jərmaʃ bila, oʃi "chamus" is forbidden food, don't eat it.

1. jərpa pl. -ŋ, jərpaŋ y Lombardy poplar tree, H. safedaʷ.

2. jərpa pl. jərpaŋ y fine, H. jurmaʷna, taʷcaʷn. — jərpa *-atas to fine (s.o.). je jərpa aʷtuman they fined me. je jərpa amaiyam I shall be fined. kan baskarate jərpa očaʷn they fined them a wether. 324.6.

jaʃ, jaʃ, etas to jerk, pull away. 160.6. — jaʃ jaʃ etas to give one or two quick tugs, or jerks (said in regard to pulling a bow, shaking hands). (ʃ̌ami) jaʃ jaʃ etimi he gave the bow a couple of tugs. 170.21.

(A variant of jaʷʃ).

jaʃ pl. jaʃuʷ, and x jaʃoʷŋo old (of man or beast), aged H. buḍha, 'omər rasiʷda. — kins hir jaʃ imanai.i this man has become old, or is old. jaʃ gus, gušiŋants old woman, old women. kaɣʷr jaʃ imani bi the horse has become old. jaʃuʷu baʷn they are old. Cp. 28.9, 152.11, 230.6, 286.1,15, 280.15, 382.14.

jaʃab'ero IYB, jaʃaberi old-age.

jat'aq public meeting-place in the open where dancing is carried out. In Baltit 302.2, 328.18. At Galmit 336.11, 338.4.

jaʃbaʷiʃ old and young, also, old folk, old people, H. buḍha-moḍha.

216 b

jʌti, jɛti x. 000

1. Wooden dish or vessel covered with skin with the hair on it (the skin is sewn or tied on to the dish). Used for fetching flour in: "jʌti ditsu.in" nosɛn dowtson ivi dʌsin dʌγowʌŋ modɛljai.i saying "bring a jʌti (of flour)", and making them bring it, he himself sprinkles the girl with flour. 298.9, — jʌti.ulo dʌγowʌŋ dusɛn fetching flour in a "jʌti". 306.7. dʌγowʌŋ jʌti'i a "jʌti" of flour. 338.19. 415
2. A measure of grain etc. (about 3 lbs.). — altʌmbi jɛti (8 jʌti) = 1 γerbʌl = 24 lbs. 804

   The single jʌti is equivalent to the hiĉuṭi, and the Sh. hai.i.

   sʌbur jɛti four "jʌti" (sʌbur being Wakhi for 4). 342.18.

jʌtpʌt. V. 240.3 and footnote. This form is denied by QUB. Substitute for it joṭpʌṭ. 000 jʌṭor, jʌṭur.

1. Quince (x fruit, y tree). B . .i.
2. Knot in shape of a quince at end of thong etc.

   (Cp. Sh. ĉʌṭor, quince).

jʌwʌn, v. jowʌn, youth. Prs.

jai.i nimʌz prayer-mat, praying-carpet. Prs.

jau ɛtʌs.

1. To hold a thing in the fire and burn it.
2. To weld two bits of iron together.
3. To join falsehood to truth.

   (In this combination of meanings there is perhaps a rough analogy with the various uses of the English "forge".

   The word was given by IYB with reference to the phrase:

ivkɛ bivškɛ ivtɛ pfuʊr gimi he threw the hair in the fire. 26.14. Uses 1 and 3 were not known to QUB). OOO jauji, -mʊtɛ x and -miŋ y horse's bit. (Cp. Wakhi jaoji).

jauwa -mʊtɛ x big sinew of neck or heel.

jauwa bər'ɛs, pl. — bər'ɛšə x the tendo Achillis).

(Cp. jauwa, and bʌr'ɛs which can probably mean "sinew" as well as "artery", "vein". Cp. the use in H. of rʌg in both senses).

je.i, jeje.i I myself, I (emphatic), v. § 142. Cp. 82.24.

je.ib N. other (person). — hər čizʌn je.ibɛ šu.a, aulavd gu.imo šu.a everything belonging to others is better (than your own), only (your own) child is better (than others').

(je.ib seems to be a variant of, or substitute for jʌmiʊp).

je.imo, je.imo my own, v. § 143.2. — je.imo tɛʊgušər ni.ʌm I went to my (own) palace. 20.8. Cp. 94.4, 116.20.

jeʊl y pl. originally recorded as meaning: "uncultivated ground used as grazing-land".

For this QUB, however, substituted: "grass left in the ground or scattered about when grass is being cut".

(Cp. Sh. jel, jungle of trees or thorn bushes).

jeʊlxaʊna y prison, jail. Eng. + Prs.

jɛ. Gen. Obl. and Genitive: ja, I. V. § 118.

jɛčərum v. jʌčərum.

jɛʊk, jeʊk, ǯɛʊk extended, stretched out, prostrate, lying down. — *jɛʊk -ʌtʌs v.t. to extend, stretch out, lay out. jɛʊk noʊtʌn tikʌtɛ fʌt očʌm stretching out, straightening out (the dead bodies) they lay them on the ground.

000 310.2. Cp. 310,3,7, 312,1,2. Prov. 4. jek manas v.i. to extend oneself, lie down. jek mane lie down! duŋ jek maiyam I shall lie down for a little. (Cp. Sh. jek, ṭek).

jet v. jati.

ji mičiŋ, -miŋ y.

1. Life, soul, self, H. jan. — (ja) jiv ṭuguło (my) soul's friend, i.e. bosom friend. 50.11 ff. jiṭ badal life's price, i.e. blood-price. hir ya gusan u.ivruman ke, ji di.usamər . . . when a man or woman die(s), when he (she) has expelled the soul, i.e. has given up the ghost . . . 310.1. ji ačim daman the Lord who has given me life. jiv ičim oyom all life-given things i.e. all living things. jivi pfamul life's fruit, i.e. delicious [illegible]. jivmiŋ bitsum things with life, living things, (bitsum is here probably participial). jivtsum avči (the elephant) will despatch me from life, i.e. will kill me. 76.25. ṭrqame ji balimi new life has come into the vegetation. jiyər juryas to come to the end of one's resources, to be in straits, sick of life, H. jan ama, taŋ hona, jansc bizar hona. IUB. mai.imu ji xalas stin save your lives, save yourselves. 30.23. mu.imo jiryər yavran ditsu bo she has brought a lover for herself. 86.5. Cp. 358.7.

2. Beloved, darling, hmf. — ja ji (bai.i, bo) (he is, she is) my beloved. in ja ji di bam that beloved (m.) of mine had come. 364.7. ja jimo . . . ɣoyaŋ my beloved's (f.) hair. 364.9.

000 The word seems to occur in ji je.i, v. § 142.

je ji je.i bayam ... I myself was ...

ja ji je.i gote duwo etam I did this myself.

Also in N. ja jiʷkər (ji + -khor): ja jiʷkər delam I hit myself.

ja jiʷkəre gane dumərča ba I want it for myself. (Cp. Sh. jil soul, life).

jig'a v. ṭiga.

jije.i v. ji 2.

jik'an, ṭrkan, pl. jik'aiyo x thin leather thong. — ta.očine ṭrkan thong for tying foot-bandages. gap jik'anane gultali.e baiyam I had swaddled you with a hide thong. 158.5.

(Cp. Kho. ṭrkan, ṭskan).

jiʷkər N., v. ji 2.

jil.

1. Rising (of sun etc.), sunrise. — sa jil manimi the sun rose, or came out (after rain). jil praʷq manimi (later than jil manimi). sa jil manaʷs kin sunrise (time). lačaʷr jil numan the morning star rising, 362.1.
2. Forenoon (when the sun rising over the mountains strikes the ground). — tsowdimo jiʷlər from early morning till the forenoon. Prov. 11.
3. The East. — jil (manaʷse yakal) (towards) the East. jil manaʷstsom from the East. 92.4.

Cp. Sh. jiʷl, ẓiʷl).

jilau y sg. and pl. reins. — hayore jilautse dumomo she seized the horse's reins. 122.23. Prs.

j'imale tomorrow. — jimale tsowdine ja apačər ju come to me tomorrow morning early. Cp. 4.10,13, 10.12, 38.19, 142,26, 170.11,13.

000

j'imden.

1. Nz., N., tomorrow.
2. Hz. any time in the future, future state, life to come, H. qai.ʌmʌt, 'uqba. QUB.

jɪn, jin, pl. -oŋo, EOl. -ʌnɪs, jinn. 384.6. Also applied as epithet to a glutton. Ar. Prs.

jiᵛndo, jindu living, alive. — jiᵛndo juw'ʌn as though alive, looking as if alive. 150.11. Cp. 152.5, 154.12, 234.9, 368.15. (Cp. ji and jiᵛno).

jiᵛno N., hf. jiᵛni, pl. -mʌts living alive. (Cp. Sh. joᵛno and jiᵛno. The feminine form jiᵛni must be borrowed from Sh.).

jiŋɛ, v. čiŋɛ, sleeve.

jiŋjaᵛŋ with long steps. — jiŋjaᵛŋ oᵛmʌn don't go striding along.

jiǰjʌš *-ʌtʌs to twitch, pull, pluck s.o. by the clothes. 160.2. (Cp. jʌš).

jo, joᵛu impv. 2nd. sg. of joᵛyʌs ← ja + *-uyʌs, v. § 255. Give to me (an h or x object). 60.16, 90.22, 92.15, 104,11, 112.6, 372.4.

joᵛča 2nd. sg. pres. of joᵛyʌs. 62.14.

joᵛčo 3rd. sg. hf fut. of joᵛyʌs. 50.22.

joᵛčuma 2nd. sg. fut. of joᵛyʌs. 106.3, 118.22.

joγajʌγaᵛto slimy. — iᵛsɛ jʌkunɛ goᵛko joγajʌγaᵛto ekʌti.aᵛrɛ nidilin putting the donkey-foal slimy (as it was) under his arm. 118.4. (Cp. jʌγaᵛto).

jojoṭ *-mʌnʌs to look at and desire, to look at enviously. — hin gʌṭu.ʌn etimi kɛ hin jojoṭ imai.ibai.i if one makes himself a garment another looks at it enviously. jojoṭ oᵛtʌs to make people envious by displaying something one possesses.

jöl, jul y pus. — jöl bila, mʌnila, duᵛčila there is pus, pus has formed, is coming out.

jomi 3rd. sg. pret. of joyas. — baskarstan jomi he gave me a wether. 62.18. 000 jomiŋ, jajomiŋ (stas) cp. žomiŋ., (to offer) every kind of abuse. — atsi jomiŋ sčasi he abuses me.

jomŋ pl. of ju apricot tree.

jomŋ manas to crouch, squat. — jomŋ noma hurutimi he sat squatting. 110.1.

jöt, v. jut, small.

jotis pl. jotišo jotimuts h small child.

joto pl. jotumuts h and x small child, young (of animal). — jotimutse (or, jotumutse) ka holpa tamača stasor nimi he went out to play with the children. 264.8—11. Cp. 304.15, 386.7. kərqamutse jotumuts (QUB jotišo) altа dumərča ba I want two chickens.

(According to QUB the -muts pl. forms are only used of children. He also says that joto is a vocative form: le joto, hallo child! Cp. jut.

Is the Sh. joto, chicken, only a coincidence?).

jotpat h pl.

1. Small children, youngsters. 326.15.
2. Young and old.

Substitute this form for jatpat in 240.3.

jotu N. -muts x chicken. (Cp. Sh. joto).

joyas ← ja + -uyas*, v. § 255. To give to me (an h or x object). — ye joyas ba ke ti besan ayau, uŋ je ats'u if you are going to give me anything, don't give me anything else (but just) marry me. 118.24.

V. jo, jorča, jorčo, jorčuma, jormi.

1. ju x sg. & pl. apricot (fruit). — juen an apricot). tsorr diγunum ju early-ripened apricots.
2. ju pl. jomŋ y apricot tree. — berumAn ju.e tom bitsAn? } how many berumAn jomŋ bitsAn } apricot

219 b

000 trees are there? Hunzolo joŋ doxərčumɛ when the apricot trees are coming into blossom in Hunza. 320.1. gaško . . . thaviko joŋɛ šərkovtsɛ tak notʌn tying ropes to the branches of tall apricot trees. 316.12.

(According to QUB the j- of the pl. is not cerebral).

576 3. ju, juvna y.

a. An expression of respect to a superior, greeting, salutation, obeisance, H. salam. — N. awa ju yes, Sir! ju gor maniš! "thanks to you", sometimes used sarcastically: "thanks for nothing". 112.2. ju etʌs to pay one's respects to, thank respectfully. thamɛ ju ečər ničʌm I shall go to pay my respects to the Tham. thamər ju netʌn saluting the Tham. 302.8. guvimo jamʌlɛ ju eti say "salam" to your family. EOL. gulɛ ju menər etoma? whom did you salute? EOL.

b. An extended form juvna is also in use:

juvna nʌnatsəro! hail, mother's brothers! 248.11.

I have also the following notes:

juvna — "a greeting to which the response was formerly the same: juvna. Now under orders from (the Agha Khan) Bombay the response is: salam alei.kum; in which matter even the women comply".

juvna nʌzər — "said by women, and sometimes also by men, as when a small gift is received".

(Both forms were still in 1935 in general use especially by women. Ju has also been recorded in Sh.).

000 4. ju, ʒu, pl. -ʌnts, juwʌnts, x warp-yarn. — gʌtu diyʌn juwʌnts du.ʌši-miʒ.ɛt, the cloth becoming old the warp-threads came out (i.e. became visible).

5. juv -miŋ y sheep's entrails with the dung in them. — juvɛ nas juvčila there comes a smell of sheep's entrails.

juva -miŋ y recommendation, I. axfavrtɛ. — thʌm ɛpʌči (or, thʌmʌlɛ) javr juva ɛti recommend me to the Tham.

ju.ʌn, juw'ʌn, pl. juwai.rko, ju.ʌnjuvko like, resembling, similar to; as if.

The object with which comparison is made is usually in the Nominative, but once or twice the General Oblique has been recorded, v. § 116.

a. With the Nominative:

dʌn juwʌn mʌnitsʌn they have become like stone. 132.4. pfuł lʌγʌn ju.ʌn like a dumb Div. 160.20. uŋ ju.ʌn(ʌn) like thee. 82.1.

b. With the general oblique:

mimo . . . ta.očiŋ Pʌnčuvɛ juwʌn tsilvlo iljʌn let us like P. soak our foot wrappers in the water. 130.24. bivškɛ . . γeniše ju.ʌn lʌm mai.i bitsum the hair was glittering like gold. 134.8. mʌza bʌnda čʌpɛ ju.ʌn mʌza bila the taste is a taste like human flesh. 68.3.

(But perhaps the second mʌza is misplaced and should follow čʌpɛ).

c. ju.ʌn is frequently followed by nɛ Ppa. of ɛtʌs. — ja belʌte yetsa baiyʌm kɛ ivtɛ ju.ʌn nɛ avr čʌγa ečai.i just as I had seen (the dream), making it like that, he is telling me the story, i.e. he is telling me the story (of my dream) just as I saw it. 84.15.

d. ju.ʌn, or, ju.ʌn nɛ may take an adjective or a static pc as the object of comparision. — jivndo juw'ʌnɛ (i.e. juwʌn nɛ?) hʌγɔrɛ gʌpʌte ɛnuljʌmi he mounted him as if (he were) alive on the horse's hide. 150.11. apim juwan etai.i he has made it as if not being, i.e. as if it were not. 84.1. i·kər eyenum (i·rum) ju.an etimi he made himself as if asleep (dead), i.e. he feigned to be asleep (dead).

000

e. ju.an may take the suffix -an: ju'anan, juw'anan, juwa·nan. — i·se juwa·nan biya be? is it like that or not? guse juwanan etas manis one like this is to be made. i·n juwanan du.ina·tolo apai.i there is no one like him in the world. 30.16. Cp. 82.1,18. guse ke guse juwanan bi this (animal) is one like this one, i.e. this and this are alike. gute tsil i·te tsil ju.anan bila this water is (one) like that water.

Additional references:

a. 160.7, 168.13, 224.3. 230.4.

c. d. 80.20, 140.6.

e. 82.12, 164.11,25

j'učor -ig y chip of wood (larger than čimirli). (Cp. Sh. čučar).

*jujur, jujur, -atas to make s.o. like roast-meat (said by wife beaten by her husband). — jujur ačai.i he beats me into roast-meat, i.e. he oppresses, bullies, me. (Cp. 2. jərjər).

juk, N. pl. -a·ints, x kidney. (Cp. Sh. juk, Kho. bruk).

juk manas to come into contact, touch, reach; to be obtained. H. malna, ekatta horna. — juk etas to make reach, deliver. (Cp. Sh. juk thorki to touch, rub against, etc.).

jukanę y large spindle used in twisting two strands of yarn together to make warp-yarn. (ju + ganę).

jukan, pl. jukai.o, jukanuts, jukanuts, jukanuts x water-closet, latrine, privy, H. pa·rana, fatti·rana. 188.5,6. (Cp. Sh. & Kho. čukan, latrine).

-juko, -ju·ko plural ending, v. § 29.7. 000 jukuˑni -miŋ y an inferior bit of strap. — oʂçume jukuˑni the narrow waist-belt of a poor man.

jul N., v. jöl, pus.

julaˑb x a purgative, aperient. — julaˑb ʂiˑa ba I have taken a purgative. y purging. — julaˑb mʌniˑla purging has taken place.

jüli N. -miŋ y soup. (Cp. Sh. juˑli, ʐuˑli).

juluˑʂ y soup poured over broken-up bread. — gutʂ juluˑʂ ʂe eat this soup.

jum y precipitous, almost impassable (ground), H. pʌhaˑri. — jum bila it is a very difficult track.

jun IUB intelligent, H. hušyarˑ sʌmʌjh-waˑla. (Not known to QUB).

juˑna v. 3. ju 2.

juˑnojʌnˈʌs ill, filthy, impure. H. naˑpaˑk, hʌraˑm.

juraˑb, juraˑp, juraˑp, pl. -ičiŋ, N. -ičʌŋ, y socks. Ar. Prs.

jurk wind from falling avalanche. — jurk diˑmi an avalanche-wind came.

Such winds, coming out of the Ulter Nullah, frequently strike Baltit suddenly and without warning. Their force must be felt to be believed.

Such a blast is said to have carried a cat from Baltit across the main valley to Sumaiyar: a distance of a mile or two. The subsequent condition of the cat is not recorded.

jurkhuˑso IYB in great grief, very sad, despondent; QUB, stingy, avaricious, H. bʌxiˑl.

(Cp. Sh. juraˑr, vexation, sadness).

juroˑʈi sg. v. pl., N. pl. -mots x unripe apricot fruit.

(Cp. Sh. juroˑti apricot fruit).

juruˑno, N. IYB, pl. juruˑnimots x man's curl of hair N.; little curls of hair

000 made by women above the ears. IYB, (Cp. Sh. juruni hair cut in fringe over the forehead). C

1. jot, jõ:, pl. hx -išo, y -iŋ small (in size, age, social rank etc.) little, younger. — lukʌn joṭ eti make it a little smaller. joṭ hilɛ baby boy. joṭišo čhiṭko small hills. yutiŋ, juʿtiŋ bitsa his feet are small. 154.18, 156.19, 156.1. jot baiyʌm I was small, little. 156.20. ifʌtiyɔr bɔrenin jotʌn bi look at his forehead, it is small. 154.21. Cp. 158.16. hin jot giyasʌn a small infant. 100.2. umɔrɛ jot; dɛniŋɛ jot small in age, young. zaʿtɛ jot of low birth. in jot sis bai.i he is a person of low standing. 94.14. uyoʿntsum jot the youngest. uʿɛtsum jot iʿnɛ the younger one of them. 366.2, 372.2.
[601] jot mɛʿço, jot mi.ʌs our younger brother, sister, (man speaking). aʿu.ɛ jot ɛço my father's younger brother, i.e. my junior paternal uncle. N. pl. jotorko (?) probably for jotu.ɹko. Cp. 76.24, 90.25, 104.25, 106.8, 260.10, 366.5, 370.2.
2. jot, juʿt green grass. — juʿt ʒiqʌm grass-green, green. bʌsi.ɛ jut garden lawn. (Cp. Sh. juʿt growing grass, meadow, lawn).

joṭkuš y infancy, childhood. — iʿmi jotkušɛ iʿri bim its (the lamb's) mother had died during its infancy. 380.17.

juwaʿb, jʌwaʿb -ičiŋ y answer. — jaʿr juwaʿb eti answer me. jaʿr juwaʿb ʌčiʿš gome.iba? can you give me answer? jimʌlɛ jɛ uŋɔr jʌwaʿb gučičʌm I shall give you an answer tomorrow. juwaʿb atiʿmi no answer came. 24.8. Cp. 312.15. uʿɛ jʌwaʿb dusumʌn they brought answer. 24.8. Cp. 232.1. Ar. Prs.

OOO jʊwaihir -aˑt y jewel, jewelry. Ar. Prs.

juwaˑn, jʌwaˑn, pl. juwaˑyo h. young (of man, horse etc.). — juwaˑn (hir) young man, youth. hin but dʌltʌs jʊwaˑnʌn a very handsome youth. 22.15,17. Cp. 120.3, 2 .5, 336.6, 362.11. Prs.

juwaˑni (y) youth, the time of youth. — juwaˑni.ulo in youth. Cp. 362.1. juwaˑni etʌs IUB to cultivate a friendship with any woman, H. kɪsi 'aurʌt ke saˑth doˑsti kʌrna. Prs.

juwʌnʌn, juwaˑnʌn, v. ju.ʌn (e).

juˑwər fighting, quarrelling, H. lʌɽaˑi, jʌŋ. — juˑwər aiyeˑti don't fight (with me).

juˑyʌs, juˑç-, neg. açuˑç-; past base d-, d*-ʌ-*, neg. at-*.

For forms see below and the paradigm in § 287.

The -ç- of the present base I now believe to be -ç̇-. It is affected by the j.

1. To come, with such natural special developments as: come along, come up, approach, arrive.

The point of departure takes the Ablative suffix -tsʊm. The destination takes the dative suffix -ər, either alone or in the combinations, -ʌlər -tsər.

With persons the postposition -ʌpʌçər* is ordinarily used.

The verb is, however, often used absolutely.

ɢuˑ Hinditsʊm di bʌm your father had come from Hindi. 264.15. hʌɣʊrɛ tərkʌŋər dumoˑmo she came to the horses' stable. 108.21. iˑmo haˑlər diˑmi kɛ when he came to his house. 170.7. iˑn ja apʌçər juçi he will come to me. 144.21 ff.

222 b

Where the purpose of coming is stated it is expressed by the present base, or the infinitive, of the appropriate verb with the suffix -ər:

girʌšər jučai.i he comes (in order) to dance, 306.18. Cp. 30.3, 294.21.

uṇ gosqʌnʌsər diva he has come to kill you. 26.8,11. Cp. 26.17, 40.16.

2. To come back, return.

The sense is often made explicit by the addition of pfər numa, or ilji, but these are frequently dispensed with:

tevlər nani daiyʌm going there I returned, i.e. I went there and came back. 42.18.

Cp. inter alia: 10.13, 16.1, 22.3, 126.23, 202.2, 312.18, 370.10. The usage is extremely common.

3. juṇyʌs is sometimes used where the English would prefer the verb "to go". It is of course merely a question of the topographical standpoint taken up by the speaker in his mind.

hirs have yʌkʌlʌṭər sailər dimi he came (i.e. he went) for a walk in the direction of the man's house. 24.2. Cp. 16.2, 56.26, 336.7.

4. It is used in a number of idioms expressing the idea that a person suffers or experiences some sensation, condition, illness etc.

The same ideas may often be conveyed by the verb dosuṇyʌs. The one presents a passive, the other an active, attitude on the part of the person concerned. V. § 266.6 & 4.

In some cases the person is put in the Genitive, and in others in the Dative. While in others the person is omitted. OOO ɣfuʂt but ímoʂ dívəi "of the Div much his anger came", i.e. the Div became very angry. 18.8. auʂ jaʂk aʂ div̀n kərʌm "pity of my father coming to me, I wept" i.e. being overcome by pity on account of my father, I wept. 70.16. Cp. s.vv. *dʌm, dʌg, dʌk, gaʂ, ɣuʂku, jaʂk, -moʂ, rahm.

b. juɣʌs in used in many idioms of which it is difficult to suggest any classification, but of which the meaning is clear enough.

bəʂki ívər ʂtívni no sound (voice) came, i.e. was heard 6.5. Cp. 38.3, 42.20, 266.2. aʂdʌmʌʂʂdə nʌsen juʂčila the smell of human being comes, i.e. (I) smell a smell of human being. 14.4. ívt bušai.vlo but dʌg čʌm dívni a very severe famine came on (in) the land. 366.8. Cp. 342.1. 372.9. kinʂ . . . hívʂ kaʂ mʌnaʂər gʌlt dívni this man's turn came for patrolling. 38.2. Cp. 198.2, 280.9, 282.7. huʂər div̀n coming to his senses. 26.9, 30.20, 373.3. ʂaiɣʌsər oʂ muškrl juʂčila difficulty comes to them for putting them on, i.e. they find difficulty in . . . 132.4. ʂalgoʂt ívgi dívmər jučʌm I shall come back when the grindstone's beard has come, i.e. when the grindstone grows a beard. 142.26. gutʂ duʂo jaʂtsum ačuʂči this act does not come from me i.e. I can't or won't do it. 146.2.

Cp. with different sense:

jaʂtsum niʂki juʂʌs bili good is 000 going to come from me i.e. I am going to be a source of good. 90.12. aiyemai.i bai.i, inev ki açučila jav ki açučila he cannot (read it), it doesn't come to him and it doesn't come to me i.e. neither he nor I can understand it. 48.9. Cp. 74.19. ja hərAš jučila I want to urinate. 176.28. Cp. 54.2. ołtalik(ə hisəb) habər divmi both reckonings (the reckonings of both) came out level. 52.12,23. den gerevum divmi ki if the year turns out hot. 326.2. jav bisan bargo jučila the share that falls to me. 366.3. Cp. 372.3. buł Abaš ev divmi much trouble came on him; he got into straits. 366.9. Cp. 22.7,9, 26.16. ite diš uvor xuš divmi the place pleased them. 294.9. čape maza divnin the taste of the meat coming (to him . . .), i.e. perceiving the taste of the meat . . . 380.16.

The following are some references to the rarer forms or those less frequently recorded in the texts:

Fut. sg. 2nd. jučuma. 52.18, 74.8,20, 106,15.
3rd. m. juči passim. jučimi. 74.26.
3rd. f. juče. 204.8.
y. jučila. 14.4.
pl. 1st. jučan 256.7.
3rd. jučuman. 6.2, 188.3.

Pres. sg. 1st. juča ba. 76.6,9.
2nd. juča. 78.11,14, 94.18.
3rd. m. jučai.i. 306.19, 34 22. x juči bi. 372.3.

Impf. sg. 1st. juča baiyam. 18.17.
3rd. m. jučam. 6.5, 208.11. 234.2.
y. jučilom. 42.20, 266.2.

224a

000

Pret. sg. 1st. daiyam. 8.12, 32.15. 42.18, 144.15.
2nd. dokoma. 6.9.
3rd. m. x diva, div. 24.22, 36.8, 90.6,7, 154.22, 160.18,20, 170.1, 28 10, etc.
f. dumomo. 166.17, 108.21, 268.5. dumoyo. 166.15.
pl. 3rd. h duyan. 36.6, 246.16.
duiyen, duyan. 148.4,6.
x dumi s. 12.17, 16.14.

Perf. sg. 1st. daiya ba. 40.16, 264.13, 282.7,8.
2nd. dokowa. 38.16, 40.9. 58.19, 60.14, 282.5.
3rd. m. di bai.i. 4.2, 30.4, 292.3, 374.1 di baṭe (= di bai.i + aṭe). 58.8.
f. dumobo. 120.12. 138.1, 180.6, 282.20. x di bi. 230.7.
y di bila. 10.12.
pl. 2nd. dama bam. 20.15.
3rd. dumam. 132.11.

Plup. sg. 3rd. m. di bam. 136.9, 264.15, 204.1, 292.2, 364.7, 272.10, 274.4,8. 344.20.
y. di bilum. 198,2, 282.7.
pl. 3rd. h dumam. 28.20.
x du bim.

Impv. pl. juvin. 18.18, 82.3, 110.24.
juvina. 90.6.

-ṭ forms. juṭ. 4.3, 10.13, 28.1, 56.13.15, 110.7, 138.1,2.

Pres. Pc. juṭome. 230.7.

Past Pc. A. sg. 1st dam. 8.12, 42.18.
2nd. dokom. 380.5.

224 b

000

Past Pc. A. 3rd. m. x y dim passim, dimin. 42.22, 108.4, 144.5, 240.13.
f. dumom. 108.21, 120.15.
dumomin. 138.2.
pl. 3rd. dum. 130.1, 200.12, 272.13, 284.2, 294.13 etc. dumin. 44.1, 206.13, 266.20.
Static Pc. sg. 1st. daiyam (ba). 124.21.
3rd. m. x y dim. 114.26, 134.3, 142.26, 294,5,6. 320.1.
f. dumom. 14.1, 30.20.
pl. 3rd. h. dum. 232.5, 240.7, 312.18.
Pres. Base + ar. jurčar. 76.9.
Infinitive, Gerundive, Noun Agent, jurjas, juras. 96.16, 98.5. 122.4, 156.2, 210.5, 336.7, 340.20.

Negative Forms:
Pres. Base. açurč-, açu.ç-, açurč-. 30.17, 56.15, 74.18,20, 76.16, 78.7,8, 90.13, 146.1,3, 152.3, 172.14.
Past Base. at-, ar-. 6.5, 24.8. 76.7,8,26, 78.8, 230.9, 246.12, 282.22.

K and KH.

(See also under q and x).

In this section kh is distinguished from k wherever I have external authority for its existence. I was unable myself to distinguish it with any certainty.

For the relationship between kh-, x-, and q- v. Gram. p. XXX, Additional Note.

1. ka, -aka, (-ka).

I. Postposition, with, H. sarth.

It is preceded by the Genitive or General Oblique form of the noun. It may be used with the prefixal forms of the pronouns, yielding: a·ka, go·ka, e·ka, o·ka etc. postulating the form ·-ʌka*; but also mika as from ·-ka*.

225 a

000

For a detailed analysis of its uses v. § 85.

a. Sociative: with, along with, in company with.

b. Denoting accompanying circumstances: with.

c. Instrumental: with, by means of, N. by the instrumentality of.

Of the last use EOL recorded the following examples. The idiom is hardly credible and it is denied for Hz.

Thʌmɩ ine ostade ka hʌn etimi the Mir made the builder build a house. Thʌmɩ ja ka hʌn atimi the Mir made me build a house and so on: umɩ ka gotimi, mi·ka metimi, ma·ka matimi, uɩ ka otimi.

Sahe ʌltʌne ka kaškičʌŋ jʌš etimi The Sahib made the groom tighten (pull) the girths.

Note that both in Hz. and N. ka may be used with the ordinary pronouns: ja ka, umɩ ka, ine ka, etc.

uɩ ka jormʌš noma girʌtimi da o·ka horutimi mingling with them he danced and then he sat down with them. 234.4.

d. Reënforcing or replacing ke and

e. Miscellaneous uses.

f. With the Static Participle.

g. With the Infinitive.

II. Adverb in association with ke: and also, at the same time, in company, together. H. hʌmra·h. V § 423.

225 b

000 Cp. also 28.11,18, 150,8, 298.9, 299.8, 306.16.

2. ko, ko v. ko.

kko, v. 1. 2. ko.

kafir unbeliever, infidel (from point of view of Muslim). Used of the Chinese and also of the Kafirs of the Hindu Kush. Ar. Pers.

kafur ·ق y camphor. Ar. Pers.

kagaz ·ق y paper, letter. Ar. Pers.

601 kaka, gaka elder brother (only used of each other by members of Rajas' families). N. kak'a, "Rajas' and Saiyids' sons call each other kak'a or aja".

kaki, gaki.

1. Elder sister (term only used in Rajas' families and by the people of Ganish and Altit). N. kaki, "Rajas and Saiyids call their sisters kaki".

2. Form of address for elder sister.

kako.

1. Stepfather ("the proper word, but aya, is also used". QUB questioned this meaning and substituted nana).

2. Elder brother (a form of address). 312.14. (Cp. Sh. kako, elder brother; kaki, elder sister).

kalto the 5th day in the future.

000 khaw IUB, xaw QUB Kashgari cotton cloth. H. khadar, desi kapra. (Cp. Sh. khaw; Psht. xawdi, coarse cotton cloth).

khap, QUB xap, ماپ to fade (of falling leaves, flowers). (Cp. Sh. kap, withered, dried up, and perhaps also Sh. kap tinder, consisting of some dried vegetable material. Cp. Ba. ghap).

kapo, v. kapa, cuckoo.

000

kew manow to walk up and down as sentry, patrol, stroll, IUB. II. ṭahlna, phirna, kasarvi karna. — kik sraṭan kew manam he had patrolled (as a sentry) for an hour. 38.2 (bis). Cp. 42.18. (Cp. Sh. kawa!dorki).

kewṭ'we -iq, and kewṭwdig, y cartridge. Fr. H.

1. kerṭ with. — wq ke mism sarkrbo smirl.ai kerṭ manim.an i.e. (I hope) that you and the Mem Sahib are thriving. (Cp. Werch. kerṭ). (Biddulph. kiṭ).

2. kerṭ -iq y condition, stipulation, injunction, undertaking, agreement, treaty, promise. — ama kan kerṭanafe gudiṭam but I will give it to you (only) on a condition. 104.9. kerṭelu dim.anai.i he has been born within the (i.e. subject to) the agreement. 106.13. kerṭ kerṭ ṭtimi he laid injunctions on them. 244.8. Cp. 212.6. kerṭ sṭas to make an agreement, treaty. 176.13. Cp. 388.10. (Cp. Sh. kerṭ promise, wager etc.).

ke variant of 2. ke.

1 kaberb *-sṭas v.t. to roast (meat). — emonis . . . kaberb ṭtimi he roasted the kidneys. 68.12. Ar. Prs.

kaberi -mate x coat. Prs.

kaber v. xaber.

kaberl -ido x holster. H.

kaṭahon y ambush; plot, conspiracy, rebellion, H. kamin, sazzi, kayawal. — asqanasser kaṭahon ṭtemam they plotted to assassinate me.

kkaṭi -mate x bucket, pail. — ṭumawi, kerna, rido kkaṭi an iron, wooden, copper, bucket.

*-kkaṭi.an, *-kkaṭiṭ- to shut up, enclose (animals). — kerw ṭkkaṭi.as ṭṭe tyker in the byre for shutting up the cow(s) in. 106.22. (Cp. Sh. kaṭoriki).

226 b

[see corrigenda at addenda, category 116, p. 573 Analyst]

000

kaçvl -iŋ y fir-tree. (Cp. Sh. kaçvl).

kəɖakus pl. kəɖakuyants.

1. x native lock. EOL; door-bolt (sərik). IYB; door bolt and key. QUB.
2. b. an additional, fifth, headman of the four clans of Baltit.

kafan, kaphæ:, pl. kaphæiŋ, y shroud. — jar kafan ... dosuin fetch a shroud for me. 294.11. kafan nok'a taking the shroud. 294.13. kafan tsər ečai.i he tears off (the cloth for) the shroud i.e. a piece 24 qaɨ (cubits) long. 310.4. Ar. Prs.

kafši, kavša, -muts x shoe — yu·tiŋulo kafšamuts eltai.in put shoes on his feet. 368.14. yu·tiŋulo (or, yu·tsulo) kafša eltai.in ditto. 373.19.

khajun'a the Burushaski language (a term used only by foreigners).

kaka·yo N. walnut (unbroken). (Cp. Sh. kakai.ɨ).

kæki N., v. ka·ki.

khalaɖu leather bag. Given as the equivalent of khawaɨ. (Also in Sh.? Probably a foreign word).

kalamu·ło -ms' x base of external ear, flesh of ear. 232.8.

kalib, qalip, -uts x form, shape, mould. — mazar kalib di.us marking out the shape of the grave, making the grave-mound. 312.5. Ar. Prs. (qa·lıb).

kam little (in quantity), deficient, inferior, less; scarcity, shortage, H. tho·ra. — gusetsum kam less than this. kam gəruvum a little hot, slightly hot. besans kam api there is scarcity of nothing. kam paći bolaia the lesser share of the land. Cp. 250.7. wŋtsum ji kam apa I am not inferior to you. 148.9.

+ an, a little, a few, H. thorasa.

kʌmʌn kɛntsʊm in a little time. kʌmʌn duʷro bila there is a small piece of work. kʌmʌn sis dumʌn a few people came. Prs. 000 khʌm v. xʌm.

kʌmʌn v. kʌm.

khʌma pl. khʌmʌŋ y felt, "numda". — hʌn kʌmaʷn a piece of felt. 308.5. (Cp. Sh. qʌmu, felt).

kʌmbaxt unfortunate. Prs.

kʌm kʌm mʌnaʷs IUB to become covetous, H. ṭʌma' homa. (QUB gave this as xʌm xʌm).

kʌmquʷxʌt weak, feeble. Prs. + Ar.

kamzoʷr week, feeble. Prs.

khʌn -ʌnts, N. pl. -aʷints, x fort; fortified village, village community. 361

The population is now tending to abandon the concentrated villages for houses scattered about the cultivated lands singly or in groups of two or three which are called giraʷmiciŋ. The Khʌn at Aliabad is nowadays occupied only partially for two or three months in winter.

kʌntsʊm sinda yʌkʌlʌṭər gaʷrtsʊmo she fled from the fort towards the river. 192.15. Iʷškuʷkulo tʌlo kʌnʌnts biʷm there were 7 villages in Ishkuk. 280.3. tʊrma alta kʌnʌntse trʌŋʃatiŋ the trangfas of the 12 villages, (e.g. Baltit, Ganesh, Altit, Haiderabad, Aliabad). 318.5. Cp. 240.5, 244.7, 284.2,4. (Said to be a Balti word). 1/1 khʌn, xʌn, v. xʌn. Only in: khʌn (xʌn) nɛ downwards. 246.21. 000 (Probably 2. kha, 2. xa down + nɛ adverb-formative, with anticipation of the n-).

-kʌn. Suffix meaning: direction of, side of, along. V. iʷljikʌn & -lji kʌnaʷo y advice, counsel, instructions,

227b

1/1 [see Corrigenda et addenda, Category 116, p. 543 - Analyst]

000 injunction. — ja kʌna.o gʌn take my advice.

Occurs most frequently in kʌnaʷo -ʌtʌs the pn.pf. referring to the person to whom advice etc. is given: iʷn kʌnaʷo ɛti advise him, counsel him. kʌnaʷo mo instruct, advise her. 50.22. pəritiŋər kʌnaʷo oʷtʌm he had enjoined on the peris. 12.1. Cp. 246.13, 252.2. (Cp. Sh. kʌnaʷo).

kʌndʌq, v. xʌndʌq, trench. Prs.

khʌnḍ'əri half-full, a little short of full, not-brimming. — khʌnḍ'əri bitsa it is half full ("bitsa" probably refers to the contents).

khʌn'i, kh'ʌni, pl. khʌnɛŋ, d.pl. khʌnɛŋičiŋ y parched wheat or barley, "pop-corn". 306.22.

khʌnimɔjuʷko ladybird (insect).

kʌniʷz -tiŋ hf. female slave, female servant. 16.12. Prs.

kʌnjha IYB back of neck. QUB x & y neck-joint.

kʌŋ -ɛnts x small pond, pool.

sauwɛ kʌŋ a recess made at the side of a water-channel in which a backwater is formed and the sand in suspense in the water is deposited. This sand is collected & mixed with manure.

-kʌŋ recorded in aʷljikʌŋ. For -kʌn, q.v.

kʌŋgaʷl -išo h low-caste, lowborn, person (e.g. Domʷ, bandsman etc.).

Applied to an insolent inferior.168.9. (Cp. Punj., Kshm. & Kho. kʌŋgaʷl).

kʌŋka -mɔts x "a kind of thin-legged spider which goes up walls and then down again" kʌp v. 2. qʌp.

kʌpʌl, gʌpʌl, -išo x head. — ja kʌpʌl axoʷlinimi my head ached, I had a headache. ine kʌpʌlulo γɛnɪšɛ tɔr 000 bilʊm he had a golden horn on his head. 376.2. (Cp. Kho. kʌpa·l and kʌpʌl; Sh. kʌpa·lo, kʌpʌlo, head, skull; Skr. kapāla skull).

kʌpi·nɛs N. pl. kʌpi·nɛšo x step, footnotch on log-ladder.

(The Hz. form is gʌpfi·nʌs, step of stair).

kʌpo, ka·po, -mʊts x cuckoo, v. s.v. gʌkʌči.

415 kh'ʌpʊn, pl. kh'ʌpʊyo x spoon, dipper, ladle. Originally all were of wood, but one may now say:

hʊ·nə k'ʌpʊn wooden spoon. gu.i·ski kʌpʊn a "Wakhi spoon", i.e. spoon with bowl set sideways. čok kʌpʊn upright spoon (the handle rises perpendicularly from the base of the bowl for three inches and then turns back horizontally). kʌpʌnʊlo. 328.10,11. (For khʌpʊnʊlo). (Cp. Sh. khʌpa.i, kʌpe·i wooden spoon; Kho. kɪpi·ni).

000 -kh'ər*. Reflexive Pronoun. -self (oblique cases), v. § 144. — ja jijeri ʌkhərər γʊn'ikɪš ɛta·m I myself did evil to myself. ikhərər fai.rda·ɛtʌs one who does good to himself, i.e. a selfish, self-seeking person. ʊ·ɛ ʊ·i ʊ·khər ɛsqʌnʊmʌn they themselves killed themselves

As the object of a transitive verb -khər*, whatever its number or person, ranks as 3rd. sg. hm or x.

kʌrəgʌḍi -mʊts x big wooden props supporting aqueduct, Bu. syn. hʊ·nɛ dʌna·to. — Baltittɛʊm kʌrəgʌdimʊtsɛ xʌt hʌn . . . bʊ·ʌn di·mi a cow came from Baltit down by (in fact, under) the aqueduct. 186.3.

kəragʌḍo strong, stout.

kʌr'ʌki N. "clapper that helps to pound rice".

228 b

000

kʌrʌli. A child both of whose parents are of noble stock, e.g. the child of a Mir by his Ranee or principal, highborn wife.

(Opposed to ʌrɣʊn q.v. Cp. Sh. k'ʌrɛli. Spelt by QUB qʌrʌli).

*-khərʌnʌs, *-khərai-, *-khərɛ-, Impv. *-khərʌn, Ppa. n-khərʌn(in), to be late, to delay v.i., H. deɛr karna.

Fut. sg. 1. ʌkəraiyʌm. 2. gukəraima. neg. ayakərɛyʌm I shan't be late. jimʌlɛ akukəraima you won't be late tomorrow.

Pret. bɛsɛ gukərʌnʊma why have you delayed?, i.e. why are you late? ikhərʌnimi he is late. 212.5.

Impv. ʌkuɛkərʌn don't be late, don't delay.

Ppa. nʌkərʌn daiyʌm delaying I came, i.e. I came late.
bɛsɛ nʊkuɛkərʌn dʊkɛma why have you come late?
buɛt nikərʌn dimi he returned after a long delay. 384.19.

The verb also occurs without the pn.pf.:
bɛsɛ kərʌnʊma? why have you delayed? why are you late? nʊkərʌn || nikərʌn dimi he came late. buɛt kəranumʌn, ulum jʊwab atimi they were a long time (in the house) and no answer came from inside. 24.7.

IUB gives it thus: e.g. Impf. khəra.i bʌm 3rd. sg. khərʌnʊm maimi he will have delayed.

(Cp. Sh. khərnaɛr thoɛki to delay, be late).

kərʌp ɛtʌs to snap, break, (a thing, with a single sound). — taskimi žʌmɛ kərʌp ɛtimi he drew the bow and snapped it. 172.8.

(QUB qərʌp).

229a

kʌrɛ·lu N. -mʊts x ram. (Cp. Sh. kʌrɛ·lo castrated ram). 000 khʌr'ɛ·ṭi -mʊts x wicker basket (small). — gʊsɛ kʌrɛ·ṭi.ʊlo in this basket. 64.3. khʌrɛ·ṭilo. 382.15. Also recorded in N. (Cp. Kho. khərɛ·ṭi; Sh. kʌrɛ·i, karɛ·i, wicker basket).

kərgʌl'o MA the smaller flying-squirrel. (Cp. Sh. gərgol'o).

kərkā·mʊts v. qərqa·mʊts.

kərk'ʌnʌs pl. kərk'ʌnʌšo x a kind of spider (which has a big body and long legs and bites).

khəru sg. and pl., d.pl. -mʊts, -ints x louse. — kəru giya bi.ɛn lice have fallen on . . . i.e. he has become infested with lice, or he is . . . Pʌnčutsɛ kəru bʊ·t bim there were many lice on P. 116.8. i·ni.ʊlo kəru.ər bərēnʊmo she looked in his beard for lice. 282.10.

kərukrš lousy (term of abuse for very poor people).

kəru·sʌl wild strawberry (occurs in Nagir, but not in Hunza).

khʌs, kha·s, EOL; xʌs at all.

Usually accompanied by negative, when the meaning is often only an emphatic negative. Cp. some uses of bilkul in H. — khʌs čʌt ai.ɛti don't break it at all. EOL. bɛ, nʌzir, ja·r kha·s lɛl 'api No, sir, I don't know (at all). EOL. kha·s dʌltʌs api it is not at all good. EOL. gʊsɛ atišʌm. kha·s ditsa kɛ? I won't bring it. Won't you bring it at all? EOL. jɛ xʌs ayʌmʌlts don't abuse me (ever, or, at all). Nz. (Cp. Sh. khʌs, xʌs).

khʌsk N. -ičʌn y girth (of saddle). — kʌsk(ičʌn) ja·š ɛ tighten the girth(s). (Cp. Sh. k'ʌsko, saddle-girth).

000 khʌš slaying, slaughtering (usually for food or sacrifice). — in kʌšər wʌšimi he threw him down for (the purpose of) slaughtering (him). 42.8. guyu kʌšər . . . gu·ma you threw down your sons to slaughter them. 44.19. kʌš *-ʌtʌs to slaughter, H. ḥʌla·l kʌrna. kʌš ečər wʌšimi he threw him down to slaughter him. 42.3. kʌš o·čər gu·mi he threw them down to slaughter them. i·mo a·ltʌn yu· . . . kʌš o·ti kε if he were to slay his own two sons. 40.1.

But cp. with *-ʌtʌs causative: bušowšo kʌš o·tai.i he has made them slay the calf. 370.3, 374.2. Cp. 370.12, 374.12. V also: 40.15, 42.1, 44.9,11,15,22, 66.6, 68.8, 234.13, 266.6, 368.15, 382.2.

kʌṣawa·r -iŋ y earring(s). — kʌšawa·riŋ moltumʌlči mogiçam they put earrings on her ears. 304.11.

1. khʌṭ -ʌnts x bedstead. — khʌṭε bʌn webbing, cord etc. for stringing bedstead. khʌṭεnʌṭε i·mo hiŋtsε guča bʌm he was lying (had lain down) on a bedstead at his door. 260.6 ff. (Cp. H. & Sh. khʌṭ).
2. khʌt v. xʌt. — khʌt khʌt v. xʌt.
3. kʌt y sg. & pl. clothes, suit of clothing. — šɪkʌm kʌt nεtʌn tu·mok mʌnimi he appeared wearing green clothes. 284.15. (Cp. Sh. kʌt).

kʌṭʌl v. gʌṭʌl.

k'ʌti N. y pl. hoarfrost. (Cp. Sh. kʌṭi hoarfrost).

kʌt'u *-ʌtʌs, used in the expression: — kʌtu go·tʌm said by a person when pushed up on a swing, and interpreted to mean "I am above thy head". Similarly:

kʌtu mʌtʌm ("you" pl.). kʌtu mutʌm

000 ("her"). kʌtu is probably connected with 2. khʌt, xʌt down: "I have downed you" i.e. "risen above you".

kʌrša v. kʌfša.

1> khʌwʌš, khauwʌš, pl. khʌwa·nts. "Small leather bag for travelling, with lock on mouth", "leather travelling-bag for bread", Kho. šʌngʌši and Wakhi šˈəngiši.- thʌmɛ γɛnišɛ kʌwʌš ˈoγe.ibʌ·n they make them carry the Tham's gold-bag. 348.4. biškɛ . . . kʌwa·ntsər dɛlimʌn they put the hair in bags. 134.15. kʌwa·ntsum dirusin taking it out of the bags. 136.1. Cp. 138.24. (Cp. Sh. kʌwʌšo (?).

1. khʌy -ʌnts, -ents x hook, barb of arrow; stirrup. — čw·k ɛtʌs kʌy hook for sewing saddlery and boots. jυra·pɛ kʌy crochet-needle. (kʌγυrɛ) kʌy stirrup. kʌyɛ bərpi·t stirrup-leather. V. 152.1.

   (Cp. Sh. khā· hook, bill-hook; stirrup. In N. it was recorded by EOL as: qʌ.iy -ents x stirrup).

2. khʌy x beach, strand (where a river is in an open, sandy or shingly bed), part of river-bed not covered by water. Also explained as H. ghaṭ. — sinda kʌyər so·kumo she came down to the river beach. 108.16. mərteŋʌṭɛ ya kʌyolo sinda i·ltsɛ bo·či.ɛ (the birds) alight on the cliffs or on the beach at the edge of the river. 206.13. Cp. 348.6. (Cp. Sh. khai.i).

kʌyˈʌs N. cotton. — kayʌzɛ of cotton.

   (Cp. Sh. qai.a·s, GB khʌya·s. kh- is probably correct for both Sh. and Bu.).

kai.i, ka·i, y soup, H. šorba. — kai.i bila there is soup; kai.i ɛtʌs to make soup. kaiyolo baiyu dˈɛ·smʌyʌm I put (the proper quantity of) salt in the soup. (Cp. Sh. kai.i).

230 b

1 [see supplement to corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 545 – Analyst] khau variant of kha, xa down. — khau wʌlʌs ‖ xa wʌlʌs to fall down. V. 2. xa. OOO kauwʌš v. kʌwʌš.

kevr h opponent, rival, H. muxa'lɪf. — i'ke γenʌŋər kine kevr bʌm this man was a rival, competitor, for the gold. 68.14. (Correct the translation there given).

(Cp. Sh. kyev, opposed to, against, hostile to).

kɛ, (kə, ka).

1. Also, too, and. It also seems to serve as an emphasising particle. — kɛ . . . kɛ both . . . and; with neg., neither . . . nor. jɛ kɛ uŋ kɛ miyu o'ltʌlik I and you and our two sons. 40.18. uŋ niča kɛ, jɛ kɛ jučʌm if you go, I shall come too. 94.19. e'kin kɛ ɛ'sumuts d'otsɪrin duʼtsu cook and bring his liver and kidneys. 72,13. (čərʌp) 'ɛtʌsər im kɛ čərʌfum xau wʼʌlimi when he had cut it he also fell down from the cliff. 214.10. bʌt kū akuʼčičʌm, čʌp ka akuʼčičʌm. I will give you neither the skin nor the meat. 104.6. koʼs bi kɛ hʌn bɛlɪs this is one sheep. 64.15.
2. kɛ frequently follows immediately after Indefinite Pronouns and Adjectives and Indefinite Adverbs of Time and Place when accompanied by a negative. — mɛn kɛ dušmʌnʌn apʼʌm, oʼr bɛsʌn ʌbʌš apiʼm there was no enemy, there was no difficulty (present) to them. 284.20. mɛnʌn kɛ eʼitsumʌn they saw no one. 6.12. bɛʼske iʼčər ætiʼmi no sound came. 6.5. ʌmulo kɛ atoʼγurkumʌn they did not find him anywhere. 10.5. bɛšɛl kɛ bɛ never. 000

The effect of the kɛ appears to be to emphasise the negative. Cp. §§ 148.4, 153.4, 154.

men kɛ
hin kɛ
hʌn kɛ } not accompanied by the negative may mean practically: others, and another one. V. § 148.6.

3. kɛ is also used in association with the Indefinite Pronouns, Adjectives and Adverbs, but placed after the verb (and not immediately after the pronoun etc.).

In this situation it gives these words the force of General Relatives, corresponding to the English whoever, whichever, whenever, wherever etc.

wŋ amɪn ba kɛ . . . ja gʌtʊŋ aɣʊn whoever you are give me my clothes. 14.10. wŋɛ bɛsʌnər rai ɛča kɛ aso whatever you wish for tell me. 138.28. amʊlo bai.i kɛ . . . wherever he is. bešʌl bopfau ɛtʌs mʌnimi kɛ . . . whenever it has become (the time) to carry out the "bopfau". 208.5. Cp. also:

hʊkai kɛ hʌɣʊr berʊm bi.ɛ kɛ . . . however many dogs and horses there may be . . . 342 20.

For further examples with the pronouns v. § 186.

4. kɛ is very frequently used immediately after finite parts of verbs, when it gives the sense of "if", or "when".

a. It is especially common after the Preterite Tense to denote an anticipated condition, v. §§ 353,3, 452. — gʊtɛ gʌli kɛ mena ʊdɛljʊmʌna? if this (bow) broke would

231 b

000 anyone beat me? i.e. if it breaks, were to break. 170.21.

b. It frequently occurs with the Future used as a Historic Present, v. §§ 348.3, 435. — ɪtɛ hɛrʌs dišər niči kɛ isken gušiŋents . . . herčam when he went (lit. will go) to the place of weeping, there were (lit. are) three women weeping there. 38.9.

The short forms of Preterite and Future (especially of the 3rd. sg.) are commonly used in this way with kɛ.

c. kɛ in the sense of "if", "when" is also employed with other tenses e.g. Pres., Impf., Perf. and Pluperfect: jimʌlɛ jɛ niča ba kɛ, uŋ . . . sail ɛti when I go away tomorrow, do you go round (the garden). 10.13.

Impf. 282.21; Perf. 210.16; Pluperf. 292.10.

d. There is a special use in which it is employed with the Imperative as the equivalent of a conditional sentence, v. § 356.3. qiyu pyu ɛti kɛ mi jučʌn you raise an outcry and we shall come up. 256.6.

5. The sense of "if" also occurs in the expression: bɛ kɛ if not, otherwise . . . hin hirʌnɛ allʌn . . . yu . . . kʌš orti kɛ bavdša ɛɪrči. Bɛ kɛ tsorrdinɛ ɪrči if a man slays his two sons the king will not die. Otherwise he will die tomorrow morning. 40.15. In: bʌrɛyɛn . . . jurči.a be kɛ, 284.16, it seems to mean, "(whether) or not".

6. kɛ appears after the dependent verb in Indirect Questions:

000

bɛʋɛ hɛʋrčaʋn kɛ jaʋr ʌsuʋin tell me why they are weeping. 38.12. mɛn herčʌm kɛ xʌbər dusuʋma have you brought news (as to) who were weeping. 42.17. kolɛ gʌš b'ɛ.uruʋmʌn bila kɛ ja akɛʋya ba I don't know how much the price of this is. 58.24.

7. kɛ occasionally appears after verbs of saying, thinking, perceiving etc., and in other cases, introducing an dependent clause. But this is probably a reminiscence of the Persian-Hindustani kih.

8. kɛ is regularly used to convert an adverb into a conjunction in bɛsɛkɛ because (bɛsɛ why? + kɛ). iʋɛ buʋltsʋm tsil ʌk'ərər gaiyʌm bɛʋsɛkɛ yərʋm iʋɛ bʌsaʋlo tsil api I shall take water for myself from that spring, because there is no water at the halting-place ahead. 124.15.

9. kɛ is used after nouns with the sense of per, (for) each, (for) every. — 'alto iʋski č'urkʌs gunts kɛ wʌziʋɛ haʋlər dusučaʋn they bring 2 or 3 vessels (of milk) each day to the Wazir's house. 322.4, kʌn kɛ hʌn hʌn wʌlgi učiʋʌs miraʋs bila it is the custom to give them one rupee each per village. 342.20.

10. In the following expression the force of kɛ is somewhat problematic: ħik kɛ once, once again. Cp. hin kɛ, sec. 2. above. šu.aʋ kɛ v. s.v. tsʌn kɛ tsʌn in very truth, 218.13.

kɛči krčaʋli bread used at the Šrk'ʌmitiŋ festival. 320.6.

khɛʋn, kɛʋn, kyɛʋn -iŋ y time, space of time, period, season. — kʌmʌn kɛʋntsʋm

232b

000 tai manimi it has been so for a little time. ivtɛ kɛntsum since then, thereafter. ivtɛ kɛnulo at that time. kɛnʌntsum dimi he came some time ago. niyʌsɛ kɛn dimi the time for departure came. jɛ dusʌm k'ɛnər at the time when I set out. 362.5. bai.imo kɛn the winter season. Šah Γʌzʌnfərɛ k'ɛnɛ in the time of Shah Ghazanfer. 274.3.

(Cp. Sh. khyen, time).

-ki suffix, v. §§ 21. c. § 102.

khi -muts x shield, H. ḍhal. — khi γʌtɛnč arms, weapons.

(Cp. Sh. khai.i, khɛ.i, and perhaps Kho. kʌl̲i, kʌδi, kɛr̲i of which the medial consonant is probably the peculiar l̲ of Khowar).

khiɛ, v. qhüyɛ, pebble, gravel.

khiɛkrš v. qhüyɛkrš.

kijim -uts x embroidered horse-cloth (used under the saddle). 286.24.

(Cp. Kho. khijim). Prs. (kʌjim)?

k'iki -muts x kind of small hawk, sparrow-hawk(?) (like the Šahin). Sh. ušpuki.

khikhrš *-ʌtʌs to tickle someone on soles of feet (or body QUB). — tɛlɛ kikrš juʌn ati bim there a sort of tickling on the feet had affected me, i.e. I felt a sort of tickling. 224.3. (Cp. qiqrt).

kil N. ibex, cp. Hz. giri. — kil hʌldɛn male ibex. kil tsigir female ibex. kilɛ du ibex kid. (Cp. Sh. kil ibex).

khil mʌnas.

1. To see, look, view. — sʌgʌm xa kil noma qau ɛtimi looking down through the smoke-hole he called out. 228.7. (Correct the translation given there). hinɛ holɛ khil mʌn'imi he looked out at the door. ɛrinolɛ khiʷl mʌnaʷm I looked in the mirror.

2. To pay a visit of condolence to, aʷr, gowr, eʷr, khiʷl mʌnaʷs to pay a visit of condolence to me, thee, him. Cp. 210.17. — khiʷl maiʌʷr niʷʌs to go to condole.

khiʷl ɛtʌs.

1. To show to, present to, offer to. — wʌziʷrər kiʷl ˈɛtimi he presented it to the Wazir. 138.7. uyonər tsirtsɛ . . . ivtɛ bʌl oʷr kiʷl ɛtʊman to all in turn they offered the marrow. 138.9. gʊlʌmʌt khiʷl ɛti hold out your skirt (to receive s.t.).
2. To yoke an ox to the plough for the first time. — ɛʷʒɛ khiʷl ɛtʊm tsi.ˈər an ox that has been put to the plough, i.e. one that is fit and old enough to work. khiʷl ɛtʌs mani bi it has become fit to have yoke put on neck, i.e. to plough.

(I am not sure whether the word under these two meanings is the same, or whether in the second case it is kiʷl or khiʷl).

kiʷlaʷy (-ʂšoʃ) x curds made from biestings. — kiʷlaʷy dˈiʷušaʷn they extract curds.

(Cp. Kho. kiḷaʷḷ & kiḷaʷri, cheese when kept; Sh. krraʷri, "a milk product made by Gujars").

kiʷli N. -mʊts, x, cp. Hz. giʷli, nail, very small pick.

(Cp. Sh. kiʷlɛ, Punj. kiʷlliʷ).

kiʷlto Nz. the sixth day in the future.

(Cp. kaʷlto, the 5th. day in future. Leitner gives it as kayálto and the 6th. day as payálto, v. H. N. Hd.bk. p. 15, n.).

kimi.ˈa y golden, gilt, golden-coloured. — ɛʷɛ gʌptʊm biäkɛ kimi.ˈa bitʊm

233 b

000 the hair on its hide was golden. 104.24. gʌptsɛ bi·tkɛ kimi.'ʌɛ kɛ γɛniɛ̃ ju.ʌn lʌm mai.i bitɛʊm the hair on the hide was shining like gilt and gold, 134.8. Grk. Prs.

kimxaʊ̃ brocade. 88.5. Prs.

1. khi·n v. khi·nɛ.

2. khi·n pl. khi·yo x flea. — khi·nɛ čoru·t go·či the flea will bite you. sʌwur ja dʌŋ ati·mi, khi·yu.ə aʃu·mi·yɛ yesterday I didn't get to sleep, fleas devoured me. EOL. khi·nʌnə čoru·t a·timi (or, aʃu·imi) a flea bit me. EOL.

khin'a pl. x, double pl. kin'ɛints, stalks, straw. — gu·rɛ kin'a wheat-stalks.

khi·nɛ, khi·n, kinɛ, kin, khɛn, pl. khuɛ, khu·, hmf, obl. sg. m. khi·n(ɛ)-, f. khi·nɛmʊ-.

Demonstrative Adj. and Pron. this, this one (of persons only); he, she. Sometimes = Eng. Def. Art. the.

Cp. sg. x gosɛ y gots (N. kusɛ etc.).
pl. x gotsɛ y gokɛ.

Also: sg. x kos y kot.
pl. x kots y kok.

V. §§ 135—138.

The forms khi·n and khu·, without the final -ɛ, are rather the less common.

Examples of khi·n will be found at: 42.7, 86.11, 110.11, 116.10, 124.7, 182.4, 882.7.

And of khu· 10.13, 86.13. 182.3.

khi·ŋ N. direction. — kʊtə ki·ŋ (in) this direction. ɛtɛ ki·ŋ (in) that direction. Hz. khi·ŋɛ dʌl dɛli strike (him) on one cheek. (Cp. Sh. khi·ŋ, direction, side).

khi·ŋ khaʊŋ very slackly. — khi·ŋ khaʊŋ ʊmʌn don't go along very slackly.

kiŋki·ti N. -mʊts x red hawk. (Cp. Hz. ki·ki).

krraʊya y hire, rent. — krraʊyaʊ yʌnʌm I hired . . . Ar. Prs.

000 khirts -ʌnts x joint (articulation of bones), part of limb between joints. — -wʌldasi kirts* a vertebra. imu kirts bim uyonʌfi bam etimi he kissed all its (the infant's) joints. 90.23. muki kirtsʌnts pearly limbs(?). 358.10. (Cp. Sh. kirts).

khiruman a certain number, some, half of, (of persons & things). Only twice recorded: kirumʌni nim'em tʌq oičʌn let some of us go and smash them up. 248.6. (Glossed: "some half of us"). da kirumʌni 'Aiʌšo Malik sireka bʌm' seʌibam some say that A. M. possessed magical powers. 220.3.

kišmiš & kh- seedless grapes. Ar. Prs. krišti -mots Hz., -ršo N. x ship, boat. Prs.

khiršo, -u, -muts x mosquito. — kiršu čuruł goči the mosquito will bite you.

kitap, krtab -ičiŋ, N. -ičʌŋ y book. — Jamʌsnama nusi kitapʌn bilum there was a book called the Jamasnama. 48.2.

(krtap) nuq'ʌtʌn dum'ʌtsimi . . . da pfʌtʌŋ etimi having read (the book) he closed it . . . then he opened it again. 70.10. Cp. 68.24 — 70.24. Ar. Prs.

khiti, khite this side, the near side. — kiti Pisʌnolo Siqi Daltʌs Manuko buł xoł etumʌn on this side (of the river) in Pisan they took a great fancy to D. M., son of Siq. 262.6. immo j'iŋičiŋ . . . imo eti kite tʌq etimi he tied her sleeves on this side of his neck (she was sitting behind him and he brought her sleeves on either side of his neck and tied them in front). 146.15. kite is opposed to iti, ite (v. s.v. iti), and is usually followed by pa side. sinda huma ite kite . . . manumʌn they crossed backwards and forwards over the ford in the river. 114.26. Cp. 264.27. ahin ište ɣfor, hin kiṭe ɣfor one on that side and one on this side. 86.14. (ɣfor is here probably the dative of pa). kiṭe pa ju come to this side. pai.ṭa kiṭe pa daɣ'ami he hid himself on the near side of the mill. 204.8.

(kh- is probably the proximate demonstrative kh- seen in khirus etc.).

kṭli x kettle. Eng.

khiyal v. ri.al.

kiɣu N. x small shot, buckshot (?).

(Probably the same word as ghuɣu gravel etc. Cp. also gurk. "k- pronounced with teeth clenched". EOL).

kuɣ v. khuɣ.

1. khok, khok y pl. these. — kok ešto ɣumorriɣ bitsa these are two holes, there are these two holes. 102.26.

(Corresponds to guku, v. §§ 136 & 138).

2. kok -iṭaɣ, -iɣ y long stitch, basting. — kok dali bara they have stitched (it).

kakor o McK and GR scab (over wound).

(Not known to QUB).

khoṭa, khol, khul here, hither. — dišiwaṭo kolo mun apara there are no cooks here. kolo ɣaṭil ap'i there is no firewood here. 126.6. kol mun bama? are there any people here? kol, (or, dat.) kolar, ju come here. kol ditsa bring it here. 166.19. we gugu kul jaw jowa give these two sons of yours to me here. 174.23. Cp. 54.12. 60.20.

Abl. kolum from here. — je kolum dal noma . . . niṭam arising from here I shall go . . . 368.2. ele kolum sie dara people coming from here and there, i.e. from every side. 286.12. (Cp. aliṭola).

khóu, khoṇ, pl. khoṇo x ant. — ṇaṇum khoṇ black ant. bowdum khoṇ red ant.

kor, koṛ, -ile x cave (in earth or rock cliff), shelter under overhanging cliff. 226.7, 244.7,23. (Cp. Sh. koṛ. Possibly same word as Kho. khoṛ, open cave).

koṛi boot. — ja koṛi yen daraguṇ take hold of my boot and pull it off (for me). (Cp. Sh. koṛrs, native boots).

koṛoṇ, koṛuṇ N. y mist. (Probably same as Hz. zuroṇ, guroṇ).

khoṇ, khoṇ x sg. this, this one. — koṛ (ḥ.spik) ṇm nimi where has this (bread) gone? 30.9. koṛ.ṇum nilgmiṇ the distinctive marks (which are) on this one. 64.15, 138.2, 160.3, 222.14.

Corresponds to guṇ, v. §§ 136 & 138.

koṛiṭ, kuṛiṭ y endeavour, attempt. — koṛiṭ ṇtas to try, endeavour. jimṇ.ṇle gote duro dromṇ.ṇṇṇṇor (or, puro ṇtaṇor) koṛiṭ ṇti try to complete this business tomorrow. Cp. 264.1. Prs.

kh'ṇio -ṇuṇ with fingers bent up, cripple-handed; crippled in feet.

(Cp. Sh. kuṇo, maimed, crippled; and Kho. khoṇi).

khoṛ, khoṛ y sg. this, this one.

Corresponds to guṇ, v. §§ 136 & 138. koṛ le ṇ.ṇniṇi? what is this that has happened? 118.11. koṛ le duro bila? what is this (that has happened)? 150,16. Cp. 50.19, 70.4, 98.12. 150.16, 370.1, 373.25.

koṛ fort. — Duṇyuro khuṛ.ṇṇor (read: koṛ-) duro.ṇ they came to the Duiyor fort. 350.28.! (Cp. Sh., H. koṛ).

khoṛo x pl. these ones, these.

Corresponds to guṇu, v. §§ 136 & 138.

koṛo koṛ these ones. 21 .12.

235 b

A [see Corrigenda et addenda, category 11a p. 543 - Analyst]

000 khuʷ, khu h pl. these, these persons, pl. of khiʷu, v. § 187. — kuʷ heraŋolo amin . . .? which of these? 106.10. kuʷ miyu these our sons, these sons of ours. 42.1. Cp. 10.13, 86.13, 112.7 et passim.

khu.iʷn this year. — khu.iʷn čam bila this year there is a famine. thamʿine ku.iʷn last year and this year. 330.4.

khu.iʷnmo of this year, in the course of this year. — khu.iʷnmo dan čam bila this year there is a famine. khu.iʷnmo haraltiŋ buʃ manimi this year there have been heavy rains.

kuʷk -ilo x, v. xuʷk, pig. 366.10.

khoke N. y pl. these, these ones. (Corresponds to Hz. guke).

kukuk etas N. to cackle (of hens), to cluck.

-khukura pl. -khukurio x short soft rib.

khukuʷj whisper. (Cp. khuʷj).

khul v. khole.

khole.i N. here. — ja ha kule.i dila my house is here. kulere hither. kulemo from here. (Variant of Hz. khole).

1. kuli, kuli. An enclitic particle which seems to duplicate some of the functions of ke, v. § 425.

a. Following Indefinite Pronouns, and Indefinite Adverbs of Time and Place in negative clauses it appears to re-enforce or emphasise the negative:

uŋ jumman mman kuli apai.i there is no one like you. 82.1. Cp. 82.12. amulo kuli apiʷm nowhere were there (any vegetables). 64.1.

b. In the following:

beital ke han . . . duʷan kuli aiyaica you have never given me even a kid. 374.9.

236a

000 The negative is stressed by the ka, and kuli comes merely to emphasise the durga.

Similarly in the following it appears to lay stress on the tale:
terma ariła ṭaiv ayem.enem.en ka tale kuli gurdan If we are unable to give twelve goats we shall give (at any rate?) seven. 194.10. (This was glossed H. aur kir).

The explanation H. . . . kir, given elsewhere, would apply to the first two and similar examples: kuri kir, kuki kir.

c. From one or two examples it appears that kuli can be used like ka to form General Relatives:
ka, hesen eti kuli dyu.sse apeti no, whatever he does (lit. did) he will not escape. 44.8. kelel dirni kuli deljem whenever he comes, or, if at any time he comes, I shall slay him. 172.15.

d. Used after finite parts of verbs it appears to mean: if, if ever:
mene kuler dira kuli aiyereg.nain if he (ever) goes (lit. went) into anyone's house, don't kill him. 244.7. kan gunisen ṭaiv durama kuli gurirein if you (were to) come out one day too early you will die. 50.17.

2. kuli -mig y band of cloth tied round an infant's head. Pra. arb.ud. 158.18.

kkuilto, kkulto today. — kulto jim.ale se.ime ayerini.i saying "today, tomorrow" he doesn't do it, i.e. he procrastinates. kulto nim tap last night. je kulto rak api I have no appetite today. 30.2. Cp. 30.3,23. 222.12. (With -ulto cp. kilulto and kipulto).

kkuiltomo of today. — kuiltomo g'uatnoio (in the course of) today. 50.21.

kwilume gunkalum from today. 106.16 000

kulu N. variant of Ha. 1. kuli. — mnan kulu apuli there is no one. ansis kulu kayeran api there is not any(?) horse.

1. -kum a suffix used with x forms of the Numerals denoting:
   1. a pair.
   2. a multiple entity. V. § 197.

   The forms recorded are: kilum, ell o- / ewki- / ewri- / tsindi- } + kum. mzirn- / tulo- / ell'am- / kuf'i- } + kum.

   1. kilum kuvlo a pair of pathoos (boots). yerapeciq ellowum two pairs of socks. ewkilum kufite three pairs of boots.
   2. uv kilum that party (of people). kilum sinik a party of men, a few persons. kuv iskilum rown these three tribes 272.14.

2. -kum an Adjectival suffix:
   Cp. wylum, kuanulum, kwkum, kuyrulum, perkum.

kunda -mufe x stock of gun. Pre.

kundev, v. zundev, murderer. — ja ana kundev my father's murderer. 90.10. (Probably kk- for z-). Pre.

kuru, kurni, pl. kkunzufs, corner. — kan kurnigenor (or, gurni-) nicui (he goes off into a corner. 120.12. ney kurunzor nifum leading him forward into a corner. 84.19. (Cp. Sh. kun'i).

1. kuv -zio x fetlock. (Cp. Sh. kkuvo hoof).

2. kuv -zio x. a very small bird with a red top to its head.

   (Seen in summer at Ilawa, altitude about 10,000 ft.).

3. kur -zufe x small ejor tank.

kuraṭi, pl. x -ṭio, y -ṇ, miṇ, hard, stiff (of leather, cardboard etc.). — kuraṭilo gapanis hard hides. kuraṭimiṇ korpétiṇ stiff straps. ja ta.ociṇ kuraṭi manitsan my leg-bandages have become stiff. 128.21, 130.7. (Cp. Sh. kuraṭo, stiff, and kuro, hard, strong). OOO kurdi, kordi, pl. kurdents, kordents, N. -mots, x shirt, man's shirt. 938.13. (Cp. Sh. kurt'ani, man's shirt). Prs.

kurí.ap atas to let off, spare; QUB to overpower, H. maylub karna.

Only once recorded: kime bun traq stuṭá, ja ke kurí.ap aiyeći he has split the stone, he won't let me off. 206.1.

QUB. Explained the second clause as: kamko moyabzla ke liv ne takrayen. Meaning perhaps: "he won't let me remain to oppose him".

kkurk, v. xurk, broken straw.

kuro N. pl. kurumots x hoof (of horse). (Cp. Sh. kkuro, hoof).

kuron, pl. kurenyo, a meaningless expletive in the expression: ken kuron, pl. kuromo kurenyo, blind.

kurpan gentian (plant).

kursi -mots x chair. — kursi.aṭs eurušaí.i he makes him sit on a chair. 74.10. Cp. 80.2, 88.6, 360.2. Ar. Prs.

kurukuruṭ breaking up, snapping, crunching (sound of teeth when something hard is eaten).

Only once recorded: kisan kurukuruṭ eéume ṭirni he ate something with a crunching of the teeth. 132.13.

kurut, v. gurut, dried curds.

kus N. v. xus, cough.

-kus, -kuro.

1. A nominal and adjectival suffix occurring with certain words denoting time:

000 dʌtukus, denkus, gərukus and yoʿlɛkus. Cp. gərkus, marriageable.

2. -kus, a suffix in the words: yaʿrokus and yʌtokus.

3. -kus, probably a suffix in: sərik(k)us and imeʿkus.

kusa -tiŋ, -mots hm scanty-bearded man. Prs.

kuse N. x sg., equivalent to Hz. guse, this, this one, it.

khuʿʒ, cp. khukuʿʒ, whisper. — khuʿʒ ne senʌs to whisper. (Cp. Kho. kuṣeʿrk, to whisper).

-kuʒ suffix used to form abstract nouns.

kušelʌs to go wrong, become spoilt, damaged. V. qušelʌs.

kuʿšiš v. koʿšiš.

1. khuʿt, x pl. khutuʿiko, khutoŋo, short; low (?). — khutuʿiko γʌšiʿlik short pieces of stick. gufʌγo kuʿt mani bi your stick has become short. 222.14. kutuʿiko qʌltʌčʌmots short coats. 188.2. khutoŋo miʿzišo low (?) tables.

Perhaps also in: khuʿt sokʿuʿin baiʿi he is a close relation. (Cp. Sh. khuʿto).

2. khuʿt, v. koʿt. — Daiγuʿrə khuʿtʌtər duʿmʌn they came to the Daiyor Fort. 380.21.

(kh-t Gh. Kh. but one wd. expect kuʿt. Cp. Sh. koʿt, H. koʿt).

kutə, kuʿtɛ, N. kuts, sg. y this, this thing. — kutə oʿsʌn don't say this. 70.22. kuʿtɛ pa this side.

(The form seems to be characteristically a N. one corresponding to Hz. gots. Presumably the initial is kh-).

khutqiyʌlt -iso x tadpole.

(Presumably 1. khuʿt + qiyʌlt, from the resemblance to a short-handled ladle. Cp. Yasin-Kho. aiʿɛ krpiʿni snake-spoon, i.e. tadpole).

238a

ODO kʊlgʊs v. khʊʃkʊs.

kʊ·ʊti N. -mʊts x wood-pigeon. (Cp. Sh. kʊ·ti, dove).

khʊʃkʊs pl. khʊʃkʊšo x smallest size of field, garden plot, H. kiya·ri. — šɛni.ɛ kʊtʊšo garden beds. šʌni.ɛ kʊtʊsər nimi he went to a plot of vegetables. 64.17. (EOL has kʊtgʊs, pl. kʊtgʊyɛnts).

kʊ·to pl. kʊ·tʊmiŋ y a bag of lamb-skin (holding 4 to 12 lbs. of grain). — gʊtɛ kʊ·tʊlo pfʌlo aγ'ʊnin give me grain in this bag. 140.4.

Dat. kʊ·twʌr, kʊtʊwər, 140.5,6,12. Cp. 140.16, 142.1. (Cp. Sh. kʊ·to).

kʊtʊ·r tribe, tribal section, Bu. rʊm. 272.2,12. (A Wakhi word).

1. kʊts days. Recorded only with the Numerals above two, and with bɛ·rʊm, a certain number of, some.

The following forms have been recorded with the z numerals up to 10:

i·skikʊts	three days.	tʌlɛkʊts.
wa·lkʊts	four days,	a·lta·ŋʊts.
tsɛndikʊts etc.		hʊntikʊts
miši·ŋkʊts		tori·mkʊts.

When the particular period of days mentioned is regarded as a whole kʊts takes the suffix -ʌn.

t'orimkʊts ten days; t'orimkʊtsʌn a period of 10 days. berukʊtsʌn a period of some days. 168.19.

kʊts has been recorded with the Ablative suffix -ʊm, and kʊtsʌn with the suffixes -tsʊm and -mo.

a·ltʊwʌltər kʊtsʊm after 40 days. 66.14. berʊm kʊtsʌntsʊm after some days. 292.13. tʌlɛ kʊtsʌnmo ju come after seven days.

The Locative suffix ʊlo gives the sense of: in the course of, for, during. a·ltʊwʌltər kʊts'ʊlo ho·lə atʊ·s don't come out for forty days. 50.12.

238b

[see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p.543-Analyst]

tʌ kutsulo during 100 days. 102.2,5. V. s.vv. iskikuts and tʌlskuts. Cp. 50.15, 52.11, 322.10.

2. -kuts h pl. A suffix attached to place-names denoting the inhabitants of that place.

The singular is obtained by adding the suffix -ʌn.

ja ʌu.u Pisʌnkutsɛ esqʌnomʌn the people of Pisan killed my father. 266.12. Hindikuts the people of Hindi. 196.5. Hunzokuts the people of Hunza. 296.3.

So: Misgarkuts. 290.7; Tolkuts, Tolmrtkuts. 294.21.

In some cases the base-word is, according to tradition, the name of a person, as in: Thərakuts and Xurukuts.

'kutsə, N. kutsɛ, x pl. these, these ones. — kutsə bʌlaʃu these birds. 96.6.

(Characteristically a N. form, equivalent to Hz. gutsɛ. Presumably kh-).

kutuiko v. 1. khuʃ.

kuyoč h pl. people of a country (as opposed to the Ruler), subjects, populace. — kuyoč otimi he made them subjects, he subjugated them. 4.6. umɛ kuyoč your subjects. kuyoč uyon xuš umʌnomʌn all the people, subjects, were delighted. 32.12. Cp. 2.2, 4.10, 26.26, 380.19.

(Cp. Sh. kuyoč).

khüy -ʌʒ, EOL kiy, y leaf.

kyu v. qyu.

X.

Initially this sound is also heard as ᵏx- or qx-, and kh- or qh-. Medially in some circumstances it changes to -q-, e.g. in the Ppa. and Cs. V Gram. p. XXX. Additional Note.

239a

1. xa·, kha· (rare), cp. also xa·ṣiŋər and v. § 72. 000

a. (Of time) up to, till, for. — mu·to xa, mu xa up to now. 382.6. i·tɛ xa up till that time, till then. torimi den xa for ten years. jɛ ju·ṣ xa till I come, till my return. 28.1. čumʌrɛ gi·li i·lji xa uyonɛ i.e·šʌm, bim all used to see the iron peg till later times, it was there. 196.13. 40 kutɛ omʌnṣ xa hʌn gontɛn tsor until 40 days are up one day earlier i.e. one day before 40 days have elapsed. 50.16.

b. (Of place) up to, as far as. — ha xa ju·čam they come as far as the house. 304.15.

c. (With numerals) up to. — tʌlo xa up to seven, 194.12.

2. xa, kha, also xau, khau before a w-.

a. Adv. down, downwards. — xa wʌlimi it fell down. 168.4. xa awɛ·ṣi kɛ if it threw me down. 76.25. čərʌṭum xau (or, khau) wʌlimi he fell down from the cliff. 214.10. xau wʌšimi he flung (it) down. 112.17.

b. (Postposition) down, down through, down on. Cp. § 86.

The noun is generally in the General Oblique form.

hu·rɛ xa gu·mo she threw them down the mill-race. 206.10. i·sɛ isumʌlɛ mujo·q i·skili xa bʌli·la the tassel of its tail is hanging down (over) its face. 186.8. sʌgʌm xa ki·l numa looking down through the smoke-hole. 228.7. yʌtɪsɛ xa gusɛ ʌš'ʌtɛ nidɪlin striking (down) on its head or, striking it on the head, with this penis of mine. 228.8.

Cp. also:

bɛsʌnə xa adɛlj'a? which probably 000 means: "on what part of me are you going to hit me?" 148.12.

601 *-xakin, *-xʌkin -dəro hf. Some recorded forms postulate *-ʌxakin.

Pn.pf. sg. 1. a-, 2. gu- & go-, 3. i-, mu-.
pl. 1. mɛ-, 2. ma-, 3. o-.

daughter-in-law, son's wife, H. bʌhu. iʷnɛ γʌmis hiʷrɛ ixʌkinmʊtsɛ mʌmu bilʊm the rich man's daughter-in-law was pregnant. 100.3.

The relationship to the son may be expressed:

amin gu.iʷɛ goxakin goyˈɛrʊm bo kɛ whichever is your favourite daughter-in-law (son's wife). 106.20. iʷɛ ixˈakinmʊr iʷtɛ tsil mʊčimi he gave the water to his son's wife (his daughter-in-law). 108.6. (IUB *-xaʷkin).

000 xaʷli empty. Ar. Prs.

xaʷm QUB, v. khaʷm.

601 xaʷn hm "khan". The eldest son and heir of the Mir of Hunza is spoken of, and addressed, as "Xaʷn".

Rajas and Saiyids call their sons "xaʷn" (as well as eʷi etc., or by name); uyuʷm xaʷn eldest son; makučim xaʷn middle son; jʊt xaʷn youngest son. N.

000 xaʷndaʷn, xaʷnadaʷn y a distinguished family; family stock. — iʷtɛ xaʷnadaʷntsʊm bai.i he belongs to that family (the Prophet Abraham's). 92.3. Prs.

xaʷnsaʷma(n) hm cook, major domo. 382.5. Prs.

xaʷp mʌnaʷs, khaʷp m. to fade (of falling leaves, flowers).

(Cp. Bu. xʌp, "tinder". See also duplicate entry under khaʷp).

xaʷs private. — xaʷs mʌhrʌmʌnər to a private servant. 376.2. Ar. Prs.

240a

000 xaʿš ɛtʌs to rub slowly, rub down.

(V. xʌš ɛtʌs and cp. Sh. kaʿš, khʌš thoʿrki to wipe, rub off, etc.).

xaʿšiŋər, cp. 1. xaʿ and v. § 72.

a. (Of time) up to, until, for. — toʿrimi den xaʿšiŋər up to, for, ten years.

b. (Of place) up to, as far as. — šʌfaxaʿna xaʿšiŋər as far as, up to, the dispensary. 240.15.

(-šiŋ(ər) may be compared with the Sh. -siŋ up to, until, used as a suffix with verbal bases).

xaʿtɪr attention, consideration, deference. — uʿnɛ hər bɛsʌn xaʿtɪr goʿučʊmʌn they will show you every kind of attention. 10.14. ɛr xaʿtɪr nɛ paying him (their) respects. 314.10. Ar. Prs.

xʌbər, k(h)ʌbər -iŋ y.

a. News, information. — bɛsʌn xʌbər bila? what's the news? what news is there? xʌbərčɛ apaiyʌm I didn't know what was going on. khʌbər nukʌn niʿmi he went off taking the news. 6.8. xʌbəriŋ suʿyʌs news-bringer, reporter, spy. xʌbər ɛtʌs + Dative to inform (a person). menər xʌbər ɛti tell someone. oʿr xʌbər ɛti inform them. 94.20. uyomər xʌbər nɛ telling them all about it. 260.17. xʌbər učhiʿʌs to inform them.

b. Adj. informed of, acquainted with (a fact). — mi men xʌbər apaʿn none of us are acquainted with it. 80.15. mɛn(ʌn) xʌbər ɛtʊma? did you inform anyone? Ar. Prs.

ʌbiʿɛ impure, base. Ar. Prs. xʌčiʿr, qʌčiʿr -išo x, N. ǫʌčiʿr -išo, mule. (Cp. Kho. & Wkh. xʌčiʿr.)

xʌfa, xʌpa sad, depressed, distressed, vexed, annoyed, displeased. — tai buʿt xʌpa kɛ amʿumʌnumo and so she did

240 b

[see corrigenda et addenda category 116, p. 543 - Analyst]

not become unduly sad. 58.15. xʌfa ayɛtin don't vex him. 12.2. pa·dša wɛtsum xʌfa numʌn the king being displeased with them. 44.16. Cp. 38.21, 120.15, 284.23, 380.19. Ar. Prs.

xʌlaʿs freed, at liberty. — mai.imu ji xʌlaʿs ɛtin save your lives. 30.23. Ar. Prs.

xʌlifa, pl. xʌlifʌtiŋ, hm priest.

Term used by the Maulāi sect for mulla, or akhond. 302.9, 310.4. Ar. Prs.

xʌlonwʌŋ y pl. soot. — xʌlonwʌŋ dumitsʌn soot has seized it, i.e. it has got covered with soot.

xʌlta N., xɪlta Hz., -muts x bag.

(Cp. Kho. xʌlta, Sh. khʌlta).

1. xʌm plain, simple. Used in the expression: xʌm ʃʌpʼik, plain bread.
2. xʌm, khʌm, qhʌm y cooked vegetables, vegetable soup, Sh. kuni, H. suruna, (neither known to me). QUB "any moist food eaten with bread". — xʌm ɛčʌm they prepare vegetable soup. 340.9. hovi xʌm bila it is green-vegetable soup. čutʌn qhʌm ačhi give me a little vegetable soup. xʌmɛ ka ʃʌpʼik bread with vegetables. QUB. (Cp. Sh. kam, cabbage (?).

xʼʌmʌli, pl. -čiŋ and xʌmʼʌličiŋ, (EOL qʌmʼʌli -čiŋ, -yʌŋ), y thin bread (like paper). — xʌmʌli bišʌčər duγuwski bo she begins to make (toss on the griddle) "khamali". 306.8. Cp. 300.1,3, 306.13.

xʌn, khʌn. Only in: xʌn nɛ, khʌn nɛ, downwards. 246.21 (bis), 294.3.

Probably for xa + nɛ, v. 2. xa.

xʌndʌq, kʌndʌq, -ičiŋ, -ɛčiŋ, y ditch, trench. Prs.

241 a xʌnjər y uagger. — xʌnjər nukʌn taking the dagger. 380.8. Prs. 000 xʌp, qhʌp y tinder (the skin of a kind of plant). (Cp. xa·p & xʌpkinʌs).

xʌpkinʌs a kind of herb, of which the skin is used as tinder and the roots (xʌpkinʌsɛ gʌmu·n) as an aperient for children. (Cp. xʌp).

xər -iŋ y a quantity of gold, also used to denote a monetary value formerly of six now of eight rupees. 2 xər = 1 bai.i. — turma a·lto xər'iŋ γenʌŋ nuk'ʌn taking 12 "khars" of gold. 56.11. Cp. 56.25, 58.3, 58.16.

(In the texts recorded also as kər and qər).

xʌr ɛtʌs to fry, H. bhunna. — čhʌp xʌr ɛtʌs to fry meat.

xəra·b bad, ruined. — čhʌp xəra·b mʌnimi the meat went bad. wa·lto ša·riŋ xəra·b mʌnitsa four cities have become ruined. 96.20. Ar. Prs.

*-xərʌs, -xərč-, Ppa. n-qər*, St. Pc. xərum. Pn.pf. sg. i-, pl. u-.

1. V.t. to break (a hard object, stone, bone, walnut, by striking it with something). — sʌmdʌnʌtɛ dʌn ixərčʌm I'll break the stone with a sledge-hammer. hʌni ixərʌm I broke the apricot-stone. tin niqər breaking the bone. tinjo nuqər breaking the bones. xʌrum bʌt P. N. the "Broken", or "Split", Stone. 210.5.
2. To saw (wood). — hun hərivči.ɛtɛ ixərʌs bi the wood is to be sawn.
3. To split (wood), cleave, cut up. — hʌn pušorri.ɛn . . . nikhər cutting up a lump of butter. 338.11. mʌltʌrʌŋ ixərčʌm they used to cut up the lumps of butter. 314.13. (Cp. du·xərʌs).

241 b

ooo xərʌtʌs, xərʌš- v.i. to be joined (of wood etc.), to adhere, stick. — buˑt xərʌši bi it is very adhesive. šuˑa xərʌtimi, xərʌti bi it has been well joined, fixed (of a join in wood). tek (i.e. tik) qərʌtimi the mud stuck. Nz. g utse xərʌtimi it has stuck to the cloth. (Cs. *-ʌqərʌtʌs).

xərč, xərči y expenditure, expense, expenses. — xərč ɛtʌs to make expenditure, expend, spend. doˑlʌt xərč ɛtʊmʌtɛ by spending wealth. 38.24. gukɛ γɛnʌŋ gʌnɛ xərči goˑr ɛtʌm I have made over this gold to you for travelling expenses. 88.27. Cp. 372.8,9. Ar. Prs.

xʌrts, qərts clapping the hands. — uˑriˑŋčiŋ xʌrts nɛ clapping their hands. 140.5. oˑltʌlik xʌrts nɛtʌn γaib mʌnuˑmʌn both of them, clapping their hands, vanished. 382.5. (x- Gh. Kh.).

xʌs v. khʌs.

xʌš ɛtʌs to rub (backwards and forwards), to scour (with mud). — mili xʌš ɛtʌs to rub on medicine. xʌš xʌš ɛtʌs to stroke the shoulders and face as a caress when going away.

(Cp. xaˑš ɛtʌs and see BSOS VIII. 1936, p. 632).

*-xʌšiŋ. -xaˑšiŋ x Pn.pf. a-, gu-, i-, buttocks, backside, bottom, Ar. mʌqʿʌd. — ixʌšiŋ yaˑltʌs to wash the buttocks. ixʌšiŋ šʌpiˑkʌtɛ γʌšʌˑp ɛtʊmo she wiped his backside with bread. 272.5. bʌloˑšɛ sɛnimi ja axaˑšiŋ γɛnɪšɛ bi the pot said: "my bottom is of gold". Prov. 9.

1. *-xʌt -iŋ y mouth; opening, H. mūh, dʌhʌn. — toˑbʌqɛ iˑxʌt the muzzle of a gun. sʌkʌyɛ ixʌt opening in top of grain-store on roof. Cp. 138.6, Prov. 39.

242a

000

*-xʌči = *-xʌt + tsɛ(?), v. s.v. ixʌči. 170.20, 78.22.

2. xʌt -ɛŋ y writing, letter — ja aᵛčutsʊm xʌt di bila a letter has come from my brother. 10.12. Cp. 10.9,10. Ar. Prs.

3. xʌt, khʌt down, downwards, down on. — gʊtʌs xʌt hʊrʊši bi the corpse sits down. 312.14. Karəgʌdimʊtsɛ xʌt hʌn bʊᵛʌn diᵛmi a cow came down (by) the K. 186.3. γʊᵛa xʌt daiyʌm I came down a descent. mʊriŋɛ xʌt mʊdɛlimi he struck down on her hand, i.e. he struck her on the hand. 386.15. xʌt (or, khʌt) wʌšimi he (shot and) brought down (the pigeon). 148.8. khʌt khʌt "down, down" (said to plough-oxen meaning "keep down to the line"). N. xʌt nɛ westwards (being down the valley). (Cp. 2. xa).

xʌtər y danger, dangerous. — gʊtɛ gʌn, gʊtɛ duro, xʌtər bila this road, this business, is dangerous. Ar. Prs.

xʌṭi, xʌṭɛ lower. — xʌṭi (or, xʌṭɛ) mʊš the lower end, lower side of. Iršaᵛdtsʊm xʌti mʊš Raminjɛ xa from Irshad as far as Raminj at the lower end (of the valley). 284.17. Cp. 278.5.

(Probably the Oblique of 3. xʌṭ; contrast dʌli, dʌlimʊš the upper end).

xʌṭuᵛm from below, from down-country. — xʌṭuᵛm baiyu "salt from the Punjab". Nz.

xʌzaᵛna x treasure. — xʌzaᵛna bimʌn uyoᵛn all the treasure there was. 174.19. Ar. Prs.

xʌziᵛna, γʌziᵛna x treasury. — iᵛsɛ xʌziᵛna.aṭɛ fʌt ʌmʌnʌm I have come upon the treasury. 54.8. itsuᵛin čʊmʌrɛ xʌzinaᵛaṭər take him to the treasury of iron. 172.18. xʌzinaᵛlo bai.i he is in the treasury. 86.7. xʌzina hiŋ the door of the treasury. §6.9. Ar. Prs. 000 xair, xair kɛ not? (following an interrogative verb and expecting an affirmative answer; cp. Latin nonne).

It appears to be used as an equivalent for: assuredly, to be sure, indeed, H. albʌttʌ. QUB gave the meaning as: "perhaps", "may be". do.umʌn bai.a xair kɛ? is he not a strong man? 162.25. um Š. B. ba xair? you are Š. B. aren't you? 378.6. ma mayom h'ɛnʌšwik bama xair kɛ you are all wise men to be sure(?) 158.4. tsil ačhima kɛ gowr šuwa maimtsɛ, xair, gutɛ mulkulo . . . omʌnš! if you give me water it will be well for you; if you don't may you not remain in this country! 384.16.

(Here there is no interrogative and xair seems to be equivalent to bɛ kɛ if not). (Cp. xair used in Persian as a negative exclamation, No!).

xau v. 2. xa.

xauf ɛtʌs to fear. — oltʌlike Širi Bʌdʌttsum xauf nɛ both fearing Š. B. 382.19. Ar. Prs.

xewr sacrificial offering. — badšatum xewr mimʌnšʌn let us be a sacrifice for the king. 40.19. gwtiŋɛ x'ereŋɛ, uyom uwrşʌn! let them be a sacrifice at (for?) your feet, may they all die! 172.4.

Explained as "xairat". The exact meaning is doubtful. If a child breaks anything and is afraid at what it has done its parents say to it "gwtiŋɛ xereŋɛ!" to encourage it.

xɛli somewhat, a little, H thorasa; zʌra.

Only once recorded:

xɛli čust imʌnimi (the infant) grew somewhat bigger. 242.20.

243 a

000

(In Kho. there is a word xɛli meaning "special, superior, select").

xi.aˑl, xɛ.aˑl, khiyaˑl y thought, idea, opinion. — khiyaˑl ɛtimi baˑdša . . . yɛˑšʌm nosen he thought "I shall have a look at the king". 2.5,9. aulaˑd dyusʌsɛ xɛ.aˑl aiyɛˑčai.i he has no thought of producing offspring. 262.12. Ar. Prs.

'xɪdmʌt, xɪsmʌt, qɪsmʌt service. — xɪdmʌt ɛtom sis a man who has rendered service. 348.11.

xɪlta v. xʌlta. Ar. Prs.

ximoˑr desire, longing, lust, H. šauq, rišti.aˑq, tʌmʌnna, aˑrzu.

Only recorded in:

Ilqʌše ximoˑr gʌlimi A's desire was broken, i.e. satisfied. 68.15.

(Amend the translation given with the text).

(Cp. Kho. xomoˑr, desire, taste for, appetite; and Ar. Prs. ximaˑr?).

*-xiˑsʌs, *-xiˑš- to tear, tear in pieces, rend, H. čirna. — gʌtoŋ ixiˑsʌs to tear (up) cloth. uˑxiˑšʌm I'll tear them in pieces (in battle). guxiˑši (the wild animal) will tear you in pieces. nidilin ixiˑsimi he threw him down and tore him in pieces. 174.18. (Cp. *-ʌxɛˑsʌs).

xɪsmʌt v. xɪdmʌt.

xismʌtgaˑr, qɪsmʌtgaˑr, -išo hm personal servant. (Ar.) Prs.

xɪsta, qɪstʼa, N. pl. -mots x leavened dough, bread made with yeast, yeast. Pers. xʌmiˑr. — xɪsta šʌpik leavened bread. qɪsta oˑčan they make them bake leavened bread. 300.4. Cp. 300.1.

(Cp. Kho. xɪsta leaven. Sh. kɪstʼa large kind of bread).

xoˑl silk cocoon.

2436

000 *-xo·lʌs, *-xo·lj- Pn.pf. refers to sufferer, to ache, pain, hurt, be sore. — ja ayæṭis ʌxo·lji bi my head is aching. gumɛ guxo·lji bi your tooth is aching. amɛlʒ axo·ljivla my jaw aches.
Pres. Pl. 3rd. x *-xolji.ɛn, y *-xoljitsʌn.
The following is an isolated variant (said to be vulgar):
inɛ yu·lolo yʌqo·lji bi he has a pain in his belly. Nz.
(Cp. xo·linʌs* and N. *-xulʌs).

*-xo·linʌs, *-xo·li to pain, hurt. — ixo·lini·mi it hurt him. 148.18.
Pres. 3rd. sg. x ixo·li bi.
Impf. » » » ixo·li bim.

xonɪndʌk -ičiŋ y taking s.o. as a guest to one's house, entertaining, hospitality. (Used only of the entertainment of the Tham when he visits Hèrber). — xonɪndʌkɛ ha the house in which the Tham is put up and entertained. xonɪndʌkičiŋ fʌš mʌnu·mər when the hospitalities are concluded. 342.12.
(The word stands for the Wkh. xon yundʌk. "taking away to one's house", which is used in the same connection. This entry supersedes the note on p. 340 of the Texts).

xor, xɔr, xʊr, snoring, snorting, purring. — xor ɛtʌs, N. xʊr ɛtʌs to snore. i·nɛ xo·rɛ ičər dukoyɛljʊma you will hear the sound of his snoring. 264.23. xɔrɛ ičər jučilʊm the sound of his snoring was coming, i.e. was audible. 266.2. hʌɣʊrɛ xor ɛči bi the horse is snorting. bu·šɛ xʊr ɛči bi the cat is purring. ^1 xoro·nč v. xʊro·nč.

xšü· ɛtʌs to blow with bellows. V. šü· ɛtʌs of which it was said by IYB to be the correct form.

244a

^1 [see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 543 - Analyst]

000 xvd'a hm God. hf. divine being, goddess (term applied to Fatima). — xvdai.e gʌnɛ ʌkivl a·i.ati for God's sake don't do thus. Xvda·yɛ tu·mvk etai.i God has created it. 6.17.

A Genitive in -o was once recorded: Xvda·yo qvdərʌt by the power of God. 52.12. Bi·bi Fa·tɪma xvd'a bo B. F. is a goddess. QUB. xvda·mo hə·dər ni bai.i he has gone to the house of the wife of a prophet. QUB. Prs.

xvda·mo (Gen. of xvd'a hf) pertaining to the Goddess (i.e. Fatima). — xvda·mo xvdeɪ bai.i he is an offering to the Goddess, i.e. he is unmarried.

xvda·yaʊ, xvdaiyaʊ good-bye, adieu, farewell. — xvdayaʊ goʊ mʌniṣ! God be with you, farewell to you! 94.8. Cp. 212.12.

(The expression is used in both Sh. and Kho. and is presumably Xvda + yaʊ God (be your) friend!) Prs.

xvda·yo v. xvd'a.

xvdeɪ, xvdəi.i an offering in the name of God, alms (in the form of food), xairat. — ku·lto xvdeɪ etʌs bila alms are to be given today. mu xvdeɪ učhi.ʌs alms are now to be given to them, i.e. the people. huyɛ·s nuyɛn nu·n Misga·rkutɛ xvdəi.i ečʌn the Misgaris taking goats go and sacrifice (and distribute) them as alms 290.8.

xu·k, ku·k, -ršo, -uts x pig. — xu·kršo (or, ku·kršo) uy'ərčər evimi he sent him to pasture the swine. 372.13. Cp. 366.10.

Used metaphorically: h. xu·kršo (or, xu·kuts) -ba·n they are swine i.e. bad-tempered people of evil character. Prs.

*-xvlas, *-axvlas; *-xvlj-, *-axvlj- N., v.t. to hurt. — axvlji bi it hurts me. exvlja ba I am hurting him. ixvlam I hurt him. aiyexvli don't hurt him. (Cp. *-xvlas). 000 xvmuʷin pl. xvmuʷyo, v. hvmuʷin. 250.4.

xuʷn elas to commit murder. Prs.

xuʷndaʷr, kundaʷr -iło h murderer. Prs.

*-xundo x hunch, hump.

*-xvndukiţ, pl. xvndukiʌants hunch-back; humped, rounded. — ixvndukiţ sis, ixvndukiţan a hunch-backed person. ixundukiţ mərtan bila it is a humped, rounded, earth cliff. QUB.

xuʷni -tiŋ h murderer. Prs.

[illegible]

xvr v. xor.

xvraʷbguʷin -guʷiyo h. Jemadar or Superintendent of gold-washers (of whom there used to be one for each of the three tribes: Xvrukots, Bvroŋ and Bəraʷtiliŋ). 348.5.

xvraʷk, xvraʷka x food. — ţi.asər xvraʷka food for eating. 120.23. Cp. 172.21, 380.18. Prs.

xvraʷpo, xvraʷpomets x tray for washing sand to extract gold. 348.4.

xvrg'as v. hvrgas.

xuʷrgo v. hvrgo.

xuʷrk, xvrk, khuʷrk, -iŋ y broken straw, "bhoosa".

xvroʷnę, xərroʷnę, xoroʷnę, qoroʷnę, xvrunę y cloud, rain-cloud, fog, mist. — hərraʷlte . . . xvroʷnčan a rain-cloud. 106.18. ivte xvroʷnčatsum from that cloud. 106.19. tiʷktsum xvrunę duʷimi a mist rose from the ground. (Cp. perhaps N. kovrom, kvruʷn mist).

*-xvrpat -iŋ y lungs. H. phephra. — ixvrpat galiʷz pneumonia. McK & GR. N. aʷxvrpat(iŋ) my lungs. exvrpat his lungs.

245 a
[see corrigenda et addenda category 116, p. 543 - Analyst]

xurtə, xurtə, -iŋ, -eŋ y. N. xurtə, qurtə -iŋ dust. — gurəkilafum xurtə 'eori wipe (lit. send) the dust from your face. tiri kha horəlte xurtə dirəsimi of which the meaning is: he produced a storm of combined wind, rain and dust, (no doubt the usual dust-storm followed by rain). 122.12. Cp. 122.13.

xurtəsumə̄ having a cold in the head. — ja xurtəsumə̄ amana ba I have caught a cold in the head. wa xurtəsumə̄ gumanʼa? have you got a cold in the head?

xurwt v. qurwt.

xus, y N. kus cough. — xus [illegible] stas to [illegible] cough (prop. [illegible] to cough), xus ačila, xus gočila I have a cough, you have a cough.

1. xuṣ, pl. x xuṣarnts, y xuṣarŋ, empty. (Possibly to be compared with Psht. xuže).

2. xuṣ.

a. Glad, happy, pleased. — xuṣ amanam I am (have become) very glad, pleased. 4.10. basantsum xuṣ gumaima? what are you pleased about? EOL. N. kinə sis but xuṣ ačinə̄ this man pleased me greatly.

b. xuṣ stas to choose, select, like, prefer. — amanor xuṣ ečə ki whichever person you prefer. Pisanulo Daltas Manuwko burt xuṣ stuman in Pisan they very much liked, or took a great fancy to, D. M. 262.6. N. inə sis jawə xuṣ ečubai.i the man likes me. N. ja inərə xuṣ ačiwčə ba I don't like him.

c. Pleasing to, attractive to. — tərə kin inər xuṣ ham one was so pleasing to the other, i.e. they so loved each other. 50.1. itə dil wor

000 xuś dirusi the place pleased them. 294.9. xuśar wye xuś bila ke ifen take whichever (horse) you prefer. xuśo yuve his favourite wife.

(In the last two examples xuś seems to be used as a noun). Trs.

xuś amadi! welcome! — thamar xuś amadi xishen they say "you are welcome" to the Tham. 338.7.

(This Persian phrase is apparently used by Wakhis).

xuśi pleasure, joy, rejoicing. — xuśi.e ka with pleasure, gladly, happily. 178.7. xuśi ofas to display pleasure, make merry. xuśi 'ofas let us make merry! ar imaśimo xuśi 'ofimi being afraid, he made a display of joy. 16.6. [illegible] 'ofimi at the time of his departure he expressed pleasure with Š. B., probably meaning he took a cordial leave of Š. B. 10.15. Prs.

xuśwari glad, happy. Prs.

xuthe the marriage service (read by a priest). — xuthe γafonimi he read the marriage service. 18.13. Cp. 302.15. Ar. Prs.

L.

la· an exclamation: ho!

lavi lavi manow to chatter cheerfully, or out of happiness, H. xuś hokar bavt karna.

lajʼeś manow (of a thing spilt) to flow over everything. QUB. — moltaiiq γafunfu lajʼeś manitu the blood has flowed all over the clothes. siarki gutsi lajʼeś manilu the ink has been spilt all over you. (IUB gave the meaning as H. ałtar, spoilt).

lanta -mots x strips of dough. — lanta ifunfo a kind of food with strips of dough in it.

OOO lal -iŋ y ruby. Ar. Prs.

lal'ɔr, lal'ir naked. — lam lalɔr stark ("shining") naked.[1] lalṭen, pl. lalṭiviyo, lalṭiŋuts x lantern. Eng.

-lamaći -iŋ* y in the lap of. — malamaćɔr nam ja ji di.uźam going on to her lap I shall expire. 364.10.

(This is simply the noun -lamat* + ći).

lamat y curse, imprecation. — imɔr lamat stin curse ye him. uŋɔr lamat manić curse be on you! 150.2. Ar. Prs.

1. laŋ aside, to one side, out of the way. — laŋ man'e get to one side, get out of the way. 228.15. Cp. 120.12. [illegible] had passed away. 122.13. laŋ masuman. laŋ ormanumo they said to her: "Get out of the way!" She didn't budge. 256.9. laŋ orti move them (animals, stones) to one side.

(Cp. Laŋ of which it is the diminutive).

2. laŋ manam to walk swinging one's arms. H. bazu ko hilakar čalna.

(Cp. Sh. laŋ laṭhaŋ, or laŋ lathak, thaṭki, to swagger along?).

lao y.

1. A shout, halloo. — Hanuman Muntsum lao mai.i bila a shout, halloo, proceeds from H. M. 180.11.
2. Hullo! equivalent to aru.

lao jao mischief maker, slanderer, H. kariv, nahaq bakwas karnewala. — sodagɔr sisɔr se.ibam "buṭ lao jao" they say of a merchant b. l. j. i.e. that he is hard in a bargain and dishonest, giving short weight. QUR.

laq late, delayed. — khu.in biranć laq manimi.en this year the mulberries

246b

[1] [see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 543-Analyst]

have been late. ḥori laṛ̥ ḍuṛ'unimi the barley ripened late. ölji laṛ̥ gots ćowan they will do this later. srub nivs laṛ̥ manimi the Sahib's going has been delayed. sruba nivs laṛ̥ ćnii the Sahib has postponed his departure.

laṛ̥ manow to spread over, overlay. — morsan dimin ćiso gotuḍ'aji laṛ̥ man'imi a mud-flood coming, overlaid the dead bodies. 240.14.

(Cp. Sh. laṛ̥ hoski, to be spread over, collected on).

laṛ̥a thin, out of condition, H. dubla. — ja hayur laṛ̥a bas manimison why have my horses become thin? 378.10.

(Cp. Sh. Laṛ̥o Laṛ̥o manuṛ̥i, very poor men; Kho. Laṛ̥a, dull, stupid, weak, lazy).

laṛ̥ f small rounded hill, hillock. 194.7. — Hindzio ćsu laṛ̥ṛ̥er ćsiw mayen at Hindi taking goats up on to that knoll. 196.4.8. (This is reckoned a Sh. word. Cp. Sh. laṛ̥, small hill).

laṛ̥haw x (morning)star. — gowa laṛ̥aw the morning-star. ḍuṛ'unis laṛ̥aw ... ḍuw maśi bi the morning star of youth ... sets. 262.1.

(-ch- IYB. Cp. Sh. loṛ̥i laṛ̥aw the morning-star).

laṛ̥et v. laṛ̥het.

laṛ̥ay paṛ̥ay swaying with hunger and weakness.

laṛ̥an pl. laṛ̥ani dumb. — gfwt laṛ̥an ju.an like a dumb Div. (an idiot — Kho. gadevi — who can't speak properly). 160.20.

laṛ̥pire v. laṛ̥pire.

laṛ̥ N. v. 1. laṛ̥.

laṛ̥am, laṛ̥ap glittering, shining. — laṛ̥am manow to glitter, shine. hayur laṛ̥am mai bi the horse is shining (after being groomed, or with perspiration when galloping in the distance). Ilam + Lam. Cp. Sh. lalam burning brightly).

1. Lam, lawa shining, burning, H. tamak. — Lam ałas to light (fire etc.). 36.15. yfu lam s, ce, ełi light the fire. lam ałum yfu a lighted fire. lam manare to shine, flash. ivkilar kan ralan lam manimi a light shone in his face. 24.2. hard lam manimi lightning flashed. ine sowat lam gwtumas they saw his face shining. 30.18. Cp. 132.6, 134.9,10,12.
   (Cp. Sh. Lam thrrki, Lam hrrki; Khe. lawa, lam).
2. Lam y pain in any part of the head above the throat, catarrh QUB; headache, H. sardard, dard i sirasar IUB. lam atila I am suffering from pain in the head. (Cp. Khe. Lam, burning pain).

Lamas skirt. — Lamas dari as raising her skirt. 230.7. (Cp. Sh. lahan, Pahl. Lamas, Pre. daman).

Lamal*, lamal* -ąg y lap, front skirt. — galamal khirl ełi hold out your skirt (for gifts). alamali hurałali (the child) is sitting on my lap. (Cp. lamali*)

Lam dam biri. IUB.
   1. Pain in any part of the body and in the head. QUB; a disease which causes pain in the joints, H. jorbad dard hurała marag. IUB.
   2. A person who gives trouble, H. taklif dernewala kaya. (Cp. 2. Lam and 1. dam).

Lam jam manare to glitter. 186.2, to be resplendent. — Hunzas gulgamis khwaiyar ranirag galag ragil lam jam mulikam the women of Hunza

247b

[see entry Inl'ts'r, p. 246b, category 66 – Analyst]

000 at festival time putting on coloured clothes become resplendent. (Cp. 1. Lam).

Laŋ moving, shaking. — Laŋ manov v.i. to move, stir. Laŋ omoi.i bi it doesn't move, it is stable, firm. Laŋ oman don't move, keep still. wap ωrda ef... Laŋ oman you have made a promise, don't move, i.e. abide by it. 160.23. Cp. 134.12. Laŋ otas v.t. to move, shift, shake. gafie Laŋ otas to shake the head.

(Cp. Laŋ & Sh. Laŋ berski, Laŋ thorski, & Khe. Laŋ lak).

Lap.

1. Mouthful, morsel. — Lap (or, Lapas) *...atas to put s.t. in s.o's mouth, to feed (a child). Ieŋ Lap a put it in my mouth as it is (i.e. even though it is bitter). 132.17. Kilov Lap e feed the child (with s.t.). ωnlo . . . pfitimots Lap 'etimi he put 3 pieces of bread in its (the calf's) mouth. 132.19. Lap otas to put in one's own mouth. ωur ωpov yur ... dωωm ωur Lap ef'imi that infant put (the infant) that had come out first, in his mouth. 110.4.
2. A portion, half of a flap of bread, field etc.). — Lapas is more than ledas.

(Cp. Sh. Lap, mouthful, morsel, small piece of s.t., half of a flap of bread. Lap thorski, to put in one's mouth).

Laph cf. lephef; Lifef. Only recorded in: Lephef *...amsi thumb.

1. Laŋ naked, uncovered (man, horse etc.). — tan Laŋ stark naked. Laŋ dωω pferi.ar pimo advancing naked she plunged into the pond. 14.6. Cp. 316.7. N. Lar bare, desert (of land).

248a

000 ese ćiṣ tan lax bi that mountain is quite bare. (Cp. Kho. luq, stark naked).

2. laq manaw to shake, tremble. — ete teṇoṣ uyon laq (or, lorza) manimi the whole palace shook. 174.11.
(Cp. Kho. laqalaq, "not being able to walk straight owing to weakness", staggering).

laqbeṣ etas IUB to pound, H. kuṭna. QUB to hammer (a man).

laqpiṣ, pl. laqpiṣiṇ, laqpiæṇ N. y also: laspiṇ handkerchief. 148.24.
(Cp. Sh. lakpiṣ & laspiṣk).

lor.
1. Waggling about; swinging or swaying irregularly.
2. (Of a person) coming empty-handed (because a man who is not carrying a load swings his body and arms as he walks).

lorza shaking. — ete teṇoṣ uyon lorza manimi the whole palace shook.174.11. N. lordza y ague. Prs.

1. las. Only recorded in: ćhuṣiæ las the remains of a cocoon after the removal of the silk. —

2. las IUB without consequence, insignificant, H. biṣaṇa. QUB gave: lal'as, lilis, without rank or dignity, H. biṣaṇa, beṇuṭha.

laspiṇ N. v. laqpiṣ.

laṣ etas to lick. 138.5 ff.
(Cp. Sh. laṣ thorki, to lick).

laṣu -mots gluttonous, glutton, greedy. — laṣuwan bai, bo he, she, is a glutton. laṣumotsik baṇ they are gluttons. jaw laṣumi aso (i.e. laṣu aiyaso) don't call me a glutton. (Related to las).

laṭ damage, loss, H. nuqsan. — laṭṭer ayaiyam I incurred loss.

laṭh'a, pl. laṭhaṇ y cotton cloth, Punj. laṭṭha. — maiyadar laṭṭa sisal cotton material (in which the bride-price is assessed), v. 304.6, also used for shrouds, v. 310.5.

lai.iq. laʿiq, -iśo capable, worthy, proper. Ar. Prs.

-lčin*, pl. -lčumʊts*, x eye. — -lčin pʃuʿt ɛtʌs* to open (one's) eye. -lčin liʿǰ ɛtʌs*, -lčin ɛstʌqai.ʌs* to close (one's) eye. -lčin diʿp ɛtʌs* to wink the eye. -lčin ɛtʌs* to watch, look out; + dat. to watch, keep an eye on s.o. juʿčoma nʊsɛ alčin ɛča baiyʌm saying "you will come" I was watching (for you). 52.18. Cp. 56.10. kiʿnɛ sisər gulčin ɛti watch, keep an eye on, this man. gulčʊmʊtsər bəreʿya ba I am looking at your eyes. 148.14. miʿlčinər dʌltʌs yʿetsʌm we had seen him handsome in our eye(s), i.e. he appeared handsome to us. 122.15. jɛ aiyʌš kɛ uʿŋɛ gulčinər bʌɣərk amʌna ba I have become wicked in the sight of heaven and in your sight. 368.4. mɛn kɛ alčinɛ oʿiʿtsa ba I have seen no one with my eye(s). 268.10. dʊšmaʿyo bʌmʌn uyoʿn jaʿtɛ ulčin ɛčaʿn all my enemies cast (hostile) eyes on me. 364.1. hʌn iʿlčinʌŋɛ sis a one-eyed person. Cp. 90.23.

(V. also s.vv. gəri, nʌna, tʌl).

1. le.i, le, lɛ O! (an exclamation used in addressing a male person or persons, and usually followed by their name or title). — le.i hʌsto ʌštaiyo! O elephant grooms. 76.23. le.i padša! O King! 94.14. Cp. 92.13,27, 164.23,26 etc. padša se.ibai.i "le.i ʌtiʿmi.a?" the king says: "O (you) has he not come?" 76.26. le jʌmaʿʌt, ničen! "O my husband, let us go!" 36.1. lɛ ɛʿi! O, my son! 106.14. čərtɛ duʿyoma lɛ, buwərtɛ duʿyom?

am I to hang on to the cliff or to the water-melon? (le is probably here equivalent to, "you there!", or "look here!"). 000

2. levi -miciŋ y breastwork, H. morča. (Cp. Sh. lɔi, loophole).

levkin but. — ho u xoši etastse dɔγ'u-rskinomAn, levkin ine uyum i mAlolo bAm then they began to make rejoicing, but his elder son was in the field. 373.23. Ar. Prs.

levli o mAjnum name of a constellation in which one star appears to follow another. Ar. Prs.

l'eḍo, pl. leḍomots, leḍutiŋ, leḍišo, bastard. (Cp. Sh. leḍo).

lel, lel lel known, apparent to. — jar lel api I don't know. lel mAnas + dat. to be, become, known to. iner lel me.imi it will be known to him. 28.7. ja jAmaat bAme lel omAnimi of my husband being (alive) it has not become known, i.e. it has not appeared whether my husband is alive. 58.14. ekAtiŋ yare mene lel numAn delumAn ke if anyone becoming aware (of the facts) hits him under the armpits. 110.12. Cp. 16.7. *lel -AtAs to let s.o. know, to make known. yare etome lel aiyetomi he made it not known concerning the burial, i.e. he concealed all traces of the burial. 84.6. lel amortom without letting her know, i.e without her knowledge. 168.3. lel etAs to know, recognise. ise haiyai.iŋ je lel ečam I shall recognise its tokens. 136.1. lel netAn recognising him. 380.3. Cp. Prov. 22. (Cp. Sh. lel).

lelitu IUB, lalitu QUB, blood-stained, H. xum aluda. (Cp. Sh. lel blood. The word is also Sh. in form).

2496

OOO*lifaʸfa*, pl. lifaʸfʌŋ y envelope. Ar. Prs.

liʸk -iŋ, -imiŋ y bribe. — liʸk gʌnʌs, liʸk ɛcyʌs to take a bribe. iʸnər liʸk ɛtai.i, or, iɛhi bai.i he has bribed him, he has given him a bribe. Cp. Prov. 27. (Cp. Sh. lɪk, lik).

lili.'o, -miŋ, -miɛiŋ y violet. — ruʸŋɛ lili.'o wild violet. bʌsi.ulʊm liʸli.'o garden violet. (Cp. Sh. lilo).

liʸm -ʌnts, N. Pl. -aʸints, x arrow-head ("sharp for hunting" N.). — iʸsɛ liʸmɛ iʸlji nɛ kayʌnts bim the arrow-head had barbs (pointing) backwards. 150.22. Cp. 148.17.

(Cp. sɪq. In Hz. both words are said to denote "arrow-head" in general).

liʸo laʸo sparkling, showy, meretricious. — liʸo laʸo maʸl di.ušaʸn Bavlšɪviʸki; yərʊm ju.ʌn šu.a ḍʌŋ maʸl-api the Bolsheviks produce showy goods; it isn't good strong stuff as in former days.

lip ɛtʌs to fling, throw away, throw about. — mʌtʌn lip ɛ throw it far away. bʌkoʸriŋ lip ɛtimi it threw about the turfs. 132.23. iʸmo xʌnjər yʌkʌl lip nɛ flinging his dagger towards him. 380.7. gʊtɛ mʌmu nʌs numʌn lip ɛtʌstsɛ yʌški bila this milk having gone bad ("smelly") is fit to be thrown away. EOL.

(Cp. Sh. lɪp thoʸrki, to throw away).

liʸš closed, shut, (joined together). — aʸlčin liʸš ɛtʌm I closed my eye. sʌndʊqɛ waʸrɪš liʸš bila the lid of the box is shut. uʸlčömʊts uriʸŋʌṭɛ liʸš očaʸn they close the eyes (of the corpses) with their hands. 310.2.

(Cp. Sh. liʸš thoʸrki, to shut, make join).

*-lji behind. This word can take all the Pn.pf.s., a-, gu-, mu-, but in practice appears almost always in the form iʷlji q.v. — aʷlji dosʒʌlčoma you will arrive behind me, i.e overtake me. ja aʷljikʌŋ dʌldi.ɛm bʌm he was standing behind me.

000

loʷi N. -mots x fox.

(Cp. Sh. loʷī female fox).

loṭ, loʷṭ crumpled, wrinkled. — loṭ ɛtʌs v.t. to crumple, to wrinkle (the forehead). loṭ ɛtom crumpled. ufʌṭimots loṭ ɛtomʌn they wrinkled their foreheads, i.e. they frowned.

(Cp. Sh. loṭ, crease).

loṭkrš, pl. x loṭki.ɛnts, y lotki.ʌŋ. crumpled. — loṭki.ʌŋ ɣuyʌŋ wavy (?) hair.

loʷṭo -mots x ball (of yarn, string). — loʷṭo di.uʷlʌs to wind up a ball of thread. gʌšu.ɛ loʷṭo ball of yarn (for woof). (Cp. Sh. loʷṭo).

loʷyo chicken-pox.

loʷyomots N., loʷimots McK, measles. (This word is apparently the plural form of the preceding. There is a difficulty about the names of diseases which are probably not differentiated by the people).

*-lpuʷr -ʌŋ, IUB -iŋ eyelash.

(Probably *-l + buʷr, hair).

*-ltaʷnts x eyebrow, eyebrows. — iltaʷnts hərʌŋolo between his eyebrows. 92.2.

*-ltʌɣʌyʌs, v. iltʌɣʌyʌs, bʌldɛnts ultʌɣʌyomʌn they plastered the verandas.

*-ltʌlʌnʌs, *-ltai-, v.i. to change into, turn into. — aʷltʌlaiyʌm I'll change into . . . iltʌlai bai.i he is turning into . . . aʷltʌlʌnʌm I changed into . . . iʷnɛ iʷ ai.inʌq iʷltʌlʌnʌm sɛ.ibaʷn his son had turned into a marmot, they say. 254.2.

The corresponding transitive notion is sometimes expressed by pfər ɛtʌs.

250 b

(Cs. *-ʌltʌlʌnʌs. Cp. tʌlɛ·nʌs, which appears to be a simplified form lacking the *-l prefix. Cp. also dʊltʌlʌnʌs). 000

*-ltʌli.ʌs, *-ltʌličʌ-, v.t. to swathe, wind up in (swaddling clothes). — gʊltʌli.ʌsʊlo gʌp jikʌnʌnɛ gʊltʌli.ɛ baiyʌm when strapping you (as infant) up I had wound you up with a hide strap. 158.4. tališʊlo bʌγɛriŋ nikiɛn iltʌličʌn putting (dry) cowdung in the swaddling clothes they wind him up in them. (V. s.v. tʌliš).

*-lt'ʌltər -iŋ y.

1. Foreleg of quadruped from shoulder to fetlock. — i·ltʌltəriŋɛ guč front edge of legs and shoulder. 338.1.
2. Shoulder of horse. — hʌγʊrɛ ilt'ʌltər the horse's shoulder.
3. Human arm (sometimes). — mʌlt'ʌltəriŋɛ gʊkɛ bitsʌŋ "your arms are these!", meaning "you have become fat!"

*-ltʌnʌs to pound (x objects). — gʊsɛ baiyu iltʌn pound this salt. EOL. hʌni (x pl.) ʊ·ltʌn, n'ʊ·ltʌn pound the kernels, having pounded the kernels.

(Cp. 1. tʌnʌ·s, used when the object is y).

*-ltʌnts, pl. *-ltai.iŋ y the whole leg (of man or animal). — hʌγʊrɛ i·ljі i·ltai.iŋ tha·rko bitsʌn the horse's hindlegs are long. i·ltai.iŋ tha·rko.ʌn bai.i he is a long-legged man.

1. *-lt'aiyʌs, to follow.

Only recorded in the Ppa forms: i·tsi nʊlt'ʌn following him. gʊtsi nʊlt'ʌn following thee. ʊtsi nʊlt'ʌn following them. 30.10.

(Cp. 2. taiyʌs of which it probably represents an earlier stage, the l- having been preserved owing to the Ppa. prefix nv-). 000

2. '*-ltaiyʌs, *-ltʌč-, *-ltæč-, Impv. *-lta, Ppa. *n-ltʌn, to put on (foot-gear, when x objects). — hu·čo i·ltaiyʌs to put on one pabboo (boot). hu·čo u·ltaiyʌs to put on a pair of pabboos. bɛsʌn i·ltačʌn what shall we put on (our feet)? 132.5. čʌpʌlimʊts ultʌ·mi (or, ultʌmi) he put on the sandals. 28.16, 32.4.

The forms of the Ppa. may be noted. When the object is x sg. it is n'iltʌn; when it is.
x pl. it is n'ultʌn; when it is.
y pl. it is nʊlt'ʌn (from 3. taiyʌs).

So: hu·čo kɛ ta.očiŋ . . . n'ultʌn, nʊlt'ʌn putting on the pabboos (x pl.) and putting on the leg-bandages (y pl.). 130.10, 132.2.

Negative:
(hu·čo) e·ltaiyʌm I did not put on (a pabboo). (čʌplimʊts) o·ltaiyʌm I did not put on (sandals).

Similarly, Impv.: e·lta, o·lta.

(Cp. 3. taiyʌs, used when the object is y. Cp. also '*-ʌltaiyʌs).

*-ltin, pl. *-lt'i·yo, x.

1. Bone.
2. Blood-relation. — jɛ·imo altin bai.i he is my blood-relation. u·imo ult'i·yo ba·n they are their blood-relations.

(This is an *-l-prefix form of tin, bone. Cp. *-ltur and tur, horn. V. § 128. II.).

*-ltʊlʌs, *-ltʊlj-, Impv. *-ltʊl, Ppa. n'-ltʊl to saddle, equip (a horse). — hʌγʊr i·ltʊl saddle the horse. hʌγʊr e·ltʊl don't saddle the horse. i·ltʊljʌm, i·ltʊlʌm I shall saddle it, I saddled it. (hʌγʊr) γɛnɪše tili.eŋ gɛnɪše ta·bʌŋɛ ooo ka niltvl equipping the horse with a golden saddle and a golden bridle. 4.17. Alqaš wʌzir niltvl itsuʷmʌn B. Jʌmhuʷr hiŋtsər saddling Alqash Wazir they led him off to B. J.'s door. 78.23.

251 b

*-ltumʌl -iŋ y.

1. Ear. — aʷltumʌlər gi get into my ear. 132.12. dʌγu.i gʌp . . . m'iltumʌl juwʌn γɪrγit mai.i bi raw hide . . . becomes soft like one's (lit. our) ear. 128.20, 130.6.

   With the suffix -či, -čər. aʷltumʌlči čur bi there is a knife in my ear. 134.1. Pʌŋču n'inin iltumʌlčər giʷmi P. proceeded and got into its ear. 132.13.

2. *-ltumʌl ɛtʌs to listen. — ja bərər gult'umʌl ɛti listen to what I say. mʌltuʷmʌl ɛtina iʷnɛ bɛsʌn čʌγa ɛʷčai.i. Nimʌn ultuʷmʌl ɛʷčər listen to what he says. They went off to listen. 126.17. Cp. 38.12, 40.18, 96.11,13, 128.14, 218.7, 248.5.

3. Priming-pan of matchlock gun. — tobʌqɛ iʷltumʌl priming-pan. iʷltumʌlʌtɛ miʷli.ɛŋ priming-powder.

*-ltuʷr, -i.ɛŋ, -i.ʌŋ y horn. — bušoʷšo.ɛ iʷlt'uʷri.ɛŋ the calf's horns. 104,22. Cp. 138.23. gutɛ γɛnɪšɛ gʊltuʷrʌtɛ with this golden horn of yours. 132.20.

(This is an *-l-prefix form of 1. tuʷr q.v.).

*-lt'ʊr, *-lt'uʷro mʌnaʷs to imitate. — uʷɛ kɛ Bʊlčʊtoʷko iltuʷro nʊma they too imitating B.-206.8. γa gayu iltʊr numʌn the crow initating the chikor (partridge). Prov. 38.

*-lturʌs, *-ltʊrč-. V. s.v. iʷltʊrʌs.

*-ltʊs, *-ltuʷs, pl. *-lt'ušiŋ & tuš'ʌŋ y burying, burial, interment. — gutə miltuʷsɛ diš this burial place, graveyard, of ours. 112.3. ultuʷsɛ diš their burial ground. 112.21. iʷltus ˈɛʷtʌs to bury him.

000

lukʌn a little, a small quantity; slightly. — čʌp lukʌn gʌn get a little meat. lukʌn šʌpiʷk a little bread (less than lʌp). čumʌr lukʌn ʌči give me a little iron. 172.17. Cp. 132.16. lukʌn ɣi.aʷd a little more. 170.5. lukʌn awʌrʌm I have become, i.e. I am, a little tired. lukʌn gəruʷrum a little hot.

(Cp. Sh. lukuk a little. Sh. -uk (← ɛk) corresponds to Bu. -ʌn).

luʷlˈɛʷš (ɛtʌs) weeping, mourning for and praising the dead, H. gɣrya, maʷtrm.

luʷm y strength, power, resources, H. ṭaʷqʌt, quʷwʌt, čaʷra.

In the texts also used ironically for weakness, wretched state, powerlessness, H. kʌm ḥaiṣiyʌt, ˈaʷjɣzi, laʷčaʷri.

ja luʷm kɛ hʌwaʷl gutɛ bila my strength (i.e. weakness) and circumstances are this (that you see). 136.11,20, 138.26. Cp. 120.27. (Cp. biʷluʷm, weak).

luq, loq, -ˈʌnts, -uts, x rag, rags, ragged clothes. — luqʌn iyoʷlai.i he has put on rags. luqots uyoʷljaʷn they dress in rags. luqa dumaʷn yoʷlai.i he has put on rags and tatters.

(Cp. Kho. luq, rag, rags, very old clothes).

M.

ma you (pl.). The base in most of the oblique cases is maʷm-, mʌm-. For the case forms see § 119.

ma-, mʌ- prefixal agglutinative form of ma, your, you (pl.). Used also independently with some case suffixes, e.g. maʷr to you; mʌtsimo from you. V. § 123 & 127.

m'aγυn, mʌγυn, pl. m'aγuyo x. 000

1. Bead, necklace. — diŋ maγυn 1. a blue bead. 2. a male mallard (= "blue-green necklace"?)
2. Spool, reel. — sərɛ maγυn reel of thread. hi·skɛ mʌγυn spool used as pulley wheel on loom. ḍo·ḍo.ɛ maγυṇ Adam's apple.

(Cp. Sh. ma·ni, ma·nɛ, round bead, necklace; GB (ḍoḍāī) māṇi, Adam's apple).

mahr, mahər, ma·r, mʌhər y payment due from bridegroom to the bride's father at marriage. — tsundo rupi.a ma·r (or, mahər) ɛ·skərša·n they fix the bride-payment at five rupees. 304.7. V. 302.17 ff. 583

The cloth of which the Rs. 5 represents the price was the du·kə pʌči, v. s.v. du·k. Ar. Prs.

makuči y. 000

Noun and Adj.: middle, centre.

Adv. and Postp.: in the middle of. trʌŋ makuči yʌmi it hit dead in the centre. makuči(m?) mama mother's middle sister. makuči i·nɛ the middle one (of 3 brothers). 260.9. makuči hʌn pfəri.ɛn bi in the middle was a pond. 12.13. dəri.a makuči hurυ·timi he sat down in the middle of the river. 176.2. bʌsi makuči in the middle of the garden. EOL. sa ay'ʌš makuči yɛr di·mi the sun has come up (forward) into the middle of the sky. EOL. [601] makučim, N. pl. -išo, adj. middle, central. — makučim i·sɛ ɛ·sʌl look at the middle one (of three ibex), 148,7.5. Cp. 148.5,7,8.

(It is doubtful if the word is a nominative form. The -či may be the -tsi, -či suffix).

ma·l x property, movable property, chattels. — gusɛ hʌɣʊr inɛ ma·l bi this horse is his property, belongs to him. da ma·l trʌŋ o·timi then he apportioned the movable property among them. 112.4. uyo·nər ma·l u·mi he gave property to all of them. 112.5. i·nɛ tɛ·ŋʊʂʊlo bimʌn ma·l uyo·n gʌti o·timi he made them collect all the property that was in the palace. 174.18. u·ŋɛ ma·ltsʊm bɛsʌn ja·r trʌŋʊlo ju·ʂi bi kɛ jo give me whatever of your property comes to me as my share. 372.3. Ar. Prs. 000 ma·l ha·l property. 372.5. (Ar.).

ma·lto the day after the day after tomorrow; the third day in the future.

ma·lu·m known. — ma·lu·m api it is not known. 384.17. Ar. Prs.

ma·ma, mʌma, -tsəro hf mother, maternal aunt. —je.imo ma·ma my own mother (not, stepmother). dʌmʌn ma·ma one's own mother (not, stepmother). jʌmi·p ma·ma stepmother. mi mʌma my mother. 156.20, 158.14. se ma·ma O mother! 212.12, 264.11. mamʌtsəro mothers! 38.11, 364.12. ma·mamo mu·lʊs mother's brother, maternal uncle. ja ma·mamo mo·ço my mother's sister, my maternal aunt. joʈ ma·ma, uyu·m ma·ma, makʊčim ma·ma mother's younger, older, middle, sister. 601 ma·mər Dat. of ma.

mamʌtsʊm Abl. of ma. — mamʌtsʊm iljʊm from behind you. 000

mamai.i yourselves (corroborative Pron.), v. § 142. — ma mamai.i ni·n you yourselves go.

mamu, v. mʌmu, milk.

ma·mu·li ordinary, usual. — mamu·li gʌtʊŋ ordinary, clothes. Ar. Prs.

mamu·ʂi, mamʊši, mʌmʊši, mʊm'ʊši,

000 -mɔts x lamb (female, or sex not known). 66.20, 68.1.

*-m'ʌmɔt, pl. *-m'ʌmɔčiŋ y breast (female), nipple (male or female), teat, H. pɪstʌn. — mumʌmɔtɛ ḍɔḍ'uʌro (a woman's) teat.

manʌs v. mʌnʌs.

manʌni y meaning. — gɔtɛ bɔrɛ bɛsʌn manʌni bila? what is the meaning of this (phrase, etc.)? gɔtɛ ʌlji.ɛ manʌni akɛʌya ba I do not know the meaning, interpretation, of this dream of mine. 84.16. Ar. Prs.

manʌukɔr well-bred (?), courteous (?), H. ašrʌf. (The exact meaning is uncertain. The word also exists in Sh. mʌnuʌkɔr, courteous peaceable, quiet (of a person)).

There is also in Sh. the verb mʌnuḉoʌrki, to quiet down (after anger).

map'er, mapɛr, -tiŋ, N. mafɛr -išo, old, elderly, mature (of man or horse); old man. — map'er gumʌna you have become old. hin mapɛr gusʌ bom there was an elderly woman. 38.15. hin map'erʌnɛ ha bilum there was the house of an old man. 22.14 ff. Cp. 24.22 ff., 28.7, 32.18, 146.25, 262.22, 286.16. N. ja aʌuy mafɛr bai my father is an old man. (Cp. Sh. mapɛr, mʌf'er).

1. maʌr (y) vengeance, revenge, retaliation. — maʌr gʌnʌs + Gen. to take vengeance on behalf of, to take revenge for . . . maʌr gʌnʌs + Abl. to take vengeance on s.o. maʌrulo maʌr gʌnimi he took vengeance in revenge. Sɪfʌt nesqʌn yuʌwɛ maʌr ɛtimi he avenged his uncle by killing S. itɛ mʌʌrulo ja esqʌnʌm in revenge for that I killed him. 266.13. maʌr ooo gami.as to pay compensation. je wŋe mavr sčam I will avenge you. 146.21. (From the idioms it appears probable that the exact meaning of the word must be something like "compensation").

2. mavr y death, H. maut, ajal. (Cp. mavran).
3. mavr v. mahr.
4. mavr Pn.pf. ma + ər to you, for you (pl.).

mavran y death, H. maut. (Cp. Punj. marán, Sh. mavran).

mavri tax paid in turns in kind, supplies given according to roster without payment to a ruler or official, — kulto jaṭər mavri.e galt dimi today the turn has come to me for (giving) "mavri". 280.7,9. Cp. 282.2,7. (Cp. Sh., Kho. mavri).

mariŋ, mərin fine, good, superior. — mariŋ sikime of fine silk. 118.5. mariŋ sis fine men, superior folk. 82.5, 120.11, 238.10, 336.3. bust mariŋ mariŋ talo gəšinants seven very fine women. 180.9.

m'arvč, marvč x pl. pepper; capsicum. — marvč bałərum bi.en the pepper is hot. gyakum marvč Kashmiri pepper, black pepper. matum marvč black pepper. marvče təriŋičiŋ chillies. (Cp. Sh. mavruč).

mavul y toll, tax. Ar. Prs.

mavum h infant. Ar. Prs.

1. mavš *-atas to massage, hand-rub. — oṭiŋ mavš a(ti) massage my feet (for me). (Cp. Sh. mavš th.).
2. mavš etas to boil, scald (milk), to heat water, meat etc. — ite mamu mavš ne scalding the milk. 322.5. mašuvq, pl. mašuvtiŋ, pl. lovers. 358.6. Ar. Prs.

254 b maʿtam mourning. — maʿtam stas to mourn. Ar. Prs. ○○○ maʿṣi x a kind of earth. — baʿrdam maʿṣi red plaster, or wash, made from a kind of earth found in Irshad.

(Cp. Sh. maʿte, a kind of white earth; moṣi, white earth, chalk).

maʿu stas to mew (of cat). 174.12. — N. maʿu maʿu stas to mew.

maṣhi y honey. — maṣi.s yuṛigṛṣ honeycomb. (Cp. Sh. maṣhi, honey).

madad, maddat y help, aid. — madad aṣiʿcoma will you give me help? will you help me? doroʿyo doimaʿyo oukanasor madad iciči bim the stick would give him help in killing enemies. 28.18. wʿyisom maddat dwmarčam I shall demand help from you, I shall ask you for help. 22.8. Ar. Prs.

madrasa y school. Ar. Prs.

maduv, madov, -iṣ y manger, standing place for horses; EOL trough, H. thaw, ayzov. — kayuv madav horse's manger. Cp. 188.5. yuiṛiṣ madav trough of mill. (Cp. Sh. madav).

magor.

1. But. — ičo kan hanisar čeri ev aiowis . . . magor zafa ka aptin don't open the lock of that one garden for him . . . but don't vex him. 12.1. ja ka wordu stimi, magor pur' ai.stimi he made me a promise, but he did not fulfil it. Cp. 22.1, 264.22, 370.8.

2. In fact, H. wayʿi. — ikan wʿyo goto dwro natan horwin, magor ja gugotam you really did this and (then) eat (here), in fact I saw you. 118.19.

(The exact notion of the whole sentence is rather uncertain and with it the force of magor, though it was explained as wuy'i. Compare the similar difficulty in determining the sense of ama, v. s.v.). Pra. 000 mage.i N., McK & GR, boil (medical). (Cp. Hz. mage.i).

mayo v. mayo.

makaram, moram -tiq; N. maram -tiq, -ilo, confidential servant, servant in position of trust. — hiqatum makaramtiq doorkeepers, ushers, "chaprasis". 4.2. Cp. 88.2. Ar. Pra.

majit masjid, mosque. 296.7. (Cp. Sh. majid). (Ar. Pra.).

majlis x & y assembly, meeting. — ivo majlimolo haman uv sisi the people in the assembly. 90.24. Ar. Pra.

makor y trick, base stratagem. — gondo makarofo deluman they killed your brother by a trick. 154.7. Ar. Pra.

makorion h. swindler, cheat, rogue. — makorion dimanimi he has been born a swindler, cheat 88.11. (Ar. Pra.).

makorkij h. cheat, swindler; adj. swindling. — makorkijon hoi.i he is a swindler. (Ar. Pra.).

makui.i x pl., double pl. makui.onto.

Indian corn, maize (growing crop and grain).

mal -oq, EOL -iq, y field. — malor hin ivo niven taking a son of his to the field. 252.1. uyuwo ŷ ivo malolo hin the elder son was in his field. 268.18. Cp. 373.22. thamo ginani maltom dihemor when they have brought in the Thom's "ginani" from the field. 328.5. mal'oqolo in the fields. 372.12, 386.10. tirik mal-olem (i.e. malolom) dorwman they brought in the dagger from the field. 198.14.

Cp. 196.9,10, 246.11,18, 282.8,12, 343.12.

000 malaq elas v.t. overturn, roll over; to bend (permanently), to wrap up in. — dan malaq eli turn over, roll over, the stone (A variant of malaq).

mal'aq, occurs with the verbs niyas, -ayas* and manaw.

1. malaq niyas to fall over. — tirdi malak niw bila ke . . . if the dagger has fallen over (and is not sticking upright in the ground). 198.12, 218.9.
2. *malaq -ayas to overturn (a thing or man), to fell (tree). — ide tirli malak 'ewman they felled the walnut tree. 200.6.

   (For -ayas* officiating as the Ca. of niyas v. § 238 and entry under -ayas*).
3. malaq manaw to cross over (behind a ridge of hill). — Xwmale malak manimi he crossed over the Kh. mountain. 212.16.

   (Cp. Sh. malak berki, to fall down. malik, malak, 'firiji turning round, turning back).

malmal y muslin. x an article of muslin. Fra.

maltariq, maltaraq, v. maltaj.

maltaj, pl. maltariq, malt'aray, maltaraq y butter. This is kept in blocks, or lumps, hence:

kan maltajan a lump of butter. 314.15. ferwman maltaraq ten lumps of butter. 314.13. V. also pedewi. ime maltaje dalale ilam he had cooked them in oil of butter. 130.21. maltaj thewa bila the butter is fresh. herwman maltaj bila? how much butter is there? pfute maltaj mushroom (lit. Devil's butter), pl. pfute maltaraq.

1> Cp. 349.1, 384.8.

256 a

2[see supplement to corrigenda et addenda, category IIb, p. 595 - Analyst]

000 *-maltaa, *-malt-, Impv. *-malta to abuse, revile. There is possibly a parallel form: maltaa, maltat-. The only evidence is two isolated forms: (i)maltaatai Nz., and maltaa in: maltaa ḥwu api, yuaikst bila to give abuse is not a good thing, it is evil. Nz.

Of *-maltaa the following forms were given:

gumalda la I abuse thee.
imaltam I abused him.
amaltaimi he abused me.
je ayamalta don't abuse me.
ín emalta don't abuse him.
ín amamalta don't abuse her.
gwkar ḥwe imalta? why do you abuse (outrage?) thyself? 356.4.

maltaij y abuse. — gudraki maltaij female abuse, i.e. terms of abuse used by women.

malyam, malḥam y ointment. — gwlafe malḥam 'edilas to apply ointment on the wound.

MAMA v. MAMMA. 60.12.

MAMA, MAMM, -dig, -maig; N. -dag y milk. H. dwdk, ḥiw. — dumamum MAMA (-maig) coagulated milk (in a bowl), (-dig) (in a skin). Nz. MAMA.o gfori a pond of milk. 14.6. (MAMA.o 18.9. n.). Diramaitiy tair wwlkots mamu ḥwa so the D. for four days milking their goats. 322.10. ite mamu marj so scalding the milk. 322.5. kilwa mamu fat ettas to wean a child. hinu kilwa mamu fat atam baiá this boy is weaned.

862 Boys are weaned after 3 years, girls after 2 years. To facilitate this the teats are blackened, or pepper is put on them.

mamu stas (past tenses) to be in an advanced stage of pregnancy; to be big with young (of animals). mamu stom pregnant. jakunens mamu ne (or, stom) bim there was a donkey which was big with young. 118.3. gusa bu'a mamu stom (or, sti) bi this cow is pregnant. 186.5. Cp. 64.25. 000

. The same idea is presented in regard to a woman in:
ixakinmotse mamu bilom there was milk on his daughter-in-law, i.e. she was with milk, approaching child-birth. 100.3.

Shins formerly considered milk impure. It is said that still shikaris going out to hunt will not take milk or beef because it will anger the poris ("fairies"). Cp. 286.2, 338.4. 262

1. man -ants x an earth platform, sleeping and sitting platforms in house, dais (on which the élite sit at public functions, polo-matches etc.); mound (over grave), H. čaburtra. — tham dusok jataqs manafs horušai.i the Tham dismounting takes his place on the platform at the place of public meeting. 338.4. Cp. 340.2. Pl. manants 12.13. mazars man the mound over a grave. 82.15. 000
2. man x "a hard thing found in a goat's inside and used as medicine"; IUB. antidote to poison, H. man, Prs. zahr-muhra.

mana, mani.a prohibited, forbidden. — mana estas to prohibit him. mana estas to prohibit them. gute čaya mana stas bila this affair, talk, is to be forbidden. Ar. Prs.

[ma.n'ava, mai-, Impv. ma.n'a, Ppa. ma.n'an, ma.n'a. OOO [*-ma.nas, -mai-, Impv. gma.n'an, Ppa. a'-ma.n.

To be, become, H. Arma, hojana.

The parts of the two forms of the verb are given in §§ 276—277 and § 278 respectively. The variations may be explained by the difference in the position of the accent. When the accented negative prefix ga- is added to manava, the latter assumes forms similar to those of *-manas.

*-manas is used only with animate, and usually only with human, subjects. It takes the negative prefix a-.

manava can be used with every kind of subject and takes only the negative prefix ga-.

For the part played by manava and *-manas in forming compound verbs v. §§ 262—264.

The following examples roughly illustrate the scope of the verb:

a. To be.

mar did ormaimi there will be no room for us. 14.1. Cp. 142.6. Pagro ho maibai? how is P.? 126.14. hoor hairora gamai ha? why are you perturbed? 118.12. aqam ha.ora ha.manamo she was the sweet food. 96.4. horamas gamiq valiv mamas . . . dga.aimi after being ill for some days he recovered. Cp. 16.6,8,10, 138.15, 144.24.

+ Gen. To belong to:

gaas wqi mai.i hi.a, ma mai-hi? is this yours or is it ours? 104.3. ast'amolo ja mai-hi . . . astamolo wqir mai.imi in law it is mine . . . in law it belongs to thee. 104.4.

000 b. + Adj. or Adv., or their equivalents. To become.

Most of the combinations classified as compound verbs are referable to this heading:

je hurt xud ωωωωω I have become very pleased. 4.10. *hurt yil ωωωω going to become of us? what are we to do? 126.16. Cp. 123.5, 206.5.

d. To become (absolute) + to come into existence, occur, take place, be completed (of time), elapse.

ṭep mavimi night became, i.e. it became night. 38.1 gow mavimi it became dawn, dawn came. 42.22. Cp. 118.7, 123.2. hwile ja ovow mavimi today peace has come to me, I have attained peace of mind. 8.9. ovowdas woman, ile zovowdaiowa kas dabowas mawas . . . a cloud coming into being, and from that cloud a drop of water coming into being . . . 106.16. hwl ne gow mavimi a cry came out (from her inside), there came a cry. 108.9. wula dayuwi mavimi it became midday with them. 122.8.

+ Dative. To befall, come to, come into possession of.

ele ma jow mavimi that (land) has now come into my possession. 114.27. jow halowa mawile a calamity has befallen me. 116.16. ja gow mawiji! may respite come to you! 112.2. wuje lawat mawiji may curses fall on you! 152.2.

e. To proceed to (do, etc.), be about to, begin to.

sandaj tag elor mawawas they proceeded to break up the box. 24.10. lowowas gwaiaj wawas ewaw (or, ewal) wawas dyawimi for several days having been about to die, he recovered. gelawas mavimi (the child) began to walk. 244.1.

In the last, however, gelawas may rather be the noun agent: he became a walker.

Similarly in the preceding example ϩⲣⲁⲓ ⲛⲓⲙⲁⲛ may be: having become a dicer, a dying person. 000

f. To be necessary (to do s.t. or, for s.t. to be done). V. § 401.

ϩⲁⲛⲟ ⲁⲛⲟⲗⲟ ⲛⲓⲙⲁⲓ ⲗⲁ when it has become necessary for the Them to go anywhere. 348.3. Cp. 252.17.

Reference may be made to some of the less common forms and their uses:

The "Conditional". V. §§ 313 & 351. Only the form of the 3rd. sg. of ⲙⲁⲣⲉ has been recorded. It means "(it) would be, would become, would have been, would have become", and similarly substituting "should", for "would".

This form, ⲙⲁⲓⲙⲉ, is analogous to ⲇⲉⲗⲉⲙⲉ the 3rd. sg. Conditional of ⲇⲉⲣⲉ, and to ⲥⲧⲁⲙⲉ the 1st. sg. Cond. of ⲥⲧⲁⲓ (allowing for the difference of person).

It has only been recorded three times:

ϭⲱⲣⲙⲓ ⲁⲩⲥⲧⲁⲛⲁⲩ ⲁⲩⲣ ⲙⲁⲓⲙⲉⲛⲁⲩ ϩⲓⲛⲁ . . . ϩⲓⲣⲉ . . . ϥⲁⲓ ⲇⲱⲙⲓ it would be near to 10 o'clock (when) this man's turn came. 39.1. ϫⲉ ⲛⲁⲓ ⲃⲓⲃⲓⲟⲩ ⲇⲉⲓⲟⲩⲁⲛ ϩⲁⲛ ⲩⲱⲛⲓ ⲙⲁⲓⲙⲉⲛⲁⲩ . . . I had fired one (and) there should be (only) one hole. 102.26. ⲇⲉⲩⲗⲉ ϫⲁⲓ ⲁⲛⲟⲩ ⲛⲁⲓ ⲛⲁⲓⲙⲉ ⲉⲡⲱⲙⲓ ⲙⲁⲓⲙⲉⲛⲁⲩ . . . if you had left me alone for a little my brother's body would all have become of iron. 110.8.

The Present Base + -ⲉⲣ. V. § 406. The form from ⲙⲁⲣⲉ is: ⲙⲁⲓⲣⲉⲣ, ⲙⲁⲓⲁⲣ.

ⲇⲉⲩⲱⲛⲓ ϥⲁⲓ ⲙⲁⲓⲣⲉⲣ ϩⲓⲁⲣ ⲙⲁⲓⲙⲓ the flour was on the point of being exhausted, of giving out. ϩⲓⲓ ⲙⲁⲓⲁⲣ ⲙⲓⲁⲣ to go to other condolences.

sa buv mayav ni·mi the sun has gone to set, is near setting. EOL. 000

The Short Forms of the Preterite. V. § 314.

Sg. 1. amana.

Sg. 2. mana and guman'a (but these may be 2nd. sg. Perf.).

Sg. 3. xy man'i.

Pl. 3. x manion. 282.24.

Pl. 3. y mani.

je ism amana I became blind. 360.6. yu· ku mana ke ... if you associated with a crow ... Prov. 8. beruman jo·tum man'i ku ferruman ... as much as came from me, i.e. as much as I could, so much ... beruman dwiq man'i ikkamatiq ... aiy'eriu some years have passed (that) they do not celebrate the Ṡ., i.e. for some years past they have not celebrated the Ṡ. 229.7. Cp. 356.6, 358.1.

The -j Forms.

These are: for manav: manij, for *-manas: *-manj, *-manja.

For the negative of manav, viz. amanas the form is: amanj.

Illustrations of the use of these forms will be found in § 357.

Used independently they express:

a. Various degrees of desire, rising to will and command.

b. Moral necessity or obligation (+ infinitive).

guyajum gurbaru amanja may I be thy sacrifice! 62.19. Kayur ki kin gati tray umanjan ... Kanjil yfaru manijan may the horse and he together split in two, and the ashes be scattered. 150.12. gute duro etas gumanj you ought to, or must, do this. Na. manij may be used in an impersonal way: mato uru niyas 000 manis now you should go, you ought to go or may go. Nz. gots duro elas manis it is incumbent on s.o. to do this, this is to be done. Nz. manis occurs frequently in dependence on xa, up to, till. go. manis xa till dawn comes.

The Infinitive and Noun Agent Forms. These are manus and -manas, and their principal meanings are:

a. Verbal Noun: being, becoming.

b. Noun Agent: one who is, one who is going to be.

For illustrations of a. v. §§ 393. a, b; 395. b, d; 396—7; 400, 401. e. Of b. v. § 403.1, 3. a, b.

The Static Participle. The forms are: manum, -manum.

The principal meanings are:

a. Adjectival: (in a state of) being, or having become.

For illustrations v. § 379. a. e.

b. Optative: may (it etc.) become! v. § 380.

c. Verbal noun: being, becoming, v. §§ 382, 385, 387.

NOTE.

-manas is to be distinguished from -amanas to be able.

Except in the 1st sg. and 2nd pl. they are differentiated by the forms of their pa.pf.:

a-, gu-, i-, ma- etc. belong to -manas.
a-, go-, e-, mo- etc. belong to -amanas.

The latter are regularly long or accented (but in the texts the mu- and u- prefixed to -manas have occasionally been recorded as mo- and o-).

In the 3rd. sg. m. and in the 3rd. pl. h the negative prefix with -manas yields forms resembling the 000 corresponding positive forms from *-AMANAŞ, e.g.

emai.imi he will not become, and he will be able.

omAnomAn they did not become, and they were able.

Again there is the 3rd. pl. h of mAnaʷs with the negative prefix oʷ-, oʷmAnomAn.

mAnç̌, manç̌, pl. maʷn̥ y adze. — gAgi maʷn̥ tools (axe, adze, saw etc.). Cp. 308.2.

mAnḍaʷq, mindaʷq x crane (bird). (Cp. Kho. mAnḍaʷx, heron).

mAn'i 3rd. sg. x and y, and 3rd. pl. y Pret. of mAnaʷs.

mAni'ṣ v. mAnaʷs.

mAnoṭiki y pl. grain ground specially for a wedding or feast (mAnoṭ). — ho gərər mAnoṭiki doʷčaʷn then they grind the "mAnoṭiki" for the wedding. 300.1.

*-mAnṣ, -mAnṣa v. mAnaʷs.

*-mAntsa, -mAntsi h sg. & pl. helping, aiding; helper (in work, fight, game etc.).

The pn.pf. refers to the person helped.

jaʷka AmAntsi mAni help thou me. jaʷka AmAntsa mAnin help ye me. ji uʷn̥ (or, uʷŋər) gumantsa maiyAʷm I'll help you. Alqaši menAn eʷka imAntsi itsuʷAma had Alqash taken anyone with him as helper. 82.22.

mAnts.hil y whey (boiled to make rAxpiʷn).

mAnuwafe.

For: mAnuwai + Afe 3rd. sg. perf. of mAnaʷs + Afe. 378.11.

For: mAnuwa + Afe 2nd. sg. perf. of mAnaʷs + Afe. 380.6.

(V. § 407. Perhaps these forms contain only the impersonal base form of ba).

mʌnzuʷr accepted by, acceptable to. — xudaʷr mʌnzuʷr mʌnimi it has been acceptable to, i.e. accepted by God. 42.7. Ar. Prs. 000 mʌq y pain (rheumatic, in the sinews or nerves, rʌg. QUB). — aβčiŋulo mʌqʌn gi bila lumbago has settled in my back, loins. EOL. mʌq aʷčila I am suffering from rheumatic pains. QUB. mʌq tsʰhoʷr dušila rheumatic pains quickly go away(?). QUB.

(Cp. jʌk, which is said to be due to cold).

mʌqmɛʷs leap, bound, buck, Punj. čhaʷl. — hik mʌqmɛʷsʌn ˈɛta give a buck. 132.21. mʌqmɛʷs dɛlʌs to caracole.

mʌqso h. pl. a section of population, y share, allotment (of obligatory labour). — hik mʌqso, one share; alti mʌqso two shares. 631

In Hunza proper the population is divided into five sections, each of which bears one share of rʌjaʷki (obligatory labour). These are:

1. Baltit. 2. Ganish. 3. Altit. 4. Hindi. 5. Towants (the "New Villages" from Haidarabad to Murtaza.abad).

In Gujhal there are 2 sections each bearing one share: 1. Galmit, Ghulkin and Pfaso. 2. Khaibar to Irshad and Misgar.

The latter share is called: bʌβ tʌlˈenum mʌqso.

mʌra -miŋ y storehouse on roof. 000

1. mərʌʷq *-ʌtʌs, to twist, wring. — gʌtu mərʌʷk ɛtʌs to wring out (wet) cloth. moʷβ mərʌʷk nɛ twisting her neck, i.e. turning her face away. 52.2. oʷβ mərʌʷk no (she) twisting, wringing, their necks (for them). 206.10. (Cp. Sh. mərʌʷk thoʷzki, to twist v.t.).

261 a

2. mərɑ·q y dysentery. — mərɑ·qɛ bi.ai.i the malady of dysentery. mərɑ·q ɑ·čila, ɛ·čila I am, he is, suffering from dysentery. V. § 261. II. 000

(This word is no doubt the same as 1. mərɑ·q, cp. the Persian pi·č and pi·čɪš).

mərɑk'a x & y assembly, council, court; place of audience, H. dərbɑ·r, mɑjlɪs. — mərɑka bila, mərɑka ɛtɑ·n there is an assembly. they have held an assembly. Cp. 4.12. bɑdša mərɑkɑ·r du·simi the king went out to the assembly. 42.24. i·sɛ mərɑkɑ·ulo Pɑʒču . . . bɑm P. was present in that assembly. 120.4. mərɑkɑ·ulo hʊrw·čɑ·nɑn they took their seats in the assembly. 44.1. ɑma gʊsɛ mərɑkɑ·ulo gʊ·r ayɛša ba but I won't tell you it in this public assembly. 84.18. Cp. 76.26, 78.8, 82.6, 138.12,14. mərɑkɑ·ulʊm sis the people of the court, assembly. Cp. 4.12. mərɑkɑ·tsʊm from the assembly, court. 120.17.

(Cp. Sh. mərɑka king's court. Probably Ar. mɑ'rɑka).

mərɑm v. mɑhɑrɑm.

mərɑq -ičin y bend, twist, circuit. — mərɑkɑnʊlo nʊtɑγɑn hiding at a bend (in the road). 122.20. i·tɛ mərɑktsʊm du·sin coming out from that bend. 122.23. tʊm gɑnɑnɛ nu·nin mərɑkɑnɛ (or, mərɑkɑntsʊm) yər dʊwɑšɑmɑn going by another road, by (n[illegible]ng) a circuit(?) they came out ahead of him. 122.3.

(A variant of mərɑ·q. Cp. Sh. mərɑk bo·rki, to return, to cross over a hill pass, cp. mɑlɑq).

mər'ɑqʊts, mərɑqʊts, y cheating, swindling, tricking. — jɛ mər'ɑqʊts atsi adɛlimi he swindled me. mərɑqʊts

261 b

000 ortimi he deceived them, tricked them.

mərˈʌqʊtskrɨ̆ cheat, swindler. — mərʌqʊtskrɨ̆ʌn bai.i he is a cheat.

-mərʌyʌs-, -mərʌč-, to cut a tree off below the branching point. — tʊmɛ ḍirmʊmʊts umərʌyʌs to cut the trunks of trees.

(Cp. -muʷʊṭinʌs* & -mʊruʷyʌs*).

mərdakay sg. & pl., d. pl. -ints x poppy. — mərdakayə ḍuḍuʷro green capsule of poppy. mərdakayə ṭʊkoʷro dry capsule of poppy.

(Cp. Sh. mərdʌka, poppy).

mərgʊn a kind of white grape. (Cp. Sh. mərgunʷ).

mərγʊl -iŋ y curl, curly. — mərγuʷliŋ ičhoʷqurʌŋ (his) curly fringe.

mˈərhʌbba N. bravo! Ar. Prs.

mərin̆ v. marin̆.

mərma, pl. mərmʌŋ, y awl. (Cp. H. & Kho. bʌrma).

mərmuʷk x handful. — tiʷk mərmuʷkʌn bitsa there is a handful of earth. dʌγoʷoʌnə mərmuʷk bi there is a handful of flour.

(Cp. Kho. mərmʌ̄k̆ koʷrik, to squeeze a handful of a thing).

mərt, -ɛŋ, y earth-cliff, scarped side of alluvial terrace beside river-bed. — mərtɛŋʌṭɛ ya kʌyolo sinda iʷltɛs boʷči.ɛ (the birds) settle on the earth cliff or on the strand at the side of the river. (Cp. Sh. mʌč, moč, earth-cliff).

mərˈu y washing river-sand to extract gold dust. — mərˈu stʌs to wash for gold. 348.1. mərˈuʷɛ dʌstuʷr apˈi it is not the custom to wash for gold. 348.13.

mərutʊ, mərotsguʷin, pl. mərutsguʷyo hm gold-washer. 384.1. (Cp. Sh. mərutʊ. For the ending cp. dəru : dəruʷtʊ).

000 mʌsa·la y pl. spices. Ar. Prs.

mʌska -miŋ, -ŋ y butter. 324.1. Prs.

mʌsxər'a y joke. Ar. Prs.

mʌst intoxicated, excited, arrogant, presumptuous. — in kɛ mʌst im'ʌnimi he too became intoxicated. buvt mʌst mʌn'umʌn they became very arrogant, "uppish". 272.4, 284.12. Prs.

mʌsti y pride, arrogance, insubordination. — tɛ·lɛ nuvvot buvt mʌsti ɛč'ʌm dwelling there they used to display great arrogance. 238.6.9. Prs.

mʌstikrš pl. -ki.ʌnts arrogant, puffed-up.

mʌš ɛtʌs, mav·š ɛtʌs v.t. to bend. — rıʌš ɛtʊm bila it is bent.

mʌš'a -miŋ y fuse-holder, and trigger. (In matchlocks the match-holder and trigger are in one piece).

(Cp. Sh. & Kho. mʌša; also Madaglašti Prs. mʌša and mav·ša trigger; Prs. mav·ša "that part of a matchlock gun that holds the match", Steingass). Prs.

mʌš'ʌla -ʌmʊts x mouthpiece of a reed-pipe in which the reed (ḍʌmbu) is fixed.

mʌšərb'a x water-vessel with narrow neck and a spout. 260.10. Ar. Prs.

mʌšγu·l busy, occupied. — ıtsɛ ka mʌšγu·l bʌm he was occupied with those things (the game he had killed?). 26.5. ınɛ ka mʌšγu·l mai.ibo she occupies, amuses, herself with him. 86.6. Ar. Prs.

mʌšhuv famous, renowned, well-known, notorious. 186.2. — mʌšhuv ɛtʌs to proclaim, announce, give out. 380.9. Ar. Prs.

mʌšk, N. mʌški -mʊts, x "mashk", skin-bag for carrying water. 176.16. Prs.

mʌšq, mʌqš exercise, practice. — mʌšq ɛtʌs to practise. Prs.

262 b

mʌṭhʌli gʌl dwarf-juniper. ooo mʌth'ʌn, mʌthạn, N. pl. y -iŋ far, distant. — uʷtsʊm mʌtaʷn nʊma getting a long way from them. 158.22. buʷt mʌtʌn bušai.ɛnər niʷmi he went off to a very distant country. 366.6. gʊtɛ šərʊm aškiltsʊm mʌtʌn atiš gomai.ima can you remove this shame from my face? 98.3. mʌtaʷntsʊm mʌtaʷn me.imɛ getting further and further off. 212.16. mʌtʌnər sʌphər bila it is a journey to a distance, a long journey. 356.1. mʌt'ʌnʊm (abl.) from a distance, from a long way off. 38.3, 92.10. mʌt'ʌnʊm (adj.) distant. mʌtʌnʊm terminər nʌmaʷn you going off to distant grazing-grounds. 326.12. Cp. 368.8, 372.6, 373.11.

mʌthʌnʊmkʊš y distance, farness.

·mʌtɛl y a disease of grain (in which the grain develops but turns black), smut (?). — mʌtɛlɛ ču duʷsimi disease appeared in the corn. 240.18. (Lit. "disease-affected ears came out"). mʌtɛl kʌm mʌnimi the disease decreased. 242.19. mʌtɛl oʷmʌnimi no disease appeared. 244.3.

(Perhaps, mʌthɛl).

mʌṭhiʷr x walnut. V. s.v. ṭhir.

(Cp. Sh. mʌtəri, walnuts).

mʌtlʌb -ičiŋ, -iŋ y object, purpose. — bɛsʌn mʌtlʌb bila? what is (your) object, purpose? Ar. Prs.

mʌto -miŋ y brain. — mʌto ap'i (he has) no brains. (Cp. Sh. m'ʌto, brains).

mʌtsimo from you. V. §§ 74.4, 127. III.

mʌtʊm x pl. -išo, y pl. -iŋ, black. — mʌtʊm iʷɛ tʊɣli ɛn bi the black one is a male lamb. 64.17. Cp. 84.12.

mʌyuʷš N. -išo x inflated skin (used as an assistance in swimming). (Cp. Sh. maiyuʷš).

mʌyo -mots x fine (penalty). — Š. Kʌpu·rimo m'ʌyulo Hʌmʌčʌ·tiŋtsum U·ltəre ter gʌnumʌn They took the Ulter grazing ground from the H. as a fine on account of Š. K. 000 (Recorded with -γ-, -γ- and -ǯ-. Cp. Sh. ma·o, mau.ʍ, fine).

mʌza, -miŋ y flavour, savour, agreeable taste. — mʌza api·m insipid, tasteless; (of human being) boring, bore, guse mʌza bečuk bila? what sort of a taste has this? i·se tωγuli.ε čʌpε mʌza bʌnda čʌpε ju.ʌn mʌza bila the taste of the flesh of this lamb is like the taste of human flesh. 68.3. mʌza d-ʌtsʌs* to cause someone to feel a taste. 132.16, 138.5. V. § 244.2. Prs.

mʌzada·r tasty, savoury. — bu·t mʌzada·r bu·lʌn bila there is a very pleasant-flavoured spring. 126.19. Prs.

mʌzər -iŋ y grave, tomb. — mʌzəriŋε diš place of graves, grave-yard. 112.2. Cp. 82.14, 112.16,17, 310.13 ff., 344,7. Ar. Prs.

mʌzdu·ri y hired labour; wages (of hired labourer). — mʌzdu·ri.ər yaiya ba I am engaging (him) on hire. Prs.

mazhʌb -iŋ y religion. Ar. Prs.

maidan open comparatively smooth and level ground. Prs.

1. mai.i; mai.imo yourselves; your own. V. 1. *-i. — mai.imu ji your own lives (life). 30.23. maimo Xudai.ε gʌnε for the sake of your own God. 38.13. Cp. 322.3.
2. mai.i the month of May. 322.1.

mai.imulε ni·m a term of abuse, probably meaning: you who have gone to your daughter(s), or, may you go to your daughters. V. 126.4. Note, 14.

263 b

000 maiyadaʷr sized (cloth). — maiyadaʷr pʌči (or, lʌtta) sized cotton cloth (only used for bride's present and for shrouds). 304.6. Prs.

maiyaʷr Pres. Base of mʌnaʷs + ər. V. s.v. mʌnaʷs.

mauqa y opportunity, chance. V. moʷqa. Ar. Prs.

meʷš, me.rš, v. 2. meʷš.

meʷnis, pl. meʷnišo, x female sheep over one year old which has not had young. — meʷnisə bʌt sheepskin.

mˈeyʌŋ y pl. snow and wind, snowstorm. — mˈeyʌŋ mai.i bitsʌn there is a snowstorm.

*-mɛ x sg. and pl. tooth. — yɛrʊm aʷmɛ my incisor tooth. awʌš aʷmɛ my canine, or molar, tooth. aʷŋgimo, yaʷʃʊm, yaʷrʊm, aʷmɛ my front, upper, lower teeth. aʷmɛ axoʷlji bi my tooth aches, I have toothache. iʷnɛ imˈɛr bərɛnin, hʌn imɛn šiqʌm bi look at his teeth, one of his teeth is blue. 154.20. ʌmɛʷulo tərˈi yʌmi the polo-ball hit my tooth. 158.11.

mɛhərbaʷn, mɛhərbaʷni, v. mɛrmaʷn and mɛrmaʷni.

mɛl -iŋ y wine (of grapes). — mɛl numin nɛršʌn jučʌm he used to come having drunk wine and become drunk. 208.11. tɛil api, ɛrrf mɛl bila there is no water, there is only wine. 384.15.

*-mɛlč -ʌŋ y jaw, jaw-bone, — yaʷʃʊm *-mɛlč upper-jaw. yaʷrʊm. *-mɛlč lower-jaw. amɛlč γʌsuʷmər Dʌdi duʷšo when my jaw-bone has rotted Dadi will come out.

mɛl phuʷnər -iŋ y "a plant with sky-blue flowers that grows at high altitudes".

(Phuʷnər or phʊnər, is probably OOO the Sh. word pfonər, flower. In Sh. meɹ, meɹl = buttermilk).

264a

mˈeɹltʌlik v. -ʌltʌlik, we both, we two.

1. men? h pl. who?. V. § 160.

The sg. is menʌn, and the the -ik suffix may be used in the plural, menik, which perhaps has a collective sense.

The fem. gen. obl. of menʌn is menenmo-.

The plurals men and menik serve as the h pl. of ʌmin? which? and may so be used adjectivally.

kin menʌn bai.i? who is this (man)? men herčˈʌm? who were weeping? 42.18. menik sisik duwarn? what (which) people have come?

In Indirect Questions it is supplemented by ke placed after the verb of the clause.

menik herčarn ke ite xʌbər dusuin fetch news (i.e. go and find out) who are weeping. 38.4.

2. men, menik h pl., Sg. menʌn.

a. Indef. Pron. and Adj.: some one, anyone; some people, any people; some, any. V. § 148.

menənər xʌbər eči he will tell someone, mene gutsi γʌsičumʌn (some) people will laugh at thee. hiŋtse men barna? are there any people (is there anyone) at the door? meniktsum dusuwa? have you got it from anyone (pl.)? 58.31. men thʌmu.e hukəm Hindi.ʌte ˌapirm there was not the authority of any Thams over Hindi. 260.9. menʌn sisʌn some person.

b. (+ ke) + negative, no one, none; not any, no.

da menʌn atirmi.a? has no one else come? da menik ˈaturmʌna? have no other people come? menʌn ke ɛvitsumʌn they saw no one. ɛvi 000 menʌn ke sizʌn apʌm there was no person with him. 4.18. mi men xʌbɔr apʌn none of us know. 80.15.

3. men . . . ke is used as an Indefinite Relative. V. § 186. menɔr uŋe xuš ɛčʌ ke itsu whomever you prefer, take, i.e. take whomever you please. Cp. 120.1.

4. mɛn, pl. x -iso, mɛyo, mɛyʌnts; y mɛyʌŋ old. — men kʌγur bi it is an old horse. men kʌγuriso bizʌn they are old horses. men sis bʌn they are old (experienced) men. men čʌp bilu it is old meat. men gatuŋ old rubbed clothes. men šuqa an old, threadbare choga. mɛyo, or mɛyʌnts šuqamuts old chogas. mɛyʌŋ gatuŋ, kʌrkičʌŋ old clothes, houses.

maniko an occasional plural form of 2. men. It occurs as the nominative with transitive verba — i.e. it is probably equivalent to the extended nominative (menu), — and as the genitive. A dative form manikuɔr has been once recorded. V. § 151. yʌrɛ bul malulo maniko kɔr ɛγɛrʌn down below in the Spring Field some people are ploughing with oxen. 248.2.

mɛr (= mi + ɔr), v. mi. to us, for us. 14.1.

mɛrmʌn, merbʌn, mirmʌn, mirbʌn, mehɔrbʌn kind, gracious, benevolent. Prs.

mɛrmʌni (other forms do for mɛrmʌn) y (and x?) gift, present, reward. ɔr bezʌn mɛrmʌni ɛčʌi he gives them some present. 324.2. mirmʌni ɛtʌs + dat. to bestow on (s.o.). Cp. 92.7. mehɔrbʌni netʌn kindly. 20.22. Cp. 168.15, 172.16. (Prs.).

1. merj, pl. merq, EOL me.eq, y small tree, sapling; EOL bush; H. sakel. (Cp. maj, small tree, sapling, shrub).
2. merj, merj, me.ij, pl. merqag, (meqoe), merjig, y bag of skin (smaller than aremuts, holds 24—40 lbs. of grain), Sh. kalafu. ɣmag mejaner nikin putting the gold in a bag. 204.8. Cp. Prova 7 and 167

(1. merj is pronounced with a high tone, 2. merj with a low tone).

1. mi we. The base in most of the oblique cases is mine-. For the case forms see § 118.
mir mi kan kan kenoran eliirian let us each display one clever act. 260.7. Gen. as Possessive Pron.: wqe matá bin, mi mati ki ka, kano are say truly whether it is yours or whether it is ours. 104.8:
2. mi my. Only occasionally used, with titles of relations:
mi apa my father. 68.1, 368.1.
mi mama my mother. 184.8, 186.20, 188.14. mi baba my father. 180.8. mir kru eyar this husband of mine. 324.8.

-mi, pl. -mimoro, hf. mother; mother's sister, maternal aunt. — gwemimo mwlos your ...other's brother. 14.14. Sakri Ikawa ka mami S. I. and her mother. 30.21. Ojow mimi (our) stepmother, H. anakh mdr.

mi.aw Pron. Base of mimo + w for drinking. — mi.aw ikil water to drink, drinking-water. 323.8.

mimi, mir we ourselves. V. 1. -i. — mi mir we ourselves. mir merlir the four of ourselves. 60.19.

mijow. mijow y temperament, nature. — had mijowan heki he is a bad-tempered, evil-natured person. Ar. Pro.

265b

[see corrigenda at addenda, category 116, p. 593 - Analyst]

000 mówu JUB vulture(?), Sh. ko.ev (white vulture). (Not known to QUE).

mirí, miPí, pl. mil'vuk, x medicine, drug, remedy. — ówuw ewas mirí purgative drug (lit. medicine that makes (his) bowels go). mirí ełas to administer medicine, treat. Ki.ei.ni mili eti treat (he sickness(?). Kiuro ergimur milinds name Kiuro doctoring his grand-mother. 184.8. kiuur mili omoimi there will be no medicine, cure, for this man. divu.s pirder mili remedy for a bullet wound. 358.5. As a title for the Beloved. 358.1.

mili.ŋ, mili.ŋ, X. miriŋgŋ, y pl., d. pl. mili.ŋgiŋ gunpowder, explosive. — ikkage mili.ŋ gunpowder. mrengr miliŋ blasting-powder. mili.ŋgr folta detonating fuse. ełłumałgr mili.ŋ priming-powder.

(Apparently a y pl. of mirí).

mówu draught, a full drink. — kił mówu ik.kil, mul a drink of water, wine. kił mówu.us tam'ałw a fill of a pipe. (St. Pr. form of mówu).

mówu of us, our, V. mi. — mówu kerło at our home. 105.26. Cp. 44.14.

[601] -mówu, gen. of -mi*, mother's, maternal. — ja ewówu mergo my mother's sister, my maternal aunt.

mów'u, mówu, -mofr x remains of kernels (after the oil has been expressed from them), oil-cake, H. khali, Punj. Pers. kunjada. — mów'u mumapodus . . . newotus making a nose for her out of oil pressings. 153.6. Cp. 176.18. (Cp. Sh. pino, Dem. pinova) mówudev pleased (at, with), grateful (?), rejoicing. — ja mówudev ka I am pleased. EOL. ja wełłum mówudev ka I am pleased with you. EOL. ja ine miyastum mówudev ka I am pleased at his going. EOL. minadow minanas yalki bilem it was right that we should rejoice. 870.14.

000

(Possibly for Ar.Pers. mamnu' + daw).

minav, mi(y)-, Impv. mine, neg. ownin, Ppa. namin to drink, smoke (tobacco etc.). — ile tail ine m'inomo she drank that water. 108.6. bilem minavu I smoked a pipe. tamarên, sigaret, minavu to smoke tobacco, a cigarette. N. afyun minavu to smoke opium.

Pres. base + av: mi.av.

mi.av tail water to drink, drinking water. 313.8. ja tail mijav vai dîwai I wanted to drink water. mi.av dey'wushinimi he began to drink. 144.8.

Other parts:

Fut.	1st. sg.	mijavu, minavu. 124.24, 126.20.
Pres.	3rd. sg. m.	mi'dai. 128.16.
Impf.	3rd. sg. m.	mi'dan.
Pret.	3rd. sg. m.	mini'wai.
	3rd. pl. h.	minawan. 126.6.
Impv.	2nd. sg.	mine. 86.24.
-i forms		mini'i.
Pres. Pt.		mine. 22.15.
Ppa.		namin. 108.7, 124.17,24, 208.11.
Sta.pt.		minavu.
Neg.		ownimu. 210.4.

min'alhin, pl. min'alhiyn, s pelvis, hip. — ja min'alhin my pelvis, hip.

(Also recorded with final -q, but the latter part is probably, fin — tooth).

minas pl. min'alig) story, tale, 2. Title, 876. Title.

min'ai.is, pl. min'ai.iin, s doll.

mindow -mots s withers. — Asyuv mindow the horse's withers.

(Cp. Pehl. manduw).

mirow McK and GR tamour. (Not known to QUB). 000

miŋ closing the lips and projecting the lower one, in scoffing or preparatory to crying. — ɔriŋ miŋ ɔlimi.

miŋ miŋ ɔlɛ to smile.

mirɔw y.

a. Inheritance (land, vessels, gun etc., not living things), heritable inanimate property, hereditament, patrimony. 428

As regards inheritance, the youngest son inherits the family house, the eldest son inherits the best land. Guns, swords and such articles are divided up, but the father can allot them in his life-time.

A thing specially left to any one, not subject to reversionary rights, is "mirɔwɔ".

ɔwɔrɔ mirɔw the heritage (?) of the world. 302.2. 000

b. Family in which there has been long unbroken descent.

je mirɔw bila, or, je mirɔwɔ ba I am of a family of long unbroken descent.

c. Customary law, traditional custom, practice, habit, IUB H. ɛ̃ɔnɔŋ, ɛ̃ɔnɔ, ɛ̃ɔnɔw.

ɛ̃ɔlirɔdɔm mirɔw bila it is the custom from ancient times. 309.12.

ɔlɔje mirɔw the custom of "ɔlɔg". 342.12. Ikam ɛ̃ɔnɔŋ jɔrɔ mirɔw bila it is the custom to go out (lit. come) to meet the Tham. 338.7. Cp. 342.20. Ar. Fra.

mirɔwɔ v. mirɔw 1. and 2.

mirɔwɔ, mirɔwɔ; mirɔwɔ, mirɔwɔ. V. mɔrɔwɔ and mɔrɔwɔ.

mirɔi McK and GR epilepsy. (H. mirɔi).

mirīzkaw -tiŋ hm falconer. 4.13, 6.2,9, 326.4, 340.15. Prs. 000 mɪsəre of Egypt, Egyptian. 150.3. Ar. Prs.

mɪsəri y 1. sugar. 2. a kind of cotton cloth. mɪsəri (latha) bila.

mɪšīndilam sixth.

mɪšīndo, mašīndo h x and y, z mɪšīndi, mɪšīn- six. — mišīndo hivi six men. mašīndo yuγuđanise the six daughters. 120.3. umišindo eγərđu.s the six sons-in-law. 120.22, 124.4. mišīndi bajaw at six o clock. mɪšīndi dan, kši six years, six times. mɪšīnsa six months. mɪšīnqots, mɪšīnqots six days.

mɪvz -rīlo x table. Prs.

mīrpuvī -īlo x table-cloth. Prs.

mo. Impv. 2nd sg. of *-aſas with hf sg. pu.pf. — kan'no mo advise her. 50.22.

-mo, -mu.

1. Adjectival suffix: imo his own. duγu.imo pertaining to midday. V. § 102.
2. Suffix of general oblique or abl.: tapmo at night. V. § 64. III.

moδaq (repetitive of toδaq q.v.) — toδak moδak guns. 120.24.

moçe v. *-açe, her sister. — ja amimo moçe my mother's sister, my maternal aunt. uγs gumimo moçe thy maternal aunt. ma mamimo moçokon your (pl.) maternal aunts. 601 mo.i, mo.imo, v. mu.i.

moγ manaw to smile.

moγa, mauga y right time, opportunity, chance. — niyase moγa divni the right time, or opportunity, for going came. Ar. Prs. 000

*-m'oγas, *-m'oγić-, *-moγoč- to tear (hair off a skin), to pluck (a fowl). — gumoγićam I'll tear thy hair on

267 b

000 gapkun. ukki ... ewiqamas. Nimuq . . . they tore the hair off the skin, tearing it off . . . 134.15.

(Cp. demurqum).

*-murqit pl. *-murqi.aq y cheek, H. gal, ruzzur. — imuqela dal doli give him a smack on the cheek. dwuum ewiqzle ze . . . gili bi there is the . . . line down his right cheek. 92.1.

1. mur (= mu. + ur) to her, for her. V. § 123.

2. mur -iq (y) anal. Fra.

murzas, v. *-arzas, 1. to send her. 2. to divorce (a wife) ICUB II. falaq drus.

mure, pl. murwiq, murbiq y mud-flood, avalanche of mud and stones. — mure jadvin a mud-flood is coming. kawdle mure a flood caused by rain, a spate in a river. Cp. 249 19.18, 284.11,19.

(Cp. Sh. mure mud-flood, a flood caused by rain-water).

*-mure y anger, rage, temper, annoyance.

1. imure ke kurutqi he sat with anger, (looking) angry, scowling. emure kg diyirmaman they rushed down with anger, in a rage. 249.8. pfuli bert imure divai the Div's anger came, i.e. the Div became very angry. 18.8. amure di bila I have become, I am, very angry. EOL.

2. *-mure eurzas, or, dewrzas to "fetch anger", i.e. to become angry, get into a temper, lose one's temper. urq ker gumire dewzis? why are you angry? imure dumurzam, imure dewn he had become, was, angry; he becoming angry. 270.5. imure eurzi he has become, is, angry. ine gure mumure dewn kewn the woman had become angry.

000 2. -mure d-gren, the Causative of *-mure dmergim to make angry, annoy, worry. mure airdin don't worry me. ang (or, wagi) in bene mure dróit? why do you worry him? ja (or, jai) mure dróit ón I am worrying him.

4. Used adjectivally:
mure ómnii ónii be in angry.
mure maniuni be become angry. 274.4.

*-mureki pl. *-mureki.enb prone to anger, wrathful, violent tempered. — (forgi) cmureki.enb bi.en (the forgi) are "wrathful ones", i.e. resentful towards oath-breakers. 290.10. Cp. 294.10.

mur ammb, v. *-ammb. 242.9.

murtar (= ma + *-atar), murt-, to perform the sexual act with a woman, to copulate. ICB II. majrowa'al karna, fróiim.

murtag, mutrug, -ch children, without young, barren, unmarried, bachelor, spinster. — murtag bir ini be in a bachelor. murtag ni be che has gone, i.e. in, childless. mutrugchi bini, prolignate bachelor men, spinster women. Lagow murtag bi the mow in barren. murtaniti bi.en they (animals) are barren. murtag fora, bella barren cow, sheep. murtag wa.en bene there was a childless married woman. 242.6.

mu, cp. marb, mow. — ja ma lirdi lorwi.en mow I shall stay here. 92.23. ma gab mow at this time, now (emphatic). 98.4, 172.12.

This appears to be ellipsis for: ma gab waatlolo. 86.6. Cp. 42.10, 80.18, 82.20, 94.1, 98.24, 120.1, 123.20, 196.6, 202.14,16, 210.6, 276.15.

ma.erf forgiven, pardoned. — ma.erf ó.ne to forgive [him]. Ar. Pm.

ma.eyā y forgiveness, pardon. — ma.eyā dawa.a to seek forgiveness. Ar. Fm.

mabrowāk blessed (expression of congratulation or well-wishing). — mabrowāk ma.ini! may it be blessed (to you), congratulations to you! 62.8. ugowa ev mabrowāk ehma.a all congratulated him. 99.9.

(Cp. habrowāk, and Kho. mambrowāk, hambrowāk. Ar. Fm.).

mabrowākhardi wishing joy, congratulation. — mabrowākhardi ela.a, or, -dhi.a to congratulate. (Ar.) Fm.

maf, mafi, -mafig y.

1. Closed hand, fist. — drig maf hila his hand is a closed fist, i.e. he is close-fisted. maf ev dilimi clenching his fist he struck (him) i.e. he struck him with his fist. maf ev ise ehmi he gave him a blow with his fist.
2. Single handful. — ishi mafi.ee gi.a.ee I took (a) three handfuls.

(Cp. Sar. mafiy- fist, handful; Kho. mafi handful; mafiji fist, grip of plough handle; Sh. maf fist; mafiji, plough-handle).

mafji, mafi -mafe a handle of a plough. (Cp. mafiji.

mafwēk this iron or wooden instrument for turning bread on the griddle, with flat disk and long handle. — ha.ishi mafwēk a greedy man who goes about everywhere eadging food. gowa.a mafwēkdo dawag ma.ehni.i the bridegroom gives her a smack with the bread-turner. 306.10. Cp. 308.4.

mafir y desire. — gowa mafir lelādo gow ma.ini? how will the desire of your heart come to pass for you? 66.11. Cp. 84.8. Ar. Fm.

mafowa always, constantly. Ar. Fm.

moddat y period, space of time. — bwt moddat niwsi a long time passed. 2.6. Ar. Fra. 000 moyali Maulai sect. (Cp. Sh. moyali, contemptuous term applied to the Maulais by the Shinha, who say they themselves are Maulais).

moy'ulo d'ovo N., pl. — dovowa'a, tadpole, (dovo is perhaps connected with the Khe. dovi, Sh. dôvi, dovo, ladle. Cp. the Hz. bindpiyalt tadpole, of which piyalt means ladle.

Similarly the Tanin Khe. is ali kiyówi, "snake-spoon". The Sh. for tadpole is recorded as mawuhd'ulo, mawuhu being the word for frog, and dulo probably for dovo).

mokhry in want, destitute. 272.10. Ar. Fra.

mu.i, mu.i; mwimu, mu.imu, v. 1. -i, she herself. V. 16.19 note; her own 49.3, 68.1, 146.16.

mujuq, mujuq, -ôliq, -iq y tassel (as of chuga), tuft of hair (at end of cow's tail). — ñupa mujuqôliq tapes with tassels attached to breast of chuga on either side, nominally for tying across chest. gwo mujuq an ornament worn at weddings by both bride and groom. It is suspended at the side of the cheek and consists of a string on which is strung a piece of mother of pearl and below it a pearl (?) or piece of coral, beneath which the string ends in a tassel. Cp. 304.12. ûn ûwamalo mujuq ñewu hilo the tassel of its (the calf's) tail is white. 166.8. 292 mujuw -iq y weeping-willow tree. hun mujuwun hilo there is a weeping-willow tree. 12.12. dôdi mujuw ryi hum he had planted the mink weeping-willow. 18.9. 000

269 b

000 If, owing to evil conduct (?) a woman's hair falls out, she buries the fallen hair under a weeping-willow, then her hair grows in long again. Cp. 12.17, 16.14, 262.16.

(Cp. Sh. mořkaw, weeping-willow).

mařé ag. and pl., d. pl. mařik, x pearl. — mařkin li there is a pearl. mařir hirtsants my pearly joints, limbs (?). 248.10.

(Cp. Sh. mařé, mak pearl).

mařa x pl. small shot (for gun). — mařa (or mařai) tshag shot-gun.

(Cp. Khо. mařa, small shot; mařai tsak shot-gun).

mařher hm informer. Ar. Pm.

mal x a form of food, a sort of gruel — mal ots to prepare "mal". ów mal ítsi he eats the "mal". 306.19. ořiki mal the "mal" given by his parents to their son on his returning home soon after marriage. (Cp. Sh. mal).

malrim gently, slowly. — malrim gatsrs to go along slowly. Ar. Pm.

malrqat y meeting. — malrqat ro having met (him). 384.20. ker-ów ilrain malrqat ofimi coming to the house he presented himself to them. 268.8. Ar. Pm.

malk y country, territory. — ów malk-ówu nis the people of that country. 116.1. Arapo malkhaw from the Arab country. 94.9. malk Himzal ilrsimi he came out, turned up, in Himzal territory. 384.12. Ar. Pm. Cp. 92.29.

marlo -mats x turnip, taproot, H. ilalyam

(Cp. Sh. marlo, turnip, radish, H. mooli radish).

malton, pl. mallai.in, y blood. — malton darbrin blood is coming out 600 (n. of to bleeding. ta i hrvle multen ewemi blood issued, flowed, from the gash. 200.6. Cp. 196.1, 202.24.

*-m'ller, -eg, -eg, y nostril, N. naflna. ji ewellwrwp wyam nasen daiada ha I perceive a sweet odour with my nostrils. 178.27.

mawn y wax. Pro.

mamavi (she) herself. V. § 143. — ena gna mamavi the woman herself.

mawn -ondz n stump (of anything that has been cut), pl. stubble. — penarlo mawn the stump of a pencil. tamarku mawnan hi it is a tobacco plant (less the leaves?) tamarku mawnondz tobacco of whole plant less the leaves. (Cp. Sh. Kho. mawn, stump).

mawnwzö -ilo right, proper, suitable, fitting. 88.19. Ar. Pro.

mawdzy mawd'ay grown big, developed (of child or young animal), Bu. ilwd, upgrown. — mawdzy (or, dwd) mawinai (the baby boy) grew big. 100.4. mawdzy imawmar when it (the lamb) grew big. 68.1. Cp. 242.20. (IYB mawdzy).

mawdi v. mawwdi.

mawdan, pl. mawdalo, n tick (insect).

mawkzy mawzy to decay. Ar. Pro.

*-mayzel, pl. -mayzi.ondz, n nose, muzzle (of animal), trunk (of elephant); toe (of boot, pubhoo, etc.). — mai'a mawzipodan mawzapodale ewinai he placed a nose of oil-greenings (for her) on her nose. 178.16. Cp. 182.4—6. gnu ewzapodale gajal ne ne ewdi la . . . if this (elephant) snatches me off with its trunk and flings me down. 76.24.

Cp. ngawa mapodale 76.27, where the po pf. is lacking.

*-muṣṭe nal septum of nose. Cp. Prov. 15. 000

(Cp. Sh. m'ṣpuṭ, muzzle of animal, beak of bird).

moŋarvar fixed, appointed. — gunī: moŋarvar ṣāṣī he fixes the day. 326.6. Cp. 380.18.

moruṭī of oneself, on one's own initiative. — ja jijeri moruṭī ṣāṣm I did it myself on my own initiative. (But perhaps: jerimo ruṭī). Ar. Pra.

[illegible], [illegible], pl. [illegible], y file (tool). (Cp. Sh. [illegible], file).

morda -mafa, x ring, or hoop, e.g. of twisted withes.

mor'ed, -ṣāo, -ṭāg, h disciple, follower (of spiritual leader). Ar. Pra.

*-[illegible], *-[illegible]-; *-[illegible], *-[illegible]-; *-[illegible], no Pres. Base.

1. To cut off the branches or shoots of a tree, to pollard (a tree), to lop. — ṣum ḍir [illegible] ṣmurulem when a tree has begun to fall they lop it (i.e. cut off its branches). 1st. sg. Fut. ṣmurulam || ṣmurufiqam ḍirko ṣmoruŋas to lop off branches. ḍirko ṣmurufin cut off the branches.

2. (Metaph.) to strike, hammer (a person. — (hin hiran ḍolmi ha) ṣmurufimi. ais, ḍolmaŋo, ṣmurufimi he hammered the people, the enemy. gomurulam I'll beat you. (Cp. *-muraŋas).

mosrfir -ṭāg h traveller. 36.6. Ar. Pra.

mosrhat y hardship, difficulty. 386.13.

1. mud, mud, -afa x.

a. End, extremity; side, edge; limit, frontier. — ḍaŋaliṭāg gati mud han ḍamoru ar ḍrumas make a ring for me at the end of the chain. 174.6. mutafo at the end, finally. 234.5. gʌnɛ muś the side of the road. muśulu round the edge. N. uʻimo wʌtʌnɛ muʻiər doʻšqalluman they arrived at the end, frontier, of their own country. 22.13. Cp. 36.4. iʻte bušai.ɛ muśulo at the frontier of the country. 22.13. Cp. 36.7.

b. muś is used adverbially or postpositionally in:
iʻti muś that side of; kiʻti muś this side of. dʌli muś at the upper end of, on the upper side of. xʌli muś at the lower end of etc. V. s.vv. dʌli, xʌli etc.

c. It produces adjectival forms: muśum and muśeṭum (muʻušʌṭum), last, final. — iʻlji muśum ɛnɛ the last man (of all). 138.10. muśeṭum gonɛ diʻmi (his) last day has come. muśeṭum mauqa bila it is the last chance. muśeṭum dimʌnum hiles the last-born, final, child.

d. muś can also be used in the sense of: small piece, scrap, (of land). (Cp. Sh. muś, in muśxj, in the end, eventually).

2. muṣ̌ y breath. — muṣ̌ diłʌmi (his) breath was stopped, he suffocated. muṣ̌ diłʌmɛr miʻrin hɛn when our breath is stopped we die. čhʌnum hɛʻle muṣ̌ diłʌṭila in a small room one's breath is impeded, i.e. one suffocates in a congested room. QUB.

3. -muś x snot, nasal mucus.

muśʌqʌt muśʌqʌt y trouble, labour, toil. — bɛʻt muśʌqʌt ka with much labour. 108.16. muśʌqʌt nʌtʌn expending much labour. 55.31. Ar. Pra.

muśʌṭum, muśeṭum (= muś + ʌṭe + um), v. 1, muś c.

muṣ̌k, muṣ̌k, N. pl. -ʻimiz, x jungle, forest. — čhʌnɛ muṣ̌k thorn jungle.

000 tomɪ muʂk jungle of trees. (Cp. Sh. muʂko, moʂko, forest).

*-muʂkʌnɪ prone, on one's face, face down. — imuʂkʌnɪ walai.i he has fallen on his face. umuʂkʌnɪ wwʌlʌs to fall on their faces. imuʂkʌ ˌ guča bai.i he is lying (lit. has lain down) on his face. ɪmˈuʂkenɔ bʌm he was (lying) on his face. 220.1.

*-moʂki y pl. hair below navel, pubic hair.

moʂkɪl difficult. — taiyʌsɔr ovr moʂkɪl jučila it comes difficult to them to put them on, i.e. they have difficulty in putting them on. 132.4. Ar. Prs.

muʂʂi -mots x handle of a plough. (Cp. muʂi and Sh. Kho. muʂʂi).

moʂuˑl, moʂol, y, v. *-ʂuˑl, (her) labour pains.

muˑʂolum N. -iʂo last. V. 1. moʂ.

moʂom v. 1. moʂ c.

muthˑɔi, v. *-thˑɔi (her) bridal trousseau.

muˑto, cp. mu, now, at present, nowadays. — muˑto its dʌsluˑr kin thʌmɪ fʌt oˑtai.i now this Tham has made them give up this practice. 338.2. Cp. 146.9, 196.16, 248.23, 252.19, 266.12, 272.10, 374.16. muˑto ks, muˑto ki now too, even now, still. muˑto ks inɪ jʌt gusmo kaˑɪ ɔrˈʌn ks buʂai.i bila there are still the ruins of the old woman's house and her land. 286.17. Cp. 212.20, 224.8, 278.3,4, 288.1. muˑto xrˑ up till now, to the present day, still. muˑto xrˑ ɪrɪ boyo gals hum .ɪmɪ kaˑle bi the wood of the "boyo" juniper is in his house to the present day. 216.4. Cp. 184.11, 206.15, 234.16, 274.9, 294.19. muˑto xrˑdiqɔr up to the present time. 266.17.

moforg v. mofurg.

000 muyenum -iŋ y a present of cloth given to the bride's mother at a wedding (normally 6 yds. of cloth?) — mumimo muyenum her mother's wedding present.

Figuratively used in:
i·ke šariŋ ja ai.imo mu·mimo muy'e-nimiŋulo muɣunʌs ba ke ja ai.i gu·čʌm if you will give those cities to my daughter's mother as her bridal-present, I will give you my daughter (as wife). 96.21.

(The word is a form of *-yenum q.v.).

291 muz'a, N. mu·za, -muts x long boots (made in Kashgar of good leather).

(Cp. dʌsmu·za gloves. The word mo·za is similarly used in Badakhshani Persian for "long leather boots". In Kho. it denotes knitted woollen stocking-legs used like gaiters). Prs.

N and ŋ.

000 Finally, more rarely medially, n sometimes interchanges with ŋ and m.

1. na· IUB channel conveying water to mill, H. ha·n(?) a·siya. (Prs. nao?).
2. na Exclamation of grief or sorrow. — e·rča ba, na! I am going to die, alas! 358.5.
3. na· not?, or not? (after a final verb). — je ke ba·, n'a? I am also, am I not?, is there not me too? 112.1. tsil gaiyen na? shall we take water or not? 124.28. (But perhaps only: gaiyena). bʌnda čʌpe mʌsa estse omaimi na there will not be the taste of human flesh on it, will there? i.e. it won't taste of human flesh, will it? 66.19. jučuma n'a? will you come or not? i.e. won't you come? 74.20. jočuma na? will you give him to me or not? 106.8.

272 b

(The examples are too few to reveal the exact meaning and use of this particle. It is possibly borrowed from H., e.g. wo ayiya na? "he has come hasn't he?" Cp. Sh. na which appears to be used in the same way as the Bu. word). ○○○ naʿčaʿra helpless, destitute, wretched. Prs.

nəʿdaʿn, pl. nadʿiyo, ignorant, foolish; ignorant one, fool. 56.1, 78.7, 264.2 (pl.), 356.5. Prs.

naʿdaʿni y folly, stupid act, — ja naʿdaʿni etam I did a stupid thing. 78.11. Prs.

naʿhaq without regard to right or wrong, unjustly; without just cause, for no fault. — mi nahaq mərqaimi he will kill us for no fault of ours. 12.10. Cp. 266.13. Prs. + Ar.

naʿi severity, violence, punishment, H. zoləm, jaur, ظلم. — uŋafe aiʿetas naʿyen ečam I'll give you a deterrent punishment.

naʿlaʿj helpless, at a loss, unable to do anything. 1810, 132.6. Prs. Ar.

naʿl -iło mate, one of a pair; "opposite number", paired (for polo). — hiʿna ja naʿl baiʿi he is my mate. hiʿna naʿl je horuʿdim I shall stay as his pair, i.e. to match him. 148.2, cp. 3. (Cp. nal).

naʿn, naʿnin, Ppa. of niyas with 1st. sg. pn. infix, I having gone; I going. 42.18,20.

naʿnaʿ willy nilly, of necessity, H. zaʿhmaraʿh. — naʿnaʿ gote dor o eti you absolutely must do this.

naʿo IUB boat, ship, H. kəšti. (Cp. Sh. naʿo. Presumably Prs. nao, boat).

naʿpaʿk unclean, impure. Prs.

naʿs unfortunate, unlucky, H. manhus, badqrsmat. (Perhaps Cp. Sh. na·s Akbar, the name of a star which is considered unlucky). Ar. Prs. (nahas). 000 na·š y blame, reproof, rebuking. — uv ine na·š-stuman they rebuked him. tol ki no·le na·š ki ma·ran bila there is enmity to the death between the snake and the weasel.

na·umi·d hopeless, despairing, disappointed. Prs.

nafs, nams greed, greediness. — nafs gane by reason of greed. Ar. Prs.

nafskrṣ, navskrṣ, namskrṣ, pl. nafski.ants, -ents avaricious, greedy. — nafskrṣan a greedy person. nafski.entsik greedy people.

nage.i -muts x a hard and painful boil (medical), from the site of which hair does not grow again. (Cp. N. mage.i).

nayc.i, nayc, pl. nay'eviṇ y dung (human and animal's, general term). H. fatti. — bad'a nayc the excrement of the flying-squirrel which is credited with medicinal properties and ranks as "mu·mi.a·i". 278 nazša, cp. naqša, map. Ar. Prs. 000 nal yoke (of oxen). — nal hor yoke of oxen, yoke-fellow. tale nal hor bim, bi.e there were (are) seven yoke of oxen. 246.10. (Cp. Sh. na·l, yoke of plough; pair, couple. Cp. also Bu. na·l).

nal'a together, at the same time, simultaneously. — nala bidaman they fired together, fired a volley. kuv u.i·ski nala dumanuman these three were born at the same time. 88.16. Cp. 304.17. hik nal'a all at once, all of a sudden.

(Cp. Sh. nal'a together, at the same time, ek nal'a all together).

273 b

000 namaⁿm, Nz. namaⁿni Ppa. 2nd. pl. of niyas, you having gone. 128,13, 246.9.

namas Ppa. 1st. sg. of *-manas. 282.22.

nams v. nafs.

namuⁿma y (and x if the object is x) sample. Prs.

601 1. nana, nane, pl. nanˈaisəro, nanˈeisəro hmf.

a. Uncle (paternal or maternal), H. čačā, maⁿma. The form nane is properly used only in Rajas' families; nana being used by aristocrats and commoners.

jot nana father's, or mother's, younger brother. uyuⁿm nana father's, or mother's, elder brother. nanˈeisəruⁿ gasaⁿtsi nazir (we do) homage to (our) mother's brothers' hawks! 248,4. Cp. 246.15, 248.5.

Father's brother. 130.10.15,17.

Uncle. 312.14.

b. Term of respectful address used between men, also applied to old men. Cp. 354.2.

c. Aunt (paternal). — si nanaisəro O father's sisters! 266.9.

(Not recorded for maternal aunt).

d. Term of address between women, (applicable to older women). — xabər suⁿ? Ḥamal nanamo nazir have you brought news? (I do) homage to (you) lady neighbour. 362.9. (nanamo is gen. sg. f.).

000 2. nana -mots x ball (of eye). — aˈlčine nana my eye-ball. (Cp. Sh. nani, eyeball).

nane v. nana, a.

naphˈa, nafa y gain, profit; profitable. — gusi Ḥayar aw nafa ci this horse is profitable to me. Ar. Prs.

napd x cash. Ar. Prs.

000 nʌqša, pl. nʌqšʌŋ y picture, impression, tracing. — ɨmo hʌγvrɨ kijivmɨ nʌqša fʌt ɨtaiɨ . . . dʌnʌntɨr bi he has left the impression of his horse's saddle-cloth . . . it is on a stone. 286.24.

nərɨm y mince, minced. — nərɨm ɨtum čap (bila) (it is) minced meat. nərɨm bila there is mince.

nərm soft. Prs.

nəro, pl. nəromots, x body of mill-wheel. (Cp. Sh. nəro, hub of water-wheel).

nərro N., pl. nərromots, difficult. (Cp. Sh. nəro, nero, difficult).

nʌs, -miŋ, -iŋ, y smell, odour, scent; musk, H. bu, mušk. — uyʌm, dʌltʌs, šuʷa, nʌs sweet, pleasant smell; perfume. γunikrš nʌs bad smell, evil odour. uyʌm nʌsʌŋs askur bila it is a sweet-scented flower. nʌs bila, nʌs jučila there is a smell, a smell comes. gulʌbtsum nʌs jučila the rose smells, gives out scent. ɨts ʌskurə šu.a nʌs ačiči bila that flower gives me a sweet smell, smells sweet to me. EOL. uyʌm nʌsʌn daiɨsča bɨ I feel a sweet perfume. 176.27. Cp. 16.16. ja jʌmaʷʌtɨ nʌs tsuʷčo bom, "giriɨ čʌp su" ɨmubo my wife was getting the scent (of it) and said: "fetch ibex meat". 104.7. (The literal meaning is uncertain, but the phrase refers to the peculiar craving of a woman in pregnancy).

As Adj. stinking, gone bad, "high". nʌs mʌnʌrɨ to become "smelly", become "high", go bad. čʌp nʌs mʌnila The meat has become high, putrid. gučɨ mʌmu nʌs mʌmʌn lip ɨtʌs (bila) this milk having gone bad (or become tainted) should be thrown out. EOL.

274b

nasaʷs, nasaʷz not on good terms (with), H. 000 naʷsaʷz, naʷraʷz. — ja ka nasaʷz baiʼi he is not on good terms with me.
(The real Bu. equivalent is: ja ka dʼimʌyum apaiʼi, v. s.v. dʰ-mayʌs). Prs.

nʌsʌl y stock, breed, progeny. — kiʷntsum dʌltʌs nʌsʌl duʷši fine progeny will come from him. 262.9. Čorʌsis nʌsʌl uyoʷntsum diʷusʼʌsi gani in order to propagate (lit. extract) Č.'s stock from all. 244.8. Ar. Prs.

nʌsiʷb y fate, fortune. — naʷk nʌsiʷb, šuʷn nʌsiʷb fortunate, lucky. gosi kʌyur uʷgo nʌsiʷbtsum Xudaʷyi šuʷmuk staiʼi out of your good luck God has created this horse, i.e. it is your good luck that it has been created, or, brought on the scene. 6.16. Ar. Prs.

nʌsiʷpa partaking, tasting. — sukʼuyuʷs dando oʷr dosuʼʌʷn, nʌsiʷpa oʼʌʷn their relatives bring "dando" for them, and put it in their mouths ("by force"). (Literal meaning uncertain). 312.19. Ar.?

nʌski a fragrant herb (grown in vegetable garden).

nʌstʌʷr -iq y lancet. (Cp. Punj. nʌstʌr, Pra. niʷštʌr, lancet).

nʌsuʷr y pl. snuff. H.

1. nʌš -ʌsis x.
   a. A small piece of rope (suitable for a nose-rope). 64.8.
   b. Peg securing a tenon; nose-peg (for camel). (Cp. Kho. nʌš, nose-peg).
2. nʌš y hole for nose-rope or nose-peg. — uʷs imupʼolo nʌš maiʼiboila in the camel's nose there is a hole (for a nose-peg).
3. nʌš the septum of the nose.

nʌf stʌs to dance. Cp. Prov. 12. (Cp. Sh. nʌf thoʷzki, nʌfa doʷzki, to dance).

tafiya y consequence, result. Ar. Pra. 000 nawaq -iciq y ploughshare (triangular 487 iron sheath slipped over the end of the body of the plough).

1. nazir, nazir.

a. Sacrifice, offering, Ar. Pra. 000
-vhara, fidayat. The word appears to be Ar. nazir. It is used with a dependent genitive, and the sense is probably: "may I be a sacrifice for . . .", which may be expressed otherwise as "I do homage to . . ." aimo nazir (may I be) my daughter's sacrifice (an expression of endearment to a daughter). 160.24.

Similarly for a son; e.i.i nazir. barpotsrua hova nazir respected oxen of our grandfather and grand-uncles! We do homage to the oxen of. etc. 246.13. nazir bavika (may I be your) sacrifice, King! 4.6.

In practice it comes to be used independently as a form of address for a superior, equivalent to "Sir" etc. Ar Pra. hazarat, janab, hazur, Lahbaik.

b. Sir etc. — hai, ma hovaso nazir alas! you wise sirs, (alas, may I be a sacrifice for you wise men). 158.17. ainu nazir yes sir! (the regular response of a servant to his master). Ar. Pra.

2. nazir y look, glance, sight, aim, H. nazar. — yonikri nazirefe hovanimi he looked at him with an evil eye. 50.4. je aiyaf ko da wye nazirulo gunagar amana ba in the sight of heaven and of thee I have become sinful. 273.7. hai.anow nazir dununi he has taken aim at the mark. ina nazirur girni he started aiming. 102.20. Ar.-Pra.

○○○ narila y a gathering of water beneath the skin of the forehead, which is said to produce partial, or complete blindness. gr. Pts. (narlal, narlo).

Nawruz y Nawruz, the Persian New Year, the time of the Vernal Equinox. — Nawruz Hamalo iskiolo eleu they celebrate Nawruz on the third of Hamal. 316.1. Pts.

-ndid -dg y.

a. Breast, chest. — -ndidlin ḍen elar to beat the breast. ondilig dalar* to beat their breasts (in token of mourning). Pts. ginazzal. mendidlin . . . ḍama hirw there was a brooch on her breast. 164.15 ff.

b. Face (or, slope) of hill. — ou . . . ḍan ḍir ondilolo ḍat eleu he made the boulder stop on the slope (of the hill). 204.7.

ne . . . ne, ne . . . ne neither . . . nor. — ne ḍir . . . ne ḍor neither that one nor this. ne kayar bi ne lodlo ḍengalo bolé neither in the horse (there) nor in the king in his palace. 10.6.

nidhaif, nidhaif fortunate, lucky. — nidhaif dimonlani he has been born fortunate. 98.1. Cp. 100.18. Pts.

nidi v. nidi.

nenaberi y tent-pegging. (Cp. nire). — nenaberi elar they tent-peg. 216.11. Pts.

neyulter EOL Pps. of eyulteran, q.v. upside down (lit. having inverted). — neyulter ere put it upside down. EOL.

nerian Pps. Ind. sg. m. of -ardeyan.* 208.11.

nerul Pps. with Ind. sg. Pt. Indo of -anilan*, intentionally (i.e. looking with one's eyes open). — nerul dere elar I did the thing intentionally 000 [illegible] IUB Fpa. v.t. having melted (s.t.). H. galeda. (Fpa. of [illegible]).

[illegible] Fpa. of *-[illegible] with Pa. infix -4- having said to him.
*-qgi in front of. — 12 barada ŋgi for divini he set up twelve stones in front of himself. 168.18.
*-qgiwa Adj. front. — gowon ŋaŋgiwa [illegible] our lower front teeth, incisors. ŋaŋgiwa over my front teeth.
601 *-qgo, pl. *-qgoiawo, hm. uncle (paternal and maternal). H. ŋaŋa, [illegible]. — ŋgbatu ŋaŋgo my maternal uncle. Cp. 'ŋgon. 14.14. [illegible] "ŋaŋgo.ale ni" [illegible] (my) mother saying: "go to your uncle" (father's brother) ... 192.10. kin ŋaŋgo go [illegible] a brother of her mother, or her own brother, i.e. a maternal uncle or a brother of hers. 306.1. ŋaŋgo [illegible] present given to bride's maternal uncle(s).
000 ni (occurring as a particle after a verb) ..., or not? — gö ja kuda kia ni? is the bear in my house or not? 230.1. (Correct the footnote to the passage). kaŋov mili maimi.a, ni? perhaps it will be a remedy will it not? 356.14. (Extend the text). Thaw Ali.lahadu di kuia ni? has the Thaw come to Allahad or not?

It may be used with a rude effect: [illegible] kalalw [illegible], ni? When are you going to go? Will you tell me that?

-qi pl. *-qiiq; N. *-qge pl. *-qgiiaq; y beard. — gorqi pulwi may your beard be burnt! (a woman's curse). ŋgi kowow [illegible] kaki he has become white-beard, i.e. he is a grey-beard, old man. kiw kowow ... pulkwaniqi, ŋgi.a kup pulwai he will take tax of the beards of all the champions. 92.20. 000

niṛas v. niṛas.

niṛaf, niṛaf y purpose, intention, willing, prayer. — wṛṛ niṛaf darkanimi your purpose has come straight, i.e. been fulfilled. 42.9. niṛaf ṛe willing it. 180.15. niṛaf ximi he vowed. 180.19. yomiṛas niṛaf ṛeṛan saying the prayer for the washing of the dead. 310.6. (niṛaf is technically the "vow or declaration of the intention to perform prayers", Hughes, "Dictionary of Islam" s.v. niyat). Ar. Pers.

niṛik Pya. of *-ṛ.ṛas with 3rd. sg. m. & a object.

niṛeṛṛaf extremely, extremely, very. 276.4. Ar. Pers.

niḳ'a y solemnizing of the marriage contract, marrying. Ar. nikāḥ. — ṛaṛas ḳiṛe ḳ dasimas niḳa ṛiṛar when the mullah has solemnized the marriage of the youth and the girl. 302.14. dasimas ḳa niḳaṛ ṛe dromimi celebrating his marriage with the girl he brought her, i.e. he married the girl and brought her in (to Gilgit). 180.11. ḳiṛ niḳa ḳiṛumṛas gaṛiṛ ṛeṛiṛi probably: a man of whom there has been one marriage (i.e. who has been once married), makes him put on his clothes. 300.7. Ar. Pers.

niḳiṛar for niṛar q.v. 338.11.

niṛḳiṛat v. neṛḳiṛat.

niṛi, neṛi y (news) good. — jotaṛas niṛi ṛaṛas ḳiṛ good is going to come (to you) from me. 90.12. Cp. Prov. 41 & 42. Pers.

niṛiṛ, niṛiṛ, Pya. of piṛas.

niṛ s indigo, indigo-blue. — niṛ diṛeṛas to extract(?) indigo. niṛ ṛiṛumi blue spots. 300.10. 278

Indigo is said to be injected with a needle as a cure for a swollen finger, and also to be given to a child or horse with a cough, to drink. Fra. 278 nirw Sh. Fr. of niyas.

nimarz y prayers. — nimarz ciaz to say, or perform, the Muslim prayers. nimarz yalai loi he is reciting, reading, the prayers. Cp. 310.13. Fra. 000 nrw.ch kurwai y treachery, disloyalty. — ikanar nrw.ch kurwai zimi he practised disloyalty towards the Thum. Fra. (+ Ar.).

niw.ra.

1. Fpa. of *-m.ra.ra with Fn. Infix i-.
2. 3rd. pl. Pret. of niyas.

niwa'ar N. -ęą y story. Cp. Hz. nain.ar.

nimera Fpa. 1st. pl. of niyas. 248.6.

n'iqar Fpa. of *-zwr.ar with Fn. Pf. i-.

n'iron.ąą, -ało, nironarqała a rainbow. — nirom.ąą wali bi a rainbow has appeared (lit. has fallen). nirom.ąąło gi.a bi.o rainbows have appeared (giyai.ra) (lit. come down). 821

It is said that something comes down from the skies to drink. It drinks and goes up again, legs up and head down. It leaves a pot (k.ishw) behind.

nirom.ąą dewi bi the rainbow has come out.

(Cp. Sh. nerora || bijora, rainbow).

nziorn -ęą y sign, token, mark, Ba. kaiyan. — iliranda kar.ągała kan nziorn.an bila there is a mark between his eyebrows. 92.2. Cp. 198.1. Fra. 000 niyas. ni.as, nii-, Impr. ni, Fpa. n*-n (and n*-.an). Sh.pr. nirm

1. To go (in all aspects); go, depart from; go, proceed to; (absolute) go away, go off.

For forms see the paradigm § 194.

000 The point of departure, which is seldom expressed in the texts, takes the ablative suffix -tsum (-ʊ..ı).

The destination usually takes the dative suffix -ər, which may be in combination, as in: -ʌlər, -ʌʃər and -tsər.

With persons the suffix -ʌlɛ, -ʌlər is used, and with both persons and animals the postposition -ʌpʌčər.

The verb is often used absolutely.

In the negative, niyʌs takes only the prefix ʊ-.

hʌnik Baltitum Altitər niʊn ničai he goes with the bowl from Balt to Altit. 212.21. Kubad doni.a tsum nimi K. went from the worl i.e. departed this life. 92.22 akolatsum dʌfa numa ni clear out and go from here. 140.14 (The abl. is perhaps dependent on dʌfa numa).

Gʌntsupər teʊər nimi he went to the G. pastures. 204.3. Cp. 92.25. imo hʌlər nimi he went (to his) home. 68.10,17. Cp. 302.11. imu sis nimi Buzur Jʌmhur ʊpʌčər the man went to B. J. 76.2. Cp. 64.8, 102.15,23, 368.3. šʌdər nimi padšalər the servant went to the King. 76.7. Cp. 136.26. nujumʌlɛ nimi he went to the astrologer. 102.4. Cp. 368.7. sindʌʃər nimi he went to the river(side). 264.24. Cp. 68.5. hiŋtsər nimi he went to the door. 64.2, 286.1.

2. When the purpose or object of the going is mentioned it is expressed in the Dative. When such complement is a dependent final ḋiḋer derwar nirwar they went to the mountain for game, hunting. 280.4. Perwo yabiḋer ni ḃi . P. had gone for firewood. 212.3. Cp. 74.22. ḃeḋa ḋiḋer nirwar Qoy go to play polo. 292.8. Cp. 86.24, 112.28, 118.8, 124.9, 162.14, 204.5, 206.9.

000 clause, the verb of that clause is expressed in the form of the present base + ar.

Similarly the Infinitive + er may be used:

helpa ṁwaḋa ṁner nirwi he went outside to play. 284.9. Cp. 124.10.

2. Used absolutely:

ge ni, fner nedwa ḋiḋo nwo go, and going quickly fetch it. 60.4. Very many examples could be quoted; cp. 64.12, 70.8, 74.9, 94.5,19.

4. nigar is sometimes employed where in English the verb "to come" would rather be used:

ḋwapor zaher nirwi news, reports, went (i.e. came) to the Arabs that . . . 90.2. wazir 'enimi ḃi if the Wazir hasn't come . . . 238.16.

5. To pass, elapse (of time).

berwar ṁanteig nirwi some days passed. 166.10. ṁḋi den nirwfawa after 2 years had passed. 92.26. Cp. 56.11, 86.19.

The Static Participle nirwa is used in the sense of "past", "last".

nirwa dawa a past affair.

nirwa den the past year, last year.

nirwa hinn last month.

kwlto nirwa fap last night.

6. The verb -arar*, to send, acts as the Causative of nigar.

jirtowa ewrḋi it will make me go from life, i.e. despatch see 74.16. wow dwalat yewlatf dawrigalo ewlwal ○○○ he has made your wealth go in evil works, i.e. squandered 11. 270.10.

Cp. the transitives ol wiyat and wulak wiyat.

7. A few special uses and idioms may be mentioned: Pga. of gawat, gawat + wiyat to go, taking . . . i.e. to go off with, to take away. (wuzd) wakat hawrwfar ewwl he went off with the gold to the bazar. 60.20. Cp. 94.1, 98.5, 212.21. law ugalo wiyat to go in between pass. law pawlaig law ugalo ewallawn after many days had not passed, i.e. after an interval of not many days. 288.5. ja k' urg law ugalo ewwl everything is over between us. 98.8. -gawlat* (-gawlar*) wiyat to go to meet, or receive, someone. gawlar wilwn let ta go to meet him. 90.8,7. Cp. 94.11 ff. wiyat . . . jawat coming and going, traffic. ede gaw wawla bila, ate wiyat bila jawat bila the road is in order, there is coming and going of people, i.e. traffic, on it. EOL.

IUD gives the phrases:
wiwr hawa, H. jawar ho tha, he had to go(?). wiwr wawaha, H. jawar ho hoga, it will be necessary to go(?).

8. wiyat occurs as a component in verbal compounds with:
bal, berl, tal, tikl, yalal, wulak, and brag, v. s.vv.

9. The following are some references to forms occurring in the texts:
Pot. sg. 1. wiłam 264.17, 280.11, 288.8, etc.
2. wiłwno 144.16.

Fut. sg. 2. m. [illegible] 180.8, 194.4, 206.2 etc.
[illegible] 194.13.
f. [illegible] 202.8.
pl. 1. [illegible] 4.10, 94.18, 190.10 etc.
2. [illegible] 206.7, 202.18, 204.1 etc.
Pres. sg. 1. [illegible] 10.13, 142.14, 264.21.
2. [illegible] 130.20.
3. m. [illegible] 133.1, 212.21, 214.9 etc.
pl. 3. [illegible] 126.13, 206.16, 219.11 etc.
Impf. sg. 3. m. [illegible] 22.19.
n. [illegible] 238.18.
pl. 3. [illegible] 16.20.
Pres. sg. [illegible] 20.8.
2. [illegible] 164.19.
3. m. o [illegible] 4.1, 30.9.
f. [illegible] 108.11, 192.11. 196.7, 202.3 etc.
pl. 1. [illegible] 194.11.
2. [illegible] 192.3, 200.2, 208.8,9 etc.
Fut. sg. 3. f. [illegible] 26.10.
y [illegible] 30.21.
Disp. sg. 1. [illegible] 16.11, 20.11.
pl. 3. [illegible] 296.4.
Impr. sg. 2. [illegible] 38.16, 76.16, 140.18 etc.
pl. 2. [illegible] 130.22, 134.9 etc.
[illegible] 24.3, 196.7.
-i Forms [illegible] 294.14 Cp.
[illegible] you go.
[illegible] I let him go.
Pl. 2. [illegible] 118.1.
Fpr. sg. 1. [illegible] 42.18, 180.5, 264.10. etc.
[illegible] 42.20, 168.12

000 Pyn. sg. 1. [illegible] 98.19, 99.10, 72.10, 74.9,6, 264.24 etc.

3. m. [illegible] 6.8, 192.9, 260.13 etc.
[illegible], [illegible] 20.10, 250.18, 266.3 etc.

f. [illegible] 108.20, 194.20, 198.12 etc.

pl. 1. [illegible] 40.19, 268.6, 250.11 etc.
[illegible] 122.10.

2. [illegible] 198.11. 246.9, 256.12 etc.
[illegible] 28.4.

3. [illegible] 104.18, 260.5, 294.14 etc.
[illegible] 24.11, 114.26, 122.3,19 etc.

Sg. pr. [illegible]. The vowel is invariable. There is not an indeed pronoun as in the Pyn.

For examples of the uses of the form see §§ 271, 272.ii, 279.b,c, 193, 197.

For [illegible], past, see under b above.—[illegible] ella ar [illegible] after 12 months had passed. 108.9. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] above she was keeping the reckoning from her husband's departure. 56.10. Cp. 212.18. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] . . . (in front of) those six sons-in-law of the King who had gone on ahead. 124.4. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a fugitive. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the place to which he had gone for gone." 26.4.

It is doubtful whether [illegible] has the meaning of the static participle or is deliberative or optative in: [illegible] [illegible] you who have gone, or, may you go, to your daughter(s). 126.4,14.

000 In addition to the ablative form of niwa (see examples immediately above), we find the dative form niwane:

ve niwane when they had gone, 119.8. Ikhavi pakalaje niwai. Niwane ... he went towards the fort. On his going towards it ... 192.13. Cp. 228.3.

niwa occurs once with the postposition ka:

ve niwaka (niwa ka?) when they went, or had gone. 126.13.

Present Base + ne, niine, 94.21, 112.23, 222.5. V. § 406.

Preterite + ḿeno, negative: ovaiḿeno. Only twice recorded: 304.5, 373.6. V. § 407.

Infinitive. ni..ne, niyane..V. §§ 202. f. niyane when he (etc.) had gone. 108.24, 180.8, 252.8, 282.19, 296.1 etc. Ḿenavaḿeno niyane vakā ohiai he decided to depart from Hunza. 272.14. Cp. 279.5. Ikert manimi niyane gane he sprang up to go off. 142.25. niyanlo at the time of going: 10.15, 198.13.

Negative forms:

Fut.	sg. 1.	ovaiḿen 32.1.
Impv.	sg. 2.	ovai 120.26, 264.20, 280.11.
	pl. 2.	ovain 280.13.
Impf.	pl. 3.	ovaiḿen 228.3.
Pret.	sg. 3. m.	ovaiḿi 238.18.

niin -ooda s lance, spear. — niin niwa carrying a lance. 294.16. Cp. 236.14. Cp. nevadaro. Fm.

nuvā heat, flesed. — 'ahig uvingig daṇ nuvā ṭoṇā (or, ṭoṇā) ovawa for a little while they flex and stretch out the legs and arms (of the dead bodies). 310.3.

nokor, -ñiq, -ñin, kin servant. 373.17,35. ooo Cp. ñoker. Pm.

nokori y nerim. — Gerdin nokoriñin hawdimi he remained in the service of the King. 3.7. Pm.

ngi -ñin an animal something like a small weasel. They sometimes frequent houses and are harmless and considered lucky.

(Cp. Pukt. nrin weasel, mongoose; Punj. nrul mongoose).

nowe Pya. of -ne.ne* with pa. infix -n- having said to them.

-nin*, pl. -ninduere*, -ninrorin*, -ninin*, hf. father's sister, paternal aunt. H. phuphi. Also: mother's brother's wife. — in ninindawe O my father's sisters. 266.5. ooo nojawe -ñiq kin. astrologer, diviner, fortune-teller. — nojawañin ninni he went to the astrologer. 102.4. E.

At 102.5 rumañi is used as a synonym.

nojawñiq astrologers, diviners. 102.168.

nojawe kawñi hewñim, he knew, was skilled in, astrological calculations. 50.7. Ar. Pm.

nokowtajin Pya. of pewtan.

nokan, nokn Pya. of pakan.

nokow Pya. Inf. sg. of nijan.

nokowtan Pya. Inf. sg. of -pekiyan*.

nokowtin Pya. of pekiyan.

nokowtkin Pya. of pekupkan.

nos'a (nosiete) having said, saying. Ro. nosen.

(Cp. Wanji- nosiet, having said, which belongs to a Verb nsian-, nsii-).

nosa y debet. — Ianyore ñawan nosa'ñila? what debt has the horse? Ar. Pm.

nosijen Pya. of keñjaiyan.

nsiñan Pya. of -ñinjan*.

nomowen Fpa. of *-ɨnan with Fn. Indir -ene- having said to her.

nere, nerein.

1. Fpa. of *-ɨgan to give with pn. indir -e-, having given to them.
2. Fpa. Rrd. pl. of eijan to go, they having gone.

neparre y damage, harm, injury. — neparre eyi there's no harm. nemmer neparre elan epi it hurts no one. hinner neparre hile he is (will be) injured. 110.12. Ar. Fm.

nenne, nennelan Fpa. of *-elan with Fn. Indir -ene-.

nere y beauty. — hin ejoi.th nere he gatan a woman of wonderful beauty. 24.4. Ar. Fm.

nep/epapin Fpa. of hepepyan.

nenen Fpa. of nenan.

nöl'ɨyan, nel'ɨyan, Fpa. of dɨyoi.an, concealing oneself, so vetly, stealthily. 22.1.

neperlin Fpa. of perlan.

*-ege N. v. *-ej.

nyu.'ɨnin Fpa. of *-ɨnɨl.an with Fn. Indir -i-. nyawein Fpa. of *-ɨgan with Fn. Indir -i-, having given to him.

P.

Initending pf and ph. Compare also f.

pa y side, direction. — ɨrle pa that side. pele pa, ikirle pa, ikwele pa, this side. parpa forward, in front. 122.18, 252.10—12. hɨrlpa outside. s. o.v. hɨnpa one side, aside. hɨnpa (Log) mɨnu get to one side. ja hɨnnan hɨnpa mɨnɨw those who are for me, get to one side. 26.19 E. anɨnan hɨnpa ebɨnnan they settled the case. anɨnan hɨnpa mɨnɨnɨ the case was settled.

The Dative appears to be pɨr, pfer:

○○○ hurutz ritsu par ofuzum ryumurulu dik ofisi the arrow not having come out he that side stuck in his innards. 148.11. Cp. 86.14. pfal pa the blunt side, i.e. the back (of a knife). hirum pa the sharp side, i.e. the edge (of a knife).

(Cp. 1. pafi and -.ap.ri, also -.ipal).

parji -mig y season. — harkia parji m.ssawar when the cultivating season has come. 206.12.

(Cp. Sh. parj. pal half-month, 15 days. I have also the expression ovurlu pal summer season).

pardin, ,hardin, pl. pardinkarutig king. "Tm. Nom." padin. 74.22; Gen. pardin. 30.20, 42.1; Dat. padinv. 74.22; Abl. padinlasun. 30.22, 42.19; padinla. 76.8; padinylar. 76.7; Plur. 92.5, 96.2. Pro.

pargzas v. pakiras.

pfirk -ala n fig (fruit).

pfirk, -ilig, y fig tree. (Cp. Sh. pfirk, fig).

park N. -rula clean. Pro.

pakiras, parkiar, p'argzas, EOL. p.ayas. Clean (of clothes etc.); pure (of water); beautiful, fair, handsome; blank (of paper). — hin kurl parkiras gawan a very beautiful woman. 22.15. Cp. 160.5. pakiras jawaru ilam he was a handsome youth. 202.7. Cp. 284.2. ok pakiras ,tirysitig ,mazini they (the foot-bandages) will become nice and soft. 126.22. gula dit kara p.ayas bila this place is nice and clean. EOL. (With p.ayas cp. Khv. p.ayas, p.aqa clean). Pro.

pfarl ef.as, cp. pfal ef.as to throw (upon). — p.ar.i: lakpinan pfarl efisi he put a handkerchief over his head. 148.24. (Cp. 3. pfal).

pforlij paralysed. — pforlij hai.i he is paralysed. pforlij ma.nai.i he has become paralysed. Ar. Pra. 'forlij.

palow, pl. palowo x two pieces of goat's hair cloth (forma ber) sewn together. (Cp. Pra. palow; Wkh. palva, Kho. palak, palak goat's hair cloth).

palwa.ra, palw.ara, pahl.waara, pahlwara, -rig km. champion, hero. 144.20 ff., 184.18 ff., 176.9. Pra.

pfaltao, pf.altao, -mato x bag.

1. pfarw.ra, pharw.ra, farw.ra, parw.ra; phai-, fai-, pai-. Neg. pref. o-. to grow (of human beings, animals, trees etc.), to swell.

   Fut. sg. 1. poigaw.

   Pres. sg. 3. m. phai.i hai.i; y phai.i hile.

   Pret. sg. 1. parw.aw.

   Perf. sg. 3. m. pfarwai.i,
   pl. 3. y pf'arwiřa.

   tum pfarwile the tree has grown.

   tsej pharwaw krilla.ra a newly-grown twig (on a pollarded tree).

   rus pwla.dwaw gwla pa.ówa he, growing from day to day. 110.17.

   ei pharwile my lip has swollen.

   ti pharwile his lip has swollen.

   -.ra pfarw.ra one's heart swells, i.e. to be distressed, vexed; to lack one's wind, suffocate, gasp. ra pfai.ihi I suffocate v.i.

   For Prov. 16 read:

   tsilw.ai.ilo (or, tselwarilo) tam dalji, halluma marje ra farwai the (inflated) skin (for swimming with) swims, the skin-bag on the wall suffocates (or, is vexed).

2. pharw.ra, parw.ra, pai- to trickle (past an obstruction). — tsil pharwile the water has trickled through (said when an irrigation channel has been blocked up, but a little water continuss to leak thro' and trickle down the channel). 000

*-pfawts pl. x cock's spur.

pfaw, phaw variants of 1. pfar-.

pfawtsin v. pfartsin.

pfirsi *-ufus, or *-chiwus, v.t. to hang (a person). H.

pfird[1] measure to exude (in small quantity). — ine dimolum dai pfird mati bilo, oil exudes (or, sweats) from the stone. 290.10.

pfird projecting, protruding: in sight, visible. — Ane sindzus hirl ne pfird bem (the end of) a beam was projecting out (from the wall). 174.8. Paqte phird manimi P. came out, came into sight. 132.5. gatte pfird ne bermimi putting out his head (from behind the stones) he looked. 148.15.

parpo -mig y wedge (as used for keeping on the head of a polo-stick, and for keeping open the partially-split log used as stocks). — ene bamar arigmig ordilum. Nordil ite parpomig dimain fat ormum They fixed (the culprits') hands in the log. Having fixed them there and withdrawing the wedges, they left them there. 66.17. gayatzmlo chamare parpo gordiljum "I'll drive an iron wedge into your head" (an expression of anger or abuse).

1. pati, no pl., y side; party, faction. — sindzhum itum (or, ite) pati the other side of the river, across the river. ho ite patia dai Hunzaur dumimi then he went up the other side (of the river) to Hunza. 276.12. da iljum pati gurimo dilar ilji gawts then gallop back to your own place on the side behind (you). 150.2.

[1] A [see corrigenda at addenda, category 116, p. 543-Analyst]

paṣi ṣaṣi manaunum they have divided up into parties. (-ṣ- QUR. Cp. pa: ṣu: -ṣpaṣi, but also Sk. pakṣa-). 000

2. paṣi share, portion. — hoṛ paṣi hoṛkoṛ ṣi'ṣrṣ ṣhimi he appropriated the larger share of the land for himself. 20.5. kam paṣi the smaller share.

3. paṣi -ṣiṣ, N. pkaṣi -ṣ y.

a. Cotton cloth, calico, Panj. Lajjha. — pakṣ paṣu cotton cloth. ṣaṣi uṣṭi ṣaṣ paṣu paṣuṣ three or four sts of cotton clothes. 204.10. manṣṣaṣ paṣi sized cotton cloth. 204.6. paṣi ṣuṣ shdow she was sewin; cotton cloth.

b. Woman's cotton shirt. — kam pṣi.ṣm a woman's shirt. 206.4. (Cp. Sh. parsin, cotton cloth).

*-pfaṣi, -fṣṣi, -ṣuṣ x hoof. — ṣaṣṣṣ ipfaṣi cloven-hoof. ṣaṣṣṣ, ṣṣṣṣ ipfaṣi two-, hind-, hoof. ṣfaṣṣṣṣṣṣṣ ṣṣṣṣṣṣṣṣ ṣṣṣṣṣṣṣṣ him the hoofs too were of gold. 94.28. ṣpfaṣṣṣṣṣṣṣ 184.6, 184.5.

(In Sh. pfaṣṣṣ, or pfaṣṣṣ'a, ṣṣṣṣṣṣ, to kick; possibly connected with this?).

paṣṣṣṣ, paṣṣṣṣ pertaining to the side. — *ṣṣṣ kam paṣṣṣṣ ṣṣṣṣṣṣṣṣ

000 there are (several) grains of barley. enko ga tsio pfalonga three or seven grains. 328.10. hari.s pfal weka the barley having formed grain. 336.4. Cp. 144.1, 164.16.

(Cp. pfal's. Also Sh. pfal, fruit).

2. pal, pal senseless, unconscious, intoxicated (from eating s.t. good), H. berkard, m.dikard. — pal ommo hoigom I had become unconscious.

3. pfal, pfarl, fal, phal °-alas to throw. — hirlo phal oft throw it here. ewo hiv Kinoro ritsfo pfal ne ewo harlar dolmini Kinor, throwing the man over his shoulder, brought him to his home. 184.5. ganafo Lalpiran pfarl ohimi he threw a handkerchief over his head 145.24. ewo phas talasumuto gafo fal ortuman the people threw the fire torches on the top of him. 394.12.

(V. s.v. pfarl. Cp. Sh. pfarl, farl, phari thorki to throw).

4. pfal m.mare to mount (a horse etc.). — kayorafo pfal m.moimi he mounted (his) horse. 146.18. Cp. 158.22.

(Cp. Sh. pfal, phal, berki to mount).

palorni N., cp. falorni and falorni, so and so.

pfalogi syphilitic. — pfalogi hoisi he is syphilitic pfalogi m.hoisi he has become affected by syphilis.

(There seems to be some uncertainty as to the exact nature of the disease denoted, as it was also explained to me by the Ar. Pvs. jogorni, leper, and haran, leprosy.

The meaning "syphilis" is, however, corroborated by McK, GH and Leitner, and in Sh. I have also recorded pfal ogi with the meaning "syphilis"). Pvs. (faragi).

000 ɣɣal'al wanare di atse v.i. & t. to turn over and over, to roll over and over (of log etc.).

(Cp. Sh. falal berki v.i. to roll along).

ɣfal'o, phal'o, y pl., double pl. - ,, grain (collective). — ɣfalo berzan ɣyon give me a little grain. 138.29. Cp. 140.4. ɣfalorig wazi'mi.e he? (probably means) have there been large quantities of grain, or not?

With suffix -ä:

berki ɣfalorä derworto? what kind of grain do you want? ja ɣfalorä gwi'wazam I have given you the grain. 60.1, but here perhaps the -ä is for ke "also", or emphatic particle.

V. also dipiɣyas and dimiɣyas s. vv. Cp. 60.12, 342.7,12.

(Cp. 1. ɣfal, also Sh. phorlo, fruit).

ɣfälɣfal v. pfaɣal.

phalborig N. y pl. pottles. (-borig — ka-o'ig?).

pamir, pamer, -ig y "pamir", upland pasture. 152.8, 158.22.

ɣfamal, phamal x sg. and pl., d. pl. -ato, N. pl. -rato fruit. — ɣfamal bi, ɣfamal bi.e. jivi ɣfamal delicious fruit ("life's fruit"). ka.i'vamo dwaro ɣfamal this year's fruit.

(Cp. Sh. ɣfamal, fruit).

ɣfanfer black and white, piebald. — ɣfanfer ya black and white cow.

panir x cheese. — panir bi there is cheese. Pm.

ɣfan'ira, pl. ɣfan'irdo.

1. x chopping-board or block (for chopping up meat on).
2. h The man who cuts up the victims of witches (bilaki) and distributes their flesh.

ji bilaṣo pʃaṇiṇ hoiyam I was the witches' butcher and meat-distributer. 224.6. ○○○

3. The name of one of the demon-dancis of the Bijan Shongaker.

(In its first and second meanings this word corresponds to the Sh. earfa, the title given to a person who accompanies witches when they carry off a victim to feast on him, and on whom the victim is cut up. V. "The Supernatural in the Popular Belief of the Gilgit Region" J. R. A. S. July 1929, p. 531).

pʌnji y the open hand. — hithawa ivinṭ pʌnji bila at one place there is the print of his hand (on a stone). 289.3. Pwi.

pʌnji y enclosure wall round a grave. 206.16. — Cp. mʌsev ôṭa gavi dʌdʌm bila (Alidin Malik's) grave is enclosed round about (with a wall. 220.8. This was described as being a pʌnji.

(Cp. Kho. pʌnji, pʌnji, a heap of stones made as a memorial, a cairn).

pʃʌṇ, phʌṇ, mʌsev to push, press forward.

According to QUB this is an indecent expression denoting the imitation of the act of copulation by two women or children.

ôiṭʌṇ pʌniṇʌnṭa hikiwʌṭi pʃʌṇ mutiḍhow. Cp. ôarpum pʃʌṇ the name of a kind of bird that bobs up and down on the millet crop.

pʌṇkʌṭ small change (money). V. s.v. d°-ʌṇṇʌṭʌm. 2.

pʃʌpʌl, phʌlpʃʌl ôtʌ v.i. to wave, wag. — lʌggin pʃʌpʌl ôtʌ to wave a handkerchief. hoke ôumʌl pʃʌpʌl ôti the dog is wagging its tail.

(This is a reduplicated form of a ɣfsl manare, sfas, with the same meaning).

ɣfspar manare, & sfas v.i. and v.t. to turn round, revolve, spin round.

(A reduplication of 1. ɣfar. Cp. also Sh. ɣfspar barshi v.i. to spin round).

phaqia, ɣfaqia, ɣfaqra, pl. ɣfaqishiq y.

1. A split and stoned apricot which has not yet become dry.

   (wo ile phaqia burum ho hafar mai.shila when the apricot phaqia has dried it becomes hafar. QUB.

2. The sedimentary remains of dried apricots when they have been rubbed down in water to make chamma. — hafariq chamos di.as pure chamum hafarar "phaqia" ne.thera. QUB.

3. A depreciatory qualifying word used of apricots.

   (wo phaqia(.as) ofis? want you eat some apricots of sorts? QUB.

1. ɣfar, fir turning, revolving. — ɣfar manare v.i. to revolve, twist round. gili farfar mai.i hum the peg used to twist round and round. 196.1.

   ɣfar *-sfas v.t.

   a. To twist, turn over. — fur ɣfar sfas to twist two strands to make warp yarn. sikhma ser ɣfar shmi he twisted the silk thread. je gafa fir na saqa ho lo if (they) having turned me over, I am lying on my back. 218.9. Cp. 212.1.

   b. V.t. to change into, turn into.

   c. V.t. to change, exchange.

tale galt ɣfar ofam he used to change the turn of the water. 282.4. ja ine lei burkai.i fir ola ho I have exchanged land with him.

(Cp. Sh. firarshi v.t. to turn).

000 2. gfor, ghor, for, gfor. Adv. back. — gfor manore to come back, go back, return, retreat, turn back. ekirlimon ɔ́ʃi ne ɔ́ŋ yakilɛ́ ne gfor manyore nonu gfor manumon. gfor nonon ʌ́ŋyor eyɔ́nɔ́vini. (The king) saying "let us turn back towards the palace" they turned back. On their turning back, he put his horse to the gallop. 8.2. gfor nonu gɔ́ɔ́ ɔ́ŋye naka padɛ́ ewɔ́ɔ́wɔ́ɔ́ dɔ́nɔ́n returning with ("taking") this report, they came to the King's son-in-law. 130.22.

gfor nonu may mean simply "back": gfor nonu ninui he went back. gfor nonu divui he came back.

gfor may be reinforced by ɔ́ʃi: ɔ́ʃi gfor manore to retire, draw back, retreat. Cp. 8.19, 12.14, 40.4, 54.9, 144.12. gfor ᵊ-ɛ́ɛ́ɛ́ to make go back, repel. dɔ́nɔ́n for ɔ́ɛ́ɛ́ to repel, drive back, the enemy. wɔ́ɔ́ ʌ́ɔ́kɔ́n for ɔ́kɔ́rɔ́ ʌ́ɔ́ I have not rejected your commands (for you), I have not disobeyed your orders. 374.8.

There is an idiomatic use of gfor in which it refers to the return of a particular day or date on the completion of a cycle of time.

jwɔ́ɔ́ Bir'ɛ́ɛ́pat { gfor / gfor Bir'ɛ́ɛ́pat } ginɔ́ɔ́ɔ́ ɔ́ɔ́rɔ́n ɔ́rɔ́ɔ́rɔ́n they say they will celebrate the "ginani" next Thursday week.

jimɔ́ɔ́mɔ́ɔ́ gɔ́ɔ́ Bir'ɛ́ɛ́pat gfor this Thursday (which is tomorrow) week . . .

The sentence: — kwɔ́ɔ́mɔ́ɔ́ gɔ́ɔ́ɔ́ɔ́ɔ́ɔ́ gfor gɔ́ɔ́ dɔ́nɔ́n yɔ́ɔ́ʃɔ́ɔ́ kɔ́ɔ́ɔ́ɔ́ ɔ́ɔ́ appears to mean: — reckon from today in the present year up to the 000 ratory of the same day a year hence, i.e. reckon from today wj to this day next year.

(B. yfer is only a special use of 1. yfer).

yfarstara N., yfarstain, pl. -ttigo a one of the four stones surrounding the fireplace in the middle of the floor.

(The ordinary word for these stones is ttelin, pl. ttelyn, but in the sg. there is perhaps a differentiation of meaning, yfarstain denoting the stone on the side towards the store-room, and ttelin that opposite it on the side towards the lovvin seat).

Arra gantanaale ttelin yfarstainate dal third stone on a lucky day they sprinkle oil on the t and on the yf.

302 pavlem Ha. & N. y 1. hair cut in fringe on forehead, 2. the hair worn loose and cut at the level of the neck, or shoulders. — pavl.an maffnatte lev her hair is bobbed (previous stage to growing it long and plaiting it).

(Cp. Kho. pavlam, pavlam, Sh. pavlam fringe). Fra.?

000 pavda pl. pavlay, -mitig? y curtain. Fra.

pavlempow shutterings. Fra.

1. pavi, -ski, -mo, pl. -tig bf. -mate km.

"pavi" is a type of supernatural female approximating to "fairy".

pavi hais "he is a pavi" may be said of a pretty boy.

The use of the pl. pavimate with reference to real women is said to be incorrect.

kin pavi.amen pass for a "pavi". 12.6.

je ina pavimate ardy amanaa I fell in love with that "pavi". 16.10.

286b

we pariliyp ka with those "paris". 10.17.

(Also in Sh. pari female "pari", Khn. pari). Pm

2. pari a exact meaning unknown.

It occurs only in the expression "pari ni" or "ni pari", which denotes a short period preceding sunset when the sun is one "nirsa" (leave-length) above the horizon, till it sets.

The pari ni is divisible into 3 ziwaj. One can say:

kik pariyn ni him, ovin, ovki pari ni him. iw yfari ni ta.i hav ovanaw, tuiyp him the sun not setting, the "pari ni" thus remained as it was (because the Wali had kept the sun from setting). 204.14. ni pariyn dipwanaw when a "ni pari" remains (to sunset). 300.11.

(Cp. perhaps Khn. parsi in: i parsi waxt hayda ohri, a short time, one hour, had passed).

3. yfari -ondi a pond, lake. — onakch kan yfariyn ki in the middle (of the garden) is a pond. 13.13. iw yfaridi, yfaridi in the pond. 12.17, 14.8,10. Cp. 16.18, 18.9, 292.15,24, 294.1.

(Cp. Sh. kari pond).

yfarit, pl. yfari.ondi, -ondi a duck,-water-fowl. — yfaridi hapaw duck's down.

(Cp. Sh. hawaj, duck).

pariknu confused, at a loss. Pm.

parivanum an affection of the bones (due to "paris", not to disease). Pm.

parpit v. harpit.

parkat edge of a plateau, or terrace. — parkat malar du.ainawa they came out into the field over the edge of the terrace. 248.10.

yfartain, yfartain, pl. yfartainoti a cap. — hirinki yfartain man's cap.

gudiski pfərtsin woman's cap. torpo pfərtsin woman's cap, as worn in Hunza; an old man's skull-cap. gudiski matum pfərtsin large loose black cap worn by Nagir women. yafe čuk stum pfawtsin (woman's) cap embroidered on the top. əritsas pfərtsin cap of invisibility. 28.21. pfərtsin yaći čimi he put on the cap. 32.3. Cp. 304.12.

porun y consideration, consequence. — porun əpi there is no harm. bəsk porun əpi it is of no consequence, it doesn't matter. 18.11. Prs.

porunwəli stas (*-astəl) to cherish, look after, provide for. 34.7, 384.2. Prs.

pfask, fask -itaq, -iq y.

1. Harrow. — pfask dadal stas bila it is necessary to harrow (the field).
2. Web (spider's). — pfiyans pfask cobweb.

(Cp. Kho. phask, a kind of harrow).

pasum. The exact meaning of this word is difficult to determine. It probably means, or is an expression denoting, sorrow, regret, disapproval.

It has been glossed as dariy and afsus.

It usually occurs in combination with *-masas and referring to the subject of that verb. The meaning of the combination appears to be variously: to protest, deprecate, deplore, hesitate, grudge.

but yənikšen bai, ja ai.i but daltaasn bo, pasum!-je hinar əiyurdam he is very ugly and my daughter is very beautiful. Fie, for shame! I won't give her to him. 160.22. je uqla pasum amaiya ko I deprecate (the marriage) on your account(?) 160.24. je pasum, jaw yin əiyuso I protest!

000 don't call me a thief.· je pasoʷm amaiyam, guts bor oʷan I protest! don't say this thing. 118.13. je pasoʷm amanam This is said to be said on the occasion of the death of a good man, and is explained as "o ʷuʷ". pasoʷm imanumi ke if he hesitates, grudges (to do so). 152.5. mumupoi čoruk m'oroder pasoʷm imanumi he grudged to cut off her nose (for her). 176.18. uʷg ke guʷu ja xxmatulo maiyuʷ jimičig pasoʷm amamanum di.'uʷuman you and your wife sacrificed (lit. extracted) the lives of your sons in my service without grudging, without repining. 44.23. iʷu yuʷčo yuʷy pasoʷm imanumi his father grudged to hand him over. 106.1.

(Cp. Sh. pasoʷm thoʷrki, to grudge pasuʷoʷrki -tj, to be stingy, grudgin of s.t.).

pfaṭ v. faṭ.

paitimaʷni, psemaʷni y regret, remorse. Prs.

1. pfat, phat v. fat. (phat N. and Gh. Kh. 382.7).

2. pfaṭ, oʷqo, -iko; N. phat. -aʷonts, blunt. — pfaṭ pa back of knife.

(In Sh. fat is used of the back of a knife).

1. pf'ata, fata, -mots x wooden dish, or bowl (bigger than pfuʷ), H. bartan. — miriq boʷltas pfata a bowl for washing the (lit. our) hands in. han pfatanolo diram sčan they make "diram" in a dish (tabaq). 308.1. phatanolo diltor dusoʷ bring buttermilk in a bowl. 328.9. Cp. 340.11.

2. pfata, fata, -mots x cantle (of saddle). — tilianq pfata cantle of saddle.

(Probably same word as 1. pfata.).

288a

000 3. phaf'a Hz. & N. -mûts x wooden receiver below hopper of mill.

(Probably same word as 1. pfata).

4. pfata y, y. fata, victory. Ar. Prs.

pfatasu·ndal x sg. & pl. plate, vessel (for food). (su·ndal, or su·mdal, is I think only an expletive).

pfaṭaŋ, faṭaŋ, phaṭaŋ open — gusu guti phaṭaŋ bi this hut is open (i.e. roofless). EOL. N. kiŋ phaṭaŋ di·la the door is open.

faṭaŋ ṭas to open (cupboard, box etc.), throw open, uncover; undo, or remove, a covering.

(krtarp) pfaṭaŋ ṭimi he opened (the book). 70.9, N. kiŋ pfaṭaŋ ṭti (throw?) open the door. gulčin faṭaŋ ṭ open your eye(s). baṭeŋ faṭaŋ ṭčuman ke when they remove the stones (from over the grave). 218.14. yaʼrs ṭum i·ṭs diṭer nin faṭaŋ ṭimi going to the place where he had buried (his son) he opened it up. 252.9. pfertsin kaman pfaṭaŋ ṭimi he removed, raised, his cap a little. 30.18. ṭskilaṭsum kafan faṭaŋ natan undoing, removing, the shroud from his face. 312.1. Cp. 204.5,7, 206.8.9.

faṭaŋ manaʼs occurs once in: mərakaʼtsum faṭaŋ numa ničai.i leaving the court (in displeasure) he goes off. 120.17.

Perhaps the sense is something like English "flinging out of the assembly".

pfaṭaŋ ṭas was also given as to some extent equivalent to *malak -aras to overturn.

(Cp. Sh. pfaṭaŋ thoʼzki, to knock down, upset; to open, uncover).

288b

000

pfʌtʌq crawling, crawler (of child). — pfʌtʌq məi.i bai.i (the child) is a crawler. (Cp. pfiti·q pfʌtʌq).

pfʌtʌqi percussion-cap. — pfʌtaqi tobʌq percussion-cap gun.

(Cp. Psht. pʌta·xa, Kho. pʌta·xi, pʌtʌxi, percussion-cap).

-ph'ʌfi, N. -pha·ti, v. -fʌfi forehead.

phʌfi·l -iq y Hz.; -rão x N. small hammer. — kili phʌfi·lʌfʌ delimi he hit the nail with a hammer.

(Cp. Sh. fʌti·l big(?) hammer).

phatk'a -mots x lump of certain quantity of butter. A divorcing husband gives one each to the Mir, the Wazir and the four tribal Muqaddams. V. s.v. ·tʌla·q.

pʌfo -mots x a fold of cloth or rug, small piece of cloth or rug. — šərma pʌfo small piece of goat's hair carpet, (equivalent to 3. bər). pfilʌme pʌfo a small piece of woollen homespun. (H. pʌffu?).

paida (in existence). — Xoda.e paida etai.i God has created. jot giyasʌn paida mʌnimi a small child came into existence, made its appearance. 100.2. Cp. 200.7. Prs.

pai.i, pa.i y curds, coagulated milk, H. dʌhi. 340.11.

(Cp. Psht. pa·i milk; Wkh. pai curds; Shughni (Morgenstierne) paĩ, sour milk).

pai.iga horse-race, race-course. — pai.iga dʌs, pai.iga drš race-course (as at Jannbad and Pasu). pai.iga·r čo ečʌm, or, wʌšečʌm I shall race it (the horse). pai.iga gučʌ·n they race them (H. dʌ·lte haĩ).

(Cp. E. Turki, Sh., Kho. pʌga, horse-race).

paisa -mots x "paisa", farthing, money. H

289a

[See corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 544 - Analyst]

pfau stas to throw up, scatter (seed). — bopfauuc pfau stas bo the grain-seed (for the Mir) to scatter at the Bopfau ceremony. 212.22. pfau manas to be scattered, spilt. pfertiŋ ke kanjiel pfau manitan may the ashes and charcoal be scattered! 150.13.

(Cp. bopfau, and pfau fau stas. Sh. pfau thorzki to scatter (seed), sprinkle).

-pauro -mots* x walking-stick, etc. Sh. kunoli.

(Probably a variant of -pfayo*).

peyambor hm the Prophet (Muhammad). 298.5. Prs.

pencikal, pinčkal screwdriver.

(Cp. pičkal). Prs. H.

pferi -mots x whirlpool.

(Cp. Sh. pferi, pfere, whirlpool).

pewandi, QUB piwani, grafted. — pewandi gulab a cultivated (i.e. grafted) rose. Prs.

pfe stas (-stast?*) to slander, defame, H. badnami karna.

(Cp. Sh. pfe thorzki.).

pfelts -iŋ y a small tree, in appearance resembling the "gindauwar", which bears small red berries that are sweet and edible. Sh. gas'ondor.

Sg. & pl. x, d.pl. -ints, the berries of the same.

pferei, pfxrei, ferei plot to murder, conspiracy, high treason.

It is said to be used only of plots against a royalty. It probably only applies where assassination is the end in view.

aiyu.e je (or, jaw) asqanasor pfere.i stan my sons have plotted, or conspired, to murder me. 260.17. Basiŋ Gerior ferei stasor gušuginumau they took counsel with a view to plotting against B. G. (plotting the assassination of). 276.8.

000

Cp. 344.14, also with the dative of the person aimed at.

(Cp. Sh. pferc.i, hostility, treachery).

pf'ɛrɔ, ferɔ, pl. pferrutiŋ hm one who plots to murder, traitor, conspirator.

(Cp. pferci. Also Sh. pf'ɛrɔ, opponent, hostile; Kho. phɛrɔ, insubordinate, conspirator(?), traitor(?)).

pf'ɛrutsiriŋ assassin stock, traitor stock (pferɔ + tsiriŋ).

peš N: -miŋ y blade of knife(?).

peš -iŋ y disc of metal applied to anything.

phɛrʒo -muts x pear (fruit).

phɛrʒo pl. pɛ'ʒumiŋ y pear-tree.

pf'ɛtiŋ y pl. ashes. — tik pfɛtiŋ dɛlumʌn they pelted him with earth and ashes. 284.23. Cp. 150.10,13, 154.2, 160.10, 314.4.

pfi scooping up and throwing (grain etc.) with the two hands together; miller's fee paid in flour. — yai.iŋgu.inɔr sɔrmuts ki hičuli pfi giyʌs dʌstur bila it is the custom to scoop up one measure of grain per bag for the miller. 334.3.

(Cp. fi which is the same word. Perhaps this word belongs to the Kho. series phi, pfi, piu, etc. shovel).

pi.ɑ'da footman, on foot. — isken sis pi.ɑ'da jučʌn three persons are coming along on foot. 36.8. Prs.

pi.ɑ'la, pi.ɑ'li -muts x cup (of every kind). Prs.

pi.ʌqmɔr QUB, pi.ʌkhmɔr, pi.ʌxmɔr (festival of bringing in the harvest to the threshing-floor, harvest-home.

Celebrations are held in the gardens and there used to be drunken dances of men and women.

000 ginaɔni ni ɑltolɑnmo piɑkhmɔr ɕćaɔn two days after the "ginaɔni" they bring in the crops (or, celebrate the piɑkhmɔr). 330.11.

(The word is said to be a corruption of paiγɑmbɔr).

piɕaɔri y heel-rope (of horse). H.

(A mere borrowing from H. not acknowledged by QUB).

piɕu N. mosquito. — piɕu ćoruɔt ɑtimi a mosquito bit him.

(Cp. Sh. pʃiɕo, mosquito).

pʃilɑm, -ićiŋ, N. -iŋ y "pattu" (i.e. woollen home-spun). — pʃilɑmɑn bila there is a piece of pattu. pʃil'ɑmićiŋ gɑʃɑmoɔrɑs ΓɑtoɔsiŋGh. the pattu-washer.

pilp'ili, p'ilili, -miŋ y.

1. A single splinter of wood used as a torch. p'ilili en ɑti.
2. Adj. a beloved only (child). hin pilili ɑɔi baiɑi he is my one and only son.

phɑlta v. filta.

phɑlɑdaɔr Hz. & N. -iʃo x matchlock (gun). (Ar. Pra.).

pʃimiŋ y pl. ripples.

1. pʃin, phin, IUB fin, pl. pʃiyo x fly. — hɑγoɔr pʃin horse-fly. ɑlɑ hɑn phinɑn bi, dɑli there is a fly there, kill it. EOL.
2. pin a measure for oil, IUB H. tel naɔpne ka ɑk paimaɔna.
3. pin, -iŋ, -ɑŋ, y pin. Eng.
4. pin, pin.

a. Adj. hard. — pin mɑnaɔ to become, be, hard. IUB. pin maiɑibɑm he remained hard, firm. H. sɑxt hoɔrɑha tha. IUB. N. pl. pinɑiɔnts x frozen snow which is hard like rock. pin ićhiɔɑs, pin ɑtɑs to harden, or temper, metal. gɑŋi ɑlɑk ni dɑskɔrɑy tshilolo pin ećan heating and hammering the axe-head they temper it in water. QUB. hililam pin ićhi, ya ḍaŋ pin ićhi give it a soft temper, or give it a hard temper. QUB.

290 b

000

b. Noun. y unity, close combination. — pin bilomršo ęćokonik ban they are closely united brothers. QUB. u ure kərʌŋ burṭ pin ełan they have made a close combination among themselves, they are of one mind, H. mutʌfɪq. QUB.

[Cp. Kho. pin, hard, strong, (of man, sunshine, clouds)].

1. phinć, pfinć, (N. phinčṭ) -ko x stick for playing a game with. — bula pinć polo-stick. pfinće yan the handle of a polo-stick. pinćko uyaljam I shall break the polo-sticks. pinćane muriŋe xat mudelimi he struck her on the hand with a polo-stick. 386.15. (Cp. Kho. plinj, plints).

2. pinć, pić, -ko x screw (nail). H. Prs.

pini -miŋ y human leg from knee to ankle, calf (of leg). H. pɪnḍli. — pini.e tin shin bone. pini girkis muscle of calf of leg. (Cp. Kho. pin).

-phinršo*, -pfiinršo*, -finršo* x pl. human hair of the head, H. bal. This word is used regularly of a man's hair, but of a woman's only when it is cut shortish.

ipinršo a man's hair. mupinršo a girl's hair. gupinršo uyulṭan! may the hair of your head be burnt! (a woman's curse Cp. 358.2.

pirpa a minor functionary (of the cooly class) who collects charcoal for the Mir.

pir, -antiŋ, -ršo hm "Pir", spiritual leader, saint. Cp. 332.3. Prs.

1. pfɪrʌn, pfɪrʌ·n, pl. pfɪrʌ'aiyo x spider. — pfɪrʌnɛ pfʌsk spider's web. 000
2. pfi·rʌn small ball (of yarn). — ẓu·ɛ ʌkhuṣumʌn pfi·rʌnʌn a small ball of warp yarn this size.

pirč'ʌ·ʌo -muts x drumstick (for big drum).

pfiri·nč skewer, small scrap (of wood). — γʌši·lɛ pfiri·nč kɛ api there isn't a stick of firewood, there isn't even a scrap of wood. 126.3. γʌši·lɛ pfiri·nč girkis dɛlʌɛ·r kuli kɛ api there isn't even a stick to beat a mouse (rat) with (stock expression).

pf'irkʌnʌs, pl. pfirkʌnʌšo x boil (medical), EOL pimple.

pirkʌnʌs pirkai- to rock, to totter (as of a stone which one is trying to lever out of its position).

(Cp. d-ʌpirkʌnʌs*).

pfirko -muts x basin (used in houses of big people, formerly of wood, now of brass or iron).

pirpi zedoary, H. jʌdwa·r (dʌwa·i ka na·m). — pirpi mʌna·s to be scarce, rare, hard to obtain, H. kʌmya·b hona, na·dɪr hona.

piṣ̌ ɛtʌs to present to, set before. — jʌt gusɛ Nɛ·r Bʌxšmulɛ (kʌrṭi) piṣ̌ ɛtumo the old woman presented the basket to N. B. 382.16. Prs.

piṣ̌hʌlɛl tainted, a little high. — čhʌp piṣ̌hʌlɛl mʌnila the meat has become tainted. 251

Hunza people until March or April eat meat killed in December. The people of Hindi keep meat (breast and ribs) slightly cooked, all the year round, for the use of the Mir.

piṣ̌kʌš -iṇ y screwdriver. QUB. (Cp. pɛrnčkʌš). 000 pfiṭ v.s.v. pfiṭo·i.

piṭʌiyu = biṭʌiyo, pl. of biṭʌn. 378.14.

291 b

000 pfiṭi, phiṭi, -mots x a kind of bread (in thick cakes for keeping or for journeys). — duyusimo pfiṭi "midday bread" (children's midday meal). dirʌm pfitimotsik ev eti make some "pfiti" cakes for him. 182.7. usko čemʌliŋe pfiitimots lʌp 'etimi be put three pieces of poisonous bread in his mouth. 132.19. hʌn pfiti.ʌn one piece of (pfiti) bread. 334.3. pfiti dʌŋ evčai.i he is baking bread. 126.22.

pfʌṭivk mʌnʌv to be annoyed, to be in a huff.

(Cp. Sh. pfʌṭivk, vexed, annoyed).

pfiṭivk pfoṭuvk 'etʌs to open and look at, to rummage about in, search through. — ja 'aŋi.olo kəruvər pfiṭivk pfoṭuvk eti hunt through my beard for lice. 282.9. čhivni pfoṭuvk eči bi the bird pecks and looks at things. QUB.

pfiṭiq pfʌtʌq mʌnʌv to creep, crawl (on all fours, of a baby). — pfiṭivk pfʌtʌq noma gotsərʌs man'imi he became able to crawl about on all fours. 242.20. (Cp. pfʌtʌq).

piṭivriŋ quick. — piṭivriŋ mʌnʌ be quick. piṭivriŋ gavrtsimi he ran quickly.

pfiṭ'oṭi hardship, severity, H. taklif, saxti. — gəvr pfiṭoṭi dim, or, pfiṭ gumʌnəm may you die! QUB.

(Cp. Sh. pivto.i difficulty, obstacle; pivto, tight, narrow).

pfivu fau etʌs to scatter grain. — irivŋʌfʌ bo egimər pfivu fau etimi. When they put the seed on his hand he scattered it. 244.1.

(Cp. pfau etʌs. Also Sh. pi.'u pi.'u, sprinkling).

piuc'ʌn pl. piucai.iŋ y graft. — piucʌn dʌlʌs to graft; piucʌn dʌlum grafted.

000 piwʌnz tom a grafted tree (as opposed to a natural one: "jʌngʌls tom").

(Cp. pewʌndi, and Sh. pibʌ·n). Prs. (paiwʌnd).

pə̄ -mots (x) milk-strainer (made of a circle — cylinder? — of poplar bark filled with straw). EOL. (N.? Not known to QUB).

*-pfo·iŋ -čiŋ y shoulder.

(Comparison suggests itself with Sh. pyô·lo, shoulder-blade, shoulder).

pho·kz niyʌs to pass over goal-stone (of polo ball). — pho·kz nimi (the polo ball) has gone out over the top of one of the goal-stones.

This does not count as a goal, and both parties try to hit it from behind the back-line.

pho·konʌs, pl. pho·konʌšo x blister, swelling preceding the appearance of leaves.

pfo·pos, pl. pfo·pošiŋ y broom, besom. — pfo·posʌfz tʌm sti sweep with the besom.

pfo·poł, pl. pfo·pi.nts, h bastard. — pfopoštʌn d'esmʌnoma thou hast given birth to a bastard. 268.8.

pošoro, pošo·ro, v. s.v. čo·lo, a mere expletive.

poł y pl. bran.

(Cp. perhaps Sh. pfot, Kho. phoł, pfoł etc, husk, rind, skin, (of grain, fruit, vegetables), bran, chaff).

pra·q completely. — jil pra·q manimi the sun has risen fully.

pra·q is said to be when the sun is two "ni·zas" (lance-lengths) up in the sky, given as 7 or 8 a.m. (in October in Gilgit).

pr'a·q duγwi mʌnimi it became nearly full? midday. 132.7.

292 b

prik delʌs, N. prig, to leap, jump, buck. 132.22. — prik *-ʌdilʌs to make jump. prik ed'iljume making (his horse) bound, caracole. 122.21. N. prig delʌs to jump down, or, over. Q00

(Cp. Sh. prik, prig, dorki to jump).

pē pē pē puss, puss, puss! (summons to a cat).

pfu, phu, -miŋ, mičiŋ, -iŋ y fire. — pfu bʌličila, bʌličilam the fire is burning, was burning. V. 1. bʌlaʷs. pfu thʌči, pfu tha bila the fire will go out, has gone out. V. thaiyʌs. pfu estačʌm I shall put out the fire. pfu esta put out the fire. (V. ʷsthayʌs, for which read ʷstayʌs). pfu etʌs to make a fire; pfu ne making a fire. 126.22. pfu espʌlʌs to light a fire. pfu (or, pfu.ʌn) lʌm etʌs to light a fire. pfu lʌm etai.i he has lighted a fire. 126.10. Cp. 26.13, 128.3. 132.6. haʷtse pfu tsimi the house caught fire. V. tsi.ʌs. guki pfuʷor gi throw this (hair) in the fire. 22.10. Cp. 26.14. (hori) pfyu.ʌn pfu.ʌle nesqul toasting a little (barley) at the fire. 328.9, pfu.ʌtse gorusum ne heating them at the fire. 132.6. pfu dusiʷla "the fire has come out" (said of a fever patient who has reached the hot stage). 198.3, 306.17, 384.7—12.

pfu etʌs to blow, puff.

(Cp. Sh. pfuʷ thoʷrki, Kho. phuʷ korik, phuʷik, to blow).

pfudʌn y "fire-stone", "flint" (stone used with steel to produce fire is of three kinds, yellow, green and black).

pū.i N. -čʌŋ y moustache.

(Cp. Sh. pūʷ, pfoŋ, moustache).

phuʷk, pfuʷk -ʌŋ y particle, scrap, crumb (of wood, bread, salt etc.). — ʏʌšiʷle phuʷk api there isn't a scrap of wood. čama pfuʷkaŋ nok'aʷunin picking up the fragments of the brooch. 164.19.

(Cp. Sh. pfuk, particle, etc., Kho. pfuʷk, very small, fine-grained).

pəxta firm, stable. — ese pəxta stout-hearted, valiant. Prs.

pfuʷl, fuʷl, -ants x small wooden cup, or, bowl (smaller than pfʌta). Cp. 138.9,15, 146.4, 286.3, 298.11.

-domoso pfuʷl the knee-cap.

polau N. x pilau (composed of cooked rice). Prs.

pfulčin -čiyo (x) a kind of grey bird (smaller than a thrush).

(Cp. čhin, bird).

pfolgo, fulγu, QUB folγuʷy, -čiŋ y feather. Prov. 6.

(Cp. Sh. forgo, phorgo, feather).

phulphul sg. and pl., d.pl. -iuts. x an unhusked grain, berry (of grape). — hori.e, guʷs, pfulpful an unhusked grain of barley, of wheat. N. ga.iŋo phulphul grape-berry.

(Cp. pfupuʷl. Also Kho. pfolokʷ, a single grain of anything, an individual, a bead).

pf'ulpfuliki.aŋ γenɪŋ extracted gold, gold in grains(?).

(Presumably the y pl. of an Adj. pfulpfulikɪŋ, granular, from phulphul, which is said not to exist in that form).

pf'ultiŋɪŋ, pl. pfultiŋyents (-i.ents) x bellows. Blacksmiths use two bellows, goldsmiths a single one. — ine p'ultiŋyentsʌte šū· etimi he blew with the bellows. 162.5. Cp. 166.3—6.

pun -oŋo good, virtuous, H. niʷk. — punʌn bai.i he is a good man.

punelote a ball of virtue, H. niʷki ka gend, "a title denoting excellence", 000 H. nirki ki xtarb. (Cp. lofo). puneloto baiɪ he is full of virtue.

pfurnər, phunər flower. In the flower names: surjo pfurnər and mulphunər. (Cp. Sh. pfunər, phunər, flower).

pfurnts, phurnts y dew. — tutaŋmo pfurnts basičila dew falls in the early morning, or, the early dew is falling(?).

In N. phunts was recorded as x pl. which agrees with its form, but is otherwise unlikely.

dofurs pfurnts very small particles, Prs, rirza. — xa n ic.al d'ofurs pfurnts imanimi falling down it (he?) was smashed into little bits. QUB.

pfurg dozing. — irn's kir daŋ pfurg imaraŋ the man had just gone to sleep. 282.11.

purpo -muts x hoopoe, Ar. hudhud.

Cp. Sh. hupurpo, Werch. hupurpu, hoopoe).

pfupurl in: ye.iŋ pfupurl grape (berry). (Cp. phulphul. The loss of the first final consonant is common in a reduplicated form).

purra, purro complete, entire, whole, perfect; completely etc. — jim.ale gots durro purra atasər kuši3 sti try to complete this job tomorrow. purra iksər sərks stimi he revealed himself completely. 30.20. purro altow.altər kots manimi the whole 40 days have passed. 52.11. Cp. 162.11, 202.1.

Cp. Sh. purro. I have also in. Sh. and Kho. the H. form purra).

pfurri a slight sprinkling. — gyes pfurri manitsan there is a very little snow on the ground.

Cp. Sh. pfurri, "a sprinkling of snow on the hills in the beginning of autumn".

000 pfərk'a morsel tasted by the cook (QUB the host) before food is eaten by the Mir. (The morsel is selected by the Mir. The custom is said to be still kept up as a form).

pərkum perfect. — pərkum bai.i he is perfect. (Cp. Sh. pərko || pərro).

p'ərme beforehand, before the time. — pfər Birəspʌtər ginæni bilŋ; pərme ukh hərər gʌtəŋ ečən the "ginani" is on Thursday week. They make clothes for themselves beforehand.

pfərtikŋ brave, valiant.

pfərn, phərn sg. & pl., d.pl. -ints. x reeds, rushes. — pfərnə bul Proper name: "Reed Spring". 292.12.

(Sh. pfər n, phərn, reeds).

pfər'nəkəs, pl. pfərnəkəyʌnts x article made of bark for holding wool when cleaning and spinning it.

241 pfərəŋ -ilo x a plot of ground prepared for cultivation. A field is divided into a number of long narrow smooth-surfaced plots separated by earth ridges. This is to facilitate irrigation and economise water. Above Chalt the ground is not left with furrows.

(Cp. Sh. pfərrŋə, prəŋə, field prepared in flat plots not furrows).

000 1. *-pf'usʌs, *-ph usʌs; *-pf'uš-, *-ph uš-, *-f'uš-.

2. pusəs. Pret. 1st. sg. pusəm, Impv. pusə, Ppa. nup'us(in).

3. pəsuyʌs, pəsuč-. Pret. 1st. sg. pəsuyʌm. 3rd. sg. m. pəsumi, Impv. 2nd. sg. pəsu, pl. pəsuin, St.pc. pəsum.

4. puš aiyʌs, pušʌč-, Impv. puša.

To tie (a load, horse, man), to bind. *-pfusʌs is used when the obj. is h or x.

pusəs and pəsuyʌs are used when the obj. is y sg. or pl.

2946

pnšaiyʌs can be used only when the obj. is y pl. 000

Examples:

1. gupfuršʌm. I'll tie you up. da yʌfi bʌnʌmi ifušan then they tie (the infant) up with a band over the top (of the swaddling clothes). kərištsi biki dəroγo γʌškʌfi ipfušan they bind a willow shaft on to the spade (head) with osiers. kəreimuts uph'ušʌm I'll tie up the chairs. hʌγor iphos tie up the horse. daiyo uph'os tie up the stones. sis opos don't tie the people up.
2. bʌlda pos'i tie up the load. bʌlda posʌ·m I tied up the load.
3. bʌlda posu tie up the load. ta.očiq posu·čʌm, posu·yʌm I'll tie on, I tied on, the foot-wrappers. esqaiyər sʌlah posumʌs, they took counsel, i.e. concocted a plan, to slay him, 384.3.
4. ɨrqa pos'a tie up the grass (y pl.). bʌldʌŋ pošʌčʌn they tie up the loads (y pl.).

There is some doubt about the negative forms with y objects. I have recorded: — bʌlda epos (= a + i + *-phos) dont tie up the load. taots ʌpos (= a + posi) dont tie on the foot-wrapper.

With epos is to be compared bʌlda i·pfusʌs once recorded on an earlier occasion. (Cp. *-ʌposʌs).

pfu·volumpfʌt stʌs to turn everything upside down (in looking for something). — Gərmʌhʌlmʌss pfu·volumpfʌt stimi. čʌma api G. rummaged about, but the brooch was (lit. is) not there. 166.21.

pusi, pl. x pu.ʌ·nts, y pu.ʌ·ŋ.

a. Hollow, empty, vacant (space). bʌlamis kʌni pusi bi the almond kernel is hollow. hani pu.ants biv the kernels are hollow. OOO Used of open, vacant ground on which there are no trees etc., and of a lane through a crowd.

b. Soft (of ground, soil).

puṣ̌ diśan bila there is a soft place. puscaŋ tikulo toṃ ḷu.a pfai.ibitsan trees grow well in soft soil.

(Cp. Sh. pfō·ṣ̌ko, pfu·ṣ̌ko, and Kho. phuṭki, hollow, vacant).

puṣ̌ban -ongo y loop of thong thro' which the lace (thong) of local boot is passed and made tight.

(puṣ̌ + b.an. Cp. Kho. puṣ̌band).

puṣ̌ori -muts x big lump of butter (variously described as weighing from 30 to 40 lbs., and from 40 to 60 lbs.). — han puṣ̌'ori.an one "puṣ̌ori". 280.5, 282.2, 338.11, 342.7.

(Said to be a Wkh. word).

puṣ̌oro -muts x cocoon. — čhuṣ̌i.a puṣ̌ó·ro silk-cocoon. 176.24.

puṣ̌t y generation. — ṣarlti puṣ̌t four generations. Prs.

puṣ̌umoro, puṣ̌uŋoro, pl. puṣ̌uŋ·ovrṣ̌o x cocoon. — čhuṣ̌i.a puṣ̌umoro silk-cocoon. (Cp. puṣ̌oro).

puṣ̌uqor a thin (covering?). — tiṇ puṣ̌uqor complete egg-shell. EOL.

puṣ̌ur ṣ̌ak N. y minced meat with vegetables. (Cp. Kho. puṣ̌ur, meat: ṣ̌ar vegetables).

pfut, pfut, -ants, -'u. -ongo x and hm. a kind of supernatural being, usually malevolent; demon, "div", "jinn", Sh. deu.

The word is, I think, properly x, but in the course of a story "pfuts" may tend to become humanized, and then grammatically to be treated as human beings.

295 b

In the texts the plural form pfut'u prevails: pfutants occurs only once as an alternative. 26.14.

The title borom pfut, "the White Pfut", appears to be a rendering of the Persian Div i Safid, which appears at 10.11 and in later passages. "White" has here perhaps the same significance as it has in English "White Magic", i.e. beneficent magic. pfut appears definitely as an x noun in:

iru pfut 2.6, 4.16, 8.7. han pfutan bim. 174.19. pfutu (or, pfutants) hazzr manimi.an the pfuts appeared. 26.14. uv pfut'uv utumi.a the pfuts ate them up. 26.23. pfut'u giraši bim the pfuts were dancing. 234.3.

It appears as an hm noun in: hinoman hayor numa hurutimi turning into a horse he (the pfut) sat alone. 4.18. pfut . . . avaq bam the pfut was in love. 12.7, 18.8.

Similarly in: 28.6,7,13, 234.6,10,11, (in the last 3 instances the verb being in the h pl. form, delumAn etc.).

In many instances the category is not revealed: 2.5, 10.8—17, 12 6.10,14 etc. pfut is also of a very stout person. QUB. (Cp. H. bhut).

pfuṭ stas to open (the eye), to glance, to look at.

aldin pfuṭ stam I opened my eye.
gulčin pfuṭ e open your eye(s).
korlo pfuṭ e look here.
yafi pfut stimi he looked up. 24.4.
Pangena yakal pfut ayatom without looking in the direction of P. 120.6. mene iskzlar pfut aiyeti don't look at anyone's face. 50.13.

(Cp. Sh. pfut, pfut, thorki, to open the eyes), look round, look at).

5. Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

OOO pfuṛ *-manas to fall in love with, take a fancy to. — mentsa pfuṛ mamai.i bam ka ima ätawin whomever you fall in love with, marry him. 120.1. wazira ṛimotsa pfut nimaa he falling in love with the Wazir's daughter. 66.4. Cp. 66.13.

In the two following it is not clear whether pfut *-manas means "to fall in love with", or is equivalent to pfuṛ atas "to look at". It will be noted that the verb is followed by a noun in the dative, or governed by the postposition yakal, as in the case of pfuṛ atas, and not by a noun with the suffix -tsa, as in the above examples of pfuṛ *-manas.

ti menan yakal pfuṛ mumanomo ka ima yakal bada bäläćubo (without looking at P.) she advanced towards anyone (someone) else to whom she took a fancy (or, at whom she chanced to look?). 120.7. buriaar pfuṛ am ana baiyam I had looked at a cat (or, become enamoured of a cat?). 158.14.

pfuṛa maltaä, pl. — maltaraŋ y "Div's butter", i.e. mushroom.

1. pfutuk y a superior kind of ärbat for upper class people. QUB. — mamua pfutuk dusućam they bring "pfutuk" made with milk. 338.5. Correct the translation there given.

(Said to be a Wkh. word corresponding to a Bu. word mutuk, mot'uk).

2. pfuṛuk -ićiŋ y pickings, trifles, little matters. — pfuṛukićiŋ atiwa don't bring up trifling matters.

pfutumiä, pl. pfutumi.ants x brand, piece of burning wood, or of half-burnt wood.

(Perhaps cp. Sh. pfutʌʒo, pfotʌšo, half-burnt wood). 000 pyuwʌn, pfyuwʌn Adj., Pron. and Adv. a little, a small quantity of. — pyuwʌn xwrk ʌγʊn give me a little "bhoosa" (broken straw). biške pyuwʌn iγʊnimi he gave him a little hair. 22.9. hanjil pyuwʌn duʼduma? will you bring a little charcoal? 162.12. pyuwʌn bʌsk manimiʌ a little (charcoal) has remained over. 164.6. guke γenʌgtʊm pyuwʌn ʌγʊn give me a little of this gold. 54.23. Cp. 140.1, 328.8,9.

(Cp. Puniali Sh. phiwʌk, piʌrk, a little. Sh. -ʌk = Bu. -ʌn).

Q.

(See also under X and Kh.)

qabil capable. Ar. Prs.

qaʼrda rule, order. — ba qaʼrda according to rule, as it ought, as usual. 378.4. Ar. Prs.

qaʼnun law, rule. Ar. Prs.

qaʼŋ donkey's bray. — qaʼŋ jʌkʊn the braying donkey. 202.4. han jʌkuʼnʌn qaʼŋ ne paida manimi a donkey braying made its appearance. 200.7.

(IUB qaʼŋ; H. gadhe ka awaʼz).

qaʼqaʼ ʌtʌs N. to caw (of a crow).

(Cp. Sh. kʌʼ kʌʼ th., to caw).

1 > qaʼr shawl-cloth, thin blanket. — tʌ qʌš qaʼr dʌsmaiyʌm I will make a hundred cubits of shawl-cloth. 176.24.

(Cp. Sh. kʌʼr, head-sheet).

qaʼšiŋir N., v. xaʼšiŋʊr. — kwts qaʼšiŋʊr up till now.

qaʼwa N. coffee. Ar. Prs.

qaʼzi -tiŋ hm "qazi", judge 80.11 ff., 86.11 ff. Ar. Prs.

qʌbʼʌl wʌšiʌs to surround, invest, — taʼqs iγigaʼr tʌli qʌbʌl wʌšimʌn they

297 a

1 [see q'a'qarum, p. 298 a, category 116 - Analyst] surrounded the fort (with a view to capturing it). 384.10. (Correct accordingly the translation there given). (Cp. Wkh. qabal dig to surround, besiege). 000 qabul etas to consent, agree, accept. — ovai nomen ev buyat stoman, qabul ainistem . . . dwainai they petitioned to him saying "don't go". Not accepting (their request) he went out. 292.15. Ar. Prs.

qabor -ão x grave, tomb. — yuvs se qabur stoman burying (the corpse) they made a tomb. 296.1. qaberafum . . . yiki se stealing (the lance) from (on) the grave, 296.5. Ar. Prs.

qabza, -mots x hilt of sword; pl. qavzaq, y hinge. (Cp. N. kabza x hilt of sword). Ar. Prs.

qači, pl. qačeq, y scissors. T. Prs.

qaḑaq manaw, khaḑaq m. to go lame, to limp (of human being). (QUB kh.).

qadim ancient, of long ago. — qadim zamanatsum from ancient times. 298.1. Ar. Prs.

qadimu of former times, of long ago. — qadimu hir a man of ancient times. Ar. Prs.

qafas, pl. qafaso, x cage. Ar.

qalam N. -ão x pen. — Hz. qalam dalem ḑupe a chogs with a design drawn and embroidered on it. Ar. Prs.

qalamdan x penrase, inkstand. (Ar.) Prs.

qali, pl. qalents, N. qalisents, x knotted pile-carpet. — joṭ qali small rug. (Cp. Sh. qaḑin, and in Kho. qaḑin woven pileless carpet). T. Prs.

qalg N. -ents; xalg, xalk, -ents Hz. x a kind of kite.

qalṭ'aṭo, ḳaltaṭo, pl. qalṭ'aṭents x waistcoat, short coat. — ḳiḑum kuturiko

297 b

000 q.ɪltać ʌmots nuyolin a party of men wearing short coats. 188.2.

QUB k-. Cp. Khо. kaltʌća; Bashgali k.ɪltʌća, waistcoat).

q.ɪltor N. no pl. x small bridge (? bi- aqueduct).

(Cp. Sh. k.ɪltur, said to be obso lete, and Ha. g.ɪltor.

q.ɪm -ʌnts x.

1. Pit, hole in ground. — hivsk: q.ɪm the pit excavated beneath a loom in which the weaver puts his feet and legs, H. k.ɪrga. tikulo q.ɪm.ɪn ʌtf.ɪn making a hole in the ground. 378.1.
2. Metaph. grave, H. q.ɪbr. — q.ɪmʌr gwʌc.ɪlì may you fall into the grave, i.e. die! Cp. dʌrqq.ɪm ?).

q.ɪma v. kk.ɪma.

qæuć N. -ig y cave. (Not known to QUB).

1. qh.ɪp v. x.ɪp.
2. q.ɪp -ʌnts x large cloth-sack, Kashgari cotton sack holding 2 to 3 cwts. of grain. Prs. juwal. — ʌsrma q.ɪp ditto of goat's hair cloth. k.ɪp.ɪn yuućai.i he gives him a sack. 162.13.

q.ɪrum talkative, ill-mannered, refractory, self-willed, H. b.ɪkʌr.ɪs, b.ɪdlʌ- mʌz, xudrai.

1. q.ɪqʌr -ʌm.ɪn.ɪs to scrabble, scratch at with the nails, as a man trying to get a hold on a hillside, and a cat hanging on to a carpet when pulled away from it.

Reduplication of q.ɪr).

2. q.ɪqʌr -ʌm.ɪn.ɪs, qaqʌr -ʌm.ɪn.ɪs IUB to be stopped, come to an end, to be finished. H. rukjʌna. b.ɪnd hʌna, x.ɪtm hʌna. Not corroborated by QUB.
3. q.ɪqʌr nʌma very old and wrinkled of man, tree.

298 a

[see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 544 - Analyst]

000 qʌr ɛtʌs to scrape, scratch, shave.

ɛʌr mʌnʌ·s to slide. — γʌmu.ʌfɛ qʌr mai.i bʌ·n they are sliding on the ice.

qərʌ·r settledness, peacefulness. — qərʌ·r ka hʌrʌ·timi he abode peacefully. 32.14. Ar. Prs.

qərʌqɛʌqo IUB. also qurʌnfwʌqo QUB, a rice-pounder. H. čʌ·wʌl kufne ka ʌ·la.

qərʌfʌs v. xərʌfʌs.

qərqa·muts, pl. qərqa·muźo, N. kərkamujo x fowl, hen, cock. — gus qərqa·muts hen. kir qərqa·muts cock. qərqa·mutse joʃis, or, isk chicken. (Cp. 56.2, 386.5. (Cp. Sh. kərka·muš, hen).

qərts v. xʌrts.

q'ərum miserly, stingy, H. bʌxil, kʌnjus. (Cp. Wkh. qa·run, inhospitable). Ar. Prs.

qərwyo, pl. qərwyrźo x wading bird, heron. Kho. mʌnḍa·γ.

qʌsa·s y retaliation, revenge. — qʌsa·s ɛtʌs to take revenge. Ar. Prs.

qʌsai.i hm butcher. Ar. H.

qʌsd y intention, determination. — qʌsd nɛtʌn intentionally. 386.16. Ar. Prs.

qʌš sg. and pl. length from elbow to finger-tips, cubit, half-yard. — ʌ·lto qʌš = 1 qʌs (yard). bɛ·rum qʌš bi bila·? how many cubits is it? ʌ·ltər wa·lti qʌš latt'a 24 cubits of calico. 310.5. Cp. 174.5.

Wrongly written kʌš in:

t.ʌlɛ kʌš ifʌγo his seven-cubit staff. 222.10.

qʌš ɛtʌs v. khʌš ɛtʌs.

qʌšdʌn, pl. qʌšdaiyo, x stone anvil.

-qʌt, -ʌqʌt, side of body, armpit.

(QUB disallowed forms from -qʌt, -ʌqʌt is, I think, only the correct form for -ʌkʌt q.v.).

qʌtʌl v. gʌtʌl.

qʌvz constipated. — qʌvz amʌna ba I am (have become) constipated. Ar. Prs.

qawʌš v. khʌwʌš.

qaid ɛtʌs (*-ʌtʌs?) to imprison, put in gaol. Ar. Prs.

qaidi -mots hm prisoner, gaol-bird. Ar. Prs.

qaidxa·na y prison, gaol. (Ar.) Prs.

qəi.i v. kai.i.

qaiy N. -a·ints x pebbles beside water-course, i.e. strand. (V. 2. khʌy).

qʌ.iy N. -ents x stirrup. (V. 1. khʌy).

qaizagir -ig y pl. horse's bit, watering-bridle.

(Cp. qaiza in Psht. & Kabuli Prs.).

qau call, cry, shout. — qau manimi "Dərbɛ·šo, Dərbɛ·šo" nusɛn there was a call, shout, "Dərbɛ·šo, Dərbɛ·šo". 180.4. thʌmɛ qawər ɛrimi the Tham sent a man to call them). 240.2. qau ɛtʌs to call out, shout, call to, summon. sʌgʌm xa kiɛl nəma qau ɛtimi bending down over the smoke-hole, he shouted out. 228.7. hʌn qərqa·mɔtsʌmɛ qau nɛ se.ibim a cock crowing said: . . . 386.5. tsərər kau ɛtimi . . . xʌbər dʌgwin he called out to the guard: "get news . . .". 38.4. Cp. 26.21. ɛnər kawɛti (i.e. qau ɛti) call him. thʌmɛ mavr qau ɛčai.i the Tham summons you. 240.6. ɛnɛ miɛlji yɛtsum hiɛrər qau ɛčʌn let us call the man we saw in our dreams. 284.14. hin nokərʌnər qau nɛ dəyərusumi calling (to) a servant he asked . . . 373.25.

(Cp. Kho. qoyɛrk, to call out, call to loudly).

qaum h.pl. clan, tribe. — kin Sig Hʌmačartig qaumtsum bʌm this S. was of the H. tribe. 266.19. Cp. 112.15. Ar. Prs.

qɛmʌt cost, price, rate; costly, dear. Ar. Prs.

qəqe ɛtʌs Hz. & N. to bleat (of a goat). 000 qərkʊs EOL pl. qərki.ʌnts —? — aʿlto qərkʊs bo she is pregnant ("two lives" = Sh. doguni ḍim hin). aʿlto qərki.ʌnts baʿn they are pregnant.

qiʿmišdoʿn, pl. -doʿyo, x a cast iron vessel with lid used for baking a special kind of bread, fire being placed above and below it. 252 (Perhaps corruption of Prs. kumaʿj-daʿn. QUB gave the initial as x-).

qiʿqiʿŋ ɛtʌs N. to neigh (of a horse). 000 (Cp. Hz. hihiŋ).

qiqɪt *-ʌtʌs to tickle s.o. (on body).

qɪsaʿs qɪsiʿč- v.i. to tear (of cloth). — qɪsiʿči it will tear; qɪsiʿmi it tore. qɪsumʌn čuk ɛtʌs to sew, mend, a torn thing.

(Given as the intrans. of *-xiʿsʌs).

1. qɪsmʌt y fate. Ar. Prs.
2. qɪsmʌt for xɪdmʌt q.v.

qɪsmʌtgaʿr v. xɪsmʌtgaʿr.

qɪsta v. xɪsta.

qɪsum kind, sort. — beʿsʌn qɪsumɛ bi? of what kind is it? Ar. Prs.

qɪš, QUB xɪš, gently. — kərkaʿmutsɛ qɪš nɛ duʿnʌn kuli qyuʿ ɛči bi if anyone catches a fowl gently it makes a noise. 56.2.

qi.uʿ v. qyuʿ.

qhiyɛ, etc. v. qhüyɛ.

qoʿ ɛtʌs N. to low (of a cow), Hz. to low (of a calf).

qoʿŋ ɛtʌs Hz. to low (of a cow).

ʊoʿqʼʊr N. -iʿnts x stones on a mountain side just about to fall.

(In Kho. čoʿkul is used of a stone falling or rolling down a hill-side).

qoroʿnč v. xuroʿnč.

qʼoʿš, qʊš -iŋ y inhabited house, quarters, lodgings. — ʌkaʿbərtiŋ u.i u.imo qʼošiŋʌʿr ničaʿn the chief men go off

000 to their respective quarters. 338.11. Cp. 340.20.

(Cp. Wkh., Kho. qvš, Sh. kvš, dwelling-place, lodging, quarters).

qu· ɯʌɔʌ·s v.i. to swing. 316.13.

qu·bili mʌnʌ·s v.i. to swing.

Women and children swing during the Nauroz celebrations.

qu·bili gʌ·ʒʌ said by the person on the ground as he pushes the other up on the swing.

The latter replies: kʌtu go·tʌm.

qvdrʌt, qvdərʌt y power. — Xvdai.ɛ qvdrʌt (by) the power of God, the act of God. 34.8. Ar. Prs.

qü.ɛkrǩ v. qhüyɛkrǩ.

qvlp, qulp, qvlf, -ʌnts, -išo x lock, padlock. — kʌn bʌsi.ɛntsɛ qvlf ɯɛšvm bim (or, dɛlom bim) there was a padlock fixed on (the door of) one garden. 16.11. hiŋ tʌm nɛ qvlp ɯʌšimi, qvlpɛ čɛ.i i·tsɛ yænimi shutting the door he put a lock on it (or, locked it). The key of the lock he took with him. 52.6. i·mo iri·ŋɛ ka qvlf do·nimi with his own hand he opened the lock. 52.15. Ar. Prs.

qvma concubine. (Cp. Kho. qvmʼa concubine).

qvŋqvro·čo ʼɛtʌs N. to crow (of cock). (Cp. Sh. kvŋkvro·čo cock).

qvra·n the Quran. — qvra·nɛ šʌpi·k feast held after reading the Quran, seven days after a death. 314.8. Ar.

qvrʌŋtɯʌŋo, v. qərʌŋtʌŋo.

qvrba·n sacrifice. — gvŭʌtvm qvrba·n amʌnǩa may I be a sacrifice for you! 62.19. Cp. 282.6. qvrba·n ʌmʌnǩa. 62.24. 166.18. i·n uŋʌtvm qvrba·n imʌnvm! may he be your sacrifice! Ar. Prs.

qu·rč y a kind of hard iron. (Cp. Shgn. qʌ̄rč, steel).

300 a

000 qurum -iŋ y cavity or cleft between boulders.

qurut, xurut sg. & pl. x, d.pl. -ists dried curds. — Gu.iču.ε korutε daudau dosučan the Wakhis bring them "aš" (broth) of "qurut". 338.9. qurutε tsam'ikε ka . . . dosučan they bring it with "tsamik" of "qurut". 342.5. Elsewhere "xurut tsamik (bila)" was recorded.

(Steingass gives Prs. qurūt = dried curds, and the word occurs in Wkh., Kho., Psht., Parāchi and Kābuli Persian). Turk. Prs.

qušεlAs, kušAlAs, qušεlj- to go wrong, be spoilt, become ruined, H. bigAr-jama, bərbad hona, wairan hona. — gotε duro kušælimi this affair has gone wrong. itε mAzər kušεlila, api the grave has become ruined, it no longer exists. 224.7.

(q- IUB & QUB. Cs. -Aqušεlas.* Cp. Sh. kuš'olo, kušelo broken, damaged).

qots for kots, q.v., days. 102.5.

805 qhüyε, qü.ε, qhiyε, khiε; N. qiyε x (sg. and) pl. pebble(s), shingle, gravel. — hAn qhüyεn (or, qhiεn) fAt εtimi he put aside a pebble. 52.7. gonts kε hAn qü.ε wAšimi he also every day threw aside a pebble. 52.9. Cp. 52.10,14,19.

It is said that uneducated people put 365 pebbles in a basket and keep count of the days of the year by transferring one every day to another basket.

000 (The exact sounds of the word are difficult to determine. I originally wrote it: khi.ε, but I think there is a -y- which affects the preceding vowel and consonant.

300 b

According to QUB the correct representation is khüyɛ. 000

N. kiyɛ small shot is probably the same word. (Sh. khai.i, gravel, shingle, and N. Bu. qaiy are probably to be equated with Hz. Bu. 2. khʌy). qhüyɛkrṣ̌, qü.ɛkrṣ̌, khiɛkrṣ̌; N. qiyɛkiš gravelly, shingly; "desert of stones and scrub". — khiɛkrṣ̌ diš shingly ground.

qyuɛ, qiy'uɛ, qi.uɛ, y outcry, scream, shouting. — qyu čup me.i bila (the hen's) outcry becomes silent. 56.2—4. ər nəmuɛmʌn qi.uɛ ɛtəmo in a fright she screamed out. 110.5. qiyu pyu ɛti raise an outcry. 256.11. Cp. 28.10, 30.19, 140.15. (Cp. Wkh. qɛu, qüɛ).

R.

raɛʌti = rai + ʌtɛ (?) — iɛmo raɛʌti of itself, spontaneously.

raɛçi h and x.

1. Guard, watchman. — baɛdša hiɛŋtsɛ raɛçi bʌm there was a guard on the King's gate. 36.21.
2. Guardian spirit. — raɛçi heɛrči bi the guardian spirit weeps.

The plural is commonly supplied by that of raɛçʌkuɛin.

(Cp. rʌç. Cp. also Sh. raɛçhi guard, watch).

r'aɛçʌkuɛin, raɛçi-, raɛço-, pl. r'aɛçʌkuɛyo, r'aɛçiki.o watchman, guard, protector; guardian (spirit). — r'aɛçʌkuɛinɛ . . . iriŋtsɛ duɛnəmo the guardian seized his arm. 42.6. raɛçikuɛyɛfəm uyuɛmər senimi he said to the head of the guards. 36.21. mi inɛ r'aɛçiki.o baɛn we are his guardians. 38.19. Cp. 40.13,21, 42.13.

301a

rahʌm, ravm, rʌhʌm y kindness, pity, compassion, mercy. — rʌhʌm apivm merciless, cruel nivitsin rahʌm divmi seeing him he felt compassion. 373.11. evulo ravm dusuvmi he brought pity into his heart, i.e. he felt pity. 368.8. hʌmiš javtse ravm dusuvči he is always kind to me. javte (or, javtse) rahʌm eti have pity on me. Ar. Prs.

rahʌmkrš, ravmkrš kind, merciful. — ravmkršʌn bai.i he is a kind person.

rahmdrl, rʌhmdrl kind-hearted, kindly, merciful. 34.12. (Ar.) Prs.

ravhʌt y ease, comfort, peace, H. ʌsavrš. — buvt mivmər ravhʌt etai.i he has made great comfort for us, i.e. he has made us very comfortable. 40.17. (Cp. rʌhʌt). Ar. Prs.

ravrʌp mʌnavs IUB to flutter, flap the wings. — ravrʌp maibim (the bird) was fluttering. H. (pʌrinda) pʌr mavr rʌha tha.

(Probably a reduplication of rʌp. Cp. perhaps Psht. rʌp-evdəl, to flutter etc.).

rʌč guarding, watching over. — humavte Panču rʌč ne bʌm P. was keeping watch over the ford. 112.23. ja gute hin sʌm rʌč ne horu stay and keep guard over my door and smoke-hole. 168.24. birʌnč rʌč no bovm she was guarding the mulberries, 244.12.

(Cp. ravči, and Sh. ravčh th., to keep, guard, watch).

rah'ʌt N. -ršo, well, in good health. (Cp. ravhʌt). Ar. Prs.

rʌhmdrl, rahm v. rahmdrl and rahʌm.

rʌjavki, rʌjʌki y forced labour, compulsory communal labour, H. bevgar. — rʌjavki.e sis person(s) working on forced labour. rʌjavki etʌšo sis persons working on forced labour.

000 gotsile rʌjaˑki oˑčʌm he used to make them do forced labour on the canal. 276.8. waˑlti giramər rʌjʌki.ər qau ɛti call on the Four Tribes for communal labour. (Cp. Sh. rʌjaˑki, r ʿai.ɾki).

rʌk v. rʌq.

rʌx ɛtʌs N. to wish. (Probably a variant of rʌq).

262 rʌxpiˑn, rʌqpiˑn, pl. -piˑyo, x buttermilk (diltər) heated yields bərwɛ and mʌntsil, and mʌntsil dessicated yields rʌxpiˑn, a reddish substance which is made up into hard balls about 1½ inches in diameter. It is popular with women and is given to suckling mothers). Prs.

000 rʌl ready, prepared, on the 'qui vive', H. tai.ar. — hoˑlguṣər rʌl baˑn they are ready for a fight. ɛtɛ diṣulo . . . rʌl numa hurwčʌmʌn they remained sitting there on the 'qui vive'. 122.22. rʌl mʌnɛ be ready, prepare yourself. 174.16.

rʌm alliterative doublet. — rʌm rʌt quite smooth.

rʌmʌlči diviner, soothsayer, (used as synonym for nujuˑm). — rʌmʌlčʿi.ɛlɛ niˑnin: "le.i nujuˑm, wŋɛ tsʌn . . ." going to the diviner, (he said to him): "O diviner, you were right . . .". 102.8. Cp. 102.5. (Ar. T.). Prs.

rʌmɛˑš tamed (of hawk), trained. — rʌmɛˑš mʌnaˑs to be tamed. rʌmɛˑš ɛtum baˑz a tamed hawk.

(Cp. Sh. rʌmoˑɾki, to rear, accustom; Kho. rʌm čhik, to become accustomed, become without fear).

rʌnda -miŋ y plane. H. Prs.

rʌnjʌq small cowhorn powder-flask (used to hold priming-powder). — rʌnjʌqolum miˑli.ɛŋ priming-powder. (Cp. perhaps Prs. rʌnjʌk, priming-pan).

000 rʌŋ y colour, dye, paint. — bɛsʌn rʌŋ bila? what colour is it? bɛ rʌŋɛ bɛ what state are you in? baftɛɛ rʌŋ deli.ʌs bila the skin is to be dyed. šɪkʌm rʌŋɛ hʌγurɛ a horse of green-blue colour, i.e. a grey horse (cp. the use of the Prs. sʌbz). 6.10. Prs. rʌŋči hm dyer. (Prs.).

rʌŋ'e.irʌŋ variegated, of many colours. (Prs.).

rʌŋgriz hm dyer. Prs.

rʌq, rʌk, y desire, wish, appetite. IUB H. čavhna. — uγɛ bɛsʌn rʌk bila? what is your desire? rʌk ɛtʌs to express a wish, request. ja tsil miyaγ rʌk dimi desire came on me to drink water, i.e. I felt a desire to . . . ja kuɛlto rʌk api I have no appetite today. 30.2. uɛlo haɛlər ni.ʌsər rʌk aiγ'ɛtimi he did not wish, he refused, to go into the house. 374.5. thʌmɛ mɛnər rʌk ɛtimi kɛ 'ogirʌšai.i the Tham makes dance whomever he pleases. 318.5.

rʌq IUB, QUB and IYB. Cp. rai.i with which it appears to be largely, if not entirely synonymous. Cp. also Sh. rʌk desire, intention.

rʌš y light. — sʌx rʌš sunlight. hʌl.ʌntɛɛ rʌš moonlight. gərix rʌš lamplight. thʌmɛ iɛkilər hʌn rʌšʌn lʌm mʌnimi a light shone, flashed, into the Tham's face. 24.3. (Cp. Sh. rʌš).

rʌt, -ɪšo, -iŋ smooth, flat, level. — bʌlkoγ rʌt or, rʌtiŋ bitsʌn the planks are smooth. mirzɪšo rʌtɪšo bi.ɛn the tables are smooth. rʌt gʌn a smooth, level, road. rʌt diš a flat level place. rʌm rʌt quite smooth. (Cp. Sh. rʌt).

rʌwraγ v. s.v. fʌct.

302b

rʌwama mʌnavɛ to depart, set out, start off. Prs. 000 rai, rai.i y desire, wish; purpose, will, intention, inclination, IUB H. xi.ɑvl. — uŋɛ bɛsʌn rai bila? what is your wish? ja tsilər (or, tsil miyaw) rai divmi I felt a desire for water, I wanted to drink water. kivnɛ hirɛ rai bilum wʌtɛŋ noʃɛ hurutiʃ the man's desire was to abide eating the husks. 372.14. bɛsʌn ʃičər rai bila? do you feel inclined to eat anything? (said to a sick man). uŋʌlər jučər ja rai api I have no desire to come to you. 76.5. bɛsʌn rai bila kɛ gučʌm I'll give you whatever you please. 172.16. bəriŋ sɛyər bɛ ja rai apiɛ? what! have I no desire to talk? 364.5. ɛsqʌnʌsər rai ɛlumʌn they determined to kill him. (H. qʌṣd). 262.14. Cp. 162.6,26,26. gwi rai.i nɛ on your own initiative, of your own free will. 118.12. tsil rai.olo mi bai.i he drinks water as he feels inclined. 128.16. gu.imu rai.ɛfɛ according to your own taste. 78.14. ivmo rai.ɛfɛ, ivmo rawʌti of his own motion. 172.14; of itself, spontaneously. 240.13, 286.10. gutɛr bɛsʌn rai bila? what is your opinion, intention in regard to this? (H. xiyavl).

rai ɛtʌs 1. To express a desire, to request. — mɛnənər, or, mɛnɛ ka rai ɛtʌs to request s.o. (to do s.t.). ja thʌmər rai ɛtʌm wʌzir ja apʌčər ju.ʌsər (or, dɛrʌsər). I requested the Mir that the Wazir might come to me (or, to send the Wazir to me). ja invər rai ɛtʌm kolə ju.ʌsər I asked him to come here.

2. (Of a mare) to be seeking the male, to be on heat.

(Cp. rʌq. Also Kho. rai.i.) rem'izil, remivzil, rimivzil, -šo, -xšo x stone-marten. — rimivzilə bʌt stone-marten skin. 000

-rik -ɪndəro hmf., gen. sg.f. -rikmo. A man's wife's brother, a man's sister's husband. A woman's husband's sister, a woman's brother's wife. The word is used as a term both of reference and of address. 601

The following additional meanings are variously described as rare, obsolete, and objectionable: — a man's wife's sister, a man's brother's wife, a man's father's brother's son's wife. A woman's husband's brother.

It will be remarked that the fully recognised meanings conform to the analogy of -ʌçço in that they denote relationships between persons of the same sex.

Any of the relationships in question may of course be expressed by descriptive combinations. Thus: — o'smo mo'çço my wife's sister.
o'smo mu'los my wife's brother.
o'yərɛ ɛçço my husband's brother.
o'yərɛ yʌs my husband's sister.

Examples of -rik.
o'smo a'rik my brother-in-law on my wife's side, i.e. my wife's brother.
ayʌsmo a'rik (man speaking) my brother-in-law on my sister's side, i.e. my sister's husband.

In 364.8 a'rikmo is glossed as, "my brother's wife" (woman speaking).

rik mʌna's IUB to be absolutely ready (to start etc.). 000

'ril y copper. According to IUB the word can also mean "steel". — if'ʌyo rils bi his stick is of copper. 210.9.

(Cp. Sh. halinjo ril, brass).

303b

ooo *-riŋ -čiŋ, N. -čʌŋ y hand, — uŋɜ guriŋ gʌlṣ! may your hand be broken! ("as you have struck me with it"). A woman's curse. hʌn uriŋʌn a hand of someone (unknown). 210.6. doyum iriŋɜ (or, iriŋum) iɜɜ pfultiṇiṣɜ hɔlɜ out of the righthand bellows. 166.4. iriŋčiŋʌṭɜ tik gimi he filled in the earth with his hands. 84.5. uriŋʌṭɜ with their hands. 310.2. imo iriŋɜ ka qɔlf domimi he opened the lock with his own hand. 52.15. muriŋɔlɔ tik nɔkʌn taking earth in her hand. 26.2. Cp. 300.7.

*-uṭ *-riŋ feet and hands. 52.15, 118,8. 174.1. — yutis iriŋɜṭɜ ba ečɔbo she kisses his foot and hand. 138.3. hin hinɜ iriŋčiŋ dumərumʌn they sought each other's hands i.e. they kissed each other's hands. 90.10. uriŋciŋ xərts nɜ clapping their hands. 140.4.

*-riŋ mʌnɜs, *-riŋ juyʌs, *-riŋ bʌlɜs to come into someone's hands, possession: — uŋɜ belʌṭɜ guriŋ manimi? how did it come into your possession? mʌgər iriŋ (or, iriŋər) ačučo bom but she did not come into his possession. 12.8. imo žʌmɜ iriŋ bʌlimi his own bow fell into his hand, came into his possession. 170.21. Cp. 42.6, 86.15, 244.1; 304.17, 336,10, 373.18.

ririk mʌnɜs to be ready to strike, or run, to be on the point of striking (with fists ready). (Cp. rik).

rɪza contented, satisfied; consent. — *rɪza -ʌtʌs to satisfy, make agree, obtain consent of. *rɪza -mʌnʌs to be satisfied, contented, to agree. amɪn hirʌnɜ imo yuɜ rɪza nɔmo (if) any man, getting his wife to agree, gaining her consent. 40.14.

000 rɪzɪa gumʌn be satisfied, contented. 114.18. uŋ rɪzɪa? are you contented? are you agreeable? 302.18 ff. Xuʷu tɛšər rɪzɪai (= rɪzɪa) imʌnimi Kh. agreed to (taking of) oath. 250.9. rɪzɪa g'animi he obtained his consent. 194.11. Ar. Prs.

rɪzɪakuŋ y contentment, satisfaction.

rɪzɪai contentment, satisfaction, agreement. — imo rɪzɪai.ɛ ka of his own free will. 44.9. iski heši hil'ɛstsum rɪzɪai.i doγərušai.i three times he asks the youth for his agreement, i.e. asks if he agrees, or, is content. 304.2.

rom h pl. tribe, clan, community, H. qaum, gurohʰ. Cp. Bu. giraʷm — Ali.abaʷdulo hikum rom baʷ there is one clan in A. waʷlti rom (or, giraʷm) the Four Tribes (of Baltit). Cp. 258.1. n., 300.13. aʷlto rom two tribes. 272.12. kuʷ ɪskikum rom baʷn there are these three tribes. 272.14. Puʷno rom Diraʷmiting ɪ bʌm P. was of the D. tribe. 212.20.

Cp. Sh. rom; Wkh. rom, ruʷm. Also Kho. rom. herd of cattle, flock of birds.

roʷz -ɪšo x musk-deer. They occur in the Kerga Nullah near Gilgit.

Cp. Sh. roʷs, roʷz, Kho. rau.uz.

ru x healing of wound, joining of edges of cut. — Aʷ ʌnʌstsum ru juʷčomɛ akoʷlɛr di bi the healing (of the wound) proceeding from the top of my head has reached this point. 230.7.

(Cp. Sh. rũʷ wai.oʷɪki, to close, come together, of a wound. Wkh. roʷ.

ru ba ru opposite, facing each other. Prs.

ruʷh, ruʷ, pl. ərwaʷh. x soul, pl. spirits of the dead. — ja adiʷmtsum ruʷ niʷn dinaʷrmo hiŋ gai.i bi the soul going from my body has seized on my beloved's door. 362.6. Ar. Prs.

ruxsʌt y leave, permission to go, congé. — thʌme ruxsʌt ʌčimər (or, ʌčiyʌs kiʔ) niyʌm on the Mir's giving me leave, I went off. thʌme ruxsʌt ayečičai.i the Mir won't give me leave. pfuʷt ruxsʌt mʌnimi the DIv took his leave. 10.15. Di.u Sʌfidtsum ruxsʌt bese at'umərča? ruxsʌt gučiči why don't you ask the D. S. for leave (to go). He will give you leave. 20.12. mu uʷŋər ruxsʌt eča ba now I give you leave to go, I despatch you. 88.24. Ar. Prs.

run'i McK, GR leprosy.

(Cp. Sh. run'i & ruʷno. The word was not known to QUB and is probably N.).

ruʷŋ, -ʌnts, N. ruŋ, pl. -aʷints x grassland, grass from ditto, open grazing-ground on hills; N. open jungle with few trees' and good pasture. — gəruʷkimo Hunzu.olo čhʌm diʷmər ruʷŋʌntsulum ruʷŋ dišaʷn in spring when scarcity has arisen in Hunza they bring in grass from the hill pastures. QUB. ruʷŋe liʷli.o wild violet. V. 102.20, 180.3, 226.11.

(Cp. Sh. ruŋ. It is practically an equivalent for Bu. tewr.)

rupi.a x sg. and pl., also pl. -muts; N. rupa.imuts; rupee(s), money. — hʌn rupi.ʌn one rupee. rupiʷa berumʌn bi.en? how many rupees are there? uʷer aʷlta aʷlta rupi.a uʷ give them Rs. 2 each. uʷnʌte ine berumʌn rupi.a bi.en? how many rupees do you owe him? uʷnʌle berumʌn rupi.a bi.en? how many rupees have you? H.

rũʷrũʷ y buzzing; sound, rustling(?), of wind, H. bhrnbhrnaʷhʌṭ. — ruʷruʷ mai.i bilum there was a sound of wind.

(Cp. Sh. rũʷ rũʷ, buzzing, singing in the ears).

ruʷs y retribution, retaliation, evil return H. badala, qɪṣaʷṣ. — ruʷs di.usas to exact retribution. æyafe ruʷs diusimi he made me an evil return(?). 000 ruš x sg. & pl., d.pl. -'ants. Ovis Poli (the wild sheep of the Pamirs, of which a few are to be found on the Hunza side of the Kilik Pass). — ruši wər O. P. ram. ruši bəlis O. P. ewe. ruši mamuši O. P. lamb. (Cp. Wkb. rvš, ruš).

ruʷza y the Fast of Ramazan. — ruʷza ganas to keep the Fast. muʷto ruʷza hiʷsa bila it is the month of the Fast at present. ruʷza ba? are you fasting? Prs.

ruʷzi x daily food, subsistence. Prs.

S.

1. sd, pl. samots, x sun, daytime, day, pl. days. — sa jil mani bi the sun has risen. sa buʷr mani bi the sun has set. sa jil manaʷs khen, su duʷsas ken sunrise (time). sa buʷr manaʷs khen sunset (time). sa iččaqər duʷsimi a ray of sunlight has come out(?). gusɪ saʷatsɪ oʷs put this in the sun. Cp. 334.1. saʷtsɪ horuʷtimi he sat down in the sun. 164.13. sa thalisa "sun on the distant hills, vicinity in shade". sa wali bi the sun(light) has fallen (on the ground). sa pəri.an dy'u..asumər when the sun remains one stage, from sunset (i.e. one lance-length above the horizon). 294.12. V. s.v. 2. pəri. sa uyoʷnɪ all day. sa saburɪ all day ("till evening"?). sa tap day and night. 116.15. (xat) sa dešqalti.a sa ju if (the letter) arrives in daytime, come in the day-time (i.e. the same day). 94.1. bai.imo sa khuʷt bi the winter day is short.

000 2. *-sa v. *-samols.

3. sa, sʌ-, obl. samo, y month. V. hisa, month, one month. — hisʌn ya alt'osʌn one month or two. 342.6. altosa two months; miš'insa six months. kunčo satsom after 6 months. torma aslto sa twelve months. miš'in samo jučam I'll come in (after) 6 months. 56,13. Cp. 58.7. berum sanmo after some months.

(berum sa + ʌn + mo = berumʌn sa + mo).

saʿʌt y.

1. Hour. — hik saʿʌtʌnər in an hour. 22.12. torrimi saʿʌtʌnər asir near to 10 o'clock. 38.1. šu.a saʿʌtulo dimʌnimi he was born in a happy hour. 88.1.

In:

akoʿlı saʿʌt mʌnı wait here. 54.1, saʿʌt is perhaps for tsʌt. Ar. Prs.

2. Auspicious time. — axom saʿʌtər 'ebərai.i bai.i he makes the mullah look for an auspicious time. 326.5. Cp. 300.3.

saʿʌt, saʿt *-ʌtʌs to give precedence to, to cause to do a thing first, to make lead the way. — saʿʌt nuʿtʌn making him lead to way. 244.2. thʌmu.i besʌn uyoʿnər saʿt oʿčam the Tham makes them take precedence in everything. 348.2. Dirʌmiting saʿʌt ʌtʌs ʿrus . . . 'Altitər tsučai.i the leader of the D. carries it to Altit. 208.6.

saʿʌti yesterday. — saʿʌti kuʿlto yesterday today, i.e. nowadays, these days, at the present time. jimʌlı učam, saʿʌti juʿčam I shall go away tomorrow and come back yesterday. 142.26.

saʿb N. "Sahib", European gentleman, European officer. Ar. H.

000 sa·brt proved. — sa·brt ɛtas to prove (something). Ar. Prs.

sa·bon, pl. saboryo x soap. Ar. Prs.

sa·da plain, blank (of paper); simple, honest; simple-minded. — sam sa·da quite plain. sa·da·n bai he is a simple, honest fellow. Prs.

sa·f pure, clear; clearly. — nokəra sa·f sa·f imo bayan ɛtimi the servant told his story clearly. 320.1. Ar. Prs.

601 *-saγun, *-sʌγun, pl. *-saγundəro, *-saγuyo, N. *-sʌγəryo nephew, niece, child of brother or sister. — le As'a·γun O my nephew (my sister's son). 132.12,14,16. mi ma mʌsaγundəro ba·n we are your nephews (your sister's sons). 246.17. usaγ'undəro their sister's sons. 248.21.

(Originally applied only to sister's children. Brother's children were, and still frequently are called "son" and "daughter").

000 sa·ju third party, unprejudiced, disinterested (and so qualified to act as arbitrator), H. xalis. — Diramitiŋ sa·ju numa . . . u·ər astʌm ɛtʌm the D. being disinterested parties had settled the case for them. 258.4.

(Cp. Sh. sʌji·no, go-between, arbitrator; sa·jo, jointly-owned, also arbitrator?).

sa·ma·n y pl. kit, equipment, belongings. — sa·ma·n ɛtimi he made his preparations (to go out), got ready his kit, H. tai.a·ri ki. 94.11. Prs.

*-samuts, *-s'ʌmuts x pl. end of period of pregnancy, last month of pregnancy. — hura·tumɛsum musamuts gontsiŋ hisa·b ɛtamo she reckoned the days of her pregnancy from the time when she conceived. 108.7. gu·ai.ʌs tai.a·r bom, mos'ʌmuts gi.a

bim she was on the point of giving birth, the end of her pregnancy had set in. 242.9. QUB gave a sg. *-sa x. as'a giʌmi ‖ as'amuts giyʌmi.e the end of my pregnancy has started. 000 (Seems to be a specialised use of 1. sa, day).

sa.o, sau.u y pl. sand.

sa.okrj sandy.

saʌro strong and well-grown, sturdy, lusty, robust. — saʌro ʃʌtiʌlo imʌnimi (the child) became robust and strong 110.17. aʌlto iʌski deningum s'aʌro.ʌn bʌm after two or three years he was a lusty (child). 244.3.

(Cp. Sh. saʌro, fully-developed).

saʌs thousand. — aʌlto saʌs two thousand. tsʌndi saʌs five thousand. saʌs rupiʌn one thousand rupees. 304.8.

(Cp. Sh. saʌs).

saʌsʌfe (in the) evening, late afternoon (3—6 p.m.), H. peʃin. — kuʌlto saʌsʌfe this evening. jimʌle saʌsʌfe ja khoʌl ʃʌpik bi tomorrow evening my food is here, i.e. I am to feed here.

saʌsefumo, saʌsafumo pertaining to evening, in the evening. — saʌsefumo ʃʌpiʌk evening meal. saʌsefumo bʌsaʌr doʌʃqʌltumʌn in the evening they arrived at the halting place. 126.2. Cp. 126.20. saʌsefumo bola dʌljʌr niʌcʌn in the evening they go off to play polo. 330.8.

saʌspʌr x sg. & pl. sort of plant (with leaves like big "London pride", near Rama glacier), N. "flowering rhubarb".

(Cp Sh. saʌspʌr, "a plant good for wounds"; Kho. sʌspru, saʌspruʌ, "an aromatic herb").

saʌt v. ʃaʌt.

saʌt ʃ-ʌlʌs v, ʃaʌt ʃ-ʌlʌs.

307a

saṭi v. savaṭi.

saṭimo pertaining to yesterday. — saṭimo ine čʌγa his yesterday's speech, what he said yesterday. 126.6.

sayaṛi -mots x first light in the morning. QUB first rays of light before actual appearance of the sun. — biśkɛ sayaṛitsɛ lʌm maibitsum the hair was glittering in the early morning light. 134.10.

sʌbʌb -iŋ y cause, reason. — bɛṛsʌn sʌbʌb bila? what is the cause? gutɛ sʌbʌbtsum for this reason. hɔṛʌltɛ sʌbʌbtsum je nɛṝ ayaṛmʌnʌm I was unable to go because of the rain. Ar. Prs.

sʌbʌq y lesson, study. — gutɛ sʌbʌq ʌčičuma? will you teach me (to read) this (book)? 48.6. Buzur Jʌmhuṛ sʌbʌqʌtə w'ṛśimo she put B. J. to study. 68.21. alimʌlɛ sʌbʌq γʌt'ʌnimi he studied with the learned man. 68.21. Ar. Prs.

sʌbdʌn N., v. sʌmdʌn, anvil.

sʌbɛ jon your life. — sʌbɛ jon bɔrkʌt blessings on your life = Bu. ji bɔrʌkʌt. 340.21.

(A Wkh. expression. Wkh. sʌvɛ your, jon life). Wkh.

1. sʌbuṛ, sʌbɔṛ, sabuṛ, EOL and N. sʌwuṛ.

a. Last night, yesterday, nightfall. The word is probably sa + buṛ, sunset, specialised to refer to the preceding sunset or nightfall.

sʌbuṛ ge gyṛmi yesterday evening snow fell.

b. All day. — s'ʌburɛ, sa sʌborɛ all day. sʌburɛ buṛ the whole day, all day to sunset.

2. sʌbɔṛ y patience. — sʌbɔṛ ɛtʌs bila it is necessary to exercise patience. sʌbɔṛ ɛtʌsʌn baiʌi he is a patient

000 person. xalʷ apówu(an) baší he is (an) impatient (person). Ar. Pre.

3. xalʷ four. — xalʷ ǰaší four measures ("bowls") of grain, paid as a tax to the Mir of Hunza in Gujhal. 342.18. (Wkh. ɣalʷ). Wkh.

xalʷkǰ patient. (Pre.).

xalʷmo, x'alʷmo, xaɣʷmo.

a. Pertaining to last night, yesterday's. — ǰardinar ke ise xalʷmo ǰapiltsum wɔrtsin putting aside for the morning (some) of the last night's food. 342.5.

b. In the daytime, H. drəko.

xalʷt proof. — xalʷt etas bila it has to be proved. Ar. Pre.

xaṣo, y pl. xaṣoŋ, easy; easiness. — khot beŋ xaṣo dir'owan bila this is a very easy matter. 50.19. xa'ua ke with ease, easily. (Cp. Sh. xaṣo, easy).

xaɣam, xaɣam, N. pl. -ǰíŋ y smoke-hole in roof, skylight. — ke xaɣam ze wali ham ise gurtas the corpse he had thrown down through the smoke-hole of the house. 114.24. xaɣ'am (xaɣam) ze down through the smoke-hole. 140.6, 228.7.

(Cp. Sh. xuyum, smoke-hole. Cp. also Sh. xam).

343 xakay -ko x receptacle on roof for holding grain (constructed of stones or brick and roofed with sticks and mud); granary. — xakaye xam (or, ixaf) hole on top of granary (by which man can enter to clean it).

000 xaɣowaf (generosity); generous, liberal. — xaɣowaf'an baší he is generous. Ar. Pre.

xaṣti y hardship. 20.17. Pre.

xal -o x.

a. Thin, flat stone for grinding on; mill-stone. — xal gow ǰaj dirwar 000 when the grinding-stone's and rolling-pin's beard comes, i.e. when they grow beards. 142,26. yuɛ.iq ɛal mill-stone.

N. yetiki ɛal, yuriki ɛal upper and nether mill-stone.

b. Moulded shape of salt, cake of salt. — tha ɛalo hap ... dul'an they bring 100 moulds of salt as TRX. 274.10.

ɛ'ala y counsel. — ɛala ɛtas to take counsel, consult. ɛal.ifi barn they are in consultation. yuɛmutsum ɛala doy'aruɛmi he consulted his wife. 34.7. ɛaqaiyor ɛala puɛuɛman they took counsel, planned, to slay him. 384.3. ɛala Nuw Baximutsum ganɛman they consulted N. B. 384.3.

ɛalam, EOL pl. -iciq, y salam, salutation, greeting. — ɛalam ɛtas + dat. to say "ɛalam ale.ikum" to, greet, pay respects to. yur ne je Šahrı Bamaɛ ɛalamar juɛa beiyam formerly I used to come to pay my respects to Š. B. 18.17. ivna hilana ɛalam ɛcai.i the boy salāms (to A. W.) 64.22. Ar. Prs.

ɛalamat y welfare, health, safety. — bedin ɛalamat (form of address to King) Hail King! Save thee, O King! Long life to the King! 6.10. uɛriam i- si.at ɛalam.at d'ɛuqurkai.i he has recovered his lost son in health and safety. 374.3. Ar. Prs.

ɛalat, ɛalat y pl. moustache. — yuɛile ɛalatage hiran a man with a golden moustache. 180.9, 184.4. (Cp. Khe., Wkh. ɛamlat).

ɛaldan, pl. ɛaldaiye, x a special kind of stone used for millstones.

(ɛal + dan qqv.).

*-ɛ'algin.a, *-ɛ'algi- to affiance, betroth, a girl to a man, and vice versa.

308b

The word refers to the preliminary agreement concluded by the parents of the bride and bridegroom. 000 ja ai.i ɨnɛ ɨər musʼʌlgina ba I have affianced my daughter to his son. inɛ ɛɨ ja ɛɨ.ər musʼʌlgina ba I have affianced his son to my daughter. hilɛər dʌsin musʌlgibaɨn they betroth the girl to the lad. 298.12.

ʌlwaɨt y Muslim prayers. — ʌlwaɨt sɛɨtmɛ saying the prayers (at burial). 310.12. Ar.

1. ʌm, -iččʌŋ, -iŋ y skylight, smoke-hole in roof, H. ruʼšandaɨn. — tʌʼdi.ɛ ʌmʌfər duʼsimi he went up to the smoke-hole in the roof. 40.7. ɨtɛ ʌm ɨʼdigaɨri maɨu ɛtimi he mewed round the smoke-hole. 174.12. ʌkaye ʌm hole in the top of granary on roof. Cp. 112.17, 168.24. (Cp. ʌɣʌm).

2. ʌm very, quite. Only recorded in: ʌm ʌŋ very light, broad daylight. ʌm ʌɨʼda quite plain, simple.

ʌmʌwaɨr x samovar. Prs.

ʌmʌnd dun-coloured. Prs.

ʌmʌndər y sea. H.

ʌmʌrʌŋ y pl. wooden frame of smoke-hole. — kok tʌərʌŋ kɛ ʌmʌrʌŋ this (lit. these) doorframe and smoke-hole frame. 170.2.8. (Pl. of ʌmʌriʒ).

ʌmʌriʒ, pl. ʌmʌrʌŋ, y one of side pieces of frame of smoke-hole. (Cp. 1. ʌm and ʌmʌrʌŋ).

ʌmba y reflection, thought, H. soʼč, xiyaʼl. — ʌmba ɛtʌs to think, reflect. 6.6, ʌmba ʌpiʼman bai.i he is a person who doesn't reflect, i.e. hasty, feckless. ikərʌŋɛ ʌmba ɣutɛ ɛtimi he reflected to himself as follows . . . 228.6. (Cp. Sh. ʌmba, Balti Kh ʌmba, thought etc.).

309a

sʌmbul'a the zodiacal month Sumbula (the sign of Virgo). August—September. 336.1. Ar. Prs. ○○○ sʌmdʌn, sʌndʌn, pl. sʌndaiyo x anvil; sledge-hammer.

(Cp. N. Bu. sʌbdʌn, Sh. sʌmdʌn). Prs.

sʌmo v. 2. sa.

1. -sʌn pl. -saiyo x chin, ṭhoḍḍi, Sh. čhom.

2. -sʌn, pl. -saiyo, x spleen, H. trlli, trḥa·l.

sʌnḍa -mʊts x male buffalo.

(Cp. Sh. sʌnda, Kho. sʌnḍ'a, Punj. sʌṇḍha·, male buffalo. Bu. and Sh. also with -ḍ-?).

sʌnduq (-ʊq), -ʊts, -išo x box, chest. trunk, coffin. — sʌndʊqtsʊm gʌtʊŋ a·r di.usin get the clothes out of the box for me. 24.17,21. sʌnd'ʊqɪšʊlo ya·rɪ o·tai.i he has buried them in coffins. 344.7. Ar. Prs.

sʌnmo v. 2. sa.

sʌŋ, EOL pl. -išo, ičʌŋ, light; bright, IUB H. ro·šʌn. — sʌm sʌŋ very light, bright daylight. sʌŋ mʌna·s to shine, glitter, become light. gon sʌŋ manimi light of dawn has come, day has dawned. čɪrʌq sʌŋ ɛti light the lamp. (Cp. Sh. sʌŋ, light).

sʌŋg i mərmər marble. Said to be found at Gerelt near the river below Haiderabad in Hunza.

sʌŋkʊš y light, brightness; sunlight, sunshine; H. ro·šʌni, ujha·la·pʊn. — sa sʌŋkʊš sunlight, daylight. hʌlʌntsə sʌŋkʊš moonlight.

1. sʌp -ʊts x horse-shoe. — hʌγʊrɪ sʌp ɛti (or, ɛpʊs, or, ɛdili) shoe the horse. sʌp ɛpʊsʌs sis horse-shoer, farrier.

2. sʌp -ʊts x a kind of wild plant with white flowers, IUB the assafoetida plant, H. hiŋ ki bu·ṭi.

309b

000 (Cp. Sh. sʌp = Kho. ra.u, a plant "eaten like assafoetida in Gurez, Rattu, etc.").

sʌpər, sʌpfər, sʌphər -iŋ y journey. — sʌpər ɛtʌs to make a journey, to travel. γʊsʌnʊm sʌpər long journey. nʌtʌnər sʌphər journey to a distance, far journey. 356.1. Cp. 360.7. Ar. Prs sʌpuyar man with a large family members of household. — sʌpuyar bai.i he is a man with a large family. ʊɛ ha·lɛ sʌpuyar bar in their house there are many family members. (Cp. Sh. sʊpi.ar, sʌpi.ar, family of many dependent non-working members).

1. sər y inundation, flood, accumulated water, water spread out over flooded ground, IUB H. jhil, bʌnd pani. — ts.hil dufʌltila sər mʌnila the water has burst out and there has been flood. ʊɛ uyon moltʌnɛ sər ortimi it made them all pour out a flood of blood. 172.9. gʌmuʊnʊlo dɛ·l sər mai.i bilʊm oil used to form a lake at the bottom. 272.3.

   (Cp. Sh. sər flood (as from overflowing river), standing water).

2. sər -o x hare, IUB H. xərgoš.
3. sər -o x thread, worsted, yarn, IUB. H. dhaga. — čuk ɛtʌs sər sewing thread. jʊra·lɛ sər worsted. šɛ·i sər woollen yarn. gʊpʌsɛ sər cotton yarn. dʌγu·i sər raw thread (i.e. not properly twisted). sər pfər ɛtʌs to twist thread. sər dʌγʌnʊmʌn bi the thread is thick.

sər ɛtʌs v. tsər ɛtʌs to tear.

sərə carrying loads by instalments — sərə bʌldʌŋ ɛčai.i. 162.24.
sərə bʌldʌŋ ortai.i. 162.25. He is making them carry the loads, or,

000 having them carried, by instalments first to one point and then on to another point, Prs. dukrš, sɛkrš.

(ʊčai.i . . . he makes (his men) carry them).

sərʌg v. tsərʌg.

sərʌt'ʊn the Zodiacal month of Saratān (the sign of the Crab), commencing 21st June. 326.1.

sərbər ɛtʌs to castrate (an ox). — sərbər ɛtum castrated.

sərdʊr leader, commander (of guards etc). — rʊčikuyɛṭum sərdʊrər to the Commander of the Guards. 36.22. hʊlʌṭɛ sərdʊr no making them commanders of the army. 344.3. Prs.

sərhʌd y frontier.

sərik -išo, (-uyʌnts), x bolt of door (a bar of wood with a crosspiece (γʊn) through which a peg (inɛkʊs) drops into it). — sərik dʊgu.ʌs (or, ɛtʌs) to close, fasten, bolt. sərik dʊnʌs to open, undo, bolt. sərik nɛ guča bom bolting (the door) she had gone to sleep, H. kʊnda lʌgʊkʌr. 40.7.

sərikʊs, pl. sərikuyʌnts, x bolt, or lock, of door. — gʊsɛ sərikʊs sɪqa bi this lock is open.

(Cp. Sh. s'ərikʊs door-bolt).

*-sərk, -išo, -ʊts x udder, H. thʌn, širdʊn. — belisɛ, bu.ʊ isərk sheep's, cow's, udder.

sərk x, section, division, of vegetable plot. šɛni.ɛ sərk.

sərkʊr the British Indian Government. 346.1, ff. Prs.

1. sərkʊri y tithe paid to the Imām (the Agha Khan). Prs.

2. sərkʊri pertaining to the British Indian Government. 240.15. Prs.

1. *-sərkʌs, *-sərš-, *-sərkič- to strike one thing on another, bring down (sword) on, to smite with. — sʌnduqʌʃe dʌn isərk bring down a stone on the box (to break it open). 24.18. dodoʷʌʃe čur isˈərkimi he brought down the knife on his throat (i.e. proceeded to cut his throat). 42.3. Cp. 44.19. iʷtɛ tiʷli.ɛʃe gʌŋi isərkumʌn they chopped at the walnut tree with an axɜ. 200.5. γʌtenč, gʌči, dərooγo, tər, isərkimi he smote with a sword, withe, stick, whip. tsəriše uʷlo haʷlər nʌlˈa utis isəršaʷn they bring down, put down, their feet simultaneously inside the threshold in the house. 304.17.

N. ušʌkičæŋ isərkʌs to swim with overhand stroke.

N. kinɛ hilɛsɛ yʌtɛsɛ xʌt isərkʌm I smacked this boy on the head. Cp. 80.1, 150.8, 200.12,13, 204.12.

2. *-sərkʌs, *-sərš-, IUB *-sərkič-.

a. To leave, put down, let in, permit, IUB H. čhoγdeʷna. — oʷdi isərkʌs, oʷdi usərkʌs bila the "odi" milk is to be left, put down. 322.3. uʷlo aiyˈʌsəršaʷna? won't you let me in? 160.4. uʷlo oʷsərk don't let them in. buˈaʷ isk iʷrumər mʌmu eʷsərši bi its calf having died the cow doesn't yield (let go) milk. QUB.

b. To divorce (a women), H. ṭʌlaʷq deʷna. — hiʷɛ yuʷɛ mosˈərkimi the man divorced his wife.

sərkɛ.

1. Visible, H. nʌzaʷra. — Šahzaʷda Bahraʷm puʷra iʷkər sərkɛ etimi Š. B. made himself visible, showed himself, entirely. 30.21. sərkɛ baiʷi he is visible, he appears. sərkɛ manumʌn they became visible, showed themselves. 122.11.

2. Point of view, place of observation. — sərkɛ bʌldi a room made upon a roof from which a view is obtained. hʌn dišʌnʊlo sərkɛtsɛ hʊrʊ·čʌmʌn they sat down at a point of view (?) in a certain place. 260.5. tʌ·ŋɛ s'ərke.ʊlo 'ɛŋərčʌ·n they play music on the outer open roof of the palace. 328.4. 000 sərmʊts -iŋ y big bag of prepared skin (holds 80 lbs of grain and upwards). Sh. jʌtai.i, Sh.? khʌlaḍu. — ʌ·lto iski sərmʊtsiŋ kʌni kɛ bʌterɪŋ two or three bags of parched grain and dried apricots. 306.22. sərmʊtsʊlo uti bʌ·n they fill (the grain) into the bag. 332.6. Cp. 332.2 ff.

1. sərp'a y pl. robe of honour, H. xillʌt. — sərpa . . . dʊsʊ·in bring the robe of honour. 44.25.

2. sərpa -mʊts x a section of cultivated land. Prs. [1] sərpo N., pl. sərpʊmʊts x horse-shoe. (Cp. Sh. sa·rpo, horse-shoe, and Hz. Bu. sʌp).

sʌsʌn a little, a small quantity. — s'ʌsʌn dɛl a little oil.

sʌsʌŋ -ɛčiŋ y buttressing wall. 278.5.

sʌt -ɛŋ y a piece of ground on which wool is cleaned, H. jɪs zami·nmē pašm sʌ·f kʌrte haī. — ja bušʌi.i sʌt stʌ·n they have made my land into a "sat", i.e. they have destroyed it, ruined it. QUB.

sʌfɛš stʌs to arrange, put in order, repair (house, table etc.), Prs. ʌra·stʌn.

sʌtrʌnj -išo x woven cotton carpet, H. dʌrri. (Cp. Punj. and Sh. sʌtrʌnji).

sʌwa·b y merit, good desert. 312.17. Ar. Prs.

sʌwa·l -iŋ y question. — s.ʌwa·l stʌs to ask a question. 232.2. Ar. Prs.

311 b

[1] [see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 544 - Analyst]

000 ʃʌʒa y punishment. — inɛr itɛ gʌnɛ ʃʌʒa ičhi·ʌm on that account I punished him. Prs.

sai.rt v. sɛ·it.

sail -iŋ y tour, walk, outing; inspection. — gu·kɛ bʌʃɛŋɛ sail 'ɛti make the round of these gardens. 10.13, sailər du·simi he went out for a walk. 10.17 sailər itsu·ʌm they had taken hin for a walk. 70.17. sail ɛtʌʃ to inspect. EOL. sail *-ʌ'ʌʃ to show v.t. EOL. Ar. Prs.

saurin v. s.v. sorriŋ.

sau.u v. sa·o.

601 se, se.i, sɛ form of address used by husband to his wife, and by women to each other. — muyərɛ sɛnimi: "se jʌma·ʌt" her husband said: "O wife". 34.9. se.i Lʌŋa Bru·mo O, L. B. (said by husband). 122.24. le a.u, [illegible] O father, O mother (said by daughter). 280.12. sɛ mʌma O mother (said by son). 264.11.

This use of the term by a (male?) child to his mother was said to be not good form.

The term is used by the supernatural Širibərai BʌγərthʌM to his hostess: "se ma·ma", 212.4, and by the saint Ba·ba Ghwundi to his unrelated young protegée: "sɛ dʌsin", 282.5. Such personages apparently do not feel themselves bound by the ordinary rules.

000 se·rt, sai.rt, sai.rd, -ərɔ hm Saiyid. — tʌlo sɛ·itərɯ.ɛ mʌzʌxiŋ seven Saiyids graves. 294.1. Ar. Prs.

1. sɛ·r "seer", 2 lbs. avoirdupois weight. — hik sɛ·r one seer. H.

2. sɛ·r, sɛr, y magic. — da sɛ·r ja·du ɛčai.i then he works enchantment and magic. 172.18. Cp. 174.2. Ar. (sɛhr).

000 sel -miŋ y needle, pin; sting of insect; N. centre pin of millstone. — čuʷkɛ sel needle for embroidery etc. iʷl apim sel eye-less needle i.e. pin. Imperɛ sel a wasp's sting. iʷlɛ sel the needle. 160.16.

sʲenʌs, sʲe.i-, sey-, sai-, Impv. sen, Ppa. nosen, nose. This verb takes the negative prefix o-.

1. To say. — tsʌnɛ sen say truly, speak the truth. 58.30. bɛ senʌs to say "no", to refuse. 26.1, 370.8.

The words spoken may either precede or follow the part of senʌs on which they depend. When they follow it, the verb is frequently again repeated after them: "yʌṭɛ čərolo korolo baʷn" senumʌn "they are up in a cave in the cliff" they said. 248.14. iʷnɛ dʌsinɛ senomo: "ja kuʷlto rʌk api, besɛ kɛ . . . the girl said: "I have no appetite today because . . . 30.2. Šahr i Baʷnu.ɛ senomo: "ja oyərʌn bai.i, iʷner bɛ seyʌm?" senomo Š. B. said: "I have a husband: what am I to say to him?" she said. 24.12.

Special usages:

a. The Present 3rd. pl., se.ibaʷn, is constantly used in recounting history, stories etc., not told from the personal knowledge of the speaker: they say, it is said, people say, Fr. "on dit":
Awal Hunzo Baltitolo Tʌpki.ents abaʷd bʌm, se.ibaʷn originally the T. were established in Baltit in Hunza, they say: it is said that originally . . . 238.1.

It occurs constantly thus in the course of the same text.

312 b

b. The Ppa., nɔsen, nɔsɛ having said, saying, is commonly used at the end of a quotation, especially where the quotation is introduced by a verb other than sɛnʌs or -ʌsʌs. doγɔrɔsumi: "Šahr i Šaskine gʌn mene he.ibɔna?" nɔsen he asked: "does anyone know the road to S. S.?" 4.3, 20.15, 28.5, 120.1. padša sʌmba etimi besʌn γonikrš dɔrɔwʌn etɔmʌn nɔsɛ the King thought to himself: "What evil action have we done?" 96.17.

nɔsen alone is also used in the sense of saying to oneself, thinking (to oneself).

čiše xa sokečʌm nɔsen, xʌ nɔmuɔl muyaɔlmuɔyo gʌli bim, se.ibɔn they say that, saying to herself: "I'll go down the ladder" she fell down (lit. she falling) and her ribs were broken. 184.7.

2. To say to (someone), to tell (someone). The person addressed is usually put in the dative.

imimɔr senimi: "je . . . nečʌm" he said to his mother: "I shall go . . ." 264.17. Munolom Daɔdu.e yuɔsmɔr senimi M. D. said to his wife . . . 182.7.

The suffix -ʌle may be used instead of the dative.

gute bɔr menʌle oɔsʌn don't tell this matter to anyone. 60.8. Cp. 118.20.

The locative in -ulo occurs twice: menulo oɔsʌn don't tell it to anyone. 118.17,21.

Perhaps it is a corruption of menʌle due to the following long oɔ. In the same passage we have the dative and -ʌle with sɛnʌs, and the equivalent čʌγa etʌs.

We find also: 000
mukarɛŋɛ senumo she said to herself. 204.13. Cp. 373.3.
To call, name, to call s.o. (dat.) s.t. (acc.).
Waxi baʷšaʈɛ kampiʷr mapɛr jat gusmur seibaʷn in the Wakhi language they call an old woman "kampiʷr". 286.16. aqtaš Turki.uʷlo burum danər se.ibaʷn in Turki they call a white stone "aqtaš". 290.1. Cp. 292.12.

In this case the infinitive form senas is used like a past participle: called, named, by name. Bahraʷm senas baʷdša bam there was a king called Bahram. 2.1. hin Gəriʷb senasane iʷ Puʷno senasan . . . bam there was a man called Puʷno, the son of a man called Gəriʷb. 208.8. Cp. 204.1, 214.1, 250.1.

4. To read. N. — krtaʷp senas ulaʷya ba I am able to read the book.

Forms.

The following are some references to recorded forms: —

Fut.	sg. 1.		seʷyam. 62.17, 368.3 etc.
		3. m.	se.imi. 120.10.
Pres.	sg. 1.		seʷya ba. 58.30, 82.21, 162.12.
		2.	se.iba. 26.9, 80.19, 162.21.
		3. m.	se.ibai.i. 98.1 et passim; f. se.ibo. 160.23 et passim.
		x	se.ibi. 96.18.
	pl. 1.		seʷya baʷn. 292.12.
		3.	se.ibaʷn. 292.2 et passim.

313 b

000 Impf. pl. 3. se.ibʌm. 238.7.
Pret. sg. 1. senʌm. 16.12.
3. m. senimi. 106.15 et passim; f. senʊmo 176.28, 268.6 et passim.
pl. 3. h. senumʌn. 248.7 et passim.
3. x. senimi.ɛ. 12.17.
Perf. sg. 1. sena ba neg. 370.8; senabʌtɛ (sena ba + ʌtɛ?) when I have said, on my saying; 168.23.
3. m. senai.i 56.13, 58.1, 154.12.
Plup. sg. 3. m. senʌm. 68.19, 218.10.
Impv. sg. 2. sen. 26.9.
pl. 2. senin. 154.12.

-š forms; senš and senč.

ɛtɛ bər senč amˈʊmai.imo she will be unable to say this. 168.9. Cp. 368.4.

Pres. Pc. se.imɛ. 212.12, 248.6, 310.12, 332.5. saimʌtɛ (se.imɛ + ʌtɛ?) while saying, in the act of saying. Nz.

Past Pc. Act. nʊsɛn and nʊsɛ: passim.

Static Pc. senʊm. kinɛ senʊm itɛ tsʌn bila the thing said by him is true. 82.18. Cp. 80.24, 370.7,8. senʊmɛ ka on his saying (this), when he said (this). 140.4.

Cases occur where senʌm may be a 2nd. sg. form of the Static Pc. Act.: uˈʒɛ senʌm (or, senʊm) jiwʌn nɛ according to what you said.

Infin. senas.

000 gutɛ senas pfuʷt deyɛlimi the div heard this saying, speech. 176.7.

The dative: senasər is common: gutɛ senasər Š. Bahraʷm buʷt xoš imanimi On their saying this S. B. was greatly pleased. 30.6. Cp. 240.6, 262.16, 373.17.

senas called, named. V. section 3 above.

The senas in 368.5 and 368.11 is probably due to a confusion of idiom.

Negative forms:

Pres. sg. 1. osaiya ba. 118.20.

Perf. sg. 1. osɛna ba. 370.8.

Impv. sg. 2. osan. 60.7, 118.17.

sɛtambər September. 336.1. Eng.

si.aʷi y ink. — farsi si.aʷi Persian ink. angrezi si.aʷi European ink. Prs.

si.at good health. — si.at salaʷmat safe and sound. 374.3. Ar. Prs. (ṣrḥḥat).

sɪfat y merit, virtue, good qualities. — uŋɛ sɪfat ɛčo she will sing your praises. 168.10. kiʷnɛ sɪfat maʷr ɛʷčam I shall tell you this (infant's) virtues. 92.1. Ar. Prs.

sigareṭ N. -ršo x cigarette. Eng.

sɪkiʷm -iŋ, -ičiŋ, N. -ičaŋ, y silk (fabric). — sɪkiʷmɛ silken, silk (adj.).

(Cp. Sh. s'ɪkim, sɪkiʷm, Kho. ɪskiʷm).

[601] silažin, pl. silažiyo, hf female relation, related women-folk. — mi silažin bo she is a relation of ours. mi silažiyo baʷn (these women) are related to us.

1> siʷm x wire, spiral wire spring. — sitaʷrɛ siʷm guitar wire. baṣɛ siʷm wire cable (of bridge) Prs.

siʷnč, siʷnj, -ko x (roof) beam, rafter. Pers. šartiʷr. — han siʷnčan hoʷl nɛ pfaʷš bim the end of a rafter was sticking out. 174 8,9.

(Cp. perhaps Kho. sanj and sanjiʷr).

314 b

1 [see supplement to corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p.545-Analyst]

sinda -miŋ y river. — sinda hʊma the river ford. 112.7. sinda hʊma . . . ivte kivte mʌnumʌn they crossed backwards and forwards over the ford in the river. 114.26. kʌyulo sinda ivltse on the strand at the edge of the river. 206.13. Cp. 176.1,7 000 sinḍ'ʌbʌl, QUB sindʌw'ʌvl hm agent who represents bride at wedding; ditto for bridegroom, H. wʌkivl. — hir yʌkʌlʊm hin, dʌsin muyʌkʌlʊm hin jʌvmʌn sinḍ'ʌbʌl do.ičʌvn they put up one relation on behalf of the bridegroom and one on behalf of the bride (as) agent(s). 302.16. 585 sivndiš, pl. sivndʌvnts, x goose.

sivnge (-e), -tiŋ, -mʊts x dragon, monster, wild animal, lion, Prs. Ažduha. Also applied to a fearless child. — sivnge *-ʌs "lion-hearted", very brave, dauntless. A. K. pailwʌvn bʌm sivnge ʌvs bim A. K. was a hero, he was lion-hearted. 110.23. (bim attracted into the category of sivnge or ʌvs). hʌn siŋ'ʌvn duvsimi ivse ivk Gʌvn Sivnge a monster (demon) came out, its name was G. S. 176.20. Cp. 176.11. 000

(The word occurs in the Krsər story and probably corresponds to Sengye in Dr. A. H. Francke's Ladakhi version of the tale, which he refers to the Sanskrit simha, lion. Cp. Tibetan senge, Balti singe, lion, brave).

sipa.i -tiŋ hm sepoy, Indian infantry soldier. Prs. H.

sɪq -vts, -ʌnts, N. -ʌivnts x arrow-head (N. blunt for use in games).

(Cp. lim with which in H. it is synonymous).

sɪq'a open. — hinai uyʊvn sɪka bi'sʌm' ivka tʌm ʌti the doors are all open, shut them Nz. hiŋ sɪka ɛtimi he opened the door. 54.6, 64.5. hʌn hiŋʌn sɪka manimi a door opened. 180.8. OOO

1. sɪr y secret. — gutɛ sɪr this secret. 376.2, Ar. Prs.
2. sir, sɪr y. Recorded only in the expression sirɛ ka "possessing supernatural or magical powers" applied to a man.

   It was explained by H. karamʌtwala, γaribana.

   inɛ sirɛ ka bʌm he was with supernatural powers, i.e. he possessed supernatural powers. 204.2,11, 220.3. 292.5. ar sɪr mʌn'ila I have received supernatural aid, power. QUB.

   (Probably the same word as 2. sɛr).

sɪrf only. 384.7. Ar. Prs.

sɪrgan leading below, leading down, downwards.

sɪrka y vinegar. Prs.

sis h sg. and pl. person, man; people, folk. Usually plural; the singular being as a rule represented by sisʌn. The pl. has sometimes the -ik suffix: sisik. — hir sis bʌmʌn uyon all the male persons present. 240.2 ff. itɛ wʌxtulo sis ʌr umʌnumʌn at that time the people were afraid. 292.7. itɛ mʌzər yər sisɛ iyeršʌm formerly people used to see the grave. 224.7. sis uyon uyumo hakičʌŋər . . . duumʌn all the people returned (lit. came) to their houses. 202.2. uɛ sisər osimi he said to those people. 294.11. hir sis birʌnčɛ ʌrʌkičiŋ d'iusin the men folk extracting (or, bringing out) mulberry spirit. 330.3. mʌtʌnom hin sisʌnɛ . . . Bozur Jʌmhur ɛsʌljʌm from a distance a man was looking at B. J. 92.10. hin sisʌnɛ itsu the 000 tracks of a man. 6.3. hin sisʌnɛ bʌp a tax of one human being. 280.5. Cp. 74.26, 76.1. menen kɛ sisʌn ʌpʌm there was no one. 4.18. iʷnɛ sisɛ iʷskil ja ɛʷitsiš xa so long as I do not see that person's face. 4.18. thʌmɛ ɛʷʊm sis the man sent by the Mir. 240.5. iʷnɛ sis nimi Buzʊr Jʌmhuʷr ɛpʌčʊr the man went to B. J. 76.2. uyuʷm sis bo she is a woman of consideration, she is a personage. hikʊm . . . sisik paida mɛ.imʌn a party of people . . . will make their appearance. 188.3.

Cp. hikʊm sis a body of men. 240.3.

altʌn sisik. } two persons.
altʌn sis. 24.6. }

Cp. 206.9.

sisiʷnʊm clear (of water); slight, slender. — sisiʷnʊm tsʰil clear water. sisiʷnʊm biɛnʊm gʊsʌn bo she is a thin slender woman. QUB. (Cp. -ʌsisiʷnʌs*, and Sh. ʌrsiʷno waiɛi, clear water).

ʌrtaʷr -iŋ y stringed musical instrument, guitar. 180.10. Prs.

-sk -ʊmʊts* x young (of animals), young one. — buʷš iʷsk kitten. qʊrqaʷmʊtsɛ iskʌn, iskʊmʊts a chicken, chickens. hiʷšmahiʷšɛ iʷsk buffalo calf. uʷfɛ iʷsk, pl. ufʌnts uʷskʊmʊts young of camel. (bɛlisɛ) aʷlta iʷskʊmʊts biʷɛ there are two young ones (lambs). 64.16.

The word is not ordinarily used of the young of human beings, but from Nz. I recorded the forms: ja ask, un gusk and mʊsk(ʊmʊts) referring to human children. It is so used jokingly.

-skiʷl -iŋ* y face. — ma mʌskʰilʊlo rʌŋ api there is no colour in your face(s). 90.11. inɛ thʌmɛ iʷskilʊr hʌn rʌšʌn lʌm manimi a light flashed in the 000 Tham's face. 24.3. wa·lto iski·liŋ four-faced, four-sided, square. wa·lto iskiliŋʌn dʌn a four-faced stone, said of a person who tries to please everyone, toadies to rajahs, etc.

(Cp. -škil, which is the N. form).

so·çi, sovçi N. -mots female.

(Cp. Sh. sö·çi, female).

sod'ʌgər -tiŋ, -išo; N. soda·gər -išo (hm) merchant, trader, shopkeeper.

(Sh. and Kho. both play phonetically with the Persian word: Sh. so·dʌg'ər, Kho. saudʌg'a·r). Prs.

sod'ʌger'i y trading, trade. — sod'ʌgəri ɛtʌs to trade, traffic. Prs.

*-so·γot -iŋ.

1. The side of the body under the arm; space inside the breast of choga; bosom, H. bʌγʌl.

   Principally recorded in the locative form: -so·γoči (= -so·γot + tsi, or či).

   gosɛ jʌkunɛ go·ko mɛnɛ ditsun uŋ gosoγotər (or, gosoγoči) gowɛ·ši ba·n? who has brought this donkey-foal and put it at your side? 118.15. go·ko . . . isoγoči yænimi he took the donkey-foal under his arm (inside his choga). 118.27. čam'a musoγočim xa wʌli bi the brooch has fallen down from her side inside her clothes. 168.5. Cp. 92.10, 168.3,4.

2. Pocket (probably because articles may be carried inside the breast of the choga, old fashioned in this sense).

so·kʌs, sokič-, Impv. so·k, to come down, descend; dismount. — çištsum ya·rɛ so·kimi he came down from the ladder. çišɛ xa sokɛčʌm I shall go down the ladder. 184.7. hʌγortsum so·kimi he dismounted from the horse. 6.17. hɔrəltə čutowan ... baḍaliʿkɔr sɔʿkimi a drop of rain came down into the bowl. 108.5. Cp. 24.5, 108.16. (Cp. dosoʿkas). 000 sɔm IUB smoke-hole, Prs. suraʿx i duʿdkaš.

(Cp. Sh. sɔmo, smoke-hole. Cp. also Bu. sam. QUB did not admit this form).

sɔmo, pl. sɔmamots, sɔmatiŋ, h friend. 358.13. N. gives sɔmo hm, and sɔmi -mots hf. — sɔmo-ʃɔγulo pl. friends and acquaintance.

(Cp. Sh. sɔmo, friend, of which the feminine form would naturally be sɔmi).

sɔrpaṭ a kind of herb with hollow stalks. — sɔrpaṭe pfstiŋ nasɔwaʿrɔr sčan they use the ashes of s. as snuff. QUB. sɔrpaṭ yaʿrum etc. Prov. 17. Saying, "I shall get something from under the s.", you get rid of what is in your possession.

sɔriŋ, sauriŋ EOL y pl. rations. QUB gives: — saurin y pl. a tax of 2 chuqs of grain formerly imposed on the Nagaris to support the Mahraja[1] of Kashmir's force at Chaprot. saurin nuʿγun čhaltulo ɔruṭɔman giving the troops food supplies they posted them in Chalt.

sɔsan, pl. sɔsaiyo, x iris (plant).

(Cp. Kho. sausan). Prs. (suʿsan).

sɔzaʿk McK and GR gonorrhœa. Prs.

-sqa on (one's) back. — asqa ba ki if I am lying on my back. 218.9. asqa mana ba I have fallen back. isqa guča baiʿi he is lying (has lain) on his back. iʿsqa walas to fall on one's back.

subaš what is easy, propitious, favourable; the opposite of abał. — mavmər abałan subałan dis ki . . . if any difficulty or facility comes on you . . . 284.10. Here subałan seems to be introduced only to make a jingle. (Sh. sobał). 000 suçemo honest, of good character. — sućemo.an bai, γin apai he is an honest man, he is not a thief.

[1] [see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 544 - Analyst]

(Sh. suçemo. Cp. Sh., Bu. açemo).

suvd v. suvć.

*-suvi -mots x umbilical cord, navel. — isuvi čuruk ećan they cut (the infant's) umbilical cord.

suvjo pure, sacred, holy, H. pavk. Only recorded in suvjo pfuvnər (-iŋ) primula.

(Sh. suvjo + pfuvnər, flower).

sukʼwin, pl. sukʼwyo, hmf kinsman, blood-relation (descended from a common ancestor), "near relation such as cousin etc. who inherits when there is no direct heir". — khwf sukwin bai.i he is a close relation. xamaličiŋ sukwyo dotsen daŋ ećen fetching (female) relations they make them bake bread. 300.4. Cp. 312.19, 314.7. 601 (Variant: sukwin. Cp. Sh. sukwn, near relation, not including relation by marriage.

Cp. also the Bu. javn which is more inclusive than sukwin) solumə, solamʼə wrestling. — solumə dumas to wrestle. 106.8, 174.17, 198.9. ećtaliki solamʼə dumuman the two of them wrestled. 198.5. Cp. 218.5. 000

(Cp. Sh. samalə, samla lamovki, to wrestle).

sum female, (of all (domestic?) animals, but not of human beings. The term gus is however more commonly used).

sumən male (corresponding to sum, and usually replaced by hir). — sʼumən

000 biva, som'ʌnʌn bi? || gusʌn biva, hirʌn bi? (of, say, lambs) is it a female or a male? somišu.ik bivena, somʌnik bivn? Are they females or males?

somfʌlikṭ̌, somphʌlikṭ̌, pl. -ki.sats.

1. Very(?) young female (kid, lamb).
2. Derogatory term for effeminate man.

somphʌlikṭ̌ momoši female lamb.

ma mulkolo (harle) sompfʌlikṭ̌e pfʌl bali·la in your country (house) the seed of femininity has made its appearance, H. mardagi ka turm paida hoyi.a hai, i.e. the men are all effeminate, emasculate. QUB.

(This and som were originally recorded by me with ts-, but this was said by QUB to be wrong).

-surmʌl -ṭšo* x tail. — γeniše isurmʌl its golden tail. 134.5, 136.4, 138.23. Cp. 186.8.

som sʌŋ (-skin*) happy-faced, of smiling countenance. Prs. xandaru.

sop'ʌndor x sg. & pl. Syrian Rue. Prs. sipand. The plant is burnt for the sake of its smoke. V. thormʌl. (Cp. Sh. ispandor). — Supʌl error for sopʌl q.v.

supot y sg. & pl., d.pl. -iŋ, horse-dung.

surnaiči, surnaiči, -mots hm piper, "dambu"-player.

(Cp. Paht. surnači, Kho. surnači, surnaiči). Prs.

surʌt -iŋ y appearance (of person), countenance, face, likeness. — ivne sisi surʌt šu.a bila this man's appearance is good, he is nice looking. beški surʌtʌn bila? what does it look like? surʌt di.usʌs to take a photograph (of a person). ivnmu surʌtʌtʌ ašiq mʌnuṡʌm he had fallen in love with the look of her, or with her face(?). 14.7. pipuw jakuw suwat bile the infant has the appearance of a donkey, or a donkey's face. 102.7 ff. ćuc yelinlo ćuc suwat yeićirlo his likeness, or action, appears in the tank. 26[illegible].18. Cp. 2.8, 24.9, 30.18, 116.2, 196.9,18, 262.7, 264.2. ćilo sur'at khaki-coloured. EOL. guh ankur burum sur'at bile this flower is of a white colour. EOL. Ar. Pus.

suratćan N. pl. -ćarye pretty.

(Cp. Tibetan and Balti adj. suffix -ćan).

suwmanas, suwmanas, sumanā(y) to begin, commence work, be engaged on.

Takes the negative prefix a-.

'asuwman don't begin. tale ćuwumo suwmaiyam I shall begin after seven days, in a week. wlo ćuc selanc ka sumai.i ćeli.i inside he (the goldsmith) is engaged on, or beginning on (making) a needle. 160.14. fat ćimi tesle, suc ka 'asuwmanimi he left it as it was, and did not begin working on it. 166.9. (ćhag dufaltimi) suc ka asuwman (the gun has burst), don't touch it(?), don't meddle with it (?)

(Glossed: H. mat ćhero. ćhuna in H. = to irritate, trouble, play a musical instrument; in Punj. = to worry, vex, touch, start a subject of conversation).

suruy y mine (blasting). - suruy mili.uy blasting-powder. H. sus, sus, susi slack, idle, unconscious. — darg sus imanimi he went unconscious for a little. 182.12. Cp. 20.20, 108.21. Pus.

-suwsu*, pl. -a'wuwgu*, x elbow.

sur', suwl y gain, profit, benefit, advantage.

— swī bila, swī ma.ɹmi there is, there will be, profit, advantage etc. Prs. ooo swyas, swī-, Impv. su to bring, fetch, get (only of y objects). — šarim čuq gwr hisir gwr swīčam I'll bring you 10 measures of wheat every month. 60.17. kwi hasan ne swīu haiyam? how was I to bring (get) vegetables? 68.20.

Conditional: swīčam ite. 128.22.

Pret. sg. 1, swyam.

(hilay) swmo mwimo harlw she brought the book to her home. 46.3. ɣum kuk (y pl.) belafs swmas? how else did you get these things. 60.18. kuk (y pl.) ɣeu su.'u? why have you brought these things? 170.3. imow su.ai he has become angry, he is angry. da hi ɣalil su bring more wood. giriz čap su bring ibex meat. 104.8. xaberiq swyas news-bringer, spy, informer. Cp. 72.7,8, 206.6, 232.9.

(Corresponds in every way to dasuyas which occurs more frequently in the texts. swyas is not used in the negative).

š and š̄

šadi, šadi -mets x monkey. Prs.

šagird, -ero, -ako, h pupil. Prs.

šahin, pl. šahiyo x kind of black-eyed hawk. 356.6. Prs.

šam x evening (sunset to bedtime). — šam ɣapik evening meal. šamum šam manimi it has become evening twilight, (evening) dusk. šam se till evening. 302.10. šqmaw in the evening. 312.19. Prs.

šamal included. 380.11. Ar. Prs.

šammo pertaining to evening. — šammo ɣapik evening meal.

1. ʃa.o ɪtʌs (*-ʌtʌsɣ) v.t. to wash. — gut gurin ʃa.o eti wash your feet and hands. 174.2. ut urin ʃawečɜr nimʌn they went off to wash their feet and hands (a euphemism for: "for purposes of nature"). 118.8. 000
2. ʃa.o *-ʌtʌs to go mad, be mad. Given as a parallel to *-tsi bʌɣʌltɪʌs to go mad: ʃa.o gotʌs, ʃa.o otʌs, ʃa.o eveči, ʃa.o ɪtimi. ʃavo gočila you are mad.

The expression is transitive, with the sufferer as object. Cp. § 261. ii.

ʃapos, ʃapos, pl. ʃaposo x quilt, big mattress, H. rizai, Prs. lihaf. 308.5. (Cp. Sh. ʃapos quilt). Prs. (ʃabpoš).

ʃaɣ ɪtʌs (*-ʌtʌsɣ) to stroke, rub down, rub with the hand, wipe. — hʌɣɜr ʃaɣ ɪtʌs to stroke a horse. (Cp. 2. ʃʌq).

ʃaɣ ʃaɣ sound of rubbing, or, friction. — ʃaɣ ʃaɣ diusʌs to pull something out of a tight receptacle with a noise of friction. 138.24.

(Probably the same word as ʃaɣ and 2. ʃʌq. Cp. Sh. ʃak thoiki to pull a thing out where there is friction, e.g. a thread from under the lid of a box).

1. ʃaɣ, ʃahr -iɣ y city. 26.1, 96.20. Prs.
2. ʃaɣ y mercy, forgiveness; good, H. Ar. raḥm, Prs. niki. — Siɣi imo yuɣɜr ʃaɣ aiyitai Sing has shown no mercy to his sons. 264.20. aɣ ʃaɣ i have mercy on me. goɣ ʃaɣ ɪtʌm I forgave thee. ʃaɣɜr khʌčaɣ evil in return for good.
3. ʃaɣ ɪtʌs to roll out (dough). — yuɣi xʌmʌli ʃar ni dawʌfi biʃʌmɜr ini ɪltʌlai bai.i when his wife has rolled out the "khamali" dough and 000 put it on the griddle, he turns it. 306.8.

(For the series ʃʌv, ʃʌr, ʃiv vide BSOS VIII, p. 632).

šʌvuq N. -iŋ y noose. V. šok.

ʃʌwetʌs v. 1. ʃʌ.o etʌs.

šʌb'ʌq -ičiŋ, N. -ičʌŋ, y small plait, braid, of hair. — šʌbʌkičʌŋ etuba you have plaited your hair.

šʌb'ʌrʌn, š'ʌbʌrɪn, -iŋ, y polo-ground. — šʌbərɪne gondər the low wall round a polo-ground. šʌb'ʌrinər dun they coming to the polo-ground. 316.2,6,13. Cp. 386.17. (Cp. Sh. šəwʌrɪn).

šʌbʌš, šabaš bravo! (expression of applause or approval). — thʌm iner šʌbʌš etimi the Mir applauded him. le.i Rumi hiv šʌbʌš mʌniʃ O man of Rum, bravo to you! 44.16. šʌbʌš av dimi, ov juči I was applauded, they will be applauded. padšahantiŋe šabaš juʌs ečʌm I shall cause kings to applaud (you) (lit. I shall make come the applause of kings). 98.5. Prs.

šʌb'irkum confused, perturbed. — šʌb'irkum dumʌn they became confused, H. šərgərdan hogave. QUB. šʌb'irkum ne deli beat him well. QUB. šʌb'irkum etʌs to fight violently(?), furiously(?), H. zorse lʌrna. QUB.

ʃʌḍ'ʌq galled, chafed, bruised, worn away. — uw'ʌldʌšo ʃʌdʌq mʌnimi.ʌn their backs became galled (swollen and chafed). 276.7. gotsilər tike pfon dein, ts.hil etumʌn ke pfon ʃʌḍʌq eči when they have put up an earth bank for the water-channel, when they turn on the water it softens and wears it away. QUB. mʌltʌš duyin ʃʌḍʌq mʌnimi the butter melting has become soft and bruised. QUB 000 hʌyʊre ixat ʂʌḍʌq eti bi the horse has chafed its mouth. QUB.

ʿʌdər, ʂʌdur, -šo, išo, hm. servant, retainer, follower. — ivmo šʌdərišʊr se.ibai.i he says to his servants. 368.12. šʌdəršu.ər for the followers. 340.14. tsilʊm šʌdəršo (-u) minor retainers, servants. 336.4, 340.6. Hz. ʂʌdərbʌvk, N. šʌdərbʌq retainers (Cp. 8.6, 76.4,7, 336.2, 338.8. 340.4, 370.1,2).

(Cp. Sh. ʂʌdər, ʂʌdʊr; Kho. ʂʌdər, ʂʌdʌvr, pl. ʂʌdərbʌk, -bʌvk).

ʂʌdəri, ʂʌdəre.i service as a service. — wʊnʂ gʊvimo šʌdəre.i eti perform your duties as a servant. 76.4.

(Cp. Sh., Kho. ʂʌdəri).

ʂʌdʊvr x saltpetre, (Sal Ammoniac?). (Prs. nʊvšʌvdʊr?).

šʌfaxʌvna hospital, dispensary. 240.15. (Ar.) Prs.

šʌftʌl y pl. clover (as a crop). Prs.

šahzʌvda hm prince. 2.1. Prs.

1. šʌk -ičʌŋ y.

a. Arm, forearm.

makučim šʌk upper arm. bʊvi.ɛ šʌk shoulderblade. gušʌk gʌlʂ (or gʌlʊm) may your arm break! (a woman's curse). dʊvyʊm ašʌk my right arm. išʌk gʌljivlʊm his arm used to break. 220.5.

b. Upper part of leg of animal, thigh of animal.

wazire.ɪki šʌk (i.e. išʌk) da šərbʌt nɪpišʌn putting down a leg (of goat or sheep) and šərbʌt as the wazir's portion. 340.23.

(Cp. Sh. šʌvko, arm, upper arm).

2. šʌk -miŋ y doubt, suspicion, mistrust; objection. — ja šʌk bila . . . I suspect that . . . inɛʂɛ ja šʌk bila I suspect him, I have my doubts about him. šʌk bila jimʌlɛ jʊvçi probably he will come tomorrow. wʌɣe šʌk bila? have you any objection? Ar. Prs. 000

3. šək, šɪk bad (in the sense of a "bad" thing to do), unlucky, improper.
(Cp. Wkh. šək, bad).

1. ʃʌk = ʃok, noose. — ʃʌk ikhər wʌši.ʌs = bukulo ʃok ɛtʌs, to put a noose on one's neck, i.e. to commit suicide. QUB.
2. ʃək, ʃek full, filled-up. — sərmutsɛ ʃek nɛ pfʌlo bitsum the bag was full of grain. ʃʌpik niʃin ʃek amʌna ba I have eaten bread till I am full. oʃistsum æyæʃistsər ʃək ɑtimi he has filled me up from foot to head (sc. with gifts of honour, xɪllʌt).

šʌkʌl y form, shape, appearance. — bɛški šʌkʌlʌn bila? of what sort of an appearance is it? ɪmɛ šʌkʌlɛ čʌɣa ɛti give a description of his appearance. 154.15. gutɛ šʌkʌlɛ bʌndʌn a person of this appearance. 154.22. Ar. Prs.

šʌkər y sg. and pl.
1. Sugar.
2. Term of endearment: sweet, dear. — ɛa šʌkər ʌp'i O dear granny! 228.15. šʌkər mʌma mother dear! 358.3. Prs.

šʌl, šæl, N. -ʌɪnts, shallow. — kutɛ sɪnda gutumʌn dila, šʌlʌn dila? is this river a deep one (or) is it a shallow one? i.e. is it deep or shallow?

šʌladʌdi -muts x a kind of food resembling gərma (green vegetables and bread cooked together), a big gərma, a depreciatory term for big bread; the maker of šʌladʌdi (?). — šʌladʌdimuts ɛčubo she is making š-.

šʌladʌni -muts, x = šʌladʌdi (?) hf a woman who makes šʌladʌdi. — hoʷyolo gərmamots nokuʷn ʃuʷyʌs gos- 000 mər šʌladʌni moʷšaʷn they call a woman who puts gərmamots in cooked green vegetables and eats them "šʌladʌni". QUB.

šʌ'lda pl. šʌlde.iŋ y order, command, injunction, instructions, — iner šʌlda sti give him orders, instructions. ja šʌldatsəm tuʷmʌn stiʷmi he did a different thing from my orders, he acted contrary to my instructions. uʷŋʌʃs menens šʌlda ns n'i goʷsʌsʌn apai.i there is no one over you giving orders to say to you "go", there is no one to order you to go. 94.5.

(Cp. Sh. šʌlda).

šʌlhəray EOL -rəo pen for cattle.

(Cp, hərʌy and Kho. šʌl, šaʷl, cattle-hut, -šʌl also occurs as a suffix in place-names in Nagar and to a less extent in Hunza).

1. šʌma -mots x candle. Ar. Prs.
2. šʌmia y pl. tea leaves after tea has been made from them.

ʃʌmaʷγ, ʃʌmaʷq -iciŋ y piece of net-work 291 worn in front of eyes by veiled women. — ʃʌmaʷγ bišaiyʌs to put on ditto.

(Cp. Kho. šʌmaʷγ, šʌmaʷx).

šʌmaʷl north. — šʌmaʷl yʌkʌl(ʌʃs) north- 000 wards. Ar. Prs.

šʌmeʷy and ʃʌmeʷy, -ʌnts, -ents x four 492 wooden pins fixed in yoke of plough, one on each side of the necks of the two oxen to keep them in position.

With the suffix -ʌn the form used is šʌmeʷyʌsʌn, not ʃʌmeʷuʌn, one neck-pin.

šʌmeʷyents uyʌlʌs hər (or, tundər) "an ox that breaks the yoke-pins" (said of a headstrong refractory person who does not conform to the 492 wishes of his parent or family. Cp. Engl. "to kick over the traces").

(Cp. Sh. ʃʌmiǯʌ (pl.) with the same meaning, and Kho. ʃʌmʌrɣʷnu, the strap connecting ends of yoke-pins under neck of ox).

241 ʃʌndi -miʒ y cut crops lying on the ground. They are spread out to dry for a couple of days and then collected by women who gather them up in double armfuls (bʌɣu).

000 ʃʌnt'er, ʃʌnfer, -ʃo squinting, squint-eyed. — ʃʌnfeɾʌn bai.i he is a squint-eyed fellow.

1. ʃʌʒ awake, aware. — ʃʌʒ baiyʌm I was awake. Cp. 264.24. be, je ʃʌʒ ba, ju so, I am awake, come in. je ʃʌʒ ʌmʌnʌm I woke up. ʃʌʒ imʌnimi he woke up. 260.15. sis ʃʌʒ umʌnumʌn people became aware of it; came to know of it. muʷ muʷmi ke ʃʌʒ aiyoʷtum without informing her father and mother. 244.14. ʃʌʒ gumʌn wake up! look out! take care; EOL

(Cp. Sh. ʃoʒ, ʃoʒ, and ʃ'ʌʒ).

? ʃʌʒ care, heed, attention. — ʃʌʒ ne, ʃʌʒ netʌn carefully. ʃʌʒ ne (or, netʌn) tsu take it away carefully. ʃʌʒ ne ous keep it carefully, put it away safely. gučər ečər ʃʌʒ eti, yaʷr ne bəreyər ʃʌʒ eti beware of using your voice, beware of looking down, i.e. take care not to make a noise etc. 50.25. teɾɾumʌn muʷto ʃʌʒ menə aiyeɾčum nowadays people do not pay so much heed (to it). 220.9. guk'ʌrər ʃʌʒ eti, mʌk'ʌrər ʃʌʒ etin take care of yourself, take care of yourselves. EOL.

(This is probably the same word as 1. ʃʌʒ).

322 a

000 (Cp. Kho. ʃʌŋ, care, precaution; Sh. šoᵊŋ care; šoᵊŋ the, šʌŋ the, carefully).

3. *-šʌŋ y pl. limbs, all the parts of the body. H. joᵊr, ʌ'ʒʌᵊ. — mi.uʃ mišʌŋ our feet and limbs, all the parts of our bodies. gulčin gušʌŋər šʌŋ eti take care of your eye and limbs, i.e. every part of yourself.

1. ʃʌŋ -ʌnts x an opening made in a wall to afford passage (closed with thorns), breach, gap. (Cp. Sh. ʃoᵊŋ, breach in a wall allowing passage through).

2. ʃʌŋ x boundary, borderline, QUB; direction, H. ṭʌrʌf, ŠY. — Gilti ʃʌŋ the Gilgit border. Yasine ʃʌŋ the boundary of the Yasin and Kuh districts. Yasine šʌŋ yʌkal buʃ γəribtiŋ umʌnaᵊn towards the Yasin border the people have become very poor. Sərigole ʃʌŋ Hunzu.ər γərusum bi the Sarikuli frontier is "straight" for Hunza, i.e. it is open and advantageous, a source of profit.

(Cp. Sh. ʃoᵊŋ, valley, valley leading to, direction of. The development of meaning is illusive, but it would seem that a valley comes to be regarded as a means of access to a place).

šʌŋʌl, šʌŋaᵊl, -ičiŋ y.

1. Chain, handcuffs, manacles. Only recorded in the plural form. Perhaps šʌŋʌl would be used of a single link. — tʌ qʌš šʌŋʌličiŋ a chain 100 cubits long. 174.5 ff. šʌŋʌličiŋ deli (or, wʌši) baᵊn they have put chains on them. šʌŋʌličiŋolo baᵊn they are in chains, they are manacled. tsʌne ʌstʌme šʌŋʌličiŋ the chains of true justice. 88.7.

322 b

2. Carcase (skin and bones). Cp. Sh. šʌŋaˑli chain). 000 šʌpˈik x sg. and pl.; also pl. -ots, N. EOL -ints. bread, (general term) food, H. roˑti. — tsoˑrdimo šʌpik, ṭuṭaŋmo šʌpik early morning meal. saˑsstomo šʌpik, saˑm(mo) šʌpik evening meal. guˑrɛ šʌpik wheaten bread. 338.12. šʌpik otsiyɛnʌs food taken out one for journey etc., picnic food. 28.20. gorʌˑnɛ šʌpik bread made 7 days after a death. 314.8. iˑsɛ šʌpik uyoˑn šiˑmi he ate all the bread. 30.8. gukorɛ šʌpik ɛti make bread for yourself. 174.1. šʌpik besʌnʌṭɛ dʌŋ ɛčʌˑn? with what shall we bake bread? 126.5. Cp. 56.14, 234.5, 272.5, 314.5,16, 328.15—17, 368.2, 373.4, 392.10.

(Cp. Kho. Wkh. šʌpiˑk).

šʌq -ičʌŋ y.

1. Wicker-work, wicker, wicker tray. — šʌq dɛli bai.i he has made wicker-work.
2. N. framework of a raft consisting of a lattice or trellis of poles and sticks.

1. šʌq slippery; worn smooth, threadbare. — šʌq mʌnaˑs to slip, slide. šʌq ɛtʌs to make slip. tili.ʌŋ šʌq mʌnimi the saddle slipped. miriˑŋtsom šʌq mai.i bi it (e.g. fish) slips from our (i.e. one's) hands. γʌmuˑʌṭɛ šʌq me.i ban we used to slide on the ice. dɔri.ɛ xa dɔluˑʌṭɛ šʌk numʌn sliding down from the window by the rope. 38.7. šoqa šʌq ni bi the choga has become threadbare. šʌq niˑm gʌṭu worn, threadbare, cloth.

(Cp. Sh. GB. šʌk boˑɔki, to slip).

2. šʌq ɛtʌs, šaˑq ɛ. to comb. — γoyʌŋ šʌq ɛtʌs to comb the hair. šaˑq ɛtʌs to comb slowly. V. BSOS VIII, p. 633.

(Probably identical with ʂa·q ɛtʌs and 1. ʂʌq). ooo

3. ʂʌq quickly, quickly & secretly. QUB. — kərdi ʂʌq di.u·simi he quickly took off the shirt. QUB. (he slipped off the shirt?). ʂʌq ne ts.hu·mi he carried it off secretly and quickly. QUB. (he slipped away with it?)

In these ʂʌq might be referred to 1. ʂʌq. On the other hand QUB also gave: — ʂʌq di.u·sinin senimi = H. ga·hɪr kʌrke kʌha, he said clearly(?), openly(?).

ʂʌg du·sum being come out clear(?).

There is also the passage: — čəra·ti ne ʂʌk di.u·sin (ga·ršai.i). 262.13, originally glossed, H. joda ho·kʌr nɪkʌlkʌr, "separating and clearing out", in connection with, or in place of which QUB seems to have suggested ʂʌq du·sum.

šər mʌna·s to be scattered (of grain), H. da·na ka bʌkhe·rna. (Cp. šʌršər?).

1. ʂər -ko x big branch, bough. — a·lto jʌkər šərk'o bim there was a forked branch, or, there were two branches, forming a fork. 214.8. Cp. 214.8,9. gʌško . . . jomɛ šərko·tsɛ tʌk no·tʌn tying ropes to the branches of apricot trees. 316.12.

2. ʂər ɛtʌs to swim keeping the hands under the water.

3. ʂər ɛtʌs to roll out dough. Cp. ʂa·r ɛtʌs.

šəra·y cold, stale, H. ba·si, ṭhʌnḍa.

(Cp. Sh. GB. šʌra·vu cold (of food). Sh. šərai.i is used of stale bread, or food of the day before, also in the sense of breakfast).

In Kho. there is šʌro, ša·r, cold.

šərʌn, pl. šərai.iŋ, y ruins, vestiges of buildings. — ha·ɛ šər'ʌn the ruins

323b

[see corrigenda et addenda, category 16, p. 544 - Analyst]

of the house. 286.17. šərai.iŋʌʈom bʌr'ɐ·imʌn kɛ when they looked from the ruins. 248.1.

šərbʌt y unsweetened "halwa" (a kind of food made of flour and butter). H. nʌmkin ḥʌlwa. — gutɛ šərbʌt ʃɛ eat this šərbʌt. EOL. šərbʌt dɛtsirčaʼn they cook šərbʌt. 300.5. Cp. 300.1,2, 338.11, 340.10, 342.4. (Cp. Sh. šərbʌt). Ar. Prs.?

šər'ɐs, šareɐs. Name of the sacrifice or festival devoted to Dadi at Hindi, — šər'ɐs ɛtʌs to celebrate the Sh. 196.5 ff.

šəri·k h rival, opponent. — ja ka šəri·k bai.i he is opposed to me, Ar. Prs.?

šərma -muts x goat's hair cloth, goat's hair rug, mat. — šərma bər, šərma pʌʈo a small hair-rug. šərma trʌŋ undergirth (of goat's hair webbing). šərma yʌši.ʌs to weave šərma. šərmabuʼdo, -buʼdɪšo šərma-weaver, carpet-weaver.

(With buʼdo, probably buʼḍo, cp. Sh. tʌlbuʼḍo, spider, said to be used in N. Bu. in the form of tʌlʌbuḍo. Buʼḍo is possibly connected with the Sh. buʼyoʼrki to weave. tʌl-buʼḍo = ceiling-weaver?).

jɛ šərmaʼr giyʌm I got into my rug, i.e. I got fever wrapped myself up. sa išaʼr k[illegible] šərmaʼr the sun (has gone) into the winter solstice and I into my rug, i.e. I have got fever.

(Cp. Sh. šərmd, pl. šərmʌjɛ).

šərmɪnda shamefaced. — šərmɪnda amʌnʌm I became ashamed, shy. Prs.

šəro v. šur'o.

šʌršər sound of grain pouring down 140.7.

(Cp. 1. šər and 1. šʌšər).

000 šərʊm y.

1. Shame, disgrace, bashfulness. — ʊʷnɛ šərʊm apiʷʌ? have you no shame? gʊtɛ šərʊm ˈaškiltsʊm jaʷš atiš gˈomai.ima? will you be able to remove this shame, disgrace, from my face? 98.2. ya, šərʊm hold your tongue, be ashamed of yourself. 170.18.
2. Ashamed. — šərʊm akumai.i ba? are you not ashamed? šərʊm amʌnʌm I became ashamed. jɛ šərʊm, gʊtɛ jɛ bɛlʌtɛ tsuča ba I am ashamed to. How am I going to take him (a thing like) this? 136.19. šərʊm numʌn . . . čʌp ɛtʊmʌn being ashamed . . . they concealed the fact. 192.6. Cp. 386.20. Prs.

šərʊmkɪš bashful, shy. — kiʷnɛ hilɛʷs šərʊmkɪšʌn bai.i this boy is a bashful (lad). (Prs.).

š-(y)ʌs* to eat. This verb occurs in three forms according to the nature of the object eaten: ši(y)ʌs, šu(y)ʌs, šɛ(y)ʌs. It is dealt with under the form ši.ʌs.

šʌsk, -ičʌŋ y a kind of willow tree which yields withes. — šʌskɛ ɣʌšk a "šʌsk" withe.

(Cp. Kho. šʌsk, willow, osiers).

šʌšˈa, liberal, generous.

šʌšˈakuš y liberality, generosity.

1. šʌšər mʌnaʷs to make a kind of sound, to rustle(?). — hʊmʊl šʌšər nʊma dʌtʊʷmo xa gi.ʌčitsʌn in autumn the dead leaves fall rustling down. QUB. (Cp. šʌršər).
2. šʌšər x pl. a kind of plant, wild oats, growing in cultivated ground. — šʌšər dʊʷisʌs to weed out the wild oats. Apropos of this it was said that the people of Gujhal don't weed their fields. Some one once did weed his land and subsequently died. This proved an effective warning against the practice. 000 šʌt y power, strength, force. — šʌt etʌsʌn bai.i he is a violent person. ine jut ine šʌt ne uyum ine wʌšimi the small (lad) prevailing, or overpowering him, threw the big one. 106.8. ja šʌt eta ba I have conquered, I have had the best of it. 198.12. šʌt ne nuʷdɪlin using superior force and beating them. 296.1. (Cp. Sh. šʌt)

*-šʌṭ -ʷmʌts x penis. — yʌtɪse xa gus. ʌš'ʌte nidilin striking it (the bear) on the head with this penis of mine. 228.8.

In IYB's vernacular Ms. išʌṭ, gušʌṭ occur for ifʌyo, gufʌyo in 222.10,14. Whether *-pfʌyo represents a misstatement of facts, or is a recognised euphemism for *-šʌṭ, I do not know.

šʌtʌŋ, šʌtaʷŋ without reason, unjustly, H. biʷwʌja, naʷhʌq. QUB. Originally recorded without context in: — šʌtʌŋ te oʷmʌn don't be so unjust. šʌtʌŋ te me.i bai.i he is unjustly thus. šʌtaʷŋ čʌlʌn etai.i he has done an unjustifiable thing. QUB.

(šʌtʌŋ is probably a derivative of šʌt; te may be the adverb tai, te.i thus. šʌtʌŋ occurs in Sh. with the sense of "intentionally", "on purpose").

šʌt'ʌŋayo EOL violently.

(Cp. šʌtʌŋ. For the termination cp. Sh. aʷšiŋaiyo suddenly, unexpectedly).

šʌtili.aʷr strength, powerful.—Hʌmačaʷtiŋ but šʌt'ili.aʷr bʌm the H. were very powerful. 256.3.

(Sh. šʌtilyaʷr strength, abstract noun, with normal ending -yaʷr).

325a

šʌtiˑlo, pl. šʌtiˑl-juko, -ʊtiŋ; N. hm. šʌtiˑlu hf. šʌtiˑli, pl. -mʊts. powerful, strong. — imɛ hilɛˑs šʌtiˑlowʌn dimˈʌnʌm the boy had been born (a) strong (one). 104.25. Cp. 106.11, 110.17, 200.10. uˑɛ šʌtiˑljuko ayoˑmai.-ibaˑn those strong men are unable (to draw the bow). 170.17.

(Sh. šʌtiˑlo, strong. Cp. šʌt and ʌšaˑto.)

šˈʌtiŋɛ, šʌtiŋə with force, violently, loudly. — šʌtiŋ idɛlimi he struck him with force. šʌtiŋ ičər ɛtimi he shouted out loudly. šʌtiŋə kaˑo (i.e. qau) nɛ sɛnumo . . . calling out loudly, she said . . . 24.21. lʊkʌn šʌtiŋɛ durˈo ɛti work with a little vigour, put a little back into it. EOL.

(Cp. šʌt. -iŋɛ is perhaps the suffix -ʌŋɛ).

ʂʌtʊrgʌʂ, ʂʌtˈuˑrgʌʂ round (about); neighbourhood, vicinity. — ha ʂʌtʊrgʌʂ round the house. ʂʌtʊrgʌʂ gʌnʌs to surround, besiege. ʂʌtʊrgʌʂ dᵊ-ʌšɛ.ʌs to surround, hem in.

ʂʌtʊrgʌʂʊm neighbouring, surrounding. — ʂʌtʊrgʌʂʊm haˑkičʌŋ the neighbouring houses.

šʌwaˑrʌn IUB polo-ground.

(Sh. šəwaˑrɪn, polo-ground. Cp. Bu. šʌbˈʌrɪn).

šai.is, šaˑis, pl. šai.išo x blanket. Prov. 4.

šaitaˑn, pl. šaitaˑyo, devil, mischievous person, swindler. Ar. Prs.

šaitaˑni, šetaˑni y mischief, devilry. — khimɛ šaitaˑni ɛtimi he did a piece of mischief. Ar. Prs.

šaiyʌd perhaps. — šaiyʌd juči perhaps he will come. Prs.

(Does not occur in the texts. Cp. hʌzaˑr).

325b

ooo 1. ʂau sg. and pl. blow, stroke, slap in the face, H. čoʃ. — hik ʂau ɛr ɛtʌm I gave him a blow. bʌbərum ʂau.ʌn ɛtimi he gave him a smart slap in the face. ja šau ayɛt'ʌm kɛ . . . if I didn't strike him, i.e. if I fail to strike him. 150.5. šau.u nɛ striking (the polo ball). 158.11. Alqʌšɛ guyər hik šau ɛt'ʌma, ʌlto šau ɛt'ʌma? had A. struck your father one blow, or two blows? 82.22. γʌtɛnčʌṭɛ ʂau ɛtimi he struck a blow with the sword. muč nɛ ʂau ɛtimi he struck a blow with his fist.

(Cp. Sh. šaũ, šõ', šoŋ).

2. ʂau over-salted (of food).

še, šɛ, -miŋ y wool, Prs. pʌšm. — šɛ.ɛ gʌtu woollen cloth.

šɛ.i sər woollen yarn.

šɛ.(y)ʌs v. ʂi.ʌs to eat.

šɛnɪski v. ʂeniski.

šɛpʌlkɪš, pl. šɛpʌlki.ʌnɛ x sheep (male and female). (Cp. šɛ wool).

šɛr -ɪšo x tiger. Prs.

šetʌn, šetʌni v. šaitʌn etc.

šɛl, šɛl, -ʌnts, N. -ʌints x soft snow, avalanche-snow, Sh. hinʌl. — šɛlɛ moɛ an avalanche of melting snow. hərulo šɛl bi there is avalanche-snow in the nullah. EOL šɛl gʌlimi, šɛl dimi there has been a fall of avalanche snow. QUB. šɛlɛ ts.hil snow-water (water from melting snow). šɛli (i.e. šɛlɛ) kɛ bulɛ tsil hərʌŋ bila the snow-water and spring-water pertain jointly to . . . 350.5.

šem St. Pc. of šeʌs, v. s.v. ʂi.ʌs.

šɛn -ʌnts, N. -ʌints x bed of wooden planks formerly used by big people. (Cp. Chilāsi Sh. šɛn, bedstead).

šɛn h sg. and pl. Shīn.

šeni, šʌni -čiŋ y vegetable garden. —

000 šʌniʌ khoṭkusər nimi he went to a vegetable plot, or bed, 64.7. šəniʌ khoṭkušo vegetable plots. šəni hoi bitsʌn there are garden vegetables (greens).

(Cp. Sh. šʌni, šəni, garden plot, vegetable plot, flower-bed, also šən?.

šəniski, šəniski Shīnā, the language of the Shīns. — γəriŋ šəniskulo ečəm they sing songs in Shīnā. 302.3.

šəriʌt y the Shari'at, Islamic Law. — šəriʌte dʌstuγʌte according to the Shari'at practice. 310.6.

1. ši -miŋ y.

a. Fire container, fireplace, brazier, forge, trivet, H. čulha.

A ši may be made of mud or be a hole in the ground.

čomaγe šiʌn a trivet, an iron tripod placed over the fire. 308.3. ʌsbaγbʌn šiʌr wʌšimi he put a vessel in the forge. 162.5,6.

Cp. 356.5. (The cerebral ṣ- in the above passages is incorrect).

b. Name of a constellation.

2. šiγ, breath, snuffle. — hərə ši yaγʌrs gəruγum bila it is warm like the breath of an ox.

N. šiγ elʌs to breathe heavily.

šiy̆ʌs, šuy̆ʌs and -šuγy̆ʌs, šeγy̆ʌs; šiç̆-, šuç̆-, šeč̆-.

According to QUB the š- of šeʌs and derived forms is not cerebral.

1. To eat, eat up, devour.

Forms from the base ši- are used when the object eaten is x sg. and occasionally h sg.

Forms from the base šu- are used when the object is h sg. or pl. and x pl. (and sometimes x sg. when the object is a large animal).

Forms from the base še- are used when the object is y.

*-ʃuyʌs with the pn.pf. is regularly employed when the object is h and has been recorded with an x animal object. 000

In the negative, forms from ʃi.ʌs and ʃu.ʌs take the negative prefix a- + a Pn. Pf. even where in the affirmative there would be no Pn. Pf.

The forms from ʃe.ʌs take the negative prefix o- without any Pn. Pf.

In all cases the Pres. Base is syncopated to -ʃč- for ʃi.ʌs and ʃu.ʌs, and -ʃč- for ʃe.ʌs.

These points are illustrated in the following:

Obj. h sg. guʃu·čʌm I shall eat you up.

h pl. but sis uʃu·mo she devoured many people. 190.4.

x sg. (inanimate) ʃʌpik ʃi·mi he ate the bread.

x sg. (animate, large) beɹpʌyʌn ya ʃibi, or, iʃu·mi the bear has eaten, or, ate, a yak. 152.10.

x pl. (inanimate) (e·somots) u·ŋs be ʃu·ma? did you not eat the kidneys? 72.14.

y sg. ivts ta.a·m u·ŋs ʃe·čər but rai di bilomaʔ had you very much wanted to eat the food? 84,12.

y pl. xu·kiʃu.s ʃeyʌs wʌteŋ the husks eaten by the swine. 373.2.

Negative.

mi·wa (x sg.) eʃ. don't eat fruit.
ʃʌpik (x sg.) e·ʃčomo she doesn't eat bread.

327a

ba·lt (x pl.) o·ṣo don't eat apples. ooo pṣiṭimots (x pl.) o·ṣo don't eat cakes of thick bread.
čhap (y sg.) o·ši don't eat meat.
γe·iẓ (y pl.) o·ši don't eat grapes.

2. To drink.
mamu ṣe·mi he drank the milk.
ṣe.as tsil drinking-water.
kaman niṣin (for nuṣen?) drinking a little (milk). 338.5.

3. To enjoy possession or use of, exercise rights over, come into possession of, secure. — Čilindar·ni thamkuṣ ṣebam the pipe-bearer had obtained possession of the Thamship. 20.4. Cp. 20.9,18, 238.9. ja do·lat ṣoγaṣo wasiettiẓ γom wa.zirs of mine who enjoy the use of (batten on) my wealth. 44.10,20. i·ṭe buṣai.i 'o·ṭrmi he did not take possession of, or occupy that land. 252.16. lik ṣe.as to take, receive, a bribe. Cp. 92.28, 98.12,14, 236.4-6.

4. To suffer, experience (cp. the use of H. khavna, and Prs. xordan). — damijar ṣe·mi he suffered trouble.

5. To slaughter (for the purpose of eating), to sacrifice(?). H. ẓibaḥ karna. — Arba·be ha·le alta huy'es ṣučai.i the master of the house slaughters two goats (for the entertainment of his guests). 338.10. tsir nuyan Dadimar ṣučam bringing goats they used to slaughter them in the name of Dadi (sacrifice them to D. and presumably eat them). 196.5. Cp. 300.5, 314.12, 336.7. Prov. 29.

6. To bite.
hurko, khi·nano, haγori, aṣumi the dog, a nea, the horse, bit me. EOL.

327 b

Forms.

000 The following forms have been recorded:

Fut. sg. 1. ʃičam 60.9, 62.24, 194.8. guʃwčam; ʃečam. 132.17, neg. Interrog. oščama. 380.6 (correct the form given in the text).
2. aʃučama. 18.7.
3. x aʃwči. 282.8.
miʃwči. 282.21.
pl. 1. ʃičan. 62.27.

Pres. sg. 1. ʃeča ba. 132.15.
2. ʃiča. 132.14, 182.16.
3. m. ʃičai.i. 124.8, 304.20, ... ʃwčai.i. 338.10.
x aʃwči bi. 282.14.
pl. 3. ʃičera. 226.4, 304.20, 328.17.
x ʃiči.an. 366.11.
ʃeči.an. 373.1.
ʃwčara. 300.5.

Impf. sg. 3 f. iʃwčo bom. 190.2,3. niʃwčo bom. 190.8.
pl. 3. ʃiči.an. 314.12.
ʃwči.an. 196.5.
ʃeči.an. 236.4.

Pret. sg. 1. ʃiy.an, -ʃu.an,
ʃey.an. 98.12.
2. ʃirma. 30.9.
ʃurma. 72.14.
3. m. iʃirmi. 132.14. f. ʃirmo.
ʃurmi.
f. uʃurmo. 200.3.
x. aʃurmi,
iʃurmi. 182.10.
.ʃu.i (h). 280.13.
m. and x ʃerni. 64.9,12, 92.29.
neg. m. 'oʃirni. 282.16.

	pl. 3.	ʃi.ʌn (? short form); ʃ'emʌn. 236.6.
Perf.	sg. 2.	ʃi ba.
	3. m.	ʃi bai.i; ʃe bai.i. 20.10,18.
	x	ʃi bi. 68.2, 152.10.
Plup.	sg. 3. m.	ʃe bʌm. 20.4.
	pl. 3. x.	ʃi bim. 222.10.
Impv.	sg. 2.	ʃi. 52.1, 124.1, 152.15.
	pl. 2.	ʃin(a).
	neg.	oʃu.in. EOL.
-ʃ Form	sg.	guʃuʃ, pl. guʃuʃʌn. gatsirrʒo guʃuʃ(ʌn) may vultures devour you.
	neg.	eʃiʃ. (a + i + ʃiʃ). ginaʷni eʃiʃ xa so long as the "ginaʷni" is not eaten. 326.15.
Pres Part.		ʃiĉume. 32.15. ʃeĉume. 46.3.

Past Pc. Act.

With x sg. objects: n'iʃin: (The stress recorded in most cases on the first syllable doubtless indicates the presence of the pn.pf. i-). (ʌpik) n'iʃin. 130.3, 304.20, 330.9. (hʌrʌn, bulorʌo, huyʌs). 316.1, 336.9, 373.20.

niʃinin. 370.

With h objects:

sg. m. niʃʌn. 192.4, 200.2.

pl. m. noʃʌn. 190.3.

With y objects:

noʃin. 98.14.

noʃe. 104.18, 236.5.

kʌmʌn niʃin referring to mʌmu (y) at 338.5 appears to be wrong. kʌmʌn has apparently failed to acquire the y quality of mʌmu.

Static Pr.

Act. sg. 1. ʃi.am(.an). 000

ʃi.aman jav korkat may what-I-have-eaten be my share. 212.14.

sg. 3. ʃivn, gujvrn, ʃcrn. ʃapik ʃi-mor when they have eaten bread. 202.4. yaiqu gujvrn may the crows eat you!
gurlig ʃcrn may your innards be eaten!

Infin., Noun Agent, etc.

ʃi.ar. 34.3, 60.9, 62.23, 124.19, 172.21, 214.15, 216.12. ʃu.ar. 182.8, 200.4.
ʃe.ar. 44.10,20, 64.10, 84.12, 172.22, 272.2.

Pres. base + ar.
ʃerar. 84.12,23.

ʃryʃom, & ʃryʃom, -ʃo, N. ʃepʃom, N. pl. -ʃio smooth (of paper, cloth); slippery, slimy, soft. — ʃumo ʃu.an ʃryʃom slippery like a fish.

ʃrka, v. 1. ʃrqa, grass.

ʃrka, v. 2. ʃrqa spell, magic.

ʃrkav v. mirʃrkav, and ʃrkor.

ʃrk'avi -mata x tower, fort. 102.1 ff. (Cp. Sh. ʃrkavi).

ʃrk'ayat y complaint, accusation. — ʃrkayat ʃtar to make a complaint. Ar. Pre.

ʃrk.am v. ʃrqam.

ʃrkor, ʃtkor hunting, (with hawks), hawking. — bavo ʃrkorar nitku let's go a-hawking. 4.10. ʃrkoro dit hunting-ground. 4.16. (ʃ- QUB). Pre.

1. ʃrkork, N. pl. -ʃto, yellow, pale, sallow. — ʃuo vag ʃrkorli mazirla he has become pale.
(Cp. Sh. ʃtkork, diarrhoea).

2. ʃrkork y brass, copper. — ʃrrdom ʃtʃirk copper. Sarum ʃtʃirk nickel-plated metal. 000

(The same word as the preceding. Cp. Sh. Ashiʃo rit "yellow copper", i.e. brass).

ʃtʃ'ast y defeat. — ʃtʃ'ast ʃtʃirʃ to defeat someone. Pra.

ʃtʃnʃev y Saturday. — Ashuʃto ʃtʃnʃev bila today is Saturday. (Sh. ʃtʃnʃev).

ʃtʃi y summer (the months Saratko, Aual and Sumbula, approximately 22nd. June to 21st. September). — ʃtʃi di bila summer has come.

ʃ'ʃtʃimo pertaining to summer. — ʃ'ʃtʃimo khra the summer season. ʃtʃimo ʃtʃ the summer solstice.

ʃtʃuʃiʃu -mots x black hawk (smaller than the kirki).

(Cp. Khe. ʃtʃiʃif "a hunting bird about the size of a kirda", which seems to be a reduced form of ʃtʃiʃu ʃi.ʃif, which was also recorded).

ʃtʃuʃan (x) funnel of blacksmith's bellows. It is made of ʃ.ʃarf stone. The air from each of the two bellows is discharged into it by a pipe, and is directed by it on the fire. 325

A word ʃtʃ = tube, quill + dʃan, stone).

-ʃtʃar v. zurʃtʃar.

-ʃ'ʃpin, pl. -ʃ'ʃpipe x child's penis. 000

(For the use of a separate word for a child's penis cp. Sh. ʃoil and Wkh. ʃul).

ʃtʃirʃ -ʃg y lucerne (grown for fodder), Pra. vziʃe. (Cp. Sh. ʃtʃirʃ).

1. ʃtʃu y sg. and pl., d.pl. ʃtʃuʃig, grass. — Ban ʃtʃurw ʃtʃ'ʃuʃive me a blade of grass. ʃtʃu ʃiʃkirʃa a blade of grass has come up. ʃtʃu ʃuw a bundle of grass. ʃurʃum ʃtʃu ʃiʃkan there is dried grass, hay. waziraw

000 ʃzqa ɨγwwas bitsu grass has to be given to the Wazir. 342.9.

2. ʃ'zqa spell, charm, incantation, magic, sorcery. — ʃzqa ɨtas to make a spell, incantation. ɨner ʃ'zqa burʃəriq ɨtimi he practised magic on him.

ʃzq'açhin, pl. ʃzqaçhiyo x a kind of bird.

ʃzqərčin, pl. ʃzqərčiyo, h magician, sorcerer.

ʃiqakiʃ charming, delightful.

ʃzqam, ʃzkam, pl. x -iło, y -iq, green, blue; grey (of horse). — jurt (or, jof) ʃzqam (grass)green.

aiyal ʃzqam } (sky-)blue.
asmarn ʃzqam }

maley ʃzqamiq masərtas the fields have become green. ʃzqam kir'al *-masas to become exhausted and slack from eating the first green food of the season, and not continuing to get it. ʃzkam kaywas a grey horse. 4.17. ʃikamiq kori green vegetables, H. ashz sey. 62.28.

Cp. 154.20, 156.9,11, 284.15.

ʃzq'amaʃiq name of a custom formerly observed in Hunza on the appearance of the apricot blossom. (V. Text No. XXXVI). — ɨsk'amatiq Hunzalo aiy'ečaw they do not (now) observe (or, celebrate) the Sh. in Hunza. 320.7.

1. ʃzq'ar y shame, H. šarm. Prov. 31. (Cp. *-ʃq.ar.is).

2. ʃzq'ar -ilo x.

a. Wasp, hornet. — ɨsil ʃzqar "water wasp". mel ʃzqar "wine wasp", EOL "fruit wasp". ʃzqare ad'ečimi a wasp stung me. ʃiqare sil a wasp's sting. ʃzqare gwiqaʃar gwriq ečili asmarn they have said "Don't put your hand in a hornet's nest", i.e. don't have anything to do with so and so.

000 b. (Metaphor.). a quarrelsome person. (Cp. Sh. ṡškar).

ṭṭqiṡl -ṡšo fair-complexioned (with grey eyes), grey-eyed, Bu. syn. buṡo. Both terms are uncomplimentary. buṡo is "cat like" and ṭṭqiṡl "parrot-like". — ṭṭkirṭṡo sisik paida me.imʌn fair-complexioned people will make their appearance. 188.2.

širn y juice of fruit, H. rʌs. — širn dušiṡla juice comes out. Prs.?

-širʌs*, -širč-, Impv. -širi, to carry off, take away s.t. from s.o. H. čirnna, čirnlenn.

The pn.pf. refers to the person from whom s.t. is taken.

The noun denoting that person is put in the abl. The idiom is therefore not strictly parallel either to the Eng. "to deprive s.o. of s.t." or to the Eng. "to confiscate s.t. from s.o.", unless the pn.pf. can be regarded as an ablative.

tavočiṇ ki ɪfʌɣo Punus ṡirimi Puno took away his foot-bandages and his stick (from him). 210.11. Tolṡ sistsum . . . gutʌs uširčir dʌrusʌn they came to take the corpse away from the people of Tol. 294.21. gutʌs Tolkutsʌtsum uširusʌn they (forcibly) carried off the corpse from the people of Tol. 294.22. jatsum ayʌṡir(i) don't take it away from me. eširi don't take it away from him. eširi don't take it away from them. (ja jʌmʌrʌf) ʌtmʌṡiriṇ mutsuṭ xa before he, taking (my wife) from you, carried her off. 154.5. N. hiritsum (hiritsum?) nirtiri ditʌm; gosmotsum numurtiri ditʌm I took it from the man, from the woman, by force (lit. taking it from him (her) I brought it).

330 b

(Sometimes the final -n of a P.pc.a. does not appear in Nagiri),

Other forms recorded are:

Fut. 1st sg. guširčʌm, I shall take (it) from thee.

Pret. 1st sg. iširʌm, muširʌm, uširʌm, I took (it) from him, her, them.

širča N. tea with salt and butter.

širiḍʌko -mots x the (ceremonially) main wooden post, or, pillar supporting roof of house. — širidʌku yarɛ morušam they seat her at the foot of the main pillar. 304.19. pfyuʼʌn hori širidʌqotsɛ tʌk ɛčam they tie a little barley to the main pillar. 328.8.

(In this last sentence the word was explained as "holy pillar").

(Cp. ḍʌko. With this širi cp. that in the names of Širi BʌdʌT and Širi Bərai.i BʌγərThʌm. It is probably an honorific, and identical with Skr. śrī).

širijon, pl. širijuʼyo, x mushroom. — gotsɛ širijuʼyo šuʼʌsər yʌški bi.ɛn these mushrooms are fit to eat. gotsɛ širijuʼyo oʼšu.in, ɛtsolo čɛmiliŋ bila don't eat these mushrooms, there is poison in them.

(Cp. Sh. širijon = Kho. qotsi = "an edible thing found in the ground", truffle(?), mushroom?).

šɪrʼik, N. -ots x small cakes cooked in oil for the 'Id i Ramzān. Hz. Bu. šiḷər. (Cp. Sh. šɪrik, šʼɪrɪka).

širiširɪŋ with a sound of bells, tinkling. 14.2.

(Cp. Sh. šərʌŋ šərʌŋ, a chinking, jingling noise). Prs. (Ar.).

širqawa N. coffee with milk.

šɪru EOL -mots x very large cake of thick bread (for travelling). (For šurʼo?

šivak y lead (metal). (Lead is found in the Chupursan valley). 000 šiʼša -mots x glass, china ware, china cup. — čutʌn tsil šiʼšaʼmolo a little water in a cup. 304.2. Prs.

šišər small cakes cooked in oil eaten at the 'Id i Ramzān. N. Bu. širʼik.

šiʼti, pl. šiʼtɛŋ y. (N. x?), sitting dais in obsolescent type of Burushaski house, equivalent to mʌn in the modern type.

(Cp. Sh. šīʼti, dais round three sides of a room. Sitting-place in room).

-škil, N. v. -skil, face.

-šoŋʌn pl. -šʼoŋoyo x "any prominence near the genitals", and so applicable to the ilium.

(Cp. Sh.. McK. & GR., šogneʼi āʼti, the ilium).

šoʼk -iči̇ŋ y. N. šaʼuq, -iŋ. loop, noose, snare. — šoʼk ɛtʌs to make a loop(?). buʼkolo šoʼk ɛtʌs v.t. to strangle (lit. to put a noose on the neck). šoʼk bišaiyʌs to make a loop. dašuʼnʌs šoʼk a running loop. ʌtušonʌs šoʼk a fixed loop.

(Cp. 1. šʌk. Cp. Sh. šaʼko, Kho. šaʼuʼk, noose. loop).

šox N. y cattle-track. — kutɛ šox gonekrš diʼla this track is bad.

(Cp. Hz. 1. šoq).

šoʼlto -mots x new shoot. twig. — toš phaʼnum šoʼltuʌn a newly-grown shoot (of a pollarded tree).

(Cp. Sh. šoʼulu, twig. shoot).

šon, šoʼn, pl. h and x -oʼŋoʼ -oʼmo blind. — mayoʼn šonoʼmo baʼna? are you all blind? *šon -nʌnʌs to become blind. trʌp son baiʌi he is stone-blind. šon kuroʼn, pl. šon koroʼyo, šonoʼŋo kronoʼŋo blind (koroʼn is an expletive). h'erčumʌʃe jɨ šon ʌmʌna by continuous weeping I have become blind. 360.6.

331b

šönmumuʷyo -mots x, N. šümumuʷyu -mots a kind of mouse (said to be blind, with a long nose and a smell).

N. small mouse, H. čhʌčondər musk-rat (but it is improbable that the animals denoted by the H. and Bu. are the same).

(šon- blind. Sh. has šoqmumuʷyo mouse, GB. gives it with ʃ-).

šoq -ots x big boil (medical), H. daʷna; McK., GR. abscess. — šoq dufʌltʌs to burst (of a boil).

A šoq is larger than a šoʃo.

1. ʃoq -ʌnts x a narrow sunk track down an earth-cliff. (Cp, N. šox).

2. ʃoq -ʌnts, -ots x sole of boot. gʌpɨ ʃoqʌnts hide soles. gʌp šoq wʌši.ʌs to put on a hide sole.

šoqum, šoqum, pl. x -rʒo, y -iʒ loose (of clothes, shoes), roomy, spacious, wide (of house, road etc.). — šoqumiʒo šoqamots loose chogas. Nz. šoqumiʒ čʌpai.iʒ loose "chapans". Nz. gʌn, ha, šoʷqum bila the road is wide, the house is spacious.

In this case the antithesis is čhʌnum. šoʷqum mʌnaʷs v.i. to become loose, stretch.

(Cp. Sh. šoʷk, slack of a tennis-net).

šoʷr y disturbance. 358.1. Pre.

šoʃo -mots x boil (medical); McK., GR. abscess. A šoʃo is smaller than a ʃoq. !

(Cp. Sh. McK., GR. ʃuʃ, abscess. Kho. šoʃ, boil, abscess).

*-ʃqʌrʌs *-ʃqʌrč-, Impv. *-ʃqʌr to be ashamed.

Pres. sg. 1. aʃqʌrča ba.

Pret. sg. 1. aʃqʌrʌm.

332a

! [See corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 544 - Analyst]

000 Impv. sg. 2. gʊʃqʌr.
pl. 2. mʌʃqʌrin.
Infin. pn.pf. sg. 3. m. ʃʃqʌrʌs.
(Cp. ʃʌqʼɔr).

ʰu -ʊmots x drift-wood carried by a stream. — sinda ʃuʊmots duʼʃi bi the river has brought down drift-wood.

1. ʃuʼ rest, repose, ease. — ʃu ʃtʌs to rest (from time to time), to breathe out. duŋ ʃu ʃtiʼn rest for a little, take a little rest.
(Cp. Sh. ʃu, rest, etc.).

2. ʃũʼ ʃtʌs, to blow (with bellows). — ɸfultuʊŋiants ʃuʼ ʃtʌs to blow bellows. ɔyi ɔr ʃu ʃcubɔm his daughter was blowing (the forge bellows) for him. 160.17. Cp. 162.3 ff., 164.26 ff.

3. ʃũʼ ʃtʌs to smell (v.t.). — nʌs ʃũʼ ʃtʌs to smell a smell.
(Cp. Sh. ʃũʼ thoʼzki to smell).

ʃuʊ sg. and pl.

1. Adj.: good (in all senses), fine, nice, superior, excellent, well (in health), well-to-do.
ʃuʊ hʌɣʊrɔm a good horse. 6.13. ʃuʊ gʌtʊŋ nupɔl putting on good clothes. 316.4. ja hins ʃuʌʊn dimʌnimiʌ? has this (child) of mine been born a good one?, i.e. is he going to turn out a good man? 86.26. ʃuʊ saʼʌtʊlo dimʌnimi he was born in a good (auspicious) hour. 88.1. ʃuʊ nʌs a nice smell, sweet perfume. ʃuʊ hʊmʌlkʊm ɕutsɔrʌs sinʌn deʼri send me a good active (quick-moving) man. thʌmi his ʃuʊ akʊbɔrʌnɔr hʊkɔm ʃtʊmɔr when the Mir has given the order to a superior elder. 336.13. ɕuki hɔrʌltiŋ ɕuɕiŋ ʃuʊ ʃtimi these rains have made the wheat good, i.e. done good to the wheat. EOL.

wyoʷntsom šuʷa hʌγʊr jaʷr jo give me the best horse (of all). Cp. 112.3,8,14. šuʷatsom ke šuʷ'a gʌtʊg the best of clothes. 373.37. šuʷa dokoʷma? have you come well?, i.e. welcome! thʌm, uʷʒ gʌšu gošpuʷrtʌro šuʷa baʷna? Tham, are your daughters and sons well? EOL. uʷn hʌ'le γenʌnte šuʷa baʷna? are your consorts well? EOL.

In the following šuʷa is perhaps a noun.

IUB šuʷa korki, H. neki ka toxm;
QUB H. nik 'ʌmʌli, whose actions are good.
IUB šuʷa gʌn, H. neki kʌ rʌsta the way of righteousness, the path of virtue.

2. Adv.: well.
gote duʷro šuʷa ne stimi he did this job well, and perhaps in šuʷa homalkom and šuʷa dokoʷma? in the examples above. šuʷa mi.aʷm I shall drink well. 126.16.
buʷt šuʷa se.iba you say well. 36.1.

3. Interjection: good! yes! (expressing compliance), gote čʌγa deγʌlin wʌzirʊr senimi, "Buʷt šuʷa ke je buʷt xoš ʌmʌnʌm" having heard this statement he said to the Wazir "Very good, I am much pleased" (the force of the ke is uncertain). 4.9. rʌza goʷnʌn. Buʷt šuʷa . . . rʌza ʌmʌnʌm Agree to this. Very good . . . I have agreed. 114.18. Cp. 122.19, 124.28. 136.16, 166.8 etc.

4. šu.'aʷ ke approximately about, almost, H. taqribʌn, taxmiʷnʌn. — muʷto Šimlaʷ'ʊr šuʷ'a ke 10—15 kakičʌg mʌnisc at the present day in Shimahāl there have come ooo to be about 10—15 houses. 272.11. Čur'ʌm mʊndaʷq imʌnimi. šuʷa kɛ pfitiʷk pfʌtʌq nʊmɔ gʊtsʊrʌs mʌnimi. C. grew up. Creeping on all fours he could almost walk. 242.20. adɛli bʌm, šuʷ'a kɛ jɛ jʌt amʌnʌm he (had) struck me and I almost became an old woman. 230.6.

It is here glossed 'ʌnqʌriʷb.

šuʷakuš y, goodness, kindness, virtue, H. neʷki, bhʌlaʷi. — šuʷakuš nɛtʌn doing good. Prov. 21. uʷŋɛ buʷt šuʷakuš jaʷr bila you are very good to me. EOL. uʷŋɛ šuʷakuʂɛ gərurʊmkuš ja ʌsʊlo bila gratitude is in my heart for your goodness, i.e. I am very grateful for your kindness. EOL.

šu.(y)ʌs, -šu(y)ʌs*, v. ši.ʌs.

šu.ai.(i) probably only a modified form of šuʷa due to a following palatal sound; occurs in: — šuʷai.i iʷčʊr a fine voice. šu.ai yɛtsʊm we had seen him handsome. 122.15. šu.'ai.ɛ dʊsu good! bring it. 68.25.

In the last it probably stands for šuʷa yɛ.

šʊguʷli, N. šʊγuʷli, -mʊts hf. friend, (female). (Sh. šʊguʷli, female friend).

šʊguʷlo -tiŋ hm friend (m.). — ja jiʷɛ šʊguʷlo my bosom (lit. soul's) friend. lɛ jiʷɛ šʊguʷlo O beloved friend. 50.19. Cp. 48.11—56.7, passim, 370.9, 374.10.

(Sh. šʊguʷlo, male friend).

šuγum, šʊγʊn, pl. šuγumyo, x a sour, red kind of cherry (the fruit); pl. -iŋ y the tree.

šʊγʊri, N. šʊγuʷri, šʊγori, -mʊts x pear (a hard kind).

(Cp. Sh. šʊgʊr'i pear; Kho. šuγʊri, a kind of pear).

ʂuʷk stʌs to lap, sip. — miriŋɛʂɛ ʂuʷk stʌs to lap (water) scooping it up 000 with the hands. ine šuʷk ečai.i he laps it up (roasted barley grains put in buttermilk in a spoon). 328.11. (Cp. Sh. šuʷk thoʷrki to sip, suck up, eat up).

šokor thanks. — but šokor elimi he thanked much. šokor eɪʌsʌn bai.i he is grateful. šokor ni horuʷšʌn we shall abide giving thanks. 34.15. Ar. Prs.

šokorgozaʷr thankful; as a noun in: — šokorgozaʷr eɪʌsʌn bai.i he is grateful. (Ar.) Prs.

šokorkɛš thankful, grateful. (Ar.).

šokoro y Friday. 298.11. (Cp. Sh. šokor.

šokoru eɪʌs to give thanks. — xodai.ər šokoru eɪomʌn they gave thanks to God. 284.2. (Ar.).

šokuʷrom v. šoquʷrom.

1. šuʷl, šul y love, affection, sympathy, H. moḥʌbbʌt. — uʷi hərʌŋ buʷt šuʷl bila there is much love between them. kiʷne hilesɛ ka buʷt šuʷl bila he loves the boy much. kiʷnə hilesə iʷne ka šuʷl buʷt bila the boy has much affection for him. maka šuʷl etai.i he has sympathised with me. moʷimu šuʷlʌte out of love for her daughter. 66.22.

   Also adjectivally: — iʷne ka šuʷl bai.i he is fond of him. (Cp. Sh. šuʷl, love).

2. šuʷl y conversation. — oʷltʌlik šuʷl eča bʌm the two of them were conversing. šuʷl bilom there was conversation.

   (Probably the same as 1. šuʷl. In Sh. the expression šuʷl sohbʌt has been recorded).

3. šuʷl y pain (from cold). — ariŋolo, oṭisolo šuʷl giʷmi my hand, my foot is tingling (as after being very cold) lit. pain has entered my hand etc

000 4. *-šuˑl y labour-pains, travail. — mušuˑl gi bila her labour pains have come on. mušul gičilum muˑi besʌn atʼimʌnimi her labour continued, but no son was born (to her). 102.2. ja oˑsmo tʌ kutsulo mušul gimi my wife was in travail for 100 days(?) 102.5. Cp. 108.9 ff.

IUB gives only the form ušuˑl.

The following is from a Ms. of IYB: gusmu mušultse hin gusʌn hurušubo. iˑnəmur mušultsuu gus se.ibaˑn a woman attends at (lit. sits at) the woman's labour. She is called the labour-woman (i.e. midwife).

(This word is probably in origin the same as 3. šuˑl. Cp. Sh. šuˑl and pl. šuˑlə, labour pains).

šuˑlbʌlikrš kind, sympathetic.

šuˑli -muts x barrel (of gun), spout (of water-vessel). — tobʌqə šuˑli gun barrel. jʌqər šuˑlimutsʌŋe tobʌq a double-barrelled (shot) gun. hʌn šuˑli.e ka tobʌq a single-barrelled gun. mʌšərbʼa šuˑlilo dɛljʌm I will hit (with an arrow) the spout of the water-vessel. 260.10 ff.

(Cp. Sh. šuˑlo, muzzle (barrel?) of gun, spout of water-vessel).

šumogaˑr x a kind of black-eyed hawk. Prs. (šunqaˑr).

šuˑn -ʌnts x vine. — ḍʌŋʌliski šuˑn a particular kind of vine. 264.27.

šunuṭ -išo x lynx.

šuˑŋ, -ʌnts; N. šuŋ, -aˑints x a long narrow track, narrow lane (between houses); path, track; N. dry and narrow nullah; H. gʌli, kuˑča. 358.11. — tsʌhilɛ, muˑsɛ, šuˑŋ channel of water, of mud-flood. huyʼɛsɛ šuˑŋ goat track. haˑ šuˑŋ small open space before door of house.

334b

The word appears in the P. N. Hərawšuŋ. 248.3, 256.8. 000 šuŋ ɛtʌs, v. 3. šũ· ɛtʌs, v.t. to smell. (Cp. Sh. ṣũ· thoɪki v.t. to smell).

šɔq'a, N. šu·q'a, -mɔts x choga (a loose woollen cloak, the usual outer garment of the country). — šɔqa yo·lʌs to put on a choga. Cp. 378.4, 380.11. (Cp. Sh. Kho., šɔqa choga).

šɔqɔm v. šo·qɔm.

šɔquwɔm -ɪšo sour (as of vinegar, buttermilk), bitter. Cp. Prov. 5.

šuwa y pl. nitre. Prs.

šɔrɛ.a·r, šuraiya·r, šɔri.a·r.

1. Gladness, happiness, rejoicing. — šuraiya·rɛ ka with pleasure, gladly. šɔrɛ.a·r 'ečʌn let us make merry. 373.20. Cp. 370.10.
2. As Adj.: — u·ŋɔr yʌški bi·m šɔri.a·r gɔmʌnʌs it was right for thee to be merry, rejoice.

(Sh. šɔri.a·r, happiness, rejoicing. In Sh. -ya·r, -a·r is a suffix used in forming abstract nouns).

šɔri.ɛ·š, šuriy'ɛ·š.

1. Happiness, enjoyment, rejoicing. — šuriy'ɛ·š ɛti enjoy yourself, be happy. 122.25. šɔri.ɛ·š ečen let us make merry, let us rejoice. Cp. 368.17.
2. As Adj. — šɔri.ɛš gumʌnʌs yʌški bim it was right for you to rejoice. (Cp. šɔrɛ.a·r. Sh. has also šɔri.ɛ·r).

šɔr'o x sg. & pl., d.pl. -mɔts a large cake of bread (two feet in diameter and two inches thick, cooked in the embers of a fire). — hʌn šɔr'o·wʌn nɛtʌn making a šɔro. 332.2.

šɔru ɛtʌs to begin. — u.i·tsɛ mʌna·sɔr šɔru ɛtɔmʌn they began to separate (from each other). 110.22. Cp. 382.4. Ar. Prs.

335a

šəšo·likɪṣ̌ -ki.ʌnts hf a supernatural female who exists in the whirlwind and does injury to mortals. 776

She is explained as a H. čorel or Sh. bʌl'a.

čirpuphuṣ̌e šəšo·likɪṣ̌ the whirlwind witch. The word is also used as a term of abuse for an ugly, ill-dressed old woman. šəšo·likɪṣ̌ ju.ʌn mʌnoma you have become like a Sh.

šu·šu suffering from ague. — je šu·šu amaiya ba I am suffering from ague. 000 (Cp. Sh. šəšu šal, cold fever, ague. Kho. šu·šu, šəšu, ague).

šut̩ y a sour decoction made from apricots and used as vinegar, especially by Shins. Wakhis use qəruṭ. šut̩ is put in ḍauḍo. [263]

(Cp. Kho. šot, sour as of unripe grapes).

š'utin pl. šut'iyo x the four big stones surrounding the hearth in a house. 304.18. (Cp. pfərɛtsin).

šoṭu·ko -mots x.

1. Bud.
2. Round button made of cloth.

(Cp. Sh. šotu·ko, with the same meanings).

šu·tər a kind of mushroom, or truffle(?), Punj. gučči, Sh. šonu·tər.

(Not known to QUB. GB gives Sh. šut̩, mushroom. I have šu·ṭ toadstool).

šyu šyu, šyu ši.u ɛtʌs to whistle.

(Cp. Sh. šyu· thorki; Kho. šyu· korik, to whistle).

T, TH, and Ṭ, ṬH

1. tā, -mots x leopard. — ta ɔ.ṭ leopard's skin. Cp. Prov. 13.
2. tha hundred, one hundred. — hik, a·lto, iski, honti tha 100, 200, 300, 900.

335 b

000 tʌ kutsolo for a hundred days. 100.5. thʌ sʌlo 100 moulds of salt. 274.10. tsindi ta rupiɴ 500 rupees. 304.9. uɴ tha uyoɴ Kɪsɔrɪ all those 100 men of the Kisar family. 110.21. Cp. 102.19, 164.1, 310.11. Nov. 13.

ta.aɴm y food. — bɪ šuɴa ta.aɴm detsirčai.i what good food he is cooking! 124.11. gutɪ ta.aɴm uɴ̃ bɪsʌntsɔm ɛt'ʌm? what had you made this food of? 138.21. Cp. 84.9 ff. Ar. Prs.

taɴbi.a obedient. Ar. Prs.

thaɴiko v. thaɴnɔm.

taɴj y crown. 88.4. Prs.

taɴki so that. — taɴki . . . uɴ̃tsɔm mʌddʌt dɪɴmərčʌm so that I may seek help from you. 22.7. Cp. 34.13. Prs.

taɴlim y instruction, education. — taɴlim gʌnɔm bai.i he is educated. taɴlim ičim bai.i he has been given instruction. taɴlim ɛ.ikinɔm bai.i he has been taught. Ar. Prs.

taɴlumots, daɴlamots x pl. swollen glands, mumps(?), septic throat(?) — taɴlumots du bi.en mumps have come (to s.o.), i.e. (s.o.) has caught mumps.

It is said that a skilled woman puts her finger in the patient's throat and presses out the matter. (This can hardly apply to mumps). The black off cooking pots is applied as a remedy.

1. thaɴn place, spot. — hithaɴn one place, a certain spot. hithaɴnɪ hʌɣɔrɪ itsu bila at one place there is the hoof-mark of (his) horse. 288.1 ff. Cp. 190.1. hitaɴnər niɴči biɴm (the bear) was going somewhere. 228.13. bɪ.ɔrum thaɴnɪ al amičiɴ dɪlaɴ they have put up flags in a number of places. QUB. V. s.v. hitaɴ.

(Cp. H. thaɴ?).

3369

000 2. thaʷn, pl. thaʷyo x piece, or roll, of cloth (muslin etc.). H.

3. (men) taʷn, pl. taʷyo x (old) clothes. — men taʷnʌn yoʷl put on a set of old clothes.

thaʷnum, pl. hxy thaʷrko, thai.iko; also hx -išo, y -iŋ high, elevated, lofty, tall. — thaʷnum hiʷr a tall man. thai.iko, or thaʷnumišo hiʷri tall men. ćiṣko thaʷrko bi.en the mountains are high. tom thaʷrko bitsʌn the trees are tall. thaʷnum hʌyuts a high mountain-pass. uŋe taʷrif thaʷnum goʷčʌm I will exalt your reputation for you. 98.5. Cp. 362.8. thaʷiko joŋe šərkoʷtse tʌk noʷtʌn tying (the ropes) to the boughs of tall apricot trees. 316.12. QUB also: th'ai.ikəroʷik baʷn they are tall people.

thaʷnumkuṣ y height.

tanʷus, pl. tʌnʷušo, mortar (of stone or wood, for pounding things in). — dʌne tanus stone mortar. huʷnə tanus wooden mortar.

(In association with this word yʌṭkus was given as "pestle").

thaʷŋ -ićiŋ y.

1. Royal residence, palace, Mir's fort, Bu. theʷŋuṣ. thʌmo taʷŋ the Mir's residence. Cp. 10.3, 24.13, 212.21, 222.3, 328.4.

2. Mir's kitchen, royal cookhouse, Kho. rʌteʌni (bakehouse). ṣʌpik, originally šuroʷ etʌs thaʷŋ the Mir's bakehouse, kitchen.

ṭhaʷŋ *-ʌtʌs v. ṭhʌŋ *-ʌtʌs.

ta.očiŋ y pl., sg. ta.uts, foot-wrappers, leg-bandages, strips of skin wound round feet and ankles, Sh. ta.ots. — ja ta.očiŋ kuraʷti mʌniṭsʌn my leg-bandages have become hard, stiff. 128.21. (ta.očiŋ taiyʌsər oʷr moškil ǰučila they encounter difficulty in putting them on. 132.4. ta.očiǰ . . . nultʿan (Ppa. of 2. -ltaiyas*) putting on foot-wrappers. 128.23, 130.10, 132.2, 212.9. Cp. 128.21 — 132.3 passim, 210.9 ff. (Cp. Sh. ta.ote). ooo

1. taʿp y arrangement, condition, H. tərtib. — uŋə taʿpan šuʿa bila your arrangement is a good one. 60.18. durowi šu.a taʿp bila it is a good arrangement of the work. QUB. hayur šu.a taʿpolo bi the horse is in good condition. QUB. gor taʿp ečam I'll punish you. QUB. šu.a taʿpe hiran bai.i he is a good type of man(?). QUB.

2. taʿp evil, bad (thing), H. bura. — taʿpan dimanimi.a? has he been born an evil thing? 86.27. taʿpe bər bila, bər taʿpe bila it is an evil saying, it's a bad business.

QUB gave the following: taʿp = yaʿǰki = unworthy, inferior. — taʿpe hiran bai.i he is a wrong kind of man, H. namumkin, namunasib. taʿpe dərʿo ečai.i he does bad work(?). taʿpe taʿpe etimi he did ill, he acted badly (?).

(It seems probable that 1. taʿp and 2. taʿp are the same word, 2. taʿp being perhaps differentiated by a lengthened vowel and low tone to denote inferiority or contempt. In the last example I marked the first taʿpe as having a high tone and the second as having a low tone, the meaning being perhaps "good and bad", implying predominantly bad. In regard to the principle involved v. BSOS Vol. VIII. 1936. p. 634).

taʿrif y fame, reputation, renown. — ja taʿrif bart bila I have a high reputation(?). 118.18. but tavrifa padša bam he was a king of great renown (glossed: H. mašhur). 122.6. Cp. 98.5. Ar. Prs. 000 thavrk -iŋ, -ičiŋ y walled enclosure (constructed round shrine, or saint's grave). — murto xa ina . . . oltirum diš Tolalo tavrk ni bila up to the present the place he showed them in Tol is there, made into an enclosure (lit. they having enclosed?) 294.19.

thavtini, th'atini, cold, i.e. without clothes. — akale čamina ki tavtini berum den dimiwasuman we have remained here hungry and cold (unclad?) for some years. 34.10.

ta.u fufaŋ, ta.u ǵufaŋ, pitch dark.[1] ta.uts v. ta.očiŋ.

t(h)ayas v. 1. thaiyas.

tavu fresh. Prs.

tavzi (kurk) greyhound. Prs.

tab'aŋ, tabaŋ, y pl. bridle and bit, H. lagam. — tabaŋ sti put a bridle on (the horse). ixači tabaŋ evoman they put a bridle in his mouth. 78.22. ivao kayur γonzže tabaŋ tili.aŋ asbab uyum nerigin putting a golden bridle, saddle and all equipment on his horse. 76.10.

tabib hm physician, doctor. Ar. Prs.

tačap overwhelmed, exterminated, finished off, H. tabah, γark; completely, entirely. — tačap čup stimi he went quite silent, he didn't say a word. tačap bel nimi he perished without heirs. tačap bel evoman they exterminated them. 240.8. uyum wakir tačap stoman they all finished themselves off, i.e. slew each other. 32.6.

(Cp. Sh. tačapiγ-u, massacre, extermination. Kho. tačaγ, vanished,

337 b

[1] [see Corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p 544 - Analyst]

000 tapaćuk bik to sink into water and disappear).

tɔʃak quite, wholly, completely, Bu. syn. tačap. — yuʃɔruʃ tɔʃak (substitute for ʃɔraq in the text) bel ovuʃ you have completely extirpated his fathers (i.e. his father and father's brothers). 242.15.

thaʃam manuʃ to go lame (of an animal). (Cp. Sh. tɔʃam borzki, to stumble).

tɔʃaq quite clear smooth ground, overflow of water.

tɔʃaq manuʃ, tɔʃuʃ m., v.i. to spill, overflow (on a small scale, e.g. of liquid in a vessel), to melt (and flow?). — čaiʃ piʃuliʃlo tɔʃaq maiʃibila the tea in the cup is spilling over the edge. QUB. taiʃ aso taiʃpiʃlo tsʰil tɔʃaq manum juʃ'an like water in a shallow vessel spilling over. QUB. (An expression applied to foolish people who talk much, or to a person with small means who would do great things). (Cp. tɔʃau).

tɔʃau manuʃ v.i. to spill over, overflow (of things on a big scale). — sinda hol ne tɔʃau maiʃibila the river is overflowing, spilling over, its banks QUB.

tɔʃau etʃ to scoop out, bail out. — gotsilulum tsʰil hol ne tɔʃau ečʃ they are bailing water out of the irrigation channel. QUB.

The reduplicated form teʃatɔʃau denotes repeated spilling over. pʃoriʃ tsʰil teʃatɔʃau maiʃibila means that the pond is brimful and that the water is swinging backwards and forwards and spilling over the edge. QUB.

(Cp. tɔʃaq manuʃ. The Sh. tɔrauʃ, which seems to be used of the over-000 flowing of a river, or of water lapping at the edge of a river, is probably the same word).

thaγay, pl. thagaçiŋ, y pergola, framework supporting vines.

ʔaγar -ʒlo x big neck.

(Cp. Pra. and Wkh. taγarv).

taγay y wrought mud (for building); bog (?). H. gava, Pra. gil. — buwa taγay dry, i.e. stiff, mud. ket taγ'ayan ke xa ap'al'ʔa even this mud has not fallen-down. 170.9. Cp. 276.4, 334.6. (Cp. Sh. tag'a).

1. ʃhak -ʒlo swindler, cheat. — ʃhakan baiʃ he is a cheat. kuv ʃhakʒlo bavn these people are swindlers. (Cp. Sh. ʃhag). H.

2. ʃak -anʃ x strings for fastening front of choga, button.

(Cp. Sh. ʃak, Yasin Kho. ʃak button, strings for tying women's veil).

3. ʃak exact, equal. — teq 40 kuts maniwi ke when exactly (?) 40 days have passed. 80.17. ʃak *-amanas to equal, rival, vie with. ʃak aiy'amanam I was unable to compete; come level with. IYR H. barabari ne karsaka.

(Cp. Sh. ʃak, equal to, enough for, sufficient for. ʃak waiorzki, to be equal to, to be a match for).

ʃak *-atas to tie, fasten, tie up. — ivuso jiqeçiŋ dumoryas ivuo ʃʒlo kiʃ tag ofisi pulling out her sleeves he tied them in front of his own neck. 146.15. kaγar ʃak ofi tie up the horse, itin ʃak ofin tie them (the horses) up. Xa. Cp. 64.10, 310.10, 316.12, 355.16.

(Cp. 2. ʃak and Sh. ʃak thorzki to tie, fasten).

338 b

thʌk ɛtʌs, tʌq ɛtʌs to knock in (a peg), to knock s.t. 000

The first form and meaning were given verbally by IYB. The second form probably represents the same word. It occurs in:

(iʼriŋ) tʌq ɛtumʌn they gave his hand a knock. 242.18.

(Perhaps thʌk. Cp. H. thʌkthʌk and thōʼkna. Cp. Kho. tʌk tʌk korik, to knock at the door).

tʌkliʼf y trouble, worry. — uŋ iʼnər bese tʌklif iɛhiɛa why do you worry him? tʌkliʼf aiyæɛhi don't worry me. Ar. Prs.

tʌksiʼr y offence, fault. Ar. Prs.

tʌkurʼr N. barber. (Cp. Sh. thʌkur).

tʌxpa, QUB tʌqpa y news, information, H. xʌbər. — nam tʌxpa gaiyʌm I shall go and get news (whether the King will see you). 136.25. (Cp. Sh. tʌkpa, known, H. maʼlum. Balti hrtʌxpa, information). Tib. (rtagspa).

tʌxša EOL, tʌqša QUB, -miŋ, -iŋ y niche, recess (in wall).

(Cp. Sh. tʌkša). Prs. (taqča).

tʌxt y throne, howda, travelling-litter. — ɛsmaʼntsum . . . han tʌxtʌnets Šahri Bano dumuʼtsumʌn they brought Š. B. from the sky on a litter. 14.2. tʌxt ɛ ramanʼn travelling litter. 78.3. Gilts tʌxtʌts hurutimi he took his seat on the throne of Gilgit. 384.18. Cp. 92.5. hastowʌts tʌxt nʼeribišen putting the howda on the elephant. 76.20. Prs.

tʌxta puɛ (nimaʼzi) y praying-carpet, skin used as a mat for praying on, Prs. jaʼi nimaʼz, mujalla. Skin used as a bed-quilt. 288.2. Prs.

1. tʌl -miŋ, EOL -iŋ, y.

a. Ceiling, roof (from inside). — mi haʼ tʌl bʌliʼla our house has been roofed. (Metaph.) myafe tal halivin sorrow, or misfortune has fallen on me. QUB. Perhaps also under this head come the expressions: —

. . . tal halivin I, you, etc., have become hungry, chamisu gumanu. . . .
tal dovivin = gurî walî bî (you) have become hungry (?). QUB.

b. Palate. yafum tal roof of mouth.

c. Eyelid (upper). ordinu yafum tal my eyelid. (Cp. Sh. tal ceiling, tavlo palate).

2. tal -iq, N. -miq, y birch tree.
3. tal -jo x pigeon. — talo taljo . . . dumis seven pigeons have come. 12.16. taljirî dunyan some pigeons have come. 148.6.
4. tal stagnant, standing, slow-flowing. — tall tal manivin the water has become spread out like a lake, or marsh (H. jhil). sinda tal the slack (water) of the river(?).
5. tal -eq y convolvulus, bindweed.

thal'a gently, slowly, quietly, softly. — thala thala sti do it gently.
thala gutikhoras to go along slowly.
thala ownas to speak low, whisper. gorunimotum ammu tal'a doy arudai the mullah enquires of the bride quietly, in a low voice. 302.18.

talaq y divorce. — talaq *-thi.as, — ifas, — d ifonas to divorce s.o. Pano yunnar talaq wuthivai he divorced her.

The customs of divorce are stated to be as follows: When a man divorces his wife he presents her with five rupees, representing the old dark paci (v. s.v. dark). He has also to make payment to the authorities. He pays the Mir : lari, i.e. R. 12, but the Wazir and Tarkhans take turns in receiving it in place of the Mir.

586 The divorcing husband has further to provide six portions of butter, one for the Mir, one for the Wazir and one each for the Muqaddams of the "Four Tribes". One of the last is designated by the Mir "spurm" (senior) for a period of 2, 3, or 4 years. The Mir passes on his butter to this Muqaddam, and the Wazir bestows his on some friend. These portions of butter are called phalka q.v.

Women used to be able to divorce their husbands if they had no children within two years (presumably when this was owing to failure on the man's part).

They can still be given divorce by order of a tribal council (jirga), but the right is seldom granted.

Bewishi talaq, "Dom's divorce". This term is applied to the divorcing of a wife on account of bad conduct. In this case her dowry is not repaid to her and neither tarh nor phalka is given by the divorcing husband. He may on the other hand recover a fine from the wife's father. The Doms themselves had originally no divorce and did not pay taxation. The Mir has now introduced them to both these amenities of the higher civilisation. Ar. Pra.

000 talorm, tal.ao -mate shallow (of water, bowl etc.). — tal.ao khapoo shallow spoon. EOL.

1. talov search, seeking for. — Shamaner talov chomas they searched for a King. 366.2. Pra.
2. talov, talai effort, endeavour; haste; quickly, without delay. — talov oti make haste, hurry.
   talov ou ja come quickly, come at 000 once. N. talrí jwin come quickly. (So also in Kho.). Pra.? talab y pay, salary. — talab ov bila he gets pay. Ar. Pra.

thalobey v. dey.

thalokate y.

1. Period of seven days. — hik thalokate bila it is a week.
2. The seven days following a death, after which certain observances are carried out. V. 314.7 ff.

thalokatum appears to be used as an ablative with temporal significance: talokatum damas ke kotum kots drotum after the seven-days they bring the master of the house also out of the house. 314.9.

(thalo, seven + kots, days q.v.).

tal'ymas, talr(y)-, Impv. talra, -in, Pra. nell'alas, to go round, to cross over (a pass); to return, to circle round (of bird, aeroplane).

The negative prefix is ov-, but it appears to be accompanied by an -i-. Thus I recorded the Pat. 3 sg. ovltalaimi, and the neg. Impv. ovtalra, but added an -i-, ovltalra, whether as an optional addition I cannot say.

Pret. 1. sg. talramm. — kayatr(ow) talramas to cross the pass. khorlis ovltalaimi he won't cross today. kal-talramm mayor the sphere of communal labour beyond Khaibar, lit. "across the bridge" (?) talrí bi it (the female goat or sheep) is seeking the male, appears to belong to this verb.

[illegible] talramas. 1. To go round, revolve round, appears to be used as an expression of well-wishing or honour. Cp. the Persian dour i ourat gardam; and the Kho. yarum I go round. The idea is probably: "I circulate round you to ward off danger or harm". tal'eyam ga kev I am going to turn. Look out ozen! 246.15. 2. To go round, petition to, worry, pester. ausva tal-ebs you are worrying me. (Cp. -italanas). 000 tal'ono, pl. tal'onomots, x faggot. — talanomots pha, 394.9, phaw talanomots. 384.12, fire-faggots, burning faggots.

(Cp. Sh. tal'ono, tal'ano, tal'ono, faggot; apuvo talono burning faggots).

thale v. thalo.

th'ale.wlam, thale.'wlam, N. thalalam, seventh.

1. t'ali, -mots, talents x ascent or descent of a mountain. — Trughal but thawam t'alion bi the Trughal Pass is a very high ascent.

2. tali, tale occurs only as a postposition or adv. in a few expressions: — ridipow tali (or, tale) round about. 300.10, 394.9. Cp. § 84. gone lapa holi tali daltas bi this chogs is good on the outside. EOL. wli tali daltas apaiti bi it doesn't look good on the inside. EOL. gow tali below. EOL. hawapo tali between. (Cp. talawas?).

thali.o, N. thale.o, -mots x wicker-basket, N. open-mouthed basket.

(Cp. Sh. thal'o, GB thaly'o, basket. Khe. thal'o, basket).

thalirus -mots. x the first and last sunlight striking on the mountain tops. — ano thalirus "the sun on the distant hills, shade all round the speaker". thalirus manimi the sun has quite gone, but its light still appears on the mountain tops. talirumots tam manimis the sunset glows have gone off the mountains. EOL.

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

1. t'ʌliṣ, pl. t'ʌliʌaṇ, y swaddling-clothes, the cloth in which an infant is wrapped. 854

The child is laid on the cloth with, in winter, a supply of dried cowdung to keep it warm and to absorb its urine. In the hot weather sand is substituted for cowdung.

The child is then rolled up in the cloth and the resulting bundle is tied round with a bandage, taliṣe ʌan, (H. patti).

The verb used to describe the process is -ltaliʌas, from which taliṣ is probably a derivative.

Čuram talṣolo ʌam Ch. was in swaddling-clothes. 242.17. (Cp. Sh. taliṣ).

2. tal'iṣ -iṇ y large spindle on to which spun yarn is wound from small spindle, and from which it is eventually wound off into balls. 000

joṭ ganṭaṭum thiṣtum tal'iṣʌṭs imaltorčum. Ho tal'iṣtum loṭo di.uljam they wind the spindleful of yarn from the small spindle on to the taliṣ, and then they wind it from the tal'iṣ into a ball.

thʌlo h x y; thʌls x seven, — thʌlo hirri seven men. tʌlo gušiṇʌnts 7 women. 180.10. Cp. 116.2, 192.10. tʌlo tʌljo 7 pigeons. 16.14. thʌlo hakičʌṇ 7 houses. thʌlo ʌadʌṇ 7 paces. 312.10. thal'ʌsa 7 months. thalskuts (v. s.v.) 7 days. tʌls dʌm 7 years. Cp. 210.3. thʌls hʌṣi 7 times. thʌls kum 7 pairs,sets. thʌlo aččkum "The Seven Brothers", the name of a constellation conceived as representing seven brothers on a journey, one of whom got left behind. (Cp. Wkh. hʌb ʌ'rʌt, the Great Bear. Skold). 821

341b

000 talt'aq -ršo h beggar, mendicant; poor, impoverished. — uṇṇ baba taltaq 'etam I have made your father a beggar, reduced him to penury. 142.6. Puno taltak imanimi Puno became impoverished. 212.18.

(Cp. Sh. talt'ako, "thin", poor(?), starved?).

taltaquṇyo, pl. taltaquṇy-ršo, -omuts poverty-stricken, destitute; hereditary poor-man. Used as a term of abuse and contempt.

1. tham -o hm ruler, sovereign, king, chief, "Mir". Used specially of the hereditary rulers of the states of Hunza and Nagir. It is not ordinarily substituted in stories of foreign origin for the Persian padša.

The term is being displaced by Mir which is used by outsiders and has been adopted by the Indian Government.

The pl. thamo is used as an inclusive term for all the members of the ruling family, and also, it would appear, as a respectful singular. thamo uyon Safdar Xanı ka ni bam all the members of the ruling family had gone off with S. Kh. 346.3.

It is probably singular in the following:

thamo uyonum čap ekman they kept it secret from the Tham. 192.6. thamo ołpači . . . jučam he used to come to the Tham. 208.10. thamon bešan uyomor šel očon the Tham makes them take precedence in everything. 348.2. thamo amolor ni.as manimi ki when the Tham has to go anywhere, 348.3. thamo thaṇ the Mir's (or, Mirs'?) palace, residence 212.21, 328.4.

000 Used as a title—name follows the personal name.

The word in normal use in the sg. and pl. occurs repeatedly in texts No.s 35, 37, 38, 40, 41.

The following are further references: 6.2, 24.1, 116.4, 240.2, 260.2, 266.20, 274.9, 278.6, 294.13, 300.11 ff., 314.14, 350.4.

(For the relationships of the word see: "A new Central Asian Language" by F. W. Thomas, J.R.A.S. April 1926, p. 313).

2. ʃam, Nz. tam, closed, shut. — gute hiŋ ʃam bila this door is shut hiŋ ʃam e (or, eti) close the door. itse hiŋ ʃam ne closing the door after him. 52.6.

(Cp. Sh. tam (GB ʃam) thorki, to shut).

3. ʃam delas v.i. to bathe, wash, swim, H. ʈʊ:l k., nahana, tairna — *tam -adilas v.t. to wash, bathe. sindulo (or, sindaʃe) tam delas to swim in the river. mu guse pforilo tam deljan now let us bathe in this pond. 14.1. gušiŋants uriŋciŋeʃe ʃar ne tam deljan women swim reaching forwards with the hands under the water. QUB. N. belis tam delas to swim like a dog (lit. sheep). (This also I think refers to women's swimming). tam edilumar when they have washed (the corpse). 310.7. ja Missi Baba tam medilam I gave "Missy Baba" a bath. EOL. tsilulo tham eti dip it in the water. EOL.

(Cp. Sh. tam dorki v.i. to bathe, swim).

4. ʃham etas, (manav) to sweep, clean; to clear out, make a clean sweep of. — isumalaʃe ʃham eti sweep with a (yak's) tail. pforpusafa tham eti sweep with a besom. dukava tam ne sweeping the shop. 166.16. gan ev tham ever in order to sweep the road for him. 358.16. guv bifsuman . . . tham ne tsumi clearing out all the wheat there was, he carried it off. 142.1. Cp. 172.19. guv tifi.wdem tam manimi the wheat was cleared out from the pit. 140.9. Cp. 140.14. (Cp. Sh. tham thorki, to sweep).

5. tam—tam taf ihor a smooth, perpendicular cliff (a clean, slippery, or smooth cliff).

6. tam a disease that attacks wheat. — guve tam nibila, guve tam dwaila the wheat has become affected by tam.

tama y greed, covetousness; greedy. — tama gane out of greed. bud tama sisan a very greedy person. EOL. Ar. Pra.

tamaku y sg. a single tobacco plant, y pl. tobacco. — čilima tamaku pipe-tobacco. nasewa tamaku snuff. tamaku mow'on) bi it is a tobacco plant, ev, contemptuously, a very small quantity of tobacco. tamaku muwande (bi.e) the stalks of the tobacco plant pounded. Pra.

tamam all, entire. — ye furin, tamaman furin now come, all of you come. 82.2. (Whether the -an is the Bu. suffix of "oneness", or the Ar. adverbial suffix, is not clear). Ar. Pra.

tamasa, pl. tamasa.ing, M. pl. -ming, y.
1. Amusement, game, play, diversion. tamasa stas to play, amuse, disport o.s. (of children or adults). tamasa sčawa? are they playing (games)? fotimatse ka hoipa tamasa stasor nimi he went out to play with the children. 364.8.

343a

2. Spectacle, display, public entertainment, "sports", a "show". — mew tamaʿšan ači he will provide us with a spectacle. 116.6. guʿimo tšāṇum tamaʿšew boren watch the spectacle from the top of your roof. 286.5. gwe gupse ke tamaʿšar ayoʿkičiṇ ačan ṇučan the women folk also dress up and come to the entertainment, "show". 330.2.

In the following it is either the genitive or used adjectivally: tamaʿšu hayoren bi it is a show horse, i.e. a wonderfully good horse. Ar. Prs.

tamaʿšakij forming a spectacle, worth looking at; ridiculous. 116.3. (Prs.).

tamanča -mots x pistol, revolver.

(Cp. Psht. tamaʿnča, Sh. tamanča, also given as Persian by Steingass).

am'anuakij arrogant, contemptuous of others, H. mayrw, mast. (Ar. Prs.).

tambuk, pl. -ṇo, -uts, N. -ivats, x popinjay, y the sport of shooting at the p. — tambuk delas to shoot at, or to hit, the popinjay. N. tambuk diʿtsas to engage in shooting at the popinjay.

(Here diʿtsas possibly refers to making one's horse gallop down the course, cp. tayoru diʿtsas).

(Cp. Sh. tambuk, Kho. tambuk, tambuṇ).

thamiʿni, last year. — thamiʿni den last year. thamʿine khuʿin last year and this year. tamiʿni gow den ke last year and the year before. 214.12.

thamiʿnimo pertaining to last year, last year's. — thamiʿnimo den last year. tamʿinoupuum from, since, last year. 314.14.

tamlam N. y pl. sheet lightning.

OOO thʌmkuš y "tham"-ship, kingship, sovereignty. — M. M. N. Xanɪ thʌmkuše during the thamship of M. M. N. Khan, in the reign of . . . 106.4. 116.17, 238.9, 346.8.

tʌmtʌm etʌs IYB to strike metal, to beat clothes (in washing them). (Not known to QUB. Cp. 3. tʌn).

tʌm'us, pl. tʌm'ušiŋ, y the hot weather days after the solstice, the dog days. — tʌmus etʌs (bila) (it is necessary in the dog days) to break up and soften ground.

The plural is said to be used where several fields are in question.

*-th'ʌn, pl. -thaiyo, x top, tip, point; vertex, centre line of top of head, parting line of hair. — čhiše ithʌnulo, tomɪ ithʌnulo on the top of the mountain, of the tree. čhiše itʌnər nɪ·mo she went to the top of the mountain. 108.11. sɪ·le ithʌn the point of a needle. ithʌn dikʌrʌs[1] to divide the hair down the middle of the head.

This is done with a small stick ganč-efe (lit. spindle).

gutʌn traq nuko gudeljʌm splitting you down the centre line of your head I shall hit, or kill you (the meaning is: I shall strike you on the top of your head and cleave you in two). 148.23. Cp. 230.6.

N. i·t'ʌnulu (i.e. it'ʌnulum?) first, opposed to mu·šulu last.

(Cp. also Bu. *-thʌnʌs).

1. tʌn bastard. — tʌn dukumʌnum you bastard born. tʌn pforopuš, bastard. (Cp. tʌno).

2. tʌn only recorded in: tʌn lʌq quite naked, stark naked.

(Probably Pis. tʌn, body. Cp. Sh. tʌn nano stark naked).

344 a

[1] [See corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 544 - Analyst]

000 3. tʌn the noise of beating, beating with a noise; smacking. Also reduplicated: — tʌntʌn, tʌtʌn. tʌn ne delimi he beat him (implying noise). gʌtoŋ tʌn(tʌn) ečʌ·n they thump, keep thumping, the clothes (in washing them). indiliŋ tʌtʌn stimi he kept thumping his breast. gu.ʌ·s tʌtʌn ·ʌtʌs to slap, smack, a child.

(Cp. Sh. tʌn thʌ·rki to beat, smack, (the breast)).

1. tʌnʌ·s, tai(y)-, Ppa. nultʼʌn v.t. to pound (y objects). — gʌr hičokʌn thʌibʌ·n they pound one "čoq" of wheat. 314.1.

Fut. sg. 1. thaiyʌm.

Pret. sg. 1. thʌnʌ·m. (Cp. *-ltʌnʌs).

2. tʌnʌ·s, pl. tʌnʌ·šo x a pounder, beater (used when washing clothes).

(Presumably the Noun Agent of 1. tʌnʌ·s).

1. *-thʌnʌs, pl. *-thʌnʌšo, x centre line of top of head, top of mountain. — itʼʌnʌsʌ xa nivdxlin striking him on the centre line of his head. 230.2. Cp. 230.6. čhivʌ·ithʌnʌsʌr du·simi he went up to the top of the mountain. (Cp. *-thʌs).

2. thʌnʌs, pl. thʌnʌšo, x wooden ladle (at water-cisterns for public use). — γolkʌtum thʌnʌs the cistern ladle.

tʌndu·r N. v. tʌnu·r.

tʌndʌrʌst, N. pl. -išo, healthy, in good health. — tʌndʌrʌst bʌ·n they are well. Prs.

tʌne·lo v. 2. tʌno.

tʌnxʌ y pay, salary. — dʌwʌ·sumʌn tʌnxʌ pay remaining over, i.e. arrears of pay. Ar. H.

1. tʌno lower end of an animals gut where dung collects before it is expelled. QUB. (= Punj. ojhṛi IUB).

2. tʌno, tʌnɛ·lo, pl. tʌnɛ·lo-mots, -tiŋ, 000 bastard, base-born. (Cp. 1. tʌn).

tʌnuɛ·r, -iŋ, -iʃiŋ, -miŋ; N. tʌnduɛ·r -iŋ, y oven (hole in the ground). Prs.

1. tʌŋ.

a. Adj. hard up, in straits; vexed, annoyed. — ʃi.ʌsər šʌpi·kɛ tʌŋ bʌm he was hard up for food to eat. 34.3. hʊru·tʌsər padša tʌŋ imai.i bai.i on her sitting down the King becomes vexed. 120.16.

b. Noun y scarcity, shortage. — Hunzolo tsilɛ but tʌŋ bilum in Hunza there was great scarcity of water. 352.8. Prs.

2. ʃhʌŋ N. up to, as far as. Hz. to the furthest limit of, H. ɑ·xɛr sɛrretʌk̩. — um ʌmolirɛ tʌŋ niču ba? kolerɛ tʌŋ as far as where (= how far) are you going? as far as here, i.e. how far . . .? . . . so far. Sərigul ʃhʌŋ naɛ·n daiyʌm I went to the furthest point of S. and returned. QUB.

(Cp. Sh. ʃhʌŋ, up to, + dat.).

ʃhʌŋ *-ʌtʌs, ʃhaɛ·ŋ *-ʌtʌs, v.t. to push, shove. — mɛnʌn ʃhʌŋ ɛtʌs to push s.o. gukər utsi tʌŋ eti push yourself against them, i.e. jostle them. 256.6,10. ʃhaɛ·ŋ denotes slow, gentle action, and so is used of helpful pushing. gʊltuɛ·rʌʃɛ yʌʃɛ gusɛ čʌrʌʃɛ taɛ·ŋ ɑ with your horn push me up on to the top of this cliff. 132.20,22. Cp. 144.1. hʊrɣo dʌl hʌɣʊr ʃhaɛ·ŋ ečomɛ di.uɛ·simi pushing the horse up the slope he got it to the top. ʃhʌŋ ɛtʌs to push the earth to either side, the equivalent of harrowing, with a shovel.

(Cp. Sh. ʃhʌŋ thoɛ·rki; Kho. ʃhʌŋ korik, to push, shove).

tʌŋgi y dearth, scarcity. Prs.

1. tʌp, pl. -oŋ, EOL -uŋ, y leaflet, petal; leaf, page (of book). — iski tʌp ʒɪrqa 3-leaved grass, i.e. trefoil, clover. 777

Specimens with four or more leaflets are searched for, and those with 4 and 6 leaflets are considered "lucky".

(Perhaps the same word is to be seen in Sh. tʌpi bʌt, very thin stone, shale).

2. thʌp -ičʌŋ y night. — thʌp uyom all night. sa thʌp day and night. 116.15. tʌpe, tʌpe.i at night. 4.16, 94,1. thʌpmo at night. ivte th'ʌpe.i (or, thʌpər) that night. trʌŋ thʌp, thʌpe trʌŋ midnight. kuʷlto nim thʌp last night. ev tʌp mʌnimi it became night for him, i.e. night overtook him. 234.2. tʌp bilom it was night. 198.1. Cp. 358.7, 384.9. Prov 26. 000

(Cp. Chilāsi Sh. tʌp, dark).

ʈʌpʈʌp with a tapping sound. — hərʌlt ʈʌpʈʌp mai.ibila the rain is tapping down. ʒu yaʷr ne ʈʌpʈʌp šel'iči.en the apricots are falling tap, tap, tap.

(Cp. Sh, tʌptʌp, dropping, spitting of rain).

1. tʌq *-ʌtʌs.

V.t. to break into pieces, smash, cut up. — sʌnduqʌʈe dʌn isərk tʌq ne gʌtom di.usin smash down a stone on the box and breaking it up take out the clothes. 24.18. gutʌs tʌq ne cutting up the corpse into bits. 226.3. čʌp taʷq (i.e. tʌq) netʌn cutting up the meat. 338,14, 340,12, 384.23.

V.i. tʌq mʌnʌʷs, *tʌq -mʌnʌs to break in pieces, be smashed, crushed. — ikərenʒ tʌq imʌnimi. ivse tʌq imʌnom čʌma . . . (the brooch) broke in pieces of itself. The brooch that was broken in pieces. 164.18. tʌq mʌnumɪšo bi.en, tʌq mʌnumiŋ bitsa, refer to things broken up.

3456

(Cp. Sh. tʌk thoːrki v.t., tʌk boːrki v.i., to break etc.).

2. tʌq, v. 3. ʈʌk, ʈʌk *-ʌtʌs, and thʌk etʌs.

tʌqʌbbʊr, tʌqʌbbʊri y arrogance swagger. — tʌqʌbbʊr(i) etʌsʌn bai.i he is arrogant, he puts on side. Ar. Prs.

tʌqsiːm *-ʌtʌs to divide, apportion. Ar.Prs.

1. ʈər.

a. Bit, fragment, half, small piece, IUB H. ʈukəra, niːm, riːza. — dʌn ʈər mʌnimi the stone was broken to bits. yuːʈis ʈər mʌnimi his leg was broken (in pieces?). Cp. ʈərumʈər.

b. Small field (smaller than mʌl) a piece of a field. — mʌlə tər half a field. EOL.

(Cp. Sh. ʈər, piece, half a chupatty; ʈər thoːrki to cut, cut in two, sever).

2. tər blow with open hand, cuff. — tər eːti give him a cuff.

3. tər quite, completely, very.

Only recorded in:

tər dʌɣʌnʊm(ʌn) bai.i he is a very robust man. hʌɣʊr tər dʌɣʌnʊm(ʌn) bi the horse is sturdy, fullbodied (?).

(Perhaps a variant of 5. dər. Cp. Sh. tər buːro, all light-coloured ?).

1. tərəːzu -mots x scales (for weighing). Unknown till recently, except for weighing gold. Prs.

2. tərəːzu the name of a constellation, Libra (?). Prs.

tərʌḍo, tərʌro lazy, idle, slack, feeble, H. sust. (Cp. Sh. tərʌḍo, slack and incompetent).

tərʌḍe.i y slackness, idleness.

(This would be the normal form in Sh. of the abstract noun corresponding to tərʌḍo).

346 a

000 tərʌm, v. thʌqʌm.
1. tərʌq. 242.15. V. s.v. təḍʌk.
2. tʌrʌq Hz. & N. poor.
tʌrau, v. tʌḍau.
thər'enum, pl. thər'eviko, thər'enumɪšo, N. tʌreyaʌko, narrow. — gʌn tʌr'enum bila the road is narrow.
thər'es, pl. thəresšo, orphan (lacking both parents, or one). — yuʌu (i.e., yuʌy) ʌpʌm thəres fatherless boy. muʌu ʌpʌm thəres dʌsin fatherless girl. iʌmi ʌpom thəres motherless boy. mumi ʌpom thəres dʌsin motherless girl. uʌŋ təres hilesʌ you fatherless boy. 70.22.
(Cp. Sh. thəresʌ, parentless orphan).
ṭhər'iʌ, -muts x polo-ball.
Originally local, made of chenar wood, now of bamboo-root, imported from India.
theriʌtsʌ duʌn catch the polo-ball.
ʌmesulo tər'i yʌmi the polo-ball hit my tooth. 158.11.
(Cp. Sh. ṭər'i, GB ṭhairī).
415 təriŋ -ičiŋ, N. pl. -ičʌŋ y an animal's skin prepared for use as a bag for holding milk, butter etc.; also inflated, for rafts, or as a support for swimming. H. mʌšk. — marče (QUB maročiʌ) təriŋ a chillie, capsicum capsule.
(Cp. Sh. təriʌŋi, skin for holding milk).
000 t'əriš, təreš, pl. t'əri.ʌŋ, y gap, hole (large). — tərišʌn bʌlimi a (big) hole appeared. 54.5. tərk -ičʌŋ. y byre, hut for animals, IUB mʌweši rʌkhne ka mʌkaʌn. — bura tərk cow byre. huy'esə tərk sheep and goat house. 108.23,25, 386.9. tərk'aʌn, tərkaʌʌn, tərk'ʌn, pl. tərk'aiyo h a person who is not liable to have to carry loads. 342.7.

346 b tərkaŋ -ičiŋ y stable, H. iṇṭabai. — itse tərkaŋolo tak ortin tie them (the horses) up in the stable. Aγtore tərkaŋər dumormo she came to the horses' stable. 108.21. Cp. 118.2. tərkaŋ. 386.8. 000 tərkaj quiver, x (wooden), y (of leather). Prs. (tirkaš).

tərkoŋ, thərkoŋ, y sg. and pl.

1. Feathers of an arrow. — humise tərkoŋtse čərkowe dunimi the cliffs closed on (caught) the feathers of the arrow. 156.8.
2. Fin of fish. čhumo tərkoŋ.
3. Blades of mill-wheel. Also recorded for N. with this meaning (tərkuŋ).

(QUB gave t- and th- as alternatives, also thərtoŋ).

ṭhər manum outsider, interloper. A term of abuse used by original holders of land to immigrants. 264.1.

tərmuk -ičiŋ, N. termuk -ičaŋ, y stone-bow, pellet bow, H. gulel.

(QUB t-, IUB ṭ-. Cp. Sh. thərmuk).

tərə -muts x cowdung beetle.

tərumtər in pieces, in bits, H. turkra turkra. — ise ašdər tərumtər stimi he cut the monster in pieces. 282.17. jame . . . t'ərumt'ər manij may the bow break in pieces! 172.5. Cp. 172.8.

(Cp. 1. tər. tərum tər = piece from piece).

thas -miŋ y smoke. — gatuŋ . . . tasaie stimi he held the clothes to the smoke. 14.9. Cp. 16.20. Prov. 29.

tasbihamuts x pl. rosary. QUB gave also tasbih.

(Cp. tašbiramuts). Ar. Prs.

taskas, taskič-, Pret. sg. 1. taskam, Impv. taske, neg. ortaski.
*-taskas, -taskič-, Pret. sg. 1. -taskam.
Pn.pf. i-, mu-.

347a

1. To draw, pull, drag. — itaskas to drag (a man, rope, wood). wutaskas to drag a woman.

   The form without the Pu.pf. seems to be used in:

2. To draw (a bow). — jams (y) taskuv bila the bow is to be drawn. 168.20. ṭams taskumas ... wuf'askin (ppe). 170.5. (ṭams) taskimi. 170.16, 172.5. jams ja taskumar when I draw the bow. 172.5.

3. To smoke (tobacco, opium). — afyun (y) taskuv to smoke opium. čilam (x) taskuv to smoke a (tobacco-) pipe. EOL recorded N. sigarit (x) taskuv to smoke a cigarette. tamoku (y) taskuv to smoke tobacco.

tasma -miq, N. pl. -q, y strap. Pra.

tasuwir, tasbir, -iq, y picture, photograph. — tasuwir dimas to take a photograph. Ar. Pra.

taṭ *-manas to slip. — taṭ okuman(ṭ) don't slip. gots dzi taṭ minanas bila this is a place where we slip, i.e. this is a slippery place. (Cp. Sh. taṭ berdi).

1. taṭ -miq y slippery perpendicular cliff, smooth cliff.

   Also as an adj. smooth, slippery. — taṭ čhor, tam taṭ čhor a smooth perpendicular cliff (which is impassable).

2. tḥaṭ the ṭ- form of tḥaiganas, to go out (of doors). 91.6.

taṭ taṭ noise of rubbing. Given as the equivalent of ṭarq ṭarq.

taṭb'ismots, taṭr'ismots, x pl. prayer-beads, rosary.

(Cp. tasbihamots. From Ar. tasbīḥ).

'aṭpi -mots x a wooden vessel (large and shallow).

402 ɦaṭakas, pl. -ḫuṡo x a piece of wood suspended so that with one end resting on the revolving upper millstone it leans against the tray into which the grain falls from the hopper. The vibration produced by the millstone is communicated by it to the tray and causes the grain to flow slowly through into the hole in the revolving millstone.

000 taf'ayer v. daf'ayer.

taf'apal, taf'aper Ha. & N., -rṡo x bat (animal). — taf'apal ju.'an hil'eas ḫoli he is a thin, weak (lit. bat-like) youth. QUB. (Cp. Sh. talhrpan, bat).

ɦaṭaqas, pl. ɦaṭaqado, x a kind of bird, redstart(?).

524 f'aṭaq manare to play a game resembling draughts with small stones on a diagram scratched on the ground. It is much played by children, but, though gambling is not much practised in Hunza, it can no doubt be played for money and the meaning I was originally given was "to gamble". — f'aṭaq maiilaw they are gambling. f'aṭaq manare sis a gambler.

000 taf'ar, N. ṭaf'ar -rṡo, x tailless rat, which is found up in the summer grazing-grounds.

f'aṭas, pl. f'aṭado, x an article in an unfinished state, e.g. a roughly forged metal article, a garment cut out and basted, a roughly fashioned wooden article, e.g. a block of wood roughly shaped with an adze to be made into a bowl on the lathe. — ḫawrṡ ṡe ṡama taṭas dimawimi the rough form of the brooch came into existence of itself. 166.2,8. Cp. 166.9,19,22.

One can also say: — male f'aṭas, 000 ha·ʃafas, a field, a house unfinished, in the course of construction.

And of a small child beginning to talk: — hoviŋ ʃafaſo otsiá he is making attempts at words.

(Cp. Khо. ʃkafas, piece of wood for making a vessel, which has not yet been put on the lathe).

*-f'atas -iŋ y palm of the hand, H. hatherli. — gof'atanig the palms of thy hands.

1. faw'a· hard, severely. Bu. ʃag, H. sazt, — ta ochiqtu faw·a· yawu mukan hard frost having laid hold on the foot-wrappers, i.e. they having been frozen hard. 132.3. ʃiʃ·ʃi faw'a· hurayi manai hi the bread has become very hard.

The word is said by some to be also used of a person severely ill, but this was denied by QUB. (Cp. ʃaw).

2. faw'a· y a loud sharp noise, a crack, bang. — pinf ke ʃiari hakanto yami ke faw'a· mai.ihila when the polo-stick and the ball strike each other there is a crack. ʃumaq nupali faw'a· manimi the gun exploding there was a bang.

faw'a/awa (atas).

1. The report of a gun.
2. To answer back violently.

fawakal y faith, trust in God. — fawakal ne hilami putting his faith in God he fled. 102.22. Ar. Pwa. (tawakkul).

fawan, pl. fawaniŋ, y fine; fined. — fawan atas (°-atas) to fine s.o.

huy fawan imanai he has been heavily fined. Pwa. (ḥawwa).

fawid entrusting, committing, charging with. — wazivi ilai fawid chimi he committed the wazir-ship to him. 98.8. Ar. Pwa. (tafwid).

348b

tai, tei, te.i, te, Adv. and Adj.: thus, so, in such manner, as it is, like this; such, H. waisa. — te aiyetin don't do thus (to him). 158.19. tei ḃwt ʂapa ke ami'wmaʂawo so she was not unduly depressed. 58.15. te.i ɣanikzi ḃam so revolting (evil) was he. 116.9. ḃesa te (or, tei) me.iba? why are you like this? 144.23. Cp. 218.2. wperqhe.e tai.i darow.an 'etera the great do such things (lit. such a thing). 74.12. Cp. 80.3, 120.14.

thai.zko pl. of tharuam.

tail, teil, te.il, tel, pl. -jeko.

1. As it is, so, such, like this, H. waisa, aisa. — tel bila N. (dila) it is so. tel fat e leave it as it is. fat etimi te.ale he left it as it was. 166.9. tel ṡeilaṭe in this manner, thus. 142.9. tel'jeko such persons (as this). 170.19. te.iljeko ike je ṡ'eteko such (dreams) as those I (can) interpret. 74.14. Cp. 64.28, 66.19.
2. Most frequently the word occurs with the suffix -aṭe. — tailaṭe, teilaṭe etc. in this wise, in such wise in this manner, thus, etc. tel'aṭe je juṡam in this manner I shall come back. 106.21. Cp. 78.11, 94.2, 158.11,15, 262.4.

(tai + l. Cp. the -l in akhel and bel-).

tailaṡwa v. trela.

tainyw, tai.aw ready, near to, on the point of. — tainyw ṡtas to make ready. badsa wor han hara tai.aw ṡ'tam the King had made (people) prepare a house for them (or the ṡ- may re-enforce the wor). 36.12. bardyw tai.aw im'ṡaimi he approached near to puberty. 244.5. taiʌv mʌnʌv takes the following verb in the simple Infinitive, the Infin. + ər, or the Present Base + ər. ʌźdər durʌs taiʌv mʌnimi the monster was on the point of coming forth. 282.11. Cp. 242.9, 328.31. dʌγoucʌg oyon fʌš mʌnʌvər taiyʌv mʌnimi the flour is all on the point of coming to an end i.e. is almost all used up. dorqalčər taiʌv mʌnimi he came near to reaching them, i.e. he nearly overtook them. 144.8. Cp. 388.5. ma ke taiʌv mʌnin do you also be ready. 4.14. Prs.

1. thaiyʌs, thʌyʌs, thʌč-, to go out (of fire, lamp). — pfu thʌčila, thʌči the fire is going out, will go out. pfu čhʌγorum nunʌn thʌmi the fire becoming cold went out. phu tha bila the fire has gone out. phu thʌyʌs bila the fire is about to go out. EOL. filta taj ra until the wick (i.e. lamp) goes out. 314.3.

(Cs. estayʌs).

2. taiyʌs, thʌč-,[1] Impv. ta.

a. To follow, pursue. The person pursued is expressed by °-tsi, or takes the suffix -tsi.

iri Šahri Bʌnomʌtsi taiyʌsər rai stimi he himself decided to follow up Sh. B. 26.26. u itsi thʌmʌn (or, thʌ bʌn) they followed him. 162.19. Cp. 164.1. utsi tʌmi he followed after them. 120.25, 144.8. Cp. 38.8. itsi thʌčoms pursuing him. 212.15, 262.18.

b. To take effect, be effective. kintsu bʌsʌn ke thaiyʌs api nothing has any effect on him, i.e. nothing can injure him. 110,10, 144.19. (Cp. 1. °-ltaiyʌs).

349b

1 [see corrigenda & addenda category 116, p. 544 - Analyst]

000

3. ŝaiyan, fut., Impv. ŝa.

To put on, pull on (something on to one's feet or legs, e.g. socks, trousers). jorob ŝaiyan, payalig ŝaiyan to put on socks, trousers. ŝaiyaer ov mulkri ŝutile it comes difficult to them, i.e. they have difficulty in putting on (the leg bandages). 152.4.

Pat. sg. 1. ŝatam. Pret. sg. 1. ŝaiyam, 3. ŝami. (Cp. 2. -ŝiŝiyat*). pow in jon ŝiŝ very hard. (Cp. jowar?). ŝiyaw a rare kind of yellow-eyed hawk.

(Pro. ŝiyaw, ŝaiyaw the white goshawk (Elliott Eng. Pers. Dict.).

ŝa i v. ŝai.

ŝel v. ŝail.

ŝele, ŝeli, ŝel there. — ŝel ŝkeli there and here, i.e. here and there. ŝeli fal ŝli leave it there. 48.9. Cp. 34.5, 42.12, 210.16, 222.3, 224.2, 262.3, 298.3.

Det. ŝeler, ŝelaer thither, there (with verbs of motion). — ŝeler ŝiw, ŝelaer ŝiw going thither. 4.16, 6.8, 108.23,24.

Abl. ŝelaew, ŝelow thence. 224,4. ŝelaew ŝiwal he went off from there. 6.7, 108.30. Cp. ŝelaewu 224.11. ŝuz hir ŝelow ŝuw hirlir ŝuli ke the man going out from there, when he comes to his home. 224.12. (Cp. ŝeli).

ŝew, ŝer -ŝeig f.

a. Summer grazing-ground up in the mountains, mountain pasture, H. ŝerogerd, ŝerogow. — hoy'ew ŝerwiger ŝeul'ew they take away the flocks to the (summer) grazing grounds. 222.1, 224.2,5.

b. Wild (of plants that grow uncultivated in pasture land). —

350a

[see corrigenda et addenda, colophon, 116, p. 544 — Analyst]

000 hrr ȳafu wild onion. Cp. 180.3, 218.8, 226.12.

hrmalk -ólg y a labiate plant, that grows chiefly in the reeving walls of fields. — (hrr + malk)[1].

hrum a certain number, acc. ∴ — hrum gaalnigr Kinar drýjaldinni in the course of some days Kinar arrived. 151.8. (Cp. hrum and hrum).

hrumar.

1. A certain quantity, so much. — ekki hrumar mæti ðeg one 'objection but nowadays people do not pay so much head to it. 220.8.

2. It occurs frequently in the form: — hrumar at this point (of time), upon this, thereupon. einhrumar. Hrumar hirti Hyrna . . . galeg ljótaðr yfal einhrumar they saw (no one). Thereupon S. S. left her clothes on the little. 14.8. Cp.14.3, 16.3,15, 30.17, 35.14, 42.18, 118.1, 130.8, 138.12, 190.8, 204.6, 212.10, 266.5, 338.4 etc.

(hrum + mar).

hr v. hri.

hræn, Abl. and Adj. form of hrir q.v., from there, belonging to there, of that place. — hræn eru eiar the people of the place. 143.5, 260.8.

hrœti y two weeks, fortnight. — hrœtinn hálf it is a fortnight. eitt hrœti a month.

hrœgl*, -ólg y bride's plenishing, trousseau, jewelry (provided by her parents) — hrœgum hálsi, einum mörkum mortmal there was a book, he gave it to his daughter in her dowry. 48.8. Cp. 70.3, 248.22, 338.8.

hrœgl, pl. hrœgvar, (and hrœgtig?), y royal residence, palace. Cp. Ru.

ikerg. — (hakki) ewe ingulinow hirb ɔ'ɔrdiam (the king) used not to come out of his palace. 2.3. Cp. 30.11,13, 42.23, 173.21 ff., 178.2, 222.4. (Cp. Sh. ikergi).

ther dirty, soiled. — tirkaje ter manile it has become dirty with earth(?). gele dil ther bile this place is dirty. wuje galeg ther manikan y-ur clothes have got dirty.

ferl v. ther'i.

'ork N. -ɔnda, -ig dirty.

(Leitner gives this form, so did Na. who, however, stigmatised it as Sh. Cp. Sh. ferli, GB ferzli).

ferj -mig y oath. — ferj ɔlar to take oath. ferj 'ɔrlar to make a person take oath. ewe ferj 'ɔrli make him take oath. Khimuje ferl ɔlar di bile it has fallen on this man to take oath. Lart Mawrimow ferl manij let there be oath by L. and M., i.e. I swear by L. and M. 96.18. Xewa tɔlɔr ranai imanimi Kh. agreed to (taking) oath. 250.8. Ikerl ferl kerl ɔrlu nɔlar making many oaths and undertakings with them. 242.17. (Pre. 'akhl o pɔrwarw). Cp. 250.8 ff.

ferli -mig y roof (external aspect). — tirkajer ikerwow she went up on to the roof 184.14. ferlajow zu malimi he fell down from the roof. Cp. 102.17, 174.10, 184.6, 228.6, 298.5. (Cp. Sh. ferli).

1. ihi simple, plain; empty, unoccupied; for no special reason, merely, gratis, for nothing. — ihi tihag a plain, i.e. smooth bore, gun ("ɔ'ɔk kɔmɔrw") zwel nɔlar H ilywanam expending (all he possessed) he had remained empty, i.e. he had nothing left. 272.11. hanam ɔlu? ihi ha what are you doing?

351a

I am free, I am just doing nothing. EOL. thi hurwtu ha I have been sitting idle. EOL. ha dakowu? thi daipu ha why have you come? I have come for no special reason, I have merely come. thi jowi he gave it to me gratis. ti ahwčit.ow I won't give it to you unconditionally. 104.9.

2. thi

a. Other, -else. — da ti (pie) ha hawu and there are also others (other people). 158.25.

It appears to be principally used in combination with Indef. Pron.s. gofi ŋ̌ŋa ti monale ayoti don't tell about this to anyone else. 118.18. ti mowu dali hei i someone else has killed it. 156.7. ti hanan ayow, wŋ je ofu don't give me anything else (but) marry me. 118.24.

b. Postposition: other than, apart from, besides, and so: except, but, without. — khinofuw thi mon hawu? are there others besides this man? gwofuw thi hanan hi.o? is there anything besides this? Ano . . . haiaanfuw thi hanan opim there was nothing but one sheep. 298.2. halwofuw thi without orders. jofuw thi wŋ hinum.an ni you go on alone without me. Cp. 2.9, 104.9, 272.2.

tiŋ̌ tik y pl. (also ag.) earth, ground; rust. — tiŋ̌fu dalimi he flung him on the ground. 174.17. tiŋ̌fuw zawuŋ dubila mist is rising from the ground. tik gowow ..nimi from beneath the ground he said . . . 252.5. gofi tiŋ̌ gowi, tik ofimi he threw in earth on the top and filled up (the pit). 56.21. yahuŋ tiŋ̌u je hilu earth has eaten the sword, i.e. the sword has 000 become rusted. hare tik burj ther bitan the (earth) floor of the house is very dirty. EOL. tik biranj "ground-mulberry", i.e. strawberry. tike barpo (nanaw) to become the share of the earth, i.e. to be wasted, thrown away, IUB nark ki hrpo, ya'ne berbard hewa. Cp. 26.2, 82.25, 84.5, 198.11, 220.2, 250.16 ff., 312.5.

tiko, tiku, -mate x.

1. Spot, mark. — ilimate itagar tali berum tikumate . . . eare they make white spots round hi eyes. 300.10. ifatilo berum tiku l there is a white mark (star o blaze) on its forehead. 186.7.
2. Piece, scrap, patch (of hide, leathe cloth). — gape tiko a piece of hid (ox-, camel- etc.). gaf'ute tiko wadi.ar li a patch is to be put on the cloth, the cloth is to be patched.

(Cp. Sh. tiko, spot, mark; H. tikar mark made on forehead).

thirl -mig y. — termake thirl piece of leather attached to strings of stone-bow in which stone is placed.

*tirl *-alas, tirle -alas to forget. V. s.v. -alas*.

1. tirli N. -mig y "leather of pellet-bow". (Cp. Hz. Bu. thirl).
2. tirli, pl. tilag, N. tirlimig, y walnut tree. Cp. 200.1—6.
3. tirli x sg. and pl. walnut. — tirli.e hare, tirli.e hal(ig) walnut kernel. tirli.e fatori half of walnut shell. 136.16.

tili.eg, tili.ag, y pl., d. pl. -tig saddle. — tili.eg ef pommel of saddle. Cp. 78.15. tili.eg ewli, or ewpi put on the saddle. tili.ag dirl ali take off the saddle. Cp. 4.17, 6.11, 78.10,

000

78.19 ff., 188.2. (Several times recorded as filiʌn. Cp. Sh. filʌn).

fim tam noise of banging, beating. — ɑtsi dʌm fim tam ɑdemʌn laying hold of them they gave them a drubbing.

(Cp. Sh. fhim fhurki, to beat the breast with closed fist).

fin, fiw, -jo x bone. — pimiʌ fin the shin bone, finjo nuqur (°-nurʌ) smashing the bones (to extract the marrow). ɑmiʌnin ɑte finjʌ'ɑulo berɑndɑmɑte mɑi'ɑmiʌ there will be the rings on the bones of his fingers. 80.33. Cp. 70.21, 82.8 ff., 202.1, 234.9, 283.34.

(Occasionally recorded as fiq and the plural as fiffjo. Cp. °-ffin).

1. fiq, fiq, -ɑnfr x. –

a. Peak (of mountain), top (of hill); IUB summit, pointed thing, H. foqi, nɑkdɑr fiq. — Bubolimɑtiqqir (Bubolimo fiq) fiq nɑmo . . . shoving her up on to Bubuli's Peak (the name of a mountain peak). 144.1.

b. Stretched up, erected. — ɑmmʌl ɑlji nɑ fiq ɑtimi (the horse) erected, or stretched out, its tail behind. 156.10. ferq gɑrɑ fiq ɑiqe don't stretch up your neck too high (said to a proud or insolent person).

(Cp. perhaps Kho. fhiq, high place, steep slope).

2. fiq v. figʌn.

figʌn, pl. fiqʌ'ɑiqi, x.

1. Egg. — figʌnʌn ɑtsiri cook an egg. ɑrilɑ figʌnʌ two eggs. figʌnʌlʌm burum ɑl white of egg. figʌnʌlʌm fiskwk ɑl yolk of egg. gɑrgɑrɑmʌ'ɑ figʌn ɑmdimi the hen laid an egg.

352b

2. A lump of butter. — maltaṣ tiqan a lump of butter, being the quantity obtained from one skinful (ferig) of milk. 3 or 4 tiqaiyo make 1 maltaṣ. 000

(f IUB, Morg., Zar.; f QUR. The sg. form tiqan is certain, and it is further attested by the form of the plural, but it is not certain whether there is not also a subsidiary form tiq. Owing to the fact that the sg. is usually used for "an egg", "one egg", one assumes at first that the -an is the suffix of "oneness". It is possible that the native mind has been affected in the same way, cp. γα ‖ γαν. I originally recorded sg. tiq, and EOL has tiqe wat and tiqe pulugur egg-shell, and also tiq by itself. Biddulph has only tiug and Leitner gives tiug and tipin. The last is the ordinary Ng. form).

tighat IYB x a kind of medicine, tonic. — tighat ci bai.i he has taken "tighat". (Unknown to QUR).

thiq thaq *-atas to push, shove (a.o.), H. dhakka. — tiq taq no bai no gawai shoving them he threw them out (from under the boulder). 160.2. (Cp. thaq *-atas).

tiphik IYB 1. Quite full, brim full.

2. Well filled-out (of horse).

(Cp. Khe. tip full, and Ba. hik full).

thir round stone, pebble. — thir ara mathiv ditaas hesan? the stone going brings down a walnut, doesn't it?

This is a kind of proverb expressing perhaps the idea that starting with something worthless one acquires something of value.

thirtum -ziq x full bobbin, yarn wound on small hollow stick 5 or 6 inches long. — gaso thirtum bobbin of thick thread, i.e. wool yarn. juro thirtum bobbin of thin thread, i.e. warp yarn. dozuqem thirtum ju.an manuma "you have become like a tangled bobbin". 283

1. fis, fiv, pl. titanta, titiryo x excavated hole in ground, pit, grain-pit. — ğfalow fis grain-pit. fis etimi he made a pit, hole in the ground, 56.20. titi.wlow (or, titanterlow) from in the pits. 140.9. Cp. 12.16, 54.2—5, 140.2. (Cp. Sh. fiv). 000

2. fiis -miq y error, mistake, misdeed, fault; mistaken, wrong. — girmimum fiis bile what is written is wrong. gute fiis ne girmimeri.i he has written this wrongly. fiis etas to make a mistake, commit a fault, miss (a mark). kin kuyeltertanu ka tis etuno she misconducted herself with a shepherd. 262.4. Cp. 222.7. kai.anor, .ennor, tis etimi he missed the mark, the marbker. fiis manu, fiis °-manas to be in error, go wrong, go astray, go missing, be confused, or interchanged (of things). eltalik kerengelo kan gute ti. animi (or umanumin) between the two of them there was a mistake of one day (or, they went wrong in regard to one day). 52.13. eltalike fiis manimi the two of them missed (the mark). 282.1. kuyes fiis mani li the goat has gone missing. Cp. 234.1, kuyes fiis manien the goats went missing.

(Cp. Sh. fiv, GB fiis, error, misdeed).

tiqi'an -iq y earthquake. — tiko tiqan 1. Earthquake. 2. IUB a strenuous, valiant man, H. mahnati bahadur 000 ə-dmi. QUB originally of a strenuous cultivator or field-maker, also used of a person who frightens others.

(I also recorded the word as tiłqan, which seems to have had IUB's authority, but was emphatically denied by QUB).

1. tiṣ, pl. -miq & tiyaq, y wind, wind-storm, H. hawa, Prs. bād. — tiṣ maiś bila there is wind (storm). tiṣ di bila a wind (storm) has come up. tiṣ dusila a wind (storm) has sprung up. Cp. 122.12. ṣayu tiṣolu du.alimi the chikor flew down the wind. tiṣte dreṣapalimi the wind bore it away. jatse tiṣan yawi a wind struck me. 358.12.
2. tiṣ -iq y plough-share (Turki, of cast-iron, brought from Kashgar).

(Cp. Wkh. tiṣ, plough-share).

3. thiṣ drop, small quantity of liquid. — tiṣen bul bilum there was just a trace of a spring. 276.14. (yutorpo-solo) čutan del til sčan they pour a few drops of oil into the depression. 320.8.

tiṣṣi -miq y, (also -mute if object is x), span (tip of thumb to tip of little finger, both extended). — kik tiṣṣi, ə-lto tiṣṣi one span, two spans. (Cp. p. XXIII).

tiṣk -aq, N. pl. -iłan, y dagger. — tiṣk bilum mundiłate ta'wkimi the dagger there was he brought down on her breast, i.e. he had a dagger and plunged it in her breast. 198.6. tiṣkak (or, tiṣkate) mudałam I stabbed her with a dagger. 198.10. Cp. 198.10 ff., 218.4 ff.

tiṣti N. y plague.

fiṣte *-ałan to pursue after, chase. — da wmi fiṣte m'čowan then they pursued after their mother. 194.6.

354 a

000 thiyas, thi·ć-, Impv. thi, Ppa. nuth'in, v.t. to pour, pour out (water, wine, tea etc.).

Fut. sg. 1. thi·ćam I shall pour.

ćai.i thi pour out the tea. (arAq) ev ti bam they had poured out (liquor) for him. 86.20. awatAts tsil thiyam I poured water on my body, i.e. I washed myself. Cp. 306.18. tsil nuti·n Asku·rig gose.olo ors pouring water into (the vessel) put the flowers in it. EOL. Cp. 220.2.

thiyon stas, N. thi·yaû stas to sneeze.

toba an expression of repentance. — toba taksiv stam I expressed repentance (for what I had done). Ar. Prs.

tob'Aq -ots x gun. — tobAq bišaiyAs to fire a gun. (V. note at end of bišaiyAs 2.). čora tob'Aq, muk'a (or mukai.i) tob'Aq a shot-gun. kan šu·li.s ka tobAq a single-barrelled gun. a·lto jAqor tobAq a double-barrelled gun. tobAq šu·li gun-barrel. thi tobAq smooth-bore, large-bore matchlock gun. uruvi tobAq rifled small bore matchlock. tobAqzaki (or, tobAqAts) do·li bam they had shot them (killed them) with guns. 344.5. tobAqots i·se yakalAtor bilAman they fired their guns at it. 134.12. Cp. 38.6, 42.15.

(Cp. Bu. tomAq, Sh. tomak, tormak, Kho. tho·rk, Psb. topak). Prs.?

torali v. turuli.

-thoγ'oyAq y pl.

1. Child's first hair up to 6 months of age. — ithoγoyAq (baby boy's), muthoγoyAq (baby girl's).
2. Hair very fine in texture. QUB.
3. The hair growing on the top of the head. QUB.

ithoγuyAq ne ićhoγorAq fat a shaving

354 b

the hair on the top of his (the child's) head leave his fringe. QUB. 000 (From thoʔ new + γoyʌŋ hair?).

tohmʌt y accusation, blame. Ar. Prs.

ṭo·k complete, whole, entire, H. pura, sa·lim. — ṭo·k api it (bread, wood, field etc.) is not complete. ṭo·kʌn a whole (thing). IYB. tok undivided land. EOL.

1. tōl -jo x snake. — mʌtsi gʌta·s tol a snake that bites us, i.e. a biting snake.

2. tōl -jo x awl (cobbler's). — čhumʌri tol an iron awl. čuk ʌtʌs tol a sewing awl.

to·l ʌtʌs v.t. to weigh.

(Cp. Sh. tolo·rki, to weigh, measure, H. tolna to weigh).

to·le Nz. there. — to·lev, to·lsr thither. to·lum thence. to·lum ins dʌ·l numa i·mo ynysle ui·mi thence be arising went to his father. 368.7. (Cp. tevle).

to·li measure. — gusu berumʌn to·li me.imi what may be the measure of this? to·li ʌtʌs to measure. to·li uyʌs to issue to persons according to measure, or weight.

In time of scarcity the Mir may thus issue grain, on loan. (Cp. to·l).

1. to·m (sg. and pl.?), pl. -iŋ, -eŋ, Nz. -i, y tree. — badʌmu to·mʌn bila, to·meŋ bitsa it is an almond tree, they are almond trees. to·mu ṭiṭim the trunk of the tree EOL. to·mulum tsil sap of a tree.

(Cp. Sh. tum, tom, tree, which also may be used as a plural).

2. to·m y perspiration, sweat, (from illness or weakness), H. pasina, 'araq.

th'omʌl the smoke of burning roe (supandur), or of gulgul. — tomʌl mʌm'ʌle smoking rue and thin bread. 304.16. Cp. 338.19. 000 thom coriander (grown in vegetable plots for its seeds). P]. dhaniya, Sh. naski, tomts night till dawn(?) (in connection with the Thumushèling fire).

tomtsatse giratas to dance at the Thumusheling fire. 306.18.

(Metaphor) ure hihin nidzli tomtsatse dusoman appears to mean: "they have come out for a fight openly with everyone's knowledge, as if they were turning out for the tomts". QUB.

1. tomŋ pfeṭo a kind of pear.

(Cp. Kho. tomŋ pear, Sh. tomŋ a kind of pear).

2. tomŋ convex. — tomŋ čana a convex brooch, big, heavy and very strong. 164.15. So QUB, and the translation of the text appears to be wrong. tomŋ dau a convex griddle. QUB.

(There is a Sh. word tomŋ, tomŋi, probably with ṭ-, which appears to have somewhat the same meaning).

tomp, -uts, -iło, x cannon, Prs. H.

tomp manare dripping (of water). — (Metaphor). tomp maime γoriči he bucks, chatters continuously. Also tompo tomp.

tompi N. -muts x woman's cap.

(Probably not H. tompi cap, hat. Cp. Bu. tompo, also top etas, to put on a cap).

topidaw (tobaq) -iło x percussion-cap (gun), nipple (gun).

(Pseudo-Prs., H. tompi cap + daw?).

tompo pfartsin Hunza woman's cap, old-man's skullcap. (Cp. tompi).

1. tóq, -uts, -ants, -ai.rnts(?) x land near cultivated areas maintained as pasturage by irrigation and divided into sections, (as opposed to natural 000 mountain grazing-grounds, tevr). — toqər ts.huvin take (the animals to graze) to the grazing-ground.

2. tŏq y mud where water has collected, H. kivčʌr.

(Cp. Sh. tŏk; Kho. toq, tuq, mud on road etc.).

3. ṭoq -uts x log. — gʌlɛ ṭoq a juniper log. γʌšivlɛ ṭoq a log of firewood.

toq'um, -uts, -išo, N. tuqoum x, "numda", felt put under horse's saddle, H. nʌmda, Prs. 'ʌrʌqgivr.

(Cp. Sh. and Kho. tuqum, Wkh. tuqoum same meaning). Turki?

thor ɛtʌs to snort (of a horse).

tovɛmo tovɛma-, v. tovumo and turma-.

ṭovi, -muts, -miŋ, x and y.

1. Bit, piece, portion, small part, quarter (of flap of bread, field etc.). — isken ɛčukoun baun, usko ṭovimuts otin there are 3 brothers, make 3 portions for them. ʌšdəri tovumuts the fragments of the dragon. 284.1. ṭovi -miŋ quarter of a flap of bread. wavlto ṭovimiŋ four quarters.

2. ṭovi -muts x plug, cork, bung; stone with a hole in it used to regulate flow of irrigation water. — tovi.ɛ tɛil Kərimabadər oɛʌs miraɛ bila it is the custom to lay on to Karimabad the water of the ṭovi (a stone with a hole in it which allows a certain amount of water to pass through). 350.4. hinɛ tovi door-handle. EOL.

(Cp. Sh. GB ṭovi, cork, handle of door or drawer).

torima altovlum Nz. twelfth. (Cp. turma-).

t'orima h'ikulum Nz. eleventh.

t'orimivlum Nz. tenth.

1. ṭovo, pl. ṭovumuts, x log (used in 000 building etc., as distinguished from 3. ṭoq).

(Cp. Sh. ṭoro, big log, stump of tree).

2. ṭoro crooked, contracted and bent (as of fingers with cold).

(Cp. Sh. toro, crooked, bent).

toruum so much (as that). — iuə pfuʼl tʼorum maʼl nʼiʼen humaʼr giʼmi the div carrying so much (i.e. all that?) property entered the ford. 176.1. (Cp. teruum).

1. toruman Nz. as much as that, so much, that much H. utna. — toruman ächi give me that much. berumaʌ dʌγoʼʌn unʌlɛ bitsa kɛ tʼorumʌn uyom jaʼr ʌγun as much flour as you have give me so much, i.e. give me all you have.

(toruum + ʌn. Cp. teruman).

2. toruman, toruumuʌn a set of ten, a decade. (toruumo + ʌn).

toruumo h x y, toʼrimi, toʼrim z ten.

h. toruumo hiri ten men.

x. toruumo ʼmiʌnts his 10 fingers. 80.18.

y. toruumo haʼkiĉʌŋ 10 houses. 272.11.

z. toʼrimi dɛn, heʼši 10 years, ten times. Cp. 38.1, 226.10.

toʼrim sɑ 10 months.

toʼrim kuts 10 days.

toʼrim kutsʌnmo ju come after 10 days.

toʼrimi is also used in counting.

toʼruman, toʼruumuʼʌn a set of ten.

toʼruman mʌlʌʌʌŋ 10 pieces of butter. 314.13.

ṭoǰ, thōǰ, x pl. thowants, y pl. thowaŋ, thuaŋ.

1. Adj. new, fresh. — thoǰ xʌbɛr bila? is there fresh news? toǰ gɔr nɛ making a new marriage. 248.21. thowants hʌγoriǰo biʌn

356 b

they are new horses. duʷtsʌk thowaʷŋ bitsa the things are new. gatoŋ tu.aʷŋ ne.ibil making him put on new clothes. 32.8. Tu.aʷnts the "New Settlements". 322.9.

2. Adv. newly, recently; anew, afresh. thoḭ dimʌnum hilɛs a newly-born boy. bušai.i toš trʌŋ ečʌn let us divide the land anew. 250.15.

tošʌk, tošʌk, -uts x mattress (small), cushion on saddle. Prs.

*-to·to, pl. *-to·t-omiŋ, -imiŋ, -ʌmiŋ y paw; small hand (of child or woman). — mʌtum hukʌns itoʷto its ta.aʷmər dɛsku bimo? had a black dog put down its paw in the food. 84.13. wʌziʷr . . . itoʷtʌm'iŋʌṭs gutsorimi the wazir proceeded on his paws, i.e. on all fours. 80.1. mutoʷtulo dum hoʷle wʌšimi seizing her by the hand he threw her out. 114.7.

t'otu blood-stained, covered with blood.

tra in: traʷ ḍʌŋ, very hard.

trʌn ɛtʌs to fire (a gun), shoot.

(Cp. 8h. trʌn thoʷzki, to fire (a gun)).

1. trʌŋ half, mid-; division, share; party. — hik trʌŋ a half. 114.17 ff. trʌŋɛn a half. iski trʌŋ three and a half. trʌŋɛ trʌŋ, trʌŋtsum trʌŋ, a quarter. EOL. trʌŋ thʌp, thʌpɛ trʌŋ midnight. trʌŋ gʌn, gʌnɛ trʌŋ halfway. trʌŋ makuči the dead centre, right in the middle. hik, aʷlto, iski, tsindi trʌŋ 1, 2, 3, 5 equal parts, or shares.

(x or y according to the nature of the object).

aʷlto trʌŋ double (share). waʷlti trʌŋ four pieces, four portions. trʌŋulo, trʌŋulum as one's share. uyuʷtum jaʷ šu.n trʌŋulo ačiʷma you have given me as my share (what is) better than (what you have given to) all the others. 112.8,14. jaʷr traŋolum ʌči bei.i he has given me (this place) as my share. 112.18. besan jaʷr traŋolo aʷr juʷči bi ki whatever comes (i.e. falls) to me as my share. 372.3. *traŋ ʌtʌs, traŋ -ʌtʌs to divide, divide up among, apportion. je ma bušaiʌ traŋ maʷčam I shall apportion your land among you. 110.24. ʌmo daulat uʷr traŋ ne dividing up his property among them. 366.4. Cp. 54.19, 110.25, 114.11 ff., 148.14, 372.5. traŋum traŋ mʌnumʌn they were divided into parties. Gilti sis aʷlto traŋ mʌnumʌn the people of Gilgit divided into two parties. 386.1. (Cp. Sh. traŋ, half, etc.).

2. traŋ, -ičʌŋ, y girth (horse's) H. tʌŋ. — šorma traŋ girth made of goat's hair webbing. barla traŋ circingle of leather. (Cp. Kho. traŋ, girth).

traŋfʌ, -tiŋ, N. pl. -mata, hm. headman, of village. In most villages there are 2 or 3 trangfas. — B'altite traŋfʌ the Trangfa of Baltit. 318.2. [622] (Cp. Sh. traŋfʌ, Balti traŋpa).

trap'ʌtʌs to slap, smack. — guʌ' trap ʌiʌ dont smack your son. QUB. kʌyur trap ʌti smack, touch up, the horse. QUB. uw uriŋčiŋ trap ʌtumʌn they clasped hands. (From the sound). QUB. !

trap ʌen stone-blind.

thraq -iŋ y open crack (in wood, wall etc.), cleft; Adj. split, etc. — thraq nimi it became cracked, it cracked. thraq ʌtʌs to split, cleave (lengthwise). 86.14. ite bat aʷlto traq ʌtimi he cleft the stone in two. 204.12. Cp. 206.1. ʌtʌn traq na splitting the top of my head (for me). 230.6.

357b

! [see corrigenda et addenda category 116. p. 544 - Analyst]

000 frag °-m.mere v.i. to split in two. 150.12,16. Cp. frag °-atas v.i. 148.23, 150.4,9, 226.9, 230.2.

(Cp. Sh. frak fkwrki, to split, tear in two. Kho. frag, crack, cleft, fissure).

frago -mele x grasshopper, locust.

frip kik quite full.

fkur atas to spit. 204.6.

(Cp. Sh. fku fkwrki, Kho. fkwrik, to spit).

fku.ery y pl. of fkwj.

fnhag v. fnh.ag.

554 fkag'w -ilo x.

837 1. He-goat (used for breeding from).

2. (Metaphor.) a man granted right to exercise his sexual powers without restriction throughout the State. It is said that this right used formerly to be accorded to notable warriors in Hausa and Nager. Cp. entry hwi.

(Cp. Sh. fkeyer, fkeyer uncastrated he-goat).

000 fiyoli, fiyoli, -mele x male lamb, male young sheep (castrated), — kik, iski, denkee fiyoli a T., 3- year-old male sheep. Aalkwa.ee ga fiyoli.ee bi? is it a female or male young sheep?, mahem ree fiyoli.ee bi the black ewe is a male lamb. 64.18,26. Cp. 66.16 ff.

fuk a division of the night; a dose, short sleep. — kik fuk(ee) bilo one fuk remains before dawn (about half an hour before first daylight). fuk ariko, fuk iski, fuk wurili 2, 3, 4 fuk before dawn. gerse fuk the fuk before dawn. kik fuk ewaree hoigee I had dozed for a little. QUB.

fkwk atas to peck (at). — geyewaire hoy fkwk ari bi the hen is pecking at the millet-grain. (Cp. Khn. fwi dik; Sh. fok fok fkwrki; to peck).

fkwki shame, disgrace, H. farm. — ja ko wuje fwki ja.ss dowwan.ije akel mai bi.m they are behaving thus because of a thing which entails shame on you and me. 96.16.

(Cp. perhaps Sh. fkwki, spittle).

fokwro, pl. fokwromete, fokwrzio, section of dry pumpkin, section of poppy capsule; slice of gourd. — mordakoje fokwro (section of?) dry poppy-capsule.

fukir *-m.nnow to keep dozing and waking. — fukir amai ime gow m.nimi while I was going on dozing and waking dawn came.

fukwri v. fpukwri.

1. fkwm, pl. hz -rio, y -iq other, another. — fkwm nian ko diwi, da kin ko diwi another man came and then one more. fkwmilo nia dwawn other people have come. fkwmilo podiqnib other women. fkwmilki dwm.an others have come. fkwmiq malog other fields. fkwm gruib jaria ja come to me another day. fwm g.nn.ane nawain they going by another road. 122.2. fum kwk bolajo swm.an? otherwise, how else, did you bring this (grain)? 60.13. fkwm.an another one, something else, something different from. fkwm.an diwi another one has come. ja daldertown fkwm.an ofiwi he did something other than my order (i.e. he disobeyed my order). khiertown fkwm.an ko jartai.i another man than (besides) this one is coming.

2. fwm, fom, (fkwm?) why?, what else? — amolo bai.i ko fwm ofwtoiqa? wherever he is why doesn't he come? 30.17. podkwm.alw fwm ja ofwtiamu?

ʃuʔ'ам why won't (shouldn't) I come to a king? I will come. 74.20. 000 ʃum, however, can not be a truly interrogative particle; if it were, the verb would not also take the interrogative suffix -a. It appears to be an expression of affected surprise.

ʃum ʃtat to run the point of one's finger forwards over the surface of a drum so as to produce a noise.

ʃum'aŋ IUB, ʃum'ak N, -ets v. tobaŋ.

ʃumar, ʃumar, -ag y amulet, talisman, H. ta'wiz. — zafarana ʃumir a saffron amulet. Cp. 356.2. (Cp. Sh. ʃum'ar, amulet).

ʃumay sg. & pl., d.pl. -ints x Ho. & N. shell of nut or fruit-stone that contains the kernel. — ʃilis ʃumay walnut shell. k'anis ʃumay shell of stone of apricot etc.

(Cp. Sh. ʃuma, fruit-stone).

thumuloliŋ QUB, thumiloliŋ y sg. a fire-festival celebrated at the winter solstice if it falls on Tuesday, otherwise on the preceding Tuesday. In the early hours of morning a fire is made at a public place with burning faggots brought, nominally, from every house in the village. There is then dancing round it and certain songs are chanted. Proceedings terminate with the appearance of dawn. The ceremony is supposed to commemorate the burning of Shiri Badat the cannibal king of Gilgit, and his return to life. This legend was probably originally acquired from the Shina. The Tham takes part in the celebrations at Baltit which are more elaborated. 796

The three weeks or so of mid-winter are described as the Thumuloliŋ season.

359 a

The barley of the preceding harvest is supposed to be first brought into use after the Thumsebeling. V. 334.7. 796 ayaro tsordimo . . . tumiteliqe yfe bidestere on the Tuesday morning they make the T. fire. 306.17. 000 tumfaq dark, darkness and dust. — tumfaq maniele it has become dark (owing to a storm).

(Cp. Khe. tumfaq, very dark; Sh. tumfaq, very dark?).

thumuk *-afas to create, present, make appear. — gute kayor wuje nasiretaum Xodeyo tumuk etsiá by your good fortune God has created (or made appear) this horse. 6.17. tsoirò hirane hatse nikin ikor tumuk etimi entering into the skin of a poor man he revealed (or, presented) himself. 294.22.

thumuk manere to meet, come upon, light upon; make one's appearance, turn up. — jartse thumuk maniai he met me (on the road). hin jat gwean tumuk manimo an old woman turned up (on his way), i.e. met him. 229.13. tse nasimanto tumuk amanam I have come upon the Treasury. 54.8. Here given as an alternative for fat. hin . . . hiran tumuk numan a man turning up. 282.23. kayorate naljan . . . tumuk manimi he appeared riding on a horse. 294.16. Cp. 282.2, 298.2. (Cp. Sh. thumuk hoski, to meet by chance).

tum, tun hard, taut. IUB. H. aarf.

(Cp. Khe. tum tight, (of string etc.), tight-full, of a box).

tund quarrelsome. — tund hiran a quarrelsome man. QUB. Pra.

tup -ute a roll of cloth (muslin etc.). (Cp. Khe. tup). Pra.

000 ʊpuwi x & y an inferior kind of apricot (tree).

ʊqo·m N., v. ʊqum.

1. ʊur, -i.ʌŋ, -ʌŋ, y horn. — ʊurʌfe ɛ·ʊɛ ɕiʌfe ʊa·ŋ nɛ pushing him up with his horn on to the mountain. 132.22. γenile ʊurʌŋ the golden horns. 136.5. IUB. ʊr dʊ·ʊʌs 1. to come up, grow (of horns); to become famous, H. si·ŋ nɪkʌlna, nʌm hʌma. inɛ ʊr dusila he has become noted (for good or bad). QUB. (Cp. -ltur).
2. thʊr -ʌnts x whip, whip-thong. — thʊrɛ yʌn whip-handle. i·nɛ hʌγʊr ʊr delimi he whipped up his horse. 146.17. hʌγʊr ʊrʌk delimi he gave the horse a cut with the whip. 146.15. Cp. 150.12, 276.14, 278.3. (Cp. Sh. thʊr whip).
3. fhʊ·r a little, "what one throws out of the hand at one time". — pfʌlo ʊ·rʌŋ ʌγʊn give me a little grain. 138.29. i·tɛ kʊ·tʊʌr pfʌlo ʊ·rɛ (read: ʊ·r) ɛr ɛ·tʊmʌn they put a little grain in the bag for him. 140.6. dʌγʊ·ʌŋ fhʊ·rʌn a little flour.

(Cp. Puniali Sh. ʊ·r(ʌk), (a) little).
4. ʊr mʌnʌɛ to talk slander, run down s.o. — uɛ uɛ hʊrʌŋ ʊr mai.imɛ ba·ɛ they are talking evil (of s.o.) among themselves. QUB.

ʊrʌɛ, ʊrʊɛ- v.i. to rip. — ʊʊqa . . . ʊrʊ·mi (the seam of) the choga ripped. 378.4. St. Pc. ʊrʊm ripped.

(Possibly the same root is to be seen in Sh. thʊrʊ·rki, to open, undo).

ʊrʌq -iɛiŋ y a large kind of poplar of which the roots are injurious to neighbouring cultivation.

(Cp. Wkh. ʊrγʊ·q, ʊγrʌq). Turki.

ʊ·rʌrʌs, ʊ·rʌnʌs; pl. ʊ·rʌrʌɛo (and -ʌlo) x a kind of large black beetle.

DOO fhwy'o -q, -mig, y halter, headstall. (Cp. Sh. fhwyo, fhwyo, headstall).

fwyuf tasteless, insipid; slack.

fwk.i IUB pugnacious, quarrelsome person, H. Leyonwrda. (Quoted by QUB).

fwmo- tea, in the numbers 11 to 17. V. §§ 187 ff, also fwvmo-, f'wimo-, — fwmo-hin (h) -h.an (x y) -hik (x) 11. fwmo-ollan (h), -olin(-ln) (x) -ollu (y x) 12.

fwmo-tiken (h), -ouko (x y)-tuki (x) 13.

fwmo-mwlin (h x y), -mwlin (x) 14.

fwmo-th.kwulo (h x y), -th.kwuli (x) 15.

fwmo-mstiwulo (h x y), -mstiwuli (y) 16.

fwmo-th.nlo (h x y), -th.nlo (x) 17.

fwmo-ell'.wulo (h x y), -ell'.wuli (x) 18.

fwvmo-, (fwmo-) -hwulo (h x y), -hwuli (x) 19.

(The forms for 18 and for 14 (x) and 17 (x) are not authenticated).

fwmo-hik tha 1100.

fwmo ollo tha 1200.

fwmo hikolow 11th.

fwmo.yuki.wlow 13th.

fwmo th.kwuli wlow 15th.

fwmo ollo dow 12 years. 196.7.

fwmo ollo fwv 12 sho-goats. 194.8.

fwmo ollotwafwm from 12 (goats). 194.12.

fwmo fwmdowan mwig sis 15 superior persons. 338.3.

fwmo fwuli ing yf'alw.e 15 "fwy" of grain. 342.7.

f'wu, f'wo, pl. f'wvmuls x medium-sized pumpkin, N. gourd with a waist (smaller than hwpuf). 384.21 ff. In the H. version: "k.nldu".

(Cp. Sh. fwu, fw'u, small bowl, wooden vessel; fofois fwy — human skull?).

f'wum bugle. — f'wum delimsn they blew trumpets. (Cp. Kho. f'wum bugle).

ḅwa, pl. ḅaḅ'aq y grave, tomb, pl. graveyard. (Cp. °-ḅaq).

ḅakuvi, H. ḅakuvi, -mata a tipcat, the small piece of wood that is hit. — ḅakuvi ḅolas to play at tipcat. ḅakuvi ne wadzwi he threw him right over (in wrestling). QUB.

The stick with which the ḅakuvi is hit is called yatwaj.

ḅagwa, ḅag'w -ile s a round vessel made of willow or walnut wood with a lid. BKLS.

ḅaḅw, ḅaḅwan sufficient, H. ḅaṅ̄, QUB, some quantity of, H. thiya ḅaḅ̄, IUB. — ḅaḅwan yf'ale bilas there is a sufficient quantity of grain. ḅa ḅaḅwan ḅarl dawimi then a considerable spring (of water) came out. 2933. ḅaḅw waat m.ṅaḅ̄ni sufficient(?) time has passed. QUB.

(Cp. Sh. ḅaḅw, much, many, very).

ḅaḅq y pl. graveyard, cemetery. (Pl. of ḅaw).

ḅalp'of, ḅalp'ff, -ofo, -ovo forward, spoilt (of a child who wants everything and goes pushing in everywhere); IUB. mischievous, restless, H. ḅaṅ̄v, -ṅḅale.

(Cp. Sh. ḅalp'ofo, mischievous, rude; hasty in action).

ḅaḅorqle, ḅaḅorqle, very early morning, twilight. — ta ḅawdimo ḅaḅorqle early tomorrow morning. jimale ḅaḅorqle ja ayaler ju come to me early tomorrow morning. (Cp. ḅaḅaq).

ḅaḅorqmo, ḅaḅorqmo very early in the morning; pertaining to early morning (before dawn). — ḅaḅorqmo yf'wuk ḅaṅ̄'ile dew falls in the early morning. ḅaḅorqmo ḅapik early morning meal.

ḅarthale spitting seven times (a form of abuse). (ḅar + thale).

ſuſ'aŋ, ſuſ'aŋ, dark. — ſu.w ſuſ'aŋ pitch dark. Arw ſuſ'aŋ mainui the evening has grown dark. EOL. ſuſ'aŋ mainwle in the dark grave. 312.12.

(Perhaps a reduced form of ſwuſ'aŋ. Cp. Sh. ſuſ'aŋ. Also recorded in Kho.).

ſuſ'aŋlut y darkness. — ywr ſuſ'aŋlut the darkness of no-moon.

ſuſ'ok, -ots, s wooden "penny-whistle". (Cp. Sh. ſuſ'ak, flute, pipe).

ſuſ'u Hs., ſuſ'w N., -mate s a kind of small biscuit or cake. — Hs. arwŋ.

ſuſ'w ctat, ſuſ'w ctat, to knee.

(Used of the noise made by a fly, or flying beetle).

ſuſ'ww -ŋ y strap, band, of cloth.

Used as a depreciatory term with hide. (V. BBOE Vol. VIII. 1934. P. 629). — gaga ſuſ'ww lokan a piece of hide. QUB.

TS and TS.H.

ſas standing, erect. — ſi ſurwle ŋgai ſas dawni he set up 12 stones (one in front of another) in front of himself. 148.15.

ſa.kayura archery. — matire ſaŋyura dil'ola, 316.7, i.e. the waste ridge down the ground to shoot at the mark with bow and arrow.

dilai refers to the horse: he "brings" that is gallops it down.

ſa.kayur -ilo, -do, s bin for grain etc., large chest in which the flour for a year is kept; N. wooden chest with lid for storing grain. — ſaŋyurŋum daywaŋ dawuter mutwrdulo she takes her away to get flour from the bin. 306.3. Cp. 306.4, 332.10—334.8.

ſak -itaŋ y sluice, sluice-board. — ſak ſatiŋ ne removing the sluice-board. 304.5 N.

361 b

000 (Cp. Sh. ʃkoko, ʃkoiwo, ʃkoiwo-koof).

ʃkʌʃ -ʃuʃk, s heap. — yʃʃkʌ.o ʃkʌʃ a heap of grain (as formed when winnowing). zurb ʃkʌʃ a heap of broken straw. ʃiko ʃkʌʃ heap of earth. ʃurʃ.o ʃkʌʃ the name of a constellation(?) (lit. "the heap of barley").

ʃkʌʃʃ ʃkʌʃʃ quite straight.

ʃkʌʃʃ 398,14., error for zʌʃʃ.

ʃkʌʃ'ik, ʃurʃʃik, y sauce, relish (of pickles, walnuts etc.). — gurʃb ʃkʌʃ'ik ʃkʌ dʌʃʃʌʃʃʌ they bring along with it ʃkʌʃik of gurʃt. 342.5. Cp. zurʃ-ʃurʃʃik. Sz.

Used also to express a small quantity of a food, e.g. ʃkʌʃʃ ʃurʃʃik, "a small quantity of meat", denoting according to QUB "a little soup". ʃurʃʃ ʃkʌʃʃikʌʃ, a little ʃurʃʃ, i.e. enough for one ʃkʌʃik. QUB.

(Cp. Sh. ʃkʌʃʃik, recorded as a decoction of bitter almond kernels in water).

ʃkʌʃʃ, N. pl. -ʃʃʃik.

a. Straight, direct. — ʃrʌʃʃ ʃkʌʃʃ ni, ʃkʌʃʃ.ʃrʌʃʃ ni go there straight, direct. ʃkʌʃʃ ʃkʌʃʃ quite straight. ʃkʌʃʃ yʌʃ ne straight up.

b. True, right, correct; truth, right. — .wʌʃ ʃkʌʃʃ ʌʃʃ speak the truth, say truly. 104.1. Cp. 78.19, 78.10. jʌ gʌʃʃ ʃkʌʃʃ bʌʃʃ this that I say (lit. this of mine) is true. 164.2. ʃkʌʃʃ ʃʌʃʃ in very truth, sure enough. 218.13. ʃʌʃ ʌʃʃʌʃʃʌ wʌʃ ʃkʌʃʃ, gʌʃʃ ʃʌʃʃ O astrologer, you were right, she has been delivered. 102.8. ʃkʌʃʃ! true! (ironically), to be sure. 118.14,19. gʌʃʃ jʌ ʃkʌʃʃ (or, ʃkʌʃ) bʌʃʃ this is my right. ʃʌʃʃ ʃʌʃʃʌ ʃkʌʃʃ ʌʃʃ he 000 has no right. ta.kana truly; in truth, in fact, indeed, really. ta.kana ne ka you say truly. ta.kana ana speak truly, speak the truth. ta.kana ka.a kayowa ki in fact there is a fine horse. 6.12. gele ikana yanzi bila? is this really gold. 58.21.

-ta.kana, -ta.kai(y)-, Impv. -ta.kan, Fpa. n-tkan, to count, reckon, consider as, H. gwana, kanwa kanan. — gaga nikanimi he counted the pebbles. 52.22. nathan counting (the cows). 302.12. gwaniq nikan counting the days. 104.16. wtakriyam I shall count them (people, sheep, money). je gu.ima daruakuyo ja.an ikan count me as one of your hired servants. 368.6.

ta.kanf, ta.kanf every time (that something occurs), whenever. — gu kim manam kanf ikil kankarf gadam at the conclusion of each month I'll give you a sheep like this. 62.22. daiyam ta.kanf kapik jodwa every time that I come they give me food. QUB.

ta.nduwa y Monday. (Cp. Sh. tanduwa, Monday).

ta.kankaf y truth, reality. — ta.kankafo matlab the real purpose.

ta.kanan -iq y gap, interval, interstice (between planks in door etc.). — ama ta.kanan the space between my teeth.

ta.ap ekan to touch, put the fingers to. — mirtto ta.ap ekan to touch the table. ta.ap ne dari ekma putting her fingers to it she picked it up, i.e. she snatched it up. 168.5. kele ta.ap nenkan making him touch the seed (with his fingers). 344.2. Thama ta'ap ne b'a ne . . . kerudai the Tham touching

(the bowl with his fingers) and sawing (his fingers) . . . sits down. 340.1. Cp. 70.7.

(Cp. Sh. ŋap tkwtki to touch; Kho. ŋapwtk, to put the hand to, to touch, feel, with the hand).

*-tkÂapanat, *-tkÂapaŋ(y)-, to sew. When the obj. is y there is no Pa. Pf. — gale tkÂapan sew the cloth (x). pali tkÂapaŋyam I shall sew the cotton cloth (y). QUB. ŋapanow pahŋ sewn clothes, ready-made clothes. 98.12.

ŋapi -mig y tweezers. (Cp. Kho. ŋapi, ŋarpi, tweezers, tongs).

tkÂaŋ *-ataa to slander, speak ill of s.o. — tkÂaŋ ortimi he slandered me. QUB.

ŋaŋ ŋaŋ ataa v.t. to shake up and down. — ile ŋalor ŋaŋa nolawa ŋaŋ ŋaŋ ataaw . . . having put the house in the skin, on shaking it up and down . . . 324.9.

-ŋaw suffix "to" etc. (-ne + w. V. § 78, vi.).

1. ŋaw, sg. and pl., h sentry, watchman, watch, guard (collective). — bollotaaw jow nawka ŋaw hawatanaw hakawa dawaw ask permission from the king for me to sit on guard with you. 98.22. ŋawow gaw ehimi he called out to the guard. 98.4. iwa ŋikawala ŋapaw ŋaw hawatawa watchmen (wa-pl) used to sit in the tower at night. 198.3. (Cp. Sh. ŋaw, watch, guard).
2. ŋaw ataa v.t. to tear, tear off, split, cut open. — jo pahŋ ŋaw ainti don't tear my clothes. EOL. kafan dangu nalan ŋaw ehini measuring the shroud he tears it off. 310.4. hawan ŋaw na splitting a log. 98.14. iwa bala ŋaw ata cut open that sheep. 64.27.

363a

Cp. 88.8, 90.4. ṭar manev v.i. to tear. 000

(Cl. Sh. ṭar-e ṭhorchi, ḥorchi v.t. & v.i., (of cloth), to tear, to tear off, split).

3. ṭa.ḥar manev v.i. to drop, fall (of tears, rain), to be sprinkled. — ma.ṭar.an ṭar rakiloṭar ṭar manaiwi a tear of hers fell on his face. 262.12. ḥar.ali ḥewe ḥa maiṭarar ṭar ma.ṭaro (or, ma.ṭar.ṭaro) is she the rain that she should fall on all of you? 262.12. ṭa.ḥar ofas v.i. to sprinkle. ṭa.ḥil ṭa.ḥar ofas to sprinkle water.

(Cp. Sh. ṭrṭo ṭar ḥoli, "it has begun to rain". Wai ṭar ṭa-e ṭhorchi to sprinkle water).

ṭarpuryo, pl. ṭarpuryo, bus sentry, watchman. 42.18. (I. ṭar + purin).

ṭa.ḥarił, pl. ṭa.ḥar.aṇ, double pl. ṭa.ḥar.aṇ.ṭiṇ, ṭa.ḥar.aṇiṇ, g.

fig. One part of the door frame, door-post, threshold. — yar... ṭa.ḥarił door-sill, used as a term of contempt for a man of low class. dawa ṭarełe wełe ḥarłar nal'a wełe ta'ṭrdow coming to the house they (each) place their foot simultaneously inside the threshold. 304.17.

Pl. Door-frame (posts, lintel and sill). — ḥok ṭar.aṇ . . . ḥewa ma'a? why have you brought this door-frame? 170.2. ḥiṇe ṭa.ḥar.aṇ door-frame. ḥow ṭa.ḥar.aṇ door-frame of house. ...ni.a ṭa.ḥar.aṇ door-frame of garden. Cp. 170.7,9, 386.9 (written ṭar.aṇ). Double pl. Door-frames.

(Cp. Khe. ṭarwał, door-frame, part of door-frame).

ṭaṭ standing; halted, waiting. — ṭaṭ manev to halt, wait. ganolo ṭaṭ manewai he has halted (i.e. is standing still) on the road. ṭaṭ man'a 000 halt, wait. 144.9, 146.28. ɬaɬin (?) = ɬaɬ manin. 144.17. ɬaɬ manumen they halted. 144.17. ɬaɬ dizu ausram I got tired standing up. EOL. N. um ɬaɬ dakwimi he made you stand up. ɬaɬ ɬiɬu (-ɬiɬuf) v.i. to stop. ɬuɬ ḫuru ɬiɬu ɬudilelo ɬaɬ ɬimi he stopped the boulder on the hillside. 294.7.

ɬaɬaq manœuvre to keep jibbing (of a horse), to keep retreating, withdrawing (of a man, from fear). QUB.

ɬaḫaɬaḫaq manœuvre to trot.

ɬaḫaiʿi, ɬaḫiʿi 1 the two weeks of moonlight, the new moon, II. ḫaḫiʿi, QUB. the moon up to its 15th day. — ɬaḫaiʿi ḫian the part of the month when there is moonlight.

1. -ɬu suffix "on", "upon" etc., v. § 78.

It is difficult to allocate the following: — ɬuɬu ḫin ḫaḫiʿlo ḫiran ḫan besides (him) there was also a strong man. 200.10. ɬuɬu ɬiɬu v.i. to separate. Kiseʿe u ɬuɬu manumen ḫuru ɬiɬumen the Kiseri clan began to separate out. 110.22.

In these there may be a word *-ɬuɬu separate, apart, or they may be based on *-ɬu. V. also *-ɬiɬ.

2. -ɬu enclitic particle with verbs giving the sense of "would (have)", "should (have)", "might". V. §§ 313, 351.

*-ɬiɬ Postposition, used only with the Pu.pf.a. V. § 74, after, on. — maʿiʿi ɬiɬ ɬaurl ɬimi he conferred the Wazirship on him. 98.8.

a. It occurs principally in dependence on the following verbs:
ḫaɬalkuɬ (relating to the subject), duɬuɬ (occasionally),
gurɬaɬ, galuɬ, ɬaɬuɬ, 2. ḫuiɬuɬ, ɬaɬuɬ qq.v.

364 a

000 wtsi gavtsin run ye after them. V. also s.v. 1. tsi.

b. Otherwise it is found in certain phrases with the suffix -afu, -efu. — itsivafu ni.as to track, follow up s.o. hin ivu itsi.afu one after another, in Indian file. itsi.afu hilowan ho dimi and a boy came after him. 64.6. Cp. 176.8.

c. *-ta'i'afu appears to be used as a noun denoting the ceremonial carried out at the death of anyone: funeral rites, obsequies. — u.ivumur utsi.afu ataw dastur the custom in regard to carrying out funeral observances for persons who have died. 210. title. Sg. ivumur itsi.afu. motsivfu iskikotu ziruy espalomun they lighted the 3-days' lamp as an observance of her death. 244.21.

The idea probably is "what follows after" a person, cp. the Sh. gur fitu thorski "to do before and after", i.e. to carry out the rites and ceremonies consequent on a man's death. Perhaps there is some analogy with the Latin "exequiae".

d. itsi, i.itsi separately. — datumun ferter wyorski 'itsi dori'an they grind the ration of flour for eating in autumn, separately. 334.7. (Cp. itsir, s.v. 1. -ita).

ta.hivr, -ito and tsi.awito young bull, steer. Also used as a term of abuse. — hik, arito iski, uwito dankus ta.hivr a 1-, 2-, 3-, 4-year old bull. kirl atas ta.hivr an ox employed for ploughing (from 3 or 4 years of age). kirl atas mani hi it has become fit to plough. tsi.ara bulorio bull-calf. 104.21.

According to QUB ta.hivar is used as a depreciatory term for a full-grown ox, hor.

3646

tsʌhi.ʌs, tsʌhiyʌs, tsʌhirč-, to go down, subside; to catch (of fire). ooo

Fut sg. 3 tsʌhirči. — gu.imo dikolo tsʌhi sit down in your place. QUB. mʌrt tsʌhi bila the earth-cliff has fallen down. QUB.

hʌ·fu pfu tsʌhimi fire caught the house, i.e. the house caught fire.

When people have dressed up in bright coloured clothes one may say metaphorically: pfu tsʌhi bilo.

(Cp. the trans. *-ʌtsi.ʌs).

*-tsi·ʌts v. *-tsi (3).

tsʌhigiv, N. -ʌtu, she-goat. — burm tsʌhigiv female mountain goat. (Cp. 1. tsʌhiv).

tsirk N., recorded only in: hʌltsirk. — phori hʌltsirk mʌni biru the polo-ball had gone out.

(Cp. Hz. tirki and Sh. pori hʌltsirk birl(i) the polo-ball went out, and Bu. hʌla, Sh. hʌrlu, goal).

tsʌhil -uiŋ y water. — ima γrʌzi . . . tsil dʌmoriʌm he used to make the queen fetch water. 20.5. hilum sisik tsilʌu.ʌts wi hirʌŋ čʌl wumʌn a few people quarrelling among themselves over a water-supply. 42.19. tsilʌu wiγʌm I shall drink a little water. 146.4. bʌpʌyom tsʌhil boiling water. ieʌs tsil drinking-water. 172.22. tsʌhilʌŋ *-mʌnʌs to fall into the water and be drowned, to be wasted. amolo tsilʌŋ wumʌnemu.ʌ nozen saying: "she will have fallen into the water somewhere and been drowned". 244.21.

(IYB Ms. has alhʌfta amolo tsilo (or, tsil?) gʌwʌtsumu.ʌ, dolʌt wyom tsʌhilʌŋ stimi he wasted all his possessions. formulum tsʌhil sap of tree. γurlulo tsʌhil water in the belly, i.e. dropsy. McK., GR. 000 N. ɛil ʃ'wyas yakal up-stream.

ɛil gutsɛras yakal down-stream.

ʀɛkis ta.hil irrigation before ploughing. yaʃ ta.hil ɛtas to do the second watering (when crops are beginning to come up). ta.hil yolas (yalas) to turn irrigation water on (to a field etc.). mal ta.hil yolas-bila the field is to be watered. malɛr (malolo) ta.hil yalas to water a field. Cp. 262.5. ʀaiɛr ta.hil bikoiyas to turn water on to the garden. ɛeiʃ yalt turn of water (where a supply of irrigation water is shared by a number of persons). 262.4, 266.18.

For water-supply terms vide Text No. XLII passim.

Other references: 124.11 — 180.24 passim; 196.20 ff., 262.19,20, 264.2, 292,6 ff., 304.2, 368.11, 384.14.

ta.hilʔalγanas, -γanalo, s a soft blister caused by a burn.

ta.hilʔij y wet and slippery place.

ta.hilʔwum watery, thin (of soup etc.), dilute. Ar. Fm ʀaqiq.

1> ta.hilum y pl. -iq.

1. Fine (of powder), finely ground; small, minute, (of writing) etc. — ta.hilum daγnas, ta.hilumiq daγnas fine flour, H. maida. Kitab ta.hilum γrmiwum bila the book is written in small characters. QUB. ta.hilum kitab γatanʃ cyiwmaiya la I am unable to read a book in small type. QUB.
2. Inferior, minor. — ɛeilum ʀaderis the lesser retainers, minor servants. 256.4, 340.8.

*-ɛaimo from. V § 137. iii. — gutsimo dumuriʃ la if he demands them from you, if he asks you for them. 210.14.

3656

1 [See corrigenda & addenda, category III. p. 544 - Analyst]

000 Cp. 34.13, 58.25. itsimo doγ'ərukəm they enquire of him. 312.16. itə'imo ʼu ʼbil čačaq moi bila water is dripping from them (y pl.). 130.20. motsimo from her. 174.24. utsimo γər in front of them. 124.5, 14.23. -tsimo jwyas* to have an emission of semen either in coition or in a wet dream. itsimo dirni he had an emission, or wet dream.

(Abl. formative from *-tsi).

ts.hindəv, ts.hindi.as, ts.hindivč- to lean on, lean against (s.t.). — čakotas, bəčtas, ts.hindas to lean against the pillar, the wall.

(The Pres. Base originally recorded, ts.hindəvč-, was denied by QUB).

ts.hind'or -ikə a bull (entire). — ba.a tsindər moi bi the cow is seeking the bull. tsindər bar(a) castrated ox(en).

ts.hrudi v. ts.hundə.

ts.hindi.alom, N. tsindi'lom, fifth. — jə tsindi.alom əmənə ba. I am the fifth Imam. 294.11.

1. ts.hir sg. and pl.; also pl. -ərulə, s. she-goat (full grown). ts.hir bi.an there are she-goats. ban ts.hirə (or, tsirəan) dərən a (goat's) kid. 270.9, 374.9. hanumən girri tsirən bi there is a female (ibex) by itself. 102.20. Cp. 108.12. bərmə ts.hir a female markhor. Cp. 102.21, 194.8 ff. 342.15. (Cp. N. ts.hirgir).

2. ts.hir line (of men etc.), H. qatar. — ts.hirulə in a line, in file. əlto ts.hir mənə get into two lines. hani.ə ts.hir a string of kernels, i.e. kernels strung on a thread, like a necklace. ts.hirtə in succession, in turn, one after another. 138.9, 170.5, 302.3, 318.5, 360.5. bar gunə hiq

000 tsiv se yuʿdam they used to give . . . each house in turn. 260.5.
(Cp. Sh. tsiv).

3. tsʰir time, occasion; set (of clothes). — jav ariło (ireki) tsʰir jo, ayem give me — a second, third, time. dasinumor zaki wʿalti tsir pacis galog cówa they furnish 3 or 4 sets of cotton clothes for the girl (bride). 304.10. (IYB Ms. tsir).

1. *-tsʰiv -iq y gut, entrails; pl. entrails, bowels, intestines, H. antariam, Sh. ṭṭi.
Usually in the plural.
gutsiwiq tsim may your entrails be devoured! (a woman's curse).

2. *-tsʰir -iq y breast (of sheep or goat). — kaskarsis itsir thamor kalaṭb se dasuvicum roasting the breast of a wether they bring it to the Mir. 338.15,16. ayumor itsire kanik sćan they prepare a dish of the breast (of the goat) for the "akhund". 314.5. (IYB Ms. itsir).

3. *-tsʰiv -iq y custom, habit, practice, H. ʿadat, dastur. — itsʰiv bila it is a custom. ja atʰsiv bila it is my habit. ima itsʰiv bilem sisam baiś he is a man of good habits. QUR. (IUB *-tsir).

· tsʰirzi, tsʰiriṭ, pl. tsʰiraq, tsʰirang y root. — tsʰirzitum dipirtas, or, dimas to pull up by the roots, eradicate (tree or person). kayewis tsʰiriṭ root of evil (term of abuse for a rascal), H. fasad ka jar. wuṣ dainsane tsiriṭ dezipirier in order to pull up the roots of your enemy. 94.16.

tsin, -ewu, -eya, km slave (bought or homeborn). (Cp. Balti tsun, slave).

tsʰor early, quick, soon, immediately; first. — da tsʰor ja ayaćer ju come to me again soon. ts.hor dimanam hiles first born boy. ts.hor diyanum mewan early ripened fruit. ts.hor oti make haste. da tsor jućam I'll come (back) again soon. 29.1. ćor Torakutsan thame pirator de.ćtui.i the Mir makes one of the Tarakuts dance first. 318.1. Cp. 74.2, 80.8, 318.7, 332.1. (IYB Ms. tsor).

366 b

ts.hormo[1A] pertaining to former times. H. qadīm ka. QUB.

ts.hordimo pertaining to early morning, early morning (when it is light; later than ṭaṭyanko). — ts.hordimo khan morning time. ts.hordimo ḥapak the early morning meal. hor tsordimo every morning early. 8.16. aṭyoro tsordimo on Tuesday morning. 306.17. Prov. 11. ts.hordimo ṭilor early morning at sunrise time.

ts.hordine, ts.hordiner, -or, morning, tomorrow morning, next morning. — khuilo ts.hordine this morning. jimalo tsordine tomorrow morning. 124.14. tsordine tomorrow morning. 124.22, 126.18, 130.4, next morning. 128.8. tsordiner, -or tomorrow morning. 128.17,22, 130.10,13, 286.7, next morning. 6.1, 124.27, 234.13, 284.9.

ts.howum early, former. — tsowum zamawanolo in early times, in former days. 190.1, 232.1, 274.1.

*-ts.ku, pl. -ę, *-ts.kowę, y track, footmark. — gurpiso ćts.ku his (its) footstep. kayore ćtsu the horse's hoofmark. 288.1. Cp. 6.3, 246.21,22.

ts.kuwa, pl. hx -ćio, y -ię heavy, slow; patient. — ts.kuwaido kiwi, gulipnate heavy, or, patient, men, women. ts.kuwaię kalćowę heavy planks. ts.kuwaię kaldaę bitsan there are heavy loads. hevɪnɪ.ɪn tɪ.hɪrɪ nɪsɪ.nɪ? how heavy may it be?, what does it weigh? tɪ.hɪrɪ mɪn'e be patient. QUB. 000 tsum v. mɪm.

[1A] [see corrigenda et addenda, category 16, p. 504 - Analyst]

tsumʃɪlɪkɪt v. mumʃɪlɪkɪt.

tɪ.hundo hxy, tɪ.hɪndi z, five.

h tɪ.hundo hɪvɪ, gudiqnɪ five men, women.

x tɪ.hundo hɪɣwɪtio, huqanɪ five horses, chogas.

z tɪ.hundo mɪleɣ five fields.

z tɪ.hɪndi lɪtɪ, den, hɪ·ʃi five days, years, times.

tɪ.hɪndikɪm five sets, pairs.

mɪ·lto tsundowɪn diltɪɣriɣ 4 or 5 (bowls of) buttermilk. 324.1.

tɪzndi čuq pʃɪlɪn ɪapik bread (made from) 5 čuq of grain. 342.12.

tsup x and y (according to object), finger's breadth (measure). — tsupɪn (bi, bila) (it is) one finger's breadth. ɪsko (ow, zɪki) tsup three fingers' breadth. wɪ·ltsup(ɪn) four fingers' breadth (fingers separated laterally unless otherwise specified). čɪtsin (v. dᵊ-ɪtsi.ɪn) wɪ·ltsup four fingers' breadth (fingers together). čɪčɪqɪr (v. dᵊ-ɪčɪqɪrɪn) wɪ·ltsup four fingers' breadth (separated).

tsupunce N. cold in the head.

(Cp. Sh. tsipɪn'ɪ·ʃ, tsuponowu, GB čhupuru, cold in the head, having a cold in the head).

*-tɪ.hɪwɪ.ɪn, tɪ.hɪnɪ.ɪn; *-tɪ.hɪwɪ'-, tɪ.hɪwɪ'-, Fpa. nᵊ-tsum, nɪtum.

1. To take away (to), carry off, carry away, lead away.

The Fn.pf. is used only when the object is a human being.

For recorded past base parts v. § 289.

367 b

With h object:

tazti [illegible] ātwāw you are going to take me away on a litter. Čilimdarwa "gutwrčam" [illegible] on C.'s saying "I will take you away (i.e. marry you). 26.11. matan ītsu him, nitsen (the horse) had carried him far away, having carried him away. 8.19. Cp. 8.8, 10.3, 22.17, 24.10, 24.14 ff. (Marry?), 30.2, 72.12, 78.23, 80.22, 108.19 ff., 154.5, 264.6.

With x object:

wor hayur trumsan, natsen they took away horses for them, having taken them away . . . 36.10. hasto trurman B. Jambuwe higher they led away the elephant to B. J.'s door. 76.21. podin ačlor tuyas ivo hasto gerr dortani the King has sent you the elephant that takes him out. 76.22. ersmots uyurn gulpurar . . . tuvlorn they take (away) the kidneys to the senior Guahpūr. 338.17. Cp. 68.12.

With y object: —

čumor uyorn . . . dukurnator tarmi he carried off all the iron to the shop. 172.20. bardiow xaler tuvlorn let us take news to the King. 6.7. ja jamarals was tisrio bom "my wife was carrying the smell (of meat)", referring apparently to the peculiar cravings of a pregnant woman. 104.7. Cp. 48.5, 54.18, 78.3.

2. *-ta.hayas v.t. to marry (used of either sex). — khirus falarno ei natsurai this man married the daughter of So and So. gulp ivas hir itsurno the woman married that man. Cp. 18.19, 24.14 ff., 30.14, 48.2, 118.24 ff.

368a

W.

000 ue O! Ho! An exclamation of invocation, to draw attention, express surprise, etc. — ue ḫapuło O friend! 52.8, ue ayi O grandmother! 235.4. ue paryu ṣḫwr.an Ho, may the crows eat them! 254.11, ue Ho there! 242.2, 322.2, 354.4. ue denoting surprise. 84.10.

It appears introducing lines of verse v. 355.1 ff.

It is perhaps the Persian ue "and" in: Xołajyw mawa ue ayo farewell mother and father! 212.12. In: ue ḫawa ṣełam ełaz ine ḫołj.an it was glossed as meaning H. ḫełkel, quite. 90.12.

uerła y undertaking, promise. — ine uerła ełewołe ḫiw.aram the one here under the agreement that had been made. 104.25. Cp. 106.2, 160.22, Ar. Fre.

*-uerła., uerła.; *-ełj-, *-uerłj-, uerłj- to be lost, get lost, go astray.

This verb is used only with h and a subjects. When the subject is y it is replaced by the verb ḫałwy.an. The Pa.pf. is used both with h and a animate subjects, but not invariably with either.

ṣełer ḫawłiew ue ełewi uerłiwi after R. had taken A for a walk, wherever A went to he was lost, he disappeared. 70.18. ie gwerłew O you lost one, O you fugitive! 204.9. ji ḫiwu ewi . . . uerła.an this son of mine had got lost. 268.16. Cp. 270.16. 272.21. uerła.an ie mawr the parable of the lost son. 272. ieuerła., ieuerłj-, to be lost (of an animal). ue gwerła.jewa you will get lost. ewiuerełin don't ye get lost.

368b

hayar, hiv, warimi the horse, mare. ○○○ got lost, wawarimo she got lost.
ji dawaya warimi my stick was lost.
wu dawayala warimis their sticks were lost. QUR.
(Tosna. 2. *-ampalas).

warikwa four sets, four pairs.

warikats(as) four days. 322.1,10.

warili ailter eighty. — warili altwas ladwala 80 reindeers. 216.2.

warili ailter tawama, — tawimi ninety.

warilikon, N. walirikon, fourth.

warili tsag four pieces, four portions. — gwa gaji warili tsag ali divide this cake of bread into four pieces. QUR. kulala warili tsag wawimi the land was divided in four. QUR.

warilo h. s. y. warili, wari- s. four. — warilo hivi, hayawala, daiya, phalaya four men, horses, stones, grains. warili saw 4000. warili dan, hadi four years, times. warili giram the four communities. 208.1. dawala (hivi) warikwa dulua bring four knives (men). EOL. warikats four days. warilan four months.

warilo iskilig v. *-skirl.

warilo gawanda four-cornered, square.

warilaap v. faap.

warg waaara to take long strides.

wa.o an exclamation. — wa.o gawa wa calling out (in distress). 212.12.
(Cp. Sh. wawa shoshi, to call out, call out to; wa.o ili., to cry out in pain).

wawas, (*-wawas), wawi-, Impv. wawi, neg. 'wiaw, awaq to put s.t. over s.t. as a cover or lid (the reverse of the English: "to cover s.t. with s.t."). — aandwaya wawi put on, shut, the lid of the box. yaja wawas to place over. gilipala wawas kal the stone (that had been) put over the peg. 196.15. hateŋ (y) eiwor do not put flat stones over it. daiyo (x) owor do not put stones over it. hateŋ wavóra they place flat stones (over the mouth of the grave). 312.5. wazorofs hateŋ ayuwor (ayuor) putting stones over the grave. 220.1. Cp. 218.6. daiyo wawor putting stones over it.

369a

(Note the presence of the Pn. Infixes i- and w- in the forms of the negative Impv. and the Ppa.).

wavża -ało h, heir. Ar. Pra.

wavzł, pl. wavżi.aŋ, y lid, cover. — sandurya wavzł the lid of the box. (Cp. wawas).

wavża v. warża.

wavj ełas, wał s., to chew; to distort by force, — inałkiżigałs wavj ełał.i he chews with his gums. (Cp. -wał).

wadiyas v. wałł.as.

ruw wawa ełas Hz. & N. to bark (of a dog). (Cp. Sh. wać thezki, wawaŋ Ih., to bark).

wawela ełas to make lamentation. 294.15. Ar. Pra.

wafać manaw to die, pass away. — wafać maniui he died. 294.17. Ar. Pra.

wakiel, -ło, -ło bus agent (at wedding). 302.17. Ar. Pra.

wast, wagł, y time. — ite wastolo at that time, in those days. ite wastiwa from that time on, thereafter. Cp. 60.27, 86.7, 142.9, 208.20, 346.7, 390.20. Ar. Pra.

-walas, w'ałas, (walas), -walj-, w'ałj-, Ppa. w-wał.

1. To fall. This verb is used only with h and x subjects. It is replaced by the verb 2. halowa when 000 the subject is y. The Pn.pf.s appear to be used optionally when the subject is h.

čvrafum xa (or, khau) walimi he fell down from the cliff. khau (xa) walum ṭapik bread that h . fallen down. Cp. 168.4. bum uyafi nywal the boulder falling on them. 160.7. čifafum xa n'iwal he having fallen down from the ladder. xa nywuwl she having fallen down. 184.7. yawe walas (of a child) to fall down, i.e. be born. 110.4. umurikane walas to fall on their faces. čapa walai.i he has fallen on his back.

2. To find oneself in, land in, turn up in, come down.

ji jeimo wafanar čiji awalam in a dream I landed up in my own country. 20.8. Cp. 20.2. uyum hasivnar walimi he found himself in, came upon(?), a big garden. 54.4. uno belafi guriq walimi how did it come into your possession (lit. hand). nivonaq wali bi a rainbow has come down, i.e. appeared. hariar walanr when he had come to his senses. 182.13. čvrči niwal coming to his senses. 368.1.

3. To become affected by a disease.

yfalanj walai.i he has become affected by syphilis. askur awala be I have caught smallpox. askur cwalai.i he has caught smallpox, (or, askura awala ba, iwalai.i?) yaliu iwalai.i he has fallen ill. QUB.

4. To lose (in a game) be beaten.

axir K. M. walimi in the end K. M. lost (at polo). 388.12.

370a

000 bolaʿ awalam I lost at polo. QUB.
N. *-walas to lose (a game).

5. To settle down.
iʿlɛ bɔ̃ai.olum hirɛnale walimi, 366.9, and kin hurutas hirane teʿle niʿn walimi, 372.12, represent the H. "bāsnda ke hāʿ ja paya", but may be a too literal rendering of the H. idiom.

*-wʿaldas, pl. *-wʿaldaso, x.
1. The back (anat.). 276.7. ja awaldase tin my back-bone.
2. Body and hindquarters of an animal.
baskarale iwʿaldas a body of a wether less the fore-quarters.340.10.

walgi, waʿlgi, -čig y thin rope. — kan ke kan kan walgi učiʿas miraʿs bila it is the custom for each village to give one rope (for tying up horses or dogs). 342.20. Cp. 52.1.
Also used as a depreciative substitute for gaik.
Walgi lukan ačhi give me a bit of (thick) rope. QUB.

walʿiʿ -tiŋ, -mots hm holy man, saint. — Xodaʿya walʿi bam he was a holy man of God. 294.15. Ar. Prs.

wan IUB, N. pl. -aʿints, x pumpkin, gourd, H. kaddu, N. gourd without waist. According to QUB the equivalent of Hz. hoʿwr.
(Cp. Sh. wan, pumpkin, H. kaddu).

wan stas (to strike), violently and noisily, QUB. IUB. — wan čome deluman. QUB.

wʿano IUB ugly, shapeless, H. beqaʿrat. QUB like a pumpkin (wan). — yi la wʿano that's enough you lout!

waq separated, gaping, a little open. — (kitaʿp) waq du asimi (the book) remained a little open (as when shut with sat inside it). čhiʿn ičhunjoj wʌq sči bi the bird opens its bill. QUB. čərtsu iriŋčiŋs ités kités wʌq ns dun spreading (his arms) out on either side and laying hold of the cliff with his hands. 146.7. wʌq numa ovroj dont sit with your legs apart.

(Cp. Sh. wʌk thoɔrki, to open out, separate, e.g. the legs).

wʌqo very talkative, chatterer, H. bakwəɔsi.

(Cp. Sh. wʌk wʌk thoɔrki, to talk, buck; Wkh. wʌq-, to talk, chatter).

wər -ʌnts x full-grown ram (entire), H. sunuḍ, nər bhesru. — rusə wər Ovis Poli ram.

(Cp. Wkh. wər, wʌr, and perhaps Kho. werkalu ram).

*-w'ərə, *-wərə, round, around. — iru giili iw'ərə tsir durəumu kʌš čʌ.nu bringing the goats round the peg they (then) used to slaughter them. 194.15. ja ji, guw'ərə my soul! I (go) round thee. 230.5. This is a term of honour or respect.

*-wərə talesnʌs to go round, pay honour to; to petition, to pester. V. s.v. talesnʌs.

(Cp. owərʌs and bərʌs, and v. § 241, note).

wərʌq, -iŋ, -čiŋ, y page, leaf (of book). Ar. Prs.

*-w'ərʌs, *-w'ərč-, Ppa. n-wər(in)* to become tired. — aw'ərčʌm I shall become tired. guwərčuma you will become tired. lokan awərʌm, awərə ba I became, have become, a little, tired. hirʌs girni, iw'ərimi one man poured it in, he became tired. 140.8. uyon uwərʌn they have all become tired. Ppa. naw'ərin hurufʌm becoming tired I sat down. nukuwərin you becoming tired. niwərin he becoming tired. numuor tels kurutume being tired she sat down there. 108.12,17. 000 (Trans. -ASPURAS, v.t. to tire s.o.).

wark -ānts n.

1. Fat on the big intestine (colon) of animals.
2. A kind of sausage consisting of the big intestine filled with flour, meat, etc.
3. Werke ḷapik a kind of food given to the Mir at the Thumushēling.

wārts, warts, right, in order, in proper condition; right side out; repaired, recovered, better; Sh. warts, suberu. — ils gan warts bila this road is in good order. EOL. guse ḷapa warts bi this chogn is right side out. EOL. warts etum kursi a mended chair. wrgs guse kursi warts etas gumanḷ (or, guse . . . bi) you ought to repair this chair. yalirtsum warts -MANAS to recover from illness. warts imamaiya? warts umamaua? has he got better? have they got better?, i.e. is he, are they better? warts numartan making her well, curing her. 184.9. ji warts MAMAN wēčam when I am better I shall go. warts aparts čayamig aiy'eti don't talk at random, confusedly.

(Cp. the corresponding negative: aparts, apawts. Cp. also Wkh. warts; Sh. wawts, warts, neg. nawawts; and Kho. wawts, warts).

wasiwasi, wasuwa Adj. & noun y insane, lunatic, imbecile; insanity, imbecility. Ar. Pres. — wasuwa(i) čai.i, imai.ibai.i; bila he acts as an imbecile, he is an imbecile; it is imbecility. QUB.

-wat -ur back-tooth, molar. V. s.v. -AWAL. (Cp. wat etas).

371 b

000 *-wəli.as, wusi.as, wəli.as (wəli.as) wəlč-, Impv. wəli, Ppa. n-wəli, St. Pc. wəlim.

1. To throw, fling, cast. This verb is used only when the object is h or x, it is replaced by brləiyas when the object is y.
xaf wəli throw it down. xaf iwəli (a + iwəli) don't throw it down; don't drop it, don't knock him down. wlo wəlimi he threw him in (to the pit). 56.20. Cp. 84.5. wəlhan wəli throw it far away. kəl čər wəlimi, ny'u.čin he threw him down to slay him, having thrown him down. 42.3. i·ne γiγə·s ixəltsum hə·lə wə·limi he spewed out the infant from his mouth. 110.6. gusi xa awə·li lə if this (elephant) threw me down. 76.25. n'awə·lin, n'awə·lin having thrown me. 76.15,18. sulama dusuman wuwəlimi, nuwuwəlin they wrestled and he threw her, having thrown her. 198.5. Cp. 9. γuγ ninin jut i·i ši·lo wəlčai.i the father going throws his younger son on his neck, i.e. embraces him. 368.9. Cp. 373.12. qərqa·mutsi tiγn wəlči bi, wəlimi the hen lays, laid, an egg. γəlamiγu.s awəli.an the Pleiades have overcome, overthrown me. Cp. 112.17, 114.24.

2. To put, set, apply, fix.
kəγuwələ iljl wuwəlimi he put her behind him on the horse. 146.14. bandixanəγ wəli bən they have put him (thrown him) into prison. γunə (or, γunulo) wəliman they put (him) in the stocks. kəγur žiγur nyu.ə·čin put-

372a

000 ting the horse into his sleeve. 124.6. je ko·le awʿašin deposit, i.e. bury, me here. 294.18. gunts ke han qū.e wašimi, wašča baiyam each day he put down, used to put down, one pebble (to keep a record of the days). 52.9,20. hiŋ ṭam ne qulp wašimi closing the door he applied the lock, i.e. he locked it. 52.6. Cp. 56.24. ṭamer kunts nyuwašin placing an arrow in his bow. 260.11,14. han yatrsan waši bam detsirčər they had put on a head in order to cook it. 232.3. gaf waši.as to put on, i.e. to tie, a knot. i·ts ganər kər gunts durbin waščam every day he used to apply a telescope to that road. 36.5. (Cp. Engl. "cast one's eye on"). Cp. 310.8,10.

3. To hang, suspend, attach, affix. gaškulo i·khər wašimi he hanged himself on a rope (suicide). gi·lulo wašim bi it is hanging on a nail, peg. golptas čeʿi wašim bim the key was hanging on (or, attached, affixed to?) the lock. 54.6. ti·li.ani ʿeʿər tur wešiman they hung the whip on the saddle-bow (by the loop attached to its handle). 78.22. Cp. 78.26.

4. (Metaphorical) to put, set, someone on (to doing s.t.). sabaqaṭi wešimo she set him to study. 68.21. A·ltitolo Š. ke H. bitan uwaščər olm.am they had taken Sh. and H. to Altit to make them perform as "bitans". 186.1. bitan muwaščarn they put a (she-) "bitan" to dance, etc. 316.11. (Cp. *-awaši.as).

372b

*-wʌšhicig y pl. gums (anat.). IUB H. 000 wʌshyre.

1. wʌt, -ig. y bark of tree, peel, rind, husk. — bisʌn wʌt ɛŋ ɛukiluɛ ɛeči.ɛn ki whatever husks the swine eat. 372.14. limbuɛ wʌt lemon-peel. EOL. tiŋɛ wʌt EOL. tiŋ'ʌnɛ wʌt QUB. egg-shell. (Cp. Kho. wʌt).
2. *-wʌt -iŋ y body, person. — *-wʌtʌtɛ tsʌhil thiyʌs to pour water over one's body, i.e. to wash oneself (in private). Cp. 306.18. guwʌtʌtɛ tsil tin, mawʌtʌtɛ tsil tin wash yourself, wash yourselves. EOL. kinɛ but khentsum iw'ʌtɛtɛ (mawʌtɛtɛ) tsil ɔ'tin bai (bo) he (she) hasn't washed for a long time. EOL. hər'iɛ pfʌl nuka hʌlɛ iw'ʌt wʌnimi ki when the barley having come into grain has turned yellowish (like a fox's body). 326.4. (Cp. Sh. wʌt, body (with flesh), woody part of stem).
3. wʌt -iŋ. — wʌt ɛtʌs to plough (in order only to soften the ground). wʌtɛŋ ɛtʌšo bitsʌn (the fields) are to be ploughed.

wʌtʌn -iŋ y country, land. — imo wʌtʌn his own country. 20.2,8. imo wʌtʌnolum ɛʌ sis those men of his own country. 162.15. Cp. 356.6. Ar. Prs.

wʌzir -tiŋ hm Wazir, minister, councillor, Mir's chief adviser and executive officer. 2.10 ff., 44.10 ff., 322.5, 328.16, 338.17, 340.4, 342.9, etc. Ar. Prs.

wʌzirɛiki pertaining to the Wazir. 340.23. (Ar.).

wʌzirɛkoŋ y wazirship. 44.24. (Ar.).

wʌziri y wazirship. 344.9, 346.2. (Ar.) Prs.

wʌli ʌs v. wʌli.ʌs.

373a

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

Y.

1. ya exclamation, O! — ya zzri O mother! 30.15. ya pa·lša O King! 42.19. Cp. 38.21, 86.13,21, 90.24. (Cp. Sh. ya). 000
2. ya· or. — altʌn ya iskɛn yu two or three of his sons. 44.8. ya· . . . ya· . . . either . . . or . . . ya· kɛ o(ʔ) . . . or not (no example recorded). Cp. 2.4, 128.12, 338.18, 342.6. Prs. H.
3. ya, pl. yai.in ya·in enough! stop! shut up! hold your tongue!; H. bʌs, nʌhī; bʌs, čho·ro. — u·g ya, o·sʌn you hold your tongue, don't speak. 68.9. ya·in, yai.in lɛ! enough, shut up. 158.2,6 ff. yaiyɛ = ya yɛ, enough now, (let him be). 158.21. ya aiyɛti enough! don't do it, i.e. stop (doing it). ak'omai.ima, ya šərum you won't be able to do it, don't (try), it will be a cause of shame. 170.17. (Glossed: H. bʌs, šərm hai).

   (Cp. Sh. ya, enough! H. bʌs!).
4. ya occurring in some passages of uncertain meaning:

   b'eya, jimʌlɛ gotsu·čʌm No, I'll certainly take you tomorrow. (Perhaps 3. ya). 170.13. ya (=yɛ) hisa mʌnom tsʌnč ʌki·l bʌskʌretə gu·čʌm now at the end of each month I'll give you a similar wether. 62.22. ya aku·romaʔ is it this much? is that all? 56.18. (H. bʌs ɪtnaʔ ya = 3. ya, QUB). yʌnčər ničʌma ya·ʔ shall I go to meet him or not? 94.13. (Perhaps o·ničʌm is to be supplied after ya·).

   ya·na· IUB, ya na· ŠY, —?, H. bʌs na·, bʌs a.o. (Probably 3. ya). Cp. QUB yɛ y'ʌ na·ʔ = H. pʌs bʌs naʔ akhu·romʌn gu·čʌm. yɛ y'ʌ na·ʔ I'll give you this much. That's enough isn't it? i.e. do you agree?

373 b

000 5. yâv, pl. yʌmots, x bear (zool.). — hʌn yaʷn a bear. yâʷ baf bear-skin. yaʷ iʷsk bear cub. N. yâʷ biśkɪ bear's fur. Cp. 152.9—14, 228.1 ff.

yab'ʌ -mots x, IUB wild yak, H. jʌngʌli xoŝgaʷ; QUB any large wild monster — hʌyuʷr dʌy noma yab'ʌ taiʷeni bi th horse becoming fat has turned into a monster. QUB.

yaʷbolto the day before yesterday. (Appears to be the approved Hz. form for yaʷrbulto q.v.).

yaʷd y remembrance, memory. — ja yaʷd bila I remember. gus muyʊr yaʷd dimi he remembered the woman and her husband. 388.5. Prs. yaʷdgaʷri y memento. Prs.

yaʷi v. yʌyɪ.

yaʷinki IUB, v. yai.ingki.

-yaʷlmuʷn*, pl. -y'aʷlmuʷyo* x rib. (anat.). — uuyaʷlmuʷyo gʌli biʷn her ribs had broken. 184.7. hʌn yaʷlmuʷnʌn kʌm mʌnimi one rib (of the goat) was missing. 234.7 ff.

-yaʷltʌs*, yaʷltʌs, -yaʷlć-, Impv. -yaʷlt neg. eyʌlt, oyʌlt, Pps. n-yʌlt(in)* v.t. to wash.

This verb is used where the object is h or x. It is replaced by baʷlts when the object is y. The Pn. P i- does not appear initially before g: guyaʷlćʌm I'll wash thee. gʌtu yaʷ wash the cloth. -xʌŝiq yaʷltʌs* t wash the backside. niʷyʌltin having washed him (or, it).

-yaʷnɪs*, pl. yaʷnjoko, yaʷniko equal to. — hʊrɪ ki yaʷnɪs gʊruʷum mai bila it is as warm as an ox's breath.

1. yaʷr, v. yaʷrɪ, down, below. — yaʷr nɪ qau ɪtimi he called down (wards). 40.8. yaʷr nɪ bʊrɪyʊr kʌŋ ɪti beware of looking down. 50.26. tik yaʷr (or,

000 tiki yaʷrə) baiyʌm I was under the ground. 16.16.

(Probably the basal form of which 1. yaʷr is the general oblique).

2. yaʷr, an occasional variant of yər, cp. 2. yaʷri. — gom mʌnaʷs yaʷr yaʷr just before dawn. 118.7.

Probably also in yaʷrbolto.

3. yaʷr -ilo h. friend, lover. 86.5,12. 360.3. Prs.

yaraʷn, pl. yaraiyo. yaraʷntiŋ, h friend. Prs.

*-yaʷrʌnʌs v. *-yərʌnʌs.

yaʷrbolto, N. yerbu(l?)to the day before yesterday.

(2. yaʷr + bolto. Cp. hipolto).

yaʷrčtliŋ the day before the day before yesterday.

(2. yaʷr + čtliŋ which possibly is to be compared with Sh. čiʷriŋ, the day after tomorrow, in which the č- is connected with čə.i, three).

1. yaʷrə Adv. and Postpos. below, beneath, under, down.

Dat. yaʷrər to below; Abl. yaʷrəm from below.

a. Adv. uʷn yaʷrə ui you go below. yaʷrə yuʷtiŋ jutiŋ bitsʌn below, his feet are small. 156.19. yaʷrə Bul Mʌlulo meniko kər oʷyərčʌn down below in the Spring Field some people are ploughing with oxen. 248.2. tešʌfom yaʷrə wʌlimi he fell down from (on) the roof. yaʷrə osimi he put (the things) down. 138.24. Cp. 260.5, 264.2,3. *yaʷrə -ʌtʌs to bury. saʷʌti irai.i, kuʷlto yaʷrə ʌtʌs bila (or, mʌnif), he (has) died yesterday, today he should be buried. iʷi yaʷrə ʌtəm mʌlər niʷmʌn they went to the field where he had buried his son. 252.3. Cp. 82.14, 112.16,19, 240.9, 3746

252.5. 292.17, 344.7 etc. yaʻrɛ wʌlʌs to be born (of a child). mu yaʻrɛ wʌlum inɛ gyaʻs the child that had just now been born. 110.4. yaʻrum yʌfɛ upside down. uyoʻn yaʻrum yʌfɛ numa everything turning upside down. 286.9. yaʻrum diʻusʌsər to get him out from below. 264.1.

b. Postp. mirɛ yaʻrɛ beneath, under, the table. tirk yaʻrɛ under the ground. -riŋ yaʻrɛ* under one's hand, in one's possession, under one's control. gurriŋ yaʻr oʻs keep it in your possession. menʌn yaʻrɛ giyʌs to take refuge with (under?) s.o. miriŋ yaʻrɛ eʻorutum sis the persons placed under our hands, i.e. hostages. eʻkʌtiŋ yaʻrɛ nidilin putting it under his arm(pits.) 118.4. Cp. 110.9, 146.10. iʻsɛ bun yaʻrər giyʻʌmʌn they went in under the boulder. 160.1. kərʌltiʻaʻrɛ dyuʻesimi he remained under the rain. 160.3. iʻsɛ Hʌnumʌn Muʻn yaʻrər nimi he went in under that H. M. (mountain). 180.7. Xʌmərɛ iʻ yaʻrɛ eʻtʌm tik yaʻrum senimi Kh.'s son, whom he had buried, said from beneath the ground. 252.5.

2. -yaʻrɛ, yaʻrɛ.*

a. Before, in front of, in the presence of Dat. -yaʻrər;* Abl. -yaʻrum.* uʻŋ guyaʻrər wʌlimi (the ibex) fell in front of you. 104.2 uʻŋ guyaʻrɛ je bɛsʌn atʻaćʌna ba I have not required anything in your presence, at your hands(?). 76.5. taʻaʻmʌn guyaʻrɛ di biluma? has some food come before you? 84.9. uyoʻŋko uyaʻrɛ ki kʌnikots oʻsaʻn they set dishes in front of the elders also. 340.13. Cp. 302.13. paʻdša yaʻrum γiʻki nɛ joća? stealing from (before) the king, do you give to me?. 62.16. šoguˑlo yaˑrom gukɛ ɣenʌg čʌp aiˑeˑčʌm I shall not conceal this gold from (before) my friend. 54.9. Cp. 68.18,19, 192.6. miyaˑrom nokawts fleeing from before us. 262.23. Cp. 262.17, 264.19.

(2. yaˑrɛ might be, an oblique form of 2. yaˑr, itself a stressed form of yər, yɛr.

QUB, however, considers it identical with 1. yaˑrɛ).

3. yaˑrɛ besides, beyond this, further. — yaˑrɛ beskɛ lɛˑl omʌnimi nothing further became known. 198.6. yaˑrɛ aˑlto rom . . . . . abaˑd mʌnuwaˑn further, two tribes have settled down. 272.12. yaˑrɛ bʌmʌn kuˑr these who are in addition, i.e. these others. 172.7.

It occurs chiefly in conjunction with uyom "all" with the sense: "besides these all" i.e. "all the rest", "all the others".

yaˑrɛ ta uyomər maˑl umi he gave property to all the other hundred (brethren). 112.5. yaˑrɛ uyom idiˑm čumʌr imʌnimi all the rest of his body became iron. 110.10. Cp. 286.12, 328.5, 332.8, 336.6.

(This is probably to be identified with 2. yaˑrɛ and yər "in front", "ahead", and so "beyond".

It is probably only a coincidence that there is in Sh. a word aɣɛ which is somewhat similarly used).

yaˑri -mots x first light of morning. — sa yaˑritsɛ lʌm mai bitsum (the hair) was glittering in the early morning sunshine. 134.10.

*-yaˑriki, *-yaˑrɛki, -ɣ, -miɣ, -čiɣ, y under-bedding, bedding. — uˑyaˑriki uˑyʌʃiki uyom taiˑaˑr oˑtʌm he had prepared for them under-bedding and OOO upper-bedding complete. 36.13. Cp. uʸ'aʷɛ uʸʌtɛki. 120.24. Cp. 118.5, 124.12,20.

yaʷokoʷɛ, pl. yaʷokuʸʌnts, x lower millstone.

1> yaʷqɤ̄ʂ a little in front, ahead. — yaʷqɤ̄ʂ mʌn'ɛ get a little in front. yaʷqɤ̄ʂ bai.i he is a little ahead.

1. yaʷɤm Adj. lower. — yaʷɤm ɛ.ɤl my lower lip. yaʷɤm miʷqiʷmo miʷmɛ our lower front-teeth. yaʷɤm iʷmɛlç̄ his lower jaw. (Adj. from 1. yaʷɛ).

2. yaʷɤm Adj. (that) which is in front. QUB (that) which is below. Ar. H. taḥt. — thʌm yaʷɤm čʌp the meat that is in front of the Mir. 340.13. (Adj. from 2. yaʷɛ. Otherwise identical with 1. yaʷɤm).

yaʷya IUB an exclamation of anger. QUB reduplication of 3. ya. — jaʷ naʷun yaʷya aʷtimi giving to me he made me say yaʷya, i.e. he gave me so much that he forced me to say "stop, stop".

yʌçh'ɛni, Obl. yʌçhɛnimo-, hf the Yachini, a female demon.

The Yachini resided at the mouth of the Karga Nullah near Gilgit. Gil'it yʌç'ɛnimulər nicər duʷsimi he came out to go to the Gilgit Yachini. 222.6. Cp. 222.7 ff.

(Cp. Sh. yʌçini, Skr. yakṣiṇī female Yaksha).

yʌči on, upon; on the head. — čhiḷɛ yʌči up on the hill. yʌči ɛtʌs to put on (a cap). pfərtsin yʌči ɛtimi he put on the cap. 28.16,21, 32.3.

(Perhaps yʌf, or, yʌs + -tsɛ, -tsi).

yʌʸɛ, yaʷʸi rebellious, unruly, insubordinate, independent. Prs.

*-yʌk y dwelling, abiding; dwelling-place, lying-up (place) of game ani-

376 a

1 [see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 544 - Analyst]

mals. IUB H. wʌtʌn, thairne ka jʌga; QUB sokuʷnʌt, ɪstɪqaʷmʌt. — guyʌk ɪti keep still, H. qʌraʷ baiṭho. QUB. buʷmɪ, giri.ɪ, yʌkɪ (or, yʌk ɪtʌs) dɪs a markhor's, ibex's, lying-up place.

*-yʌkʌl direction of, towards, the part of, side (in game).

*-yʌkʌl, *-yʌkʌlər, *-yʌkʌlʌṭɪ, *-yʌkʌlʌṭər with verbs of motion in the direction of towards, to. guyʌkʌl bəreʷya bɑ I am looking at you. 50.6. taŋ yʌkʌlʌṭər pfər maiyʌn let us go back towards the palace, let us return to the palace. 8.3. yʌkʌl 50.6,13,14, 90.1, 94.10, 120.6, 144,3, 146.17. yʌkʌlər 174.21; yʌkʌlʌṭɪ 154.22, 180.3. yʌkʌlʌṭər 22.11, 32.4, 36.3,7, 38.7, 134.12 etc. *-yʌkʌltsʊm, *-yʌkʌlʌṭʊm, *-yʌkʌlʊm from the direction of; on the part of, on behalf of. ayʌkʌltsʊm uŋər guyʌm I gave it to you from myself. badšɑ yʌkʌltsʊm nuʷnin they going from the king. 24.10. uŋ jaʷr guyʌkʌltsʊm jai.ɪnʌn ʌči give me a token from ourself. 22.7. badšɑ yʌkʌlʌṭʊm on he part of the king. 34.14. Cp. 302.11. dʌsin muyʌkʌlʊm hin jaʷmʌn a relation on the part of (i.e. to represent) the bride. 302.16.

[292] yʌktai.i, yaxtai.i, -miŋ, -miči̇ŋ y cotton slip worn by bridegroom over his dress. 300.6.

(So also in Sh. and Kho.). Prs. yʌl, *-yʌl, -miŋ, N. pl. -miŋ, -miči̇ŋ y shadow, shade; protection, favour, patronage. — uŋɪ yʌlʊlo in your shadow. toʷmɪ yʌlʊlo horuṭ sit in the shade of the tree. dʌmʌn yʌltɪ by the favour of one's master, by his blessing, IUB. H. mʌhrbʌʷnise. dʌmʌnɪ yʌlʊlo in the shade of, under the protection of one's master. IUB. uy'altsi in the shade of, by the blessing of, by means of them. IUB. H. sarya mī, barakatse, zari'ase.

*-yalas, yalas, (yal-). yalj-, Impv. yal, neg. eyal(in).

The Pn. Pf. i- does not appear initially before y.

1. V.t. to break, H. torna. — tin(an) eyal don't break the egg (x). hin eyal don't break the door (y). pinčko uyaljam I shall break the polo-sticks (x). ḡamey yaljam I shall break the bows (y).

2) To plunder, rob, loot, H. luṭ k., ɣarat k.

3. ts.hil yalas to water, irrigate (land).

The term used for turning irrigation water on to a field. It possibly refers to making a breach in the bank of an irrigation channel, which is again stopped up with mud and stones.

mal ts.hil yalas bila the field is to be watered. imo malolo tsil yaljam he was turning on the water in his own field. 198.1. gerumo tsil yalasi dastur the customary practice in regard to distributing the water in springtime. 350.1. malor ts.hil yalas to irrigate the field. korkior ts.hil yelam they have watered (the land) for ploughing. korkia tsil niyal Baltitor derčam releasing the water for ploughing they send it on to B. 350.7. Cp. 262.5, 266.18, 350.7, 352.3—5.

(The corresponding intrans. verb is, galas v.i. to break).

y'alo, yaluwo without state or dignity, H. bersaya, bi-šam o šaukat.—bayork y'alo!

377a

yamal fairyland. — yamale ʂoŋaʂe on the way to fairyland. 000 yambu x "yambu". Chinese silver monetary unit, H. čini aṣka čandi ka.

yam eyam v. yaiyas 3.

yamkhitso(r), yamikhetu(r) IUB and SY. greedy, covetous, Ar. Prs. ḥariṣ. (Not known to QUB).

yamyor, N. yamiyor, -iso x handmill, quern. — yamyor etas to grind with quern. (Cp, Sh. yor, mill; yamyor handmill).

1. yan, yen, -ants, N. pl. -aints, -eints and -oŋo, x handle, grip, hilt, haft (of pick, hammer, polo stick, sword, dagger). — ɣfinče yan handle of polo-stick. ɣatenče yan grip of sword.

2. yan -ants x. — ɣamus yan the place where water flows out of a glacier.

1. *-yanas, *-yenas, (*-yænas), *-yai(y)-, Impv. yan, yen, neg. eyan, Ppa. *n-yan

The Pn.pf. i- does not appear initially before y.

To take, take up, carry; get, obtain, procure.

This verb is used only when the object is h or x. It is replaced by the verb ganas when the object is y. hayor goka yen take the horse with you. jamiye tobaq yan borrow an outsider's gun. gurriŋ yan take it (x) in your hand. krrayar yaiya ba I am hiring . . . aita huyesi yætomots ja gans barawtsum uyen get two goats' heads for me from the bazar. Nz. ʂoga yaiyam. eyan I shall take the choga. Don't take it. phiti eyan EOL, phiti eyan N., don't take the bread. ine wazir tham yanuman they took the wazir ooo as king. 10.6. Cp. 386.2. u·a guyaiyam I'll take you up. yatkurine belis yæmimi the superintendent (gardener) took up the (dead) sheep. 64.21. L. B. uyanumo L. B. took them up. 174.22. muyan take her up. je numuyen tarqər mutsurćam taking her I shall carry her off to the palace. 24.13.

377b

yanas occurs very frequently in the Ppa. form, usually followed by a verb of motion also frequently in the Ppa. form:
iru latəfər taiv nuyen nun Hindikutsi Dadimor ĵućam the people of Hindi taking goats and going to to that hillock used to sacrifice(?) them to Dadi. 196.4. niyen, niyen taking him, it. 10.3, 60.1, 208.6,9, 212.9,21, 226.28, 252.1,3, 268.5, 284.16, 286.11. dorq numuyen taking her up on his shoulders. 244.14. nuyen taking them. 30.3, 200.12, 248.21, 274.4, 316.12, 336.2, 348.6, 352.15.

2. *-tsi yanas to take with one, i.e. on one's person, as opposed to *-aka yanas (etc.) to take with one, in one's company, e.g. 336.2. — u·ala łapik utsi yanas aylta pftimots bim they had with them as food for the day two pieces of bread, 28.20, 30.1. utsi yanas (łapik) food that one takes with one on a journey etc., picnic food, "shepherd's bread". ćeli itsu yæmimi he took the key (away) with him. 52.7. łapik, -tobaq, gutsi yen take bread, take the gun, with you. But: łayor gosha yan (or, ditsu) take the horse with you.

3. ramu yanas (ganas) to freeze. — ramu yæni bi ice has seized, on, formed on . . .

000 The object frozen, on which the ice forms, apparently takes the suffix -tsi, but still if y requires the use of ganas. V. s.v. ganas 5.

4. *-mi numuyen. This expression is used absolutely as a severe term of abuse. It may, however, also be used in a friendly, affectionate way. — ras imi numuyen "taking its mother". 64.18. wa gumi numuyen senimi ki if he said: "O, taking thy mother" (a gloss on "yun'ikti senimi ki". 354.6).

*-yanči, *-yenči. Going to meet (a person of consequence on his arrival), formal reception (corresponding to the Persian istiqbal); going to meet, meeting (ordinary). — *-yanči.ar (or, *-yenčar) niyas to go to meet and receive a person arriving. *-yanči.ar (or, *-yenčar) juyas to come to meet etc. but uyum hir dia, yenčar niči a very great man has come, let us go to meet (and welcome) him. 90.6. Cp. 94.11 ff., 330.7,8. G. M. M. yanči.ar nimi G. M. M. went to meet him (ordinary sense). 170.2. Cp. 212.5. aiyanči manimi he met me (e.g., on the road). guyenči manam I met thee.

Probably connected with *-yanas, perhaps yan + či ← yan + tsi.

1> yaqin sure, certain. — yaqin bila it is certain. Ar. Prs.

yar, yer, yor ni.

1. Adv. (of place). In front, ahead, before, forwards, (opposed to ilji). — yor mani get in front. yor ni go in front. je yor ni.am, in ilji di.a I went on ahead, he came behind. karu . . . yor ni gutsarči bim lice were proceeding forwards

378 b

1 [see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 544 - Analyst]

(or, before) from him. 116.8. uv umiśiṇdo yər nimiło . . . ererdutsum . . . uyər in front of those six sons-in-law who had gone on ahead. 124.4. yər buʷlʌn bila on in front there is a spring. 124.22. Cp. 122.4,20, 150.21, 212.15,22. 000

2. Adv. (of time). Formerly, previously, first. — gus yər us mi deli bʌm we had shot this ibex first (i.e., before you did). 104.2. yər ins gus nokuʷčʌn hilesʌn dimʌnʌm first the woman having been brought to bed a boy had been born. 104.21, yər dimʌnum . . . ins the one who had been born first. 110.19. Hunzulo yər us dastur bilum in Hunza formerly it was the custom. 354.1. Cp. 128.1, 282.22.

3. Adj. Preceding (a fixed point of time). — tʌmini yər den ka last year and the year before. 214.12.

   It seems that yər den may be used both for: last year, and for, the year ahead i.e. next year.

   V. § 413. According to QUB miyərər = next year.

4. yər, *-yər with postpositional force, accompanied by the ablative, or by a Pn.pf., (place) in front of, ahead of; (time) before. — ʼadərdutsum yər sʌtʌn itsumi it carried him off far ahead of his servants. 8.6. otsimo yər zuʷk numʌn pushing on in front of them. 124.5. di.usiṇ estum yər aiyomʌnʌm he had been unable to carry it (the water channel) beyond that (boulder). 352.13. ererdutsum tum gʌnʌns uyər di.usimi by another road he came out ahead of them, the sons-in-law. 124.4. aiyor ʌan borʌan bilu on ahead of me there is a spring. 124.14. Cp. 126.19, 127 note. 000

So: aiyor 124.17, 194.11. uyor 6.8, 124.5,7, 162.16,18,20, 200.12, 3:6.6.

ivas ʃuyastrum yor before his coming. ivas ovilolum yor divai he came before two days i.e. two days before. gobiteum yor before this, previously. padiu intum yor gots xaber deyl the king hearing this news before him. 40.4. Tapki.ents ovesʌnastum yor ni before the slaying of the Tapki.ents. 242.9.

(Cp. 2. yav and 2. yavv; also urji yor. Sh. yor, yor, adv. and postpos., before, in front of, first).

yorayor IUB, yoraiyor QUB, first of all. — uyovatum yor'ayor divai he came first of (them) all. QUB.

*-yorʌnʌr, *-yorv-, Impv. *-yorʌn.

1. To shear (sheep and goats). II. bkry ʌakri ka bol karʃna.
2. To fleece, oppress.

yor'ʌg sweating(?). After a horse has been worked hard it is believed to be injurious to it to let it feed or drink until it has cooled down and has staled. To induce this it is walked up and down, or kept standing, sometimes for hours, with its head tied up so that it cannot eat or drink. 231

The word refers to this practice. — yorʌg ʃak ni qantor oli tying (the horse up to let it cool-off(?) Keep it fasting. ʌayor ovorʌi ni yorʌg ayoyal so long as the horse has not staled don't break its fast for it. ʌayor n'ovorʌnin yorʌg oyal having 000 made the horse stale break its fast for it, i.e. feed it. ʌʌyor yorʌq sin bi? you have walked the horse up and down, haven't you?

yorʌqor ostʌhuyu bo I have made them take it away (i.e. I have sent it away) to walk it up and down.

(The above examples are all from QUB). (Cp. Kho. yorʌq). Ar. Pre. 'ʌrʌq?

*-g'ʌrʌs *-gorć- v.t. to pasture, graze, H. čarwna. — ʌʌyor yorʌs to pasture a horse. ivno malengolo kwkstio ug'ʌrʌor ovimi he sent him to graze the pigs in his fields. 366.10, 372.13. Iwkstiʌr ʌuyvu mori yirʌor m'ʌtsuć'ʌm he had made his daughter take the goats to Irkish to graze them (there). 268.3, v.i. *-ʌkʌr yʌvʌs to graze. ikʌr yorći bi it is grazing. ukʌr yorćiʌn they are grazing. sʌrʌti trʌlʌ ikʌr yorimi yesterday it grazed there. ukʌr yorimiʌ they grazed.

1. yorpu, yorfu, -tig, N. pl. -mʌlʌ, his steward in charge of Mir's land, grass and water. 318.2. (Cp. Sh, yorfu, raja's steward in charge of land).

2. yorpu forwards, on in front. — y'orpu uivu biraqimi going forwards, he dug. 252.11. Cp. 122.18. yorpu fu come forward. (yor + pu).

yorpaći ! IUB in early times, in former times, H. pahle zamanamē. — yorpaći ʌkki 'ʌpivu it was not so in former times. QUB.

*-yorum, yorum, yorum.

1. Adj. (of place): front-, fore-; being in front of; next. — yorum yuqig its forelegs. ʌly'orum ʌts bʌsʌwlo at the halting place ahead of me. 124.23. yorum ʌts bʌsʌwlo at the

380 a

! [see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 544 - Analyst]

000 halting place ahead, at the next stage. 124.15, 128.7.

2. Adj. (of time):

a. Former, preceding. — γonikrš yərum ivte bətər nzkin ʳ tering into that former evil skin (of his). 160.20. yərum gusi (iʷsʳ) kʌγur jotʌn bim that former horse was small. 76.23. yərum zʌmaʷna former times, ancient times. 192.1, 218.1, 250.1, 280.1. yərum hisn last(?) month, the preceding month.

b. Of former times, old-time, IUB. H. qadimn. — yərum sis baʷn they are old-time, experienced, men. yərum bər bila it is an old saying, proverb, an old affair. yərum hivr, čʌγa, duʷro a man, story, affair of former times.

c. Before one in the future, next. — yərum hisa, dən next(?) month, year. miyərum dən the year ahead of us, next year. (V. yər).

*-yʌs head. (Only recorded. With the suffix -ʌte). — Šamtu Mirruʷ y'ʌsʌte lʌkpiʷʌn pfaʷl etimi Sh. M. threw a handkerchief over his head. 148.24. yʌsete tik nu putting earth on his head. 26.4. (Cp. yʌči).

601 *-yʌs, gen. -yʌsmo, pl. *-yʌstəro, *-yʌstəro a man's sister, a man's wife's sister. — wʌziʷr se.ibai.i: "aiyaʷ" the Wazir says: "(O) my sister". 50.24. Cp. aiyaʷ. 56.26. ja oyəre (or, jʌmaʷʌte) yʌs my husband's sister. (i)yʌsmo mu.i his sister's son. (i)yʌsmo mo.i his sister's daughter. Siʷŋ yʌstəro (the man) Sing's sisters. 266.5. Cp. 272.6.

000 yʌsoʷl, yʌsa.ul, -rʌo, -tiŋ, hm man who distributes food at the Mir's darbar. QUB; head house-servant. EOL.

380 b

(Cp. Kho. yʌs'auwol, a private official of the Mehtar's, sort of major domo, or A. D. C, who looks after guests). T. Prs. (yʌsa'wol). 000 yʌš̌s yuwrk "horse's grain" (a tax paid to the Mir of Hunza in Gujhal). 342.19. (Wkh. yʌš̌, horse; yuwrk, yürk, barley).

yʌši.ʌs, yʌšič-, to plait, weave. (Used chiefly with x objects). — γuyʌʒ yʌši.ʌs to plait the hair. yʌšim tər plaited whip-thong. čərma yʌši.ʌs to weave goat's hair carpet.

Fut. 1. yʌšičʌm.
Pres. sg. 3. m. yʌšičai.i.
Impf. yʌšičʌm.
Pret. 1. yʌši.ʌm.

(Cp. gišaiyʌs).

yʌš̌ki, N. pl. -mots, suitable, worthy, fitting, proper, incumbent. — guts yʌš̌ki api this it not fitting. wŋtsɛ yʌš̌ki bila it is proper for you, incumbent on you. šiyʌstsɛ yʌš̌ki bi it is fit to eat, edible. gosɛ hʌγər je holjaiyʌstsɛ (or, holjaiyʌsɛ) yʌš̌ki ap'i this horse is not suitable for me to ride (sc. it is too good). 6.15. mu gots yʌš̌ki aiy'amʌna ba kɛ . . . now I have not become worthy of this that . . ., i.e. I have become unworthy . . . 368.11. uŋər yʌš̌ki bim minadar gumʌnʌs it was right for thee to rejoice. xoš̌ mimʌnʌs yʌš̌ki bilom it was right that we should rejoice. 370.15. N. je mu pʌla'ni diš̌ər ni.ʌsər yʌš̌ki dila I ought to go there now. Cp. 373.8,16, 374.15.

(With lengthened first vowel this word conveys the opposite sense. "unworthy", etc. V. BSOS VIII, 1936, p. 634. Cp. Sh. yʌš̌ki, suitable, etc.).

yʌškin IUB inhabitant, v. yeškuyu. 000 yʌʃ.

1. Adv. — yʌʃ ne up, upwards. yʌʃ hʌl delimi he jumped up. yuwse yʌt ne senomo his wife said (speaking) upwards. 40.9. yʌt ne ap'ərʌn don't look upwards. 50.27. yʌt ne thuv etimi he spat upwards. 294.6. Cp. 174.9.
2. Adj. next, succeeding. — yʌʃ gonts next day. yʌt gontse, yʌt guntsər on the next day. 12.4,15. Cp. 16.7, 284.19, 298.8, 328.13. yʌʃ gʌlči (or, gʌlčər) bešel dokoma ke next time when you come. yʌt den(ər) the next year. 242.19.

   With reference to "next year", "the year after next", v. § 413. (Cp. yʌʃe).

yʌʃʌmorʌs, yʌʃʌmorč- to wash, full, prepare leather (by kneading, trampling), H. mʌlna.

(Used with x objects; the form gʌʃʌmorʌs is used when the object is y).

yʌʃʌmorom gʌp prepared hide.

šoqa yʌʃʌmorʌs to wash a choga.

yʌʃe, yeʃe.

1. Adv. up, above, on the top. — yʌʃe ni go up. yʌʃe yʌkʌl upwards. besʌnʌʃe yʌʃe up on something. yʌte pfurt etimi he looked up. 24.4. gulturʌʃe yʌte guwse čʌrʌʃe tavŋ a with your horn push me up on to this cliff. 132.20. wlo wašimi yæti tivk givmi he flung him in (to the pit) and threw in earth on top. 56.21, 82.25, 220.2. yʌte čərolo hʌn korʌn bim up in the cliff there was a cave. 244.16. yʌʃe čuk etom pfʌrtsin a cap embroidered on the top.

3816

Abl. yʌṭrm from above. — bu·nʌn yʌtum di·mi a boulder came down from above. 294.5. Cp. 52.2, 70.20, 184.6, 246.6, 248.18.

000

2. Adj. upper, further; later. — šʌŋʌličiŋ yæti mʊš hʌn čʌma·n a ring at the upper end of the chain. 174.6. Cp. 328.14. yʌṭ tsil ṭʌs to do the second, or later, irrigation of the season. yʌṭ tsil xu till the second watering. 350.2.

Perhaps Adj. = further, other; perhaps Adv. = further, again, in: — yʌṭ hi·nər hukəm ṭimi he gave orders to another one. 106.9.

(yʌṭ seems to be identifiable with the suffix -ʌṭ, on).

*-yʌṭ, *-yʌṭə on, upon (someone). — ʌbʌl ayʌta di·mər when trouble has come upon me. 22.7. gu·yʌṭ upon you. 22.9. gʌli guyʌṭ de·rčʌm I'll throw a blanket over you.

*-yʌṭki, *-yʌṭiki, -miŋ y pl. upper bedclothes. — u·ya·riki, u·yʌtiki their under and upper bedding. 36.13. muy'a·ṭki, muy'ʌtki her ditto. 118.5. ya·riki, yʌtiki his ditto. 124.12.

*-yʌṭis, yeṭis, *-yæṭis, *-yaṭis, pl. *-yʌṭumuts, x.

1. Head. — i·nʌ yatisər bərenin look at his head. 154.21. guyʌṭis go·skərša ba I am going to cut off your head for you. 56.5. o·ltælikʌ uyætumuts no·oskərts cutting off the heads of the two of them. 174.24. hʌn yʌtisʌn a head (of a goat or sheep). 232.3. a·lta yatumuts huye·sʌ two goats' heads. 340.14. *-yeṭis lʌŋ ṭʌs to nod the head (to indicate "come here", or agreement). Cp. 56.3,4, 156.15, 158.19, 228.8, 282.15, 388.11.

382a

000 2. Leader, ringleader. — æçomai.ɛ ɛtʌšo uyʌṭiɛ the chief, ringleader of the evil-doers.

yʌṭkom ɛtʌs to turn upside down, invert, (a cup etc.).

yʌṭkus, pl. yʌṭkušo, x pestle.

yʌṭku.in, pl. yʌtkuyo, hm person in charge of, controller, superintendent. Prs. nɪgahbarn. — tsilɛ yʌṭku.in person in charge of the irrigation water. bʌsi(ɛ) yʌtku.in (head-)gardener. 64.2 ff., 380.21. (yʌṭ + ku.in).

yʌṭokus, yʌṭkus, pl. yætukuyʌnts, x upper millstone.

yʌṭom, yaṭom, N. yɛtom, upper. — yaṭom ʌrmɛ my upper teeth. (Cp. yʌṭɛ).

*-yʌṭom on behalf of. — guy'ʌtom qorbarn amʌnom may I be a sacrifice on your behalf! 282.6. Cp. 62.19. (Cp. *-yʌṭɛ).

yai.in, yarin, pl, of 3. ya.

yai.iŋ, N. yerŋ, -oto x mill, water-mill. — yai.iŋenulo γenʌŋ dorču borm she was grinding gold in a water mill. 204.4. yai.iŋ bʌs'imi the mill came to a standstill. 204.6. yai.iŋɛ ḍor hopper of mill. 262.3, 266.15. yai.iŋɛ hur mill-race. 206.10. yai.iŋ sʌl a prepared mill-stone. Cp. 334.2.

yai.iŋg'uɪn, N. yerŋgurin, -guryo, hm miller. 334.1.

yai.iŋki y pl. cleaned grain (ready for grinding), H. pirsne ke qarbɪl ṣarf hura darna. — di.us sa.ʌtsɛ yai.iŋki nɛtʌn . . . yai.iŋalɛ tsučarn taking out the grain and making it ready for grinding they take it to the mill. 334.1.

*-yaiyʌs, *-yʌč-, *-yeč-.

1. To come into possession of, receive, obtain, find. H mɪlna.

382 b

The Pn.pf. refers to the subject. OOO ayʌčʌm, aiyɐ·čʌm I shall obtain. 66.18. ayʌča bʌ I obtain. miyeča baɐn we obtain it, i.e. it is obtainable. uyetsɐm buɐt huɐši ayaiyʌm I obtained, secured, much plunder from them. ɐmiɐd api (ke) akole šʌpik gʌtu mi.ai.ʌsʌn (v. §§ 313. A. & 405), there is no hope of our getting food and clothing here. 34.11. aiyai.ečʌm I shall not get it. uy'ʌčaɐn they obtain, receive. 373.4. goɐltʌčər bɐsʌn aiyaiye.ʌm I found nothing to put on (your feet). 156.20. beɐrumʌn yʌči bi? how much does it fetch? what is it worth? Cp. 370.4.

(Cp. d-yaiyʌs*).

2. To strike against, hit.

Object with suffix -tsɐ or -ɐlo. ʌmeɐlo tər'i yʌmi the polo ball hit my tooth (or, teeth). 158.11. tsiɐrtsɐ diɐru yʌmi the bullet hit the goat. 102.23. mɐntsɐ čim'ili.ɐn ni.ɐn (Ppa.) u.iɐren kɐ . . . if, a splinter hitting anyone (pl.), they should die . . . 172.3. Cp. 172.8. With yaiyi kɐ for ni.ɐn. 172.1. uyoɐntsɐ yʌš! may it strike them all! 172.6. jatsɐ 'eɐi.ʌš ('eɐiyʌš) may it not strike me! 172.6. khʌtɐ yuɐtɐsɐlo huɐnts nin yʌmi the arrow, going, hit the leg of the bed. 260.12. mʌzɐrɐ bʌltsɐ yʌtɐs yɐči bi (the corpse's) head strikes against the covering stones of the grave. 312.14.

2. a. In the following from Nz. the verb seems to be used with a passive force:

iɐsɐ eščiŋ yʌmi its back has been affected, it is sore-backed, H. piṭh lʌggiya. gvsɛ yuʃɪs yʌmi this (horse's) foot is affected. 000

3. To fit into, (be able to) go into, get into. — guyʌćuma? can you get in (thro' a hole)? itɛ gut uyonolo uyʌmʌn kərsimolɛ yenɪsɛ maimi.ɛ there will be as many golden chairs as will fit into the whole tent. 88.6.

uyʌmʌn is probably the Static Pc. + ʌn.

o'lis hurćulo yʌmi, e'yʌmi my foot went, wouldn't go, into the boot. yʌm e'yʌm going in, not going in, i.e. going in with difficulty. bu'kulo yʌm e'yʌm numa nimi the food went down his throat with difficulty. 138.6. dəri.ɛ ulo yʌm e'yʌm numa gimi he forced himself in through the (small) window.

(Cp. d-yaiyʌs*).

yaiyɛ enough now! shut up now! 158.21. (3. yʌ + yɛ).

yɛ an exclamation: now, now then, well then, here! — yɛ ni now go! 102.5. yɛ ako'lɛ alwʌtta now here assuredly. 108.11. yɛ mu . . . nʌma'n well now . . . you going. 128.13. yɛ joyʌs ba kɛ . . . well, if you are going to give me (something). 118.23. "yɛ ga, e.i", nusɛ ićimo saying: "here take it, son", she gave it to him. 62.29. yɛ go'n, ai.i now come along, daughter. 122.2. Cp. 74.6,8, 284.13.

(Cp. Sh. yɛ, now!).

yɛlʌs v. yʌlʌs.

yɛn v. yʌn.

-yɛ'nʌs, -yɛ.i-, Ppa. n-yɛn,* to recognise, know (a person). — ja in yɛ'nʌm I recognised him. Nz. u'ɛ yɛ'nunʌn (or, lɛl ɛtumʌn) they recognised him. 160.9. ja au yɛ'numa bɛ? did you 000 know my father or not? 80.17. ja inɛ yeʸʌm I shall know him. inɛ jɛ ayeʸi bai.i he knows me. inɛ jɛ ayʌyʿai.i bai.i he doesn't know me. inɛ uʷŋ guye.i baiya beʔ does he know you or not? ja inɛ niyɛn I recognising him. ja uʷŋ nokuʷyɛn I recognising you.

*-yɛnči v. *-yʌnči.

*-yɛnɔm -iŋ y a present given to bride's mother and also to bride's mother's brother(s). — mumimo muyɛnɔm her (the bride's) mother's present. muʷŋgo uyɛnɔm her (the bride's) uncles' presents. (Cp. muyɛnɔm).

yeʸŋ N. v. yai.iŋ.

591 *-yeʸš, *-yeʸš QUB unvarying condition, settled state, permanent residence, permanent dwelling-place, abode, H. ek haʸlʌtmē rʌhna, thɪkaʸna. — hʌlʌntɛɛ yeʸš apʿi there is no constant condition of the moon, i.e. it is not always the same.

gusmo muyeʸšɛ lel apʿi; hirɛ oltʿos lel apʿi nothing is known of any fixed state of a woman; nothing is known of the burial place of a man. (Proverb).

(This was how I understood QUB to interpret the saying, otherwise one would be inclined to take muyeʸš as meaning "permanent abode", in as much as a woman transfers from her father's to her husband's home and is of course liable to reverse the change on divorce, while on the death of her husband she lives as a rule with a son. Hence she has no permanent home. The force of the second phrase is also obscure).

inɛ hirɛ yeʸš apʿi that man has no permanent abode.

384a

174
554

yeškuɜyu h pl. QUB belonging to the country, indigenes, original inhabitants. ye le, be mʌ ju'ʌn ɔr mʌnum thɔr mʌnum baɜna? mi yeškuɜyu baɜn now you there, are we newcomers and interlopers like you? (No) we are people of the country.

(The sg. not recorded must be yeškuɜn, or more probably yeškuɜin, with which compare yʌškiɜn given by IUB, v.s.v. It seems certain that this word is identical with the name Yashkūn (in Chilās, I think, Yashkīn) applied throughout the Shīn territory to that principal element in the general population which is reckoned not to be Shīn by origin.

The term Yashkūn, in this case, would have the definite and appropriate meaning "original inhabitants", as opposed to the Shīn invaders or "interlopers". Yeš being probably a Burushaski word, the appelation must have come into being among the "original inhabitants" themselves, and have been adopted later by the Shīns, in whose mouths it has acquired a certain implication of inferiority resulting from their own view of themselves as successful invaders among an original population whom they had at least reduced to a subordinate position. Any definite memory of this has I think faded and the Shīns now merely regard themselves as a socially superior caste, but the original situation is commemorated in the word Yashkūn).

000 yeṭʌl -šo x Hz. & N. mountain-sheep, oorial. — yeṭ'ʌle beliɜ female oorial. yeṭ'ʌle mʌmuši oorial lamb.

*-yeṭrs v. *-yʌṭrs.

384 b

*-yɛtsʌs v. *-ɛtsʌs. ooo yo·l y a completed cycle of time (day, month or year) reckoned from any fixed point; a period of 12 months, complete year. — hik yo·l di·mi a year has passed. yo·l ʌti bilum a year had not passed. 344.11. yo·ltsər hisa·b ɛti reckon up to one year. 106.16. iyo·ltsər for a year. 176.21. yo·ltsər at the end of a year. 176.22. yo·ltsum hʌn baye pfʌl . . . ɛr biša at the end of (every) twelve months throw it one grain of millet. 144.1.

It commonly occurs in the combination:

yo·le gʌt a complete year, H. sa·l bhar. yo·le gʌt γʌli·z amʌnʌm I have been ill for a whole year. yo·le gʌte gəntsiŋ nitsʌn counting the days of a full year. 104.15. Cp. 58.11, 108.2. gəte gəntse yo·ltsər ja aᵊpʌči.ər ju come to me at this time tomorrow. QUB. hisa yo·l at the end of a month. QUB.

*-yo·lʌs, *-yo·lj-, Impv. yo·l, Ppa. n-yo·l(in), to put on (choga, shirt, coat), don, wear.

(This verb is only used when the object is x. It is replaced by bɛlʌs when the object is y).

kərdi yo·lʌs to put on a shirt. ləqəts uyo·ljə·n they wear rags. ləqa dəma·n yolai.i he has put on rags and tatters. mɛn ta·nʌn yo·l put on an old suit of clothes (?). jɛ šəqa yo·ljʌm I shall put on a choga. ja šəqa yo·lʌm I put on a choga. u·ŋ šəqa ayo·l don't put on a choga. qʌltač'ʌməts nuyo·lin wearing short coats. 188.2. i·sɛ gʌtu yo·ljəbo she puts on that garment. 306.6. yo·lʌsər gʌtu clothing to put on. 34.3.

385a

Fut. sg. 3. yo·lji. ooo
Pres. sg. 3. m. (i)yo·ljai.i.
Pret. sg. 3. m. yo·limi.
(Cs. *-ʌ.olʌs, QUB *-ʌ.ulʌs).

yo·lekus, yo·lkus, aged one year, yearling. — hin yo·l(e)kus hile·s a yearling child. 380.18.

(Probably yo·l + kus. Cp. denkus).

1. yŏm proper for, fitting for, (given as equivalent of yʌṣki). — i·tse yom bila it is proper for him. (Cp. 2. yo·m).

2. yo·m -ʌnts x match, pair, duplicate. — guse yo·mʌn etʌs mʌniṣ it is to be made a match for, duplicate of, this, i.e. it is to be made according to this pattern. guse yo·mʌn api it does not match this, this is not a duplicate.

(Probably the same word as 1. yom).

1. *-yo·n, Adj. and Pron., all, all of, whole, whole of. V. § 178.

The forms are:

Pl. 1. (mi) miyon, mi.on we all, all of us.
2. (ma) mayon, maiyon you all, all of you.
3. (u·s) uyon, oyon they all, all of them.

The last form, uyon, is also used with singular nouns with the meaning: all the, the whole.

thʌp uyo·ns the whole night. Cp. 44.14.

*-yon follows the noun it refers to and bears the case suffixes.

Of the 1st and 2nd person forms there are only a few examples on record:

lel bai.i mi.o·nər he is known to all of us. 80.17. mi.o·ns ha·kicaŋ(ʌṣe) the houses of all of us, all our houses. 262.8. ma mayon hensʌšu·ik ba·na xair ke? you are all wise men aren't you? 158.4. maiyoᵊnɛ yɛᵊkʊmʌn you will all see. 82.4,5.

OOO

2. *-yoᵊn, yoᵊn, over, above. — hʌladʌn yoᵊn gaᵊrtsimi (the polo ball) went over the goal-stone. yoᵊn gaᵊ tsʌs to jump over. (It is considered a bad thing to step or jump over another person). guyoᵊn dʌl tʌljik duyʌn some pigeons have come over thee, up above thee. 148.4. ayoᵊn dʌl over me, above me. Biᵊʌldo yoᵊn di bʌm he had come over the Biraldo (pass). 274.4.

*-yoᵊq, *-yʊq, -ičiŋ. y toilet, titivating (includes washing and cleaning oneself and dressing up). — šuᵊa gʌtʊŋ nup'el uy'oqičiŋ ɛčan putting on fine clothes they titivate themselves. 316.4. tʌmašaᵊr uyoᵊqičiŋ nɛtʌn juᵊčan getting themselves up smartly they come to the show. 330.3. aiyoᵊq ɛtʌm I got myself up in style. inɛ sis hʌmɛš yuq ɛčai.i that man always keeps himself very tidy (is very well turned out). EOL. inɛ gus hʌmɛš muyoq ɛčʊbo that woman ditto. EOL.

(Cp. Sh. yʊk thoᵊrki to swagger in new clothes etc.; Kho. yʊq korik).

yoqkɪš, EOL yuqkɪš, pl. -ki.ʌnts, dandified.

yoqiᵊto dandified, dandy. — yoqiᵊtu.ʌn bai.i he is a dandy. QUB.

yoᵊrʌs, yɔrč- to discharge, deflect, or let water escape, through a sluice. This is equivalent to cutting it off from its original destination. — tsil yɔrčɔr niᵊmi he went to deflect the water (by a sluice), i.e. to cut the water off from the mill. 204.5. gotsilɛ ts.hil hɔrɛ xa yoᵊraᵊn they have discharged the water of the irrigation channel down the nullah. QUB.

000 (Probably connected with -ʌrʌs. Cp. d-ʌrʌs in ts.hil dewʌs).

342 yoʷrči, yɔʷrči -ŋ y a narrow section of the floor space at the lower end of the living-room (of a "Wakhi" pattern house) which is sunk somewhat below the level of the rest of the floor. Persons entering the house pass from the door into this space, and before advancing further strangers salute the master of the house, who will be seated on the superior platform (uyuʷm mʌn) to the left of it. — yoʷrčilo dʌldi.ʌn standing in the lower end of the room. 340.2.

(Correct the translation given with the text accordingly).

000 *-yuʷ, pl. of 2. *-i, q.v. V. also *-ʌk *-yu, sons. 20.3, 34.2,13, 260.1,18, 250.2. *-yugušʌnts, pl. of *-ʌ.i, q.v. daughters. 116.3 ff., 180.12 ff.

1> yuʷk -ʌnts x bier (like a ladder), IUB bedstead or wooden frame (for removing dead body), H. mʊrda leʲjaʷneka čaʷrpaʷi ya lakṛi. — yuʷkʌṭe itsuʷmʌn they carried him off on a bier. Cp. 92.5.

(Cp. perhaps Sh. yuʷrko, a kind of bier).

yuʷlgrš, pl. yuʷlgi.ʌŋ y. (The form of *-ulgrš with the Pn. Pf. -i).

1. Nest (birds', wasps', bees'), burrow, hole, den. — čhiʷne yuʷlgrš the bird's nest. hʌn čhinʌne ʊsko yuʷlgi.ʌŋ bitsʌn one bird has three nests. (But: ʊsko čhiyue uʷlgi.ʌŋ the nests of three birds). "šrqərɛ yuʷlgrš̌ər guʷriŋ ɛʷdrl'i" senaʷn they have said: "Don't put your hand in a wasps' nest", i.e. beware of, have nothing to do with, So and So. šrqərɛ yuʷlgrš also an epithet applied to a very talkative person. hʌls, uʷrks, yuʷlgrǐ fox's, wolf's, hole, or, den. ainʌqs yuʷlgrǐ marmot's burrow. mʌčhi.s yuʷlgrǐ bees' hive, and honey-comb. 000

386 b

1 [see corrigenda et addenda category 116, p. 544 - Analyst]

2. Sheath (of sword, dagger); scabbard; case (of gun, eyeglasses etc.); cover (of book). — ivmo γʌtenč maper hivri yuʷlgrǐtsom di.usimi the old man drew his sword from the scabbard. 282.16. ʌinʌkvtss yuʷlgrǐ eyeglass-case.

(Probably connected with -uʷl, uʷlo*).

yuʷmos v. -umos*. — phuʷs yuʷmos flame of fire.

yuʷr -ʌnts x corner (reëntrant and salient), IUB H. mʌkaʷn ka korna. — waʷlto yuʷrʌnts four-corner(ed).

yuʷri-mots x top, peak, crest, of mountain. — čhiš yuʷri; čhiško.s yuʷrimots.

(According to QUB equivalent to 1. buʷri and referable to -uʷri*, finger-nail).

yuʷγʌs Nz. v. yuʷyʌs.

yuʷginʌs, yuʷgi(y)-, v.t. to grind (by hand on a stone with a rolling-stone), to reduce to powder.

(This verb is used only with x objects, e.g. salt and kernels (to express oil). In these cases the work is done by women only. When the object is y, the verb guʷginʌs is used).

gose čayu yurgin grind this salt. EOL.

Fut. sg. 1. yuʷgiyʌm.

Pret. sg. 1. yuʷginʌm.

(The verb is really -uʷginʌs*, which with the x sg. Pn. Pf. i- becomes yuʷginʌs, and with the x pl. Pn. Pf. u- becomes uʷginʌs. The Ppa.s are respectively ni.uʷgin and nuʷgin).

387 a

[see corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 544 - Analysis]

yərγa y ambling pace. — gəsɛ hʌγərɛ šu.a yərγa bila this horse has a good amble. 000

(Cp. Kho. yərγa, Sh. yərga). T. Prs.

yuʷγʌli -muts x padding of felt etc. under the side-piece of a saddle. (Cp. Shghn. yurγdlā). T. (yōrγdn).

yuʷče.ʌs x an animal fattened up and killed and eaten at the Thunusheling by each family that can afford it.

(Cp. *-uʷče.ʌs).

yuʷtəm a pair of. — yuʷtəm buʷṭ a pair of boots. yuʷtəm huʷčo a pair of pabboos.

(Cp. Sh. yuʷto: ek yuʷto jərauʷp, a pair of socks).

yuʷγər$^{1}_{\lambda}$ IUB, a man among men, valiant, H. mʌrdō· ka mʌrd (bʌhaʷdur).

yuʷyʌs, yuʷç-, v.i. to dry up, become dry.

This in only the form of a verb *-uʷyʌs with the Pn. Pf. i-. As tentatively suggested in § 232, there are four forms of Intrans. verb meaning "to become dry". These can now be definitely recorded as: —

*-uʷyʌs, *-uʷç- used with h and x subjects sg. or pl.

*-uyai.ʌs, *-uyʌč- used with h and x subjects pl. only.

buʷyʌs, buʷç- used with y subjects sg. or pl.

buyai.ʌs, buyʌč- used with y subjects pl. only.

It is to be noted that the y in *-uyai.ʌs and buyai.ʌs it not cerebral, nor is the -č- of their Pres. Bases.

Originally *-uʷyʌs (and its derived forms) was recorded as *-uʷγʌs, *-uʷγʌs, and from Nz. as *-uʷγʌs.

The following are some forms from *-uʷyʌs and *-uyai.ʌs: —

387 b

$^{1}_{\lambda}$ [See corrigenda et addenda, category 116, p. 544 - Analyst]

Fut. sg. 1. ошçлт.
2. gиçoma.
3. уиçi.
pl. 3. иçoтлп.
ˈиулçoтлп (← *-иуai.лs).
Pres. pl. 3. иçaп, neg. ошçaп.
Pret. sg. 1. oиулт.
2. gиуoma.
(*-иулs) (*-иуai.лs).
pl. 1. иуиуитлп. miултлп.
2. {mo.иуитлп. moултлп.
ma.иуитлп.
3. {иуитлп. ˈиултлп.
иитлп.
Perf. sg. 1. aиуa ba N.
pl. 3. x иуa bi.eп.
Ppa. sg. 1. na.иу(in).
2. nukиу.
3. mx nуиу.
pl. 1. nimi.иулп.
2. nлmaиулп.
3. nуиулп.
yиуom ʃлpik dry bread.
yиуom ʃuqa a dry choga.
иqi buk yиçi your throat will dry up, i.e. you will become thirsty.
ts.hile (or, ts.hilor) buk yиуimi became thirsty. 268.11. и ki in иултлп they and he together became dry. 160.8. (Cs. *-лspi.лs).

Z.

zaˈforaиn y pl. saffron, y sg. saffron colour. — zaˈforaиne tumor a saffron talisman. Ar. Prs.

zah damp, moist (of ground etc.). (Cp. Kho. zah). Prs.? zaˈlim oppressor, tyrant; oppressive, cruel. — zaˈlim(лn) bai.i he is a tyrant. hin zaˈlim thaиnлn . . . ʃлm he was a tyrannical ruler. 276.1. Ar. Prs.

388a

zaʷq.

000 1. A little forward, in front. — utsimo yer zaʷk numʌn going forward in front of them, H. baṛhkar. 124.5. ʿite birkiṭtum ʿite zaʷq kuʷnanʊr nitsun taking him away forward into a corner on the far side of the treasury. 56.19. thʌmɛ ka hiqtum hoʷle zaʷq dʌmʌn juʷčai.i the host comes with the Mir forward (to the front) out of the door. 340.22.

2. zaʷq ɛtʌs to poke with the finger. — epatulo zaʷq nɛ ṭapik jo ʿassimi poking him in the side (secretly) with his finger (equivalent to nudging) he said to him "Give me bread". QUB. inɛ yuʷfɛs ixoʷlji bi, zaʷq (or, zʌq) aiye his leg is hurting, don't poke it.

3. Sign made to a person to sit down beside one.

4. Copulation from point of view of male. (Queried by QUB).

(zaʷq in 2. above is the diminutive of 1. zʌq).

zaʷra power, strength; swiftness. — buʷden (read buʷdens) ʌkiʷl zaʷra api a cat has not such power. 174.14. hʌyʊr zaʷra ka gaʷrši bi the horse gallops powerfully, swiftly. QUB. čʿemslinɔ zaʷraʷlɛ (= zaʷra + ʌfɛ) dʌm čʿeʷtsimi the poison by its potency made him gasp, winded him. 132.24. tamʌkuɛ zaʷraʷfɛ tišā ʌʷtimi the tobacco by its strength made me sneeze.

zaʷradaʷr, zaʷrdaʷr wrathful, fierce, H. ɣoppa-wala, 122.7. — zaʷradaʷr hirʌn bai.i he is an impetuous, hasty, awe-inspiring man. H. tuṇd, tiz, haibatnak. QUB.

zaʷt y class, (good) birth, (good) family, stock, breed. — zate joʃ, zate uyuʷm of low birth, of high birth. šuʷa zaʷt bila it is a good stock. zaʷte sis a person of good family. šuʷa (or, buʃ) zaʷti (= zaʷteʃ) bai.i he is very well born, of good birth. ja zaʷt jin zaʷt bila my breed, or nature, is that of the jinns. 384.6. Ar. Prs.

zaʷtdaʷr of good family.

zakhʿəra, zaxiʷra x stock of food, supplies. — zaxiʷra buʃ bi there is a large stock of supplies. ya be ʃapike zakhʿəra stam O what a stock of food I provided! (at the time of giving a feast). QUB. imo .hale pfalove zakhʿəra stai.i he has collected a big stock of grain in his house. QUB. Ar. Prs.

zaxum y wound. — mošakaʃe han danane zaxum moʷtimi he wounded her on the arm with a stone. 386.24. Prs.

zalzal manaʷ to shake, shake oneself. 8.7. Ar. Prs.

zamaʷna y times, period. — yerum zamaʷna.olo in former times. 2.1, 268.1, etc. tsoʷrum zamaʷna.olo in early times. 188.1, 274.1, etc. yərum zamaʷna čaγa a story of former times. 192.1, 234. Prs.

zamaʷnat y security. — zamaʷnat ganas to take security. Ar. Prs.

zamaŋ y pl. necklace. — hoke eji gurimo zamaŋ tak netan fastening your necklace on the dog's neck. 386.14.
(Correct tsamaŋ in the text).

zamiʷndaʷr, -rio, -tiŋ, hm cultivator, peasant. Prs.

zamzaq manaʷ, tsamtsaq m. to get up quickly, suddenly, H. čustiʷse khara hoʷna, ek dam khara hoʷna. IUB. to jump up and stand. QUB. — girri juʌn zʌmzʌq mʌnimi he jumped up and stood, like an ibex. QUB. 000 zʌŋ y rust. — γʌtenčtse (ʃobʌqutse) zʌŋ dunila rust has seized on the sword (guns), i.e. the sword has rusted. Prs.

zʌŋzʌŋ shivering. — zʌŋzʌŋ dʌtʌγər fever with shivering, ague.

1. zʌq etʌs to poke with the finger, to shove, push, clap hand on, stamp on. — hiŋ zʌq etimi he pushed the door, to, or in. yutiŋe zʌq etimi he stamped down (the earth) with his feet. 56.21. (Cp. zʌq 2.).

2. zʌq IUB, EOL, y headache, H. Prs. sərdərd. — ja kʌpʌlulo zʌq(ʌn) gi bila, giči I have got, shall have, a headache. EOL. gute zʌqer besʌn mili dʌltʌs meimi? what medicine is good for this neuralgia? EOL.

According to QUB the word is used of a pain that passes off quickly. thʌstse baiyʌm, gʌp'ʌlulo zʌq aγgi bi I was in contact with the smoke and a pain entered my head for me, i.e. I was exposed (?) to the smoke and was attacked by a pain in the head. QUB.

(Cp. Sh. ʃiʃe.i zʌk, headache; Kho. zʌq, severe pain in the head).

zʌqʌn IUB a lot of, much, H. bʌhutsa.

1. *zər -mʌnʌs to start (from fear etc.), to make a sudden movement. — zər imʌnimi he started, he gave a start. IUB. hʌγər zər imai.i bi the horse starts. QUB.

2. zər gold. — zər kimʌab gold brocade. 88.5. Prs.

zərʌp, zərʌb etʌs IUB to pierce, stab, prick, H. krsi čiz ka bʌdʌnmē čobhjana.

zərər y harm, injury, damage. Ar. Prs.

000 zerdeb x windgall. — zerdeb mani bi. Prs. zergar -ši n. goldsmith. 160.13 ff. Prs.

zerwi, zerwy

1. Adv. of course, of necessity, certainly. — šamas zerwy paiqen we must take, appoint, a ruler. 286.2.
2. y difficulties, misfortune. H. mepéhat. — ina pwy nivin er zerwi di bila his father having died difficulties have come upon him. QUB. zerwi lewas, am nizi? = H. mepéhat lei, mar hiu karqu?, it is a case of misfortune. What (else) is he to do? QUB. Ar. Prs. (zerwy).

zerwli urgent. Ar. H. (zerwvi).

zerwwal, zerwčal x necessity; necessary. — šamas zerwwal qeni a ruler is not necessary. 286.2. wqar zerwwal bilam ke if you had need. 280.4. Ar. Prs.

zal wide open (of eyes). — ilšewets zal bis ke if his eyes are wide open. 264.24. Cp. 264.3.

(Cp. Sh. zazal, wide-open (of eyes), staring).

zamow -ši pilgrim (to Muslim shrine. In Nagir, used of pilgrims to the Shia shrines at Kerbala and Najaf). Ar. Prs.

zarag manow to trot, to jog. — kayar zarag mani bi the horse is jogging, (a bad pace). QUB.

(Cp. Sh. zilag čwski, to trot).

zarar manow, zerzer m. to shrug, wince, repeatedly. — kalyane kayar zerzer mani bi the galled horse shrugs (the affected part). QUB.

The word can be used of the local movement made in response to pain, the irritation of flies, etc.

(Reduplication of I. zer).

390 a

000 zail.

1. Kind, sort, fashion, manner. — be zaila bi? what kind is it? be zaila bisu? what are they like? kwe hanar . . . akil zaila bila their skill is of this kind. 150.7. be zailafi somehow. ismomiqum akil zailafi tha muyu dumanuman in this manner 100 sons were born of her. 102.17. tel zailafe . . . ifi bakainlo kurutaman in such manner they abode in that country. 142.9. akil zailafi sis ufurno in this fashion she devoured people. 200.3. Cp. 172.23.

2. Consequential manner, sins. — bua zail etas gusan bo she puts on a lot of sins, H. dimayi, QUB. buf zaila ha akutar dont put on a lot of swank when you go about, H. dabdabas, mayruvisi, QUB. (Cp. Sh. zeli manner, ano zeli in this manner; thus. Kho. bia zaila? in what manner? how?).

ziard more. — lokan ziard hask ford etimi he drew (the bow) a little more (than the others). 170.8. ziard and hask here duplicate each other. Ar. Pra.

zama[1]h surety; y security. — zama baili he is surety. wuy zama ji ba I am your surety. QUB. wuy zama jirli bila your security is with me. QUB. Ar. Pra.

ziawat y place of pilgrimage, shrine. 286.19. Ar. Pra.

zal, zil resentment, malice, enmity; at enmity, inimical. — gute zalafe . . . S. M. ayanemo owing to resentment at this she murdered S. M. 288.14. ja ha zil baili he is inimical to me, QUB. N. zal etas to hate(?) Ar. Pra.

390 b

[1] [see corrigenda of addenda category 16, p.544. Analyst] zɪna y fornication, adultery, sexual commerce with a relation of prohibited degree, incest. — o·ka zɪna stomʌn they committed incest with them. 272.7. Cp. 374.12. Ar. Prs. 000 zɪnda alive, living. 388.7. Prs.

zɪndaga·ni y livelihood. Prs.

zɪnda·nxa·na y prison, jail. Prs.

zɪzi, zizi, Mother! Form of address used only in the families of Rajas and (in Nagir) Saiyids. Foster mothers, being of lower rank are called "mama". 601

The corresponding term for father is "ba·ba", "bʌb'a".

These terms are said to have come down from the time of Alexander the Great. 30.15, 238.6.

(zɪzi and ba·ba are in use in Sh. and Kho., and in Balti zɪzi and bawa).

zo·r. 000

1. Force, violence. — zo·r stʌsʌn bai.i he is a violent person (a doer of violence). zo·r stimi. he insisted. 264.21.
2. Powerful, strong; hard, difficult. — kine bu·t zo·r bai.i this fellow is very strong. 144.19. (boyo) bu·t zo·rʌło bi.ʌn (those "boyo") are very powerful. 250.10. bu·t zo·r duro bila it is a very difficult business. 50.24. Prs.

zora·wor powerful, mighty. — bu·t zora·wor thʌmʌn bʌm he was a very powerful ruler. 218.1. Prs.

zo·zʌx, do·zʌx, IUB & QUB zo·zʌq, y hell. (Cp. Sh. zozʌk). Prs. (do·zʌx).

zol searching. — i·ki uyo·n zol nomo fʌł nomo i·mo ha·lər motsu·ʌm having made her search all those (places) and having made her finish (the business) he had brought her to his own home. 108.27. dɪźmiŋ uyo·n zvl nɛ daiyʌm I have come after searching every place. QUB. 000 zvləm, zvlum, y oppression, tyranny, injustice compulsion. — zvlum ɛtʌs to practise oppression, etc. zvlum ɛtʌsʌn bai.i he is a tyrant, oppressor. zvləm nɛ dumutsu.in bring her by force. 24.13. guniki.eŋ (y pl.) zvləm ɛtimi he perpetrated evil injustices. 92.29. Ar. Prs.

zvləmgaʷr, zvləmkrṣ, oppressive, tyrannical, cruel. (Ar.) Prs.

zupuʷr -rṣo x woodcock.

zvrzvr, zvzvr slight feeling of chill from fever, H. boxaʷrse bʌdʌnmt̄ thoʷri sərdi ma'luʷm hoʷna. IUB. shivering, shuddering. QUB. — th'ʌtinɛ zvzvr imai.i bai.i he is shivering with cold. QUB.

(Diminutive of zʌzər, zərzər).

Ž, Ž.

(See also j and j).

žaʷlimiŋ thin membrane on the outside of meat.

žaʷo shouting, outcry. — žaʷo qyuʷ ɛčumɛ making an outcry and shouting out. 284.23.

žaʷṣ v. jaʷṣ.

žʌčiʷl, jʌčiʷr sg. & pl., d.pl. -ints, -rṣo x thistle.

(Cp. Sh. čʌčiʷr, Kho. čʌnčiʷr).

žʌḍ'au mʌnaʷs IYB to remain thin and watery (of a thing when cooked).

žʌk v. 2. jʌk.

žʌkun v. jʌkun.

žʌliminŋ beard (of goat).

(Not known to QUB. Cp. however Sh. jʌli, (markhor's) beard, žʌmɛ, jʌmɛ, pl. žʌmeŋ, -ʌŋ, -iŋ, y bow (archery). 411

Bows are now obsolete for game-

3916

411 shooting, but a few are kept in Hunza and Nagir for ceremonial occasions, when they are used for shooting with at marks from horseback. V. text No. 35. They are composite being made of a foundation of juniper wood covered with strips of ibex-horn and sinews.

000 ǯʌmeʿʂɛ bɪšaiyʌs, or, čʌp ɛtʌs to shoot with a bow. ǯʌmeʿr hunts wʌši.ʌs to put an arrow to the bow. ǯʌmɛ tʌskaʿs to draw a bow. V. s v. tʌskaʿs. 2. ǯʌmɛ čhukus bowstring. u.iski.ɛ ǯʌmʌŋ bišʌmʌn the three of them shot with their bows. 380.22. ǯʌmeʿʂɛ . . . ɛsɛ g'iri dɛlimi he hit the ibex with the arrow. 148.5. ǯʌmeʿr hunts nyu.ɛšin ɪsɛ khʌtɛ yuʿtisər bišʌmi putting an arrow to the bow he shot at the leg of the bed. 260.11. Cp. 148.16, 260.14. Krsərɛ ǯʌmɛ . . . tʌskuʿmʌn they drew Kiser's bow. 170.5. Cp. 152.13, 168.20, 170.11,15, 172.5.

It occurs with the suffix -ʌk, -k; the meaning being perhaps "a shot with a bow".

jʌmɛk ̆deli shoot (him) with the bow. 146.10. jʌmɛkʌʂɛ . . ɪsɛ tʌlər bɪšʌmi he shot with his bow at the pigeon. 148.7. Cp. 152.11 ff., 156.5, 170.20, 172.7.

ǯʌn *-ʌtʌs to bite (of a horse), to snap at. — hʌγərɛ ǯʌn aʿtimi, goʿči the horse bit me, it will bite thee. ǯʌn oʿtʌs hʌγərɛn bi it is a biting horse.

(Cp. Sh. ǯʌn, jʌn, aʂoʿrki (of an horse, dog) to bite).

ǯʌŋ -ičʌŋ y official post, post of headman of village, H. 'ahda, lʌmbərdaʿri — ǯʌŋ ʂeʿmi he obtained, held, th·

000 post of headman. thʌmɛ amin.ʌnər mɪhrbʌ·ni ɛtimi kɛ ʒʌŋ nčičai.i if the Mir shows favour to anyone he gives him a headmanship.

ʒʌgguvin, pl. ʒʌngu.yo, hm official, headman of village.

ʒʌpa, pl. -miŋ, ʒʌpʌŋ, y bundle. — hiles ʒʌpa ɛtubo she has taken the child on her back wrapped up in a cloth. QUB.

ʒai.i·t, N. dzai.i·t(?) -ərv, x he-goat (2—4 years old, castrated).

ʒɛ·k v. jɛ·k.

ʒiga, ʒɪgʹa, jigʹa long, for a long time. — bɛ jigʹa gor sʌphərɛn mʌnimi what a long journey has fallen to your lot(?), for how long you have had to travel(?). 360.7. duŋ ʒiga ɣʌlʌnimi he read for a considerable time. 70.10. ʒiga duŋ gəriŋ ečan for a considerable time they sing songs. 302.5.

(Cp. Sh. ʒi·go long, jiga, for a long time. Skr. dīrghá-).

ʒigamu for a long time. — ho jigamu i·mumur mʌmu čuʒ ečan then for a long time they make (the child) suck its mother's milk. IYB. Ms.

ʒɪkʌn v. jikʹʌn.

ʒiki -mots x nit. — ʒiki giya bi.ɛn nits have fallen, i.e. made their appearance.

ʒiki·kri pl. ʒiki·ki.ɛnts, h nitty (term of contempt for very poor people). — ma ha·le bɛ bi? ʒikiki.ɛnts what is there in your house? Nitty people, paupers! yɛ la ʒikʹikri! ʒʌltʌgər se.ibʌn they say to a poor man "Now there nitty one"!

ʒin y line; in line. — ʒin bila there is a line. ʒin bʌn they are in a row. ʒin noma hərurčai.in sit down in a line. ʒin mʌnuwaʷn they have formed up in line. 000

(Cp. Sh. jinʷ, line, row).

ʒiŋ'a -mʊts, x stone, or boulder, that rolls down a hillside, Kho. čokul. — yʌʈʊm ʒiŋa di bi a (rolling) stone has come down from above. ʒiŋamʊts duʷbiʷen stones have come down. ʒiŋaʷtɛ kha ʒiŋa di bim a stone had come down the stone-shoot. isɛ ʒiŋa diʷm bun the boulder that had come down as a rolling stone. 294.6.

ʒiŋ'ʌt, ʒiŋaʷt y stone-shoot, on hillside down which stones habitually roll. — iʷtɛ ʒiŋʌt buʷt doʷrčilum the stone-shoot was falling down very much, i.e. was very active. 294.4.

(Cp. Sh. jiŋaʷt).

ʒiʷŋɛ, j'iŋɛ, pl. -čiŋ, -miŋ, N. -čʌŋ. y sleeve. — iʷmo hʌɣʊr iʷmo ʒiŋɛʷlo čʌp ɛtimi he hid his horse in his

393a sleeve, 122.12. hʌγur žiŋɛ·r nyu.ɛ·ɛ̆in putting his horse in his sleeve. 124.6. i·nmo j'iŋɛčiŋ dumo·gus pulling out her sleeves (for her). 146.14, cp. 16. 000

žo·li, -mots, x wicker sieve, or, strainer (for straining milk).

žo·mʌnʌč'o without warning, suddenly, Prs. nagʌhan. — žo·mʌnʌč'o nɛ o·sqʌnumʌn they slew them without warning. 240.7.

(Cp. morphologically Sh. jo·mʌnuč'o, dangerous, risky. Also Sh. žo·, difficult).

žo·niŋ, cp. jo·niŋ, y pl. abuse, H. ga·li. — Hindi.ɛ sistsɛ žo·niŋ ɛtumʌn they abused, reviled, the people of Hindi. 266.6.

1. žu· v. 4. ju.

2. žu·, for ju (Impv. of ju·γʌs), come thou. 94.2.

393 b

WERCHIKWĀR—ENGLISH VOCABULARY.

000

a, ʌ and ə.

a-, ʌ- negative prefix with verbs. 412.1,6. Cp. ai-.

-a dative suffix (cp. -γa), used after consonants, and sometimes after vowels.

*-ʌçə, pl. *-ʌçəkoʷn, *-ʌçəkoʷŋ hmf. a man's brother, a woman's sister. — ʌçə my brother; goʷçə thy brother. 412,15, 414.5. ɛčə and ɛʷrčə his brother. 412.18. moʷçə her sister.

*-ʌčəγən v.s.v. ɛčəγən.

ʌdʌb respect. 406.12. Ar. Prs.

*-ʌdil- to affix, to put something on something. 2nd. sg. Impv. eʷdil. — eʷmiša bʌroʷndu eʷdiliŋ put ye a ring on his finger. 412.9.

(Cs. form of dɛl-, but the Pn.Pf. refers to the owner of the finger).

*-ʌγain-, *-ʌγainč- to appear to, to seem to. — gulɛ žʌγa (goγa) šu.a goγaiinčəm duʷa? does this place seem good to you? eʷγai.rni it appeared to him. 406.19.

*-ʌγər-, *-ʌγərč- to play a musical instrument, to play music. — ɛʷγərčəm playing of music. 412.13.

*-ʌhəruʷt-, *-ʌhəruʷš- to make sit down; to keep (a servant, horse etc.). — eʷhəruʷt make him sit down.

394a

000 Extended base, used only with plural objects: Past base *-ʌhʊruʿča-, Pres. base *-ʌhʊručʌč-.

*-ʌ.i pl. *-yuʿgušiŋa, *-yuʿgrišints hf daughter. — ja ai.i my daughter; go, goʿi thy daughter; nɛ ɛ.i his daughter; aiyuʿgrišints my daughters; hɛn eyɛn a daughter of his; Trs. Nom. eye his daughter. 404.2 ff.

ʌkhrš, akheʿš unfamiliar, strange, marvellous. 408.2.

akho here. Cp. kho. 406.16; 410.2.

akhuʿin today. Cp. Hz. Bu. khuʿin this year.

ʌkhʊlʊm from here. 402.14.

akhuʿrʊm how many? 412.19.

axer in the end, finally, at last. 400.12, 404.7. Ar. Prs.

albʌt assuredly, certainly, perhaps. 408.1,11,

*-ʌlta-, (*-ʌltʌč-) to put s.t. on s.o.'s feet.
2nd. sg. Impv. ˈeʿlta.
2nd. pl. Impv. ˈeʿltaiʿiŋ. 412.10.

altʌmbɛ z eight.

altʌn h two. 410.1.

altər twenty.

alto z two.

alto ʌltər forty.

aʿltʊlʊm like me, after my fashion. 402.15. (Cp. ʊltu and *-ltʊlʊm).

394 b

*-ʌmʌn-, *-ʌmai- to be able. It takes the Pres. Base + a of the dependent verb. — mɛnɛ bəriŋ moča aiyomʌnɛn ka if any are unable to make her speak. 404.4. bəriŋ moča ʌiyumʌnɛn they were unable to make her speak. 404.5.

*-ʌmiš pl. -ʌmʌts x finger.
Sg. 1. aʷmiš. 2. goʷmiš. 3. m. ɛʷmiš. Pl. 1. aʷmʌts. Cp. 412.9.

amulu? where? Cp. ana.

ʌmuʷtok, amutok now. 412.1,11.

ana? ʌna? where? whither? — ana tsɛrɛm ba? where are you going to? ana xaʷš? up to where? how far?

ana somewhere. — ana maimi it will be somewhere; + ka + neg. nowhere; ana ka paida aimaimi it will not be procurable anywhere.

anum? from where? whence? — anum tsurum ba? where are you coming from?

ap- neg. of ba to be. V. § 527.

*-ʌpaiya to (motion to a person); with (a person); beside. — apaiya with me. 414.3; ɛʷpaiya, ɛʷpai.a to him. 410.13, 41[illegible].3.
(*-ʌpa = Dat. suffix -a). apʲaʷstumʌn 3rd pl. h Past neg. of ba. 404.2.

apim 3rd sg. y Past neg. of ba. 406.22.

-ər Dat. suffix gučʌčum kɛnər at the lying-down time (i.e. at bedtime).
(A borrowing from Hz. Bu.?).

ərmaʷn y desire, craving. 410.8. Prs.

*-ʌs pl. -mo x heart. — ɛʷs his heart. 412.4. ɛski. 402.2.

*-ʌsgus, *-ʌskus, pl. *-ʌskušu bf mother-in-law. goʷsgus thy mother-in-law.

*-ʌskərts-, *-ʌskərč- to cut off. 404.4,6.

*-ʌski v. ɛski.

395a

000 *-ʌskir, pl. -išo hm father-in-law.
go·skir thy father-in-law.
as'umun, pl. ʌs'umuyo, asumi.u x star.
asu·r near.
*-ʌš -mo x neck.
*-ʌt-, *-ʌč- to make, do. — a·t make me. 412.2. gučʌm (for go·čʌm?) I shall make thee. 404.13. lip go·čumʌn they will fling you away. 402.15. (lip) go·ten they flung you away. 402.16.
a·t 2nd sg. Impv. of a + *-ʌt- make me. 412.2.
*-ʌ·t-, -ʌ·č- to cause to do, cause to make. — bəriŋ moča aiyomʌnɛn kɛ if they should be unable to make her talk. 404.4. bəriŋ mo.ečʌm I will make her talk. 404.9. V. ɛt-. atawʌsa, ʌtawʌsa 1st sg. Pret. neg. of d-wʌs-. 412.1,6. a·u 2nd sg. Impv, of a + *-u-. ʌwa yes. 406.13.
*-ʌwɛl-, *-ʌwɛ·ð; *-ʌwɛlč- to put clothes on s.o. (Dat.). — go·γa šu·a gʌlʊŋ go·wɛlɛna? have they put good clothes on you? 408.3. Cp. 412.9.
(Cp. Hz. Bu. bɛlʌs to put on, Cs. *-ʌbilʌs). awolʊm, a·ulʊm, a·uðʊm ill (seriously). 406.1 (bis).

ai.

ai-, ai.e-, ai.i-, aiy- neg. prefix, used with verbs.
ai.a·reki my under-bedding. 406.7. V. *-ya·riki.
ai.e.com bo 3rd sg. f. Pres. neg. of ɛt-. 404.12. ai.e·gom bam 1st pl. Perf. neg. of guy-. 408.6. ai.eta·stomo 3rd sg. f. Pret. neg. of ɛt-. 404.2. ai·ɛfɪki my upper-bedding. 406.7. V. *-yæfɪki.

395 b

000 ai.ɐwɛšim baɐn 1st pl. Perf. neg. of wɛši.ʌs, wʌši.ʌs. 406.16.

ai.eyuɐrčʊm tsɪq 3rd sg. x Conditional neg. of -yuɐr-*. 402.5.

ai.i my daughter. 404.3. V. -ʌ.i*.

ai.igʌli 3rd sg. y Pret. neg. of ne-. 410.4. V. gʌl-.

ai.itʌs neg. prefix ai + Noun Agt. itʌs, one-not-making. 408.13.

aiya my own. 410.13, 412.22. V. -ya*.

aiyaum ba 2nd sg. Perf. neg., with 1st sg. Pn.Pf., of -u-*. 412.22. (ai + a + um + ba) thou hast not given to me.

aiyʌš y heaven, sky. 410.13.

aiyɛ my son. 412.11. V. -yɛ*.

aiyɛčʌm tsɪq 1st sg. Condit. neg. of ɛt-. 402.5.

aiyɛtʌm ba 1st sg. Perf. neg. of ɛt-. 412.21.

aiyɛti 3rd sg. hm Pret. neg. of ɛt-. 412.18.

aiyu aiyu bʌm 3rd pl. h Impf. neg. of -u-*. 410.10.

au.

aulaɐd h pl. offspring, children. 404.1. Ar. Prs.

aušiŋ, aušin, pl. aɐuša h guest. 400.3.

au.ul my belly. 410.10. V. -uɐl*.

e, ɛ.

ɛč- Pres. base of ɛt-, ɛča Pres. base + a.

ɛčʊɣʊn, ɛčʊɣon small, little; younger, youngest (son). 406.9, 408.3,11, 410.1,4.

(Cp. Hz. Bu. ɛčukoɐn. In W. the word appears to be really -ʌčʊɣʊn*, as later enquiries gave močʊɣʊn ayʌst my younger sister. The pl. is supplied by ɣeɐyu).

ɛɐɣɔrčʊm playing-music. V. -ʌɣɔr-*.

eɐɣai.ɪni. 406.19. V. s.v. -ʌɣain-*.

396 a

000 eʿi, eye his daughter 400.5, 404.2,11, 408.13.

eʿrčo (for eʿçço) his brother. 412.18. V. *-ʌçço.

eski into his heart, mind, remembrance. — eski di.a it came into his heart i.e. he remembered it. 402.2.

(-ki was explained as meaning "in", and is perhaps also seen in saʿeetki. The word, which is a form of *-ʌski, thus seems to be a locative of *-ʌs. Perhaps Hz. Bu. *-ʌski is to be similarly regarded).

espʌl̥u-, espʌl̥uč- to waste, lose. — iʿʌ mʌl̥ espʌl̥u.i he wasted his property. 410.5, 414.2.

(A form of *-ʌspʌl̥u-, Cp. Hz. Bu, 2. *-ʌspʌlʌs; and for the -u- the v.i. bʌluʿyʌs to become lost (with y subjects)).

eçi.aʿra = *-ʌs + yaʿre.

et-, eč- to do, to make. This verb is i + -ʌt-.

Its principal forms are given, as far as known, in §§ 529—535. The following occur in the present texts:

Present Base Forms:

Fut. sg. 1. ečʌm. 404.10,14.
pl. 1. eʿčʌn. 412.10.
Pres. sg. 1. ečʌm ba. 412.20.
Condit. sg. 1. ečʌm tsrk. 412.22.
3. hmx ečum tsrq 400.2,3. 406,8,10.

Verbal Noun of Action ečum. 414.4. Gen. 408.16.

Pres. Base + a (Dat. suffix) eča on my doing it 402.9; on his doing it. 402.2,11.

Past Base forms:

Pret. sg. 1. eta. 402.14, 2. eta. 402.15, 414.2, interrog. eta? 402.8.
3. hmx etʌn. 404.3.

396b

Perf.	sg. 3. hm.	ɛtʊm bai.i. 412.16.
Pluperf.	sg. 1.	ɛtʌm bʌm. 406.24.
Impf.	sg. 3. hm.	ɛ·tɪɪt bʌm (i.e. ˈɛt ɛt bʌm). 406.6,7.
Impv.	sg. 2.	ɛt. 402.11, 406.12.
		ɛti. 400.11, 402.15, 404.13.
	pl. 3.	ɛ·tiŋ. 412.10.
-š Form		ɛtiš. 412.12.
Noun Agent		ɛtʌs. 404.8, 406.21.
Ppa.		nɛt. 400.7,15, 402.6.
		nɛtɛ. 410.4.
		nɛti. 404.7.

Negative Forms:

Pres.	sg. 3. hf.	ai.ɛ·čʊm bo. 404.12.
Condit.	sg. 1.	aiyečʌm tsɪrq. 402.5.
Pret.	sg. 3. hm.	aiyɛti. 412.18.
	3. hf.	ai.ɛta·stʊmo. 412.21.
Noun Agent		ai.itʌs. 408.13.

i.

1. i·a his (own). 400.13,14, 402.6,10, 406.11 etc. V. *-ya.
2. i·a still(?), yet(?). — mʌtʌn i·a bʌm he was still a long way off. 412.3.
   (This form is corroborated by the vernacular Ms. Perhaps mʌtʌni.a is intended, the Locative of a hypothetical abstract noun mʌthʌni).

i·ʌγa to his son. 402.10. V. *-yɛ.

i·e (his) son (Trs. Nom.). V. *-yɛ. — i·e sɛni the son said. 406.6.

i·lja, i·lji back; after, from, since. 400.14, 412.3,20.

inɛ he, his, etc. 404.1,7. For nɛ q.v.

isk, is, pl. i·smo x young (of animal fowl etc.); h(?) child.

ˈiske h three. 404.15.

ˈiski, ˈiskɛ z three. — iskikots xa·š up to, till, 3 days.

ˈiski ʌltər sixty.

iṣ̣ut a kind of food (made with butter and meat). 000

Punj. tərka, Sh. tʌpo, Hz. Bu. hoč. 406.24.

ɪšavra sign, signal. 402.14.

1. ɪṣ̣kərk, pl. x -išu, y -iṣ̣ yellow. (Cp. Sh. ɪṣ̣kərk diarrhoea).

2. ɪṣ̣kərk, ṣ̣ɪkərk y brass.

ɪṣ̣qam green, blue.

ɪrti that side, direction.

ɪzzat honour, respect. 406.6. Ar. Prs.

u.

*-u-, *-uč- to give (h and x objects). The pn.pf. refers to the indirect object.

Fut.	sg. 1.	uvʌm I shall give to them. 404.4.
Pret.	sg. 3. hf.	uvi.o she gave to him. 408.6.
	pl. 3. h.	guyena? have they given to thee? 406.20.
Perf.	sg. 2.	(mene) uvm ba? to whom hast thou given?
Impv.	sg. 2.	avu give to me. 410.3. nevγa uv give to him. momoγa mu give to her.

Negative Forms:

Pret.	sg. 2.	ayavuya thou didst not give to me.
Perf.	sg. 2.	aiyaum ba thou hast not given to me. 412.[illegible]
Impf.	pl. 3.	aiyuv aiyuv bʌm they used not to give to him. 410.10.

uve, uve 3rd. pl. hmf Demons. Pron. and Adj. they, those, — uve hurri those men; Gen. uve uystis their heads. 404.4; Dat. uveγa to them. [illegible], 410.3, 412.12.

397 b

000

uʷi.o. 408.16. V. *-u-.

*-uʷḷ, pl. -ło x belly (of living beings); au.uḷ my belly. 410.10.

pl. -čiŋ y belly (of dead animal).

-uḷe, -vḷe, -vḷo Case-suffix, in, inside, into, to. 400.1,9,13, 404.1,9,15, 406.1, 410.5,6,8,11, 412.1,5. Peculiar uses are: hɪkmʌtulo. 408.8. lai.ʌqulɛ. 412.1,6 and bərvḷɛ 412.19.

uʷḷə, uʷḷo. Adv. in, inside. 412.18.

oltu manner, fashion, like. — ja oltu like me. ga oltu like thee.

(This form has not been corroborated or further investigated. One would expect *-ltu or *-ltol. Cp. *-ltoḷom, which might be *-ltu + oḷom or *-ltoḷ + om. In view of Hz. Bu. *-ltor perhaps *-ltol is the more probable).

-oḷom Case-suffix: from in. — sʌnduqoḷom from in the box, out of the box.

-om Abl. suffix: from. — Hɪndustaʷnom from India. 400.5. hərʌŋgom from among. 402.9. sʌnduqom from the box.

uŋ, uʷŋ thou (only used in Nom. and Acc.). 400.5,8, 402.15,16, 404.9, 412.21, 414.3.

*-uʷs, pl. *-ušindəro hf wife. — ja a.uʷs; go guʷs; ne uʷs my, thy, his, wife. ne os bom he had a wife. 400.5.

uʷšim reared, nurtured, "fatted" (calf). 412.10,16, 414.2.

uyom all, h pl. — uyomeγa for all of them. 400.6.

uyuʷ their sons. 404.5. V. -ye.

B.

ba, b- to be. For paradigm see § 527. References to special W. forms in the texts:

Past. sg. 3. hmxy baʷlimi. 400.1, 404.1, 406.18,19, 408.14.

398a

000

Past. sg.	hf	bu.astumo. 404.2.
pl. 3. h neg.		apastumʌn. 404.2.
Pres. sg. 3. y		duva, duica? 404.14, 408.1, 412.15.
Past. sg. 3. y		dulom, duḫom. 400.14, 402.5, 410.9.
3. y neg.		apim. 406.22.

ba, pl. bai.iŋ y millet, "chīna", = Hz. Bu. bʌy.

bʌç, pl. -oŋ y goat- and sheep-house.

badša, pl. -tiŋ hm king. — badša yan a prince. badšatiŋ uyu princes. Cp. 404.1 ff. Pra.

bargo x(?) share. 410.2.

bak stʌs to kiss. 412.5.

bʌl, pl. -iŋ y wall.

bʌlk, pl. -oŋ y plank.

bʌŋgəri very bright, clear. light. (Cp. gəri).

bər, pl. -iŋ y saying, speech, affair, piece of business. — bəriŋ st- to talk, converse. 404.2, 408.13; to conduct affairs(?). 400.2,3. bəriŋ stʌs bulya a talking monkey. Cp. 402.1, 404.7, 412.19.

bərç, -ʌnts x. (Later recorded as: bʌlç, pl. bərçʌnz), bridge. (Cp. Hz. Bu. bʌl and, for the -r-, swço s.v. -ʌço).

bardum, pl. xy barzu red.

baroundu ring (for finger). 412.9.
(Vernac Ms. borroundo).

bastimi. V. ba.

bʌl necessary to (do s.t.); (s.t.) is to be (done). — bo kai.ʌn yaiyum bʌl dulom ka yani whatever present was to be got, he got it.. . 400.14.

(yaiyum is the Pres. Base Pc. or Noun. of yʌn-).

(The word is probably the Kho. bʌl which is similarly used: korriko bʌl it is necessary to do it; it is to be done).

398 b

000

baša, bæša, beša, bæše.
1. Interrog. when?
2. Indef. sometime.
bæše ła pači ła come to me sometime; (+ ka) + neg. never. — baša . . . aiyułam ba I have never done. 412.20. jaŋa baša ka . . . aiyanu ba thou hast never given me. 412.21.
3. Rel. when.
beša čik xarj ati when he had spent all. 410.6. Cp. 412.13,22.

baf, pl. -oŋ y skin.

bałan y country. 410.6,7.
(Vernac. Ma. bathan, Kho. bathan, Ar. wałan).

bazaw, bazar, pl. -iŋ y bazar, market, shop. 400.13. Pra.

bai.ał, pl. bai.a, later baiyałaŋ, y roof, ceiling.

bau.u wall (probably for baf).

beke female (of animal).

belis, pl. belidu x sheep. 406.21 ff.

beltum? how?

berum? berumaŋ? how much? how many?

berum.
1. A certain number of, some. 400.12. — berum burt . mazduridu how many! what a large number of, hired servants! 410.11.
2. + ka (following the verb) however much, whatever, all that. 400.2.3, 410.2.

bes ka + neg. nothing. — bes ka api there is nothing.

bes(?) no! — ei sene ka "Bes" . . . the daughter said "No . . .".
(Probably for besa? why?)

besa, besu? why? wherefore? 406.15,22, 408.5.

besmel, bismel slaying in the name of

399a

God for food. 412.10,16. Cp. 414.2. (Cp. Kho. brauzl, brauzl korik, to kill for food. Ar. (bismillah). 000 bɵda. V. bale.

biva sg. and pl. Also pl. bivanz, x cow.

bi.anum, bi.anum, pl. bi.eyu thin (of a rod, etc.).

bivu apparently an error for bi.an, 3rd pl. x of Pres. of be. 402.1.

bihai.i, pl. -miciŋ y sickness, illness, epidemic.

bilinde x six.

bo.

1. Interr. Pron. and Adj. what? — bo bi? bo du.a? what is it? (x y). bo kai.an? what present? 400.8 (bis). Cp. 406.6.
2. Indef. Pron. and Adj. some, something, anything. — miya bo nasi.at eti give us some counsel. gula dure bo ko nat et doing something (i.e., somehow or other) do this job. Cp. 404.8. Neg. not any, no. 406.16, 408.8.
3. General Rel. ko (following verb) whatever, all that. 400.13,14, 414.3.
4. In some way(?), somehow(?). 404.12,13.

bofo, pl. bofa x calf. 412.10,16, 414.12.

bota? for what? why? — bota siya (if) you say 'why?' (then this is the reason), i.e. because.

(This is conjectural, but the context requires 'because' and there is a parallel idiom in Shina: ke thiya to "if you said 'why?' = because". I assume that: bota : botan :: Hz. Bu. besu : besan).

botan.

1. Interrog. what? — botan bi? what is it (x)? botana etum bo? of

399b

what have they made it? ma botʌn OOO čum ʒʌn? what are you doing?
2. Indef. Pron. anything.

bu, bum 3rd sg. hf Pres. and Past of ba bu.astumo 3rd sg. hf Past of ba. 404.2
burlya x monkey. 408.14.
burr, pl. -iʌŋ y a hair. 408.14.
buri, pl. -ŋ y silver.
borum white.
burš, pl. -i.ants, -ʌnz x cat.
buf much, many, very much, very. 40..3,4, 404.5, 406.18, 408.2, 410.4,11.
(Vernac. Ms. -f).

Č and Čh.

čha.
1. sg. and pl.; d.pl. čhai.iŋ y a kind of millet, Punj. kʌŋgʌni, Kho. grava. — čha duva it is (a field of) millet.
2. x pl. millet grain. — čha biven there is millet grain.

čhʌγurum, čhʌγurum cold.
čhʌmens, čhʌmine hungry. 410.12.
čhʌnum narrow.
1. čhor, pl. -ko x mountain, cliff.
2. -čhor*, pl. -iŋ y voice, sound.
čs Case suffix: on. — sʌnduqčs on the box.
čhen, pl. čhiyu x bird. 400.8.
či, -či suffix or postposition: in, at. — fəlavni jʌγa či at such and such a place. 406.3. avltumʌlči ... qrsa duva there is a story "in my ear".
Cp. tsači after; and perhaps pʌči to, (to the side of).
-čhi-, -čhič- to give.
The Pu.pf. refers to the indirect object. This verb is used, as in Hz. Bu. only when the object is y sg. — uva čzka hai.ʌn (y sg.) uči; učiča sʌ toti.e nʌγa dovərusi he gave a present to them all; on his giving it the parrot enquired of him . . . 402.7. miγε mili give (it) to us.

000

čkši, čik, čay, all, all the, the whole. Recorded as h pl. and x sg. and ji. 400.5, 402.3,7, 404.6, 410.6.

(Versac. Ma. čkši. Cp. Khe. čkši all).

čhumεr, čhumir y iron.

D.

d°-, d°-a-. Past Base of fa- to come. Pret. sg. 1. daiγε I came etc.

(Cp. fa- and fa.ker-, and, for paradigm, V. § 539).

da then again. 406.9,20, 408.2,6, ~~~~.

d°-a(y)el-, d°-a(y)eli- to hear. Pret. sg. 3. hm dεvli he heard. 412.14.

dayanεm, pl. dayaiγε thick, stout, fat.

d°-ayεrza- to question, interrogate + acc. V. dεγarin-. — pako εtso dεγεrzi he questioned the cook. 408.21. dεγεrzil ta.i he began(?) questioning him. 412.14.

d°-ayal-, d°-ayali-; d°-ayali- (also written with -ff-) to become available to s.o.; to come into the possession of someone. This verb takes the place of the Eng. "to find", "get", "obtain", "receive". The verb agrees with the object found and the Pn.Infix. refers to the finder. The construction is parallel to that obtaining with the H. Intrans. vb. milnεr, e.g. tumko ek rupiε milεgε you will get a rupee.

εurlum ham, εmεtεk dεγali he was lost, now he has returned to me, i.e. I have recovered him. 412.12. ŋawlεrust dεγali he (the son) has returned to him (the father) in health. 412.17. εurlum ham, εmεtεk dεγali he was lost, now he has returned to us, i.e. we have recovered him. 414.8. qalam (x sg.) dakoγaki.a? daraγali Did you find the pen? I found it. ux kawi dakoγaki.ma? ʌum daraγa-ki.ʌm Did you find these men? Yes, I found them. ʌuuf dwu ja daraγakkumʌu I hope I shall find them. u.s karja ʌuvk (y pl.) daraγakum kitʌn I have obtained straw at their house. ko ker (y sg.) ʌdraγa'ʌm dwu we have found no answer, i.e. we could think of no answer, and so agreed. ʌ (ʌaiγwrj x sg.) ja ʌf'aγakkum ki I do not (i.e. cannot) find that bench. ʌ ja ʌdraγakkum ki I have not found it.

400 b

(Zerbin deals with this verb at some length (pp. 810—811), but his informant appears to have been at fault and to have given him incorrect forms, which have misled him into regarding it as a highly irregular Trans. Verb. Thus for the sing. of the Fut. tense he gives:

Sg. 1. ʌs d-ʌ-γakí-ʌm.
2. ga (ʌm) da-ʌa-γakí-ʌm-ʌ.
3. m ʌ ʌ d-ʌ-γakí-im-i.
f mumu (ʌm) da-ma-γakí-ʌm-u.

The first two of these forms are questionable. Unless there is an unexpressed object they would mean if anything, "I shall find me", "you will find you". On the other hand, for the plural he has:

Pl. 1. mi da-ma-γakí-imi.
2. ma da-ma-γakí-im-i.
3. ʌ d-ʌ-γakí-im-i

of which he says "morphological indicators of person are lacking". This is incorrect, the -imi indicates a 3rd sg. human or y, or a 3rd pl. y, subject.

401a

The forms to which I have taken exception above, and other similar ones, are probably to be ascribed to thoughtlessness or ignorance on the part of the informant. An alternative explanation would be that the verb is beginning to change its character and is in a state of instability, being sometimes treated as Intrans. and sometimes as Trans.

The verb in Hz. Bu. which corresponds to it semantically is d-ʌγurkʌs*, one of the few Trans. verbs in which the Pn. Infix refers to the subject (Cp. § 249.4). Did these verbs start as Intransitives and become converted into Transitives?

There is some uncertainty about the form of the Werch. Past Base. My forms would mostly indicate d-ʌγʌš-* except the 3rd pl. h daʌγʌši.en.

Zarubin has the very questionable form:

Plup. sg. 1. d-a-γaš-iy-am baʌm, and for the participial form in the remaining forms of the compound Past tenses he has:

d-ʌγʌšim* (less often d-ʌγʌšum*), which point to d-ʌγʌši-*.

d-ʌγʌši-*, d-ʌγʌšč-* would be parallel to wʌši-, wʌšč-).

dʌw, pl. -je x stone. V. also γoro.

dɔrʌxt, drʌxt, pl. -iq y tree. 400.10,15. Pm.

dɔrγʌnj famine. 410.6.

(Vernac. Ma. dɔrʌγʌ-nj, LSI drʌγʌ-nj. Cp. Kho. drʌγʌ-nj).

daš'en, pl. gusi.ʌqgi.ʌ, later: γeγu guliq'ʌ, hf. girl.

d-ʌsmʌi.in-*, d-ʌsmʌinč-* to (conceive and) carry young up to the point of parturition, to rear young. —

000 du . . . belis yaʷr dɛsmai.ina I reared the kid under a sheep. 406.23, ("they" in the translation is wrong).

This was the only form obtained. Later enquiries have now added the following examples:

ɛ biʷa boʃo dɛsmæ.inimi, ʌmuʷtok halkičimi that cow has conceived a calf and now will give birth to it. Fut. dɛsmæin.čimi.

nɛ thɔrʼɛs dʼɛsmæin rear that orphan.

(Cp. the Intrans. dusmai.in-. Perhaps to be referred to Hz. Bu. dᵊ-ʌsmʌnʌs.

dᵊ-ʌšqʌlt-. V. dɛšqʌlt-.

dawa, daʷwa, pl. -miŋ y claim, demand. 404.7. Ar. Prs.

dᵊ-ʌwʌkʌl-, dᵊ-ʌwʌkʌlč- to cause s.o. (to do s.t.), to constrain, to employ s.o. as an agent or instrument. The verb is used to produce the effect of Cs. Act. verbs.

menɛ ja ai.i dumoʷʌkʌl bɔriŋ ɛtʌn kɛ whoever (pl.) causes my daughter to talk. 404.3. jɛ . . . mo dumoʷwʌkʌl bɔriŋ mo.ɛčʌm I shall make her talk. 404.9.

The form in these examples is the Ppa. Later enquiries have thrown a little more light on the use of this verb in the following examples:

nɛ dɛʷwʌkʌl gutɛ dɔro ɛt turning him on to it, do this work, i.e. make him do this work. nɛ gutɛ dɔroʷtɛ dɛʷwʌkʌlčʌm I shall put him on to this job, i.e. I shall make him do it. wɛ dʌla di.uʷšumtɛ dɔʷwʌkʌlɛmen they put them on to making the watercourse, i.e. they made them make it.

daulat y property, possessions. 410.4 Ar. Prs.

402 a

000 deuli 3rd sg. hm Pret. of d-ʌ.el-*. 412.14.

deγəresivištai = deγeres'iš tavi. V. d-ʌγə-rxs-*. 412.14.

deḷ-, deč- to strike, hit.

2nd sg. Impv. uŋ ʌγʌ jʌwaub deḷ you answer me. 408.10.

d'eli 3rd sg. hm. Pret. 412.4.

d'eme-, d'emeč- to pour out, spill, waste. — iva mʌl . . . demeyi he wasted his property. 410.5.

(Vernac. Ms. variant for evpʌḷu.i. Cp. Hz. Bu. devmiyʌs).

len, pl. -iŋ y year. 400.12, 412.20.

deŋgiš, pl. -o leather bag, Sh. kuto.

desʌl- to appear to, 3rd sg. y Pret. desʌli, H. ma'lum huva. — hʌn buran neγa ṣinj yanis desʌli one hair appeared to him like a beam. 408.15.

(Probably a verb d-ʌsʌl-* which may be connected with Hz. Bu. -ʌsʌlʌs* to look at).

d'ešqʌlt-, d'ešqʌlč- to arrive, come to (with 3rd sg. hm and x subject).

+ Dat. 400.12, 402.16, 410.2,12.

+ -vḷe, -ḷe. 402.6,13.

Fut. sg. 2. dešqʌlčvma. 402.16.

Pres. sg. 3. x dešqʌlčum bi. 410.2,12.

Pres. Base + a dešqʌlča. 402.13.

Pret. sg. 3. hmx dešqʌlti. 400.12,6,13.

Ppa. hm dešqʌlt.

(The verb is d-ʌšqʌlt-*, as in Hz.Bu.).

di Ppa. 3rd sg. hmx of ṣo-. 404.11, 410.11.

di.a, diya 3rd sg. Pret. hmxy of ṣo-. 400.3, 402.2, 404.7, 412.12,13, 414.1.

d'i.eša. V. d-yeša-*.

di.'ev-, di.'evč- to stand up. V. paradigm § 540.

Fut. sg. 1. di.ečʌm. 404.10.

Ppa. dive. 410.12. 412.3.

dikoṭum thin, lean. (As in Hz. Bu. 3rd sg. St. Pc. of d-kuṭ-*. The 3rd pl. form is dukučʌm). 000 dim bai.i 3rd sg. hm Perf. of ṭo-. 412.15.

402 b

dimˈɛɣʌši. V. d-ʌɣʌš-*. 414.6.

dim duɣa. Read: dim duɣa. 408.1. 3rd sg. y Perf. of ṭc-.

dits-, diš- to bring. In Hz. Bu. this verb is only used when the object is hm or x sg., but in W. it has been recorded with a y object. This, however, is to be regarded as incorrect. hai.ʌn (y) dišʌm, dišuma, dits I shall bring, thou wilt bring, bring thou a present. 400.6,8,9. With x sg. object: boršo ditsə bring the calf. 412.10.

(From later information it appears that dits-, diš- is only one form, as in Hz. Bu., of d-ts-*, d-š-*, which is properly used only with h and x objects. The form of the verb used with y objects in W. is dutsu-, dutsuč-).

doɣˈʌris- (du-), doɣˈʌriš- to question, enquire of, + Dat. Cp. d-ʌɣʌris-*. — mʌčukus yˈɛɣa doɣʌrɪsi, goɣa šu.a pʌko guyˈɛna? he enquired of the middle son: "Did they give you good food?". 406.20. Cp. 402.7, 404.10, 406.5,8,9.

doɣori midday.

dohor-, dohorč- to fall down (of cliff etc.). — bau.u (? bʌl) dohori the wall fell down.

(Cp. Hz. Bu. 2. dorʌs to fall down).

drʌxt. V. dərʌxt.

drust complete, entire. 400.13. Prs.

du kid. 406 23—24, 412.21.

duɣa 3rd sg. y Pres. of ba. 404.14, 408.1, 412.15.

duhʌnja-, duhʌnjʌč- to "run", gallop (of horse, donkey etc.).

403a

duḷʌs, pl. duḷʌšo boy. (Originally recorded as du.ʌs). 000

duḷum, duḍum 3rd sg. y Past of ba. 400.13,14, 402.5, 410.9, 414.5.

duʿlošu h pl. servants. 412.8.

(For duḷʌšu. V. s.v. duḷʌs).

domo(ʿw)ʌkʌl, V. d-ʌwʌkʌl*. 404.3.

doni.a, donya the world. 410.3, 414.1.

dorʿo, pl. -iŋ y work, business. 410.5, 414.1.

duʿs-, duʿš- to go out, come out. Pret. 3rd sg. hm duʿsi. 400.7.

duṣmai.rn- to be reared. Pret. 3rd x duṣmai.ini it was reared. 406.24.

(The Passive or Intrans. corresponding to d-ʌsmai.in-* q.v.).

duʿst, pl. -išu friend.

(Vernac. Ms. duʿstišuŋga (or -ŋa?). with my friends. 412.22). Prs.

dosuʿ-. Only the Impv. 2nd sg. once doubtfully recorded. — ja gʌndi dosu bring it (y?) for me.

(Cp. dits- which in W., unlike Hz. Bu. has been recorded with y objects. Later information: the correct verb to use in W. with y objects is dotsu-, dotsuč-).

duwʿa? V. duʿa. 412.15.

duwʌḷ-, d-wʌḷ-*; duwʌḷč- to fly. V. paradigm § 543. — duʿwʿʌl, duwʌl (the parrot) flying away. 402.12,16.

duʿyeša. V. d-yeš-*.

d-wʌs-* to remain. Pret. sg. 1. neg. *ʿataw*ʿʌsa. 412.1.6.

d-yeša-*, d-eša-*. — sʌnduqom dʿi.eša take it (grain etc. y pl,) out of the box. gʌtonzišu duʿyeša having taken out clothes. 412.8.

(From later information it now appears that this verb is a form of the verb d-us-*, d-yes-* (corresponding to the Hz. Bu. d-usʌs* and d-isʌs*) 000 which may, and can only, be used when the object is plural, on the principle illustrated in regard to the Hz. Bu. Intrans. verbs in BSOS Vol. VIII. 1936, p. 628. The surmise in the footnote to the text, is therefore justified).

403b

F.

fəlaʷni such and such a. 406.3. Ar. Prs.

G.

gʌl̥. Pret. Base of ne- to go. V. paradigm § 538.
Pret. sg. 2nd gʌla. 400.10, 405.9.
3rd hmxy gʌli. 400.10, 402.12, 404.11.
neg. y ai.igʌli. 410.4.
(I am now of opinion that the -l- is l̥, except when it is followed by -i).

gʌh -iŋ y road.

gʌndi on account of, by reason of, for the sake of, for. — ja gʌndi eti do it for me. 412.16, 414.2.

gəri light (not dark).

gəruʷm hot.

gʌʃu x sg. cloth; y pl. cotton trousers.

gʌʃ'unz x pl. clothes. — gʌʃunzišu, 412.8, appears to be a double plural.

gʌʃuŋ clothes, clothing. — toš gʌʃuŋ new clothes. 406.10. gʌʃuŋ šu.a bim mʌgʌm te mʌkuči the clothes were good, but in the middle of it . . . 408.3.
(Bim is x sg. and pl., te is y sg. The form has probably been borrowed from Hz. Bu.).

1. gi, gič- v.i. to enter.
2. gi-, gič- v.t. to throw down, put down (x sg. & y objects only).
Pret. pl. 3rd h giʷen, gyiʷen. 406.13,14. (Cp. gu-.).

404 a

000 go oblique form of 2nd sg. Pers. Pron. thy, thee.

Gen. go ʌti thy father. 406.12, 412.16. go guyɛ thy son. 412.1. Cp. 412.15,20. go te sʌlam that greeting of yours. 402.8. go kimɛ guyɛ this son of thine. 412.22. Cp. 414.5. go gu.i.a bi it is thine own. 414.4.

Dat. goγa for thee, to thee. 400.8, 402.14, 404.10, 406.20.

go·čomʌn. 402.15. V. *-ʌt-.

goγa. V. go.

go·tɛn. 402.11. V. *-ʌt-.

gowɛlɛna. Pret. pl. 3rd h interrog. of *-ʌwɛl-. 408.3.

gu·- in gu·ya, gu·i.a thy own. 412.2, 414.4. V. *-ya.

gu- to throw down, put down (x pl. objects). — gum ba·n we have put down (the bedding). 406.16. hukku-ku·rešo besa gum ba·n? why had you put thorns (in the clothes?), 408.5. hukkuku·rišo ai.e·gum ba·n we have not put thorns in (them). 408.6.

(Cp. gi-. In Hz. Bu. guyʌs is used only with h and x pl. objects. In the first of the above examples the object understood is ya·rrki yæṭɪki, which is y and with which gi.ɛn is used above. The rule is probably the same in W. as in Hz. Bu. and this breach of it is probably a slip).

gučʌčum lying down, going to bed. — hər gučʌčum kenər at every lying down time, always at bedtime. 406.7.

Pres. Base Pc. and Verbal Noun of guča-.

gukər thyself. V. *-khər.

gukɛ y pl. Demons. Adj. these. — gukɛ ha·kičʌŋ these houses.

gumaiyum. V. *-mʌn-.

4044b

000 gʊm bʌm, gum bʌm. V. gu-.

gʊnahgʌr guilty, sinful. 412.16. Prs.

gʊnčʌt, kʊnčʌt early morning, dawn. — gʊnčʌte in the morning, next morning. 406.12.

(Probably connected with the Hz. Bu. gʊn dawn).

gʊnts -iŋ day. 406.9.

gus, pl. gušiŋ (later recorded as guš'iŋa), hf woman.

gʊse x sg. Demons. Pron. and Adj. this one, this.

Pron. 402.5.

Adj. gʊse dʌn, this stone; gʊse hʌγʊr this horse.

gʊte y sg. Demons. Pron. and Adj. this one, this.

Pron. gʊte bo maiyʊm duw'a? what is this that is going on? 412.15. Cp. 412.1.

Adj, gʊte ha this house. Cp, 402.4. Sg. used for pl. (Cp. Hz. Bu. gʊke, W. ke): gʊte beriŋ this saying(s). 406.11.

gʊts.hər-, gʊts.hərč- to proceed.

Pres. sg. 1. gʊts.hərčʌm ba.
2. gʊts.hərčʊm ba.
3. h gʊts.hərčʊm bai.i.
pl. 1. gʊts.hərčʌn bʌm.
2. gʊts.hərčʊm bʌm.
3. h gʊts.hərčʊm bʌm.

Pret. sg. 1. gʊts.hərə.
pl. 3. gʊts.h'ərі. 400.12 (bis).

Pres. Base Verbal Noun gʊts.hərčʊm.

gʊtse x pl. Demons. Pron. and Adj. these ones, these.

Pron. gʊtseγa to these ones (i.e parrots). 402.3.

Adj. gʊtse γoro, these stones.
gʊtse hʌγʊra these horses.

guy'ena 3rd pl. h Pret. Interrog. of -u- 406.24.

405a

γ

·γa Dat. suffix used after vowels. Cp. -a. Occasionally the vowel is that of the General Oblique e.g. 000 nyoʷnɛγa to all. 400.6. h'iŋaγa doγʌrisi be enquired of the door. 404.11.

γaʷnu, γaʷnun, pl. γaʷnuyo crow.

γaʷn-, γai(y)- to look, look at, inspect, see.
Pres. base + a yaʷrzki γaiya hɛʷn sɛsʌn eʷri he sent a man to look at the bedding. 406.17.
Pret. sg. 3. hm γani. 406.17.
Impv. sg. 2. γaʷn. 412.9.
pl. 2. γaʷnin. 408.7.
Ppa. niʷγʌn. 406.16
(gʌtʊŋ) nuγaʷnin looking at clothes 408.7.

γaʷnɛk alone.

γərʌš, γəraʷš a kind of pulse, Hz. Bu. γərʌš, Kho. khəraʷš, Sh. γəraʷš (probably all with -š).
1. x pl. the seed.
2. y with pl. γ'ərahʌŋ. the crop.
The plant is small and has a blue flower.

γərɛ postpos. with, in company with. — inɛ γərɛ . . . buʷlya bim with him was a monkey, 404.7.

γər, pl. -iŋ y song. — γəriŋ ečum singing. 412.14.

γaiya. V. γaʷn-.

γɛndɪš, γ'ɛndɛš, pl. γɛndəhaʷŋ.
1. y gold.
2. hf queen.

γeyo, γɛʷyu, pl. small, little, young.
(The sg. is supplied by *-ʌčʊγʊn).

γoʷl-; γolč-, γulč- v.i. to burn, be burnt. — ɛʷs γoʷli his heart burned, he was grieved. 412.4.

γoro x pl. stones. Cp. dʌn.

*-γoyʌŋ y pl. woman's hair.

405b

000 γundɪl -išo x dove.
(Later it was said that γundɪl was a sort of "pigeon"; "dove" being properly γuṭγundɪl, in which γuṭ = deaf. This perhaps explains Hz. Bu. γoγundɪl).

γus'ʌnum, pl. γus'aiyu.
1. Adj. long.
2. Noun x snake.

H.

ha, pl. ha·kičʌŋ y house. — gute ha this house. haḷe, ha·la in, at, to the house or home. 400.2, 402.6, 404.11.
(In W. ha·ḷe may perhaps be regarded as ha + uḷe, as the Hz. Bu. suffix -ʌle has not been recorded).

hʌγur pl. hʌγura, hʌγurə, hʌγurek x horse.

ha·jʌti y necessity, need, requirement. 400.13. Ar. Prs.

hʌlʌnts, hʌlʌnz x moon.

haldɛn, pl. hʌldiu, hʌldyu x he-goat, male ibex.

hʌḷe·s, hɪḷ'ɛs, pl. duḷʌšu hm youth, boy. 410.7,8,11, 412.4,14. (Cp. duḷʌs).

hʌmi·ša always, ever. 414.3. Prs.

hʌn x and y one. — se hʌn that one (parrot). 402.3. hʌn burʌn one hair. 400.1, 404.7, 406.18. (Cp. hen, hek).

hʌpa, hapa hpl. family, household. 400.14.

1. hər, pl. -i.u, -yo x castrated bull, ox.
2. hər every. 406.6,8. Prs.

hərʌŋ, həræŋ postpos. among. 402.3, 408.10, 410.1. — šum duro həræŋ espʌḷu.i he wasted it in evil works. 414.1. hərʌŋgum from among. 402.9.

hər'e y pl. barley. D. pl. hər'eŋ barley crops.

hʌwa·za sound, noise. 412.14. Prs.

hʌwel first, in the first place. 404.9. (So also in Kho.). Ar. Prs.

hʌza·r a thousand. Prs.

406a

000 hai.ʌn, pl. haiyai.iŋ y present, memento; mark, badge. — tɛ hai.ʌn that present. 400.9. Cp. 400.6 ff.

hairaʷn astounded, amazed. 408.9. Ar.Prs.

1. hɛʷk full. 410.10.

2. hɛk z one, once. Cp. hɛn a' ʌ hʌn.

hɛkai.i, pl. -ŋ y outer part of house, through which the dwelling part is reached. — hɛkha (hɛqa or hɛʷqulo) dusi he went out into the hall. 400.7.

(The Nom. form given was obtained later and it may be taken that its vocalic ending is approximately correct, which makes it difficult to explain the forms in the text).

hɛn h one. — hɛnɛ haʷlɛ gʌli he went to the house of a certain one. 410.7. Cp. 400.1, 406.7, 412.14.

(Cp. hʌn and 2. hɛk).

hɛpulṯu the day after tomorrow.

hɛsa, hisa sg. and pl. month. — hɛk hɛsa one month. (Cp. 1. sa).

hɪkmʌt device(?). 404.8. Ar. Prs.

hɪkulṯo one day. 400.8 ff.

-hiʷlikin-, -hʲiliki- to entreat, placate, do reverence to. 412.19.

Hɪndustaʷn India. 400.5 ff.

hiŋ, pl. -ičʌŋ y door. Dat. hiŋə. 404.10.

hʲiŋaγa. 404.11.

Loc. hiŋulɛ, hiŋulo. 404.9,11.

hir, hiʷr, pl. huri, huʷri hm man. 400.4,7. 410.8.

hisa. V. hɛsa. 400.12.

ho then. 406.18, 408.10,11, 412.5,12.

holə sheep (? Very doubtful. I believe there is a word hoʷlo = sheep's, goat's, or camel's, dung).

hoʷla, hoʷlɛ out, outside. 402.11, 412.18.

holṯʌš, holṯʌš barefoot.

huʷçɔ sg. and pl. x "pabbɔɔ", soft leather boot.

(Originally I got sg. huʷč, pl. huʷču).

406 b

hu.ˈeˑ-, hu.ˈeč- to run (of man, dog, cat). 000
V. paradigm § 541.

1. huk, hʊk, pl. hukˈai.i, hʊka x pl. dog.

2. huˑk, xuˑk, pl. -išu x pig. 410.8,9. Prs.

hʊkɔm y order, command. — badša hʊkɔm ˈɛti the king commanded. Ar. Prs.

hʊkkʊkuˑrišo x pl. three-pointed thorns, Kho. koluxxo. 408.4 ff. (huk dog + kʊkurɛs puppy).

-huˑlus*, pl. -tɔro, -huˑlʌstɔro* hm a woman's brother, husband's brother, ahuˑlʊs my brother, go guhuˑlʊs thy brother. mo muhuˑlʊs her brother, wɛ uhuˑlʌstɔro their brothers.

hʊmʌč, pl. -iŋ y scrap of cloth or wool wrapped round feet over sock for warmth, to make boot fit, or to protect sock. Kho. ponoˑko.

hʊmʌlkʊm light (not heavy); quick, quickly.

hʊn, pl. -iŋ y wood, firewood.

hʊpʊrpu, pl. -mo x hoopoe.

hʊruˑf-, hʊruˑš-, and Past Base hʊruˑča- (with pl. subjects only), to sit down, to sit. 400.15, 404.11. V. paradigm § 544.

Plup. hʊrʊčʌm biˑɛm (biˑɛn?) (the parrots) had sat, probably equivalent to Impf., were sitting.

huˑš senses. 410.11. Prs.

hʊši.aˑr intelligent, perceptive. 408.12,14. Prs.

hʊšyaˑri intelligence, perceptiveness. 408.1. Prs.

huti z nine.

-huˑfɪs* sg. x pl. -huˑfiŋ* y foot. — ja ahuˑfɪs, go guhuˑfɪs, nɛ huˑfɪs; mi mihuˑfiŋ, wɛ uhuˑfiŋ. huˑtiša kau.ušʊmo eˑltai.iŋ put ye shoes on his feet. 412.9.

(Vernac. Ms. hʊfiˑšaˑ, probably Dat. sg.).

407a

J.

jă, jæ, jɛ I, me; Nom. 404.8,9,13, 410,9,12. Acc. 404.12, 410.3,12. 000 jaʷ, ja, Gen. and Obl. of ja, jɛ, of me, my, me. — ja tɛ hai.ʌn that present of mine. 402.7, 404.13. ja kaʷt with me. 404.12. Cp. 400.10, 414.3.

Dat. jaʷγa, jʌγʌ to me, for me. 400.8,9, 410.2.3, 412.21.

jʌγa, pl. jʌγʌŋ y place. 406.3. (Cp. Kho. žʌγa).

jʌma ɛt- v.t. to collect. 410.4. Ar. Prs.

jʌndo, žʌndo alive, living. 412.11,12.

jəraʷp, jəraʷb, pl. -ičiŋ y sock.

jʌṭ, pl. -u old. — jʌṭ hir old man. jʌṭ gus old woman.

jʌwaʷb y answer. — ja goʷγa jʌwaʷb ečʌm I shall answer you. 404.10. uʷŋ jʌγa jʌwaʷb dɛḷ answer me (this). 408.10. Ar Prs.

jɛ I. V. jă. 406.2, 408.8,9. 410.9,12, jimʌḷ, jimʌlə tomorrow.

ju.a, žu.a like, resembling. 406.13, 412.2.

juwaʷri y pl. Indian corn.

juwʌn like. Cp. ju.a. — ja juwʌn like me. go juwʌn like thee.

K.

1. ka, kɛ and, also. 400.2,3, 402.15,16, 408.11, 410.9,13, etc.
   (Vernac. Ms. kaʷ for 1. 2. 3. and 4. kha in the texts is probably wrong).
2. ka following a verb preceded by a General Relative. 400.13, 410.2, 414.4.
3. ka following a verb: when, if; when 400.7,10, 402.14,16. 406,17. if 402.5,15, 404.3.10.
   though (?). 406.21.
4. ka, ke, kɛ, ki corresponding to the Persian ki introducing a dependent clause, especially after a verb of "saying". 400.5, 402.8,14, 406.15,

4076

000

408.6 etc., for, because, seeing that . . . 406.19. Cp. gutɛ gandi kʌ . . . 412.16.

kʌč, pl. -oŋ y strand (of river), gravel, shingle, Kho. šutur.

kʌmrenʌn a small quantity (?) a little (?). — kʌmrenʌn qɪsa glossed "a little (amount of) story". 404.14.

-khər Reflexive Pron. -self. — ʌkər myself. 402.14. gukər thyself. 402.15. ikəre for himself. 400.13.

karo sg. and pl. male oorial. Also later given as: Ovis Poli.

kat, -kat Postpos. with. — ja kat with me. 404.12.

khʌt (?), kʌt down, downwards. 402.3,9.

khai.i, pl. khai.ʌnz x fort. Also recorded as qai.i.

kau.ušumo x pl. shoes. 412.9. Prs.

kɛ y pl. Demons. Adj. (and Pron. ?) those. — kɛ hakičʌŋ those houses.

kɛ V. 1. ka and 4. ka.

khɛn time. 406.7,8.

ki V. 4. ka.

khinɛ, khɛnɛ hm sg. Demons. Pron. and Adj. this, this (man). Cp. khu.ɛ and khumo. Pron. 406.18. Adj. 412.11.

khiti, khitə (to) this side, this direction.

kho here, hither.

khoš -išu x pod, "husks". 410.9.

kho(w)ɛrγa V. khuɛ. 406.11.

krɪsma small wild iris.

khu.ɛ h pl. Demons. Pron. and Adj. these, these (men), these (persons). — khu.ɛ hurri these men.

Dat. ko(w)ɛrγa to these people.

khul all, entire. 410.4. (Cp. Kho. khul). Ar. Prs. (kul).

khulɛ, khudɛ inside here. (kho + ulɛ).

kuluk -išo x hoof, Kho.

khumo hf sg. Demons. Pron. and Adj. this, this one.

408a

000 Pron. ja kumo this (daughter) of mine. 404.3.
Gen. khumo·mo.
Dat. khumo·ɣa.
Adj. ja kumo ai.i this daughter of mine. 404.3.

chuts y sg. Demons. Pron. (?) and Adj. this. 404.5,7.

kuts days. — iski kuts three days.

X.

xər, xair y smell, odour. 406.21, 408.1. Kho.

xərj st- to expend. 410.6. Ar. Prs.

xa·ṭ up to, until. — ana xa·ṭ, amulu xa·ṭ? up to where? kho-le xa·ṭ up to here. iski kuts xa·ṭ up to, until, three days. ne ṭo·ṭ xa·ṭ until he comes.

(a)xaṭan-, (a)xati-, Ppa. nuxat, nuxa (not) to say.

With the exception of the Ppa. this verb is used only in the negative (with the neg. particle a-).

There is also an alternative Pres. Base (a)xać-, which has only been recorded with pl. subjects.

nuxat having said (this). 406.4.

(Cp. Hz. Bu. nuxa. Is this the same word as Hz. Bu. ɣaṭanas, ɣaṭai.i- "to read", "recite", which does not occur in that form, nor with that meaning in W.?)

xismat service. 412.20. Ar. Prs.

xušan happy, merry. 414.4. Prs.

xušani happiness, rejoicing. 412.10,12.22. Prs.

L.

laha·z, lrha·z ill (not seriously), indisposed. Also used in Kho.

laman, pl. lamai.iŋ y front skirt of choga (cloak). (Cp. Psht. laman, Sh. laban, Prs. da·man).

408 b lʌq naked.

laiʌq worthy; worthiness(?). — gots laiʌqvlɛ atawʌse I have not remained worthy (in worthiness?) that . . . 412.1,6. Ar. Pra. 000

(With reference to the footnote to this passage, it should be observed that the Kho. Loc. laiʌq-a occurs in the same passage of my Kho. translation of the "Prodigal Son". Elsewhere I have an example of the straightforward use of laiʌq as an adj.

Again, however, in a Chilasi Shina translation of the "Prodigal Son" I have: "ʌnu laiʌk da fʌt neʌi bilos" where aa is a postpos. meaning "to" and "in").

-lći*, pl. -mo x eye. So later authority, but in the texts -lćin*. V. 412 1,5.

le! O! 410.2.

lil et- to perceive, understand. 406.18.

lip -ʌt-* to throw out, throw away. 402.11 ff.

(-l'te-*(?). V. te'y)ʌn and nʌlte

-ltvlʌm*, tvlʌm, pl. ltvlju*, tvlju like, in the manner of. — ja ʌltvlʌm like me, after my fashion. 402.15. go gultvlʌm, ne tvlʌm, etc. ma maltvlju bʌn you are alike. ʌse ʌltik u-hʌn-tvlju bʌn they are of one likeness. ne tvlʌm nʌma ʌvte duro akhi ʌta imitating him I did this work, i.e. I did it in the same way as he does.

(Cp. ʌltu, and Hz. Bu. -ltʌr*, -ltʌro*, mʌnʌ's to imitate).

-ltʌmʌl*, pl. -iŋ y ear. — ja ʌltʌmʌl, go gultʌmʌl, ne tʌmʌl, etc. ja ʌltʌmʌlći in my ear (i.e. in my head). 404.13.

409 a

M.

000

ma you (pl.).
Gen. ma. 406.5
Dat. ma.ya. 406.2. maym 406.6.

ma'ulus, ma'ulus the middle one (son). 406.7,20.

madal, madale upper part, above; by the upper way. — mal madal the upper edge of a field. madale daiyam I came along above, from above.
(The word also occurs in Hz. Bu.).

mavli.ava x mare. Pra.

magam, magam but. 406.14,22, 410.10, 412.21,22, 414.4.
(Cu. Kho. magam, Pra. magar).

mahtaj in want, destitute. 410.7. Ar. Pra.

makuči, makuj-u, -o in the middle of. — te makuči in the middle of it. 408.4. ni gatuŋ makučo in the middle of his clothes. 408.8.

1. mal, mal, pl. -iŋ y field. 410.8, 412.13.

2. mal, mal, mal property, live-stock. — mal i dunya worldly possessions. 414.1. Cp. 410.2,3,5.

malto the day after the day after to-morrow.

maltal, pl. maltaraŋ y butter. 406.24 f.

mamu, pl. -čiŋ y milk. 406.21 ff.

man-, maiy-, mai- to become, be:
Fut. sg. 3. maimi will be.
aimaimi will not be.
Pret. sg. 3. hmxy mani. 402.3,4,15, 406.15.
pl. 3. x manan. 402.3,9.
Pres. Base Verbal Noun. maiyum y. (Vernac. Ma. maytm). gete bo maiyum dunu? what happening is this?
-ŋ Form: manil tri.i he began to be. 410.7.

4096

000 Pres. Base + Dat. Suffix: maiʌyu when it was thus, things being thus. 40.21. se du ṭaiyr maiyuwu on the kid's becoming a goat. 406.24.

*-ʌʌn-, *-maiy- to become, be.
Pret. sg. 1. ʌwʌnʌ. 406.14, 412.1.
2. gumʌnʌ. 406.2.
The 3rd sg. hm is not distinguished from that of mʌn-, as the Pa.Pf. is not expressed.
Ppa. x sg. subject nimʌ. 402.12.
Pres. Base Verbal Noun or Participle 2nd sg. gumaiyum. 414.4.
Ṭir ʌlimum ʌwʌn — ʌlimum ʌwʌn thus were not able, V. *-ʌwʌn-. mʌnʌm. Pret. pl. 3. x of mʌn-. maḳul ʌt- to divert, entertain. — uŋ bo ja maḳul ʌti . . . je uŋ bo maḳul gučam (= gučam) divert my mind in some way . . . I will entertain you in some way(?). 404.13.
maḳul ʌti was explained by Kho. ma maḳul ko, and H. dil baijhavo.
(Cp. Sh. maḳwl bortki to amuse oneself, converse(?), Kho. maḳwl korik to entertain, amuse). 'Ar. Pra. (maḳwl). maḳwli, maḳkuli (ʌt-) business, affairs, entertainment(?). 400.2,3. maṭhʌn distant, far. 410.4, 412.3.
mʌṭum black.
mazdur, pl. -iṭu hm hired-labourer. 410.11. Pra. maiʌyu. V. mʌn-. maiyuwu. V. mʌn-. maiyum. V. mʌn-.
men sg. and pl.; also sg. monʌn, pl. menik.
1. Interrog. Pron, who?
men dim baiʌ? who has come?
men duwu bawʌ? who have come?
monʌn baiʌ? who is it?

410a

000 menik bɐʷn? who are they?
ʷv korag mɐn but nazuk . . . bɐm? who among them was most delicately nurtured? 408.10.
Gen. gusɐ mɐnɐ bi? whose is this?
Dat. mɐnɔ ʷvm ba? to whom have you given it?
Abl. mɐntsvm yænvm ba? from whom have you taken it?
mɐntsɐ bi? with (?) whom is it?
2. Indef. Pron. sg. and pl. any one, any persons.
mɐn bai.a? is there anyone?
mɐn bɐʷnɐ? are there any people? Cp. 404.4.
+ neg. no one, no persons.
mɐn kɐ apai.i there is mɐn kɐ apɐʷn there are no persons. Cp. 410.10.

mí we. 406.16, 412.10.
Dat. míya. 400.6, 406.2.

mín-, mí(y)- to drink.
Pres. sg. 1. míya (míyɐʷm) ba.
Pret. sg. 1. mína. pl. mínɐn.
2. mína. mínɐn.
3. hm míni. h mínɐ.
Impv. sg. 2. mína.

mo she, her. V. § 510.
Acc. mo. 404.9.
Gen. momu. 408.16.

moča. Pres. Base + a of mu + -ʌl-* q.v. 404.4,5.

mo.í —? 408.16.

-mɔʷ -mʌn- to become angry (with Dat.). — sesa mos mʌní he became angry with the men. 406.15. Cp. 412.18.
(Also as in Hz. Bu. with the verbs ço- to come; dutsu- to bring; d-ʌts-* to cause to bring).

mukʌk x pl. broad beans. — mukʌkɐ

410b

ḃáḋlo bean poés (for Eng. "hooks"). 000 410.9. -íg y pl. bean crops.
(Cp. Ha. Bn. ḃuḃáḋ). mulk country. 410.5. nuaireáḋ fitting, proper. 414.4. Ar. Fra. nuaḋ, pl. -anu x end.
mulaggaí (in) trouble, (in) discomfort. — mulaggaí ammuo I was uncomfortable. 406.14. Ar. Fra. mugu her own(?). 408.18. V. *-gu.

N.

naṁ, pl. -íg y shade. 400.15.
1. ṅamu Fpa. 1st sg. of *-mau-. V., s.v. *-ḃiḋjom.
2. nanu Fpa. 2nd pl. of ní-, you going. 408.7.
nanní, pl. nanníuro bf mother, mother's sister. — ja nanní my mother. * gu nanní thy mother. nanlaí advice, counsel. 406.2. Ar. Fra. naṁiv (i.e. naṁivf) sight. — gu naṁivulo in thy sight. (Vernac. Ma. for gu gulíneulo). 412.1,5. Ar. Fra. (naṁar). naṁuḋ, naṁuḋ delicate, sensitive, refined. 406.19, 408.11,12. Ar. Fra. naṁuḋí y delicacy, sensitivity. 408.8. Ar. Fra.
1. ne hm sg. 3rd Pers. Pron., and Demons. Pron. and Adj. he, that. V. § 810.
Pron. Nom. 407.16,20,22 etc.
Gen. ne. 400.1,5, 404.2, 414.2 etc.
Dat. neyu. 400.7, 402.7, 406.19, 414.3 etc.
Adj. 400.6,7,11, 406.5, 408.1 etc.
2. ne pl. nerin, Impv. bf ne-, go, go ye ne- to go.
Pres. Base ta.ḃero- (ferro-, farro-).
Pret. Base gal- V. paradigm § 536
Impv. 2nd pl. nerin. 408.4.

Fpa. 3rd sg. hmx ni. 402.18, 406.17, 412.19. 000

2nd pl. h n.ccon. 406.7.

St. Fr. 3rd sg. x nem, n.vem. 402.14.

nef, nefe, nefi. Fpa. of ri- having done, having made. — nef. 400.7,18, 402.8. nefe, 410.4. (Vocmc. Ma. nef). nefi 404.7. ja nef d.e.n it is on my part. ovyr nef d.e.n it is on thy part. Fpa. ar fer.f i m.en (ha) nef.

ni Fpa. 3rd sg. hmx of ne-.

nim Fpa. of gam- (= Ha. Ba. n(g)am).

nivem, variant of nem, St. Fr. 3rd sg. x of ne-.

nivis, ni.ches, Fpa. of *-gafe- with y sg. and hm sg. object.

nir.en, Fpa. of yere-.

nimm, Fpa. with x sg. Fa.Pf. of *-m.em-.

nirji, Fpa. of ji- (with x sg. object).

nilem, Fpa. of *-lem- (with x sg. object).

nar. V. ngm.

nerymain, Fpa. of yere-.

nerhuf, Fpa. of herwf. 406.15.

nehervi, Fpa. of he.er-. 412.4.

nm.el, nem, Fpa. of n.lem-, having spoken, having said (thi). 406.4. (Cp. Ha. Ba. nemi).

nerfis, Fpa. taking oath. 406.22. Cp. ti(g)am.

nerenin, nerenl, Fpa. of ne-.

ngm, pl. ngmmo x hear.

ngm, (ner), pl. hay nerym big, great, elder, eldest. 406.6.12, 408.14, 412.18.

ngvr.el, Fpa. 3rd sg. x of *-m.el-, it having fallen.

Ng.

-ngm, -gt, Cave suffix: with. V, 412.22 note. The forms jengm with me, and gengt with thee, have since been recorded. (Probably the W. form of the Ha. Ba. suffix -agr, -agt).

411b

P, PF, PH.

000 paśi to (beside a person), to the presence of. — ker paśi ʃu come to me. Cp. 406.4,5.

pʃał-, phał- to divide, apportion. — ira mal i dunia wuyo pʃałi he divided up his property for them. 410.3.

(The word occurs in the LSI version of the "Prodigal Son". V. also Zarubin p. 353).

pago, paqo, -mo z bread, food, Khe. ʃapók. — pako stas a cook. 406.21. Cp. 406.20, 410.12.

(The forms pako, phrike given in the texts are incorrect).

paida man- to be found, to be procurable. Pra.

pʃaq, ʃaq, pl. pʃaiiq y lie, untruth. Ar. Pra. (ʃaq).

pałman penitent, repentant. 402.4. Pra.

pʃerpil a kind of millet. Khe. grow.

(Cp. Hz. Bu. herpil, Sh. pʃerpil, pʃerpil).

pʃu, phu, -iq y fire.

pura complete, entire. 400.13. H.

pur, pl. purhaq y woman's shirt.

(From a less reliable source the pl. puʃiło was obtained. In view of the -ł, the word is probably not the Pra. purł, purł).

Q.

qadrow ancient. 404.1. Ar. Pra.

qaw ał- to call out to. 400.7.

qisa y story. 404.14. Ar. Pra.

R.

rahi, rahi, rahi ał- to start off, set out for. 400.4,15. 402.6. 410.5. (Khe. rahi kawil).

rai ał- to wish, be willing. 412.18.

412a

∞ -rek, pl. -ɪndɔro hmf brother-in-law (wife's brother, man's sister's husband); sister-in-law (husband's sister, woman's brother's wife).

-rɛ·n*, pl. -rɛ.iŋ*, -rɛ.iŋčiŋ* y hand.

S.

1. sɑ̃ x sun. — sɑ duvɛ́ the sun rose.
2. sɑ, pl. -mo (but perhaps this is an Abl. ending), month. — altosa two months. iskiʼsa three months. waʼlɛ sa four months, etc. waʼlto samo four months. (Cp. hɛsa).

sɑʼɑti, sɑʼɑtik yesterday.

sabab, sabap y reason, cause. — tɛ sabɑb yate for that reason. 406.14. Ar. Prs.

saxen by reason of, H. wajhese. — gute bor čɔmɛ saxen by reason of making this speech. 408.16.

1. saxt kind, sort. 408.6.

(Cp. Kho. saxt, manner, fashion; Badakhshi Pers. sɔ·xt). Prs. (sɑʼxt)?

2. saxt hard, severe. 410.6. Prs.

salaʼm y salaam, greeting. 400.11, 402.2,4. Ar. Prs, sam -ɑlko, -ɑnts x smoke-hole in roof.

sanduq, sandɔq (-ɛlu) x box. — sanduqulo, sanduqɛ́s, bi it is in, on, the box. sanduqulom, sanduqu·n, di.rɛla take(?), or, having taken, it out of the box.

sap -ɑ, -ɑnɛ x horse-shoe.

(Zarubin gives "sápa" as meaning "horse's hoof", and I originally recorded thas as a questionable second meaning).

sapuk -ɛlu x horse's hoof. Kho.

sarɛthi afternoon, Prs. pitiʼn.

sauda y trade, merchandise. 400.4. Prs.

saudagor, sɔudagor, pl. -ɛlu hm trader, merchant. 400.1. Prs.

412 b

se, se x sg. Pers. and Demons. Pron. and Adj. it, that one, that. V. § 515. Pron. 400.3, 402.2,10. Dat. 402.14. Adj. 402.1,3,13, etc. 000 sen-, si(y)- to say; to read.

Fut. sg. 1. s'iyʌm. 410.13, 402.7.
2. siya. 412.11, 414.5.
Pres. Base + a se.a. 402.8,11.
Pret. sg. 3. hmx seni. 400.6,8,9, 402.8, 410.2, etc. hf seno. 408.13.
pl. 3. h senʌn. 400.5, 406.1,16.
Ppa. nuseniṇ. 400.11.
nuseni. 404.14.
Noun Agent form as Ppa. senʌs. 402.10, 404.10.

s'endɛ -miṇ y river.
(Originally recorded as sind, pl. -e.o).

ses hm sg. and pl. person; people, persons, men. 406.15, 408.5. — hen sesʌn, also. hen ses a man, a person. 406.17.

siya, siyʌm. V. sen-.

sust, sust unconscious. 402.3.14,15. Prs.

Š, Š.

šahr, šaihr y city, country(?) 400.9, 402.13. Prs.

šʌlʌs blanket.
(I know of nothing to support this form, but it is quite clear in my Ms. and cannot be read as šai.is).

šaʼm evening. Prs.

1. šər, pl. -ʌnz, -ʌnts x branch, bough.
2. šər, pl. -ʌnz, -ʌnts x unroofed goat and sheep pen as constructed in the mountain grazing grounds).
(Cp. perhaps. Kho. etc. šʌl cattle-house).

šarɛ yʌt top of a hill. (šar = 1. čhər?).

šɛ-. V. ši-.

šenj -ko x roof-beam, rafter, Prs. šahliʼr. 406.14 ff. (Cp. Hz. Bu. sinč).

413a

ʃi-, ʃu-, še-; ʃič-, ʃuč-, šeč- to eat. ooo

As far as information goes these alternative forms are employed under the same conditions as in Hz. Bu.:

ʃi- with x sg. object.
ʃu- with x pl. object.
še- with y object.

The forms recorded are:

Fut. sg. 3. hm ʃičimi.
hf ʃičumo.
x — — šečimi.

Pres. sg. 3. hm ʃičum bai.i.
ʃučum bai. šečum bai.
hf ʃičum bo. — x — šečum bi.
pl. 3. x ʃučum bi.en. — 410.9.

Pret. sg. 3. hm ʃivi. ʃuvi. ševi.
hf ʃivo. — ševo.

Impf. sg. 3. hm — — še šebam.
hf — — še šebom.
x — — še šebim.

Impv. sg. 2. ʃe. ʃu. še.

Ppa. (ʃi-) nxʃi, nivʃi. 412.10.
(ʃu-) nxʃo. (še-) nuše.

It is to be noted that I apparently intentionally recorded the še- forms with š- not ʃ-.

(This statement is interesting as it was written in 1930, long before I knew that in Hz. Bu. the š- of ševas is also not cerebral).

ʃxkərk brass. V. xʃkərk.

šolt -iŋ y.

1. Roof (external view), Kho. istan.
2. Eyelash.

(This word was originally recorded as šoxt).

šorqum, pl. x -išu, y -iŋ wide, broad, loose.

ʃu-. V. ʃi-.

šuva good; good! 400.6,11, 402.5, 406.20, 412.8.

413b

OOO šum, šum bad, evil. 410.5, 414.1. Kho. švqa -mo x "choga", cloak.

T, TH, T.

tha x hundred, hundred.

tah, pl, -əmo x leopard.

thʌle x seven.

tʌmʌŋ, tamʌŋ y pl. bridle.
(Cp. Hz. Bu. tʌbʌŋ).

-thʌn, pl. -thaiyu x front part of top of head. — thʌn point, top (of an object). 408.8.

tʌndurust in good health. 412.17. Prs.

tʌŋ constricted, distressed. 402.3,9. Prs.

thʌp y night.

t'ʌti, pl. -štəro hm father, 406.6, 410.2 ff.
(Cp. Kho. tʌt).

tauts, pl. taučiŋ y foot wrapper of strips of skin, "taoti".

tauza well, in good health. 412.16. Prs.

tai- (?) to begin, proceed to. Takes the dependent verb in the -š form.
Pret. sg. 3. hm. tai.
pl. 3. h tai(y)en. (Vernac Ma. taven). mahtaj mʌniš tai.i he began to be in want. 410.7. dəγeresiš tai he proceeded to question. 412.14. ne hilikiniš tai he began to entreat him. 412.19. xušani etiš tai'y)en they began to make merry. 412.12.

tai.i, təi.i, tai.e thus. 402.8,10, 404.10,14.

təi.i.a, təi.iya in like manner. 402.16, 406.13. (tai.i + Dat. suffix -a).

te, te y sg. Demons. Pron. and Adj. that one, it, that. V. § 515.
Pron. 404.14. Adj. 402.1,2,8, 404.11, 408.8.

te other, else.
(Cp. Hz. Bu. 2. thi).

temen any other. 404.1. (te + men).

tešk -ʌŋ, -ai.iŋ y dagger, knife.

414a

000 ʈeʈ'ɛ -šku x rope.

te(y)ɛn they took oath.

Pret. pl. 3. h of (*-l)te-(?).

Cp. Ppa. nu·lte.

nɛ nɛs te(y)ɛn kʌ . . . his men took oath that . . . 408.6.

(Cp. Hz. Bu. te·š oath, which may be the -š form of the same verb).

thi-, thi·č- to pour. — mʌmu bɛsɛ thim bʌm? why had you poured (put) in milk? 406.22.

tili.ʌŋ, tili ɛŋ sg. and pl. y saddle.

to· there. 402.13, 410.5.

to·lɛ, to·lə there.

to·lʊm from there, thence. 402.6,13.

tom tree.

t'orum z ten.

thoš, pl. xy thow'a·, tu(w)'a new, fresh. 406.7,10.

toti, pl. -mu x parrot. 400.1 ff. pl. 402.1,2. H.

tu(w)'a y pl. of thoš.

thum, thʊm other than, contrary to. 412.20.

tu·mʌl. V. *-ltumʌl.

ʈuŋʈʌŋ very dark. —

tur -i.ʌŋ, -i.ɛŋ y horn.

Ts, Ts.h.

ts.hʌn-, -ts.hʌi(y)- to reckon, count, account, consider.

Pret. sg. 3. hm tsʌni. 408.2.

ts.hərə-, ts.hɛrə-, ts.hɪrə. Pres. Base of nɛ- to go. V. § 538.

Pres. Base + a tsərə·γa. 412.18.

Fut. sg. 1. tsərə·m. 410.13.

(Vernac. Ms. ts.hɛrə·m, ts.hɛrə·γa).

tsɛ x pl. Demons. Pron. and Adj. those ones, they, those. V. § 515.

Pron. 400.11, 402.2,3,8.

Adj. 402.1,2.

-tsɛ. Case suffix: on; with, in possession

414 b

of. — na·lːsɛ horu·ti he sat down in the shade. 400.15. 000

(Cp. Hz. Bu. sa·ʌtsɛ in the sun).

ja·tsɛ, gotsɛ, nɛtsɛ, momotsɛ, m'imitsɛ, mamʌtsɛ with me, in my possession, etc.

1. tsɛči, tsɛči after. — ja aiyu·rum tsɛči after my dying. 406.5.
2. -tsɛči* behind.

tsɛk, tsɛk, tsɛq. Conditional etc. particle following verb. V. §§ 531, 547. Recorded 400.2,3, 405.2, 406.9,10. (tsɛqɛ). 412.22.

tshɛl -iŋ y water.

tsɛndɛ, ts'ɔndi z five.

tsɛgɪr sg. and pl. x she-goat.

ts.hor early. 400.1, 404.15.

tsuḷum, pl. x -išo, y -iŋ heavy.

(Cp. Hz. Bu. tsu·m).

-tsum. Abl. suffix. 400.10, 410.2.

ts.hur-, ts hor-. Pres. Base of ẓo- to come. V. § 539.

Pres. Base + a tsura, tsura on its coming. 402.2, on their coming. 406.12. anum tsurum ba? where are you coming from?

1. tsu-, tsuč- } to take away. Ppa.
2. -tsu-, -tsuč- } (with Pn.pf. i-?). nitsu. 402.11, 406.23.

W.

wʌγda, wa·γda, pl. -iŋ y condition, undertaking, pledge. 404.5. (wʌγda is the Kho. form for Ar. wa'da).

wʌxt y time, occasion. 402.6, 406.1,3. — te wʌxt at that time, then. Ar. Prs.

1. wʌḷ male.
2. -wʌḷ-, -wʌlč- to fall. Ppa. nyu·ʌl. 402.4,9. V. § 542.

wʌlt ʌltər, waltɛ altər eighty.

w'altɛ, wa·lt-, wʌlt- z four.

-wa·lu-, -wa·ḷoč- to become lost, be lost. — wa·lʊm bʌm he was lost or had become lost. 412.11, 414.6. V also § 512. 000 wʌši-, wɛši-; wʌšč- to throw down, put down, put on.

Pret. pl. 2. and 3. hm wʌši.ɛn.406.14,15.

Pret. pl. 1. neg. ai.ɛwɛšim bʌn. 406.16.

(Recorded only with x sg. objects; with x pl. objects gu- appears to be used; with y sg. and pl. objects gi- and biša- have been recorded).

wʌz'ir hm Wazir, connsellor. 406.11.

wɛ, wɛ h pl. Pers. Pron. and Demons. Adj. and Pron. they, those ones, those. 406.15, 412.12. (Cp. uɛ).

Y.

*-ya own. Possessive Adj. denoting "own", or referring to subject of the sentence: aiya my own. 410.13, 412.22.

gu·ya, gu·i.a thy own, thine own. 412.2, 414.4. i·a his (own). 400.13,14, 402.6,10, 410.4. muya her (own). 408.16.

These forms correspond to the Hz. Bu. adjectives in -imo, in which i = self and -mo is an adj. ending.

yʌkʌl, yɛkʊl, *-yʌkʌl (in) the direction of, towards:

ja yʌkʌl, ja ayʌkʌl towards me.

go yʌkʌl towards thee. Hunzɛ yʌkʌlə gʌla I went off in the direction of Hunza. ja yɛkʊltsʊm from my direction, i.e. on my part, from me. 400.10.

yʌltʌr, yʌltaʊr by the lower way, from below. (Cp. mʌdaʊl).

yʌltaʊr, pl. -ɛ lower edge of field.

*-yʌn-, *-yɛn-; *-yai(y)- to take, get, purchase.

Pres. Base Verbal Noun yaiyʊm. 400.14.

Pret. sg. 3. hm yɛni. 400.13,14.

415 b

000 Perf. sg. 1. yænʌm ba.
Impv. sg. 2. yʌn.
Ppa. niva. 400.14.
With hf sg. obj. nvmuya; with x pl. obj. nuya.
(This verb is used with objects of all categories as there is no equivalent in W. of the Hz. Bu. gʌn-ʌs'.

yanis, pl. y'anuka equal to, like, H. bərabər. 408.15.

1. yavr friend, fellow. 400.10. Prs.
2. yavr Postpos. under, beneath. 400.15.

*-yavr-, *-yavrč- v.t. to graze, pasture. — belišu uyavrča tshuyen they took the sheep away to graze them.

yavrbulto the day before yesterday.

1. yavre Postpos. beneath, under. Cp. 2. yavr. 406.15,23.
Adv. down, below.
2. *-(y)avre beneath. — ai.avre beneath me. 406.14. eši.avra under his neck. 412.4.

*-yavrɪki, *-yavreki y pl.; d. pl. -ʒ under bedding. — ai.avreki my underbedding. 406.7. guyavrɪki thy underbedding. 406.13. yʌvrɪki his underbedding. 406.17.

y'ʌtʌl sg. and pl., also pl. yʌtʌlɪšo, female oorial.

yʌte, yete, yet Postpos. on, upon. 402.1, 404.5, 406.14, 408.13, 410.9.

*-yætɪki y pl.; d. pl. -ʒ upper-bedding. — ai.etɪki my upper-bedding. 406.7. guyʌtɪki, go yætɪki thy upper-bedding. 406.13.

yaiyum. V. yʌn-.

*-ye, *-ye, pl. *-yu hm son. — aiye my son. 412.11, 414.3. guye thy son. 414.1. ye, ye, ive his son. 400.5, 404.11, 406.6, 410.1 etc. badša yen a prince. 404.7.

4167

000 Dat. (badīɜ nyu) yɛɣa to the (king's elder) son. 406.12 etc. yu his sons. 410.1. uyʲu their sons. 404.5.

Forms otherwise recorded:

ja ayɛ.i; go guyɛ.i; nɛ eye; mi mi.e, pl. mi miyu.

*-yɛk -iŋ y name.

Sg. aiyɛk my name; guyɛk thy name; nɛ yɛk his name.

Pl. mi.ɛkiŋ our names; ma.ɛkiŋ your names; (uɛ) uyɛkiŋ their names.

yɛkul. V. yʌkʌl.

yɛni. V. yʌn-.

Yɛsin Yasin (name of district).

yɛʈ, yɛʈɛ. V. yʌʃɛ. 400.10, 404.5, 406.11.

*-*yʲɛʈis, -yæʈis, pl. *-yæʈɪšo x head. 404.4,6.

*-*yɛɪs-, -*its-; -*yɛš-, -iš- to see.

Ppa. nivɛɪs, ni.ɛtsɛ. 408.8, 412.4.

(The -i- in both forms is the Pn. Pf. 3rd sg. hmxy).

*-yuhər, -tiŋ, -tin hm husband. — ja aiyuhər; go guyuhər; mo myuhər, muyuhər. uɛ uyuhər sg. and pl. uɛ uyuhərtiŋ pl.

*-*yuɹ, -yuɹč- to die.

Pres. sg. 1. aiyuɹčʌm ba. 410.12.

Condit. sg. 3. x neg. ai.ɛyuɹčum tsɪq. 402.5.

Pres. Base + a sg. 3 x yuɹča. 402.4,10, 406.23.

Pret. sg. 3. x yuɹi. 402.4,9.

Plup. sg. 3. hm yuɹum bʌm he had died, or, St. Pc. he was dead. 412.11, 414.5.

St. Pc. sg. 1. ja aiyuɹum (-ʌm?) tsɛči after my having died. 406.3.

sg. 3. x yuɹum. — se yuɹum toɹti that dead parrot, that parrot that has died. 402.13.

416 b

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

Z.

zʌmaʷna times. 400.1, 404.1. Ar. 000 Prs. zʌmiʷn land, earth. Prs.
zail y sort, kind, manner. 406.11.

Ž.

ža. Variant of ja, of me, mine. 414.3.
(Vernac. Ms. jaʷ). ǯʌkʲun, pl. ǯʌkʲuyo x donkey.

417a

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

ʒʌndo, V. jʌndo, alive, living.412.11, 414.5. 000

(Vernac. Ms. j-. V.s.v. Bu. jiʷndo ʒiŋ'ε -čiŋ y sleeve.

ʒo- to come. Pres. Base ts.hʊr-, ts.hur-.

Past Base 1. dᵉ-, dᵉ-ʌ-.

2. ʒo-.

From the latter are formed:

1. Impv. ʒo, ʒu, pl. ʒoʷiŋ.
2. Impf. ʒo ʒo bʌm.
3. -ʃ Form ʒoʷʃ.

V. paradigm § 539.

417 b

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5)1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

INDEX OF PROPER NAMES.

A and A.

103
551

Aba Čuxtuŋ. 102.17.
Aba Dumbu, Ab'Adumbu. 102.2, 108.5, 144.6, 146.18 ff.
Aba Kituŋ, Aba Kituŋ. 102.13, 110.22 ff., 144.7.
Abdul MutAlib. 88.22 ff.
Abul Fani. 380.20.
Abul Fais. 380.20.
Aiš Maiyuri Tham v. Aiyeršo M. T.
Aγa Xan. The Āghā Khān, the spiritual head of the Maulāi (i. e. Isma'ili) sect, 314.14, 330.5.
Ali.abad. A large, scattered village in Hunza. 4 miles downstream from Bāltīt on the right bank of the river. 296.6, 238.11, 240.9 ff., 318.4, 352.11.
Ali.abadkuts. The people of Aliābād. 318.9, 350.2.
AlqAš. Wazir of King Kubād. 48.1 ff., 82.22.
Altit, Alti. A village in Hunza about a mile east of Bāltīt, on the right bank of the river. It has an old fort, now unoccupied, and is said to have been originally the capital of the country.
Altitum belonging to Āltīt. 322.9.
Kisar is said to have lived at one time in Āltīt. 142.22.
Altīt is the scene of celebrations connected with various festivals. 186.10, 208.6, 238.1, 318.3, 330.8.
Altitkuts, Altikuts. The people of Āltīt. 318.8, 330.8, 350.1.
Aman i Mulk. The "Great Mehtar" of Chitral, died in 1892. 344.12.
Angrez, Angriz. English, British.
Sarkar Angrez. The British, or British-Indian Government, British Authorities. 196.9, 344.18.
AqtAš. 290.1. (Turki: Aq, white; tAš, stone).
ArAb. Arab; Arab country. 88.23.
AsAdullah Big. A Wazir of Hunza, son of Pūno Wazīr. 344.2, 352.7 ff.
AštAne. Name of a man. 382.6.

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

103
551

Ata.abad. A village in Hunza about 10 miles upstream from Bāltīt on the right bank of the river. 348.12.

Azer. Chitrāl(?).

Azer Jamšed v. Hazir Jamšed

Azuwarski (baš). The Chitrāli (language), i.e. Khowār.

Aiyešo Malik. 218.1 ff.

Aiyešo Maiyuri Tham, Aiyeš M. T., Aiš M. T. 238.8 ff., 236.7, v. entry Boxa Tham and Biddulph "Tribes of the Hindoo Koosh" pp. 27—8.

I, I.

Ibrahim Paiγamber. The "Prophet" Abraham. 92.3.

Iram. Persia. 34.5 ff.

Irkši. A nullah between Bāltīt and the Haidarābād Nullah. 268.3.

Iršad, Iršad. A pass at the head of the Chupūrsan Valley connecting Hunza and Wakhān. 284.17, 344.13.

Iskander Azemo, Iskander Badša. Alexander the Great. He is supposed to have visited Hunza, and according to one story two Hunza personages, Dīram Tītang and Dīram Moghul are said to have been in his company.

The terms "baba" and "zizi" are said to date from his time. 208.3.

Islam. 92.6.

Iškašum. The district of Ishkāshim. 332.5,

Iškuk. A locality in the Chupūrsan Valley, a few miles below the shrine of Bābā Ghwundi. 280.3.

Captain C. J. Morris was given the name as "Yashkuk", v. JRGS Vol. LXXI, No. 6, June 1928.

U, Ū.

Ultar, Ūltar. The grazing ground inside the Bāltīt Nullah. Explained as wl(o) + ter "the inside grazing ground", in which case the expression, Ultare ter. 256.1 is tautological. Ultare Bar the Ūltar Nullah. 292.2. ultarun from Ūltar. 248.9, 256.8.

These grounds originally belonged to the Hamachātīng tribe of Ganish, but they were eventually dispossessed in favour of the Khūrukuts, Barātalīng and Dirāmitīng. Later they were appropriated by the Thams of Hunza. 226.1, 246.9,20, 256.1 ff., 350.3.

Ūsengots, Ūsemots, Ūsengumots, Hussengots. Name of the tribe who originally occupied Āltīt, but were destroyed by Shābōs. 236.2,8.

Some survivors are included in the Rōno caste.

According to one account they are reputed to have been left in Hunza, along with the Hamachātīng and the Tapkhients, by Alexander the Great "when on his way back from China". 238.2,10.

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4;1934-5) 1935 AV7 Burusho AV7

103
551

Uyum Das. "The Big Plain", described as "an open space between Nagir and Ālti and near the latter". Perhaps the tongue of land in the bottom of the valley between the Hunza and Nagir rivers, just above their junction, is the place referred to. 204.11.

B.

Baba Iwundi. The name of a Muslim saint (in full: B. I. Merd Wali) and of the locality of his grave and shrine, near the head of the Chupūrsan Valley. For further particulars v. 284.10 and 286.19 ff.

Stone suitable for whetstones, and also lead ore and coloured earths are said to be found in the neighbourhood.

Balowki (baf). Balti (language). v. Balo.

(Cp. Sh. Pale Baltistan, Pulerye (adj). Balti).

Baltit, Baltit. The capital of Hunza, situated at the mouth of the Ūltare Bar on the cultivated terrace which extends 5 or 6 miles westwards to the Hasanābād Nullah. It is on the right bank of the Hunza River, roughly level with where it is joined by the Nagir River, but at some distance from the river and some hundreds of feet above it.

The dominating feature is the Mir's residence, a fort said to have been built five or six hundred years ago by people from Bāltistān. This stands on an elevation and the huts of the lesser inhabitants cluster below it.

The situation is a strong one, as behind it rise the mountains which are practically impassable, and on the East there is a perpendicular drop of some hundreds of feet to the bed of the Ūltar stream.

On the further (E.) side of the latter stream there is also a cultivated terrace, at the further end of which Ālti stands, but this terrace is at a considerably lower elevation than the site of Bāltit.

Abl. Baltittum. 208.5, 186.3, Baltitum. 212.21.

Adj. Baltitum. 258.1.

Loc. Baltitule. 250.1.

Hunze Baltit. Bāltit in Hunza. 276.12.

The Seed-Sowing festival. 208.1 ff.

Water Supply. 250—252.

Water Supply, increased by Saiyid Shāh Wali. 292.

Clans at Bāltit. 252.19, 238.1, 246.23, 270.5.

Celebration of Nauroz. 216—218, of Giuāni. 326 ff.

Baltitkots. The people of Bāltit. 318.7, 350.2.

Bayi Kotow. A clan settled in Shimshāl. 272.12.

Bawi Dan. A tract at Khalbar (in the Upper Hunza valley), lying to the South of the "Northern Gate". 232.2.

S. Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

551
103

Bartok. Name of a man. 88.13 ff.
Barti. Name of a man. 272.9, 274.8.
Barziw. Name of a man. 88.9.
Bast i Jamal. Name of a man. 48.1.
Basti Kutow. Name of a clan settled in Shimshāl. 272.3,14.
Balo. Bāltistān. 384.19. (Cp. Balowki and Sh. Pale).
Baloṭa. Bāltis, people of Bāltistān. 274.7.
Baltistan. Bāltistān. 274.1,6.
Bani Hatim. The family of the Prophet Muḥammad. 92.2.
Bape. A son of the Tham, Ghazan Khān. 344,11.
Bar'ataḷa. The territory of the Barātaling clan. 200.1.
Bar'ataling, Barataling. One of the "Four Clans of Bālti". Shadun Kapūri was a Barātaling woman married to a man of the Khūrukuts v. 258.3.
Kulio Laskir (200.9) was of this tribe.
At one time they shared the Ūltar grazing-grounds with the Khūrukuts and the Dirāmiting. 258.5.
Dances at marriage festivals. 302.9.
Barbar. Name of a place in Ūltar(?).
Cave. 226.7. Irrigation Channel. 250.3. 252.6.
Barda. Name of the Wazir of Shiri Badat. 394.4,19.
Basaṇ Gaizri. A former Tham of Nagir. 276.1 ff.
The name is also given as Masaṇ.
Batawa. Nullah and glacier which debouch from the West into the valley of the Hunza River just above Pasu.
B'eriło, sg. Beriła, an alien people, calling themselves Dum'a, who are settled in small numbers in Hunza and Nagir. They serve the community as blacksmiths and musicians. They have an Indo-Aryan language of their own, but also speak Burushaski fluently. [563] B'eriḷa. The territory of the Bāriche. 250.11.
Bibi Anjir. Name of a woman. 364.10.
Bidiro Mal. The "Round Field", a field belonging to the village of Sumalyar. 196.9.
Bir'aldo Bar. A valley and glacier, formerly traversable, between Shimshāl and Bāltistān. For present conditions v. "Unknown Karakorum" by R. C. F. Schomberg. 1936.
Boro Tham. A king of Hulbaiyāl (Hunza). He is mentioned with Shāh Tham, Nōni Tham and Lali Tham as contemporaneous kings (or members of the ruling family?) of Hunza, expelled and supplanted by Kisar. 142.16.
Biddulph, in his genealogical table of the Nagir and Hunza royal families ("Tribes of the Hindoo Koosh", p. 135) begins with

173
551

&Locimer L-3 (1930-4;1934-5)1935
AV7 Burushо AV7

173
551

Neori thum.
|
Bookha thum.
|
Shet thum.
|
Lalli thum.
|
Maiyrao thum.
|
Meghlot. — Girkin.

The authorised version of the Hunza family at the present day is:
Shah Malik (descended from Azur Jamshēd).
|
Trakhan. — Chilis Khān. — Shah Tham. — Bukho Tham. — Lali Tham.

Girkin (Tham of Hunza). — Meghlot (Tham of Nagir).
|
Maiyāri. — Nūr Bēgum.
|
Ayusho.

551 Boryo. V. Vocab. s.v. hwin.
103 Boryo Gal. "The Bōyo Juniper Tree". 214.2.
Brunghaqurdowo. The name of a supernatural Golden Calf, birth of 104.22, hunting of 120.22, 124.2, 122.9 ff., death of 134.5. (In Sh. dowo = bull).
Burz Gan. "The Cow's Head", name of a track leading out of Ūtar above Bāltit. 248.1.
Burbali Gas. Princess Bābuli — a Princess of Halhaiyūl married by Kisar. 142.21 ff. Proposal that Kisar should marry her. 164.1.
Burbalimuting. Bābuli's Peak; name of a mountain peak in the form of an aiguille, close to Bāltit and to the N. W. of it. Pronounced:
Burbali Muting, but the -mu- is the fem. gen. suffix, not the Pa.pf. with ting peak. 142.28.
Budol's Kstow. Name of a 'dan in Gulmit. 272.18.
Bulidas. Name of a locality in Gojhāl near Gulmit. 298.9.
(Probably bul + di (= ti) + das the open ground at the spring).
Bultotsko. 1. Name of a man who stole gold from a daqaldhas. 204.1 ff.
2. (Bultotsko) name of a man who knew the language of birds and fetched Samalik to succeed Hazir Jamshēd as Tham of Gilgit. 256.4,6.
Bul Daw. A place near Gilgit. 282.21, 256.5,6.
Burl Mal. "Spring-Field", name of a piece of land near Bāltit. 248.12.
Bulwki. Name of a Hamachāting girl who married Dtram Chōram, the sole survivor of the Tapkhiāns, and so originated the Dishāting. 248.18 ff.

S. Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burushu AV7

Bulaki-yal kor, "Bulāki's-path Cave", where she rescued her family. 346.6. 103 Burlain. Name of a gorge up in the mountains above Haidarābād. 551 Burbshu from Bālūn. 270.1, 350.5.
Burushki. Name of a boy. 270.2.
Burmiḷṭan. Name of the twin-brother of Pragrhu (Kisar). 119.20, 144.16 ff.
Death of 150.21.
Buri Bun. Name of a place, the "Silver Boulder". 234.2.
Buri Kotor. Name of a clan in Gulmit. 272.15.
Burundu Bor. The "Ring Nullah", a tributary nullah on the left bank of the Hunza River a few miles above Bālūt.
Burug. One of the "Four Clans" of Bālūt. 268.1, 270.6, 302.8.
Burugāla. The territory of the Burug Clan.
Burum Mur(ṣi). The "White Mud-Flood" at Alīābād. 240.7,15.
Burum Pfut. The "White Div." 2.7 ff.
Burušaski, Burušaski, Burušaski. The language of the Burūshu of Hunza and Nagir. I have been unable to get confirmation in either Hunza or Nagir of the term "Bauriāki" used by Biddulph.
Burushaski is spoken in Nagir above Ghulmit. For its distribution in Hunza see Introduction Vol. I, p. XXXIV, where the facts given are mainly derived from the Census material of 1931. I was previously told (in 1924) that Burushaski was also spoken in Khaibar and Sost in Hirbar, and Rāmīnj in Chupūrsan.
Burušo, Burušo, Burušo, sg. Burušin. The people in Hunza and Nagir whose first language is Burushaski. They call themselves by this name. It is denied that the Burushaski-speaking people of Hunza and Nagir call themselves, or their language, "Yeshkun", as stated by Conway ("Climbing in the Himalayas", pp. 242—3) Classification of the Burūshu as "Yeshkun" by Biddulph (T. H. K. p. 38) is not supported by local practice, as indeed he admits. 101
At the present day the appelation Yaśkun appears to be used only in differentiating the two main elements of the Shina-speaking population of the Gilgit and neighbouring regions, viz. the Šin and the Yaśkun. See, however, the entries yrd and Yrdkuyu in the Vocabulary, from which it would appear that a more general use of the term could be justified.
The word Burušo may be compared with the first element of the words Wirāgunu, and Wirāhunu (Wirāhunu), the Khowar terms for Yasin and the Yasin dialect of Burushaski respectively. The Burushaski speakers of Yasin call themselves "Burūshu", and their language "Burushaski".
Sarat Chandra Das gives Tibetan "Bru-śaṅ" and "Bru-śaṅ" as "the name of a country N. W. of Tibet".
Cp. also Jāṭhka, "Bru-ta", "Bru-ta".
Burur Jambur. A corruption of the Persian name, Buzurjmihr. 55.2 ff.
Buzurjmihr. 56.18 v. preceding entry.

5:Lotimer L-3 (1920-4;1934-5)1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

Č and Čh.

103 Čarrāmbi Kotor. Name of a clan in Galmīt. 272.18.

551 Čaça Har. Name of a place near Ga' ıIt. 336.9.

Čhalt. Name of a village in the lower part of Nagir, situated in a considerable open tract of ground on the right bank of the river, where it turns to the south. 276.4.

Čaman Gul. Name of a place near Galmīt. 336.6.

Čangi H'irpal. Name of Pangchu's (alias, Kisar's) horse. 122.7, 124.3, 156.17, 162.16.

Čaprot. Name of a nullah and settlement in lower Nagir. The nullah debouches from the West into the main valley at Chhalt. It provides the water for Chhalt cultivation. 228.1. 227.12.

Čhal Gazi, Črhal Gazi x. The "Forty Yards", name of a Jinn or Dīv who lived at Khaibar. 222.1 ff.

The measurement perhaps refers to his stature, but in that case his seven cubit stick would be too short. Prs.

Čīn. China, Chinese territory. 344.21, 386.20.

Čitraw. Chitrāl. 344.15, 346.1.

Čoro Nur Ša. Nūr Shā, son of Chōro. 296.5.

Čupursan, Čupurran y. An open valley leading down from the Chilinji and Irshad Passes, and proceeding eastwards till it joins the valley of the Hunza River above Gircha. 280.1, 284.13 ff., 384.13.

Čuram. V. Dīram Chūram.

D.

Daiyor. Sh. Dāiyor, a place on the left bank at the junction of the Hunza and Gilgit Rivers, close to Gilgit. 380.21.

Dadi. Name of a Bilas who lived at Hīndi. 192.1 ff.

Daltar Manuko. A son of Sīng of Hīndi. 260.13 ff.

(In Sh. manuko = frog).

Dantsirle Bum. The "Sulphur-Boulder", at Murtazābād.

Darbeło. Son of Pfaqīr 'Ali. 180.2 ff.

Daltaman Xurdik. Fifth son of Dīram Chūram. 246.4.

Datu Sing. Name of the man who succeeded to Khamar's land. 252.18.

Datu Singuts, his descendants.

Dīqonī Pīr, Dekkan Pīr. The prophet Khizr. 328.7, 332.3.

Dismar. Local name of the mountain. Nanga Parbat. The form in Sh. is Diamar. 134.9.

Diramīšale, Dir'amīšale. The territory of the Dirāmitīng clan. 216.6.

619 Diramitiṇ, Dir'amitiṇ. Name of one of the "Four Clans" of Bāltīt, among whom they take precedence. They were said to number about 100 households (excluding the Tharakuts section?).

These four clans are individually exogamous, but intermarry with each other. Endogamy is said formerly to have entailed penalties and expulsion.

S;Lorimer L-3 (1920-4;1934-5) 1935 AV7 Burushо AV7

619 Nowadays though rare, it does not appear to be penalised. The Four Clans are not now confined to Hūnzā, but also form part of some of the Thūkots settlements.

The Dirāmiting are the descendants of Diran Chīrwa, the sole survivor of the Thapkiūts (V. 346.33 and 350 ff.) and are spoken of as the "seed", i.e. descendants, of the original population of Hunza. 349.1.

They are said to have resided originally in Shīshpar, where they succeeded no doubt to the lands of the Thapkiūts, but to have also cultivated land in Hūnzā which is now their headquarters.

At the time of the quarrel between the Khīrokots and the Hamachāling they were still living in Shīshpar, but after acting as arbitrators they obtained rights in Ūtar. 358.4 ff.

Derbish, who had the adventure with Mīnaluw Dāīo (190.2), was a member of the Dirāmiting, who at that time also were resident in Shīshpar.

A member of the clan in later days was Karamu Derbish. 214.1.

The mention of the Dirāmiting at 239.3 appears to be anachronistic.

For the part played by the Dirāmiting at the Sopīna V. 269—72, at the annual celebration of marriages. 300.18, and 303.7, at the Ōdi. 322.

The Dirāmiting are not liable to do gold-washing. 349.1 ff.

103 Dev Khan. Name of a village adjoining Allāhād on the East.

551 Dumrai. A mountain in Nagir to the fourth of Ghulmit the "Rakapushi" of the map.

Dunya Mīra. Father-in-law of Khar's mother. 100.5 ff.

F.

Faiza. Son of Wazīr Amānullah Beg. 344.4.

G.

Gem Sīngu. A reincarnation of Shāmilīwa. 174.20.

Galdag Gaipa. The name of a "Pūri" or demon. 174.18.

(Cp. Tib. rgyal-po, king).

Gulmit. The principal village in Gujhāl, or Hūnza. It is situated on the right bank of the Hunza River about 20 miles above Hūnzā. The inhabitants are of Wakhi origin and talk Wakhi as their first language.

For the Gulmitum Rīwa, the clans of Gulmit, v. 371.

Ganā, Gawā, Gowā. One of the three original villages of Hunza, the other two being Hūtīt and Ālīn.

It is situated on a terrace below and to the south of Hūnzā, between it and the Hunza River. According to one account it was founded by Shīshkīn, a lame man of the Khīrāt. It was occupied by the Hamachāling before the time of Azar Jamshād. 298.1 ff., 299.2.

Gawāwa. Abl. and Adj. 346.30, 352.9.

S. Lorimer L-3 (1920-4, 1934-5) 1935
AVT Burudo AVT

103
551

Baibustiki's grave at. 206.15.
Bilas at. 190.1 ff.
Diram Chiwan. 244.10 ff.
Trangh at. 318.2.
Twin Calves. 354.1 ff.
Water Supply. 332.10 ff.
Ashland's descendants. 291.7.

Ganilkin. The people of Ganish. 316.5, 310.1.

Ganinger. A locality in the mountain range which separates the Hunza and Nagir Rivers for some miles before their junction, and opposite Aliabád. 204.3, 206.8.

Gar'ell. A village close to the right bank of the Hunza River, below and level with Haidarabad. 204.2, 206.4. Marble is said to be found there.

Gar'ellow Hewy. The "Garelt Tribe", a name applied to certain water-birds, black with long beaks, that sit and fly in lines (cormorants?), said to have been originally human inhabitants of Garelt. 206.12.

Garib. A man of the Dirbuzling Clan. 199.5.

G'arwah'alwan, Gar Mahal Man. The name of a goldsmith and blacksmith. 102.19 ff. (Cp. perhaps Tib. sgar smith).

Gilit, Gilt. y Gilgit.

gelo Gilitimen. From this Gilgit (here). 204.1.
Gilitiwa Thamma. The Gilgit Thama. 240.7.
Gil'it Yatkoni. The Gilgit Yatkoni. 222.6.
Gil'ytar. To Gilgit. 222.11.
Gilt-ulo, -ar, -i, -ifar. 274.1, 276.9, 286.9,10, 292.10.
(Sh. Gil'et, Gilt-).

[175] Gorlen. The first Thum of Hunza after the political separation of Hunza and Nagar. His brother Maghlit similarly became the first Thum of Nagar. They are the immediate progenitors of the two existing Royal Families.

Shiddalph gives the parents of the brothers as Moiyoo Thum and a daughter of Trakhan, himself a descendant of Tahi Bodai's daughter and Azur Jamshid. In genealogical tables in my possession they are variously shown as the sons of Shá Thum and Lali Thum. The claims of the latter are at present favoured.

Cp. the entry under Bazar Thum above, Siddalph T. H. K. pp. 24, and 195, and the addendum to the notes on Text XLVII.

Gorlar. A man's name. 304.15.

Gu.roki. Adj. Wakhi. gu.roki (ber) the Wakhi language.

Gu'ts, pl. Gu'rts. Wakhi (man). 338.9.

Gur.al'i. Name of a locality and small village on the Nagar and Gilgit-Wazirat boundary, on the right bank of the Hunza River between Chalt and Nomal. Alt. Gur.alim, Gur'alitum. 276.5.

Guy o Bum. "Gúyo's Boulder" near Gonish, Gúyo being the name of a man. 196.16.

Γ.

103 Γωτι Κωω. The name of a clan settled in Shimshāl. 272.14.
551 Γωωω. The name of a man. 384.1.
Γωωωιγ. The name of a man.
γιλωωιγιγ γωωωωω Γωωωιγ, Gh. the paste-fuller.
γωωιγγωω ωωωωωωω Γωωω Γωωωιγ (you are) Gh. son of Γωωω, who work yourself to death for others, i.e. you are a self-sacrificing altruist.
Γωωω Κωω. 1. A former Thum of Hunza, father of the present Mir, Sir Muhammad Nazim Khān. He was murdered at the instigation of his eldest son, Safdar 'Ali, who succeeded him. 344.8,14.
2. The present Mir's eldest son and heir.
Γωωω Κωω. The name of a place. 368.9.
Γωωωγ. A village in Nagar on the left bank of the river, between Nilt and Minapin. 294.22, 276.2.
Γωωωιωωω. The people of Ghulmit. 294.21.
Γωωω Κωω. The name of a man of the Ghulwāting. 300.10,13 note.
Γωωωιγ. A section of the Burdaj Clan, whose ancestor is said to have come from Punjāl, or, according to others, from Gōr. The living (1934) notables, Muhammad Rafi' and Zarparast belong to it. 200.10.
Γωωω, Γωωω. A place stated as being in Wakhān. 286.21.
(Perhaps Ghōrd in Shughnān is intended).
Γωωω. The name of a woman. 272.11.

H.

Hωωωω Βωωω. Name of a supernatural being. 260.10.
Hωωωω Jωωωωω, Αωωω Jωωωωω. Supplanter and successor of Shāh Rafat as King of Gilgit. An ancestor of the present Royal Families of Hunza, Nagar and Gilgit. 280.20.
Hωωωω. Abyssinia. 66.4.
Hωωωωω. Name of a place in Nagar, below the Phekar terrace and to the East of it. 294.4.
619 Hωωωωωιγ. 1. The name of one of three original tribes of Hunza (the other two being the Γωωωω and the Γωωωωωω) who, according to one tradition, were left behind by Alexander the Great when "on his return journey from China". They were established in Ganiish before the Azar Jamshēd Thums came to power. They were almost exterminated by Khōrum Thum. The survivors are now represented by the Ilūm caste of Gilgit.
They owned Ūtar until they quarrelled with, and were dispossessed by, the Khōrukuto. 268.2.
Cp. 268.19, 298.2, 244.12 ff., 236.2,7, 302.10.

S Lorimer L-3 (1920-4;1934-5)1935
AV7 Burushо AV7

[419]
103
551

2. Said to be the name given in Nagar and Yasin to the Rōno caste of Gilgit, who are represented in Chitrāl by the Zundra.

H'amati. An irrigation channel, carrying water from the Ūltar Nullah, which supplies Ganish. 352.10.

Hamza. Son of 'Abdu'l Mugalib. 88.22.

Hanisawi. The name of the Gilgit River. 382.20. V. Vocab. s.v. Hanizawi.

Hanuman Muro. The name of a mountain in Shishpar which has a high grassy spur. 180.2.

Perhaps hanuman, alone, isolated + muro stump.

Hararfuq. The name of a track, leading from Ganish and passing above Bāltit into the Ūltar Nullah. From a note it appears that it is to be taken as 2. haray + fuq = the "Track of the Tribe", i.e. of the Hamachāting. 248.2, 258.2.

Hor'ory, pl. Hora'indoro, and perhaps Haraipo (? Biddulph), a term applied to the original independent tribes of Hunza.

V. s.vv. Hamachāting, Hararfuq, and cp. Gorellom Haray.

Horti, Hortu. The water-course issuing from the Ultar Nullah, immediately to the East of Baltit. 352.8,12.

Hor'oli. A locality 3 or 4 miles West of Gilgit on the left bank of the Gilgit River. 378.1.

Horuq Galoq. The mountain side above Ashūr Dās in Nagar, to the West of Somaiyar. 198.3,8.

Hori Sig. A man of the Dirāmiting, son of Mōko, son of Pūno, son of Garib. He was an old man in 1922. 211.21.

Hassanabad. A village at the mouth of a nullah called after it, which debouches into the main Hunza valley on the north side about 6 miles West of Bāltit. It marches with Aliābād on the East. The nullah is now, except at the lower end, filled by a glacier, but it is said that it was formerly warmer and that there was no glacier. The Shishpar Nullah is a tributary of the Hassanābād Nullah. 239.3.

Hazrat Sulimanu. King Solomon, who according to Muslim authorities "inherited from David the gift of prophecy and knowledge". 384.7.

Haidarabad. A village about 2 miles West of Bāltit. 318.3, 346.10.

Haidarabadkato. The people of Haidarābād.

Haibaiyul. The name of a country. Said to be the old name of Hunza. Alexander the Great is said to have brought his force through it. Seized by Kisar. 142.17.

It is explained as composed of "hai hai" an exclamation used to urge cattle along, and "yul" road.

Cp. T. yul, road.

Herbar, Her Bor. The Hunza valley from Gulmit upwards, officially known as Gojhāl. 336.2, 342.6.

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

103
551

Hindi, Hini. A village in Hunza on the right bank of the river opposite Minapin and about 14 miles below Bāltit. The inhabitants are Ṣhēn. 192.1 ff., 260.1 ff.

Hindikuts. The people of Hindi. 196.5.

Hinzal. A village about 7 miles West of Gilgit on the right bank of the river. 384.13.

Horyul. The name of a country visited by Kisar. 142.23. It occurs in this form in the Ladakhi version of the Keaar Saga, while "hor" alone is used as the name of a country in the Tibetan version given by Madame David-Neel "The Superhuman Life of Gesar of Ling" (1933).

(W. Tib. hor Turks, yul country).

Huche Mātu. "Dog's Milk", the name of a famous "biṭan" of Hunza. 186.1 ff., 202.3.

It was stated in 1924 that a descendant of his, named Barak, was then living in Miagār, and that there was another in Bāltit, but that under pressure from the religious authorities they had ceased to practise as "biṭans".

This was probably exceptional and temporary, as between 1920 and 1924 I twice saw public displays by "biṭans" in Bāltit, and in 1935 in Aliābād a female candidate for recognition as a qualified "biṭan" gave a public demonstration of her powers.

Humayun Bēg. An able and distinguished Wazir of Hunza, son of Wazir Asadullah Beg and half-brother of Wazir Muhammad Thara Beg. He became Wazir when Muḥammad Naẓim Khān was installed as Mir in 1892 and continued in this office till his death in 1916.

Three sons by his first wife were prominent in Hunza in 1924. The eldest, Shukurullah Beg had succeeded him as Wazir, but had not inherited his personality or force of character. The second, 'Ināyatullah Bēg (IUB), acted as schoolmaster and provided me with a considerable number of Burushaski words in writing. The third, Imām Yār Beg, was a Jemadar in the Gilgit Scouts and a noted polo-player. Most of the material in this book I owe to him (IYB).

Circumstances have now altered. Imām Yār Bēg was murdered in Gilgit in 1934, and Shukurullah Beg was, I believe, deprived of his Wazirship in the end of 1935.

The family belong to the Tharakuts section of the Dirāmiting. 196.8, 344.10.

Hunza Nagar. The States of Hunza and Nagar. 344.2, 380.10.

Hunza, Hunzu y. The State of Hunza. In a strict geographical sense it seems to apply to the tract on the right bank of the river between Āltit and Murtazābād. The form "Hunza" is not normally used by the people of the country.

Hunzo Baltitulo. At Bāltit in Hunza. 238.1.

5:Lorimer L-3 (1920-4;1934-5)1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

103
551

Hunzo nokan. Seizing Hunza. 196.9

Hunzuncor. To Hunza. 294.13.

Hunzolo. In Hunza. 186.2.

Cp. 192.8, 200.1, 208.1, 214.4, 238.1, 276.12, 292.4 ff., 298 (title), 316.3, 320.1, 342.1, 344.17, 352.6,9, 354.1.

Hunzukots. The people of Hunza. 272.1, 296.4,8.

Hunzumo. Of, belonging to, residing in, Hunza.

Hunzumo ba. I am of Hunza. Cp. 274.3.

Hunzumo huy'es. The Hunza flocks. 322.1.

Hunzamo thamo. The Thams of Hunza. 266.20.

Hunzulum. From, belonging to, Hunza.

Hupar. Hopar, a place in Nagar; about 3 miles up the valley from Nagar village.

Huparum. Belonging to Hopar. 380.15.

Hurukūsals v. Xurukūsals.

Hurukots v. Xurukots.

Huscnots v. Ūscnots.

J.

Jamas. Jamasnama. The names of a man and of a book. 48.2.

(Pra. Jāmāsp, Jāmāspnāmak).

Jandu Šrkarri. A tower at Hindi. 102.2.

Jandu was elsewhere given as the name of a man of Hindi.

Jaturākots. A Clan said by IYB to have come to Hunza from Astor. At the present time they form a section of the Burōng.

K.

Kaŋ Jakun v. Qaŋ Jakun.

Kaŋgar Malik. A son of Shiri Badat. 388.10.

Kašgar. Kashgār. 386.19.

Kampire Dior. The name of a place in Chupūrsan. 286.15.

(Wkh. kampir old woman + dior settlement, village).

Karanu Darbal. An old man (in 1924) of the Dirāmitīng. 214.1 ff.

Karagalimuts. An aqueduct that carries water from Bāltīt to Karīmābād over the track that leads down to Bāltīt. 190.3.

(V. Vocab. s.v. karagali).

Karimabad. Land belonging to the Mir of Hunza on the spur below Bāltīt, where he has summer quarters, gardens and guest-houses. 350.4.

Karga. A nullah that debouches into the Gilgit Valley from the South, about three miles West of the Gilgit Fort. 222.11.

Kašmir. Kashmir. 254.1.

Kašmiri. Kashmiri; Kašmiri baŋ the K. language.

Katiš Malčuro. The name of a woman. 160.17 ff., 176.15.

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

103
551

Kilik. The name of a Pass (15,600 ft.) leading from Hunza to the Taghdumbāsh Pamīr. It lies to the West of the Mintaka Pass. 252.23.

Kirgɪz, Kɪrɣɪz, Qɪrɣɪz. The Qirghiz. 290.2,5.

Kirm'in. A place in the lower half of the Chupūrsan Valley. 344.13.

Krsər. The hero of Text No. IV. The "Kesar" of the Ladākhi "Kesar Saga", the "Gesar" of Madame David-Neel's "The Superhuman Life of Gesar of Ling" (English Translation. Rider and Co., London 1933), and the "Bogda Gesser Khān" of the Mongolian Version. (V. introductory note to the text).

See also the entry Paɣču, which is his alias when in his inferior form.

When in Hunza, Kisar lived at Āltīt. 134.4, 142.18 ff., 152.8—160.20 174.4—178.2, 182.18 ff.

Krsər's pl. The Kisar Clan, Kisar's uncles. 110.21, 112.15, 114.5,10.

Kubad. Name of a King (of Persia).

Kulikuts. A family group descended from Kuli, the father of Kulio Laskīr.

Kuli.'o Lask'ir. Laskīr, son of Kuli, a famous Hunza "biṭan" of the Barātaling Clan. 198.1, 200.9.

(Kuli.o ought probably to be Kuli.oy.

-oy appears to be a recognised patronymic suffix).

X.

Xan WAli. A place in the Misgār region. 252.22.

Xarəz. Khārazm. 56.12, 58.7.

Xarəzəm sodAgər. A trader of Kh. 56.12.27.

XAmər. The name of a man. 250.1 ff.

Xərum BAt. The "Split Stone", below the Mir's quarters at Karīmābād, overlooking Ganish. 210.5, 352.12.

XAyu Bul ŠAbərɪn. A polo-ground which once existed in Shīshpar.

Xaibər. A village in Herbar (Upper Hunza) on the right bank of the river between Pasu and Gīrcha. It is approached from N. and S. by narrow passages called "Gates". 222.1, 224.4 ff.

Xairullah. A son of Wazīr Asadullah Beg. 344.3.

Xɪsrau. A Tham of Hunza. 236.7. In one genealogical table a Khisrau is shown as the grandfather of Girkis and Mughlōt, but in the authorised pedigree the only Khisrau shown is a direct ancestor of the present Mir (Muḥammad Nazīm Khān) in the fourth ascending generation. This makes the destruction of the Hamachātling a matter of recent history.

Xrtavi. Chinese Turkistan, or the inhabitants thereof. 344.23. V. also s.v. Šiskin.

Xoda.abad. A village in Upper Hunza at the junction of the Chupūrsan Valley with the main valley. 342.21, 352.18.

Xuri.As Bun. The name of a boulder situated in the lands of the Khūrukuts which extend downwards from the Bāltīt pologround. 200.14.

5:Lorimer L-3 (1920-4;1934-5)1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

103
551

Xuro, X'oro. The ancestor of the Khūrukuts. 250.1 ff.

Xuro Pfəri. "Khūro's Pond", a piece of open ground somewhere near Dudōur Murku. 276.13.

Xurukušals. The territory of the Khūrukuts Clan.

Xurukuts. One of the "Four Clans" of Bāltīt, the descendants of Khūro. The headquarters of the clan are still at Bāltīt, though nowadays there are Khūrukuts in some of the Thuānts villages. 252.19, 258.3, 302.8, 352.15.

Xoš Beg. The name of a man. 274.3.

Xuwats, Quwats. A mountain above Āltīt and in Āltīt territory. 212.6.

In regard to the note on the passage, Xuwats appears to be the form of the name by which the place is always referred to.

L.

Lakar(A)t. Sir William Lockhart, afterwards Commander-in-Chief in India. 344.20.

Lat Manat. The two idols worshipped by pre-Islamic Arabs. Mentioned in the Qurān, Sura LIII. 19. 96.12.

LAli Tham. A king of Haihaiyūl. 142.16. V. s.v. Boxa Tham.

LAmay. A place or country, variously said to be Bāltistān or Tibet. 100.1, 144.5, 174.3.

Langabrumo. A princess of the country of the Kisare. 116.9 ff., 136.10 ff., 142.23, 164.14 ff., 174.11 ff., 176.16 ff.

LAto Hər. The name of a place described as a "trench". The second part is therefore probably 2. hər = ravine, nullah. 190.7.

Leli. Laila. 362.3.

Lingp'ikisər (also Lingkp'ikisər). An alternative form of the name of Kisar. 142.15, 156.12, 168.6, 174.14.

In the Ladākhi "Kesar Saga" gLing appears to mean "the earth", "the world" and then to be used of Kesar's country. Madame David-Neel now claims to have identified Ling (gLing), Gesar's kingdom, as "part of the land of Kham" Vide "The Superhuman Life of Gesar of Ling", p. 16.

(Cp. Tib. gling = "part of the globe", "division of lands" according to Sarat Chandra Das).

M.

1. Mahmad Shā. A man said to be a descendant of the "bīṭan" Shongukūr. 226.5.

2. Māmad Shā. The name of a man. 214.9.

Mamurtsa Mal. A field at Āltīt, where some parts of the "Bōpfan" ritual are carried out.

Madarin. The cities of Madīna and Mecca(?). 48.1, 98.9,14.

Mamu Hər. The "Milk Ravine", a locality on the farther side of the Ūltar Bar from Baltit, so called because of its white soil and foaming water. 276.12.

Mano Bay'ərtham. A man of the Dirāmiting Clan. 214.16.

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

103
551

Masoṛ. A place in Nagar on the left bank of the river below Ghulmit and above Thōl. 276.3.

Matum Daskuts. The people of Matum Das, a Hunza settlement in Gilgit territory. It is situated on the left bank of the river nearly opposite Nōmal. The land is held on some terms from the Kashmir State. 318.10.

Maiyoṛn. A village in Lower Hunza on the right bank of the river, downstream from Hindi and opposite Nilt. The people are Ṣhèn, speaking Shinā. 318.9, 348.12.

Meṛi Doweṛni. The name of a "dangalaṭhas". 206.3.

Miṇtaka. A Pass (elev. 15,430 feet) leading over from Hunza to the Taghdumbāsh Pamir. It is situated to the East of the Kilik Pass. 252.23.

(The word means "A thousand Ibex". Turki ming = 1000 + taka = he-goat).

Miṣṛ. Egypt. Ar.

Miṣgaṛ. A village in Upper Hunza. The inhabitants are Burūsho. 252.22, 290.1, 318.9, 348.13, 344.1.

Miṣgaṛkuts, Miṣgaṛi. The people of Misgār. 290.6,7.

Moṛyol. The father of Diram Titam.

Moṛe Daṛ, Moṛi D. "The Plain of Words" or "the Plain of Discussion", a locality in Lower Hunza above Maiyōn and opposite Ghulmit, where the people of Maiyōn and Ghulmit used to meet to discuss measures for defending themselves against a common enemy. Now called Mortas. 276.11, 352.20.

(Sh. moṛe words, speech etc.).

Moḥammad Baqir. The personal name of Bāba Ghwundi. 286.23.

Muṛn. V. Hanuman Muṛn.

(Sir) Muḥammad Naẓim Xaṛn, (K. C. S. I., K. C. I. E.). The present Mir of Hunza, son of Ghazan Khān Tham. 196.3,7, 346.6, 352.21.

Munkir. The angel who with Nakir examines the Muslim dead. 218.5, 312.11.

Muṛnolum Daṛdo. "The Grandfather, or Old Man in (or, of) the Mūn", i.e. of Hanuman Mūn, a mountain in Shishpar in which he resides. He married Kisar's grandmother, V. 180—184.

A laconic note equates "Tapkhiènts Dāda", "Bāba Adam" and "Mūnulum Dādo", which perhaps means that the last is regarded as the primal ancestor of the Tapkhiènts and of the human race.

Moṛk'uṛ. The name of an irrigation channel. 352.18. It perhaps refers to the same place as Ḍoḍōng Murku. 276.13.

Moṛkuṛi. A locality about 13 miles N. of Misgār, where the water-courses coming down from the Mīngtaka and Kilik Passes unite.

(In the text given as Moṛkuṛi). 352.18.

MoṛtAza.abaṛd. One of the Thu.aṛnts (q.v.) villages in Hunza, situated just below the junction of the Hasanābād stream with the main river. 352.18.

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5)1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

N.

103
551

Nafiʷ Xan. A half-brother of the present Mir of Hunza (Muḥammad Naṣīm Khān). 342.21.

Nagər, Nagɪr. The State of Nagar.

Nagɪrum belonging to N., Nagari. 276.2, 344.22, 354.8.

Nagɪr is, I believe, the usual pronunciation in that State.

Nagər is what I heard in Hunza.

Nakir, Nækir. The angel who with Munkir examines deceased Muslims in their graves. 218.5, 312.11.

Namay. (Earlier recorded as Nomay), the village "Nōmal", which is the first stage on the road from Gilgit to Hunza. It is in Gilgit territory and about 17 miles from Gilgit Headquarters.

Nazimabad. A village in Upper Hunza near the junction of the Chupūrsan and main Hunza valleys. Previously called "Shīshkē Das" and renamed after the present Mir. 342.21.

Nomi Tham. A king of Haihaiyūl (Hunza). 142.16.

V. entry s.v. Boxaʷ Tham.

Nurʷ Baxš. A daughter of Shīri Badat. 380.12 ff.

Nurro. A man of the Burōng. V. 346.8 note.

Nuširwan. The Persian King Nūshīrwān. 86.25, 92.28 ff.

P.

Paʷgču, Pangču. The hero of Text No. IV. The original name of Kisar, and applied to him again when in his inferior form. 110.19 ff., 162.1—172.14.

Pahavrdag Galpo. A king of Hōryūl. 144.4.

(Cp. Tib. rgyal-po = king).

Panja.i Šah. 288.3.

Pfaqir Ali. 180.1.

Pfasan Karaski. 104.14.

Paiγambər. The Prophet (Muḥammad). 90.17.

Pfɪkər, Pfɛkər, Phekər. A village in Nagar on a very high terrace on the left bank of the river about 6 miles upstream from Mīnapin and Hindi. 242.12.

Pfɛkərum of or belonging to Pfèkar. 242.7.

Pir Šaʷ Nasir i Xisrau. The historical character, Nāṣir i Khisrau (c. 1004—1088 A. D.), poet and writer on Ismailism. For the latest account of him and his works see "A Guide to Ismaili Literature", by W. Ivanow, R. A. S. 1933.

In Hunza he was spoken of as the introducer of Maulai-ism into Turkistan, and was described as "of Kohistan", and again as "of Lutkoh" (in Chitral).

He is said to have sanctioned the use of musical instruments (the "charda" and the "daf") as an aid to religion, and to have attracted converts by musical entertainments. 314.3.

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

103
551

Pisan. A village in Nagar on the left bank of the river a little below Mīnapin and nearly opposite Hindi. 262.1 ff.

Pisankots. The people of Pīsan. 266.12.

Ponzki Pforpfor. The name of Aba Dumbu's horse. 148.26 ff.

Ponal Maidan. A place near Gilgit(?). 384.20.

1. Puno. The father of Ghatōsing, q.v.
2. Puno. A man of the Dirāmitīng. 208.8 ff.
3. Puno. Wazir of Hunza in the time of Tham Shāh Silum Khān and father of Asadullah Bèg. 352.14.

Pforuu Bul. The "Reed Spring". 292.12.

Puyesse Šamšer Bek. Shamsher Beg, son of Puyēs. 232.11.

Q.

Qaŋ Jak'un. The "Braying Donkey". 202.4.

Qaračokor. The name of a place in the Kilik-Mingtaka region (?). 252.28.

Qibla. The Qibla. As a point of direction, it is treated as being roughly West of Hunza. 310.1.

Qirgiz v. Kirgiz.

Qoli.'o Laskir v. Koli.'o Lask'ir.

R.

Ramiŋj. A locality at the lower end of the Chupūrsan Valley. There is a tributary Nullah of the same name on the South side of the valley.

Raskam. A district (river and valley) lying to the East of Shīmshāl, beyond the main mountain range.

Right of occupation has been maintained by Hunza in spite of intermittent claims to ownership raised in recent times by the Chinese authorities in Kashgar.

V. "Unknown Karakoram" by R. C. F. Schomberg, 1936.

Rivle Ramal. The name of a cook. 382.5.

Rum. The country of Rūm, the Eastern Roman Empire, Turkey.

Adj. Rumi. 34.1 ff.

Ruzdor Kotor. Name of a clan in Galmīt. 272.18.

S.

Sadi. The Persian poet, Sa'di. 362.3.

Sahala Boin. A supernatural being. 250.9.

Sahib Xan. A Tham of Gilgit. 388.2 ff.

Safdar ('Ali) Xan. Tham of Hunza, son of Ghazan Khān. 344.14.

Saladar. Son of Alqash Wazīr. 66.5 ff.

Sariqul. The country of Sariqul lying to the North of Hunza.

("Sarikōl" is now generally regarded as the correct form of the name).

5:Lorimer L-3 (1920-4;1934-5)1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

103
551

Sərkar Angrizi. The British (Indian) Government. 196.9.

Sai.id Ša Wali. A miracle-mongering saint. 292—296.

Siŋ. A man of the Hamachātīng, ruling in Hīndi. 260 ff.

Siŋ appears as the second element in some double names of men.

Cp. Datu Siŋ, Həri Siŋ, and probably Γatəsiŋ.

Soγurali. The name of a place near Ganish (?). 234.11.

Sumalik. Succeeded his father Hāzir Jamshèd as Tham of Gilgit. 386.10.

Sumaiyər. A village in Nagar on the left bank of the river, opposite Ganish and Bāltīt. 294.3, 354.2.

Sumaiyərum ini that man of Sumaiyar.

Š.

Šabaz Xan. The second and last surviving son of the present Mir of Hunza (Muḥammad Naẓīm Khan) by his first royal wife. 342.21.

Ša Γazanfər. A Tham of Hunza, grandfather of the present Mir, Sir Muḥammad Naẓīm Khān. 274.3, 352.6.

Šahri Bano. Heroine of Text No. I. 12.7 ff.

Šahzada Behram. Hero of Text No. I. 2.1 ff.

Ša Rais. A King of Gilgit, killed and succeeded by Shīri Badat. 376.1 ff, 380.8.

Šari (Šahri) Šaskin. The name of a country or place. Said to be the equivalent of the Persian "shahr i sabz". 26.1 ff.

Ša S'ilam Xan, (Sulam, Salim). A Tham of Hunza, father of Shāh Ghazanfar. 240.12, 352.11.

(The various forms are, I believe, corruptions of Salīm).

Ša Tham. A King of Haihaiyūl (Hunza). 142.16.

V. s.v. Boxar Tham.

Šayar. A village in Nagar on the left bank of the river, between Sumaiyar and Pfèkar, and opposite Aliābād. 294.3.

Šadun Kapuri. The name of a woman. 256.4 ff.

Šabos. I.e. Shāhbāz, a Tham of Hunza, of whom the present Mir (Muḥammad Naẓīm Khān) is a direct descendant in the sixth generation. This seems to give a comparatively recent date for the extermination of the Usènguts. 236.8.

Šamtu Miru. Wazir of the King of Haihaiyūl. 148.1 ff.

Šin. Shīn (people). Used of the Shinā-speaking people of Lower Hunza and Nagar.

Šiniski (bari). The Shinā language. 302.3.

Šigir. The place generally known as Shigar in Bāltistān. 274.6.

Širkaki.ants. The name of a place a little to the West of Bāltīt, near the foot of the mountains. 292.16.

Šim'al Bar. A garden in Bāltīt. 328.14.

Šimšal, Siŋšal. A large valley in the East of Hunza which is very difficult of access. Its drainage joins the Hunza River a little above Pasu. 272.10, 274.1 ff., 344.16.

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

Since 1924 Shīmshāl has been visited by the Vissers (See "Among the Karakoram Glaciers in 1925" by Mrs. Visser-Hooft, Edw. Arnold, London 1926, and "Wissenschaftliche Ergebnisse der Niederländischen Expeditionen in den Karakorum . . ." by Dr. Ph. C. Visser and Jenny Visser-Hooft, Vol. I Brockhaus, Leipzig 1935); by Captain C. J. Morris. (See JRGS June 1928); and by Colonel R. C. F. Schomberg ("Unknown Karakoram", Honkinson, London, 1936). 103 551 Širi Badat. A reputed early King of Gilgit, Hunza-Nagar etc. 378.5—384.15.

Širi Bərai.i Bayər Tham is said to be the Burushaski name of the same person. His cannibal habits, his vulnerability (to fire alone) and his destruction by Azur Jamshèd, are a favorite theme in Gilgit.

The Thumushèling fire is supposed to commemorate his death, as formerly did the Talèni festival in Gilgit. V. Biddulph T. H. K. p. 100.

Leitner gives an elaborate version of his history in "Dardistan in 1866, 1886 and 1893" pp. 9 ff.

I have another record in Shinā.

Širi Bər'ai.i Bay'ər Tham. A supernatural young man. 210.11 ff.

In his title to Text No. XLVII Gh. Kh. gives the name as a synonym for Shīri Badat. In a Gilgit legend a certain "Bagar Tham" is said to have been the son of Kisar and the grandfather of Shīri Badat.

Leitner gives a word "barai" in both Burushaski and Shinā as meaning fairy. In Bu. he marks it as feminine.

Perhaps it is a variant of "pəri".

1. Šiskin. A lame man of the Khitai, who according to one account founded Ganish.
2. Šiskin. The name of a locality pertaining to Ganish. 206.15.

Šiske Das. The former name of the present Nazīmābād (q.v.). V. 342.21 note.

Šitpər Bər. A tributary nullah of the Hasanābād Nullah in Hunza. Originally occupied by the Tapkhiènts, who also cultivated land at Bāltīt. After their destruction (240.5 ff.), the Dirāmiting succeeded them in their possession and rights.

The climate of Shīshpar is said to have become colder, and there are now no permanent habitations in it, but the nullah is used as a summer grazing ground by the Dirāmiting who enjoy exclusive rights in it.

There was formerly a polo ground at a locality called Xayu Bol Šabərin, which is now the site of a grazing camp.

There is (or, more probably, was) a track leading over to the Irshad Pass, i.e. into the Upper Chupūrsan valley.

It is also said that two dogs once came over from Ishkōman into Shīshpar, but there is no practicable route at the present day.

The Woolly Flying Squirrel (v. 2. bada) is found in Shīshpar. 180.2, 182.1 ff., 238.5, 240.8.

Šoi Pəri. The name of a "pari" or fairy. 358.14.

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4;1934-5)1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

551
103

Šoṇ Gukur, Šun Gukur. "The Blind Puppy" (?), a famous Hunza "biṭan", of whom there are said to be descendants living at the present day. 186.1 ff., 188.1. 190.5, 192.8 ff., 202.3.

T.

Taγdumbaš. The Pamīr lying to the North of Hunza, beyond the Kilik and Mīnṇtaka Passes, in Chinese territory. 252.23.

[619]

Tapkhi.ents h.pl., Tapkhi.entsan bai.i. He is a member of the T. Tribe.

One of the three original tribes of Hunza (cp. Ösrṇots and Hamačatiṇ) who, according to one tradition, are the descendants of men left behind by Alexander the Great when returning from China. They occupied Shīshpar and also cultivated at Bāltīt.

For the story of their extinction and the origin of the Dirāmitīng from one posthumous male infant, V. 238 ff. and 236.

Thəra Beg. An elder half-brother of Wazīr Humāyūn Bèg, and Wazīr to Safdar 'Ali. 344.14 ff.

Thərakots. A section of the Dirāmitīng Clan, to which the family of Wazīr Humāyūn Bèg belongs, and of which the eponymous founder was one Thara. 302.6, 318.1, 330.1.

Tərtsi. Probably the name of a particular place in Wakhān, but it appears to be used to denote the country in general. 386.22. The H. version has: Waxan ki sərḥadmē akar).

Thol. A village in Nagar between Ghulmit and Nilt near the latter. 294.9 ff.

Tholkots. The people of Thōl. 294.22.

Traγbal. A pass giving access from the Kashmir valley to the valley of the Kishanganga, on the road to Gilgit. 254.1.

Traxanatiṇ. A dynasty whose headquarters were at Gilgit. The word is derived from Trakhan, the name of a descendant of Azur Jamshèd, who was one of his successors on the throne of Gilgit. 280.2. Cp. 388, addendum to notes. V. s.v. Boxar Tham.

Tsil Brš. A locality between Gilgit and Nōmal (v. Namay) about 7 miles from the latter. 222.9.

Thu.ants, Tho.ants, (h and x pl. of thoṭ, new).

The "new" settlements in Hunza proper, from Haidarābād to Murtazābād, both included, as opposed to the original settlements of Bāltīt, Ālṭīt and Ganish. They form a separate section for the levy of communal labour. (V. Vocabulary s.v. maqso). 322.9.

Turki. The Eastern Turki language. 290.3.

W.

Wače, Wača. A place in Sariqul. 344.4.

Waxan. The Afghan province of Wakhan. 286.20.

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

Waxi (baγ). Wakhi, the Wakhi language. Wakhi is spoken as the principal language in Galmit and most of the villages above it, except according to information received in 1924, Khaibar, Sost, Misgār and Rāminj. In 1934 the exceptions were given as Khudā.abād, Nazīmābād and Misgār. The discrepancy is probably due to there being some mixture in the population. Wakhi is also the language current in Shīmshāl. 286.15. 197

Y.

Yaγtaš. A stone at Misgār which is said to exude oil, and which is treated as a shrine. 290.4. 103

(Turki: yaγ = oil, taš = stone).

Yarkand. Yarkand. 386.21.

Yaćh'eni. V. Vocab. s.v.

Yal Butot. The name of a country. 104.14.

Yaqin. The name of an Akhōnd living in 1924 in Dirāmitīng territory. 214.12.

Yasin, Yasin. The district of Yasin in the N. W. of the Gilgit area. 208.3, 386.12 ff.

Z.

Zuŋatiŋ, Zuŋnatiŋ. A village, in Hunza proper(?). 320.1.

5:Lorimer L-3 (1920-4;1934-5)1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

000

INDEX OF ENGLISH WORDS

IN THE BURUSHASKI—ENGLISH VOCABULARY.

This is an Index not a Vocabulary. In every case the Burushaski word given must be looked up in the Burushaski Vocabulary.

A.

a, an hin, han, hik; -an §§ 187; 43.
abandon, to v.t. *-asorkas;(hope)eskortas.
abdomen n. *-ul.
abide, to v.i. horuṭas; horočaiyas.
abiding-place n. *-yak; fixed — *-yul.
able, to be v.i. *-amanas; N. ulamas.
about adv. hu.'ske; andaman.
about to, to be v.i. manam.
above prep. dal; *-yom.
absence v.s.v. ap-.
absent adj. yerhamir; v.s.v. ap-.
abstemious adj. porhezgam.
abundance n. okši rakši; hivj; v.s.v. arsam.
abundant adj. arsam.
abuse n. maltivj; iomin.
abuse, to v.t. *-maltas; iomin st.; jomin jajomin st.
Abyssinian adj. habaši.
accept, to v.t. yerivas; qabul st.
acceptable, accepted adj. manzur.
accidentally adv. ahiyo.
accomplished, to be v.i. dastahinas.
accomplishment n. hunar.
accord n. with one — han ber ns.
account n. bayam; daya; hisab.
account, to v.t. * ayanas.
accumulate, to v.t. dewas.

440a

000 accusation n. ízkuyat; tokmat. accuse, to v.t. čhíkinas; ízkuyat.
ache, to v.i. -uvlas*; -uvlí-* n. acquainted adj. nakor.
acquire, to v.t. dremías: v. "obtain".
across prep. ódi.
active adj. čindo; kívum.
Adam's apple n. ǵorfos mazun.
addicted adj. v.a.v. ordat.
addle, to v.t. -asqanas*.
addled, to become v.i. ranuv; -ranas*.
address, to v.t. d-ayarunas*.
adhere, to v.i. uwafas; čas.
adhesive adj. v.a.v. uwafas.
adieu! sudoyuv!
adult adj. berly.
advantage n. swí; foizda.
advice n. kana.o; to take — kana.o ganas.
advise, to v.t. *kana.o -at.
adze n. manǵ.
affair n. -urud*; ber; čayu; duro.
affected by, to be v.i. jam; jamkaf; ganǵas; (by disease) -walas*.
affection n. ferl; gurumbaf.
affiance, to v.t. (girl) -a'alganas*.
affix, to v.t. -adilas*; delas; -wadilas* (h objects), wadilas (x objects), ízkaiyas (y objects).

440b

afraid, to be v.i. ar m.; bré m.
after prep. ówji; -doi; one — another ta.hórtu.
afternoon n. ywe; pwíne; late — ewaja.
afterwards adv. ówji; ówjum.
again adv. da.
age n. dwúne; dwuig; ewar.
aged adj. asharé; jaf; gagar náwa.
aged person n. herwun dap m. and f. agent n. dwuin; wakíl; (of bride or groom) sinf'ahal.
agree, to v.i. awa awaa; berší m.; ywíwaa; rina m. gaberí st.; to make a.o. — d'-awagaa; rina -at.
agreement n. hay; rwai; warda; shifay.
ague n. zagzag dalayar; lordu.
ague, to have v.i. hurdu m. ah! ayho!; wa.o!
ahead adj. -gawun.
— adv. gar, gar na; a little — gawgaj.
ailing adj. yaliarja.
aid n. -mandu; wáfad.
aim, to v.i. nasar dawgaa.
air n. bij.
"akhund" n. ozwa; zalirja.
alack! hai hai!
alarmed adj. ówa; bré.
alarming adj. akivtaun.
alas! hai hai!; wa!; wa.o!
alcohol n. arag.
alert adj. val.
alight, to v.i. hasaw; bergaa.
alike adj. hahar; hanjwún.
alive adj. jíwda; zwda.
all adj. -gawa; wgwa; tamawa; that is — fagal.
all of a sudden adv. hik dam; hik nala.
all right adv. v.a.v. hal.
all this pron. akkawum.
all together adv. hik nala.
alley n. fag.
allot, to v.t. bergo st.

000 allotment n. magas.
allow, to v.t. fat *-at.
allowance n. -γωzhi; -γωωm.
almond n. hadam x.
almond tree n. hadam y; hadame tem.
almost adv. ha.'ωdu.
alms n. zedrí.
alms-bread n. berzhi.
aloes n. gulgul.
alone adj. ôilo; himωm.ωn (h), hωωm.ωn (xy); hinzir; humωrin; v.a.v. -ôim.
along prep. -hωn.
along with prep. ha; -aha.
aloof adj. ωωrôi; ôilo.
also adv. ha; ho.
always adv. hωωrda; medωm.
am (I) ha, v. §§ 269, 270.
ambling adj. γωrγa.
ambush n. hωtahωm.
among prep. hωωg.
amulet n. fωωr.
amuse o.s., to v.i. mahγωl m.; tωωrda ol.
amusement n. tωωrda.
ancestral adj. — spirits hωi.ôadωγ.ωs.
ancient adj. γωωm; qadim.
and conj. ho; ha; da.
and also conj. ho.
and so conj. thi; ho.
and then conj. ho.
anew adv. thif.
anger n. -mωr*; hωm.
anger, to v.i. -mωr d*-ahωs*.
angle n. — of meeting of two planes gaf.
angry adj. -mωrhzi*; v.a.v. -mωr*.
angry, to become v.i. -mωr (de)γωγ.ωs*.
animal n. hωiωωm; ferωdωr.
ankle n. -ωfzω γωttig*.
annihilate, to v.t. sat -ahωs*, v. "extirpate".
another pron. hin ho (h); hωn ho (x, y). adj. thωm.
announce, to v.t. m.ωl.hωr ol.
annoy, to v.t. -mωr d*-ahωs*.

4416

000 annoyance n. *-mov.
annoyed adj. bizov; xafe; lag.
annoyed, to become v.i. yfztirk m.; -mov (do)'xwy.as.
answer n. juxarb.
answer, to v.t. durmov.as; juxarb *-tki.as; to force s.o. to. — bark *-at.
answer back, to v.i. (violently) (xwq/ex.u et.
ant n. khos.
anus n. gik; N. git; v.s.v. *-xakig.
anvil n. xamdan; qaldan.
anxiety n. evkuf; zimov; jori.av.
anxious adj. bik; jorkos.
anxious, to be v.i. durmokoy.as; jori.av et.
any pron., adj. bexan; amin, v. §§ 152 152, 168.
anyone pron. man, v. § 142.
anything pron. bexan, v. § 152.
anywhere adv. amala.
apart adv. tilo; čwarji.
apart from prep. tki.
aperient n. jolarb.
apparatus n. dwatakig.
apparent, to adj. lrd.
appear, to v.i. yanov; gugui.as; dwanlo.as; fkumak m.; lrd m.; pride m.; *-mala.as (h subjects), wala.as (x subjects), halava (y subjects).
to make s.t. — fkumak et.
appearance n. takal; xuvat.
appetite n. vak.
applaud, to v.t. bikel et.; kahal et.
apple n. barli (x).
apple-tree n. barli (y). appliance n. dwatak.
apply, to v.t. dalas; *-adilas; *-dilas; *-wali.as (h), wali.as (x), hekaiy.as (y).
appoint, to v.t. moqarrar et.
apportion, to v.t. frag *-at.: bayo et.; fagirm et.
approve, to v.t. damli *-at.
approximately adv. ba.ariz; andavan.

000 apricot n. ju (x); unripe — jorofi; dried, whole — gorli; split, not dry phaqiv; split, dried bafir; special kind topuri.
apricot-tree n. ju (y); đuđur.
apricot vinegar n. hurt.
apricot water n. čhamur.
approach, to v.i. jurya.
aqueduct n. đangalat; wooden prop supporting — karagađi.
arbitrator n. sarju.
archery n. tshayara.
ardent adj. baborum.
argumentative adj. đur đela.
aristocrat n. gulpur; impoverished — hunyiltorta.
arm n. -lak*; -ltaltor*; body under — -sorgut*.
armed forces n. hol.
armful n. (double) bayu.
armour n. berlę.
armpit n. -akat*; -qat*; (of animal) yititi.
arms n. khi yatenę; tobak yatarg; asbarb.
army n. hol.
around prep. -wara*.
arrack n. arag.
arrange, to v.t. safri st.; rutrzarm st.
arrangement n. tarp; bandobas; rutrzarm.
arrears n. (of pay) duwarsuman tanra.
arrest, to v.t. durnas.
arrive, to v.i. d-asqaltas*; jurya.
arrogance n. masti; taqabbori. arrogant adj. mast; mastkrj; tam'arnakrj; taqabbor stas.
arrow n. hunts.
arrow-feathers n. torkorg.
arrow-head n. lim; srq.
art (thou) ba. v. § 269.
artery n. borra.
article n. durstak; asbarb.
artifice n. barzi.
artisan n. ustad.

4426

as far as conj. . . . ma; jhaq; antiqa. 000
as if conj. ja.an.
as it is conj. tail.
as many . . . as hewaman . . . ka.
as much as hewaman . . . ka.
as soon as conj. hetal . . . ka.
as usual adv. ka gaida.
asafoetida n. ang.
ascent n. hawa; t'ali.
ascetic n. hanry.
ashamed, to be v.i. °-amalna; °-jyawa; jam °-a.; hawa °-a.
ashes n. jyfdig.
aside adv. kanpa; lang.
ask, to v.t. d°-ryawa; daryawa; dawawa; sawal ti; — pachu hanjil ta kanlwala dawawa.
asleep, to fall v.i. °-jawa.
ass n. jakaw.
assassin n. v.a.v. gf'ava.
assault, to v.t. ki ti.
assemble, to v.t. gafi °-ti. assembled adj. ilanjamal; gafi.
assembly n. garw; sawaka; magita; jaka. assist, to v.t. d°-ashapa.
assistant n. hew; °-awaka.
assume, to v.t. — form of . . . hajar gipa.
assuredly adv. zair.
asthma n. N. dawlarini.
astonished adj. hawa.
astrologer n. sajawa.
at prep. v. § 67 E. at a loss adj. pardaw; sa.ziaj.
at all adv. (with neg.) kha; . . . kali.
at liberty adj. jhaa; haj; sawal; zalaw.
at present adv. ma; marla.
at random adv. marla aparla, v.a.v marla.
at the same time adv. ka; wala; kak wala.
attach, to v.t. °-aalki.a (a object), aalki.a (x object), lebaiga (y object).

443 m attached, to be v.i. d-awwiya. attack, to v.t. dam dirkar; (-ka) gerkar; ka ka al.; ki al.

attempt n. kwiil.
attention n. mirin.
attentively adv. -aw ka.
attractive adj. ami.
audience n. place of — mayka.
aunt n. (maternal) -ni; mawmmu mayin; -mimu mayin; (paternal) nana; -nim.
authority n. ugwamij; kalam; tatiaw.
autumn n. daba; dabalaw; — wheat gerg'an.
autumn(al) adj. dabawa.
avalanche n. — of mud mara.
avalanche snow n. kwi.
avalanche wind n. jurk.
avaricious adj. mijkiij; jurkkawa.
avenue n. v.n.v. -ayam.
awake adj. ilag.
awake, to v.t. d-talar; v.i. d-atalar.
aware adj. ilag.
aware, to become v.i. kwi m. awl n. marna; tal.
axe n. gagi; bricklayer's — gangfawi.
azure adj. aigal ligam; amara ligam.

B.

baby n. gigaw; — boy jaj kilaw; — girl jaj dawa.
bachelor n. mirjag.
back n. -mildar; centre of — behind heart -ullkap; (of coat etc.) ifiwa; (of head) -dhagarar; (of knife) g'al pa; (of shoulders) kalgiklig; small of — -ahlig; on one's — -aga. back adj. ifiji; ifijaw.
back adv. ifiji; g'ar.
back biter n. tartikij.
back bone n. -mildaw tin.
back side n. -mahig.
back-tooth n. -ural -ma.

4414 3 b

000 backwards adv. ríji ne; — and forwards *ríti

́ríti*.

bad adj. ganikíf; sinwé; — to do ikú.

bad, to go v.i. nas ne.

bad, to make s.t. go v.t. °-ináyasa.

bad-tempered adj. kad majiro, v.s.v. ordat bag n. (small) kotaw; (large) malía. V. List of Bags.

bake, to v.t. dag ol.; (bread) kapú ol.; (bricks) d°-zúsiras.

bakehouse n. wíuk; kapú rías (kang.

bald adj. kaja.

baldhead n. dumunpum.

bale out, to v.t. dumaiyas.

ball n. gíwu; gwíli; (of yarn) gíwas; kafa; (of eye) nuna; pulo — jkuri.

Ballí n. (language) kalwaki kaf.

Ballí, of Ballistan, adj. kalwaki.

band n. (of people) kikow; (of cloth etc.) kalaw.

bandsman n. kwíla; ontard; v.s.v. gwíwas.

bang n. (noise) fanur.

bank n. (of river) ól.

barb n. (of arrow) ikap.

barber n. N. fikur.

bare adj. ókíng; ríyíng; kag; quite — dum ríyíng (of ground) gíjíng.

barefoot adj. ríu; ikakíthu.

bark n. (of tree) wuf; (of dog) wuwu wuwu.

bark, to v.i. ganu ol.; wuwu wuwu ol.

barley n. kuri; parched — ikan'i.

barrel n. (of gun) furli.

barren adj. (of animals and people) marfeg; (of land) gíjíng.

base adj. nabíre.

base-born adj. awaría; kanu; kawría. V. low-born.

bashful adj. kwanikíf.

bashfulness n. kwan.

basin n. gíbíu; (European) ólimuki.

basket n. ikaruji; ikalía, etc. v. List.

14 14 14 23

600 bastard n. lerlo; yfrepuf; tan; tano; tanrlo; kerasnerda.
basting n. (in sewing) hok.
bat (zool.) n. tatapal; gerahelalas.
bath n. ᵧᵤᵤᵈ; to give a.o. a — tam °-ahilas.
bathe, to v.i. tam dolas (or of).; ᵧᵤᵤᵈ of; v.t. tam °-ahilas.
battle n. birga; herlpuf; to do — jag of.
battle-cry n. ha ha.
"bazar" n. berasw.
be, to v.i. ha; manaw; °-manas, v. §§ 269, 270, 276—278.
beach n. hkap.
beacon-fire n. yfu berauf (s.v. berauf).
bead n. mayen; prayer — a tallbramata.
beak n. °-thonjaf.
beam n. (of light) itapw; (on top of wall of house) thokas; (of roof) sirnf; (timber) hawn; weaver's — fal'ahn, fal'ahna.
beans (broad) n. bak'ah.
bear (zool.) n. yfr.
bear-cub n. yfr ewh.
bear-skin n. gu.e hof.
bear, to v.t. (child) d°-aman.as; (young) halkaw; (fruit) ewh dalt'alanas.
beard n. °-ni; (of goat) falimig.
bear' n. hatawa.
beat, to v.t. °-dolas; dolas; jam °-at.; tamtam of.; taw(tam) of.; — time dam °-at.; — drum dam dam of.; — the breast °-ahilta dim of., and dam of.
beater n. (for washing clothes) thanaw.
beating n. (noise of) dim.
beautiful adj. daltas; yakiras; to make — °-angaw.as.
beauty n. daltaiinf; naw.
because conj. hanin.
because of prep. wfa'lam; gaw. become, to v.i. manaw; °-manas.

bed n. garden — khafiya.
bed-head n. °-ashi.
bed-stead n. khaf; gurk; ten.
bed-time n. gatkatpal.
bedding n. upper — °-gafiki, under — °-gavilki.
bee n. ganju.
beetle n. cowdung — fero; big. black — ganju; tuwarse.
befall, to v.i. manare.
before prep., adv. yere; °-gere; yar; gar ne.
beg, to v.i. gadai ot.; — from s.o. with importunity lark °-at.
beggar n. hignilghe gatkherse; taltaq; (woman) biltarq.
begin, to v.i. dayurakinse; dwase; here ot.; ravmanse; to make s.o. — dayurase.
begin to, to v.i. manare.
behalf of, on prep. haya; °-gakaltaw; °-gafem.
behaviour n. fkal.
behind prep., adv. ilji; °-lji; iljikan; from — iljam being n. hatan; biltan, v. § 271. belief n. dak; harur.
believe, to v.i. harur °-a.; dak dasuyse.
bell n. dajuro.
bellows n. gfaltigil; funnel of — hingkan to blow with — far ot.
belly n. °-ari.
belong to, to v.i. v.a.v. manare.
belongings n. aramen.
beloved n. °-gurem; ji; dinaw; (of only child) gulpali.
below prep. gar; garlali; gere; leading — airgare; from — garem; to — garar.
belt n. °-ilfem.
beneath prep. gere.
bend n. marag.

445 a bend, to v.i. d'ovgyorav; v.t. dovgyorat; malovg ot.; mat ot.; nork *-at. 000 bend over, to v.i. d'ovgyorav.

benefactor n. (to poor) yarâtig wâr.as.
benefit n. nor; farrda.
benevolent adj. mavmarv.
bent adj. mat ctem; nork.
bereft of, to be v.i. ko m.
berry n. (of grape) phulphul.
beside prep. *-apati; *-apat; from — *-apatim, v. §§ 78, 80.
besides adv. thi; pavv.
besiege, to v.t. ilaborpaf garas, or d'-ale.as.
besom n. yforyas.
bestow, to v.t. mavmarvi ot.
bet n. kalimarv.
betrothe, to v.t. (a girl) *-a'alginas.
better adj. (health) dalitas; worts.
between prep. horag.
bewildered adj. abra; dagkas; harvv.
beyond this adv. pavv.
"bhoosa" n. zurk.
bier n. chij; yurk; gurtabas kayar.
bieetings n. cords made from — hirlary.
big adj. wyorv; (grown up) tool.
bill n. (of bird) *-chonjuf.
bin n. bujork; tskayar.
bind, to v.t. *-gf'was (h and z objects), ynaov, ynovyas (y objects), to make s.o. — *-ypnas. bindweed n. 1. tal.
birch n. 2. tal.
birch-bark n. kali.
bird n. ghiw; kalas. V. List of Birds. birth, to give v.t. (human) d'-aswas; (animals) kalkow. V. high-born, low-born.
biscuit n. furja.
bit n. tarark; jar; jovi; horse's — jangi; gulangir; N. gali; — and bridle kalag.

4456

000

bitch n. gus hok.

bite, to v.t. ṣk(y)as 6.; gafaw; °-dalas; čowuk °-at.; čowuṭ °-at.; γ*afam* °-at.; (of horse) ṭan °-at.

bits n. in little — čhe.imučhe.i; v.a.v. 4. čhot.

bitter adj. γ*oγ.ay(om)*; ṣoγuwum; (poisonous) čhamliq.

black adj. mafum.

black and white adj. pfandir.

blacksmith n. daq ṭas ustad or bewila.

blade n. (of grass) ṣṭpa; (of knife) čhu; N. ped(?); (of mill-wheel) torkoq.

blame n. nard; tohmat.

blameworthy adj. gunaqar.

blank adj. (of paper) pakiza; sayla.

blanket n. ḥai.ia; gali; qaw.

blast, to v.t. d°-ayfaltas.

blasting powder n. suruṣ mili.eq.

bleat, to v.i. qe qe at.; N. brā brā at.

bless, to v.t. du.ar at.; God — you! barakullah!

blessed adj. bebarak.

blessing(s) n. berkat.

blind adj. ḥon; v.a.v. ḥurow; ḥuṣo; stone — trap ḥon.

blind, to become v.i. ḥon °-as.

blindman's buff n. dayu dayu.

blister n. phorburas; ṭa.hilγalγuras.

block n. chopping — pfanir.

block, to v.t. d°-ab.as; d°-abkafas.

blocked, to be v.i. ditoiγas.

blood n. mollas; ruru; to shed — ruru at.

blood and water n. kanial.

blood-price n. ṭi.e badal.

blood-relation n. °-ṭiu.

blood-stained n. lečiču; čofu.

blossom n. ashuw; to come into — dazuras.

blow n. čof; ṭaw; 2. ṭur.

blow, to v.i. pfu at; (of wind) rūwā m.; (with bellows) ṭur at.

446 ☒

000 blow away, to v.t. d°-awalas.
blow out, to v.t. estayas.
blow up, to v.t. d°-apfaltas.
blue adj. (aiyas) ʒiqam; diŋ; (indigo) nil.
blue-eyed adj. burto; ʒiq'.
blunt adj. pfaʃ.
board n. balk.
boast, to v.i. dafoγuras.
boat n. krští; nav.
bobbin, full n. thirtum.
bodily adj. jak.
body n. °-ʤim; °-γurmur; °-waf; (of carcase less forequarters) °-waldas; — of people hikum; separate bodies of men bayutiŋ; parts of — °-ʤaŋ.
bodyguard n. badigar.
bog n. taγay.
bogey n. bayaruʧo.
boil n. nage.i; N. mage.i; pfirkanas; ʒoq; ʒofo.
boil, to v.i. bapayas; biri juγas; biri ditsas; v.t. sapapayas; biri d°-atsas: marʃ et.
boiling adj. biri; — water bapayum ʒakil.
bolt n. darukus; kafakus; sorik; sorikus; block of — γus; peg of — inarkus.
bolt, to v.t. sorik et.; daγuras.
bone n. tin; °-ltin.
book n. kitap.
boot(s) n. ("paboos") kurto; (native) kowi; (long do.) mur'a; (European) burʃ.
booty n. kurti.
border n. (boundary) 1. ʤir; 2. ʒaŋ.
boring adj. (of person) mana apim.
born, to be v.i. d°-manas; γaγs walas.
bosom n. °-sorγul.
bosom-friend n. jis bagurlo.
both adj., pron. °-altik; °-altalik; — sides of n.t. ilbaʃ.
bottom n. gamum; °-nalin.
bough n. tir; (of juniper) 3. dir.

4466

boulder n. burn; (small) dan; rolling — ʃiqa. 000 boundary n. 1. ʃir; grši; ʃaq.

bound, to v.i. magmere dalas.

bouquet n. hafo.

bow n. (archer's) ʃame; (pellet) tormuk.

bow-string n. čhekur.

bowels n. °-yormor; °-ʃakhir.

bowl n. baʃalik; pfwl; pfata; takpi; gufur etc. V. List of Vessels.

box n. (small) ʃabi; (large) sanduq.

boy n. hilas.

braid n. (of hair) borno; ʃab'aq.

brains n. wato.

bran n. poʃ.

branch n. ʃamo; ʃar; galtar; (of juniper) 2. dir.

brand n. (of burning wood) pfotunij.

brass n. (bowdon) ʃrkork.

brave adj. dilewar; pfurtikrj; singa °-as; °-aso ʃaq; °-aso pexta; yurgor.

brave! aufrin!, bihel!, marhabba!, šabaš.

bray n. qerq.

bray, to v.i. qerq st.

brazier n. ši.

breach n. (in wall) 1. ʃaq.

bread n. ʃapik; to make — ʃapik st. V. List of Kinds of Bread.

bread-oven n. duldorq.

bread-turner n. mučwʃk.

breadth n. daldalumkut.

break, to v.i. galas; (to pieces) ʃaq m.; ʃuʃ m.; v.t. °-galas; °-asras; (string) ʃaʃ or ʃurʃ st.; korap st.; ʃaq st.; to make s.o. °-agalas.

break up, to v.t. °-faltas; d°-apfaltas.

breakfast n. ani.

breast n. °-adil; (female) °-mamut; (meat) °-ʃakhir; to beat the — °-adiltas ʃim st.

breastwork n. krč.

breath n. dam; hirʃ; mard; 2. ši.

447a

breathe, to v.i. dʌm dʊsuʷyʌs; hiʷǰ et.; (hard) hāʷ et.; ʃīʷ et., v.t. (a horse) yərʌq et. 000 breechloader n. dʊmbʌlʌpʊr.
breed n. nʌsʌl; zaʷt.
breeze n. gʲuʷrgʊǰ.
brethren n. (tribal) sçʊkoʷn, v.s.v. -ʌçʊ.*
bribe n. liʷk; to take a — liʷk leʷʌs.
bribe, to v.t. liʷk et.; *liʷk -čhiyʌs.
brick n. diʃçik; burnt — detsirʊm diʃçik.
bride n. hilaʷl dʌsin; gərʊʷni; —'s outfit etc. -thʊʷni.*
bridegroom n. hilaʷl hiles; gərʊʷni; gərʊʷno.
bride-payment n. mahr.
bride's or groom's representative n. sinḑʲʌbʌl.
bridesmaid n. mokaʷtʊm dʌsin, v.s.v. -ʌkaʷtʊm.*
bridge n. bʌǰ; (small) N. qʌltʊr; rope — gʌl.
bridle n. (and bit) tʌbʌŋ; watering — qaizagir.
bridle, to v.t. tʌbʌŋ et.
brigand n. huʷʃi etʌs.
bright adj. sʌŋ.
brightness n. sʌŋkʊǰ.
brim-full adj. bil; birbir; tiphik.
bring, to v.t. d-tsʌs* (h and x objects), (dʊ)suʷyʌs (y objects), to cause s.o. — d-ʌtsʌs.*
bring out, to v.t. d-usʌs.*
bring together, to v.t. d-ʌsmʌyʌs.*
bring to light, to v.t. d-ʌgʊsʌs.*
brink n. iʷl.
broad adj. dʌlilʌlʊm.
brocade n. kimxaʷb.
broken to bits adj. čhoʃ.
bronchitis n. N. dʌmkoʷtai.
brooch n. čʌma.
broom n. pfoʷpos.
brother n. (man's) -ʌçʊ*; (woman's) -ʌles*; (wife's) -rik*; elder — (in privileged circles) kaʷka; elder — voc. kaʷko!

4476

000 brother-in-law n. (man's) *-ʌçe; *-rik; (woman's) *-ulus. brownish adj. gurro.
bruised adj. ṣuḍ'ʌq.
buck, to v.i. prik dilʌs; (chatter) top m.
buck up, to vi. hrmmat et.
bucket n. khʌti.
buckle n. čʌmi.
buckshot n. N. kirye.
buckstick n. bringkij; wʌqo.
buckwheat n. hʌru.
bud n. šufurko; ḍuçuro.
buffalo n. hirjnahirj; hirjmayûrj; male — sʌnda — calf hirjmahirje ivik.
bug n. pfarltso, (insect in general) γʌlγu.
bugle n. turum.
build, to v.t. la et.
bulb n. γʌšu.
bull n. hʌr; iwč(?); young — tshirʌr entire — tshind'ʌr.
bull-calf n. tshirʌr bufoje.
bullet n. ḍiru; hurats.
bullock n. hʌr.
bully, to v.t. jujuw *-at.
bunch n. (of grapes) čhu; (of flowers) bʌfo.
bundle n. ṣʌpa; (of grass etc.) buru; (small) bʌfo bung n. forri.
burden n. bʌlda.
burial n. *-ltus
burial ground n. *-ltuwʌ diš; tolʌg.
burn, to v.i. bʌuru; γulʌru; v.a.v. jʌjʌm; v.t. *-ʌsqolʌ; jʌk et.; jʌu et.; gfu *-ʌtsi.ʌs.
burning adj. lʌm.
burnt adj. *-γulʌm, v.a.v. γulʌru.
burrow n. yurlgil.
burst, to v.i. dufaltʌs; v.t. d*-ʌgfaltʌs.
burst out, to v.i (of water etc.) dufaltʌs.
Burushaski n. (language) burušʌski; (term used by foreigners only) khʌjen'a.

448a

000 bury, to v.t. yavre •-at.
burying n. •-ltus.
bush n. mevṣ.
business n. •-urus; bər; duro; to do — duro et.
busy adj. masγul.
but prep. thi; conj. ama; lekin; magər.
butcher n. qasai.i.
butt n. (of gun) kərçum.
butt, to v.i. dus dəli.as; dus dumas.
butter n. maltaṣ; maska; lump of — fiŋan; patka; pusovi; package of — maltaṣ.
butterfly n. hovlalas.
buttermilk n. diltər.
buttock(s) n. bubovq; •-xaŝiŋ; čhərban.
button n. tak; šufuko.
buy, to v.t. gaṣər yanas (ganas); v.s.v. duməras, cp. d•-tsas.
buzz, to v.i. fufu et.
buzzing n. rūrū.
by prep. v. §§ 70.iii; 79, 80; — himself etc. i•, v.s.v. 1. •-i c.
by force adv. zulm ns.
by . . . self adv. (person) hinoman; (thing) hanoman. V.s.v. •-dim.
byre n. fərk.

C.

cabbage n. gobi.
cable, wire n. sim.
cackle, to v.i. kukuk et.
cage n. qafas.
cake n. (of bread) šuro; small do. fufo.
V. List of Foods.
calamity n. bala; abaṣ.
calf n. bəṣoṣo; isk; fatted — yadam bəṣoṣo; — of leg pini; cp. bubovq. calico n. 3. pati.
call, to v.i. çan et; v.t. (by name) sanas; — s.o. s.t. •-asas.
Call to Prayer n. bag.

4486

called . . . adj. . . . zenas.
callosity n. hundaris.
calm, to v.t. espasas. calumniator n. bəriŋkiš.
camel n. uʷt; male — boʷγəra uʷt; young of — uʷts iʷsk.
camp n. fortified — baŋut.
camphor n. kaʷfuʷr.
camping-ground n. gučhaiyas dis; (high) hərayʷ. can v.i. (to be able) -amanas; N. ulaʷnas. V. § 298.
candle n. šama.
canine adj. — tooth -was -mi.
cannon n. toʷp.
cantle n. — of saddle tili.aŋ iʷljum pfata.
cantonment n. baŋut.
cap n. pfərtsin; (woman's) toʷpi; toʷpo; pfərtsin.
capable adj. lai.iq; qaʷbil.
caper n. (plant and seed) čopori. capsule n. ḍuḍuʷro; (dry section of) fukoʷro. capture, to v.t. ganas.
caracole, to v.i. maqmeʷs delas; prik delas; to cause — prik -adilas.
caraway seeds n. haiyaʷu.
carcase n. čərak; šaŋal.
card, to v.i. (wool) čhaγaltas.
care n. hifaʷzat; to take — of šaŋ at.; d-aspasas.
carefully adv. hifaʷzate ka; šaŋ ne(tan).
careless adj. be-pərwa.
carelessness n. be-pərwa.i. carpenter n. čak etas ustaʷd.
carpet n. bər; pafo; gaʷlin; knotted pile — qali; woven cotton — satranj.
carpet-weaver n. šerma-buʷlo.
carpeting n. fərš.
carried away, to be v.i. v.a.v. gaʷrtsas.
carrier n. baldakuʷin.
carrion n. hərəʷmi manum gutas.

449 a carry, to v.t. *-yʌnʌs (h objects), yʌnʌs (x objects), gʌnʌs (y objects) — load b:lda gʌnʌs; — loads by instalments sərə bʌldʌŋ et.; to make s.o. — *-ʌyʌnʌs. ooo carry away, to v.t. *-ts.hu·yʌs; d-ʌspʌpʌlʌs.

carry off, to v.t. *-ts.hu·yʌs; d-usʌs; *-šivʌs.

carry on, to v.t. *-ʌgutsərʌs.

cart n. ærʌba.

cartridge n. kə·rtu·s.

carve, to v.t. *-ʌsqərʌnʌs.

case n. (law) ʌstʌm; (container) yu·lgɤ̃.

cast, to v.t. *-wʌši.ʌs (h objects), wʌši.ʌs (x objects), bršaiyʌs (y objects), (an animal) *-ʌ.ɤrvʃʌs.

cast-iron n. či.ʌn.

castrate, to v.t. axta et.; *-čhʌɣʌltʌs; (ox) serbər et.

castrated adj. axta; *-čhʌɣʌltum; sərbər stum.

cat n. bu·š; tom- — bʌmbu·la buš.

cat-eyed adj. bu·šo.

catarrh n. lʌm.

catch, to v.i. dikʌʃʌs; v.t. du·nʌs; (disease) *-wʌlʌs.

catch fire, to v.i. v.s.v. ts.hi.ʌs.

caterpillar, hairy n. biškakṣ̌ ɣʌlɣu.

catgut n. bərʌntəl.

cattle n. (large) *-iltʌṣ̌; hər bu.ʌ; (small) hugə·s.

cattle-house n. gir'a·m.

cattle-pen n. šʌlhərʌɣ.

caught, to get v.i. dikʌʃʌs.

caul n. *-ʌs dʌltum.

cause n. sʌbʌb; (lawsuit) ʌstʌm.

cause, to v.t. — trouble to *-ʌsi·vʌs. V. Ca. verbs §§ 234—242, *-ʌt.ʌs and stʌs § 261.

cave n. kə·r; N. çənč.

cavity n. (between boulders) çərum.

449 b

000 caw, to v.i. qaʿqaʿ st.
cease, to v.i. basaʿs; hurufas.
ceiling n. 1. tal.
celebrate, to v.t. (festival) elas.
cellar n. (for butter) ǵər.
cement n. čuna.
cemetery n. tolaŋ.
centipede n. galtaʃ.
central adj. makučim.
centre n. makuči; exact — fraŋ makuči; — line of head -than(as).
certain adj. yaqin.
certainly adv. bevsa; albat; boraʿbor; bedak; zərwl.
chafed adj. ǵadʾaq.
chain(s) n. daŋaličiŋ.
chair n. kursi.
chamber n. učak.
champion n. palawan.
chance n. ztifaq; (opportunity) galt; waʿqa; by — aiwqo; ztifaqtsum.
change n. (small money) paŋkaʃ.
change, to v.i. badal m.; v.t. badal st.; pfər st.
change into, to v.i. -ilalanas; v.t. pfər st.
changeable adj. kanibers.
changed adj. badal.
channel n. irrigation — dala; gortsil; ǵir; escape — diriʿtal; mill — nar; — crossing over another ǵaŋalat.
"chaplis" (sandals) n. čapalisuts.
character n. of good — suǵrmo; of bad — aǵrmo.
"charas" (hemp) n. (drug) barŋ.
charcoal n. kanjil.
charcoal-collector n. pirpa.
charge, to v.i. (of troops) ka ka st.; v.t. (an enemy) dam ditas; -ias gartas.
charge with, to v.t. -ayanas; taluʿl st.
charm n. dam; ǵaya.
charming adj. ǵaqakaʃ.

450 a

000 chase, to v.t. firts *-ał. chattels n. mał.
chatter, to v.i. lavi lavi m.; forp w. chatterbox n. boriŋkzj; γałep.
chatterer n. maq'o.
cheap adj. arzam; bos.
cheapness n. wzami.
cheat n. felkzj; makwči; makwkzj; ɸak; maraquiskzj.
cheating n. maraquis.
cheek n. *-moγzj. cheek, to give v.i. bejaw st.
cheese n. panir.
chenar tree n. boč.
cherish, to v.t. *-wče.as; periawzj *-ał.
cherry n. gałkuw x; šuγum x.
cherry-plum n. g'undaru x; — tree gundaru y.
cherry-tree n. gałkuw y; šuγum y. chest n. *-ndiv; (box) sandaq; grain — to.hayor.
chew, to v.t. čaq st.; waj st.; (cud) aso st. chewing n. haq. V. s.vv. čokaq and haq. chicken n. N. jorta; gerqamutse jofta, or iwk.
chicken-pox n. loryo.
chief n. tham.
child n. (infant) giγaw; small — jorta, jorto; (crawler) pfałaq; (only) palpali; boy — hilow; girl — dasin; small child ren jotpał.
childhood n. jotkał.
childless adj. morjoq.
children n. daughter and son *-ał *-i; daughters and sons *-ał *-gu.
chill n. dhayurum; — from fever zwiur.
chillies n. marwdv foriŋzčiŋ.
chin n. *-aan.
chinaware n. firda.
chip n. finirli; (larger) jutow.
chirp, to n. čiru čiru st.

450 b chisel n. gurk.

"chogs" n. ḍoṇa; section of — gali.
choke, to v.i. dikṭas.
choose, to v.i. dandi °-ai.; d°-aṇṭas, and ai.
chopping board n. ṇ'anin.
cigarette n. ṇyarej.
circingle n. traṇ.
circle n. hajiro gṛṭi; ogow; (of gold and silver) ckas(?).
circle round, to v.i. tal'ownas.
circuit n. morag.
circular adj. hajiro.
circumcise, to v.i. bowman.
circumstances n. hal; halai; ahwal; kasal.
cistern n. yulk.
city n. ḍaw.
claim n. dwk; hewnow; to make a — against dryarwas.
clan n. rwm; giraw; gwm; (independent) hewy.
clap hands, to v.i. ṇarla.
clapper (for pounding rice) n. karaki. clash, to v.i. jurk.
clasp n. ḍamu.
clasp, to v.i. — hands °-rigtiṇ trap.
class n. (birth) sarl; nasal.
clavicle n. hailiin; garra.
clean adj. pork; pakiro.
clean, to v.i. jkam; (wool) dhryalias (grain) d°-ashias.
clear adj. arf; (sky) hwl; jaḍaw; (water) nirwam.
clear away, to v.i. lang °-ai.
clear out, to v.i. daṇa; v.i. jkam.
clear up, to v.i. (of weather) hwl nigas; jang; v.i. d°-aṇṭas.
cleared up, to be v.i. dryarṇas.
clear-sky n. hwl.
cleave, to v.i. tkrag.
cleft n. (between boulders) gorow.

451 a

clever adj. aqikt; gunaxto; hoši.aw.
cliff n. ôkar; earth- — mavt; crumbly — N. hâkal; smooth and precipitous — tat ôkar.
climb, to v.i. dawas.
cloak n. ôape; čapan. V. "chaga".
cloud n. yos.
close adj. asiw; (relation) asiwam; khuf; adv. asiw; — to s.o. °-apati; °-apal.
close, to v.t. d°-ashiças; hen ot.; fam ot.; (sluice etc.); detsiças; (eyes) °-astaqapas; (bolt) (asiwê) dargu.as.
close up, to v.t. d°-m.ikas; (y objects) dumakas.
closed adj. lîf; fam; hen; hand.
closed, to be v.i. dukkaças.
cloth n. gafu; woollen homespun — yâl.am; cotton — khawa; latta; mazari; pati; durgutâkt; goat's hair — ôrma; palwa; shawl — qaw; fine — hen'am.
clothes n. gafuq; S. ôrm; suit of — kat; hinsiv; to put on — °-gwlas (z obj.), halas (y objects).
clothing n. gafu.
cloud n. hawaf; mawal; — of dust dôl'am; dumat.
cloven hoof n. jaqar ipfati.
clover n. iski čap ltqa; (crop) kaftal. club n. ôamo; ôirgar.
coagulate, to v.i. dumanas; v.t. drumanas.
coal n. live — hawa.
coarse adj. jatawam.
coat n. kahavi; galtain; long — čapan.
cobweb n. yîtrau yfak.
cock n. hir qaqarmata.
cocoon n. pafawa; pafamawa; (after removal of silk) ôurtîa las.
coffee n. qawa; — with milk ôirqawa.
coffin n. xandaq.
coin n. specific -s: čilibi; dawaai; ôakal; rupia; pawla.

451 b

000

col n. (of mountain) *-.ał.
cold n. intense — ḫerć; — in head ṭaṇuuse; having do. zertsuuoṭ; adj. ćkaγwrem; (social) ṭhertine; (of food left over) ṭirery.
cold, to be, or become v.i. d-ćkaγwr.ee*; (y subjects) dećkaγwr.ee.
collapsed adj. jaṭał.
collar n. (of coat) *-.ał.
collar-bone n. ḫaiźtin; garra.
collect, to v.i. gaṭi m.; v.t. dremi.ee; gaṭi *-.ał.
collected adj. gaṭi.
collyrium n. ḫuł.
colocynth n. jaźiw; cp. ḫaźił.
colour n. rag; sorr.ał.
colour, to n. rag dolee.
colt n. ḫiraγa.
comb n. ḫiwk.
comb, to v.t. ḫag ot.
combination n. (amongst people) pira.
come, to v.i. juγee; (niγee).
come along! gora(n)!
come back, to v.i. juγee; γfor.
come down, to v.i. orkee; (of rainbow) wał.ee.
come into existence, to v.i. -.ee; m.ooro; d-.ooree*; d-.ee*; dam.ee.
come into possession of, to v.i. v.ee, m.ooro, -rig.
come on, to v.i. ḫał -.ee; (of pain) γiγee.
come out, to v.i. dwee; dawał.ee; ḫar.
come to an end, to v.i. doγee; doγeułee; γaγor -.ee.
come together, to v.i. ḫire; ḫark.
come true, to v.i. (lor) gaźow; to cause — -.ałee.
come up, to v.i. (of plants) ḫiḫiγee; ḫwee.

452 a

000 come up with, to v.t. d°-ałqałłas.
coming and going n. niyas . . . ĵuyas.
comfort n. oraw; hozwr; ałkkał; rołkał.
command n. 'łokow; łałda.
commander n. ayoław.
commence, to v.t. daywzałkinas; (work) ĵawwanas.
commit, to v.t. (entrust) ławił ał.; (bolt) ĵhła ał.
common adj. (ordinary) aw; ałas; the — herd awaí; in — 'łorwy.
communicate, to v.t. °-ałłkinas.
community n. rowa; giraw; gorw.
compassion n. jaił; rałkam.
compensation n. to pay — mow gamłas.
compete, to v.t. łak °-amanas.
competent adj. gawrała.
competitor n. łerr.
complain against, to v.t. ĵhłkinas.
complaint n. łzkoyał; to make a — łzkoyał ał.; to make a — against s.o. ĵhłkinas.
complaisant, to be v.t. łorłi m.
complete adj. łak; pawa.
complete, to v.t. awpłas; d°-łamanas; pawa ał.
completed, to be v.t. d°-manas; dumanas; °-manas.
completely adv. jam; łałap; prawy; tor; łołak; jak. V. s.v. "quite".
completion n. point of — gaĵ.
comply, to v.t. łorłi m.
composition n. ałłfoy.
compress, to v.t. d°-ałłi as.
compulsion n. ołam.
conceal, to v.t. °-ałłagayas.
concealed adj. ołp.
conceit n. °-awał.
conceive, to v.t. (a desire) °-ałłi dawałas.
concluded, to be v.t. doyawłas.
concubine n. gama.

452 b condition n. hal; hʌwal; ʌhwal; bʌp ta·p; (stipulation) kaf; in poor — d-kufum*; la·ša. 000 condole, to v i. khi·l m.

conduct n. fi.a·l.

conduit n. hu·r.

confess, to v.t. iqra·r et.

confession n. iqra·r.

confidential servant n. hiŋʌtsum mʌhʌrʌm.

confined adj. čhʌnum.

confined, to be v.i. (of woman) gučhaiyʌs.

confused, confusedly adj., adv. ʌčəra; ʌpʌrts; ḍʌŋhʌs; ḍomaḍom; pərišan; warts apa·rts; šʌb'irkum.

congenial(?) adj. ba·r.

congratulate, to v.t. mubarʌk et.; mubarʌkbadi et., or *-čhi.ʌs.

congratulations n. bubarʌk(i); mubarʌk(i); mubarʌk badi.

conquer, to v.i. šʌt et.; fʌta et.

conquest n. fʌta.

consciousness n. čərči.

consent, to v.i. ʌwa senʌs; γəri·sʌs; qʌbul et.

consent n. rɪza; to obtain — rɪza *-ʌt.

consequence n. nʌtiγa; it is of no — pəriwa ʌ·pi.

consider, to v.t. *-ʌγʌnʌs; *-ts.hʌnʌs.

consideration n. pəriwa; person of — uyu·m sis.

conspiracy n. pfəreri; kʌčakon.

conspirator n. pfe·ro.

conspire, to n. pfereri et.

constantly adv. hʌmeša; mudam.

constellation n. V. s.v. "star".

constipated adj. qavz; čhʌnis; v.s.v. *-γumur.

construct, to v.t. (water-channel) d-usʌs*; to cause to — d-ʌgusʌs.*

consult, to v.t. gufuginʌs; sʌla doγʌrusʌs, or gʌnʌs; — secretly gurgur m.

453 a

contact n. to come into — with ṭire m.; ṭarā m.

contest n. (of story, dream etc.) daya.

contented adj. rzzu; to be — rzzu m.

contentedly adv. gurrre ka.

contentment n. rzzuhej; rzzuī.

contemporary n. hev.

continue, to v.i. d°-m.ssa.

contrariwise adv. aparta.

contrary n. on the — halki.

controller n. yaḷbw.in.

controversy n. ṭrdu.

convenient, to be v.i. d°-mayu.

conversation n. ṭarī.

convex adj. ṭrrg.

convince, to v.t. °-ssulo °-ahthrigu., v.a.v. °-ss.

convolvulus n. f. ṭal.

cook n. d'ahir.u; ssirī; (chief) yaldin; zerzarma. V. a.v. ḥaladṭaṭ.

cook, to v.i. dirī.ss (h and z subjects), dirre (y subjects). v.t. ḍaq ot.; d°-ahir.u.

cook-house n. (Mtr's) ṭkrg.

cooked adj. dziirum; dirī; d'irim; rzirm; (? of fruit) dgrui.

cooking-pot n. (of stone) ḥalrṭ; pardun; (of metal) tidin; ḍrk.

cool down, to v.i. ergu.ssa.

coolie n. ḥaldakwin.

copper n. rṭd; (brown) ṭikrk.

copulate, to v.i. (with woman) mrlu.s (°-ofas).

copulation n. zrd.

copulatory adj. v.a.v. ortki.

cord n. ḍolu; walpi.

coriander n. ikrm.

cork n. ṭirrī.

corn n. v. maize, wheat, barley etc.

cornelian n. ḥagiy.

corner n. gurr; ikurn; — of eye (°-ṭrinu i-ṭgal).

453 b

800 [illegible] n. gurjan.
[illegible] adj. lakan.
[illegible] n. gal; gewal.
[illegible] n. burj gale; gowa; gewal.
[illegible] n. gapar; kapar; (cloth) latha; pali; — yam gapar ser; adj. kapar; palia.
[illegible] n. ma.
[illegible], to v.t. ma *-alan.
[illegible] n. warjka.
[illegible] n. kawa; kale; to take — gebapinar; kale pawapar; gawar ka; kale al.
[illegible], to v.t. kawa *-al.
[illegible] n. warjv.
[illegible], to v.t. *-yawar, *-dakawar.
[illegible] n. awal.
[illegible] n. hatali; walk; (petrol) watan high — ban.
[illegible] n. likan; — al daga ordal.
[illegible] adj. *-aw daq; dilawar; gherdik; yawar (page 287, col. 2); *-aw pasia; angar *-al.
[illegible] p. in the [illegible] ekji jerj; kawaq; al — bewar.
[illegible] n. warjka.
[illegible] adj. [illegible].
[illegible] n. alap.
[illegible] n. warat; (of book) gwigat.
[illegible] adj. pankiliar(?).
[illegible] to become v.t. kaw kaw.
[illegible] n. fawa.
[illegible] n. bara; young — ba.ajar.
[illegible] adj. ba.aw.abam.
[illegible] n. ar *-mawar.
[illegible] adj. ar *-mawar; *-aw ahrta
*-ar bidil.
[illegible] n. kayaig; — beetle jara.
[illegible] n. bara gap.
[illegible] n. wagan.
[illegible] n. (as in china) fal; gaping — ilraq; (noise) dawaq; 2. fawar.

454a

800 crack, to v.i. ɛɛl ni.ɛɛ; thraŋ ni.ɛɛ.

cradle n. gɔ.ɛɛ; billighak.
craftsman n. ɛɛtɔrd; kɔrɔlk.
craftsmanship n. ɛɛtɔrdi.
cramp-bill n. kɔrɔkɔndɔl.
crank together, to v.i. ɔɔa dili.ɛɛ; ɔɔa dɔrɔ.ɛɛ.
cranny n. °-ɛɛki.
crawl, to v.i. (of baby) ɣiliŋ ɣɛɛlaŋ m. crawling n. ɣɛɛlaŋ.
cream n. ɔrɔɔ.
crease n. krak.
create, to v.i. d°-ɛɛmɛ.ɛɛ; poida °-ɛl; jhumak ɛl.
credence n. kɔrɔɔr; to give — kɔrɔɔr m. creditor n. wiŋgɔrin.
creep, to v.i. (of baby) ɣiliŋ ɣɛɛlaŋ m.
crest (of hill) n. ɔrɔl; ɔkɔrl.
crevasse n. kap.
crime n. kakɔrl.
crippled adj. ɔ.ɛɛw; ɔ.ɛɛw dhaŋɔw; (in hand or foot) khɔrlɔ; ɔɔlɔ — ɔɔkɔ ɔɔrɔ.
crochet-hook n. jɔrɔɔ khap.
crooked adj. ɔɔnɔr; 2. ɔɔrɔ.
crooked, to be v.i. dɔ.ɔɔnɔr.ɛɛ.
crops n. kɔrɔɔ; fanil; cut and stacked — dɔrlɔ; cut and lying — kɔnɔl. V.a.v. kɔrki.

Vide also:

Barley, beans, buckwheat, clover, lucerne, maize, millet, peas, potatoes, rice, wheat.

cross, to v.i. dɔrɔ.ɛɛ; v.a.v. ɔɔl; v.i. (mountain pass) (. . . ɔɔw) kɔlɔ.ɛɛ.
cross over, to v.i. ɛɛplaŋ m.
cross-grained adj. ɛɛpɔrlɔ.
cross-timbers n. (of roof) kɔndɔrɔɔ.
crouch, to v.i. jɔrɔ m.
crow n. ɔɔ; ɛɛ — ɔɔɔ wɔkɔm.
crow, to v.i. N. gɔŋgɔrɔlɔ ɛl.

4544

crowbar n. dangal; jakal.
crowded adj. dam dam'al; gali gali.
crown n. lej.
crud adj. kerakam; melim; nimgaw; mimakij.
crumb n. phuk.
crumpled adj. laj; lajkej.
crunching n. kerakarej.
crush, to v.t. (in powder) dagat °-al.
crush down, to v.t. °-jilan.
crushed, to be v.i. lag.
cry, to v.i. (shout) gam al.; (weep) kerak.
crystal n. kalel.
cubit n. gaj.
cuckold n. wikja.
cuckoo n. kupu.
cud n. to chew the — zawi.
cudgel n. dumu.
cuff (a blow) n. S. tir.
cultivated adj. kerki ahan; ahal; — land bujaki; ahil.
cultivation n. kerki.
cultivator n. zamindar.
cup n. (wooden) gilel; pilarla; (china) kiki. cupboard n. imarpati; H. imarpati; almari. curdle, to v.i. dumanat.
curds n. pati; (sour) H. kag; tika; (from bleeding) kiliry; dilal — gurel.
cure n. ilaj.
cure, to v.t. warla°-al.; ilaj al.
curl n. jarawa; marpal.
current n. kerigina.
curse n. lawal.
curse, to v.t.-lagwat al.; yemikij dam al.
curtain n. parda.
cushion n. (on saddle) tukak. Ng "pillow".
custom n. °-dukiv; kap; adat; dastur; mirwa.
customary law n. mirwa.
cut n. ta.

4552a

cut, to v.t. °-sakerkas; dirap of.; ferwk of.; (tree below branches) °-marapas; (rasp) hiwrkas.
cut down, to v.t. (tree) °-dolas.
cut off, to v.t. (water) gorras; (means of subsistence) v.a.v. °-ful.
cut open, to v.t. fiur of.
cut up, to v.t. fag of.
cutter n. berrada.

D.

dagger n. tirjk; nanjor.
daily adv. kor gonda; gondanno gonda.
dain n. (of earth or stone) mam; fiti.
damage n. laf; nanpaw; sirar.
damage to v.t. °-apulas.
damaged, to become v.i. gulas. dam up, to v.t. d°-ab.as; detsigas.
dammed up, to be v.i. didsigas.
damp adj. kayam; jirawajo; nak; dirlam.
damp, to be v.i. dawagas.
dance, to v.i. girulas; naf of.; to make s.o. — °-agirulas.
dancing-ground n. jalag.
[illegible] adj. gorjkij.
danger n. hala; nalar.
dangerous adj. nalar; — person ajirno.
dark adj. fuf.ag; fum.ag; pitch — fa.n fuf.ag.
darkness n. fuf.aghol; — and dust fum.ag.
darling adj. ji.
dash, to v.t. tilayagas.
daughter n. °-a.i; — and son °-ah °-i. daughters n. °-gagalanda.
daughter-in-law n. °-nakin.
dauntless adj. ningir °-as.
dawn n. gora; fuforgko; time before — gorna furk.
dawn, to v.i. gora.
day n. gonda; a single — k'ikelto; all — as ugorna; as sabora; — and night as thap.

4556

00B day n. dete; 2 — oltrepete; bel day in past perfilig. day after tomorrow adv. hiyelli. V. a.+v. berlin, kirlin, warlin.
day before yesterday adv. perlelin. daylight n. an ooglei.
dead adj. ovum; — body perjan.
deaf adj. vej.
dear adj. °-ejerow; (voc.) lakar; (mostly hey pa'e; gawa; gewal.
death n. tagpi.
death n. °-ovan; u.ovan; 1. der; 2. mere, merejan.
debt n. ur.
debtor n. ur ilhi.an; urjawin.
decade n. kowanan.
deceive, to v.t. mereqete dalan.
deception n. kerel.
decide, to v.t. (a case) °-ankerkan; fainale et.; d°-ankilan.
decided, to be v.i. ovi kirli an.; fainale an.; °-perkkar it.
decision n. anlaw; fainale.
decline n. (of sun etc.) yuva. decline, to v.i. (of sun etc.) yuva an.
declivity n. v. "descent".
decrease, to v.i. dilkirwan; v.t. d°-ankirwan.
dedicate, to v.t. d°-ankirwan.
deep adj. yej'ow.
defame, to v.t. gifir et.
defamed adj. kalwow.
defeat n. kirkat.
defeat, to v.t. kirkat °-ilhi.an; fain °-et.
defect n. oil.
deficient adj. kam.
define n. yuj'a.
define, to v.t. d°-anmilan.
defined, to be v.i. dimilan.
defect, to v.t. dewgiwan.
delay n. ain.
delay, to v.t. °-ikkeranan; v.t. °-anlikeranan.

4560

360 delayed adj. lowy.
deliberately adv. ni.ai no.
delight, to v.t. mane d°-akan. delighted adj. eiyat.
delightful adj. isyakot.
deliver, to v.t. fark ot. delivered, to be v.i. (of a woman) gwhoiyan; v.n.v. d°-ammanan.
demand, to v.t. dermoran; dayaranan. demands n. hayanaw.
demon n. (female) bilan; (male) hiv bilan.
den n. gwiyat.
deny, to v.t. dakk'aran; mankir m.; rakaw ot.
depart, to v.i. ni.an; daran; rasaman m.
deplore, to v.t. pamam m.
deport, to v.t. °-anpalan.
deposed adj. nafa.
depression n. (in ground) yaforpan.
deprived of, to be v.i. ko m.
deserved, to v.i. mekan; to make — d°-ammigan; to make rain — °-akartan.
desirable a. ankrd.
desert n. yaw; tali; steep — chagyu.
desert n. dan; bigalaw; adj. lag. desire n. rak; rai; mankir, armaw; °-aki; v.n.v. °-an; °-himan.
desire, to v.t. rak ot.; rai ot.; armaw ot.; °-aki dwanlan. despairing adj. nar unird.
despatch, to v.t. °-aran; °-anpalaran; °-ahwyan; cp. d°-akan 2. desperadest adj. farkkawa.
destitute adj. akarto; taltagarpo; mankary, nar lawa.
detain, to v.t. °-anwifan.
determination n. gand.
detonating fuse n. milirge fitta.
developed adj. (grown up) mandary.
device n. slayi.

4566

000 devil n. ḋeilem.

devilry n. ḋeilemi.
devour, to v.t. v. "to eat".
dew n. ɣfwnin.
die, to v.i. °-ewan; dwl m.; wafwt m.
difficult adj. ahal; ḋrem; ḋag; N. nawa; nw; mwlkil.
difficulty n. ahal; mwirhal.
dig, to v.i. hirapan; to make a.n. — °-ahirajan.
dignity n. without state or — g'alu.
diluted adj. ta.hafrwwm.
dippet n. ahapow; ilanan.
direct adv. ta.hau; wjhem.
direction n. °-galal; ahirg; pa; ḋag; wrong — aparis.
dirge n. herimig hwirp.
dirty adj. ihur; N. ilurk.
dis- negative prefix, v.a.v. a-, d-. disappear, to v.i. ynilab m.; dwnafr.an.
disappointed adj. nar wmird.
disapproval n. v.a.v. ganrem.
disc n. (of metal applied to a.t.) pel; (of gourd or silver as arrow-target) gwri.
disciple n. mwrid.
discontented (with), to be v.i. halirwan.
discourage, to v.t. °-an °-aran.
discourtesy n. he.alapi.
discussion n. hercawe.
disease n. hi.ail; ynilwlaf; v. List of Diseases.
disgrace n. ihurhi; halnarwi; ḋrwm.
disgrace, to v.t. d°-awalian.
disgraced adj. he.rrwal.
disgust n. °-ayam.
disgust, to v.t. d°-awaljatigan.
dish n. ɣfalar; tadpi; dwstan; v. List of Vessels. dishonest adj. adrwno; (in trade) law jaw.
disinterested adj. aerjo.
disliked adj. °-ayam.

4572

000 unwegai adj. bé-imaru.

disloyalty n. ximak hawui.
dismantle, to v.t. ritiras.
dismiss, to v.t. d'-uaas.
dismount, to v.i. drag m.; arkas; dearkas.
disobedient adj. arun; hakim akanas; to be — hardi ormanas; hakim akanas.
disobey, to v.t. hakim akanas; v.a.v. farm.
dispensary n. lafizaruo.
disperse, to v.i. das m.; v.t. dayarafas.
display n. tamarda; to make a — yitiras.
displeased adj. asav; nafa.
disport o.s, to v.i. tamarda ef.
dispute n. hartaro; tal.
disrespect n. be adapi; be ziyat.
disrespectful adj. be adap.
distance n. mithanomlaf.
distant adj. yeanom; mathan(om). (of relatives) mathanom.
distasteful adj. °-ayam.
distort, to v.t. (by force) mar ef.
distressed adj. nafa; v.a.v. afat.
distressed, to be v.i. °-as farnas.
district n. zlarga.
disturbance n. yowya; dar; janjari; fasard.
ditch n. nanlag.
"div" n. pfari.
live, to v.i. yartaro.
liveries n. tamarda.
divide, to v.t. frag ef.; lagaim ef.; d°-garas (p. 134); (hair) °-ilan digaras.
dividing line n. dir.
divine, to v.i. fari giyas.
diviner n. sujuru; ramali.
divorce n. talaq.
divorce, to v.t. (a woman) morras (°-aras); arkas; talaq °-ilias or ef., or d'ilanas; v.a.v. patka.
divot n. hakor.
do, to v.t. °-ifas; ifas; — a job daro ef.
do-er n. ifas.

457 b

000 doctor n. hakim; tabib.
dog n. hak; male — hir hak; bitch gus hak; hairy — jambolow; wild — gurjo.
dog-days n. tumas.
doll n. mincilia.
domestic adj. wlum.
domesticated adj. hwj.
don, to v.t. -gwlas (x objects); bwlas (y objects).
done, to be (faciendum) ełas.
donkey n. jakow; braying — gawg jakow.
donkey-foal n. gwku.
don't . . . v.a.vv. a-, ay-, aiye, aiye, a-.
door n. hig.
door-frame n. tahiraq, v.a.v. tahwij.
door-handle n. hiqs fovi.
door-keeper n. hiqstum maharam.
door-post n. tahwij.
door-sill n. gawum tahwij.
double adj. awlu jaqur.
double up, to v.i. dus alałas.
doubt n. łak.
doubtless adv. albat; be-łak.
dough n. hayundo; yushi; leavened — xsta; lump of — howia; strips of — łazda; vessel for — imakri; vessel for fermenting — hayundokri.
doughy adj. yushi.
dove n. yoyundil.
down n. hapuw; adv. xa; 2. xaf; yuw (xa); yuwa.
down on prep. xa; xaf.
down through prep. xa.
down-country adv. from — xafum.
downhill adv. yuwa.
downwards adv. xa; xha; xaf; loading — xrgura.
dowry n. v.a.vv. dwi and -thrgi.
doze n. fwi.
doze, to v.i. fuksir -m. dozing adj. pfurq.

458a

000 drag to v.t. (*-)taskow.
dragalong, to v.t. dadal cf.
dragon n. ażdar; ażagar; hergru.
dragonfly n. frago.
draught n. (liquid) mirun.
draw to v.t. (*-)taskow; jaj *-ę ..; (bow) takow; (a design) *-zapewzas.
draw back, to v.t. gfer m.
draw out, to v.t. d-zaas; d-zpewzas.
dread n. awdaj; bródaj.
dreadful adj. amoko; v.a.v. bród.
dress n. *-alji.
dress, to v.t. *-alji gelzas.
dress n. gajeg; (woman's head-sheet) bigo; dova; (woman's shirt) gafu; gili.
dressup, to v.t. *-gerg cf.
dried adj. gugow (x things); bewa, bergzam (y things). V. a.v. gergzas; — apricot bjew; — fruit ground like flour bivg.
dried up adj. jowk.
driftwood n. fa.
drink n. mirun.
drink to v.t. mirow; fergzis; (tahil fac) gjow; to make a.o. *-zmirzas.
drinking-water n. mirow tahil; fergzas tahil.
drip, to v.t. fergz.
dripping n. thatkag; thathaj.
drive, to v.t. dak *-zl.; (plough oxen) *-wrkas; — a.t. into a.t. else ergzlas (i.e. *-zgalas. Cf. cf gajew).
drive back, to v.t. gfer *-zl.
drive off, to v.t. dam cf.
drive out, to v.t. d-zaas.
drop n. chaj; thid.
drop, to v.t. tahar m.; v.t. mahkas (x objects); hekrigas (y objects).
drops n. *-wdals tahil.
drown to v.t. *-yerkas; v.i. *-zaperkas.
drowned, to be v.i. tahilzgs *-m. drug n. mirh; (hemp) berg; (opium) afgew.

4586

drum n. (kettledrum) dawmal; (big) dadag; to run finger over surface of — fuwa al.

drummer n. v.a.v. bewile; dawmalti; dadagli; v.a.v. swyrus.

drumstick n. (for big drum) pirl'awn.

drunk adj. mast; to get — -arfai.as.

dry adj. jork; v.a.v. "dried", and see entries under gwyas, bwyas & bugai.as; (of weather) jadow.

dry, to, v.i. gwyas (h. x subjects), bwyas; bwyoriyas (y subjects); v.t. swpi.as (i.e. -aspi.as); swyagas.

dry leaves n. hawal.

dual adj. jager.

duck n. yfwrij.

duly adv. hawdur.

dumb adj. layan.

dun-coloured adj. sawaud.

dung n. gwal; mayal; (manure) dilk; cow — dayrig; horse — mywf; orbicular — gwapus; hoyon.

duplicate n. gwaw.

dusk n. hawa hawa.

dust n. swrdi; (in air) N. gubaw; (with darkness) fawfag; cloud of — doldiwn; dawal.

dye n. rag.

dye, to v.t. -ashirias; rag dolas.

dyed adj. -ashirwn.

dyer n. ragli; raggriw.

dysentery n. mwrag.

dwarf juniper n. maihali gal.

dwell, to v.i. hawrfas; to cause s.o. — -ahawrfas.

dwelling-house n. gwal.

dwelling-place n. -gak; permanent — -gwd.

E.

each adj. hav hin (h); hav han (x, y); hin hin (h); han han (x, y); hr; — other hin hin (h); han han (x, y).

eagle n. german.

ear n. -lhum.al*; (external) halamwfe; (of corn) čha.

earlier-born adj. gar d-m.ooum.*

early adj., adv. ta.how; (former) ta.howum.

early morning adj. ta.howdimo; tufagmo.

early-ripened adj. ta.how d-γeoum.*

earring n. gičhin; hafamow.

earth n. čik; (white) gef; (very fine, white) ghum'el; (kind of) morji; (of fox) γwigst.

earth-cliff n. mort: v. also N. bahal.

earthquake n. tinqan; N. buyal.

earwig n. galtal.

ease n. fur; oroum; rarhaf; (facility) xafo; asowi.

easily adv. xafus ka.

easiness n. xafo; asowi.

east n. jil.

eastwards adv. N. dal ne.

easy adj. xafo; sahal; asowi; — account dambahum.

eat, to v.t. hi.as (ha.as d ke.as) — opium afi.ura keryas; to give s.o. s.t. — -asivas.*

eclipse n. v.n.v. eyunjoiyas; jandera.

eclipsed, to be v.i. eyunjoiyas.

edge n. čil; gud; mal; (of knife) hirwa pu; (of terrace) pertal; both —s of s.t. 'ilhal.

edging n. (round rim of anything) b'erpinas.

edible adj. fiyatu galki.

educate, to v.t. -ashinas*; *tarlirwa -ashi.as.

educated adj. tarlirwa ganum.

education n. tarlirwa.

effective, to be v.i. gafow.

effort n. to make an — janam'ar al.

egg n. fiqan; (contents) fiqana dal; white of — barum dal; yolk tahark dal.

eggshell n. fiqana wal; fiq'an's pelanow.

Egypt n. Misur.

459 b

Egyptian adj. Mizore.
eight num. altambo (h, z, y); altambi (z). eighteen num. forma altambo (h, z, y) — altambi (z).
eighth ord. altambolom.
eighty num. worlti-aviw.
either . . . or conj. kal . . . kal; 2. par . . . par.
elapse, to v.i. mazare.
elder n. ugwm; aslakarl; horum manom sie; akarbir; adj. ugwm; omoro ugwm.
elderly adj. mapar.
elephant n. kasle.
elevated adj. thrwam.
elevation n. (in level place) dorg.
eleven num. forma kin (h); forma kan (z, y); forma hik (z). eleventh ord. forma or forima hikolom.
else adv. da; thi; thwm.
emaciated adj. d°-kafam.
emaciated, to become v.i. d°-kafas.
embrace, to v.t. kavu °-al.; karkano °-al; karkir wahi.as; v.s.v. °-al.
embroider, to v.t. ferk al.
embroidered adj. ferki; ferk ofom; — horse-cloth kipim.
embroidery n. ferk — pattern ciksa.
emerge, to v.i. dawas.
employ, to v.t. °-aberuy.as.
empty adj. ghas; thi; pari; awi; ravli.
empty out, to v.t. dewaiy.as.
empty-handed adj. liw.
enamoured adj. arizy.
enamoured, to be v.i. d°-asewrf.as.
enchantment n. dam; aew.
enclose, to v.t. d°-afo.as; (animals) °-khali.as.
enclosure n. (for animals) hawy; (round grave) panji; (round shrine) thawk.
encourage, to v.t. °-as d°-afas.
encouragement n. himwal.
end n. wal; at the — mokafo; awar; in the — arzv kew; to the — ewiw

460a

000 to come to an — d-γaʀʌs (h, x subj.) dεγʌnʌs (y subj.); qaqεr m.; (finis) fʌqʌt.
end, to v.i. dωʀʌs.
endeavour n. kωδίδ; hωnnʌt.
endeavour, to v.i. kωδίδ εt. enemy n. ʌkʌr; γωγqʌ́s; dωnʌn.
engaged on, to be v.i. ωγγωnʌs.
Englishman n. fωrʌq.
enjoin, to v.t. kωnʌ.ο εt.
enjoy, to v.t. ʃεnʌs, (v.a.v. ʃi.ʌs).
enjoy o.s., to v.i. kωri.εʃ εt.
enjoyment n. kωrωr.
enmity n. γωl; gʌf; ʃίr; dωnʌnni; v.a.v. nωrd.
enough! hωl; γωl; γωγωl; γωiγωl.
entrail(s) n. 1. -ta.kίw; 2. jωr.
enquire, to v.i. dεγʌrωnʌs.
enquire into, to v.t. d-ωqʌfʌs.
entangled, to be v.i. ʌkωrqωγʌs; to get — dikʌfʌs.
enter, to v.i. γiγʌs; to cause s.o. — -ʌpiγʌs.
entertain, to v.t. ωdίrω εt.
entertainment n. ωnωrωdʌk; public — tʌmωrω.
entire adj. fωk; γωγω; tʌmωrω; the — ωγωr; — ox ta.kind'ωr.
entirely adv. fωtʌp.
entreaty n. ωzωr.
entrust, to v.t. tʌωrί εt.
envelope n. lifωrfω.
envious adj. to make s.o. — jωjωf -ʌt.
enviously adv. to look at. — jωjωf -ωn.
envoy n. dωrʌlʌ.
epilepsy n. ʌωirγi.
equable adj. (of person) hʌrωm.
equal adj. 3. fʌk; hʌlωr; -γωγʌs.
equal, to v.t. 3. fʌk -ʌm. equinox n. (vernal) Nωωrω.
equipment n. dωrωhʌk; ʌshirδ; ωrωωrω.
equivalent n. hʌdʌl.

460 b eradicate, to v.t. d°-pirtsa; d°-apirtsa. 000 erect adj. daldi.em; tse.

erect, to v.t. d°-ŋ.ŋjas; (hoof) fiq ef.
error n. fhis; herkan; ɣalal; to make an — herkan nivsa. escape, to v.i. d°-m.sas; dwsas. escape-channel n. dirivdal.
establish, to v.t. haja ef.
estrangement n. v.a.v. gevtsas 6.
Ethiopian adj. hahadi.
even adj. (not odd) haber; adv. . . . ha.
even now adv. seseto ha.
evening n. asvasfo; farua; in the — asvafsmo; adj. asvafsmo; farumo.
eventually adv. avsev hev.
ever adv. hamela.
every adj. hev; ha; — time that . . . fa.hing.
everyone pron. hev hin (h); hev han (c,y). evidence n. gevevi.
evil n. hayerkhef; fevp; to talk — of s.o. fsw m.; fahag °-af.; adj. yenikzf; hayerk; fevpa.
evil-doer n. hayerk; mfumeiii ofas.
evil-doing n. mfumeii.
evil eye n. yenikzj masar.
evil-looking adj. afafsm; hadhahal. evil-natured adj. hayerk; hadmajova.
evilness n. yenikzfhef.
evil works n. hankinom.
ewe n. hvlis; (not yet dam) sersis; — lamb semfalikij semserdi.
exact adj. fak; haber.
exact, to v.t. (retribution) di sasa (v.a.v. rsve).
exalt, to v.t. fhavsem °-af.
examine, to v.t. to cause s.o. to — °-abavsasa.
excellence n. daltaahej.
excellent adj. fave; daltas; (virtuous) penalisfu.
except prep. fhi.

461a

000

cover n. b'ardi; in — kank.
covenantly adv. kiŋ; nikergat.
exchange, to v.t. rdi kirdi et.; yfor °-at.; (permanently) dromaŋsa.
excited adj. mast.
excrement n. yerat v. "dung".
excuse n. ezur.
exercise n. maŋ.
exercise, to v.t. maŋ et.; (rights) kiŋ'sa.
exempt adj. (from carrying loads) kekora.
exert o.s., to v.t. jaŋsa'ir et.; °-saporsa.
exhaust, to v.t. °-saporsa; (supplies etc.) yfat et.
exhausted adj. kidam; yfat; dergamoto.
exhaustol, to be v.t. d°-ronsa (k, a subj.); dergansa (y). exile, to v.t. °-sapalsa; ben dado d°-sasa or °-at.
existence n. to come into — mosore; °-masasa; poido m.; d°-sorsa; d°-masasa; dumasasa.
expand, to v.t. dusorsa.
expectant adj. (mother) wuirlsore.
expectation n. dak; wuird; pamore.
expedient n. ilerj, dowa.
expel, to v.t. °-sapalsa; d°-sasa; ben dado d°-sasa or °-at.
expend, to v.t. °-sarisa; sari et.; °-sorsa.
expenditure n. sari.
expenses n. sari.
expensive adj. bari gale; gorow.
experience, to v.t. kiŋ'sa.
experienced, to become v.i. d'irisa.
expert n. kiŋkusin.
explosive n. milirg.
expose, to v.t. d°-sualtsa.
extend, to v.t. jirk °-at.
extended adj. jirk.
extended, to be v.i. d°-tergorsa.
extending adj. dechapor. exterminate, to v.t. bri °-sorsa; sat °-at.
exterminated adj. tatap.

461 b

000 extinguish, to v.t. rutagas.
extra adj. kaik; kaikerto.
extract, to v.t. čas ol.; d°-nas; d°-ajovel-nas; to cause to — d°-apnas.
extraordinary adj. ajap; akkerj.
extravagant, to be v.i. yilivnas.
extremely adv. kerj; akkerjal.
exude, to v.i. pfovel m.
eyeing oil adj. kalalito.
eye n. °-lilin; (of needle) il; white of — kowm nana; corner of — rilpal; grey-eyed kwdo; white-eyed (of horse) čapov; to keep an — on °-analas; — and limbs °-lilin °-ilag.
eye-ball n. °-lilin nana.
eye-brows n. °-lizwals.
eye-glasses n. ešinak.
eye-lash n. °-lpaw.
eyeless adj. (of needle) il apim.
eyelet n. (leather loop used as —) pavilas.
eyelid n. °-lilin lil.

F.

face n. °-alivi; savat; (of hill) °-nilivi.
face downwards adv. °-mardikas.
facing adj. čav; vu kavu.
fact n. in — kalki. faction n. pali.
fade, to v.i. doiyas; kherp m.; sorp m.
faggot n. falrus.
fail, to v.i. (to be unable) v.a.v. °-amasas.
faint, to v.i. bikerd m.; 2. pal °-m. v.a.v. dam.
faint-hearted adj. °-as zhrdo; °-as bidil.
fair adj. (beautiful) daltas; pakiras; marig; (in colouring) kwdo.
fair-complexioned adj. kwdo; kepil.
fairyland n. gamal.
faith n. imaro; tawakal; "the —" dina.
faithful adj. imaradovi; imaro bilam.
faithless adj. bi imaro.
falcon n. gasaaf.

CONTINUED FROM PRECEDING FICHE

000 falconer n. mirərkuv.

fall, to v.i. -walas (h subjects); walas (x subjects); balava (y subjects); ts.hor m.; (of dew) hasava; (of snow etc.); juryas; giyaiy; (be spilt) dimiryas; (with loud noise) dim walas, dim balava.

fall asleep, to v.i. -ayenas.

fall down, to v.i. dovas; bran walas; digi.eyas; (of earth cliff) ts.hi.as.

fall in love, to v.i. ərəy -m.; yfurf -m.; dori m.

false adj. v.a.v. yalat.

falsehood n. -amus.

fame n. tarif.

family n. jamarat; — and relatives jam jamarat; distinguished old — zum dam; mirus; (breed) zat; (woman's term) ayomo; possessing large — aspuyuv.

famine n. čham.

famous adj. ič durum; hori; mathuv.

fancy n. to take a — to yfurf -m.

far adj. mathan; as — as fhay.

far-off adj. yuranum.

farewell! zadayav!

farness n. mathanumkuf.

farrier n. sap eposas sis.

fart n. fit.

farter n. fikuf.

farthing n. paisa.

fashion n. zeil; in this — akhiri zailafs.

fashion, to v.t. d-asmanas*.

fast n. rura; to keep the — rura ganas.

fast, to v.i. rura m.

fasten, to v.t. d'uguyas; fak -at.; v. "to tie".

fastening n. (of chogs) fak.

fat n. biv; (on animal's colon) uvrk; adj. (of person) davanum; day.

fate n. nasib; qismat.

462 b

000 father n. *-uy; (in royal circles) baba;

— of many grown sons balgurin.
father-in-law n. -askir.
fatherless adj. -uy apam; thar'ea.
fatigue, to v.t. -asporas.
fatted adj. the — calf yurdam bolo'o. fattened adj. yurdam. V. s.vv. -urde.as & yurde.as.
fault n. fhis; aib; gunu; hubul; taksir for no — narhaq; to seek excuse to find — gajat et.
favour n. yal.
favourable adj. subas.
favourite adj. -ayerum; xul (c.) fear n. bik; bikkul; arkul; 2. dar.
fear, to v.i. ar m.; bik m.; xauf et.; -as gurwyas; to make s.o. — ar, or, bik -at.; -as -agusuryas.
fearsome adj. amuko; v.s.v. bik. feasible adj. efas.
feast n. manoj, v.s.v. manotiki.
feather n. pfulgo; -s of arrow tarkong.
fee n. miller's — pfi.
feeble adj. ashto; torado; kamqurwat; kamzor.
fed up, to be v.i. durjaiyas.
feed, to v.t. -asiwas; (by mouthfuls) lap -at.
feet and hands n. -uj -ring.
fell, to v.t. delas; malaq -avas. felt n. khama; (under saddle) toqum. female n. N. sotti; very young — (of animals) sumfalikti; adj. gus; sum; kalkan.
ferment, to v.i. bapayas. festival n. dusabe; jalsa; Specific:
Vernal Equinox Nauroz.
Barley Seed-Sowing Borpjun.
Harvest Grnawi.
Threshing Pi aqmor.
Winter Fire Thumuselig, v. also s.v. tonta.

463 a

Apricot Blossom Šɪqamaṭiṇ. 000
Dadi at Hindi Šɔrev. festival food n. bano; kɛčí kɪčə·li.
fetch, to v.t. d-tsas* (h and x objects); (do)suyas (y objects); to make s.o. — d-atsas*.
fetch out, to v.t. d-usas*.
fetlock n. 1. kuv.
fever n. dalayɔr; gɔru·vɔmkuṭ; v.s.vv. tɔrma, zurzɔr.
few pron. hikum.
fickle adj. hanisa·vs.
fie! pasɔrm!
field n. mal; 2. guyɔs; 1. ɣɔr; khoṭkus; sɔrk; slightly sloping — 2. ḍiv; irrigation plot in — pfɔruṇ.
fierce adj. zawdav.
fifteen num. tɔrma ts.hondo (h, x, y), — ts.hɪndí (z).
fifteenth num. tɔrma ts.hɪndi.ulum.
fifth num. ts.hɪndi.ulum.
fifty num. a·ltowa·ltɔr tɔ·rɪmo.
fig n. pfa·k x.
fig tree n. pfa·k y.
fight n. čal; hɔ·lguṭ; birga.
fight, to v.i. hɔ·lguṭ níyas; birga, čal, hɔ·lguṭ or jaṇ ɪt.
fighter n. janja·lkṭ.
fighting n. jaṇ; juwɔr.
figure of fun n. bayaraṭo.
file n. muɔrmu; in — ts.hirulo.
fill n. (of a pipe) mi·m.
fill, to v.t. *hik -at; d-aspivanas*; — s.t. into s.t. ufinas.
fill in, to v.t. giyas.
fill up, to v.i. bilbinas; v.t. d-asuljaiyas*.
filled up adj. ṭak.
filled full, to be v.i. dibiranas.
filly n. gus biraɣo.
filtered adj. sisi·num (v.s.v. -asisi·nas*).
filthy adj. jumojanas.
fin n. galgi.

4636

600 final adj. muɨum; muɨsʃum (v.s.v. 1. muɨ).
finally adv. muɨʌʃe; v.s.v. axer.
find, to v.t. d-ʌγurkʌs*; -yaiyʌs*; d-yaiyʌs*.
find o.s. in; to v.i. -wʌlʌs*.
fine b. jərpa; mʌyo; tʌwʌn; adj. (excellent) ɨuʷa; mariŋ; dʌltʌs; (not thick) bi.enum; (of powder etc.) ts.hi·lum.
fine, to v.t. *jərpa -ʌt.; *tʌwʌn -ʌt.
fined, to be v.i. *tʌwʌn -m.
finely-ground adj. ts.hi·lum.
finger n. -ʌmɨ̄*; little — γel; (in measurments) tsup; to put — to tsʌp st; to run — over drum fuʷn st.; with crippled -s khoʃo; space between —s v.s.v. γərtsapiɨ.
finger nail n. -uʷri*.
finis n. fʌqʌt.
finish, to v.t. fʌɨ̄ st.
finish off, to v.t. eʷpʌsʌs; (exterminate) tʌčʌp st.
finished, to be v.i. fʌɨ̄ m.; 2. qʌqər m.; d-γʌnʌs*; doγʌnʌs.
fir tree n. gʌši; kʌčul.
fire n. pfu; beacon — pfu bərenč; to set — to *pfu -ʌ̄ši.ʌs.
fire, to v.i. (with bow or gun) bɨšaiyʌs; v.t. (gun) trʌn st.
fire-container n. ši.
fire-place n. ši; dəldoŋ; floor stones round — šutin; phʌrətsiʷn.
fire-shovel n. aʷtʌšbel.
fire-tongs n. aʷtʌšgiʷr.
fire-wood n. γʌšiʷl.
firm adj. γaʷqotsi byʷn.
firm, to be v.i. lʌŋ oʷmʌnʌs.
first num. hikulum; adv. ts.hor; yər; yər ne; yərʌʷyər; iʷthʌnulum (v.s.v. -thʌn*); in the — place ʌwʌʷl.
first-born adj. ts.hor dimʌnum; isʌʷmaʷnum.

464a

000 first-fruits n. to eat — ha ha st.
fish n. čhumo.
fish-insect n. čwuwo.
fissure n. (in ice) baṭ; 2. bay.
fist n. muṭ.
fit, to v.t. d-mayas.*
fit into, to v.i. -yaiyas.*
fitting adj. yaṭki; yom; munawrb; not — ṭak.
five num. tsḫwdo (h, x, y), tsḫrndi (z).
fix, to v.t. -waṭi.as* (h objects), waṭi.as (x objects), brṭaiyas (y objects); dslas; -adilas*: -aqərafas*; ctsaiyas; d-astsayas*; (appoint) muqarrər st.
fixed adj. atuṭwnas (v.s.v. duṭunnas); (appointed) muqarrər.
fizzle, to v.i. jajam st.
flag n. alam.
flagstone n. bat.
flake (of snow) n. dap.
flame n. yurmus.
flank n. -apat.*
flap, to v.i. (of wings) rawap m.
flash, to v.i. lam m.
flat adj. rat.
flavour n. maza.
flay, to v.t. -fatəras*; baṭ dal st.
flea n. khim.
flee, to v.i. gartsas; to make s.o. — -askərtsas.*
flesh n. čhap; boborq.
flex, to v.t. *nok -at.
flight n. to put to — -askərtsas*; *ḍam -at.
fling, to v.t. -waṭi.as* (h objects), waṭi.as (x objects), brṭaiyas (y objects).
fling away, to v.t. lip st.
fling o.s. down, to v.i. kha gartsas.
flint n. pfudan.
floating adj. dalbat.
flock n. gala; N. dun.
flood n. sar; mud — mors; v.s.v. dufaltas.

464 b

floor n. (earth) ṭiʷk. 000

flour n. dʌγo.ʌŋ; dirʌm; dusting — for dough baṭiŋ.

flourish, to v.i. dultʌlanʌs.

flow, to v.i. gaʷtsʌs; gutsʌhərʌs.

flow, over, to v.i. (of things spilt) laj'eʷl m.

flower n. askuʷr; pfuʷnər; Specific: gulsuʷri, lili.o, sujo pfuʷnər, mərdakay, mel pfuʷnər, kuʷrpʌn.

flower, to v.i. doxərʌs.

flutter, to v.i. ruʷʌp m.

fly n. pfiʷn.

fly, to v.i. duwʌlʌs; to make — d-awʌlʌs*.

flying squirrel n. bada; smaller — kərgal'o.

foal n. birʌγo; boḍoʷko; donkey — goʷko.

foam n. γʌf.

fodder n. (grain) baspuʷr; (dry leaves) homul; v. also ṭiqa, xipirt, xuʷrk.

foe n. dušmʌn.

fog n. xuroʷnč.

fold n. (for animals) hərayy; (of cloth etc.) paṭo.

fold up, to v.i. dus'alʌṭʌs; v.t. d-matsʌs* (x objects); dumʌtsʌs (y).

folk n. sis(ik); old — jʌf baʷrṭ; young —, old and young joṭpʌf.

follow, to v.t. -ltaiyʌs*; taiyʌs.

follow up, to v.t. *ḍak -ʌt.; -tsi gaʷrtsʌs*; -tsiʷṭs niyʌs*.

follower n. ṭʌdər; (disciple) muriʷd.

folly n. naʷdaʷni.

fond, to be v.i d-ʌ.uruṭʌs*; v.a.v. ṭoʷl.

food n. ṭʌpik; xuraʷk; ruʷzi; ta.aʷm; utsiyenʌs; cooked — d'iʷrim ṭʌpik: forbidden — jərmʌf; hərannn. V. List of Foods.

food-cadger n. buʷiki muču.ṭk.

foodless adj. čhʌko.

fool adj. ʌhmʌq; be-ʌqəl; be-uquʷf; naʷdaʷn; donkey) jʌkun; (calf) boḍoʷḍo; (owl) huʷyo.

465a

foolish adj. be.ʌqəl; navlʌm; — behaviour javkɪli. 000 foot n. -ufis*; on — gaʃʌl; pi.avda. foot-hole n. N. kʌpirus.
foot-man n. pi.avda.
foot-mark n. -ts.hu*.
foot-pole n. kʌʃʌl bavla, v.s.v. gaʃʌl.
foot-step n. -ts.hu*.
foot-wrappers n. ta.očiŋ.
for prep. gʌne; expressed by Dat. v. § 69; (of time) xav, xavʃiŋər.
for shame! pʌsorm!
for sake of prep. gʌne.
forbearing adj. bʌsum.
forbid, to v.t. mʌna -ʌt*.
forbidden adj. ʃir; mʌna; (food) hərʌvm; jərmʌʃ. force n. šʌt; zovr; in — v.s.v. hovl; with — jʌp; šʌtiŋe. force, to v.t. — s.o. to . . . v. Causatives §§ 235—240.
forced labour n. rʌjavki.
forcibly adv. zvləm ne.
ford n. huma.
fore- adj. -yərum*.
fore-arm n. -šʌk*.
forehead n. -fʌʃi*.
foreign adj. hovlom; jamirp.
foreigner n. hovlom sis.
fore-leg n. -lt'ʌltər*.
fore-lock n. -čhoqərʌŋ*.
forenoon n. jil.
forest n. muvʃk; jʌŋgʌl.
forge n. ši.
forget, to v.t. tivl -ʌlʌs*.
forgive, to v.t. šavr et.; bʌxʃiʃ et.; bʌxšɪnda et.; mu.avf et.
forgiven adj. mu.avf.
forgiveness n. 2. šavr; mu.avfi; to seek — mu.avfi (or, bʌxšɪnda) dumərʌs.
fork n. jʌqər.
fork, to make s.t. v. ca. d-ʌčʌqʌrʌs.

4656

000 forked adj. jʌqər.
form n. kʌlib; (likeness) bʌʃ; šʌkʌl.
form, to v.t. duʷnʌs.
former adj. tsʌhoʷrum; -yərum*; of — times tsʌhoʷrmo; in — times yarpʌči (p. 380); yərum zʌmaʷna.ɔlo.
formerly adv. yər.
fornication n. zɪrna; to commit —zɪrna ət.
fort n. khʌn; koʃ; šrkaʷri; (Mir's) thaʷŋ; thʷŋoʃ.
fortnight n. thʷnts.
forthwith adv. hik dʌm.
fortunate adj. šu.a bʌxt; neʷk bʌxt.
fortune n. bʌxt; nʌsiʷb.
fortune-teller n. najuʷm.
forty num. aʷlto waʷltər.
forward adj. yərpa; zaʷq; (of child) tolpoʃ.
forwards adv. yər; yər ne; yərpa.
foster- adj. uʷšʌm; — mother uʷšʌm mʌma.
foster, to v.t. -uʷšc.ʌs*. foul-mouthed adj. čhʌko.
foul-smelling adj. (person) gono.
four num. waʷlto (h, x, y), waʷlti (z); zʌbuʷr; — days waʷlkuts; — days hence čaʷlto; — months waʷlsa; on all -s -toʷtʌmiŋʌʃs*, v.s.v. -toʷto*.
four- adj. waʷl-.
four-cornered adj. waʷlto yuʷrʌnts.
four-sided adj. waʷlto iskiʷliŋ.
fourteen num. turma waʷlto (h, x, y), -waʷlti (z).
fourth ord. waʷltilum.
four thousand num. waʷlti saʷs.
fowl n. qərqaʷmots.
fox n. hʌl; loʷi.
fox-skin n. hʌls bʌʃ.
fraction n. bayo.
fragment n. čoruʷk; đuđuʷo; moš; ṭər; phuʷk; ṭoʷri.
frame n. aʷrʌn; (of door) tsʌhərʌŋ; (of smokehole) zʌmʌrʌŋ, v.s.v. zʌmʌriš.

466 a

000 free adj. hɛṭ; ɑ·zɑ·d; (at leisure) ɕhʌn; to get — du·sʌs; to be — di.ʌši.ʌs.
freed adj. xʌlɑ·s.
freedom n. ɑ·zɑ·di.
free-will n. ɪxti.ɑ·r.
freeze, to v.i. γʌmu yʌnʌs or gʌnʌs; dumʌnʌs; v.s.v. du·mʌs.
fresh adj. itsi·mo; thoḷ; tɑ·za.
friction n. ʃɑ·q ʃɑ·q.
Friday n. šokoro.
friend n. yɑ·r; so·mo; yɑ·rɑ·n; (man) šogu·lo; (woman) šogu·li; to make -s d-mayʌs*.
friendly adj. gəru·rum.
friendship n. du·sti; v.s.v. jusɑ·ni.
fright n. bi·m; bi·k. frighten, to v.t. *ar -ʌt.; -ʌgusu·yʌs*; bi·k or *bi·m -ʌt.
fringe n. (of hair) -čhorqorʌŋ*; pərčʌm.
frog n. γərkon; N. gurqots.
from prep. -tsom; -om; -tsimo*; -yʌkʌltsom*.
from above adv. yʌṭum.
from below adv. yɑ·rum.
from beside adv. -ʌpʌčim*.
from down-country adv. xʌṭu·m. front n. of cloak bi·ts; in front yər ne; yərpa; in — of -ŋgi*; -yər*; -yɑ·re*; adj. -ŋgimo*; -yərum*.
frontier n. mol; sərhʌd; closed — ḍir.
frost n. γʌmu.
frostbitten, to be v.i. jʌk m.; v.s.v. γulɑ·s.
froth n. γʌḷ.
frown, to v.i. -fʌṭi loṭ st*.
fruit n. pfʌmol. Specific: ba.lt, čurgodər, ju, birʌnč, phrʌlo, gʌlkur, g'undʌru. fruitful, to become v.i. dolt'ʌlanʌs.
fry, to v.t. xʌr st.
frying pan n. čhumɑ·re.
fuel n. γʌši·l.
fugitive n. -ɑɑ·lum*; nokɑ·rts ni·m sis.

466b

000

fulfilled, to be v.i. dutsʌhʌnʌs.
full adj. hik; ʂɔk; bil; birbir; (of moon) ʂɔr mʌnum; ʂɔr biʂivo; brim — tiphik; triphik; not quite — khʌnʂ'ɔri.
full, to v.t. yʌʂʌmurʌs (x objects); gʌʂʌmorʌs (y objects).
full, to be v.i. dib'irʌnʌs; (of food) dwʌljʌiyʌs.
fully adv. 3. tɔr; prʌŋ.
funeral-meats n. jʌgai.i.
funeral-rites n. wʌlji yɔr'; -tsi.ʌʂs.
funnel n. (of bellows) tiŋdʌn.
fur n. biʂka.
furrow n. hʌlagorn.
further adv. bʌsk; da; yʌrr; yʌʂs; adj. i·tum; the — side i·tum pʌči.
furthest adv. to the — limit of ʂhʌŋ.
fuse n. filta.
fuse-holder n. γʌʂip; maka.
future n. j'imden; in — i·lji; (i·ljum) beltʌs.

G.

gain n. nʌpha; sur.
galled adj. bʌlγʌn; ʂʌdʌŋ.
gallop, to v.i. gʌrtʌs; v.t. -ʌskɔrtʌs; čho st. gallows n. dʌr.
gamble(?), to v.i. tʌtʌq m. gambler(?) n. tʌtʌq mʌnʌr. game n. hʌwʌs; tʌmʌrʌ. V. List of Games. (animal) 1. giri.
gaol n. bʌndixʌrna; jel; qaidʌrna; zrndʌrxʌrna.
gaol-bird n. qaidi.
gap n. tsʌhʌnɔr; t'ɔriʂ; (in wall) ʂʌŋ.
gaping adj. wʌq.
garden n. b'ʌsi.
garden, vegetable- n. šeni.
garden plot n. khuʂkus.
gardener n. bʌsiku.in; bʌsi.ʌ yʌʂku.in; bʌγobʌn.
gargle, to v.i. γɔrγɔr st.

467a

000 garment, a single n. hinzir.

gash n. (made by axe) če.
gasp, to v.i. dʌm dɛlʌs; -ʌs pfʊ·ʀʌs.
gate n. hiŋ.
gateway n. himʌltɔr.
gathering n. jʌlsa.
gear n. duʊ·tsʌk.
geld, to v.t. ʌxta st.
generation n. pošt.
generosity n. ʃʌʃakuʃ.
generous n. ʃʌʃa; ʀʌxʊ·ʀʌt; γɛʊ·ʌtdʊ·r.
gentian n. kuʊ·rpʌn.
gentleman n. (European) sʊ·b.
gently adv. thʌla; qrʃ; molɛ·im.
get, to v.t. d-ʌγʊ·rkʌs*; -yʌiyʌs*; -yʌnʌs* (h obj.); yʌnʌs (x obj.); gʌnʌs (y obj.); d-tsʌs* (h, x); dʊsʊ·yʌs (y); sʊ·yʌs (y); d-yʌiyʌs.*
get along! gʊ·n(a)!
get better, to v.i. *wɔrts -m.
get down, to v.i drʌŋ m.; dʊsʊ·kʌs; to make s.o. — d-ʌskuyʌs.*
get free, to v.i. duʊ·ʀʌs.
get into, to v.i. -yʌiyʌs.*
get off, to v.i. d-u.ʌsʌs.*
get out, to v.i. duʊ·sʌs.
get up, to v.i. dʌ·l m.; di.ɛyʌs; hɔrt m.; ʀʌmzʌq m.
get well, to v.i. d-u.ʌsʌs*; wɔrts m.
giddiness n. gʌ·r.
gift n. bʌxʃiʃ; mɛʊ·mʌ·ni; (talent) hunɔr; — of honour hun'ʌm.
gilt adj. kimi.a.
girl n. dʌsi·ʊ.
girth n. 2. trʌŋ; N. khʌsk.
give, to v.t. -uyʌs* (h, x obj.); -či.ʌs* (y sg. obj.); -γʊnʌs* (y pl. obj.); — a name i·k ʊsʌs; — credence *bʌ·wɔr -m; — gift mɛʊ·mʌ·ni st.
give away, to v.t. (humiliate) d-ʌvɛʌltʌs.*
give birth, to v.i. gučhaiyʌs; (of animal) hʌlkʌ·s; v.t. (to a child) d-ʌsmʌnʌs.*

467 b

000 give out, to v.i. mʌšhuʷr et.
glacier n. γʌmu; outflow from — γʌmu.e yʌn.
glad adj. xuš; xušwʌxt.
gladly adv. doke doke; xuši.e ka.
gladness n, šure.aʷr; šuri.eš.
glance n. pfuʷt; nʌzər.
glance, to v.i. pfuʷt et.
glands n. swollen — taʷlomots.
glass n. boluʷl; (mirror) ai.ina.
glassware n. širša.
glitter, to v.i. sʌŋ, lʌlʌm et.; lʌmjʌm et.
glittering n. lʌlʌm.
glove n. dʌsmoza.
glow n. (on mountains) thʌliʷsa.
glow, to v.i. di(y)ʷrʌyʌs.
glue n. dʌγo.
glutton n. lʌṭu; jin.
gluttonous adj. lʌṭu.
gnawing n. hʌŋ (v.s.v. haŋ).
go, to v.i. niyʌs; (of snow) duwʌšeʌs; to cause s.o. — -ʌrʌs; -ʌgutsərʌs.
go ahead! gom(a)!
go astray, to v.i. this m.; -waʷlʌs (h. subj.); wʌvlʌs (x subj.); bʌluʷyʌs (y subj.).
go back, to v.i. pfər m.
go bad, to v.i. -γʌsʌs; γʌsaʷs; nʌs m.
go down, to v.i. bʌsaʷs.
go into, to v.i. giyʌs.
go lame, to v.i. qʌḍʌŋ m.
go off, to v.i. duʷsʌs; duwʌšeʌs; dʌfa m. V.s.v. pfʌṭʌŋ m.
go out, to v.i. duʷsʌs; duwʌšeʌs; (of ball at polo) hʌltsiʷk m.; phoʷks niyʌs; čiʷki m. or niyʌs; (of fire) thʌiyʌs.
go round, to v.i. tʌleʷnʌs.
go to sleep, to v.i. -ʌyenʌs; dʌŋ dosuʷyʌs; gučhʌiyʌs.
go wrong, to v.i. gošelʌs.
goal n. hʌla.

000 goat n. huyrs; he — buvć; hʌldɛn; ʂai.ivt; thugər; she — ts.hivgivr; ɛlgit.
goat- adj. huyrskum.
goat-house n. 2. giravm.
goat's hair n. (cloth) šərma. V.s.v. palors.
go-between n. hərʌŋgoʂ.
God n. Xuda; dʌmʌn; — bless you? barʌkullah! by the power of —! Xudai.ɛ qudərʌt!
goddess n. xuda f. goitre n. 1. γ*uqu*.
goitrous adj. γ*uqukɪʂ*.
gold n. γ*ɛnɪʂ*; zər; (in grains). pful-pfuliki.ʌŋ γ*ɛnɪʂ*; to wash for gold məru ɛt.
goldsmith n. zərgər.
gold-washer n. mərutɛ; superintendent of —s xuravbguvin.
gold-washing n. məru.
gold-washing-tray n. xuravpo.
golden adj. γ*ɛnɪʂɛ*; kimi.a. golden-coloured adj. kimi.a. gonorrhoea n. sozavk; hirivski bi.ai.i. good n. 2. šavr; nivki; fai.ɛda; adj. šu.a; dʌltʌs; mariŋ; (virtuous) pun; — name -ivk.
good-bye! xudavyavr!
good-day! v.s.vv. 3. juv; sʌlavm.
good-looking adj. dʌltʌs.
goodness n. šuvakuʂ.
goose n. sivndiʂ.
gorge n. 2. γ*uqu*.
gourd n. buvpuʂ; ʂuru; N. wʌn; slice of — ʂokoro.
government n. hokumʌt; (British Indian) sərkavr. government(al) adj. (Br. Ind.) sərkavri.
governor n. havkim.
governorship n. gʌvərnəri.
gracious adj. mɛvrmavn.
graft, to v.i. piwʌn dɛlʌs.

468 b

grafted adj. (of trees) pewʌndi; piwʌn dɛlom. 000 grain n. (single) pfʌl; (single, unhusked) phulphul; (fodder) bʌspuʷr: (ground for the year's flour) dišʌki; (for wedding) mʌnoṭiki; (cleaned) yai.iŋki; daily allowance of — -γərrki; yearly allowance of — γərbel.

grain-bin n. ts.hʌγər; (on roof) sʌkʌy.

grain-pit n. ṭis.

granary n. sʌkʌy.

grandfather n. -ʌpi; daʷdo; (of royal rank) baʷpo.

grandmother n. -ʌpi.

grandson n. -ʌmis.

granular adj. v. pfulpfuliki.ʌŋ.

grape(s) n. γeʷiŋ; (seedless) kišmiš; (kinds of —) ḍʌŋʌliski, mərgon; (single berry) γeʷiŋe pfulpful.

grapple, to v.t. duʷnʌs.

grasp, to v.t. duʷnʌs.

grass n. ṣiqa; jot; ruʷŋ; (left in ground after cutting) jeʷl.

grass-hopper n. trʌqo.

grass-land n. goʷz; ruʷŋ.

grateful adj. henʌs; šokorkiṣ; šokor o šokorgozaʷr etʌs; v. gəruʷrumkoṣ.

gratis adv. thi.

gratitude n. gəruʷrumkoṣ.

grave n. mʌzər; qʌbor; qʌm; tuʷz; walled enclosure round — pʌnji.

gravel n. qhüye.

gravelly adj. qhüyekiṣ.

graveyard n. tuʷšʌŋ; -ltuʷs diš; mʌzərriŋe diš.

graze, to v.i. -khər yʌrʌs; duyərʌs: v.t. -yʌrʌs.

grazing-ground n. bon; teʷr; jeʷl; ruʷŋ; uyərʌs diš.

great adj. uyuʷm.

greatly adv. buʷṭ.

greatness n. uyuʷmkoṣ.

469 a

000 greed n. nʌfə; tʌma.

greedy adj. nʌfəkrǰ; tʌma; yʌmkhitso; lafu; v.s.v. muçuǰk.
green adj. juʷt ǰrqʌm; diŋ.
greens n. ǰiqʌmiŋ ho.i.
greet, to v.t. juʷ st.; sʌlaʷm st.
greeting n. juʷ; sʌlaʷm.
grey adj. (of horse) ǰrqʌm.
grey-beard n. borum mʌnum sis; boruʷm dʌp.
grey-eyed adj. buʷšu; ǰrqiʷl.
grey-hound n. taʷzi (huʷk).
greyish adj. guʷro.
griddle n. dau.o.
grief n. jaʷk; jəri.aʷr; ərmaʷn; γʌm; in — jərkhuʷso.
grieve, to v.i. dərmušaʷyʌs; ərmaʷn st.; hiʷǰ st.
grieved, to be v.i. dərmušaʷyʌs.
grind, to v.t. dərʌs; (by hand on stone) yuʷginʌs (x obj.), guʷginʌs (y obj.); (with quern) yʌmyərʷr st.
grinding-stone n. guyoʷs.
grip n. yʌn; dʌsta.
groan, to v.i. aʷjho st.
groin n. γrtiʷti.
groom n. ʌštʌn.
ground n. tiʷk; birdi; precipitous — jəm; open, level — dərmʌn; maidaʷm: clear, smooth — təḍʌq; v. also s.vv. čiḍiʷŋ & ḍiḍiŋ; — for cleaning wool sʌt; v. "land".
grow, to v.i. diǰkiyʌs; pfaʷnʌs.
growing up adj. čust.
grown up adj. uyuʷm; čust; munḍaʷq.
grub n. (insect) γʌlγu; uʷpʌl.
grudge n. γul; gʌt.
grudge, to v.i. pʌsoʷm -m.; d-ʌγʌnʌs*.
grudge-bearing adj. gʌtkrǰ. gruel n. (kinds of) mul; ḍauḍo. V. List of Foods.

469b

000 guard n. ravṭi; ravṭakuvin; (sentry) tavr; on — rakala. guard, to v.t. rak el.
guardian spirit n. ravṭi; ravṭakuvin.
guest n. ogin.
guide n. gan hanom; kreṭkuvin.
guiltless adj. bi-guna.
guilty adj. gunagavr.
guitar n. artavr; čorda.
gullet n. asukrṭ.
gulp, to v.t. γiḍip el.
gum n. (of trees) bag; (adhesive) dagə.
gums n. -wakkičiŋ*.
gun n. tobag; urwri; birik; —s tobag mobag; matchlock — philtadavr; percussion — ḍfatagi tobag; report o — biḍiŋ; ičhar; ṭawafau.u.
gun-barrel n. ṭuli.
gun-carriage n. ərabu.
gun-fuse-holder n. maṭa; γaṭip.
gun-powder n. milizŋ; — bag γuli.
gun-priming-pan n. iltumal.
gun-stock n. kunda.
gunny bag n. burri.
gusset n. hagoriṭap.
gut(s) n. 1. -tshir*; lower end of animal's — 1. tano.
gutter n. hur.

H.

habit n. 3. -tshir*; dastur; adat.
habitation n. abadi.
haft n. yan.
hail n. hivo; N. angir.
hail! jurna!
hail, to v.i. hivo giyaias.
hair n. (individual) bur; (human) -γuyaŋ*; -phirnṭlo*; (baby's) -thoγoyaŋ*; (pubic) -mogki*; fringe of — -čhoqoraŋ*; curl of — jorumo; (animals') biṭki. hairy n. biṭkekṭ; very — jambulus.
half n. traŋ; lap; por; khiruman.

470a

000 half-baked adj. ɣuski.
half-full adj. khanḍ'ori.
half-load n. traŋ balda.
half-sour & half-sweet adj. ḍaŋaraʼso.
half-way adj., adv. babor gan; gana traq.
half-yard n. qaṭ.
hallo! hɛ!
halloo n. laʼo.
halo n. agun.
halt, to v.i. tsaṭ m.
halter n. thorgo.
halting-place n. basa.
"halwa" n. haula.
ham n. (flesh of thigh) bubo.q.
hamlet n. giraʼm.
hammer n. bulqa; (small) phaṭiʼl.
hammer, to v.t. ḍak st. (v.s.v. daq); ḍakaḍak st.; (a person) -muʼruṭas.*
hammock-cradle n. biliṇčik.
hamstring n. jauua borsa.
hand n. -riŋ*; (small) -toʼto*; open — panja; closed — muč.
hand-clapping n. xarts.
hand-cuffs n. šaŋaličiŋ.
handful n. sarmuʼk; muč(an).
handkerchief n. laqpiʼs.
handle n. yan; dasta; door — joʼri; plough — muʼči; muṭi.
handmill n. yamyorr.
handsel, to v.t. ha ha st.
handsome adj. daltas; pakiʼza.
hang, to v.i. d-tsh'iginas*; v.t. d'-tsikinas*; -waši.as* (h obj.), waši.as (x obj.), bziaiyas (y obj.); (execute) pfdʼsi -al.; *pfdʼsi -čhi.as; daʼrṭa d-uzas.*
hang about, to v.i. durginas.
hanging adj. babal.
happiness n. alkkas; šori.ar; šori.rṭ.
happy adj. aiyas; xuš; xuhsazt; minadan, alkkas; šori.ar; šori.rṭ.
happy, to become v.i. -as duxaras.*
happy-faced adj. sum saŋ (-skiʼl).*

4706

hard adj. ḍaŋ; ḍum; kuraʈi; pim; ʈaɯa; tum; zor; haŋəraʈ; half — čamərarʈo; — in a bargain lavo javo; adv. jap.

hard-hearted adj. čumaɯə.

hard-to-obtain adj. pirpi.

hard up adj. taŋ.

harden (metal), to v.t. pim ičhi.as; pim st.

hardship n. abal; pʃiṭoi; musibat; saxti.

hare n. ṣor.

harm n. aib; nuqsan; zərər; porca.

harrow n. pʃask; N. dali.

harrow, to v.t. pʃask dadal st.

harvest (cut crops) n. dərts.

harvest time n. bisərkas khen.

haste n. talaʈ; to make — humalkum m.; ts.hor st.; talaʈ st.

hawk n. baɯ. Specific varieties, V. List of Hawks.

hawking n. baɯz ʃtkər; to go —, v.a.v. baɯ.

hay n. buɣam ʃtqa.

he pron. ima. V. § 120; he himself v. § 142.

he- adj. hir.

he-goat n. buɯč; halden; thugər; ʃai.ist.

head n. -yaʃts; yas; kapal; official — yaʃku.in; back of — -čhaŋaras; — of bed -aski; to lose one's — v.a.v. ačəra.

headache n. v.a.vv. -ɯdas & kapal; lam; zaq.

headman n. traŋfa; uyum; ʃaŋgu.in; akabir; ərbab; fifth — of Baltit clans kəʃaṭas.

headmanship n. ʃaŋ.

head-servant n. yasol.

headstall n. thurga.

headstrong adj. V.a.v. ʃamay.

healing n. ru.

health (good) n. daltaskuʈ; rahat; salamat; si.at.

healthy adj. tandurust.

heap n. čop; 1. čhoṭ; (mound) ḍom; (of grain) tsʌhʌl. 000 heap up, to v.t. bʌli· -ʌl. heaped up adj. 2. čhoṭ.
hear, to v.t. d-ʌyelʌs*.
heart n. -ʌs*; v.s.v. -ʌsvlom*.
heart-burn n. čʌm; v.s.v. γʌlγu.
hearth-stone n. ʒutin.
heartily adv. -ʌsi ka*.
heat n. gəruvumkuj; to be on — rai st. (2.); hʌwʌs st.; v.s.v. di.ʌti.ʌs.
heat, to v.t. (water etc.) dəskərʌyʌs; gəruvum st.; maj st.
heathen n. boyo u.i·liki·nʌs; butpʌrʌst.
heathen temple n. bu·tsnʌma.
heaven n. aiyʌš; (paradise) bilʌršt.
heavy adj. tsʌhu·m.
heed, to v.t. šʌŋ st.
heedless adj. be-pəriea.
heedlessness n. be-pəriea.i. heel n. -γʌm*.
heel-rope n. piča·ri.
heifer n. bu.ʌṭər.
height n. tha·numkuj.
heir n. wa·rts; (successor) diṭolo hʌruṭʌs; (presumptive) v.s.v. sukuvin.
heirless adj. v.s.v. bə·l.
hell n. do·zʌx; zo·zʌx.
help n. -mʌntsa*; himaγʌt; mʌdʌd.
help, to v.t. -mʌntsa m.*; *mʌdʌd -čhiyʌs.
helper n. -mʌntsa*; buvo.
helpless adj. nə·čə·rə; nə·rlaj.
hem n. bu·rʌn.
hem, to v.t. bu·rʌn st.
hem in, to v.i. (ʒʌtərgʌt) d-ʌtsʌs*.
hemp (drug) n. bə·ŋ.
hen n. (gus) qərqə·mots.
hence adv. akhə·btsum; khə·lom; N. kholemo.
henceforth adv. v.s.v. akhə·lz.
henhouse n. qərqə·motsʌ gopi; ḍukuvi.

471 b

her adj. pron. V. §§ 120, 143.
herd n. dun; gʌla.
herdsman n. huyrltərts; gʌlabʌrn.
here adv. khʌrlʌ; akhʌrlʌ; akhʌlʌ; N. khʌle.i — then . . . yʌ.
hereafter adv. ivlji.
hereupon conj. akhurum.
hereditament n. mirʌs.
hero n. paḷuwʌn.
heron n. qərurye.
herself pron. mu.i, v. §§ 144 & 142.
hesitate, to v.i. pʌsʌrm m. hidden adj. čʌp.
hide n. gʌp; ox — hərʌ gʌp; raw — dʌγurʌ gʌp; prepared — yʌṭʌmorum gʌp.
hide, to v.i. dʌγai.ʌs; v.t. •-ʌstʌqayʌs, čʌp •-ʌt.
hide and seek n. čyurčyur.
hideous adj. γunikṛṭ; akirtsum; — creature bʌγʌrʌrčo.
hideousness n. γunikṛṭkuṭ.
high adj. thʌrnum; (putrid) pirṣhʌlel; (tainted) nʌs mʌnum. high-born adj. zʌrtʌ uyum; šuʌ zʌrt(i); zʌrtdʌr; (on both sides) kʌrʌli.
hill n. čhiṭ; small, rounded — lʌṭ.
hill-face n. irndil.
hillock n. čhʌt or joṭ čhiṭ; lʌṭ.
hilt n. yʌn; dʌsta; qʌbza. him pron. V. § 120. himself pron. ir. V. §§ 144 & 142. hind- adj. ivlji; ivljum. hinder, to v.t. d•-ʌšiʌs.
hind-leg n. ivlji •-ltʌntʌ; (above hock) bʌtsin. hinge n. qʌbza.
hip n. minʌltin; čhərbʌn.
hire n. krrʌrya.
hire, to v.t. krrʌryʌr gʌnʌs or yʌnʌs.
his pron., adj. irmo. V. § 143. hit, to v.t. •-dəlʌs; dəlʌs; d•-ʌlʌs; yaiyʌs.

080

hither adv. khrlo; N. kolerv.
hitherto adv. dovem ne.
hive n. ywigzj.
ho! lo! ua! ya!.
hoard, to v.t. ḍaq et.
hoarfrost n. N. kafi. hock n. čiji čulmoe (*-domus).
hold, to v.t. — Nazros nourve et.; — your tongue! ya!
hold of, to lay v.t. dwnas; to make s.o. — dwynas.
hold up (step), to v.t. d-askafas.
hole n. yemer; halhas; tvij; (burrow) ywigzj; (for door-bolt peg) yen; (for butter) ḍer; small — ḍuḍer; (in ground) jive; qam; yejerpes; (for nose-peg) naf.
holiday n. dusafa.
hollow n. daltanas; yejerpes; adj. pwj.
holster n. kabwl.
holy adj. swjo.
holy man n. wali; tumry.
home n. ka.
home-spun n. (woollen) pflam.
hone n. haldas.
honest adj. rufrmo; sevda; dizwatdaw.
honey n. mafki.
honey-bee n. mafkis ḍmaju.
honey-comb n. mafkis ywigzj.
honour n. zzal; (sense of —) yewal; jealous of one's — yewatdaw.
hoof n. *-pfati; kwvo; cloven — jaqir ipfati.
hoof-mark n. *-tsha.
hook n. 1. khay.
hoop n. (of withies) morda.
hoopoe n. purpo; hwkorpo.
hope n. dak; umid.
hope, to v.i. V.a.v. dak; umid et.
hopeful adj. umidaw.
hopeless adj. wumid.
hopper (of mill) n. ḍer.

472 b

000 horn n. *-ilsw; tur.

hornet n. ɣqir.
hornless adj. baṭa.
horse n. hayur; small — bejorko; mare bayum; stallion čhorda.
horse-cloth n. gajeri; embroidered — kijiwm.
horse-dung n. sepot.
horse-fly n. hayure pṭin.
horse-food n. (grain) baspur.
horseman n. hayurkuwin.
horse-race n. pai.ign.
horse-shoe n. sap; N. sarpo.
horse-shoer n. sap cpesas sis.
horse-trappings n. hayure asbab.
hospital n. safaxana.
hospitality n. xenrudak.
host n. ha· daman.
hostility n. ḍir; dušmani.
hot adj. (of temperature) gurwrum; (of taste, temper) baberum.
hot, to become v.i. dē(y)wrasas.
hour n. sarat.
house n. ha; innermost part of — ulači.
household n. ha; jamarat.
hovel n. ḍaḍeri.
how? adv. be?; bečok?; beanafe?; belki?; belafe?; amalum?; hal bečok?; adv. (degree) bevuman?
how . . .! adv. be . . .!
how large? adv. bevur?.
how long? adv. bedal ma?.
how many? how much? adv. bevum? bevuman?
How old? adv. bevur?. howdah n. tazi.
however . . . conj. belafe . . . ke.
huff n. to be in a — pṭṭṭiwk m. hulle! arul; lavo!
human adj. bani.adame; v.a.v. wlom.
human being n. banda; bani.adam; adamzad.

473 a humbugging adj. hʷniŋ daltʌiko. 000 humiliate, to v.t. d°-awʌltʌs.

hump n. °-xundo.
humped adj. ḍoʂ; °-xundukṛ̣.
hunchback n. °-xundukṛ̣.
hundred num. tha.
hunger n. čhʌm.
hungry adj. čhʌmrʌs; v.s.v. 1. tal.
hunt, to v.i. dəru st.; dəruər ni.ʌs.
hunt through, to v.t. pfṭiʷk pfuṭuʷk st.
hunter n. dəruʷts.
hunting n. dəru; (with hawks) ṛ̣xkər.
hunting-ground n. ṛ̣xkərs dil.
hurry n. tʌlaʷš.
hurry up, to v.i. homʌlkum st.; ts.hor st.; tʌlaʷš st.; himmʌt st.
hurt n. aib.
hurt, to v.t. °-xoʷlʌs; °-xoʷlinʌs; °-xulʌs.
husband n. °-uyər; jamaʷʌt; hapkuʷin; hir.
husk n. wʌf.
hustle, to v.i. ḍus delʌi.ʌs; ḍus dumʌs.
hut n. čokuṭo; čokuṭi; ḍukuʷri; goṭi; (pen) bakur.

I.

I pron. js, ja. V. §§ 117, 118.
I myself pron. je.i. V. § 142. ibex n. giʷri; N. kiʷl; male — giʷri halden; female — giʷri ts.hiʷr.
ice n. γʌmu.
icicle n. γʌmuʌ čhu.
idea n. xi.aʷl.
identical adj. hʌnjuʷko.
idiot n. °-tsi bʌγʌlte.ʌs (sis).
idle adj. tərʌḍo; sus.
idleness n. tərʌḍe.i.
idolater n. butparʌst.
idol-house n. buʷtxaʷna.
if conj. . . . ks; . . . kuli; ʌgər . . . ks; ʌxəna . . . ks.
if not conj. bs ks.

473 b

ooo ignorant adj. nʷdaʷn.
ilium n. -šoʏʊn.*
ill adj. ʏʌlisʷ; juʷnojʌnʌs; (chronically ʏʌlisaʷto.
ill-begotten adj. hərʌʷmzaʷda.
ill-favoured adj. ʌkiʷrtsʊm; ʏʊnikrʃ; wʌno. ill-mannered adj. qaʷqʌrʊm (p. 298). ill repute n. bʌdnaʷmi.
ill-tempered adj. bʌʏərk.
illegitimate adj. pfoʷpʊʃ; leʷdo; hərʌʷmzaʷda.
illness n. biʌiʌi; ʏʌlisʷ; ʏʌlisʷzkʊʃ.
imam n. imaʷm.
imbecile adj. wʌsʊcaʷsi.
imbecility n. wʌsʊcaʷsi.
imitate, to n. -ltʊr m.*
immature adj. (person) jʌčo jʊroʃi.
immediately adv. tsʌhor; hik dʌm.
immobile adj. ʏaʷqʊts.
impassable adj. jʊm.
impatient adj. sʌbʊr apiʷm; bi-sʌbʊr.
impede, to v.t. d-ʌskʌʃʌs.*
impeded, to be v.i. d-khʌʃʌs*; (with y subj.) dukhʌʃʌs; (of breath) dišaiyʌs.
impertinence n. beḍaʷr.
impetuous adj. jaʷhʌl.
implement n. duʷstsʌk.
importune, to v.t. baʷk m.
impose, to v.t. — tax bʌp oʷsʌs.
impossible adj. ayʷtʌs.
impoverished adj. tʌltʌq.
imprecation n. laʷnʌt.
impression n. nʌgša.
imprison, to v.t. qaid ʷt.
improper adj. šək.
impure adj. juʷnojʌnʌs; xʌbiʷs; naʷpaʷk; to become — dimilʌs; to render — d-ʌsmilʌs.*
in prep. -ʊlo. V. § 76; adv. uʷlo.
in addition adv. da.
in company of prep. ka.
in direction of prep. -yʌkʌl.*

in fact adv. ts.hʌne; mʌgər.
in front of prep. -ŋgi; 1. yaʷrɛ; 2. -yaʷrɛ; zaʷq; a little — yaʷrqɪš.
in here adv. akuʷlo.
in middle of adv. makučɪ.
in good order adv. wərts.
in pieces adv. ṭərumṭər.
in presence of prep. -yaʷrɛ; yaʷrɛ.
in sight adv. pfaʷš.
in single file adv. ts.hirulo.
in succession, in turn adv. ts.hirtsɛ.
in want adj. muhtaʷj.
inattentively adv. v.s.v. dʌlbʌṭ.
incantation n. dʌm; ṣɪqa.
inch n. iʷnč.
incisor n. yərum -mɛ.
inclination n. rai.
included adj. šaʷmɪl.
incompetent adj. v.s.v. duro.
inconspicuous adj. aqɛn.
inconvenience n. dʌmjaʷr.
increase, to v.i. (in girth, of a tree) dufʌrɛskinʌs.
incumbent (on) adj. yʌški.
indeed conj. ts.hʌne; bʌlki; xair.
independent adj. aʷzaʷd.
Indian corn n. mʌkai.i. indifferent adj. v.s.v. dʌlbʌṭ.
indigenes n. yʷškuʷyu.
indigenous adj. uʷlum.
indigo n. niʷl.
inevitably adv. zəruʷl.
inexhaustible adj. v.s.vv. d-ʌγʌnʌs, doγʌnʌs.
infancy n. juṭkuš.
infant n. giyaʷs; maʷsum.
inferior n. v.s.v. huyɛʷltərts; adj. kʌm; ts.hiʷlum.
infidel n. kaʷfir; hindu.
influence n. (of supernatural being) girgɪš. influenced by, to be v.i. jʌmkʌč -m.

474b inform, to v.t. *-ʌikinʌs; levl *-ʌt.; xʌbər *-čhiyʌs; xʌbər et. 000 informant n. xʌbər *-čhiyʌs.

information n. tʌxpa; xʌbər.
informed adj. xʌbər.
informer n. xʌbəriŋ suryʌs; muxbir.
inhabitant n. hərurṭʌs; original —s yeškuryu.
inhabited adj. abad.
inheritance n. mirʌs.
inimical adj. gaṭkrš.
initiative n. on one's own — muravli(?).
injunction n. kaṭ; kʌnavo; šʌlda.
injured adj. v.s.v. aib.
injury n. nuqsan; zərər.
injustice n. bi-insafi; zulum.
ink n. si.ai.
inkpot n. dʌwat.
inkstand n. qʌlʌmdan.
innards n. *-ul.
innocent adj. bi-gunʌ; gunʌ apim.
innocently adj. gunʌ apimʌṭs.
inoculate, to v.t. huda *-ʌt.
inopportune adj. ʌkhen.
insane adj. wʌswasi; *-tsi bʌγʌltsʌs; diwana.
insanity n. wʌswasi.
insect n. γʌlγu; (wool-eating) čumuzo; (like centipede) hirimʌn. V. List of Insects. insensible adj. bi-huš.
inside n. (human) *-ul; *-γumər; (of cloth etc.) istər; (on the — uli tʌli; from — ulum. adj. ulum; -ulum; adv. ul; ulo.
inside here adv. akulo.
inside out adv. ʌpʌrts; ʌpʌroṭo(?) insignificant adj. lʌs; lʌlʌs; aqen.
insipid adj. mʌza apim; bi-mʌza.
insist, to v.i. zor et.
insolence n. beḍar.
inspect, to v.t. sail et.

475a

inspection n. sail.
instead of prep. dišulo.
instruct, to v.t. -ʌ.ikinʌs; ta·lim -čhiyʌs.
instruction n. ta·lim.
instructions n. bər; kʌnaʷo; šʌlda.
instrument n. du·stsʌk.
insubordinate adj. yʌγi.
intellect n. ʌqəl.
insubordination n. mʌsti.
intelligence n. hu·š; fa·m; ʌqəl.
intelligent adj. fahmda·r; ʌqəlkrš; hənʌs; gune·rço; hu·škrš; jun.
intend, to v.i. rra.da et.; ni.ʌt et.
intention n. rai; qʌsd; ni.ʌt; rra·da.
intentional(ly) adj., adv. ne·sʌl; qʌsd netʌn; ʌsəli(?).
interconrse (sexual) n. to have — with a woman mo·tʌs v.s.v. -ʌtʌs. 6. interfere, to v.i. hərʌŋ giyʌs; v.s.v. dʌxʌl.
interloper n. thər mʌnum.
intermediary n. hərʌŋuš.
interment n. -ltus.
internal adj. u·lum.
interpretation n. ma·ni.
interrupt, to v.i. hərʌŋ giyʌs.
interstice, interval n. ts.hʌnzər.
intervene, to v.i. hərʌŋ giyʌs.
intervening adj. hərʌŋulum.
intestine n. -ts.hi·r; large — jʌmbolos.
intimate adj. gəru·rum.
intimidate, to v.t. a·h -ʌt.
intoxicated adj. mʌst.
intoxicated, to become v.i. -ʌrčai.ʌs.
intrigue, to v.i. gʌjʌt et.
invert, to v.t. eγultʌrʌs; yʌtkum et.
inverted adj. ʌpʌrts; ʌpʌroto.
invest, to v.t. (a fortress) qʌbʌl wʌši.ʌs.
V. also "to surround".
investigate, to v.t. d-ʌsqʌtʌs. 8. invisible adj. γai.rb.
invisibility n. o·itsʌs, v.s.v. -(y)ʌtsʌs.

4756 invocation n. du.a·.

invoke, to v.t. du.a· et.
involved, to be v.i. dəxo·quyʌs.
inwards adv. u·l ns, v.s.v. u·l.
iris n. sosʌn.
iron n. čhumav; cast — či.ʌn; hard — quvč; adj. čhumavs; čhumərpa.
ironware n. čhumərpa.
irreligious adj. hindu.
irrigate, to v.t. ts.hil yʌlʌs.
irrigation channel n. dʌla; go·tsil; ḍi is v.i. (hm) bai; (hf) bo; (x) bi; (y) bila v. §§ 269, 270. is not v.i. (hm) apai; (hf) apo; (xy) api.
is it not? v.i. bevsa?
issue, to v.i. duvʌs.
it pron. (x) i·se; (y) i·ts, v. § 120.
itch n. khikhrj.
itch, to v.i. d-ʌγʌyʌs.*
its (own) pron. (x, y) i·mo, v. § 143.
itself pron. (x, y) i·i; i·i·, v. § 142; of — (i·mo) ra·ʌti.

J.

jail n. bʌndixa·na; je·lxa·na; qaidxa·na; to put in — qaid et.
jail-bird n. qaidi.
jaw, jaw-bone n. -mɛlč.*
jerk away, to v.t. jʌj et.
jewel n. juwaihir.
jewelry n. hərkun; bride's — hunʌm; -thɛ·ŋi.*
jib, to v.i. (of a horse or person) tsʌtsʌq m.
jinn n. pfu·t; jɪn; female — ḍʌŋʌlʌṭhʌs.
job n. duro.
join in, to v.i. hərʌŋ giyʌs.
join on, to v.t. -ʌqərʌṭʌs.*
joined, to be v.i. xərʌṭʌs.
joined together adj. livj.
joint n. khi·rts; neck — kʌnjha.
jointly owned adv. hərʌŋ.

000 joke n. mʌsxəra.
joke with, to v.i. hʌwʌs st.
journey n. sʌpər.
journey, to v.i. sʌpər st.
joy n, xuši.
judge n. qa·zi.
judgement n. ʌstʌm.
juice (of fruit) n. ši·ra.
jump, to v.i. prik delʌs; hʌl delʌs; (long) hʌl ga·rtsʌs; to cause to — prik or hʌl *-ʌdilʌs.
jump down, to v.i. 2. čup delʌs; čup ga·rtsʌs.
jumper n. (tool) jʌbʌl.
jungle n. tə·r; mu·ṣk; jʌŋgʌl; open — bon.
juniper n. gʌl; dwarf — mʌṭhʌli gʌl; long, straight stem of — 3. dir.
jug n. mʌkərba.
just ad,. a·dil; adv. čo·k.
just as . . . conj. belʌṭe . . . ke.
just once adv. hik ke.
justice n. a·dil; ʌstʌm; xnsa·f.

K.

Kashmiri adj. güyʌkum keep, to v.t. (store) ḍʌŋ st.; (hold) o·sʌs; (detain) *-ʌ.ʌrvṭʌs; — an eye on *-ʌsʌlʌs: *-lčin st.; — s.o. waiting *-ʌskərʌnʌs.
keep quiet, to v.i. bʌsa·s. kernel n. bʌl; hʌni; walnut — xwʌzur; (after oil is expressed) mina; bitter apricot —s γa·qʌyišo hʌni.
kerosene n. ti·ke del.
kettle n. krtli.
kettledrum n. ḍa·mʌl.
key n. čhe.i.
khaki-coloured adj. ti·ke surʌt.
kick, to v.i. dʌpizki delʌs.
kid n. du; (male) bu·ṭər; (female) hʌl-ka·s du; somfʌlikrj.

476 b

kidney n. *-ʌso; N. juʷk.
kill, to v.t. -ʌsqanʌs; d-ʌlʌs; *-delʌs; jiʷtsum *-ʌrʌs.
kind n. čuq; qrum; of this — ʌkhíʷl; of one's own — baʷ; of what —? bečuq?; bəki?; beljuk?; belʌfum? adj. šuʷlbʌlikrj; mʷrmaʷn: rʌhʌmkrj; rʌhʌmdrl.
kindle, to v.t. *-ʌspʌlʌs.
kindly adj. rʌhʌmdrl; adv. mʷrmaʷni netʌn.
kindness n. šuʷakuj; rʌhʌm.
king n. thʌm; paʷdša.
kingship n. thʌmkuj.
kinship (by marriage) n. gul.
kinsman n. jaʷm; (near) sukuʷin.
kiss n. ba; baʷn.
kiss, to v.t. baʷn st.
kit n. duʷstsʌkičiŋ; ʌsbaʷb; saʷmaʷn.
kitchen n. thaʷŋ.
kite n. (bird) N. qʌlq.
knead, to v.t. dʷqulʌnʌs; (leather etc.); yʌfʌmʷrʌs (x obj.), gʌfʌmʷrʌs (y obj.).
knee n. -domus; hind — (= hock) iʷlji -domus.
knee-cap n. -domusʷ pfuʷl.
kneel, to v.i. -domučowʌfʌ horuʷfʌs.
knife n. čhʌʷ; borɪnda.
knit, to v.t. grišaiyʌs.
knitting-needle n. γai.rs.
knock, to v.i. čʌŋ čʌŋ st.; čuʷʌk čuʷʌk st.; čuʷʌŋ čuʷʌŋ st.; thʌk st.
knock down, to v.t. dʷqrʌs.
knock in, to v.t. thʌk st.
knot n. gʌf.
knot, to v.i. gʌf wʌhʌs.
knotty adj. (of wood) gʌfkrj.
know, to v.t. hʷrnʌs; lʷl (person) -yʷrnʌs.
known adj. lʷl; maʷluʷm; not — v.s.v. beyʌm.
knuckle n. gʌf.

L.

labour n. muḷaqʌt; hired — masduwi; communal —, forced — rajaki; (travail) -ʒuʷl.

labourer n. durowkuʷin; (forced) rajaki.e sis.

labour-pains n. -ʒuʷl.

lace n. bʌn; jikʌn.

lad n. hiles.

ladder n. čhiḷ.

ladle n. giyʌlt; khʌpon; thʌnʌs.

ladle out, to v.t. dʷmiyʌs.

lady! nʌna!

lady-bird n. khʌnimojuʷko.

lair n. yuʷlgɪḷ; yʌks diḷ; yʌk etʌs diḷ.

lake n. pfəri.

lamb n. mamuʷši; belise ivsk; (female) sumfʌlikɪḷ mumuʷši.

lame n. ɣʌyu; ɣʌyu čhʌŋgu; ɢʌḍʌŋ; təɾʌm.

lame, to go v.i. təɾʌm m.; thʌḍʌm m.

lament, to v.i. herʌs.

lamentation n. herimiŋ; wawela et.

lammergeier n. gʌtsʌhir.

lamp n. gəri; čɪrʌq.

lamp-light n. gəri.e rʌš.

lance n. niza.

lancet n. nʌstər.

land n. inhabited, cultivated — buḷai.i; ičit; uninhabited — dʌs; irrigated grazing — ʃoq; — liable to crop-disease ɣʌnkɪḷ buḷai.i; — held as foster-fief wčʌki; section of cultivated — sərpa.

landlord n. buḷai.e dʌmʌn.

lane n. ʃuʷŋ.

language n. barḷ.

lantern n. lʌlten.

lap n. -lʌmʌt; in the — of -lʌmʌči.

lap, to v.i. ʃuʷk et.

lapis lazuli n. diŋ.

large adj. uyum.

larynx n. ḍoʷḍo.

4776

000 lass n. dʌsi·n.
last adj. i·ljʊm; mʊšʊm; mʊšɛṭʊm; ni·m; at — a·xɛr.
Last Day n. axʌrʌt.
last-born adj. i·ljʊm or mʊšɛṭʊm d°-mʌnʊm.
last night n. sʌbur.
last night's adj. sʌbu·rmo.
last year n. thʌmi·ni; thʌmi·nimo dɛn.
last year's adj. thʌmi·nimo.
late adj. n°-kərʌn; la·q; to make s.o. — °-ʌskhərʌnʌs.
late, to be v.i. °-khərʌnʌs.
lately adv. čo·k.
later adj. yʌṭs; in — times v.s.v. bɛltsɛ; some time — i·lji ja·ṭ; adv. i·ljʊm; (i·lji) la·q.
latest adj. itsi·mo.
latrine n. jukʌŋ.
laugh, to v.i. γʌsa·s; d°-ʌγʌsʌs; to make s.o. — °-ʌγʌsʌs.
laughter n. γʌsi·ṭ.
law n. qa·nu·n; customary — mira·s; Islamic — šəri.ʌt.
lawful adj. hʌla·l.
lawn n. bʌsi.ɛ jut.
lay, to v.t. o·sʌs; (eggs) wʌši.ʌs.
lay hold of, to v.t. du·nʌs.
lay-out, to v.t. d°-ʌrʌs; jɛ·k °-ʌt.
lay up, to v.t. ḍʌŋ ɛt.
lazy adj. ʌrʌšo; tərʌḍo; imʌkrṭ; bʌγʊndokrṭ.
lead n. (metal) ši·sk.
lead, to v.t. to make s.o. — the way sa·ʌt °-ʌt.
lead away, to v.t. ts.hu·yʌs.
leader n. °-yʌṭrɛ; sərda·r.
leading man n. ʌka·bir; uyu·m.
leaf n. khüy; tʌp; (of book) tʌp: wərʌq.
leaflet n. tʌp.
leak, to v.i. γʌna·s.
lean adj. d°-kʊṭʊm.

478a

∞∞ lean, to become v.i. d-kuṭʌs.*
lean against, lean on, to v.i. ts.hindaʷs.
lean over, to v.i. ḍoŋɣuraʷs.
leap, to v.i. prik dɛlʌs; hʌl dɛlʌs; mʌqmɛʷs dɛlʌs; to cause to — *prik -ʌdilʌs etc.
leap-frog n. bʌbʌl.
learn, to v.i. hʌkinʌs.
learned man n. alim; hʌkim.
leather n. bʌṭ.
leather-strap n. bərpiʷt.
leave n. ɣuxsʌt.
leave, to v.t -sərkʌs*; *fʌt -ʌt.
left (hand) adj. ɣayum; ɣʌg.
left out, to be v.i. d-u.ɛsʌs.*
leg n. -ltʌnts*; (lower) piʷni; quadruped's lower — -uṭis*; do. upper — -šʌk*; (foreleg) -ltʌltər*; calf of — bubuʷg.
leg-wrappers n. ta.očiŋ, (sg. ta.ʊts).
legume n. giltiʷr.
leisure n. dər; fʊrsʌt; at — ḉhʌn; without — ʌkuš.
lemon n. limbu (v.s.v. 1. wʌṭ).
lemon-peel n. limbu.ɛ wʌṭ.
length n. N. gusʌnʊmkuš.
leopard n. tā.
leprosy n. runi.
less adj. kʌm; to grow — dikhiʷrʌs.
-less privative suffix, v.s.vv. a-, ʌ-. lesser adj. ts.hiʷlʊm.
lesson n. sʌbʌq.
let, to v.t. stʌs; and causative verbs v. §§ 226; 234—241.
let be! baṣ!; biliṣ!.
let down, to v.t. d-ʌskuyʌs.*
let go, to v.t. *fʌt -ʌt.
let in, to v.t. -sərkʌs.*
let off, to v.t. kuʷri.ʌp ɛt.
letter n. xʌt; kaɣʌz.
1> lion n. siŋge.
lion-hearted adj. *siŋge -ʌs.
lip n. -iʷl.*

478b

1[see p. 527, category 116, for words omitted between "letter" and "lion" - Analyst] liquefy, to v.i. duʸyʌs; duʸyaiyʌs.

listen, to v.i. -ltumʌl et.
litter n. (for travelling) tʌxt.
little (a) lʊkʌn; lʌpʌn; kʌmʌn; pyuʷʌn; tsʌmiʸkʌn; sʌsʌn; ṭhuʷr; (of liquid) γiḍiŋ; čhuṭʌn; (of time) duʷŋ.
live, to v.i. (reside) hʊruʸṭʌs; hʊručaiyʌs.
live-stock n. -iltʌṇ.
livelihood n. guzaʸra; zɪndagaʸni.
liver n. -ʌkin.
living adj. jiʸndo; jiʸno; zɪnda.
lizard n. γərkʌs.
load n. bʌlda; to take a — from s.o. d-mərʌs.*
load up, to v.i. (bʌlda) -ʌyɛnʌs or -ʌdilʌs.
local adj. uʸlʊm.
lock n. čhe.i; dərukʊs; kəḍʌkʊs; qʊlp.
lock, to v.t. qʊlp wʌši.ʌs.
locust n. trʌqo.
lodgings n. qoʸš.
lofty adj. thaʸnʊm.
log n. huʸn; ṭoq; (for building) ṭoʸro.
loins n. -ʌṣčiŋ.
long adj. γʊsʌnʊm; (time) ṭiga.
long, to v.i. ərmaʸn st.; ərmaʸnʊlo m.
long ago, of adj. qʌdiʸm(ɛ).
long for, to v.i. -ʌski duwʌlʌs.
longing n. -ʌski; ərmaʸn.
look n. nʌxər.
look, to v.i. bərɛʸnʌs; khiʸl m.; to cause s.o. — -ʌbərʌnʌs.
look at, to v.t. -ʌsʌlʌs; pfuʸṭ st.; — and desire jojʊṭ -m.
look after, to v.t. pərwərɪš -ʌt.
look for, to v.t. odoʸri st.; bərɛʸnʌs.
look here! ga!
look-out n. bʌrenč.
look out! (to oxen) hərga hərga!
look out, to v.i. -lčin st.
loom n. hiʸsk.

479a

loop n. ṣo·k; running — dušunʌs ṣo·k; fixed — ʌtušunʌs ṣo·k; — of thong on boot pu·ṣbʌn. ooo loop-hole n. bʌṣčər.

loose adj. bʌlgʌl; šoqʊm; hʌṭ; (untied) dušu·nʊm.

loose, to become v.i. šoqʊm m.; dušu·nʌs.

loosen, to v.t. d-šʊnʌs*.

loot n. hu·ṣi.

loot, to v.t. -yʌlʌs*; hu·ṣi ʌt.

lord n. dʌmʌn.

lose, to v.i. (at game) giyaiyʌs; -wʌlʌs*; v.t. -ʌspʌlʌs*; — one's head v.s.v. ʌčəra.

loss n. lʌt; o·t; at a — ḍomaḍom; hera·n.

lost, to get v.i. -wa·lʌs* (h subjects), wa·lʌs (x subjects), bʌlu·yʌs (y subjects).

lot n. hikʊm.

lots n. hi·ṣ; zʌqʌn.

loudly adv. šʌtiŋɛ.

louse n. khəru.

lousy adj. khəru·kɪṣ.

love n. šu·l; (of lovers) išq; in — a·šɪq; to fall in — *pfu·ṭ -m.

lover n. ya·r; mašu·q; dina·r; a·šɪq.

low adj. čhʌṭ; (of birth) jʊṭ.

low, to v.i. qoŋ ʌt.

low-born adj. jʊṭ; kʌŋgʌl; za·tɛ jʊṭ; tʌno; ʌmu·lo; a·mi; (morganatic) ʌrγʊn.

lower adj. ya·rʊm; xʌṭi.

lower, to v.t. d-ʌskuyʌs*.

lower end n. gʌmu·n; xʌṭi mʊš.

lucerne n. šipi·t.

luck n. bʌxt; nʌsi·b.

lucky adj. šu.a bʌxt; ne·k bʌxt.

lukewarm adj. bʊlbu·lo; bʊbu·lo.

lumbago n. -ṣčiŋʊlo mʌq*.

lump n. gu·li; — of hard earth γʊs; — of butter pošo·ri, mʌltʌṣ.

lunatic n., adj. wʌsiwa·si.

479 b

lungs n. *-xʊrpʌt.
lurch together, to v.i. juʷk m.
lusty adj. saʷro.
lying about adj. gəraʷri.
lying down adj. jeʷk.
lynx n. šʊnʊṭ; bʌγbe.aʷro.

M.

machine n. čərx.
mad adj. *-tsi bʌγʌltɛ.ʌs; diwaʷna.
mad, to become v.i. *-tsi bʌγʌltɛ.ʌs; 2. ṣa.o *-ʌt.
made, to be v.i. d-mʌnʌs. madman n. *-tsi bʌγʌltɛ.ʌs sis. maggot n. γʌlγu.
magic n. butəriŋ; jʌdu; 2. serʷ; ṣɪqa. V. also 2. sir; adj. γaibi.
magician n. ṣɪqaʷčin; jaʷdugər; v.s.v. 2. sir.
magnanimity n. himmʌt.
magpie n. γʌṣep.
maintain, to v.t. *-ʌ.ʊrʊṭʌs.
maintained, to be v.i. d-uše.ʌs.
maize n. mʌkai.i.
make, to v.t. stʌs: *-ʌtʌs; d-ʌsmʌnʌs; — s.o. do s.t. v.s.v. *-ʌtʌs and causative verbs §§ 226; 234—241.
make haste, to v.i. ts.hor et.
make known, to v.i. levl *-ʌt.
make merry, to v.i. xʊši et.
maker n. — of fine speeches hɛniŋ dʌltʌško.
male adj. hir; N. biru; (of animals) sʊmʌn; hir-.
malice n. γʊl; gʌṭ; zɪd.
malicious adj. čʊʷtikṛṣ; gʌṭkṛṣ.
mallard n. (male) diŋ maγʊn; (female) girgir.
man n. (vir) hir; hir sis; (homo) sis(ʌn).
man's adj. hiriʷski.
manacles n. šʌŋʌličiŋ.
mane n. *-ʌšpʊrʌŋ.

480a

000 manger n. mʌdʷr.
manliness n. hirkvṭ.
manner n. çvq; zail; in this — tai; tailʌṭe; dʌkhi·lʌṭe; ʌkhi·l zailʌṭe; in what —? belʌṭe?; belʌṭom?.
manure n. dilk.
many adj., pron. buṭ; as — as this akhuʷrum; akhuʷriki.
many-coloured adj. rʌŋe.irʌŋ.
map n. nʌxša.
marble n. zʌŋq i mərmər.
march n. day's — bʌsa.
mare n. bʌyom.
mark n. čʌpʌy; ṭi·ko; haiyʌn; nʌšaʷn; (for arrow-shooting) 2. gi·ri.
market n. ba·zaʷr.
markhor n. buʷm; female — buʷm ts.hi·r; N. buʷm ts.hi·gir.
marmot n. ai.inʌq.
marriage n. gər; (wedding) nika; relationship by — gul; v. Text No. 33 and s.vv. duʷk; gərʷni; girʌn; sindʌbʌl; yʌxtai.i.
marriage garment n. v.s.vv. yʌxtai.i.
marriage grain n. mʌnoṭiki.
marriage service n. v.s.v. xutba.
marriage song n. hajo·li.
marriage tassel n. gəre mujo·q.
marriageable adj. gərkus.
marrow n. bʌl.
marry, to v.i. gər et; v.t. -ts.huʷyʌs.
mash n. (of rice, potatoes etc.) 2. bʌt.
massage, to v.t. *ḍʌm *-ʌt. maṭ -ʌt.
master n. dʌmʌn.
mat n. (of goat's hair) šərma.
match n. gʌjeli; gʌṭʌṭo; slow — filta; (pair) yoʷm.
match-box n. gʌjeti ḍʌbi.
matchlock n. filtai.i tobʌq; piltʌdaʷr; uruʷsi.
mate n. naʷl.
mate, to v.i. v.s.v. gaʷt

480 b

maternal relatives adj. *-ʌpkvts; *-mimo. matter n. bər; čʌγa; (fault) aib; small -s pfvfu·k; no — v.s.vv. γʌm, pəriwa.
mattress n. šapovs; tošʌk.
mature adj. miaper.
mature, to v.i. d-γvnʌs* (h, x subjects); duγvnʌs (y subjects); diri.ʌs (h. x); dira·s (y).
Maulai (sect) n., adj. mvγəli.
May n. mai.i.
meadow n. gov.
meal n. ʃʌpik.
meaning n. ma·ni.
means n. (of livelihood) auqa·t; (of remedy etc.) ilaj; by all — bəra·bər.
measles n. lo·yumuts.
measure n. to·li; (oil) pi·n; (liquid) bʌli; (grain) čvq; γərbel; hiçuti; hvldo; hipəre; jʌti; (finger's breadth) tsup; (fingers' span) wa·ltsup; (elbow to finger tips) qʌʃ.
measure, to v.t. o·iyʌs; to·li si.
measuring n. dʌyu.
meat n. čhʌp.
medicine n. mi·li; tiŋbʌt; v.s.vv. baŋ; pirpi; gulgul; mʌn; nʌγe.i; ni·l.
meet, to v.t. *-yʌnči(.ər) m.; thumük m.; *mvla·qa·t -ʌt.; to go — *-yʌnči.ər niyʌs; to come — *-yʌnči.ər juyʌs.
meeting n. *-yʌnči; mvla·qa·t; (assembly) mʌjlis.
meeting-point n i·lgʌt.
melon n. musk — γo·n; N. ga·u·n; water — bu·wər.
melt, to v.i. duγʌs; du·γaiyʌs; tshil m.; duwʌši.ʌs; v.t. ev(ə)uyʌs; de·stuyʌs; having — ne·stsu·ni·n. melted adj. e·stum.
memento n. haiyʌn; ya·dga·ri.
membrane n. (above vagina) duq.
memory n. ya·d.

481a

mend, to v.t. durust st.; ʌʃtʊ̈ st.; wərts st.; (by sewing) ʧuʷk st. 000 mended adj. wərts; wərts stum.
mendicant n. tʌltʌq.
menfolk n. hir sis.
menses n. čhuwərkhʌl.
menstruate, to v.i. gʌtuʷtso *-m.
menstruation n. gušiʷski gʌliʷs.
menstruous adj. gʌtuʷtso mumʌnum.
merchant n. sodʌgər.
merciful adj. rahʌmkrj; rahʌmdri.
merciless adj. rahʌm apiʷm.
mercy n. šʌvr; rahʌm; to have — šʌvr st.
merely adv. thi.
meretricious adj. liʷo lʌʷo.
merit n. ʌʌwʌʷb; ʌʃʌt.
merry adj. to make — xuši st.; šərʌʌr or šuriʌrj st.
messenger n. durʌts.
mew, to v.i. mʌʷn st.
mica n. γuni.
mid- adj. trʌŋ.
midday n. dʊγui; after — 1. γuʷu; v.a.v. praʷq; adj. dʊγuʷimo.
middle n. makuči; in the — of hərʌŋ; adj. hərʌŋulum; makuči; makučim.
midnight n. gonʌ babər; thʌpʌ trʌŋ.
midwinter n. thumušeliŋ mighty adj. zorʌwər.
mild adj. (of person) bʌsum.
milk n. mʌnu; coagulated — paiʌ; uncooked — γiʧiŋ; milk products: maltʌj; diltər; qurʌt; rʌxpin; mʌntsil; burʌs; v. List of Foods.
milk, to v.t. ʧhau *-ʌt.
milk-strainer n. po.
milk-vessel n. čhurkʌs.
Milky Way n. čərk i fʌlʌk.
mill n. yuʌiŋ; tapper of — fhʌʃʌkus; v.a.v. 2. pfʌla.
mill-dues n. pfi.
mill-hopper n. ʧor.

4816

000 mill-race n. hur. mill stone n. ʌsl; upper — yʌfokur; lower — yarokur; axis of — sel.
mill-wheel n. nəro.
miller n. yai.iŋgurin.
millet n. bʌy; ĉha.
mince n. nərim; ispʌkpa; (meat with vegetables) N. pušūr ĉʌk.
minced adj. nərin stum.
mind n. °-ʌs.
mine n. (belonging) sərun.
mingle, to v.i. jərmʌṣ̌ m.; v.t. jərmʌṣ̌ sl.
minister n. wʌzir.
minor adj. tshirlum.
mint n. fīlʌl.
minute adj. ts hirlum.
Mir n. thʌm; mir.
mirror n. ai.ina.
mis- adv. v.s.v. γʌlʌt.
mischief n. æṣumai.i; fʌsard; ŝaitani.
mischief-maker n. lao jav.
mischievous adj. ʌṣ̌ermo; — woman ʌṣ̌ermi; — person ŝaitan; (of child) tsipoṭ.
misconduct o.s., to v.i. fhis sl.
misdeed n. fhis.
miserable adj. biĉara; γərirpis.
miserly adj. qorum.
misfortune n. ʌbʌl; bʌla; musirbʌl.
miss, to v.t. (mark) fhis sl.
missing, to be v.i. fhis m.
mist n. xurorṇṣ̌; N. korrom; (from ground) N. gubar.
mistake n. fhis; hərkʌn; γʌlʌt; to make a — hərkʌn nirʌs.
mistaken adj. fhis.
mistrust n. 2. ŝʌk.
mix, to v.i. jərmʌṣ̌ m.; v.t. jərmʌṣ̌ sl.
mixed adj. jərmʌṣ̌.
moist adj. hʌγum; ṣuk.
moist, to be v.i. durʌnʌs.
moisture n. hurṣ̌.

482a

080 molar (tooth) n. *-wʌǰ *-mɪ.
Monday n. tsʌnduʷra.
money n. v.s.vv. rupi.a; paisa; ɖʌbʌl; du.aʷni; bʌʷi; xɔr; yʌmbu; small change paŋkʌʃ.
mongoose(?) n. noʷl.
monkey n. ǰaʷdi.
monster n. ʌǰdɔr; hɔrgɪn; siŋge; female — ɖʌŋʌlʌʃhʌs.
month n. sa; hisa; aʷlto thɛnts; specific: hʌmʌl; sɔrʌtaʷn; sʌmbola; dʌlo; hurt.
moon n. hʌlʌnts; waxing — ts.hai.i; no — ɣuʷa.
moonlight n. hʌlʌntsɪ ǰaŋkuǰ or rʌǰ; ts.hai.i.
more adj. bʌsk; da; ɪi.aʷd.
moreover adv. da.
morning n. ts.hordinɪ; jil; — twilight ʃuʃaʷŋkɪ; first — light sayaʷri; (dawn) goʷn; adj. ts.hoʷrdimo; early — ʃuʃaʷŋmo.
morning-star n. (goʷnɪ) lʌčhaʷr.
morsel n. lʌp; tasting — pfʊrka.
mortar n. tanos.
mosque n. mʌjit.
mosquito n. khiʷǰo; N. piʷču.
moth n. hoʷlʌlʌs.
mother n. *-mi; maʷma; (royal) ɪɪzi; —'s relatives *-ʌpkots.
mother's adj. *-mimo.
mother-in-law n. *-ʌskus.
motherless adj. *-mi ʌpʌm thɔrɪs.
motion n. to make s.o. have a — *-ʌɣʊraiyʌs.
mould n. aʷrʌn.
moult, to v.i. dʊmoʷqʌs.
moulted adj. dʊmoʷqʊm.
mound n. 2. ɖoʷm; ɖoʷŋ; mʌn.
mount, to v.t. holjaiyʌs; pʃʌl m.; — s.o. on a horse *-ʌ.uʷljaiyʌs.
mountain n. čhiǰ; rocky — čhɔr; — grazing-ground ter; bɔn.

482 b mountain ash n. dindiş.

mountain-pass n. kayuk.
mountain-sheep n. yuṣal.
mourn, to v.i. mardam ol.; herimiş ol.
mourning n. herimiş, herimiş; berird; dhuurkhal; mardam.
mouse n. donnumuryu.
moustache n. salat; K. pu.i.
mouth n. -xal.
mouthful n. lap.
mouthpiece n. (of musical pipe) matala; ḍambu (reed of pipe).
move, to v.i. lag m.; nar -m.; not — hasaru; v.t. lag ol.
much pron., adv. berj; zagan; this — akhar-ram; akurikt; aturuman; dakhavum; so — berum(an), berum(an); berum(an); how —? berumanf; too — hank.
mucus n. (from nose) S. -mul. mud n. ḍag; wrought — layap.
mud-fend n. mara.
muddy adj. bufulorya.
mulberry n. biranf x.
mulberry tree n. biranf y.
mule n. nahiv.
mullah n. asaw; nalifa.
mumps n. farlamula.
murder, to zaw ol.; -zagaras.
murderer n. zurudav; zawi.
muscle n. (general term) chap; girkia.
mushroom(s) n. birijan; barber; yfurla maltal.
music n. (tune) harip; aberj; slow dancing — dawi; to play — eyyaras; ḍam ḍam ol.; to make s.o. play — -eyyaras.
musical instrument n. v.a.v. eyyaras; specific: guitar arlaw; rhanda; pipe gali; (surnai); whistle fulok; big drum ḍafag; kettledrum ḍawal; tambourine daf.
musician n. ostard; bewila; v.a.v. eyyaras.

483a

musk n. 2. čiki; nas.
musk deer n. rur.
musk melon n. yun; N. gawn.
musk-scented adj. čikis.
muslin n. malmal.
must v.a.vv. hoos; navar. V. § 401.
mustard n. ghrghor (plant and oil).
mutton n. hunokum čhap.
muzzle n. °-marpuj.
my adj. ja; mi. V. §§ 118 & 143.
my own adj. jrinus. V. § 143. myself pron. (emphatic) ja jri. V. § 142; (reflexive) °-akhar; ajim. V. § 144.

N.

nail n. gili; (finger or toe-) °-uri.
naked adj. laler (p. 246); laq; thartinu; stark — lam laler; tan laq.
name n. °-ik.
name, to v.t. °-ik ovas; avnas.
named adj. avnas.
nap n. (of cloth) tlem.
nape n. (of neck) °-al.
narrate, to v.t. čayu si.
narrative n. čayu; bayum.
narrow adj. bi cnum; čhanum; thorenum.
natural adj. (wild) tere; jangale; rungu.
nature n. majur; to relieve — zatinjarb si; for purposes of — v.a.v. °-aj °-rig.
navel n. °-uri.
near adv. anir; adj. anirum; — to doing s.t. taiyar; the — side khiti.
necessary adj. ausje; dorkar; zaruwal. necessary to, to be v.i. manar. V. § 401.
necessity n. harjat; zaruwal; of — navar.
neck n. °-al; bark; back of — kanjlo.
necklace n. zamag; mayun.
need n. harjat; v.a.v. zaruwal.
need, to v.t. d°-alanas.
needle n. sal; eye of — il.
ne'er-do-weel n. čorkapuru.

483 b

000 neigh. to v.i. hihiŋ et.; N. qiʿqiʿŋ et.
neighbour n. hʌmʌl.
neighbouring adj., neighbourhood n. ʃʌturgʌʃ.
neither ... nor conj. be ... be; ne .. ne; (both ... not) -ʌltʌliʿk + ŋ.g. nephew n. -ʌŋγʌn; v.s.vv. -ʌçe; -ulʌs.
nest n. yuʿlgʌʃ.
net n. jaʿl.
nettles n. γʌšučiŋ (v.s.v. 2. γʌšu).
never adv. brʌʃʌl or gaʿhe + neg.; bʌkʌl ke la.
newly adj., adv. thoʃ.
new-born adj. čoʿk dimʌnum; thoʃ dimʌnum.
news n. xʌbʌr; tʌxpa; — bringer xʌbʌriŋ suʿyʌs.
New Year n. nauroʿs.
next adj. iʿljum; -yʌrum; yʌl; — world v.s.v. axaʿrʌt.
next morning adv. tʌhʌrdinʌ.
next time adv. yʌl galči.
nice adj. dʌltʌs; šuʿa.
niche n. tʌxša.
nickel n. lʌrum ʃikʌrk.
niece n. (brother's daughter) -ʌ.i; (sister's daughter) -ʌŋγʌn; v.s.vv. -ʌçe, -ulʌs.
night n. thʌp; division of — ʃuʿk all through — gʌʿnʌirʌ.
nightfall n. 1. ʌʌbuʿr.
nine num. hunčo (h, x, y); hunti (z). nineteen num. lʌrma hunčo, — hunti.
ninth ord. hunti.uʿlum.
ninety num. waʿlti aʿltʌr lʌrumo, — lʌrimi.
nipple n. -maʿmut; ʃuʃuʿro; — gun ʃopidaʿr.
nit n. ʃiki.
nitty n. ʃikikʌʃ.
nitre n. šuʿra.

000 no neg. be; bɐʷskɛ + neg.; to any — oʷɛnʌs.
no one pron. mɛn kɛ + neg.
noble adj. (of birth on both sides) kʌrʌli.
nod, to v.i. (with sleep) gudʊŋ *-m. noise n. *-čhər; biḍiŋ; ʂaʷo; — of beating etc. ḍim; tʌn; v. List of Onomatopoeic Words.
nolens volens adv. naʷnaʷ.
non-human adj. ɣaibaʷna.
none pron. (thing) besʌn + neg.; (person) mɛn kɛ + neg.
noose n. ʂoʷk; 1. ʂʌk.
north n. šʌmaʷl.
nose n. *-muʷpuʂ; septum of — 3. nʌš; *-muʷpuʂɛ nʌš.
nosegay n. bʌʂo.
nostril n. *-mulʊr.
not neg. be; na; v.s.vv. a-, ʌ-, au-, oʷ-, be-, bi-.
not at all, adv., neg. . . . kuli.
notch n. čɛ.
not cooked adj. atiʷrʊm.
not . . . even, adv., neg. . . . kuli.
not ripe adj. atiʷɣʊnʊm.
not to be v.i. ap-.
notable (person) n. uyuʷm.
nothing pron. besʌn or bɐʷskɛ + neg. notorious adj. *-iʷk duʷsʊm; mʌčhuʷ.
novel adj. ʌkhɛʷš.
now adv. mu; muʷto; up to — dərʊm xa.
now then adv. yɛ . . .
nowadays adv. saʷʌti khuʷlto.
now and then adv. bɐʷšʌl bɐʷšʌl.
nowhere adv. amʊlo + kɛ + neg.
nullah n. 2. bər; 2. hər; ʂuʷŋ.
number n. a certain — of bɐʷrʊm; bɐʷrʊmʌn; bɐʷru; khiʷrumʌn; tɐʷrʊm.
numerous adj. buʷʃ.
nurture, to v.t. *-uče.ʌs.

484b

O.

O! e.i!; wa!; ya!; (addressing males) le.i!; (addressing females) se! 000 oath n. tevẽ; v.s.v. buʷk obedient adj. taʷbi.a.

obedient, to be v.i. bərči m.

obey, to v.i. bərči m.; hʊkəm gʌnʌs.

object n. (abstract) mʌtlʌb; (concrete) dʊʷstsʌk.

obliterate, to v.t. -ʌqušɛlʌs*; -ʌspʌlʌs.*

obsequies n. ʊʷlji yər; -tsi.ʌtɛ.*

obtain, to v.i. d-ʌγʊrkʌs*; -yaiyʌs*; -yʌnʌs* (h & x objects), gʌnʌs (y objects).

obtainable adj. v.s.vv. -ʌγʊrkʌs*; yaiyʌs.

obtained, to be v.i. došolʌs; juʷk m.

occasion n. heʷši; gʌlt; gʌlči; ḍʌmʌn; ts.hir.

occasionally adv. beʷšʌl beʷšʌl; hikʌn hikʌn.

occiput n. čhʌŋʌrʌs.

occupied, to be v.i. (busy) mašγʊʷl; (inhabited) abaʷd.

occupy, to v.t. (land) ši(y)ʌs.

occupy o.s., v.i. mašγʊʷl m.

occur, to v.i. mʌnaʷs.

o'clock v.s.vv. bʌja; saʷʌt; eʷγərʌs.

October n. ʌktoʷbər.

odour n. nʌs; (evil) dərga.

of course adv. beʷsa; xəruʷl.

of . . . self adv. . . . raʷʌti.

offence n. tʌksiʷr.

offer, to v.t. khiʷl ɛt.

offering n. nʌxər; (sacrifice) xeʷr; (to God) xʊdeʷi.

officer n. ṣaʷb; afsər.

official n. village — čərbʊ; headman trʌŋfa.

offspring n. aulaʷd.

often adv. how —? beʷrʊm heʷši?

ogre n. hiʷr bilʌs.

ogress n. bilʌs.

oil n. del.
oil-bottle n. delgus.
oil-pressings n. mina.
ointment n. mʌlyʌm.
old adj. (living things) ʌstakaʷl; jʌʈ; maper; very — qʌqər niʷm; v.s.vv. umər, den, denkus; — and young jʌʈbaʷrɪʃ; joʈpʌt; — folk jʌʈbaʷrɪʃ; (inanimate things) diγʌnum; mern; (antique) yərum.
old, to become v.i. (inanimate things) d-γʌnʌs*; doγʌnʌs.
old age n. jʌʈabero; v.s.vv. den, denkus.
old man n. v.s.v. "old"; daʷdo; -ʌpi*; buruʷm dʌp.
old-time adj. yərum.
omen n. faʷl.
on prep. -ʌʈe; -yʌʈe*; -tse; -tsi*; yʌči.
on account of prep. gʌne.
on one's back adv. -sqa.*
on behalf of prep. -yʌʈum*; -yʌkʌltsum.*
on foot adv. gʌʈʌl.
on in front adv. yər; yərpa.
on the point of, to be v.i. taiyaʷr m.
once adv. hik ḍʌm; hik ḍʌmʌn; hik gʌlči; hik ke. once upon a time adv. yərum zʌmaʷna ulo; yarpʌči (p. 380. I). one num. hin (h); hʌn (x, y); hik (z); -ʌn. V. §§ 43, 188.
one after another adv. ts.hirtse.
one day adv. hikulto.
one-eyed adj. hʌn iʷlčinʌŋe.
one place adv. hithaʷn.
one-ply adj. hinzir.
one side adv. hʌnpa.
one time adv. hik heʷši; hik ke.
one year old adj. yolekus.
onion n. (plant) γʌšu y; (bulb) γʌšu x; wild — tere γʌšu.
only adv. bʌγeʷri; fʌqʌt; sirf.
oorial n. yeʈʌl.

485b

OOO open adj. pfʌʈʌŋ; ɜrqa; slightly — wʌq; wide — zʌʈ (of eyes).

open, to v.i. d-čaqʌrʌs*; dʊlo·qiyʌs; (of flower) doxərʌs; v.t. do·nʌs; pfʌʈʌŋ st.; v.s.v. dečʌqər; (eye) pfuʈ st.; — and look at pfiʈi·k pfʊʈu·k st.

opening n. -xʌt*; (in wall) ʂʌŋ.

opinion n. xi.a·l.

opium n. ʌfyu·n.

opium-eater, opium-smoker n. ʌfyu·ni.

opponent n. ker; šəri·k.

opportunity n. dər; mo·qa.

opposed, to become v.i. (to s.o.) duɣʌn-ḍərʌs; šəri·k m.

opposite adj. čar; ru ba ru.

"opposite number" n. (in game) na·l.

oppress, to v.t. -ʌtsi.ʌs*; zvləm st.; jujur -ʌt*.

oppression n. zvləm.

oppressive, adj., oppressor n. za·lim; zvləmgar; zvləmkrʂ.

option n. rxli.ar.

or conj. ya; either . . . or ya . . . ya; hʌl . . . hʌl.

or not? bɛʔ; xairʔ; naʔ; ya kɛ oʔ; niʔ orchard n. bʌsi; cp. de·kʌrʌn.

order n. (command) šʌlda; hukəm; qa·rda; in good — wərts; in — to . . . gʌnɛ.

ordinary adj. ʌbʌs; ma·mu·li.

originally adv. ʌwa·l.

ornaments n. (women's) hərkun.

orphan n. thəres.

osier-twig n. gʌčhe.

other adj., pron. thi; thu·m; i·tom; cp. yʌʈɛ 2.; (person) N. je.ib.

others pron. men kɛ; (remainder) ba·qi.

otherwise adv. bɛ kɛ; thu·m.

otter n. u·ʂo.

ought v.s.v. yʌʂki and § 401.

our (own) pron. mi·mo v. § 143.

ourselves pron. mi·i v. §§ 142, 144.

486a

000 out adv. hoʳlɛ; (of ball at polo) ciʳʷɛ, N. tsiʳk; hʌltsiʳk.
out of action adj. fʌt 2.
out of the way adv. hʌnpa.
outcry n. qyuʳ; qyuʳ pyu.
outfit n. (of clothes) gʌli gʌʃu. outing n. sail.
outside adj. hoʳlʊm; (...person) jʌmiʳp; adv. hoʳlɛ; hoʳlpa; hoʳlpʌči; on the — hoʳli tʌli; to the — hoʳl nɛ; from the — hoʳlʊm.
outsider n. hoʳlʊm sis; jʌmiʳp sis; thər mʌnʊm.
outwards adv. hoʳl nɛ.
oven n. dʊldoŋ; (iron) qiʳmišdoʳn; tʌnuʳr.
over prep. -ʌʃɛ; adv. -yoʳn*; to remain — bʌsk m.; d-uɛsʌs* 1. overcome, to v.t. -wʌši.ʌs*.
overflow n. təḍʌq.
overflow, to v.i. dints.hiʳʌs; təḍau m.; təḍʌq m.
overhanging rock n. bʌlbʌl; 2. ḍiʳr.
overlay, to v.t. laʳš m.. overpower, to v.t. šʌt -ʌt.*; kuʳri.ʌp -ʌl.*
oversalted adj. šau.
overtake, to v.t. d-ʌšqʌltʌs* 5. overthrow, to v.t. -wʌši.ʌs*.
overturn, to v.t. mʌlʌq -ʌrʌs*; mʌlaʳq st.; pfʌtʌŋ st.
overwhelm, to v.t. yərk st.
overwhelmed adj. tʌčʌp.
ovis poli n. ruʳš.
owe, to v.t. v.s.v. uʳš.
owl n. huʳyo.
own adj. -imo* v. § 143; (not step-) dʌmʌn.
owner n. dʌmʌn.
ownerless adj. v.s.v. bɛʳl. ox n. 1. hər; ts.hiʳər; (fit for plough khiʳl stʌs ts.hiʳər.
ox-hide n. hərɛ gʌp.
ox-like adj. hərkʊm.

4866

P.

paboos n. (native boots) hu·čo.
pace n. bada.
pacify, to v.t. -asmilas.
padlock n. qulp.
page n. ṭap; wɔraq.
pail n. khaći.
pain n. ćam; jak; ḫul; maq; lam ćam; (in head) lam; labour —s -ḫul.
pain, to v.t. impers. -xolas; -xolinas.
paint n. rag
pair n. 2. yom; yu·tum; -kum v. § 197; one of a — nal.
paired adj. (for polo) nal.
palace n. tha·ŋ; tha·ŋuḫ; imawat.
palate n. yaṭum taĩ (s.v. 1. ṭal b.). pale n. ṭrkɔrk.
palm n. (of hand) -ṭatas.
Pamir n. pamar.
pannier n. (for dry leaves, straw etc.) čur'a.
pant, to v.i. ha· st.
pantry n. 2. ḍap.
paper n. ka·γas.
Paradise n. bihišt.
paralysed adj. fat; pfa·lij; čo·ko ča·ko; γayu čhaŋgu(?).
parch, to v.t. a·spi.as; -asqulas; (... grain) duwaltalas.
parched adj. ja·k.
parched corn n. khani.
pardon n. baxṣiḫ; mu.a·f.
pardon, to v.t. baxṣiḫ -at.; mu.a·f -at.
part n. v.s.v. "piece": ṭovi; fatɔri; (share) -γɔrum; on the — of bayo; -yakaltsum.
part, to v.t. (hair) diqaras partaking n. nasirpa.
particle n. phu·k; very small —s ḍoḫuri pfu·nts.
parti-coloured adj. γɔrey.
partisan n. v.s.v. hag.

partnership n. in — hərʌŋ.
partridge n. ("chikor") gəɣu; (ram chikor) bola. party n. hikum; 1. pʌči; hʌq.
pass n. hʌɣuts.
pass, to v.i. gutshərʌs; (of time) niyʌs.
pass away, to v.i. wʌfat m. passed over, to be v.i. d-usʌsʌs*.
past adj. nim.
pasture n. uyərʌs diš; gərz; mountain — tew; upland — pʌmerr; irrigated — 1. ṭoq.
pasture, to v.i. -yʌrʌs*.
patch n. čhʌɣa; ṭiko; (of metal) paš; (of crops) čʌpay.
patched adj. 1. doma.
path n. gan; 1. ɣʌš.
patience n. 2. sʌbər.
patient n. (ill) ɣaliṛs; adj. sʌbərkṛṭ; sʌbər ṭʌs; tshum.
patrol, to v.i. kuw m. patronage n. yʌl; -yʌl*.
"pattoo" n. (homespun) pṛiʿlʌm.
paw n. -toto*.
pay n. ṭʌlʌb; tanxa.
pay, to v.t. -yʌmi.ʌs* (x objects); gʌmi.ʌs (y); — heed ʌŋ ṭ.; — tribute ʌp -čhi.ʌs*.
pea, a n. gərken, v. "peas".
peace n. arʌm; ʌmʌn; rəshʌl; hʌzur; (greeting) asʌlam; to make — d-mayʌs*. peacefully adv. qərʌm ka. peacefulness n. qərʌm.
peach n. čuɣudər.
peak n. ṭiq; burri; yurri (p. 387. 1).
pear n. phəṛio x; ʌɣuri; ṭoq pṛəṛio.
pear tree n. phəṛio y.
pearl n. muk.
peas n. (seeds and crop) gərk.
peasant n. zʌmindʌr.

4876

pebbles n. qhüye; ʃhir; (by river) N. gorro; N. qaiy.
peck at, to v.t. ʃhwk st.
peel n. wʌʃ.
peel, to v.t. -fʌʃərʌs*.
peg n. gili; (of lock) imrkus; n. — nʌš.
peg down, to v.t. *gili -dslʌš.
pellet-bow n. tərmuk; leather of — thil; N. tili.
pelvis n. minʌltin.
pen n. (for writing) qʌlʌm; (fold) bʌkur; giram; šʌlhərʌy.
penalty n. mʌyo.
pen-case n. qʌlʌmdorn.
penetrate, to v.t. gʌʃars.
penis n. -šʌʃ*; child's — -šipin*.
penknife n. čarqu; N. čʌqu.
penny n. (fig.) čilirki.
people n. sis(ik); — of . . . . . -kuts; common — armi; — of a country kuyorč.
pepper n. marvč.
per prep. ks 9.
perceive, to v.t. d-yaiyʌs*.
perch, to v.i. boryʌs.
perchance adv. hʌzar.
percussion-cap n. pfʌtʌqi; (— gun) ʃopidar.
perhaps adv. hazar; šaiyʌd.
perfect adj. 1. jʌm; purrü; purkum.
"peri" n. pəri; disease caused by —s pərizʌxum.
pergola n. thʌgʌy.
peril n. bʌla.
period n. khrn; muddʌt; zamarna; — of pregnancy -samuts*.
permission n. zjarzʌt; hukum; ruxsʌt; to give — *hukəm -chiʌs.
permit, to v.t. -sərkʌs*.
permitted adj. hʌlard.
perpendicular adj. čorko; (of cliff) 1. tʌl; tʌmtʌš.

488a

000 perplexed adj. heraʌm.
persecute, to v.t. gʌjʌt *-ʌt.
Persian adj. faʌrsi.
person n. sis(ʌn); bʌnda; (body) *-ḍim; *-wʌf.
perspiration n. hʌroʌɣo; 2. toʌm.
persuade, to v.t. *-ʌsmilʌs; berči *-ʌt.
perturbed adj. šʌbirkʌm.
perverse adj. ʌpʌrts; biʌmaʌni.
pester, to v.t. *-wəra tʌleʌnʌs.
pestle n. yʌfkʌs; ḍʌmo; ḍiʌnʌ; N. karʌki; v.s.v. 1. guyoʌs.
petal n. tʌp.
petition n. buyʌt; ərz.
petition, to v.i. buyʌt et.
photograph n. tʌswiʌr; (portrait) suʌrʌt.
physician n. tʌbiʌb.
pick n. čʌk.
pick, to v.t. čʌf et.; čuʌf *-ʌt.; (flowers) goʌyʌs.
pick up, to v.t. goʌyʌs.
pick-axe n. čʌk; giʌli, N. kiʌli pickings n. pfofuʌk.
picnic n. — food utsiyenʌs.
picture n. nʌqša; tʌswiʌr.
piebald adj. ɣəreʌy; pfʌnḍtr; ʌblʌq.
piece n. čuruʌk; 1. muš; 1. fər; forri; (of cloth) pʌfo; 3. bər; 2. thaʌn; (patch) čhʌɣa; fiʌko; in —s čhe.imučhe.i; fərəmfər.
pierce, to v.t. gʌfʌs; žərʌp et.
pig n. xuʌk.
pigeon n. 3. tʌl.
"pilau" n. pulau.
pile n. v. "heap", "stack" pile up, to v.t. bʌliʌ *-ʌt.
piled up adj. chof.
pilgrim n. zʌwaʌr.
pilgrimage n. place of — zi.aʌrʌt.
pill n. mili.e ḍiʌru.
pillar n. ḍʌko; main — šiʌriḍʌko; single stone — dʌščikin.
pillow n. *-ʌṣkrṣ; *-ʌṣki.

488 b

pimp n. hərʌŋuš.
pimple n. pfirkʌnʌs. 000 pin n. sɛl; iɹl apiɹm sɛl; 3. piɹn.
pincers adj. ʌmbuɹr.
pinch, to v.t. čuruɹt *-ʌt.; d*-ʌtsi.ʌs.
pine tree n. gʌši.
pipe n. gʌbi; (tobacco) čilʌm.
pipe-bearer n. čɛlimdaɹn.
piper n. surənaiči.
"pir" n. piɹr.
pistol n. tʌmʌnča.
pit n. qʌm; 1. ṭis.
pitch dark adj. ṭa.u ṭuṭʌŋ.
pitchfork n. jʌqər; (5-pronged) hərʌnč.
pitiless adj. be-rʌhʌm.
pity n. jaɹk; rʌhʌm.
placate, to v.t. *-ʌsmilʌs; bərči *-ʌt. place n. diš; 1. thaɹn; n. what —? amulo? in the first — ʌwaɹl; in the second — aɹltoɹulum; in — of baɹgo; of that — tɛlum; a certain — hithaɹn; dwelling — *-yʌk; *-yɛš; lying up — of wild animals *-yʌk.
place, to v.t. oɹsʌs; *-ʌgiyʌs; dɛlʌs; wʌši.ʌs (h, x objects), bišaiyʌs (y); to cause s.o. — *-ʌdilʌs; *-ʌwʌši.ʌs; *-ʌbišaiyʌs.
place over, to v.t. yʌṭɛ wʌɹrʌs.
plague n. N. tiɹti.
plain n. dʌs; adj. thi; saɹda; 1. xʌm.
plait n. boɹno; šʌbʌq.
plait, to v.t. gišaiyʌs; yʌši.ʌs.
plan, to v.t. sʌlʌh pusuɹyʌs; v.s.v. *-ʌs.
plane n. rʌnda.
plane tree n. buč.
plank n. bʌlk.
plant n. v.s.v. muɹn. V. List of Plants.
plant, to v.t. *-ʌgiyʌs; ɛɹgyʌs; ɛtsʌiyʌs; ɛwərkʌs.
plaster n. čuɹna; white — gɛč, v.s.v. maṭi.
plaster, to v.t. *-ltʌɣʌyʌs.

489a

plate n. pfʌta; pfʌtasuʷndʌl. V. List of Vessels etc. 000 plateau n. edge of — pərišʌṭ.

platform n. (of earth) mʌn.

play n. tʌmaʷša.

play, to v.i. tʌmaʷša et.; girʌṭʌs; hʌwʌs et; v.t. (polo) bula delʌs; (music) eʷɣərʌs; to make s.o. — music *-ʌɣərʌs.

played-out adj. durgʌswṭo.

pleasant adj. dʌltʌs; (of flavour) mʌzadaʷr.

please, to v.t. xuš et.

pleased adj. aiyʌš; xuš; minadaʷr.

pleasing adj. xuš.

pleasure n. xuši; with great — duke duke; to give — mʌza d-ʌtsʌs*.

Pleiades n. ɣʌṯʌmi.o.

plenishing n. bride's — -thiʷŋgi.

plentiful adj. bos; ʌrzaʷn.

plenty n. okši rʌkši.

pliers n. ʌmbuʷr.

plot n. in field pfurun; garden — khuṭkus; vegetable — sərk; (conspiracy) pferevi; (ambush) kʌçakoʷn.

plot, to v.i. pferevi et.; kʌçakoʷn et.

plotter n. pferro.

plough n. hərš.

plough, to v.t. hərki et.; khiʷl et.; thʌmus et.; (preliminary) wʌṭ et.; (with oxen) -ɣərkʌs; to make s.o. — -ʌɣərkʌs.

plough-handle n. muʷči; muṣṭi.

plough-ox n. khiʷl etʌs tsʌhiʷr.

ploughing n. hərki.

ploughshare n. bʌs; nʌwʌq; 2. tiš.

pluck, to v.t. čʌṭ et.; čuṭ et.; (fowl) -moʷɣʌs; (flowers) goʷyʌs: — by the clothes jiṭjʌš -ʌt.

pluck out, to v.t. čʌs et.

plug n. ṭowi; (for hole in skin bag bərginʌs.

plunder n. huʷši.

plunder, to v.t. huʷši et.; -yʌlʌs.

4896

060 plundered, to be v.i. huʷši m.
plunge into, to v.i. γʊrtsaʷs.
pocket n. čʌnda; *-soγʊt.
pod n. giltiʷr.
point n. *-thʌn; at this — teʷrʊmʌnər; on the — of . . . taiyaʷr; v.s.v. akhuʷrʊm.
point out, to v.t. išaʷra et.
pointed thing n. ṭiŋ.
poison n. čhɛmɪliŋ.
poisonous adj. čhɛmɪliŋ.
poke, to v.t. zaʷq et., zʌq et.
pole n. bʌlʌŋ; — of juniper 3. dir.
politeness n. ʌdʌp.
pollard, to v.t. imʌrʌyʌs; *-muʷrʊṭʌs; *-muʷrʊṭinʌs; *-muʷruṭʌs.
polo n. bʊla.
polo-ball n. ṭhəri; bʊla.
polo-ground n. šʌbʌrin; šʌwaʷrʌn.
polo-stick n. phiʷṇ; head of — čhu.
pomegranate n. biči·l x.
pomegranate-tree n. biči·l y. pommel n. *-ʌš.
pond n. pfəri; kʌŋ.
pony n. bʊḍoʷko.
pool n. kʌŋ.
poor adj. tʌltʌq; tʌltʌqwiyo; 2. tʌrʌq; γəriʷp; hinzir.
poor fellow n. γəriʷpis.
poor-spirited adj. *-ʌsə ʌšaʷto; *-ʌs bidil.
popcorn n. khʌni.
popinjay n. tʌmbʊk; to shoot at — tʌmbʊk dɛlʌs or ditsʌs.
poplar n. (Lombardy) jərpa; (large kind) tʊrʌq.
poppy n. mərdakay.
populace n. kuyoʷč.
population n. } v.s.v. abaʷd.
populous adj. }
porch n. bʌldi.
porter n. bʌldakwiṇ.

490a

portion n. bayo; bərkʌt; lʌp; ṭori; equal — trʌŋ.
position n. (circumstances) hawlʌt.
possession n. to come into — of -yaiyʌs*; d-ʌyərkʌs*; ši.ʌs 3.; v.s.v. -riŋ*; in the — of s.o. -ʌle; -ʌp/ i*; into one's — ixʌči.
possible adj. etʌs.
possibility n. umiwd.
post n. ḍʌko; main — of house šiwriḍʌko.
pot n. ḍewk; čidiwn; bʌloṣ; bʌli; dwstsʌk.
V. List of Vessels etc.
potato n. awlu.
pound, to v.t. -ltʌnʌs* (x objects); tʌnaws (y); lʌqbewš et.
pounder n. ḍʌmo; diŋər; N. karʌki; (for rice) qərʌŋtʌŋo; (for washing clothes) tʌnaws.
pour, to v.t. thiyʌs; utinʌs.
pour down, to v.i. gawrtsʌs; to make (rain) — -ʌskərtsʌs*; d-ʌskərtsʌs*.
pour into, to v.t. giyʌs.
pour out, to v.t. dewmiyʌs; thiyʌs.
pout, to v.i. miwq et.
poverty n. ʌšʌtyawr.
poverty-stricken adj. tʌltʌquwyo.
powder n. gun — mili.eŋ. powder-flask n. rʌnjʌq; v.s.v. γəti.
power n. luwm; šʌt; qudrʌt.
powerful adj. ḍowm; šʌtilo; šʌtiliwr; zawra; zowr; zorawər.
powerless adj. ʌšawto.
powers (of action) n. rxti.awr.
practice n. (custom) 3. -ts.hiwr*; dʌstuwr; miraws; (exercise) mʌšq.
practise, to v.i. mʌšq et.
praise, to v.t. -ilikinʌs*; d-ʌpukərʌs*; — o.s. dofoγərʌs.
pray, to v.i. du.aw et.; nimawz et. or γʌtʌnʌs.
prayer n. du.aw; ni.ʌt; nimawz; call to — bʌŋ; — after funeral čirawqnawma.

490b

prayer-beads n. tʌšbiʻamʊts.
prayers n. nɪrmaʻz; salwaʻt.
praying carpet n. jai.i nɪrmaʻz; tʌxta puʻs.
precedence n. to give — to saʻʌt *-ʌt.
precipitous adj. čoʻko; tʌš; tʌmtʌš; — ground jʊm.
preceding adj. yər; -yərʊm*.
prefer, to v.t. dʌmši *-ʌt; xʊš et.
pregnancy n. -samʊts*.
pregnant adj. hʊruṭʊm; mʌmu ɪtʊm; aʻlto qerkʊs; ʊmiʻdwaʻr.
pregnant, to be v.i. hʊruṭʌs; hʊručaiyʌs; mʌmu et.
preparations n. bʌndobʌs.
prepare, to v.t. etʌs; (skin or hide) yʌṭʌmʊrʌs (x object), gʌṭʌmʊrʌs (y). prepared adj. rʌl.
prepared, to be v.i. riʻk m. presence n. in — of s.o. -ʌpʌči*; -ʌlɛ, v. § 67; from the — of s.o. -ʌpʌčim*.
present n. inaʻm; bʌxṭiš; mɛʻrmaʻni; (from husband to bride) duʻk; (to bride's mother) -yɛnʊm*; adv. up to the — dərʊm xa; muʻto xa; adj. haʻzir.
present, to v.t. khiʻl et.; piʻš et.; ṭhʊmʊk et.
presently adv. v.s.vv. ʌčo; duʻŋ.
press down, to v.t. -ʌtɛi.ʌs*; v.s.v. jʌp.
press for, to v.i. baʻk m.
press forward, to v.i. phʌŋ m. presumptuous adj. mʌst.
pretext n. bʌhaʻna.
pretty adj. dʌltʌs; N. surʌtčʌn.
prevail, to v.i. šʌt et.
prevent, to v.t. d-ʌšɛ.ʌs*; aʻh et.; d-ʌskʌṭʌs*.
previously adv. yər; yər nɛ.
price n. gʌš; geʻmʌt.
prick, to v.t. zərʌp et.
pride n. γeʻrʌt; mʌsti.
priest n. axoʻn; xʌliʻfa.
priming-pan n. iʻltʊmʌl.

primula n. suyo pfuᵛnər.
prince n. gəlpuᵛr; šahzaᵛda.
princess n. gas.
prison n. bandi-, jel-, qaid-, zrndaᵛn-xaᵛna.
prisoner n. qaidi.
private adj. xaᵛs; in — çhito; — part of house ulači, v. also corrigendum.
privy n. jukaŋ.
privy parts n. (female) °-γuᵛǰ; 2. dəŋ.
probably adv. v.s.v. gumaᵛn. proceed! gom(a)!
proceed, to v.i. niyas; gulsˌhəras; to cause s.o. — °-açulsərasˌ proceed to, to v.i. manaᵛs.
proclaim, to v.t. maš.huᵛr st. procurable adj. v.s.v. d°-aγurkas. procure, to v.t. d°-aγurkas; duᵛməras; °-yanas (hx objects), ganas (y objects).
profit n. suᵛt; napha; fai.rda. profitable adj. napha.
progeny n. nasal; aulaᵛd.
prohibit, to v.t. oᵛsenas; mana °-at.
prohibited adj. 1. çir; mana; (of food) haraᵛm.
projecting adj. pfaᵛǰ.
promise n. 1. bər; kaᵛt; waᵛda.
prone adj. jek; (on face) °-muᵛškans.
proof n. sabuᵛt.
prop up, to v.t. d°-astsayas.
proper adj. yaǰki; 1. yom; lai.iq; asəli; munaᵛzib; not — to do 3. šek.
property n. doᵛlat; (heritable) miraᵛs; (movable) maᵛl; maᵛl haᵛl.
prophet n. peγambər.
propitious adj. subaš.
propose to, to v.i. zraᵛda st.
prosperity n. bərkat.
prostrate adj. jek.
prostrated, to be v.i. (by grief) dusalaṭas.
protect, to v.t. d°-aspasas.
protection n. (°-)yal.
protector n. raᵛçakuᵛin.

49/6

006 protruding adj. pfavṣ.
propitiate, to v.t. °-i·likinʌs.
prove, to v.t. d°-ʌsqʌłʌs; sa·bʌt or sʌbu·t st.
provide for, to v.t. pəruəvʌ̄ °-ʌt. provisions n. zʌkhəra; (for journey) utsiyenʌs.
prudent adj. ʌqəlkʌṣ.
puberty n. bʌ·liγ(i); arrived at — bʌ·lʌγ; v.s.v. denkus; to arrive at — d°-ʌł qʌltʌs; deniŋər juyʌs.
pubic hair n. °-muṣki.
public adj. a·m.
pudendum muliebre n. 2. duŋ.
puff, to v.i. pfu st.
puffed up adj. mʌstikʌṣ.
pugnacious adj. ḍus delʌs; torkʌṣ. pull, to v.t. (°-)łʌskʌvs; ćʌł st.; ćuṣ °-ʌt.; jaṣ °-ʌt.; (by clothes) jitjʌł °-ʌt.
pull along, to v.t. dʌdʌl st.
pull away, to v.t. jʌł st.
pull down, to v.t. i·lturʌs; d°-ʌskuyʌs; devrʌs.
pull in, to v.t. (belt) d°-ʌtsi·ʌs.
pull on, to v.t. (boots etc.) ćə·m °-ʌt.
pull out, to v.t. d°-ʌsʌs; d°-ʌpirtsʌs; d°-ʌguvsʌs; čʌs st.
pull to pieces, to v.t. i·lturʌs.
pull up, to v.t. d°-pirtsʌs; (horse) d°-ʌtsi·ʌs.
pulse n. (vein) bərvs; (crop) giryir; γərʌł. pulverise, to v.t. yu·γinʌs (x objects), gu·γinʌs (y objects).
pumpkin n. bu·poł; furu; wʌn; hərwər; section of — fukəro.
punish, to v.t. sʌzʌ °-čhi·ʌs.
punishment n. sʌzʌ; navi; v.s.v. kubə·l.
pupil n. ʌəγzrd; — of eye °-lčina gori.
puppy n. gokuərus.
pure adj. sə·f; pakirsa; suṣo.
purgative n. °-γu·mər °-ʌrʌs mili; julaḍ.

492 a purpose n raiś; niʌt; mʌtlʌb.

purr, to v.i. xur et.
purse n. boturu.
pursue, to v.t. -tsi taiyʌs*.
pursue after, to v.t. *firts -ʌt.
pus n. jol.
push, to v.t. *jhʌg -ʌt.; zʌq et.
push forward, to v.i. pfʌg su.
puss! puss! pē pē pēi put, to v.t. delʌs; -ʌgiyʌs*; -wʌśiʌs* (h obj.), wʌśiʌs (x obj.), biłaiyʌs (y obj.) to cause s.o. — -ʌdilʌs*; -ʌwʌśiʌs*; -ʌbiłaiyʌs*; — to flight -ʌpkartʌs*; — to sleep -ʌgučaiyʌs*; — in order ʌsperē et.; worts et.
put down, to v.t. ovʌs; d-ʌskuyʌs*.
put on, to v.t. (garment) yorʌs (x), berʌs (y); (head-gear) yʌči et.; (shoes etc.) -ʌltaiyʌs*; taiyʌs; to cause s.o. to — -ʌolʌs*, -ʌbilʌs*, -ʌltaiyʌs*; — lid worʌs; — (saddle) (tili.ʌg) ovgiyʌs, evelʌs.
put out, to v.t. (fire etc.) evtayʌs.
put out adj. bizur; v.s.v. -wors*.
putrid adj. ʌʌs manum; v.s.v. 2. yʌsur. putties n. N. phʌltoćig.

Q.

Qazi n. qazi.
quadruped n. haiwori; biltaug (?).
quail n. yuru.
quantity n a great — burdi; tulʌrʌn; ćhoj; daldum; a small — pyurʌn, v. "little"; a certain — berumʌn; ierumʌn.
quarrel n. ćʌl; janjerl; to make up a d-mayʌs*.
quarrel, to v.i. ćʌl et.; *ćʌl -ʌs.
quarrelling n. ćʌl; jurur.
quarrelsome adj. bayirk; ćus dʌlʌs; janjerlkṛ; tusl; turkṛ; — person ṛṛgur.

492 b quarter n. trʌŋs trʌŋ; trʌŋtsum trʌŋ; ʃoʷri; three —s iski baʷgo. 000 quarters n. living — qoʷš. queen n. 2. γɛʷnɪ̣.

quern n. yʌmyɔʷr.
question n. sʌwa; (affair) čʌγa.
question, to v.t. d-ʌγʌrʊsʌs*; dɔγʌrʊsʌs; — under pressure *baʷk -ʌt.
quick(ly) adv. hʊmʌlkum; ta.hɔʷr; piṭiriŋ; ʃʌp; ʃʌq; ʌjoʷl ʌjoʷl; tʌlaʷl nɛ; v.s.v. čiṭoriz.
quicksand n. čaʷl; 1. huʷt.
quiet n. ʌmʌn; to keep — bʌsʌʷs.
quietly adv. thʌln.
quilt n. šapoʷs.
quince n. jaṭoʷr x.
quince tree n. jaṭoʷr y.
quite adv. 3. tɔr; 2. ʃɔr; tʌčʌp; v.s.vv. tʌʃʌk; čʌm; rʌm; sʌm; tsʌm. V. "brimful", "pitch dark", "stone blind", "stark naked".
quiver n. hʊmʌk; tɔrkʌṭ.
Qur'an n. qʊraʷn; verses of — aiya.

R.

race n. dʌwʌni; horse — pai.iga.
race, to v.t. gaʷrtsʌs; pai.iga giyʌs; *pai.igaʷr čho -ʌt, or čho wʌši.ʌs.
race-course n. pai.iga dʌs or dɪ̣.
racer n. (of horse) gaʷrtsʌs.
raft n. jaʷlo; framework of — N. šʌq.
rafter n. siṇẹ.
rag n. lʊq; —s bʊdʊl.
rage n. -mʊʷs.
ragged clothes n. lʊq; 1. dʊma.
raid, to v.t. huʷli st. rain n. hɔraʷlī; —s hɔraʷltiŋ.
rain, to v.i. (hɔraʷlī) di.aʷrtsʌs rainbow n. nirʊnʌŋ; N. bijoʷn. rainflood n. hɔraʷlte moʷs.
rainwater n. hɔraʷlt ta.hil.
raise, to v.t. daʷl st.

rainine n. bupam γαίίη.
raja n. ilam; mir; —'s wife 2. γανάξ;
—'s male relative gadgav; mava.
ram n. hoskaraj; N. kavrlu; (entire) mar.
Ramazan n. ramas.
"ram chikor" n. bole; young — gakavas.
ramrod n. γαίλα.
ready n. to become — dilaklas.
"ranee" n. 2. γανάξ.
rare, to be v.i. pirpi.
rascal n. afrmas.
rash n. smallpox — aakar.
rat n. girkas; tailless — fafar.
rather adv. halki.
ration(s) n. -γαναλι; -γαναν; mavig.
raven n. γαλαναλ.
ravine n. 2. bar; 2. bar.
raw adj. atirum; (hide) dayari.
ray n. ilagar.
razor n. bakinf.
reach, to v.t. d-akgalias; jark; to make s.t. — jark -af.
read, to v.t. γαλαναλ; aman; to cause s.o. — -agalanas.
ready adj. ral; faigar.
ready, to be v.i. rirk; ririk.
ready-made (of clothes) adj. tahapinam.
real adj. asli; (not step-) damas.
reality n. tahanaf.
really adv. tahas.
reap, to v.t. bisrkas.
reaping-time n. bisrkas khan.
rear n. -fji; at the — of -fjikas.
rear, to v.i. (of horse) γαίλα; v.t. -ardas.
rear- adj. -fji; -fjim.
reared, to be v.i. dakas.
reason n. sahab; for that — -tatam; without — fafag; for no — fki; by — of wjelam.
rebel n. hakam akanas.
rebellion n. kafakar.

493b

000 rebellious adj. gayo.
rebuke n. nard.
rebuke, to v.t. nard °-al.
receive, to v.t. d°-ayurkas; °-geiyas; (person) °-gandiw niyas.
recently adv. dwé.
reception n. °-gandi; v.a.v. upanéimo.
recess r. (in wall) ŋanda.
recite, to v.t. yalanas; — prayers nemaru al.
reckon, to v.t. °-ayanas; °-ŋakanas.
reckoning n. kawé.
reclaim n. ghito kuruŋas.
recognise, to v.t. lel al.; (person) °-gwnas.
recommend, to v.t. ju.n al.
reconcile, to v.t. d°-aemaŋas.
reconciled, to be v.i. d°-mayas. record n. v.a.v. keiyan. 1. recount, to v.t. daya al.
recover, to v.i. d°-nanas; dwnas; dwnakanas; uorto °-m.; v.t. d°-ayurkas.
recovered adj. uorto.
red adj. lowdow.
red ant n. lowdow khon.
redstart n. ghaŋoŋas.
reduce, to v.t. d°-ashivas.
reed n. gabi.
reefs n. gforu.
reel n. mayun.
reflect, to v.i. aamba al.
reflected, to be v.i. v.a.v. halow.
reflection n. v.a.v. ewwal; (thought) fikw; aamba.
refractory adj. haqwal; gayarum (p. 296); orun; v.a.v. ŋamey.
refuge n. to take — dayoi.as; . . . yuvo giyas ev piyoi.as.
refuse n. small — of grain 2. yol.
refuse, to v.t. le ewas; dukkaras. regret n. pathmawé; v.a.v. pamum.
reign n. thambéf.
reinforce, to v.t. (troops) d°-ashaŋas.

494 a reins n. *-ʌččiŋ; (horse's) jilau.

reject, to v.t. dukhʌrʌs.
rejoice, to v.i. minadʌr *-m.; ʃ.rɪ.ʌr or ʃuri.ʌrj ʌt. rejoicing adj. minadʌr; n. ʃuri.ʌr; ʃuri.ʌrj; xuši; day of — duxʌšʌ.
relation n. jʌm; blood — sukuin; -ltin; close — khuj sukuin; female — silʌtin; —s (woman's term) ayamo.
relations by marriage n. gul.
relaxed adj. jʌfʌt.
relay, to v.t. (loads) sɪra baldʌŋ ʌt.
release, to v.t. fʌt -ʌt.
released, to be v.i. di.ʌši.ʌs.
relieve, to v.t. — nature ɪstinjʌb ʌt.; v.s.v. *-uj -riŋ.
religion n. dɪn; mʌshʌb.
relish n. tsʌmik.
remain, to v.i. d-uɪsʌs*; jʌp *-m.; hurujʌs; huručʌiyʌs (pl. subj.).
remain behind, to, remain over, to v.i. d-u.esʌs*.
remainder n., remaining adj. bʌŋi.
remake, to v.t. d-ʌsmʌnʌs*. remarkable adj. ʌkhrj.
remarks n. čʌŋa.
remedy n. ilʌj; čʌŋa; (medicine) mirli.
remember, to v.t. v.s.vv. *-ʌs; yʌd; — with longing *-ʌski duxʌlʌs.
remembrance n. yʌd.
remind, to v.t. *-ʌsʌfs d-ʌtsʌs*; v.s.vv. *-ʌs, d-ʌtsʌs*.
remorse n. pʌšimʌni; v.s.v. pʌsorm.
remove, to v.t. dʌrl ʌt.; lʌŋ -ʌt; — and stack (cut crops) dumʌtsʌs.
rend, to v.t. *-xirsʌs; -ʌxɪrsʌs.
renown n. tʌrif.
renowned adj. hʌri; mʌš.hur; *-ik durʌm.
repair, to v.t. dorust ʌt.; wʌrts ʌt.; sʌjrš ʌt.
repaired adj. wʌrts.

4946

repay, to v.t. *-yami.as (x obj.), gami.as (y).
repel, to v.t. pfər *-at.
repentance n. toba.
report n. 1. bər; (of gun) biḍiŋ; iċhər; ṭawafau.u.
reporter n. xabəriŋ suryas.
repose n. 1. šuv.
representation n. buyat.
reproof n. navš.
repudiate, to v.t. d[illegible].ras.
repugnance n., repugnant adj. v.s.v. *-ayam.
reputation n. *-ivk; tavrif; bad — badnavmi.
request, to v.t. duvməras; rak or rai.i st.
require, to v.t. d-aċanas; v.s.v. avravja.
required adj. awavje; dərkavr.
rescue, to v.t. d-aspasas.
resembling adj. ju.an.
resentment n. zrd.
residence n. (royal) thavŋ; thevŋoš.
resident n. hərutas.
resin n. baŋ; γibaŋ.
resource n. zlavj; čavra.
resources n. luvm; auqavt; without — dərmanla.
respect n. adap; zzzat; xavtir.
resplendent, to be v.i. lam jam m. respond to, to v.i. duvməras.
rest n. 1. šuv; aravm.
rest, to v.i. 1. šuv st.
restless adj. be-qəravr; (of child) tvšpoṭ; to be — girgavr *-m. restrained by, to be v.i. jamkaç m. restricted adj. čhanvm.
result n. nativja.
retaliation n. mavr; qasavs; rvs.
retainer n. šadər.
retire, to, retreat, to v.i. javš m.; pfər m. retribution n. rvs.
return n. (of date or anniversary) 2. pfər; v.s.v. yovl.

495a

000

return, to v.i. juγʌs; pfər m.; tʌlʌnʌs.
reveal, to v.t. d-ʌgusʌs*.
revenge n. bʌdʌla; mʌr; qʌsʌs.
reverence, to do v.t. (to gods etc.) -ilikinʌs*.
revetting wall n. (of field) kurt; (buttressing wall) sʌsʌŋ.
revile, to v.t. -mʌltsʌs*; žoniŋ st. revolution n. (of time) durʌs; v.s.v. yol.
revolve, to v.i. pfʌpər or 1. pfər m.; v.t. -ʌltʌlʌnʌs*; pfʌpər st.
revolver n. tʌmʌnča.
revolving n. pfər.
reward n. inʌm; mʌrmʌni.
rheumatism n. 1. jʌk; mʌq; lʌm čʌm (?)
rhubarb n. čʌl; N. sʌspər.
rib n. -yʌlmʌn*; short — -khukurs*.
rice n. (grain) brʌs; (cooked) 2. bʌt; polau.
rice-pounder n. N. kʌrʌki; qərʌŋfʌŋo.
rich adj. γʌmrs; dolʌtmʌn.
riches n. dorlʌt.
ride, to v.i. huljaiyʌs.; v.t. d-tsʌs*.
rider n. hʌγurkurin.
ridiculous adj. tʌmaršakrš.
ridge n. irrš; N. dær.
right n. hʌq; ts.hʌn; durk; — of decision rxti.ʌr; to exercise —s over šc.ʌs; adj. ts.hʌn; wərts; yʌški; munʌsrb; cp. 1. yom; —hand adj. doryum; — time morqa.
right-side-out adj. wərts.
rind n. wʌt.
ring n. čʌma; čoromdo; qikin; (of withies) murda.
ring-leader n. -yʌtrs*.
rip, to v.i. turʌs; v.t. -lturʌs* (?).
ripe adj. d-γunum*; N. degoni.
ripen, to v.i. d-γunʌs* (x subjects), duγunʌs (y), diri.ʌs (x subjects), dirʌs (y). ripped adj. turum.
ripples n. pfimiŋ.

4956

OOO ·ise, to v.i. duʷʌs; di.eʷyʌs; (of sun etc.) jil m.; (of flood) bilbinʌs.
rise up, to v.i. daʷl m.; hərt m. di.eʷyʌs.
rising n. (of sun etc.) jil. rival n. kerʷ; šəriʷk.
rival, to v.t. ṭʌk *-ʌm. river n. sinda; dəri.a; strand of — bed 2. khʌy.
road n. gʌn.
roast, to v.t. *-ʌsqulʌs 2.; jʌjʌm *-ʌt.; kʌbaʷb *-ʌt.
rob, to v.t. huʷši *-ʌt.; *-yʌlʌs.
robber n. huʷši etʌs; γivn.
robbery n. γiʷki.
robe n. čʌpʌn; — of honour 1. sərpa.
robust adj. dʌγʌnum; dʌy; saʷro:
rock n. dʌn; (boulder) buʷn; (cliff) chər; overhanging — bʌlbʌl; 2. ḍiʷr.
rock, to v.i. pirkʌnʌs.
rod n. dəroʷγo; γai.rs.
rogue n. mʌkərči.
roll n. — of cloth thaʷn; tuʷp.
roll, to v.i. ḍiʷri m.; v.t. ḍiʷri et.
roll out, to v.t. šaʷr et.; šər et.
roll over, to v.i. pfʌlʌṭ m.; v.t. mʌlaʷq et.; pfʌlʌṭ et.
roll up, to v.i. dusʌlʌṭʌs; d-mʌtsʌs* (x objects), dumʌtsʌs (y). roller n. wooden — for polo ground) ḍərö.
rolling-pin n. γai.rs; (stone) guyoʷs.
rolling-stone n. (person) biltsuŋ.
roof n. (from outside) teʷši; (from inside) 1. tʌl.
roof, to v.t. di.uʷlʌs.
roof-beam n. siʷnč.
roofless n. pfʌṭʌŋ.
room n. ha; učʌk; (space) diš.
roomy adj. šoqum.
root n. ts.hirrš; gʌmuʷn.
root out, to v.t. d-pirtsʌs*.

496a

rope n. gʌšk; thin — ḍulu; ʍʌlgi; heel- — pičʌri.
rope-bridge n. 1 gʌl. rosary n. ṭʌšbiʌmuts.
rose n. γulʌb.
rot, to v.i. *-γʌsʌs; γʌsʌs; v.t. *-ʌsqʌsʌs.
rotten adj. (of wood) γul.
rough(ly) adj., adv. jʌčərum; ḍoŋqʌm.
roughly-fashioned article (metal, wooden etc. to be completed later) ṭʌṭʌs.
round n. to make the — of sail et.; adj. biḍiro; biḍiriko; — ball of anything gulʌli; prep. iḍigʌrtʌli; iḍigʌri; *-ʍərʌ.
round about adv. šʌturgʌt; iḍigʌri; iḍigʌrtʌli.
rouse, to v.t. — from sleep *dʌŋtsum -ʌrʌs; d-ʌstsʌlʌs*.
rout, to v.t. -ʌskərtsʌs.
row n. γauγʌ; jʌnjʌl; fʌsʌd.
rowan (tree) n. dindiš.
royal adj. v.s.v. gušpuʌre.iki.
rub, to v.t. xʌš et.; xʌš et.; šʌq et.; (massage) *mʌš -ʌt.; (grain between hands) ipfuʌpərʌs; ʌšpupurʌs.
rub down, to v.t. xʌš et.; šʌq et.
rub on, to v.t. ʌdilʌs (cp. -ʌdilʌs); -maltərʌs, v. Supt. to Corrigenda.
rubbing n. (noise of) tʌš tʌš; šʌq šʌq.
ruby n. lʌl.
ruddy adj. guʌro.
rude adj. be-ʌdʌb.
rudeness n. be-ʌdʌpi.
rue (Syrian) n. supʌndur.
rug n. joj qʌli; paṭo; (of goat's hair) šərma; v.s.v. 3. bər.
ruin n. v.t. -ʌqušʌlʌs.
ruined adj. xərʌb; qušʌlum.
ruined, to become v.i. qušʌlʌs. ruins n. šərʌn.
rule n. bʌp; dʌsturʌ; qʌʌda; qʌʌnun; (government) hukumʌt.

496 b

ruler n. thʌm; ha·kim. rummage about, to v.i. pfiti·k pfoṭu·k et.; pfu·volompfʌt et.
run, to v.i. ga·rtsʌs.
run away, to v.i. ḍo·m m.; ga·rtsʌs.
run down, to v.i. diγi·nʌs; v.t. (speak ill of) d·ʌsayʌs*; 4. ṭur m.
run through, to v.i. (of grain) digi.eyʌs.
run-down adj. bi·ha·l. runnel n. hu·r.
running adj. — loop dəšunʌs ṭo·k.
rupee n. rupi.a; ḍʌbʌl; half — čili·ki.
rush, to v.i. ga·rtsʌs; ga·rčaiyʌs (pl. subj.).
rush down, to v.i. diγi·nʌs.
rushes n. pforu.
rust n. ti·k; zʌg.
rust, to v.i. v.s.v. dunʌs.
rustle, to v.i. 1. šʌšər m.
rustling n. rū· rū·; 1. šʌšər; šʌrəšər.
rutting adj. v.s.vv. gat, di.ʌši.ʌs.

S.

sack n. qʌp; ṭʌγər; bu·ra; bu·ri; cp. sərmots.
sacred adj. su·jo.
sacrifice n. xe·r; xodei; nʌzər; qurba·n; (special) šəres; v.s.v. duxau.ukuts.
sacrifice, to v.t. v.s.v. yu·ṣe.ʌs.
sad adj. jurkhu·so; xʌfa; γʌmgi·n.
sad, to be v.i. dərmosa·yʌs.
saddle n. tili.eŋ; pommel of — ·ʌṣ̌; side-piece of — yu·rγʌli; v.s.v. galgi.
saddle, to v.t. ·litulʌs.
saddle-bag n. tili.eŋə botu·n. saddle-felt n. toqom.
safe and sound adj. si.ʌt sʌla·mʌt.
safely adv. hʌfa·zʌte ka.
safety n. hʌfa·zʌt; sʌla·mʌt.
saffron n. za·fəra·n.
sahib n. sa·b.
said pc. having — n·..ən*; nosen; nəxa.

497a

saint n. pir; wali; buzurg.
sais n. ałtan.
saiyid n. sevit.
salaam n. salam; v.s.v. 3. jur.
salary n. tanxa; talab.
sale n. v.s.v. gaf.
saliva n. bisqa.
sallow n. ṭrkark.
salt n. rock — baiyu x; granular — baiyu y; 'loaf' of — sal.
salt-sweet adj. gałbrum.
salt-tax n. baiyu.a bap.
salpetre n. ṭadur.
salutation n. jur; salam. salute, to v.t. 3. jur ot. same n. the — hanjuko; all the same adv. dorn ke (v.s.v. dunki).
samovar n. samawar.
sample n. namuna.
sand n. sa.o.
sand-trap n. sauwr kaŋ.
sandy adj. sa.okṭ.
sandals n. čapslimots.
sap n. tomulum ts.hil.
sapling n. ḍamo.
sarcasm n. čordo(?).
sate, to v.t. d°-asuljaiyas. sated, to be v.i. duljaiyas.
satin n. adrlas.
satisfaction n. ram; rizakoṭ; rizai.
satisfied adj. riza.
satisfy, to v.t. d°-asuljaiyas; riza °-al.; be satisfied (desire) galas.
saturated, to be v.i. disaras.
Saturday n. šimšer.
sauce n. tsamik.
sausage n. work.
save, to v.t. d°-aspasas; xalus °-al.
saved, to be v.i. d°-n.esas.
savour n. mazu.
savoury adj. uyam; mazadar.
saw n. horiṭi.

497b

saw, to v.t. *-xərʌs.
say, to v.t. ʌsʌs; *-ʌsʌs; γərʌw; ɛlʌs. saying n. bər; ʌsʌs.
scab n. kokərə.
scabbard n. ywlgʒ.
scald, to v.t. jak *-ʌt.; mʌrʒ *-ʌt.
scald-headed adj. bʌʃə.
scales n. jakərɨ; čərʌrzu.
scanty-beard n. kusu.
scapegrace n. čərkogərə.
scapula n. burɨ.
scar n. čʌpʌʒ.
scarce, to be v.i. pirpi m.
scarcity n. kam; taŋ; taŋgɨ; v.s.v. ʌbʌs.
scarecrow n. γʌqali (cp. γʌkali); N. gʌkali; bʌγʌrʌrçə.
scatter, to v.i. dərm m.; v.t. giyʌs; jʌli.ʌs; pfau st.; pfirufau st.
scattered adj. gərʌrɨ.
scattered, to be v.i. pfau m.; dərm m.; (of grain) ɨər m. school n. madrʌsa.
scent n. nʌs.
scissors n. qʌčɨ; N. dəgər.
scoop up, to v.t. v.s.v. pfi.
scorched adj. jak mʌnəm.
score n. (line) grʒɨ; (record) haiyʌn; (= 20) ʌrltər.
score, to v.t. (goal) hʌla st.; (keep record) haiyʌn st. or ərʌs.
scour, to v.t. xʌʒ xʌʒ st.
scowl, to v.t. *-ʌkil bʌbʌl st.
scrabble, to v.i. qʌqər *-m.
scrap n. phurk; (of cloth) čirirpo; fiərko (of leather) čhʌγə; (of wood) pfirirnč.
scrape, to, scratch, to v.t. qʌr st.; gʌjʌl st.; (with nails or claws) γʌʒʌm st.
scratch at, to v.i. 1. qʌqər *-m. scratching n. qʌr.
scream n. qyur.
scream, to v.i. qyur st.
scree n. dʌʒər.

498a

000 screw n. pinč.
screwdriver n. pončkal; pinikas.
scrotum n. ḍarmal; v.s.v. baṭ.
scum n. 2. γaš.
sea n. samandər.
seal n. mor.
seam n. burʌn.
search, to v.i. odorri st.; ʃal st.; talaṽ st.
search for, to v.t. odorri st.
search through, to v.t. pʃiṭirk pʃoʃurk st.
season n. khʌn; parṣi.
seat, to v.t. *-ʌurʊʃʌs; *-ʌspʌsʌs; — o.s. bʌsʌrs.
second(ly) adj., adv. altovulum.
secret n. čap; 1. sir. secretly adv. ūyʌmo; notʌγʌn; (v.s.v. dʌγai.ʌs); 3. ṣaq.
section n. ʃatori, (of population) maqso; khʌn; (tribal) kutor; (of grass land) gṛṣi.
secure, to v.t. d-ʌγurkʌs; *-yaiyʌs; (rights etc.) ṣeryʌs.
security n. zʌmamʌl.
see, to v.i. khirl m.; v.t. yitsʌs; -(y)ʌtsʌs.
seed n. γuno; (of cereals) bo; bokʌl; bormo.
"seed-scattering" n. bopʃau.
seedling n. ṛipors; (tree) diṣṣo; mirṣ.
seek, to v.t. odorri st.; talaṽ st. — seem, to v.i. γʌnʌrs; — to see *-ʌγʌnʌs. seer n. (weight) ser; (soothsayer) bilʌn. seesaw n. N. gərzʌŋgarirl.
seize, to v.t. durnʌs; *-yʌnʌs (hx); gʌnʌs (y); (of pain) giyʌs; to make (people) — dorgunʌs.
select, to v.t. d-ʌsqʌlʌs; *dʌmši -ʌl.; xuš st.
selected, to be v.i. doγarʌlʌs.
self n. -ḍim; ji.
self pron. (emphatic) -i; -ḍim; (reflex.) -khər v. §§ 142, 144; of one — v.s.v. muratti.
self-coloured adj. gurro.

498 b

000 self-controlled adj. bʌsum.

self-respect n. γɛrʌt.
self-respecting adj. gɛrʌtdar.
self-restrained adj. v.s.v. hʌnisarɛ.
self-willed adj. hʌŋərʌʃ; qarqʌrum (p. 298).
sell, to v.t. gʌʃ ɛt.
selvedge n. ilmeʃ.
semen n. bo; sise γono; to have an emission of — -tsimo juyʌs*.
send, to v.t. (persons) -ʌrʌs*; -ʌtsuyʌs*; d-ʌrʌs*; (things) dortsʌs; v.s.v. d-ʌtsʌs*.
senior adj. uyum.
sense n. hurš; (intelligence) ʌqəl; to come to one's —s hurəər wʌlʌs; čhərči wʌlʌs.
senseless adj. pʌl; bi-hurš.
senses n. čhərči.
sensible adj. ʌqəlkrʃ.
sentry n. tsər; tsərguin; to patrol as — kar m. separate adj. ir; čəraʃi; čhito.
separate, to v.i. dorarʌʃʌs; čəraʃi or čhito or itse m.; v.t. čəraʃi or *čhito -ʌt.; itse ɛt.; d-ʌčʌqʌrʌs*; (grain by hand) ɛrəpupurʌs.
separated adj. čəraʃi; wʌq.
separately adv. ir; itsi (v.s.vv. 1. -tse & -tsi* d.). sepoy n. sipa.i.
September n. sɛtʌmbər.
septum n. nʌʃ.
servant n. durozkuin; ʃʌdər; norkər; personal — xɪsmʌtgar; trusted — mʌhʌrʌm; Mir's head — yʌsorl; female — kʌniz.
service n. ʃʌdəri; norkəri; xɪdmʌt; (to God) bʌndɛgi; (advantage) fai.ɪda; in — of -ʌkartum*.
serviceable, to be v.i. *doro -čhi.ʌs.
set n. -kum v. § 151; — of 10 tɔrumʌn; — of clothes ts.hir; tam.

499a

000

set, to v.i. (of sun etc.) buʷr m.; (of milk etc.) dumʌnʌs; v.t. oʷsʌs; *-wʌši.ʌs (h objects), wʌši.ʌs (x objects), bɪšaiyʌs (y objects); (milk) dɛʷsmʌnʌs.

set before, to v.t. pivš st.; 2. yaʷɛ oʷsʌs.

set down, to v.t. d-ʌskuyʌs*.

set loose, to v.t. fʌt -ʌt.

set on, to v.t. hẽ st.

set out, to v.i. duwʌšɛ.ʌs; rʌwaʷna m.

set up, to v.t. d-ʌ.iyʌs*; bʌja st.

setting n. (of sun etc.) buʷr.

settle, to v.i. bʌsaʷs; hʊruʷʈʌs; hʊručaiyʌs (pl. subj.); v.t. *-ʌskɔrtsʌs; *-ʌ.ʊruʈʌs; ɛspʌsʌs; (a case) d-ʌsqʌʈʌs*; faisʌla st.; hʌnpa st.

settle down, to v.i. hʊruʷʈʌs; hʊručaiyʌs (pl. subj.); *-wʌlʌs.

settled, to be v.i. iʷti khiʷti m.; (of land) abaʷd m.; (of case) faisʌla m.; hʌnpa m.; gʌʷrtsʊm or ɛskɔrtsʊm m.; doγaʷʌʈʌs.

settlement n. (of case) ʌstʌm; faisʌla.

seven num. thʌlo (hxy); thʌlɛ (z).

seventh ord. thʌle.uʷlʊm.

seventeen num. tʊrma thʌlo, -thʌlɛ.

seventy num. iʷski aʷltɔr toʷrʊmo.

several adj. beʷrʊmʌn.

severe(ly) adj., adv. ḍʌŋ; ḍoʷm; 1. ʈʌwaʷ.

severity n. naʷi; pfiʈoʷi.

sew, to v.t. çuʷk st.; *-ts.hʌpʌnʌs.

sewing n. çuʷk; — thread çuʷk stʌs sɔr.

sewn adj. ts.hʌpʌnʊm; çuʷk stʊm.

shade, shadow n. yʌl; *-yʌl.

shake, to v.i. dʌdɔr m.; lʌŋ m.; lʌq m.; lɔrza m.; zʌlzʌl m.; v.t. lʌŋ st.; (up and down) tsʌq tsʌq st.

shale n. bʌt; duxɔrʌs dʌn; duwʌšɛ.ʌs dʌn.

shallow adj. tʌlaʷso; N. šʌl.

shame n. šɪqɔr; thuʷki; šɔrʊm; to feel — *-šqɔrʌs; *-ʌmʌlʌs; for —! pʌsoʷm!

shame-faced adj. šɔrmɪnda.

4996

000

shape n. kʌlib; (likeness) bʌṭ; šʌkʌl; to take — d-mʌnʌs*; (with y subj.) dumʌnʌs. shapeless adj. wʌno.
share n. *-γərum; ba·go; he·ši; 2. pʌči; bərkʌt; equal — bʌbər; trʌŋ; — of forced labour mʌqso.. share, to v.t. ba·go ɛt.; — equally trʌŋ or bʌ·go ɛt.
sharp adj. hi·rum; bʌbərum.
shave, to v.t. qʌr ɛt.
shawl-cloth n. qa·r.
she pron. i·nɛ, v. §§ 117, 120.
she- adj. gus-.
she-colt n. gus birʌγo.
she-goat n. ts.hi·r; N. ts.hi·gir.
she herself pron. mumu·i, v. § 142.
sheaf n. bu·s.
shear, to v.t. -yərʌnʌs*.
shears n. gəre.i.
sheath n. yu·lgrṣ̌.
shed n. guṭi.
sheep n. šeγpʌlkrṣ̌; huyɛ·s; hu.o·; wild — ru·š; yɛṭʌl; (ewe) be·lis; (young) female) me·nis; (young castrated male) tuγuli; — sacrificed after a death daxau.ukuts. V. s.v. "ram".
sheep- n. hu.o·kum; huyɛ·skum.
sheepskin n. hu.o·ɛ bʌṭ; me·nisɛ bʌṭ hu.o·kum bʌṭ.
sheet n. ča·dɪr.
shelf n. bʌlk.
shelter n. čo·kuṭo; čo·kuṭi; (under rock) ko·r; γərba·nts.
shell n. (of nut or fruit stone) tumʌy; egg — ṭiŋʌne· wʌṭ.
shepherd n. huyɛ·ltərts.
shield n. khi·.
shift, to v.t. lʌŋ ɛt.
shin n. pi·ni.
Shīn n. šɛ·n.
Shinā n. šɛniski.

500a

000 shine, to v.i. lʌm or lʌlʌm m.; sʌŋ m. shingle n. qhüyɛ; N. gowo.
shingly adj. qhüyɛkrš.
ship n. jʌhawz; kršti; na.o.
shirt n. (man's) kuwdi; (woman's) 3. pʌči; gʌfu.
shivering adj. zʌŋzʌŋ.
shoe n. kʌfša; horse — sʌp.
shoe, to v.t. (horse) sʌp *-ʌt.; sʌp *-ʌdilʌs; sʌp ɛpusʌs.
shoot n. šolto; (large) ḍʌmo.
shoot, to v.i. bišʌiyʌs; trʌn ɛt.; čhʌp ɛt.; v.t. dɛlʌs; *-dɛlʌs; d-ʌlʌs*; dolʌs.
shop n. dukawn.
shop-keeper n. dukʌndaw; sodʌgər.
shops n. bawzaw.
short adj. khuwf; (person) čhʌf.
shortage n. kʌm; tʌŋ; tʌŋgi.
shot n. čhəra; gərk; muka; N. kiyɛ.
shotgun n. čhəra or muka tobʌq.
should . . ., should have . . . tsɛ, v. § 351. shoulder n. *-pfowiŋ; *-ʌš; (of horse) *-ltʌltər; on the —s ḍowq.
shoulder, to v.t. ḍus dɛli.ʌs or duwnʌs.
shoulder-blade n. buwi.
shout n. lawo; qau; qyuw.
shout, to v.i. qau ɛt.; qyuw ɛt.; (battle-cry) ha ha ɛt.
shouting n. žawo; žawo qyuw.
shove, to v.t. ṭhʌŋ *-ʌt.; ṭhiŋṭhʌŋ *-ʌt.; 1. zʌq ɛt.: *-ʌrʌs; — into čawm *-ʌt.
shovel n. buwi; hərivš; belča.
show n. tʌmawša.
show, to v.i. ɣʌnaws; pfawš m.; duwʌšɛ.ʌs; v.t. *-ʌltiwʌs; pfawš or sail *-ʌt; khiwl ɛt.
show off, to v.i. ɣɪlliwʌs.
show up, to v.t. d-ʌwʌltʌs.*
shower n. hərawlt.
showy adj. liwo lawo.
shrine n. astawn; zi.awrʌt.

500 b shroud n. kʌfʌn; durguʿtsikrš. 000 shut adj. ṭʌm; bʌn; (of eyes) v.s.v. -ʌstʌqayʌs*.

shut, to v.t. ṭʌm st.; bʌn st.; (lid) waʿrʌs; (eyes) -ʌstʌqayʌs*.
shut in, to v.t. d-ʌšs.ʌs*.
shut off, to v.t. (water) yoʿrʌs.
shut up, to v.t. (animals) -khʌči.ʌs*.
shut up! ya!; yaʿya!; yaiyɛ!
shy adj. šərumkrš; šərmɪnda.
sick adj, γʌliʿs.
sickle n. bisərš.
sickness n. γʌliʿzkoš; bi.ai.i. sickly adj. γʌlisaṭo.
side n. pa; mus; -qʌt*; pʌči; (of person) -ʌpʌt*; -skiʿl*; (below arm) -soγut* (in game) -yʌkʌl*; both —s. of ilbʌṭ; wrong — ʌpʌrts; this — khiʿti; v.s.v. pfər.
side- adj. pʌčimo.
sieve n. γərbel; čuq.
sift, to v.t. dʌldinʌs; d-ʌsqʌṭʌs*.
sigh, to v.i. hiš st.; hai hai st.
sight n. nʌzər.
sign n. išaʿra; dərʌk; haiyʌn; nɪšaʿn (to be seated) zaʿq; (of Zodiac) čurji sign, to v.i. išaʿra st.
signet ring n. buromdo.
silence n. čup; to keep — čup m. or st.; bʌsaʿs.
silence, to v.t. čʌpčup or *čup -ʌt.
silent adj. čup; čʌpčup.
silk n. (raw) čhuʿši; (fabric) sɪkim; adj. sɪkimɛ.
silk cocoon n. čhuʿši.ɛ pəšoro.
silkworm n. čhuʿši.ɛ γʌlγu.
silver n. buriʿ; adj. buriʿɛ.
similar adj. ʌkiʿljuʿko; hʌnjuʿko; ju.ʌn.
simple adj. thi; hʌnḍʌm; hinzi; ʌʌm; saʿda.
simultaneously adv. nʌla; hɪk nʌla.
sin n. guna; hubaʿl.

501 a

since prep. -tsum; — when? bešilmutsum? 000 conj. besiki.
sinew n. (of neck or heel) jauwa. sinful adj. gunagaw.
sing, to v.i. γər st.
single adj. hinzir; a — day hikulto.
sink, to v.i. -γurtsʌs; γurtsaʷs;
v.t. -ʌsgurtsʌs.
sip n. γiḍiŋ.
sip, to v.t. ḫuʷk st.
Sir (voc.) nʌzər; nʌna.
sister n. (man's) -yʌs; (woman's) -ʌçə;
mother's — -mi; mimo moʷçə;
father's -ntsə; husband's — -rik;
-ʌçə; elder — (in privileged circles) kaʷki.
sister-in-law n. (man's) -yʌs; (woman's)
-rik; -ʌçə.
sit, to, sit down, to v.i. hurutʌs; hurucaiyʌs (pl. subj.); — still bʌsaʷs; tsʰiʌs; to cause to — -ʌ urutʌs; ʷspʌsʌs.
six num. mʌšiʷndə (h, x, y); mʌšiʷndi (z).
sixteen num. turma mʌšiʷndə, -mʌšiʷndi.
sixth ord. mʌšiʷndilum.
sixty num. iʷski aʷltər.
sized adj. (of cloth) maiyadaʷr.
sizzle, to v.i. jʌjʌm st.
skeleton n. čərʌk.
skewer n. pfiriʷnč.
skill n. ustaʷdi; hunər.
skilful adj. hunərmʌn; ustaʷd.
skilfully adv. hunərʷ ka. skin n. baḫ; (for water) mʌšk; inflated
— N. mʌyuʷḫ; təriŋ.
skin, to v.t. -fʌtərʌs; baḫ daʷl st.
skin-float n. N. mʌyuʷḫ.
skirt n. lʌmʌn; (of choga) -lʌmʌt.
skull-cap n. tupo pfʌrtsin.
sky n. aiyʌš; ʌsmaʷn; cloudy — burumç.
sky-blue adj. aiyʌš ḫiqʌm; ʌsmaʷn ḫiqʌm.
skylight n. ʌsgʌm; ʌsm.

501 b

ŏ00 slack adj. bʌlgʌl; jʌfʌt; (of person) tɔrʌḍo; ʌrʌḍo; sus; bʌɣondo; bʌɣondokṛṭ; tɔrɣʊt; (of water) tʌl.
slackly adv khiŋ khʌŋ.
slackness n. tɔrʌḍe.i.
slackster n. bʌɣondokṛṭ.
slander, to talk v.i. ʃur m. slander, to v.t. pfi *-ʌt.; tsʌʌq *-ʌt.
slandered adj. badnɔm.
slanderer n. bɔriŋkṛṭ; lɔvo jɔvo; čutlikṛṭ.
slap n. ʃɔu.
slap, to v.t. trʌp *-ʌt.; tʌtʌn *-ʌt.; (v.s.v. 3. tʌn).
slaughter, to v.t. khʌš *-ʌt; ʃuyʌs (v.s.v. ʃiʌs. 5) slave n. tɔcn; (female) kʌniv.
slay, to v.t. *-ʌsqʌnʌs; *-dʌlʌs; khʌš *-ʌt; *-ʌxrʌs.
slaying n. khʌš.
sledge-hammer n. ʌmdʌn.
sleep n. dʌŋ; unawaking — dɔr; short — ʃuk; to go to — *-ʌyrnʌs; dʌŋ dɔsuryʌs; to put to — *-ʌgɔčʌiyʌs; *dʌŋ d-ʌtsʌs.
sleep, to v.i. (to lie sleeping) gučhʌiyʌs; v.s.v. pfuŋ.
sleeping-platform n. mʌn; šin.
sleeve n. ʃiŋs.
slender adj. bi.nɔm; sisinɔm.
slice n. čhɔr; (of gourd) ʃokɔro.
slice, to v.t. čɔrʌp *-ʌt.
slide, to v.i. qʌr or 1. šʌq m. slight adj. sisinɔm.
slightly adv. lokʌn; kʌm.
slime n. jʌɣʌʃu.
slimy adj. jɔɣʌjʌɣʌʃo šrɣiʃum.
slip, to v.i. ʃʌq or tʌʃ m.; to cause — ʃʌq *-ʌt.
slippery adj. tʌʃ; šrɣiʃum; (of ice) ʃʌq; wet and — tsʌhilɣṛṭ.
slope n. — up hurɣo; — down ɣuru; diračo; face of — *-ndil.

000 sleping adj. (down) diraćo.
slow adj. ts.hwm.
slow-flowing adj. tsl.
slowly adv. thala; mulęrm.
sluice, sluice-board n. tsak.
smack, to v.t. tatan *-at.; trap *-at.
smacking n. tan(tan); tatan.
small adj. jęf.
small of back n. *-alčiŋ.
smallpox n. askwr.
smart adj. hirwm; haborum.
smash, to v.i. tag st.
smashed, to be v.i. tag m.
smell n. nas.
smell, to v.i. v.a.v. nas; v.t. 1*-gaiyas; ĝwŋ st.; 2. ĝū st.
smile, to v.i. mor m.; mōŋ mor st.
smiling-faced adj. sumsaŋ.
smite, to v.i. *-dalas: dalas; — with *-sorkas.
smoke n. thas; — of burning rue thomal; cloud of — dumaḷ.
smoke, to v.i. taskrw; minrw.
smoke-hole n. sagam; sam; sorm; frame of — samariḷ; samaraŋ.
smooth adj. rat; (of ground) ḍiḍiŋ; čiḍiŋ; (of paper) ka yirjum; — and precipitous taḷ; quite — ram rat.
smut n. (grain disease) matal.
snake n. 1. tol; yusanum.
snap, to v.i. čaḷ st.; ĝurḷ st.; korap st.
snare n. fork.
snatch up, to v.i. yalam st.
sneeze, to v.i. thiyum st.
snipe n. čirbit.
snore, to v.i. xur. or xor st.
snoring n. xor.
snort, to v.i. xor st.; (of horse) thor st.
snot n. *-mol.
snow n. gu; gya; soft — krl; hard — gim; — and wind moyaŋ.
snow-drifts n. gečiŋ.

snowflakes n. gye dapiq. 000 snow storm n. meyaq.
snow-water n. ḫele ṭ.hil.
snuff n. ʜʌʀʌʀʌʀ; ʜʌʀʌʀʌʀʌ tamarku.
soaffe n. 2. ṭṭ.
so adv. ʌkhiʿl; ʌkhiʿlʌṭe; dʌkhiʿl; ṭai; ṭail; ṭailʌṭe.
so and so n. ʃalama.
so much adv. bevum(ʌn); tevum(ʌn); ḫevum(ʌn).
so . . . that conj. ṭaki.
soak, to v.t. -iʿlʌs*; to be —ed diʿlʌs.
soap n. sabun.
socks n. jeraḃ; felt — bapeis.
sod n. hakor.
sodomy n. to commit — imiʿrʌs.
soft adj. ʌsu; hili-lum; kryiṭum; ʏʌʀʏiʿt; (damp) diʿlgin; (of ground) purf; half — ʟʌmorʌṭe.
soften, to v.t. (by kneading) yʌṭamorʌs (x obj.), gʌṭamorʌs (y obj.).
softly adv. thala. soiled adj. ther.
sole n. (of shoe) bada; v.s.v. iski; (of boot) 2. ṭoq; (of foot) bada.
solidify, to v.i. d-mʌnʌs*; dumʌnʌs.
soldier n. sipai.
solitary adj. hinoman (h); hʌnoman (x, y); ʏʌqali; (single-handed) humuin.
solstice n. iʿla; summer — hinimo iʿla; winter — hai.imo iʿla. somehow adv. amolo; be ṭailʌṭe.
some adj., pron. bevum(ʌn); bevu; tevum; hevʌn; khiʿvumʌn; by — way ʌmiṭʌle.
someone pron. men, v. § 148 ff.
something pron. hevʌn, v. § 152. sometimes adv. bekal bekal; hik...
somewhat adv. zali.
somewhere adv. amolo; ʌm; ʌmiʿle ʌm.
son n. -i*; daughter and — -ʌk -i.
sons n. -yu*.
son-in-law n. -ʌrʌr*.

000

son's wife n. *-xakin.
song n. γər; marriage — kajoli.
soon adv. ta.kor; homalkum; duŋ ačo.
soot n. xalowaŋ.
soothsay, to v.i. fal giyas.
soothsayer n. bifan; najum; ramalči.
sorcerer n. bifan; ɬrqarčin.
sorcery n. ɬrqa.
sore n. gal.
sore, to be v.i. -xolas*; -xolinas*; ɬaɖaq m.
sore-backed adj. balγan; -waldas ɬaɖaq*.
sorrow n. ərmarn; γam; v.s.vv. afsus, pasorm, jark.
sorrow, to v.i. ərmarn st.
sorrowful adj. γamgin.
sort n. čuq; qrsum; zail; of what —? bečuq?; beljuki.ents?; beiki?; be zaile?; all sorts, every — beskum.
sort out to v.t. d-asqaṭas*. soul n. ji; rwh.
sound n. -čhər*; biḍiŋ; γaγam. V. List of Onomatopœic Words.
sound, to v.t. (drums) ḍam ḍam st.
soup n. kai.i; 2. xam; jolurṭ; N. jüli.
sour adj. ɬuqurum.
south n. janub.
sovereign n. tham.
sovereignty n. thamkoɬ.
sow, to v.t. giyas; jali.as; hərki st.; to cause s.o. — (seed) -agiyas*.
space n. diš; ta.hanzər; — at lower end of room yorči; — of time khern; peri sa; čarnčan; muddat.
spacious adj. šorqum.
spade n. bel.
span n. tiṭči; v.s.v. dečaqər.
spare adj. (excessive) bask; baskorčo; — time forsat; 1. dər.
spare, to v.t. kurri.ap st.
spark n. jərjər; flying — čiṭəriz.
sparkling adj. liro laro.

000 sparrow-hawk n. kirki.
spatula n. — for turning, bread on griddle mutwik; — funeral bread kwski mutwik.
speak, to v.i. yuruv; ann.as; — in small cheeping voice dywtiw el.; v.t. (a language) ctas.
speak ill of, to v.t. d-anigyas*. speaker n. yuruv.
spear n. nizu.
spectacle n. tamasha.
spectacles n. ai.in.ak.
spectacular adj. tamashakaj.
speech n. hurj; (saying) lur, avnas.
spell n. 2. dam; 2. tiyu.
spend, to v.t. -a.uri.as*; uri el.; -aras*.
spices n. masala.
spider n. yfirvan; thin-legged — kaqka; biting — kurkan.as.
spill, to v.i. dimiyas; tufuu m.; tufaq m.; v.t. 3. dhaf el.; dremiyas; mati.as (z obj.), kituiyas (y obj.).
spilt adj. 3. dhaj.
spilt, to be v.i. yfru m.
spin, to v.t. diw el.; dewpin.as; (top) yfur el.
spin round, to v.i. yfapur m.; v.t. yfapur el.
spindle n. gand; (for warp yarn) jurkand; (for goat's hair) dwk.
spinster n. marjaq.
spirit n. (drink) arag; (of dead) rwk; hui indurrya.as.
spiritual leader n. piir.
spit, to v.i. ilur el.
spite n. 1. yul; 2. gal.
spiteful adj. galkaj.
splash n. yufam.
spleen n. -aan*.
splinter n. timili; yfirvat.
split adj. thraq.

5048

split, to v.i. ḳuarras; tkraq nāyas or -m.; v.t. -arras; ḳar or tkraq st.; d-qarras* (p. 134).
spoil, to v.t. -aqukkas*.
spoilt adj. (of child) ḳupuq.
spoilt, to become v.i. qalalas.
spontaneously adv. ē; . . . vorali.
spool n. mayun.
spoon n. ākapun; pipalt; (with upright handle) čuk ākapun; gwiruki ākapun.
sport n. darn; ṭākar; kawras.
sports n. tamarāk.
spot n. 1. tkarn; jirka.
spotted n. m.f. jamarsl.
spout n. furāl.
spread, to v.i. (of a sore etc.) daḳ'arralinas; v.t. d-arras*. spread out, to v.i. d-daqarras*; dinkkirras; v.t. d-atairras*.
spread over, to v.t. kayi m.
spring n. (season) garu; garralas; (of water) kurl; (of metal) niwi; adj. garuma.
spring up, to v.i. kurl m.; dawaklas; čil m.
sprinkle, to v.t. tkkar st.; jalilas; dalas.
sprinkled, to be v.i. tkkar m. sprout to v.i. ailikiqas; čil m.
spur n. (of hill) ivrāl; (of rock) -pkawala*.
sputtering n. 2. jinjar. spy n. ralaniq ewqas; kaniq adawi alas.
squander, to v.t. -arras*; -aqualas*.
square adj. warilla iskirliq; warilla gawramla.
squat, to v.i. jirq m.
squeak, to v.i. (of mouse or rat) čiw čiw st.
squeeze, to v.t. d-ahilas*. squint-eyed adj. kanjar.
stab, to v.t. *tijkak -dalas; awqp st.
stable n. tawkaq.
stable, to be v.i. laq ownas.
stabling n. v.n. mahar.

000

stack n. ṭakal; (cut crops) kuvṛ.
stack, to v.t. (crops) dumatsas.
staff n. °-ṣfaṛo; dovṛo.
stage n. (of journey) bana.
stagnant adj. tal.
staircase, stairs n. galiṛ.
stake n. (in wager) halimow.
stale adj. kovṛ.
stale, to v.i. kovṛi.as stalk n. kiriyanas.
stalks n. khina.
stallion n. čhorda.
stammerer n. gakaṭi.
stamp, to v.i. ḍim or ḍimḍim el.
stamp down, to v.t. °-atsi.as; zag el.
stand up, to v.i. dal m.; di.ṛyas; dal di.ṛyas; to make s.o. — d°-aṛyas.
standard n. alam.
standing adj. daldi.em; ṭaḍ; ṭas; (water) ṭal.
standstill n. to come to a — hasav; horwṭas; ṭaḍ m. star n. asi; morning — laṭhav.
Constellations: gurv ṭaṛa, kori.s ṭakal, čhalo ojokow, yaṭamia, levli o majawa, ṭwaṛa, ki. stark adv. — naked lalow (p. 246); ṭas lag (v.s.v. 1. lag).
start, to v.i. zor °-m.
start out, to v.i. ramawa m. startle, to v.t. ar °-al.
startled adj. atwa; ar; bek.
starving adj. čhalo; čhamrow; (and tottering) lagay pagay.
state n. (condition) kol; kolat; ahwal; kawal; without — or dignity gala.
state, to v.t. ovi m.; bugat el.
statement n. lor; čaya; baggra; ovi; bugat.
stay, to v.i. d°-u.atas; horwṭas; jap °-m.; to make s.o. — °-awṭas; jap °-al.; v.t. (prop up) d°-atsiyas.

505a

000

steadfast adj. čhomavs.
steady adj. γavqutsz bun.
steal, to v.t. γivki st.; γivki ts.huyas.
stealth n. by — notaγan, v.a.v. ďaγai.as.
steam n. hak.
steel n. fulard; rivl; N. čhomav; — for flint čamax.
steep adj. čorko; huvgo; very — čam čorko.
steer n. ts.hivor.
step n. gapfivnas; N. kapivnas; (pace) bada; —s (stairs) galiŋ; taking long —s jiŋjaŋ.
step- adj. jamirp; N. du.ivčo.
stepfather n. nana; kavko.
stepmother n. iljum *-mi.
sternum n. hollow below — *-askhapun.
steward n. yərpa; fəraj.
stick n. (walking) *-pfaγo; *-pauuco; dəroγo; (thick) ďamo; (fuel) γaštvl; (for tipcat) γatenč; polo- phivnč; drum — pirčavno.
stick, to v.i. xərafas; čas m.; v.t. *-aqərafas.
stick into, to v.t. gafavs.
sticky adj. čaqəravfo.
stiff adj. ďaŋ; kuravfi.
still adv. dərum xa; muvto xa; muvto ka.
sting n. ssl.
sting, to v.i. čoruf *-al.; delas.
stingy adj. qərum; jorkhuvso.
stink, to v.i. 2. *-γasas; γasavs sinking adj. nas.
stint n. without — v.a.v. d-aγanas.
stint, to v.t. d-aγanas.
stipulation n. kavf.
stir, to v.i. laŋ m.; v.t. gav (gav) st., jərajərag st.
stirrup n. 1. khay.
stirrup leather n. khayz bərpivt.
stitch n. long — kok.
stitch, to v.t. buvan st.; kok delas.

5056

000 stock n. bɐl; nʌsʌl; zʌt; — of gun kʊnda; large — of čhoṭ.
stockings n. bapot.
stocks n. γʊn.
stone n. dʌn; γoro; flat — bʌt; single, upright dʌščikin; boulder bun; small, round ṭhir; (for grinding on) sʌl; (for fireplace) šutin; pfʌretsin; flint pfudʌn; — for mill sʌldʌn; marble sʌŋgi mərmər; for cooking pots bʌloṛš dʌn; — rolling down ṭiŋa; about to roll down N. qoqʊr; loose scree ḍʌḍər; for plugging water channel ṭorri.
stone, to v.t. dʌn *-ʌt.
stone blind adj. trʌp šon.
stone lamp n. bʌloṛš dʌnɐ čɪrʌq.
stone-marten n. remizɐl.
stone-shoot n. (on hillside) ṭiŋʌt.
stony adj. ḍʌḍərkɪṛš.
stooping adj. ḍuḍuŋ.
stop! ya!; yaya!
stop, to v.i. tsʌṭ m.; (of bad weather) jaŋ m.; v.t. d-ʌšɐ.ʌs*; (a horse) d-ʌtsi.ʌs*.
stop up, to v.t. d-ʌskʌṭʌs*; (dam) dɐtsaiyʌs. stopped, to be v.i. 2. *qʌqər -m.; d-khʌṭʌs* h, x subj.); dukhʌṭʌs (y subj.).
stopped up adj. bʌnd.
stopped up, to be v.i. dišaiyʌs.
store, to v.t. ḍʌŋ ɐt.; collect and — dɐmi.ʌs. storehouse, storeroom n. ulʌči; 2. ḍʌp; (on roof) mʌra; (for butter) 1. ḍər.
story n. minʌs; čʌγa.
stout adj. dʌγʌnʊm; dʌy; hurgʌs; kəragʌḍo; very — person pfut.
stout-hearted adj. *-ʌsɐ ḍʌŋ; *-ʌsɐ poxta.
straight adj. ts.hʌn; dʊts.hʌnʊm; quite — tsʌm ts.hʌn; adv. uṭkum; ts.hʌn.
straight, to become v.i. dʊts.hʌnʌs.

506a

000 straighten, to v.t. d-ʌtsʌnʌs. straight up adv. tsʌhʌn yʌʃ nɛ.
strain, to v.t. dʌldinʌs; (liquid) *-ʌsisinʌs.
strained adj. ɛsisinʊm.
strained tight adj. jaʷʂ ɛtʊm.
strainer n. po; ʒoli.
straits n. ʌbʌš; in — tʌŋ.
strand n. (of river) 2. khʌy.
strange adj. ʌkhɛʂ; holʊm; ʌjoʷno; ʌjʌp.
stranger n. ʌkhɛʂ; holʊm sis.
strangle, to v.t. buʷkulo ʂoʷk -ʌt.
strap n. bərpiʷt; tutuʷr; tʌsma; (surcingle) baʷlatrʌŋ; (of plough) aʷškiʷltər.
stratagem n. mʌkər.
straw n. khina; broken — xuʷrk.
strawberry n. tiʷk birʌnč; wild — kərusʌl.
stream n. (in nullah) bərts.hil; hʊriginʌs.
strength n. šʌt; šʌtili.aʷr; lʊm.
strenuous adj. (of worker) tisqʌn.
stretch out, to v.t. jɛk -ʌt.; ʃiŋ ɛt.
stretched out adj. jɛk stretcher n. 2. chiš; ʒuʷk.
strew, to v.t. d-ntsirʌs.*
strewn about adj. gərʌʷri stride, to v.i. jiŋjaʷŋ m.; waʷŋ m.
strike, to v.t. d-ʌlʌs*; dɛlʌs; -dɛlʌs; -sərkʌs; gʌjʌt ɛt.; ʂau ɛt.; tʌm tʌm ɛt.; -muʷrʊʃʌs; (flag) *d*ʌskuyʌs*; (match) kʌč ɛt.; — a blow čoʃ -uʷyʌs; ʂau ɛt.; (of clock) v.s.v. ɛʷʒərʌs.
strike against, to v.t. (*-)yaiyʌs.
strike up, to v.t. (song) di.usʌs.
string n. ḍʊlu; (of choga) ʃʌk; (of bow) čhukus; (of beads etc.) tsʌhir.
stroke n. čoʃ; ʂau.
stroke, to v.t. xʌš xʌš ɛt.; (horse) ʂaʷq ɛt.
stroll, to v.i. kaʷr m.
strong adj. ḍʊm; šʌtiʷlo; kərʌgʌḍo; zʊʷr; — and fit saʷro.
study n. sʌbʌq.

506 b

000

study, to v.i. sʌbʌq γʌtʌnʌs.
stuff, to v.t. — s.t. into *-ʌrʌs; čʌvm *-ʌt.; *-ʌtsi.ʌs.
stumble, to v.i. d-ʌpirkʌnʌs; təɣʌm m.
stump n. gʌmum, mum. stubble n. mumʌnts; gʌmumyo.
stupid adj. hʌn ḍʌm; be-ʌqəl; be-oquf; hʌŋajʌŋa.
stupidity n. navaami.
sturdy adj. savro.
stutterer n. gʌkʌči.
subjects n. kuyoč.
submerge, to v.t. γərk st.; *-ʌsqortsʌs.
subside, to v.i. bʌsavs; ts.hivʌs.
subsistence n. guzavra; ruvzi.
substitute n. bavgo; bʌdʌl.
succeeding adj. yʌṭ.
such adj. tai; tail; — as this ʌkhivl, pl. ʌkhiviljuvko.
such and such n. fʌlavna.
suck, to v.i. čuvš st.
suckle, to v.t. čuvš *-ʌt, or *-ʌ.ʌtʌs.
suckling n. giyavs.
suddenly adv. ṣormʌnʌčo; 1. ḍʌp.
suds n. γʌš.
suffer, to v.t. ševʌs, v.s.vv. 1. jʌk, & *-xovlʌs & cp. § 261. II. sufficient adj. bos; tušavr. suffocate, to v.i *-ʌs pfavnʌs; v.t. v.s.vv. dʌm; muvš.
sugar n. šʌkər; mɪsəri.
suicide n. to commit — v.s.vv. šʌk. šork & *-khər esqʌnʌs (v.s.v. *-ʌsqʌnʌs).
suit n. (of clothes) kʌt; hinzir; (at law) ʌstʌm.
suit, to v.t. d-mʌyʌs; to make s.t. — s.t. else d-ʌsmʌyʌs.
suitable adj. yʌʌški; monavsrb.
sulphur n. dʌntsil.
summer n. šini; šinimo khevn; hottest period of — tʌmos; adj. šinimo.
summit n. ṭiŋ; 1. buvri; yuvri; *-thʌn.

507a

sunlight n. sʌŋkuʃ; sa.ɛ rʌš; first or last — on mountains thʌlivɛa; cp. sayaʷri.
sunrise n. jil.
sunset n. buʷr.
sunshine n. sa.ɛ rʌš; sa sʌŋkuʃ; sa.
superficial adj. dʌlbʌt.
superfluous adj. bʌsk; bʌskoʷčo.
superintendent n. yʌtkuʷin.
superior adj. mariŋ; šu.a. supernatural adj. γəibi; γəibaʷna; — effect v.s.vv. girgiš, pəriʷzʌzum, l. tiʃ.
V. List of Supernatural Beings.
supplication n. (to God) du.aʷ. supplies n. zʌkhəra; free — maʷri; olʌq.
support, to v.t. d°-ʌstsʌyʌs. supported, to be v.i. d°-uši.ʌs.
supposition n. gəmaʷn.
surcingle n. baʷlatrʌŋ.
sure adj. yʌqiʷn; — enough ts.hʌn ki ts.hʌn; for — albʌt.
surely adv. albʌt.
surety n. zrma.
surface n. iskiʷl; v.s.v. iʷski.
surround, to v.t. iḍigartʌli d°-ʌši.ʌs; čʌtərgʌt gʌnʌs; ḍʌtərgʌt d°-ʌši.ʌs; qʌbʌl wʌši.ʌs.
surrounding adj. šʌtərgʌtəm.
survive, to v.i. d°-u.sʌs; jʌp °-m. suspect, to v.i. šʌk m. suspend, to v.t. d°-trikinʌs; baʷl st.
suspended, to be v.i. d°-ts.higinʌs.
suspended adj. bʌbʌl.
suspense, in adv. dʌlbʌt.
suspension bridge n. (native) gʌl; (iron) čəmʌrɛ gʌl.
suspicion n. γəmaʷn; šʌk. swaddle, to v.t. °-ltāli.ʌs swaddling-band n. tʌliʃɛ bʌn swaddling clothes n. tʌliʃ.
swallow n. čiʷtərʌs.
swallow, to v.t. γiriʃ st.

5076

DOO swarm round, to v.i. durginas. swathe, to v.t. -ltalias.
swear, to v.i. terj st.
sweat n. horoγo; 2. tom.
sweep, to v.t. 4. fham st.
sweet adj. uyam; (endearment) ŝakar.
sweet-scented adj. uyam nas.
sweet-tongued adj. hemig daltatko.
swell, to v.i. doqas; pfamas; (of river etc.) holjaiyas.
swelling n. doqom; (of buds) pforkunas.
swelling up n. hom.
swift(ly) adj., adv. homalkom.
swim, to v.i. 3. tam delas; ŝor st.; N. gorqots delas.
swindle, to v.t. murasqots -delas.
swindler n. 1. fhak; feikrj; makorćen; makorkrj; morasqotskrj; ŝaitam.
swindling n. morasqots.
swine n. zurk.
swing n. N. bilićn.
swing, to v.i. bahal, qu or qubili m.
swing, to v.t. bahal st.; v. katu.
swinging n. bili.
swinging about adj. lor.
sword n. γalernę.
sympathetic adj. burlbalikrj.
sympathise, to v.i. ŝurl st.
sympathy n. ŝurl.
syphilis n. pfalaqi.
Syrian rue n. sepandor.

T.

table n. mir.
table-cloth n. mirzpurj.
tackle, to v.t. durnas.
tadpole n. khutgiyalt; N. mayulo ŝero.
tail n. -surmal; (of fat-tailed sheep) 2. durma.
tailor n. dorzi.
tainted adj. (of meat) pirhalal.

508a

000 take, to v.t. *-yanas (h, x obj.), ganas (y obj.); v.s.v. ga; to cause s.o. — *-ayanas; — a fancy to pfuč *-m.
take away, to v.t. *-ta.hurʏas; *-šiwas.
take care, to v.i. šaŋ st.
take off, to v.t. d*-usas; dal st.; to cause s.o. — d*-aguzas.
take out, to v.t. d*-usas.
take part, to v.i. jermaš m.
take place, to v.i. manav.
take up, to v.t. dal st.
take with (o.s.), to v.t. (person) *-akr yanas; (thing) *-tsi yanas(x), ganas(y).
tale n. minas; čaγa.
tale-bearer n. boriŋkrš.
talisman n. tumar.
talk, to v.i. γoraυs; čaγa st.; (secretly) γorγor m. talkative adj. qaγarum (p. 298); wago.
tall adj. γusanum; tharnum.
tally n. haiyan; to keep a — haiyan ovas or st. tally, to v.i. babor juryas; v.t. babor st.
tallying adj. babor.
talons n. čaŋ.
"talus" n. ďafor.
tamarisk n. hokor.
tambourine n. daf.
tame adj. herš; ramerš.
tamed adj. ramerš stum.
tangle, to v.i. doxuqas; duxorquyas; v.t. dəqəquryas.
tangled adj. doxuqum.
tank n. small open — 3. kor. Cp. γolk.
tap n. ďu.ak.
tap, to v.t. ďaqaďaŋ st.
tapping ťapťap.
tape n. ban.
taproot n. mulo.
target n. haiyan; (for arrow-shooting) giri.
tassel n. majoγ.

508 b

taste n. mʌza.
taste, to v.t. v.s v. pfurka.
tasteless adj. tərγuʃ; bimʌza; mʌza apim.
tasting n. nʌsirpa.
tasty adj. uyʌm; mʌzadaw.
tatters n. bodul.
taunt n. čordo.
taunt, to v.t. čordo *-čhiyʌs.
taut adj. jaṷ etom; tum.
tax n. bʌp; baj; mawul; gold — γʌn; — on looms hiskə fʌlʌki; (in Hérbar) ilbʌn; — on horse's grain (in Gujhal) yʌše yuwk; (to Imam) sərkawi; — in kind mawi; (in Nagar) sowiṅ.
tea n. čai; (with salt and butter) širča.
tea-kettle n. čajuṷ.
tea-leaves n. 2. šʌma.
teach, to v.t. *-ʌikinʌs; *-ʌdriʌs.
tear n. (lacrima) *-u.
tear, to v.i. qrsaʷs; tsər m...; v.t. *-xiʷsʌs; tsər et.; — hair out *-moʷqʌs; — in pieces *-xiʷsʌs.
tear out, to v.t. čʌs et.
teat n. *-mawmot; ḍuḍuʷro.
telescope n. duʷbin.
tell, to v.t. *-ʌsʌs; senʌs; xʌbər et.; — lies *-umošo ovtʌs or senʌs.
temper n. (anger) *-moʷs; v.s.v. ardʌt.
temper, to v.t. (metal) pin ičhiʌs; pin et.
temperament n. mrjaʷz.
temple n. burtxaʷna.
ten num. tərumo (h, x, y), towimi (z); tərma-.
tender adj. ʌsa.
tendo Achillis n. jauwa bərs.
tent n. got.
tent peg n. gili.
tent-peg, to v.i. nezabawzi et.
tent-pegging n. nezabawzi.
tent-pole n. ḍʌko.
tenth ord. torimilum.
tepid adj. bəburlo.

000

terms n. to be on good — d°-mayʌs; on bad — nasaʿs.
terrace n. edge of — pəršʌṭ.
terrifying adj. amuko; v.s.v. biʿk.
territory n. buṣai.i; mɔlk.
testicle n. čoʿyo; ḍaʿmʌl.
testify, to v.i. d°-ʌsqʌṭʌr.
testimony n. gɔwaʿi.
testing-stick n. (for butter) bərginʌs.
"Tham" n. thʌm.
thamship n. thʌmkoš.
thank, to v.t. šɔkɔr ɛt.
thankful adj. šɔkɔrkiš.
thanks n. šɔkɔr; to give — (to God); šɔkɔru ɛt.; v.s.v. juʿna. that adj., pron., hmf. iʿnɛ, x iʿsɛ, ɛʿs, y iʿtɛ, ɛʿt, v. §§ 139, 140.
the adj. v. §§ 139, 140.
theft n. γiʿki.
their own adj., pron. uʿimo, v. § 143. themselves pron. (emphatic) uʿi, v. § 142, (reflexive) uʿkhɔr, v. § 144.
then adv. da; ho.
thence adv. ɛʿlɔm; alɛmɔm; tɛlɔm; toʿlɔm; tɛʿlʌtsɔm.
there adv. ɛʿlɛ; teʿlɛ; toʿlɛ.
thereafter adv. iʿlji; itɛʿtsɔm iʿlji; ho.
therefore conj. iʿtɛʿtsɔm; iʿtɛ gʌnɛ; gɔtɛʿtsɔm; gɔtɛ gʌnɛ.
thereupon conj. teʿrumʌnɔr.
these adj. pron. hmf. khuʿɛ; x gɔtsɛ; khots; y gɔke, khok, v. §§ 135, 136.
they pron. v.s.v. "those" & § 120. thick adj. (of stick) dʌγʌnɔm; (of cloth etc.) huʿrgʌs; (of semi-liquid) buʿm.
thief n. γiʿn.
thigh n. bʌtsin; bʌtsinɛ bubɔʿq; (of quadruped) 1. °-šʌk.
thin adj. bi.ɛnɔm; d°-kɔṭum; (of person) sisiʿnɔm; (of horse) laʿša; (of paper) giligiʿnɔm; (of liquid) tɛ.hɛlγuʿɔm; šʌḍau.

5096

000 thin, to become v.i. d-kuṭʌs.*
thing n. duˑtsʌk; ʌsbaˑb; čiˑz; duro.
think, to v.i. sʌmba et.
think of, to v.t. (with affection) -ʌski duwcʌlʌs.*
third ord. iski.uˑlʊm; N. kiˑlʊm two —s alto baˑgo; — party saˑju.
thirsty adj. aˑuˑya; v.s.v. buˑk.
thirteen num. tʊrma usko (h, x, y), -iˑski (z). thirteenth ord. tʊrma ɪski.uˑlʊm.
this adj., pron. hmf. khiˑnɛ; x gʊsɛ, khos y gʊtɛ, khot, v. §§ 135, 136.
this much adv. ʌkhʊrʊmʌn; akhuˑriki.
this side adv. khiˑtɛ (pa).
this time adv. gʊtɛ galči.
thistle n. jʌčiˑr.
this year adv. khu.iˑn; —'s khu.inmo.
thither adv. ɛlər; teˑlər; toˑlər; telʌtsər.
thong n. jikʌn; bʌn; — loop on boot puˑšbʌn.
thorn n. čhʌš; — bush čhʌš.
thorns n. čhʌˑŋ.
those adj., pron. hmf. uˑɛ; x iˑtsɛ, et; y iˑkɛ, ɛk, v. §§ 139, 140.
thou pron. uˑŋ; N. um; to thee, for th goˑr, v. §§ 119, 122.
though conj. ʌxəna . . . kɛ.
thought n. sʌmba; fɪkər; xi.aˑl.
thoughtless adj. be-pəriwa.
thousand num. saˑs.
thrash, to v.t. *jujuˑr -ʌt.
thread n. ḍulu; (yarn) sər; tightly tw sted — čhəru; woof — gʌs; warp - ju; not yet twisted — dʌɣuˑi sər.
threadbare adj. 1. ṣʌq niˑm.
threat n. biˑm.
threaten, to v.t. ʌr, biˑk or *biˑm -ʌt.; aˑh et.
three num. usko (h, x, y), iˑski (z); — days iskikuts; — pairs iskiˑkʌm.
three-bladed, three-pronged adj. ɪsk jʌqər.

510a

000 thresh, to v.t. bərav.
threshing-floor n. dərts.
threshold n. ts.hərič.
through prep. right — čha.
thrice adv. iski hesi; iski ḍʌmʌn.
throat n. buk; (outside) *-ʌš; (windpipe) ḍoḍo.
throne n. tʌxt.
throng after, to v.i. 2. gorgor m.
thronging adv. ḍʌm ḍumul.
throw, to v.t. pfʌl *-ʌt.; *-wʌši.ʌs (h, x obj.), bɪšaiyʌs (y obj.); — in wrestling v.s.v. ṭuskuri; to cause s.o. — *-ʌwʌši.ʌs; *-ʌbɪšaiyʌs; *-ʌgiyʌs.
throw away, to v.t. lip et.
throw down, to v.t. giyʌs.
throw o.s. down, to v.i. kha gartsʌs.
throw on, to v.t. pfal et.
throw out, to v.t. dermiyʌs.
throw up, to v.t. pfau et.
thrust into, to v.t. čam *-ʌt.
thumb n. lʌphut *-ʌmɪš.
thump, to v.t. ḍʌm *-ʌt.; tʌn(tʌn) *-ʌt (v.s.v. 3. tʌn).
thunder n. γʌrau; N. gɪdiγərʌm.
thunderbolt n. bərč.
Thursday n. birespʌt.
thus adv. ʌkhil(ʌṭe); dʌkhil; tai; tailʌṭe; ʌkhil zailʌṭe; — and — ʌkhi ʌkhi.
thy own adj. gu.imo.
thyself pron. (emphatic) 1. gui; (reflexive) gukhər v. §§ 142, 144.
tick n. (insect) mundʌs.
tickle, to v.t. khikhrš *-ʌt.; qiqrt *-ʌt.
tickling n. khikhrš.
tie, to v.t. (knot) (gʌṭ) wʌši.ʌs.
tie up, to *-pfusʌs (h, x obj.), pusav, pusuryʌs (y sg.), pušaiyʌs (y pl.); (fasten) ṭʌk *-ʌt.; to cause s.o. — *-ʌpusʌs.
tiger n. bar.

510 b

tight adj. čhʌnʊm; — ly packed čhʌnʊm. 000 till conj. xa·; xa·šiŋər.
timber n. hun.
time n. hə·ši; ḍʌmʌn; wʌxt; (occasion) ts.hir; spare — dər; fʊrsʌt; (turn) gʌlt; gʌlči; right — mo·qa; space of — khə·n; of olden — qʌdi·m; a short — du·ŋ; a long — ziqʌmu; revolution of — du·rʌs; in his — ʊmərʊlo; v.s.v. pʊrme.
times n. zʌma·ma.
timid adj. ʌr *-mʌnʌs.
tinder n. xʌp.
tingle, to v.i. v.s.v. šu·l.
tinkling n. širiširiŋ.
tip n. *-thʌn; — of arrow siq; lim.
tipcat n. ṭʊskuri.
tire, to v i. *-wərʌs; v.t. *-ʌspərʌs.
tired out adj. bidʌm; n*-wərin.
tithe n. (to Imam) sərka·ri. titivate o.s., to v.t. *-yo·q et.
to prep. *-yʌkʌl; — s.o. *-ʌpʌči; expressing dative -ər, -r. v. § 69.
to and fro adv. iti khiti.
to be sure adv. xair.
toast, to v.t. duwʌltʌlʌs.
tobacco n. tʌma·ku.
today adv. khu·lto.
today's adj. khu·ltʊmo.
toddle, to v.i. bʌda bišaiyʌs.
toe n. *-ʌmiš; (of boot etc.) *-mu·pʊš.
toe-nail n. *-u·ri.
together adv. ka; nʌla.
toil n. mʊšʌqʌt.
toilet n, to make an elegant — *-yo·q et.
token n. haiyʌn; nišan.
toll n. ba·j; ma·sul. tomb n. mʌzər; qʌbʊr; tus.
tomorrow adv. jimʌle; N. jimden; — morning ts.ho·rdine; day after — hi·pʊlto; v.s.vv. ka·lto, ki·lto, ma·lto.
tongue n. *-umʊs.

511a

000 tonic n. tiŋbʌt.

too adv. hiʂ; (also) kɛ.
too much adv. bʌsk.
tools n. (collective) gʌŋi maʷg; specific, v. adze, awl, axe, chisel, crowbar, file, hammer, pincers, saw.
tooth n. -mɛ.*
toothache n. v.s.v. -mɛ.*
top n. -thʌn*; (of mountain) ʃiŋ; buʷri; yuʷri; -thʌnʌs*; on — of yʌʃɛ; to put one thing on — of another *bʌli -ʌt; adj. dʌli.
torch n. (single splinter) pilpili.
torchwood n. hʌlẹ.
torn adj. qɪsum.
torn clothes n. budʊl.
torrent n. bed of — hər; muʷsɛ hər.
totally adv. 2. dər; v. "quite".
totter, to v.i. pirkʌnʌs.
tour n. sail; to make a — of sail ɛt.
touch, to v.t. tsʌp ɛt.; juʷk m.
towards prep. -yʌkʌl*; -yʌkʌlʌʃɛ.*
tower n. ʒrkaʷri.
trace n. dərʌk; haiyʌn.
tracing n. nʌgša.
track n. gʌr; ʃʌʂ, ʃuʷg; (narrow, sunk) ʂoq, N. šox; precipitous — jʊm; (spoor) -ts.hu.*
track, to v.t. -tsi.ʃɛ niyʌs.*
trade n. sodʌgəri.
trade, to v.i. sodʌgəri ɛt.
trader n. sodʌgər.
traffic n. niyʌs juyʌs.
train, to v.t. -ʌikinʌs*; -ʌʊri.ʌs*; (hawk) rʌmɛʂ ɛt.
trained, to be v.i. (of hawk) rʌmɛʂ m. traitor n. pfɛʷro; — stock pfɛʷro ts.hirɪʂ.
trample down, to v.t. -ʌtsi ʌs.*
trample out, to v.t. (grain) ʊʷcərʌs.
trap n. buča.
travail n. -ʃuʷl.*
travel, to v.i. sʌpər ɛt.

511 b

000 traveller n. mosafir.
tray n. (wicker) ɨaq; (for gold-washing) xuraṇo.
treachery n. nrmak hɨrami.
treason n. pferevi.
treasure n. hrrkɨ; xazina.
treat, to v.t. (medically) mili *-at.
treaty n. kaṭ.
tremble, to v.i. dadɨr m.; laq m.
tree n. tom; young — maṭ; — thick with twigs jambolos. V. List of trees. trefoil n. iski tap ɨrqa.
trembling n. 2. dɨr.
trench n. xandaq.
tribal adj. — brother *-aṭo; — daughter *-a.i. tribe n. rom; giram; hɨtow; qaum; independent — hɨrary.
tribute n. bap.
trick n. makɨr; bɨri.
trick, to, v.t. marqutɨ *-dalas.
trickle, to v.i. (past an obstruction) 2. pharnas.
trifles n. pfofurkiciq.
trigger n. maka.
trim, to v.t. čɨruk *-at.
trimmer n. (fickle person) hanisawi.
triplets n. rukikom.
trivet n. ši.
troops n. hɨvi.
trophy n. haiyan.
trot, to v.i. ṭahatahaq or zazaq m.
trouble n. abal; mɨlaqat; damjaw; takliṭ. trouble, to v.t. damjaw *-asiwas; takliy *-chi as; janaiwɨr *-at.
troubled adj. azaw.
troublesome adj. abal; v.a.v. ṭaḷṭu; — person lamṭam bi.ai.i. trough n. maduw.
trousers n. gupaltiq.
trousers n. *-thrqi.

000 true adj. tsʌhʌn.
truffle n. ʃuctor.
trumpet n. hərɣw; fərum; to blow one's own — dəfoɣərʌs.
trunk n. (of tree) gamurw; turmʌ iʃim; (of elephant) -muɣoj; (box) sandug.
trust n. (in God) tawʌkʌl.
truth n. tsʌhʌm; tsʌhʌnkəʃ; in — tsʌhʌm kə tsʌhʌn; tsʌhʌnə.
try, to v.i. kəʃil st.
tube n. gʌlə.
Tuesday n. ʌŋʌrə.
tuft n. mujoɣ.
tumbler n. gilʌrə.
tumour n. minor.
tune n. hərip; ɣw; v.a.vv. ɣrɣərʌs; -ʌɣrʌs.
turban n. bʌʃə.
turn n. galt; galəi; in — tsʌhirtəs; tsʌhir nə.
turn back, to v.i. ɣfor m.; v.t. -ʌltʌlʌnʌs.
turn into, to v.i. -ltʌlʌnʌs; mʌnərw; -mʌnʌs; v.t. ɣfor -ʌt.
turn out, to v.t. d'-wʌsʌs.
turn o.s. out well, to v.i. -ɣoɣ st.
turn over, to v.t. ɣfʌtɣ st.; ɣfor -ʌt.; -ʌltʌlʌnʌs.
turn round, to v.i. ɣfʌpor m; v.t. ɣfʌpor st.
turn up, to v.i. -wʌlʌs; ʃhumuk m.
turn upside down, to v.i. (like fish in water) hərzʌn m.; v.t. ɣɣəlturʌs; ɣfwuɣlumɣfʌt st.; yʌʃkum st.
turnod, to become v.i. (of milk) dirʌrə.
turnip n. mwlə.
tweezers n. tsʌpi.
twelfth ord. fərmʌ ʌlbirlum.
twelve num. fərmʌ ərlʌn (h), -ʌlts(-ts) (x), -ərlə (y, z).
twelve hundred num. fərmʌ ərlə tha.
twelvemonth n. ɣul.

5124

600 twentieth ord. ərtərəlum.

twenty num. ərtər.
twice adv. əltə ʤəməm.
twig n. ʃərtə; gəʃə.
twilight n. bərum ʃərə; (morning) gərə zəŋ; very early morning — fuʃərəgə.
twine n. ərtə.
twist n. mərəŋ.
twist, to v.t. mərəŋ *-əl.; ɣfər *-əl.
twist round, to v.i. ɣfər m. twitch, to v.t. jitjəl *-əl.
two num. ərtən (h), ərtə, ərtərə (x), ərjə (y, z), ərtə (z); — days ərtəl; the — *-əltəlik.
two-bladed adj. jəqər ʃku.
type n. of one — hənzər.
typhoid fever n. gərumkuj.
tyrannical adj. zulumgər; zulumə.
tyranny n. zulum.
tyrant n. zərlim; zulum ʃləs.

U.

udder n. *-ərk.
ugly adj. əjtəm; yənikij; wəmp; hədləkəl; bəlwərəl; N. čəqrələ.
umbilical cord n. *-ərə.
un- neg. prefix v.a.vv. ə-, ə-.
unable, to be, v.a.vv. *-əmənə; N. ələrəs.
unanimously adv. kən bər ə.
unbeliever n. kəfər.
unbelt, to v.t. ərik dəwəs.
unbound adj. dəfərəm.
uncastrated adj. — ox ʃəhindər; — horse čərdə; — ram wər; — he-goat bərə; ʃhugər.
uncled adj. ʃkərtəs.
uncle n. wəmə; *-əpə; father's bro. *-əŋ; mother's bro. mərəmə mərləs.
unclean adj. mərpərk.
uncomfortable adj. bə-gərəv.
unconscious adj. bi-bərf; pəl; rəs.
uncooked adj. əliwən.

000

uncovered adj. laq; pʃafaq.
uncultivated adj. — land das.
under adv. yaw; yawa.
under-girth n. (of goat's hair) ʃerma traq.
understand, to v.t. hewas; v.a.v. °-as.
understanding n. farm; adj. gunerṭo.
undertaking n. (promise) karf; wada.
undivided adj. ṭok.
undo, to v.t. d°-ʃewas; pʃafaq ot.; i-lizwas.
undone, to become v.i. dafawas. undulating adj. dorggam.
uneasiness n. zimaw.
unemployed adj. ʃkan.
unexpectedly adv. hikan.
unfasten, to v.t. dowas.
unfavoured adj. °-ayam.
unfinished adj. daywi; (of s.t. in course of construction) ṭafas.
unfortunate adj. naw; abal; bazt yawikṭ; badbazt; kambazt; bitawa.
ungrateful adj. ankewas.
unhappy adj. yamgiw.
unimpressive adj. aqem.
uninhabitable adj. awafas.
unintelligent adj. akewas (v.a.v. 2. hewas).
unity n. (amongst people) piw.
unjust adj. rasarf apiw; bi-rasarf; ṭaṭaq.
unjustly adv. narkaq; ṭaṭaq; to treat — °-aṭaṭas.
unkind adj. be-rahem.
unlawful adj. narkaq; — for food hewaw.
unlock, to v.t. (qulp) dowas. unlucky adj. naw; abal; badbazt; bazt yawikṭ; — to do 2. ṭok.
unmarried adj. gir aiyetem; marṭaq; bilarl; awlawno badari.
unmasculine adj. (of man) mangʃalikṭ. unnecessary adj. v.a.v. darkaw.
unoccupied adj. ʃkan; thi.
unprejudiced adj. sayju.
unprepared adj. (of hide etc.) daywi.

513b

000 unreasonable adj. bi·-ma·ni.
unrestrained, to be v.i. di.ʌši.ʌs.
unripe adj. ati·γunum; jʌčo; N. audegoni; jʌčo.
unroll, to v.t. d-ntsirʌs.*
unruliness n. ja·hzli.
unruly adj. yʌγe; ja·hzl.
unserviceable adj. v.s.v. duro.
untie, to v.t. d-šunʌs.*
untied adj. dušu·num.
until prep. xa·; xa·ṭiŋor.
untimely adj. ʌkhen.
untoward adj. ʌbʌš.
untrue adj. -umos.*
untwisted adj. (of thread) dʌγu·i.
unwell adj. γʌli·s.
unwise adj. aka·nʌs.
up prep., adv. yʌṭ; yʌṭe; dʌl; dal; – to (a person) -ʌpʌči*; (of space or time) xa·; xa·ṭiŋor; ṭhaŋ.
up till now adv. mu·to xa·.
uphill adv. dʌl; hu·rgo.
upon adv. -yʌṭe*; -ʌṭe; -ṭse; yʌči.
upper adj. dʌli; yʌṭum.
upright adj. (of person) di.a·nʌtdaw; (of thing) čok: čo·ko; (boulder) dʌščikin.
uproar n. γauγa.
upside down adv. ʌpʌro·ṭo; neγultur; ya·rum yʌṭe; yʌṭkum; to turn — yʌṭkum et.
upwards adv. yʌṭ ne; yʌṭe yʌkʌl.
urgent adj. zəru·li.
urinate, to v.i. hərai.ʌs; ratinja·b et.
urine n. hərʌṭ.
use, to v.t. -ʌdurəyʌs*; -ʌ.əri.ʌs.*
use up, to v.t. d-ʌγʌnʌs*; fʌṭ et.
used up adj. fʌṭ.
used up, to be v.i. d-γʌnʌs* (h, x subj.); dəγʌnʌs (y); fʌṭ m. useful adj. *duro -čhi.ʌs.
useless adj. v.s.v. duro.
usher n. hiŋʌtum mʌhʌrʌm.

514 a

000 [illegible] adj. marwardi.
[illegible] n. dawtnal.

V.

[illegible] adj. pwt.
vaccinate, to v.t. hada °-al vaccinator n. hada ates ual.
vagabond n. bem dada.
vagina n. °-illegible.
valiant adj. dilawar; pfwtikaf; ningar °-as; °-ao dag; °-ao pusta; [illegible] (p. 387); tilo tingan.
valley n. 2. lar; up the — wl ao.
valour n. hirkat.
value n. gat.
vanish, to v.i. [illegible] ao.
variegated adj. [illegible]; [illegible].
vegetables n. hwi; v.a.v. lewgaw; cooked — aam.
vegetable garden n. hwi.
vegetation n. fopa.
veil n. halga; dwa; openwork of — lamary.
vein n. hawa.
velvet n. hamwal.
vengeance n. hdala; mov.
vermilab n. haldi.
vermin n. (insect) [illegible]; (louse) khaw. V. List of Insects.
verse n. — of Qur'an aiya.
vertebra n. °-waldaw khwto.
vertex n. °-dh.aa.
very adv. hwf; 2. tar; tsw; fow; 3. ghr; mkorgal. vessel n. dawtnak. V. List of Vessels.
vestiges n. (of civilizing) [illegible].
vex, to v.t. nafa °-al; °-mow d°-ahaw.
vexed adj. asow; hisow; nafa; tag.
vexed, to be v.i. °-as fowaa. vicinity n. fatergal.
victory n. fala.
vie, to v.i. 2. fab °-awaaa.

5146

view n. ŋwlu.
view, to v.t. khi l m.
village n. fortified — khan.
villain n. ŋjrwa.
vine n. fwm.
vinegar n. ŋrrka; spirit — fwl.
violence n. ŋrr; mwl.
violent adj. kil ŋlan.
violently adv. kilaŋgo; kilŋi.
violet n. lilin.
virgin adj. kilwl.
virtue n. fwnlwl; ŋfat.
virtuous adj. pwn; pwnlwlŋ; di.ŋwnlilw.
visible adj. ŋfwl; ŋwlu.
visible, to become v.i. ŋnwrw; ŋfwl or ŋwlu m.; dwnlu.an.
visit, to v.t. (to confide) khwl m. visitor n. ŋdrw.
vixen n. (woman) ŋjrwa.
voice n. *-dkw; ŋrkw.
vomit, to v.i. dkaŋ *-al.
vomiting n. dkaŋ.
vow, to v.i. ni.al al.
volume n. gatkhir; mlaw.
valve n. 2. daŋ; *-ŋwl.

W.

wager n. halimow.
wager, to v.i. halimow al.
wagon n. mwnlwrl.
wag, to v.i. ŋfapal m.; v.t. ŋfapal al.
waist n. *-ahlŋ.
waistbelt, waistcloth n. *-ahlow; ŋrlow; leather — *-ahlow karpir; v.n. jakwal.
waistcoat n. gatlath.
waiststring n. ŋnkl.
wait! ahi!
wait, to v.i. lkaŋ m. waiting adj. ahi; lkaŋ; to keep a.o. — *-ahwanan.
wake, to v.i. d-talan.*

000

waken, to v.t. d-astalas; daq *-aras.
walk n. asil.
walk, to v.i. gutshoras; gajal nisas; asil ef.
walker n. gutshoras (sis).
walking adj. gajal.
walking-stick n. *-gfaro; *-pawuo; dastyo.
wall n. hal; gorlw; revetting — hawf, buttressing — aasag; (round shrine or grave) panji; thawl.
walnut n. 2. ŝöli; compl... — in shell hawe; whole — N. hasorgo; outer shell of — tawag; half shell of — fatwi; kernel of — hal; hawe(?); N. ownaw.
walnut-tree n. 2. ŝöli; v.a.v. majkiw.
wanderer n. hem dada.
wane, to v.i. dikhivas.
want, in adj. dawanda; d*-awarawam.
want, to v.t. dawawas; v.a.v. awarja.
wanted adj. dawaw.
war n. jag.
warlike adj. jag stas.
warm adj. gawawa; hubwlo.
warm up, to v.i. dikjwaqas.
warp-yarn n. 4. ja.
wash, to v.i. tam dolas; yawl ef.; v.t. tam *-adilas; fa.o ef.; *-gorilas (h, s obj.); hwilas (y obj.); gajawawas (x); gajawawas (y); to cause s.o. — *-shalias; — for gold wawa ef.
wash o.s., to v.t. *-wotaja ichil thiyas.
washing n. (of person) yawl.
wasp n. 3. jagar.
waste land n. das.
wasted adj. hwbird.
watch n. (guard) 1. faw.
watch, to v.t. *-asalas; hawwas (dat.); *-lilas ef.
watch over, to v.t. raf ef.
watching n. hawaj.

515b

000 watchman n. ruṣiṭ; ruṣṭakwin; čhorbu; — (sentry) tsor; tsorgwin.

water n. ta.hil; (urine) horaḷ; drinking — mi.ar or le.as ta.hil; flood — aor; — flowing from irrigated field hurta.hil; — coming down a steep place čhangu.

water, to v.t. ta.hil yalas; ta.hil bikaiyas; — a second time horwi st.; yaṣṭ ta.hil st.

water-channel n. dala; (smaller) gortil; — of mill nar.

water-closet n. jukaṇ.

water conduit n. haor; čaṇalat; (large) gallor.

waterfall n. gor.

waterfowl n. (kind of —) ṣforii; gorṭi; Gorchum horay.

watering n. second — yaṣṭ ta.hil; horwi.

water-jug n. ma.čorbu.

water-melon n. horwor.

water-mill n. gai.ṭa.

water-skin n. mašk; N. maški.

water-shoot n. (from gutter) gor.

water-tank n. ṭalk.

watered adj. to be fully — dia.ras.

watery adj. ta.hilṭuum; ṭaṣan.

wattle-work n. ṭaṇ.

wave n. oṭor; horigin.as.

wave, to v.t. ṣfap.al st.

wave round, to v.t. °-altalan.as wavy adj. (of hair) loṭkṣ.

wax n. mum.

way n. gan; the wrong — aparto; by some — amitalu; out of the — ḷaṇ.

wazir n. wazir; adj. wazirviki.

wazirship n. wazirchoṭ; wazirvi.

we pron. mi, v. §§ 117, 118 — two mollalik.

weak adj. alarto; bi-ḥal; bi-lum; durgarwṭu; lagay pagay; hinzir; kamgwwal; kamor.

516 a

000 weakness n. ašatokoč; ašatyaw.
wealth n. dolat.
wealthy adj. γamɪs; dolatman.
wean, to v.t. mamu fat etas.
weapons n. tobak γatanŋ; khi γatenč; asbab.
wear, to v.t. yolas (x obj.); berlas (y obj.).
wear out, to v.i. d-γanas*.
weasel n. nol(?).
weather n. to become clear — (jaḍau) bot ni.as.
weather-boarding n. istsər.
weave, to v.t. yaši.as (chiefly x obj.); gišaiyas (chiefly y obj.).
weaver n. gišaškuin; hiskbuḍo; šərmabuḍo; N. buyerčo.
web n. (spider's) pfɪranɛ pfask.
webbing n. ban.
wedding-present n. (to bride's mother) -yenom*.
wedge n. payo.
Wednesday n. bodo.
weed, to v.t. bilis st.; šašər duvisas.
weeding n. bilis.
weeds n. (wild oats) šašər.
week n. thalskots; (8 days) altaŋots; two —s thents.
weep, to v.i. hevas.
weeping n. hevč; luleč.
weeping-willow n. mojuw. weevil n. γalγu; 3. kər.
weigh, to v.t. tol st.
weight n. to carry — gaṭaw 3.
welcome! xuš amadi!
welcome, to v.t. (person) -yanči.ər ni.as*, v.a.v. uyančimo.
weld, to v.t. (iron) jau st. welfare n. salamat.
well n. γolk; 3. kər; adj. šuwa; daltas; -dim šu.a*; N. rahat; adv. daltas; šuwa; interj. ye . . .
well-bred adj. manokər.

516b

000 well-disposed adj. gɔruʷɔm.

well-filled adj. tiphik.
well known adj. iʷk duʷɔm; mʌšhuʷr.
well-to-do adj. šuʷa.
well-wishing n. gɔruʷɔmkoš.
west n. buʷr; v.s.v. xʌt.
wet n. hʌɣɔm; — and slippery ts.hilɣɪš.
wet, to get v.i. diʷlʌs; disiʷlʌs.
wet, to v.t. dᵉ-ʌsilʌs.
wether n. bʌskʌrɛt.
wetness n. huʷš.
what? pron., adj. beʔ; bɛsʌnʔ; of — kind, in — manner? belʌtɔmʔ what! be . . .!
what else? tuʷmʔ
whatever pron. bɛsʌn . . . kɛ; bɛsʌn . . . koli; in — way belʌtɛ . . . kɛ.
what sort of? adj. bečokʔ; beljokʔ; be zailɛʔ; bɛškiʔ; — a . . . ? bɛški.enʔ.
wheat n. (grain or crop) guʷr; parched — khʌni.
wheat-coloured adj. guʷɔ.
wheaten adj. guʷɛ.
wheel n. čɔrx.
when adv. . . . kɛ.
whence? adv. amɔlɔmʔ; N. ʌmɔlimʔ.
whenever conj. bɛšʌl . . . kɛ or koli ts.hʌnč.
where? adv. ʌmʔ; amɔloʔ; N. ʌmɔliʔ.
wherefore? adv. bɛsʌnɔrʔ; amɔlɔmʔ.
wherever conj. amɔlo (ʌm) . . . kɛ.
whetstone n. bʌldʌn.
whey n. mʌnts.hil.
which? pron. amin (h), amis (x), amit (y)? pl. min (h), amits (x), amik (y)? V. § 161.. whichever pron. amin . . . kɛ etc.
whinny, to v.i. hihiŋ et.
whip n. thɔr.
whip, to v.t. thɔr delʌs.
whip handle n. thɔrɛ yʌn.
whirl, to v.t. dᵉ-ʌspʌpʌlʌs.

517a

000 whirlpool n. pfeɜri.

whirlwind n. čipəphuṣ.
whisper n. khuɜṣ; khukuɜṣ.
whisper, to v.i. khuɜṣ nɛ sɛnʌs; thʌla sɛnʌs.
whistle n. tuɜsk.
whistle, to v.i. ṣyu ṣyu st.
white n. — of egg bərəm dsl; — of eye bərəmt nʌna; adj. bəruɜm white earth n. ḍumول.
white-eyed adj. (of horses) čɪqɪr.
whither? adv. ʌm?; amولo?; N. ʌmولirɛ?. who? pron. amin?; mɛn?; v. §§ 159, 160. who rel. v. §§ 185, 460, 461. whoever pron. amin . . . kɛ; mɛn . . . kɛ, v. § 186.
whole adj. -yoɜn; ṭoɜk; puɜra; the — of uyoɜn.
wholly adv. tʌčʌp; təḍʌk.
why? adv. bɛs?; bɛsɛ?; bɛsʌnəɜr?; tuɜm?; (indirect) bɛɜsɛ . . . kɛ.
wick n. filta.
wicked adj. γənikɪṣ.
wickerwork n. šʌq.
wide adj. dʌldʌlom; šoɜqum.
wide open adj. zʌṭ.
widow n. geɜsgus gus.
widowed adj. geɜsgus.
widower n. geɜsgus hiɜr.
width n. dʌldʌlomkuṣ; (of cloth) 3. bər. wife n. -us; jʌmaɜʌt; voc. jʌmaɜʌt! co— umʌgus; mother's brother's — -ntso. V. s.v. -rik.
wild adj. ruɜns; teɜr(ɛ); jʌŋgʌlɛ; jʌŋgʌli — oats šʌšər.
wilfulness n. jaɜhɛli.
will n. rai.
will, to v.t. ni.ʌt st.
willow tree n. biɜk; weeping — mojuɜr; (for withes) šʌsk.
willy nilly adv. naɜnaɜ.
win, to v.i. duɜsʌs; duwʌšɛ.ʌs.

517 b

000 wind n. liṭ; mild — gurgul; — off avalanche jork; breaking — fiṭ; to lose one's — -as pfarnas. wind, to v.t. di.wlas. V. Supt. Corrigenda. windgall n. xordaṭ.
window n. dori.
wind-pipe n. dorjo.
windstorm n. tiṭ.
wine n. mel.
wing n. galgi.
wink n. dirp.
wink, to v.i. dirp et.
winnow, to v.t. erelas; cp. (by hand) rlpupuras; ipfurpras.
winnowing-shovel n. ,buri.
winter n. bai.i; adj. bai.imo.
wipe, to v.t. γaṭarp et.; ṭarg et.
wipe off, to v.t. -aras.
wipe out, to v.t. -aqulilas.
wire n. sim; (čhumoro) γaṭk.
wisdom n. hensakuṭ.
wise adj. hensas; dorna; aqulkṭ.
wish n. rag; rai.
wish, to v.t. rag et.
with prep. ka; karṭ; (apud) -apači; (cum) -aka; (instrument) -aṭi. V. § 70, iii; -e v. § 64, i; -ka v. § 85, iii; -ek, -ak v. § 47.
withdraw, to v.i. i-ljí jarṭ m. withe n. gačhe; γaṭk.
wither, to v.i. (y subj.) doltapi.as.
withers n. mindau.
within adv. wlo.
without prep. thi; — cause narhag; — warning ṭormanaṭo.
witness n. datehej.
wizard n. biṭan.
woe interj. hai hai!
wolf n. wrk.
wolf-skin n. wrki baṭ.
woman n. gus; young — dasin; čomuṭker; — relation silatin.

5180

000 woman's adj. gudjuki.
womb n. °-ul; °-γumar; (animal's) kalkiṭ.
womenfolk n. gua gigaw; jamaral.
wonderful adj. ajap.
wood n. kum; (fuel) γ*aṭiṭ*; rotten — γ*el*; piece of burning — pfutumiṭ.
woodcock n. zepaw.
wood-pigeon n. N. kweti (p. 238).
wool n. le; fine — bupaw; (ditto of yak) γ*uruy*; strip of teased — dap. wool-bearing adj. — animal ku.a; cp. lirpalkiṭ.
wool-holder n. pfurwina.
woollen adj. lev.
word n. 1. kar.
work n. duro; to put to — °-aurilas. work, to v.i. duro st.; duroyas; — strenuously together (men & women) kir kayar m.
workman n. skilled — ustad; (labourer) durowkwin.
world n. duniaṭ.
worm n. γ*alγu*.
worn away adj. ṭaṭaq.
worn out, to be v.i. d°-γanas.
worn smooth adj. 1. ṭaq.
worried adj. jorkas.
worried, to be v.i. durmaḍaγas; jori.aw st.
worry n. ahal; damjaw; takliṭ. worry, to v.i. °-mors d°-ataas; °-mora talumas; damjaw °-al.; damjaw °-asiγas; takliṭ °-ṭki.as; 2. jam °-al.
worship, to v.i. °-ilikinas.
worsted n. 2. aw.
worth seeing adj. tamaṭinkiṭ.
worthy adj. yaṭki; tai.iq.
would, would have, aux. . . . ṭa, v. § 351. wound n. gul; zarum.
wound, to v.t. gul °-al.
wounded adj. gul.

518 b

wounded, to be v.i. gul m. ooo wrap up, to v.t. d°-asalatas; d°-matasa, (with y subj.) dumatasa wrap up in, to v.t. malaŋ st. wrathful adj. °-mosikij; zowdaw.
wrestle, to v.i. solama dumas.
wretch, n., wretched adj. bidava; γoriр; γoripia.
wring, to v.t. maraŋ °-as.
wrinkle n. brak.
wrinkle, to v.t. loj st.
wrist n. 3. hivak.
write, to v.t. girminas; to make s.o. — °-akirminas.
writhe, to v.i. balan m.
writing, a n. xat.
written adj. girminom.
wrong(ly) adj., adv. fhis; γalat; — side out aparts.
wrong, to v.t. °-atsi.as.
wrong, to go v.i. qudelas; korkan ni.as.

Y.

yak n. berpay; wild — yuba.
yard n. gas; avito qaj; half — qaj. yarn n. gas; 3. sor; warp — 4. ju.
yawn, to v.i. d°-amatalas. year n. dus; yul; this — khwin; this —'s khwinmo; last — fhamini; a whole — yule gaj.
yearling n. yulakas.

519a

000 yeast n. bʌγəndo.

yellow adj. ɟɪkərk; very — čiṭɪkərk.
yes adv. ʌwa; ɓwa; — of course be.əsa.
yes! yes! a·o a·o!
yesterday adv. sa·ʌfi; ʌɓuʷ; day before — ya·bolto; 2 days before — yaʷčɪliŋ.
yesterday's adj. saʃimo; ʌɓuʷmo.
yet adv. dərum; dərum xaʷ; don ke (v.s.v. duʷnks).
yoke n. — of oxen nʌl.
yoke, to v.t. hərčum o·bɪšaiyʌs; khil st.
yoke-bar n. hərčum.
yoke-pin n. šʌmɪʷy.
yolk n. — of egg ɟɪkərk dɪl.
you pron. ma, v. § 119.
young n. (of animal) *-sk (v. also s.v. ɪsk); jorto. V. kid, lamb, foal etc.; adj. juwaʷn; N. čaʷkur.
young folk n. jorpʌf; jʌfbaʷiṭ.
younger, youngest adj. jof; ečukoʷn.
your own adj. ma.ɪʷmo, v. § 143. yourselves pron. (emphatic) mai.i, ma mai.i, v. § 142; (reflex.) makhər, v. § 144.
youth n. (juvenis) hiles; juwaʷn: N. čaʷkur; (juventus) juwaʷni.

Z.

zedoary n. pirpi.
zither n. v.s.v. -ʌγərʌs.
zodiac n. sign of the — borji.

5196

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

INDEX OF ENGLISH WORDS
IN THE WERCHIKWAR—ENGLISH VOCABULARY

A.

600 able, to be v.i. *-ʌmʌn-.
above adv. mʌdaˑl.
advice n. nʌsi.ʌt.
affix, to v.t. *-ʌdil-.
after adv. iˑlja; tsɛči.
afternoon adv. saˑsɛtki.
again adv. da.
alive adj. jʌndo.
all adj. *-yomˑ; čhɪk; khul; — of them uyomˑ.
alone adv. ɣaˑnɛk.
also adv. ka; kɛ.
always adv. hʌmiˑša.
among prep. hərʌŋ; from — hərʌŋgum.
ancient adj. qʌdiˑm.
and conj. ka; kɛ.
angry, to become v.i. *-moˑs *-mʌn-; *-moˑs dʊtsu-; to make s.o. — -moˑs d-ʌts-.
answer n. jʌwaˑb.
answer, to v.i. jʌwaˑb dɛl- or ɛt-.
any adj. h. mɛn.
anything pron. bo; botʌn.
appear, to v.i. *-ʌɣain-; desʌl-.
arrive, to v.i. dɛšqʌlt-.
assuredly adv. albʌt.
astounded adj. hairaˑn.

520a

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

000 at prep. či; -či.
at bedtime adv. gučʌčum khenər.
at last adv. axer.
aunt n. (mother's sister) nʌni.

B.

back adv. ilja.
bad adj. šum.
bag n. (leather) dengrš.
barefoot adv. holtaš.
barley n. hərɛ.
bazar n. bazar.
be, to v.i. mʌn-; -mʌn-*, v. § 527.
beans n. mukʌk.
bear n. nya.
bear, to v.t. (young) d-ʌsmai.in-*.
because conj. bota sirya.
become, to v.i. mʌn-; -mʌn-*.
bedding n. upper — -yæṭrki*; under — -yarriki*.
bedtime n. gučʌčum khen.
begin, to tai-(?).
behind prep. -tseči*.
belly n. -ul*.
below adv. yarɛ.
beneath adv. yar; yarɛ; -yarɛ*.
beside prep. (person) -ʌpaiya*.
big adj. nyu.

5206

∞O bird n. čhɐn.
black adj. mʌtum.
blanket n. šʌlʌʀ.
blue adj. rɨ̆qʌm.
boot n. soft leather — huʷço.
box n. sʌnduʷq.
boy n. dul̲ʌs; hʌleʷs.
branch n. ʂər.
brass n. rɨ̆kərk.
bread n. pʌqo.
bridge n. bərč.
bridle n. tʌmʌŋ.
bright n. very — bʌŋgəri.
bring, to v.t. dits- (h and x obj.); dətsu- (y obj., v.s.v. dʊsuʷ-).
brother n. man's — -ʌço; woman's — -huʷlus.
brother-in-law n. man's -rɐk; woman's — -huʷlus.
bull n. (castrated) hər.
burn, to v.i. γoʷl-.
business n. bər; dʊro; mʌšquʷli.
but conj. mʌgʌm.
butter n. mʌltʌʂ.

C.

calf n. boʷʂo.
call out, to v.i. qau ɛt-.
cat n. buʷš.
ceiling n. bai.ʌʂ.
certainly adv. albʌt.
children n. aulaʷd.
city n. šahr.
claim n. dawa.
cliff n. čhər.
cloak n. šʊqa.
cloth n. gʌtu.
clothes n. gʌtʊnz; gʌtʊŋ.
clothing n. gʌtʊŋ.
cold adj. čhʌγərʊm.
collect, to v.t. jʌma ɛt-.
come, to v.i. past base: d-*; d-ʌ-*; ʂo-; pres. base: ts.hʊr-.

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

000 come out, to v.i. dus-.
command n. hukəm.
complete adj. drust, khul; pura.
condition n. ʂʌγda.
constrain, to v.t. — s.o. to do s.t. d-ʌwʌkʌl-*.
constricted adj. tʌŋ.
cook n. pʌqo stʌs.
country n. bʌtʌn; mulk.
cow n. biʂa.
craving n. ərmaʂn.
crow n. γaʂmu.
cut off, to v.t. *-ʌskərts-.

D.

dark adj. ṭuṇtʌŋ.
daughter n. *-ʌ.i.
dawn n. gunçʌṭ.
day n. gunts; one — hʌrkulto; —s kuts.
delicacy n. nazuki.
delicate adj. nazuk.
desire n. ərmaʂn.
destitute adj. mahtaʂj.
device n. hʌrkmʌt.
die, to v.i. *-yuʂ-.
direction n. yʌkʌl; this — khiʂti; that — iʂti.
distressed adj. tʌŋ.
divide, to v.t. pfʌk-.
do, to v.t. *-ʌt-; st-; to cause s.o. — *-ʌʂt-.
dog n. huk.
donkey n. ṭʌkun.
door n. hiŋ.
dove n. γuṭγundil.
down(wards) adv. kʌt; yaʂs.
drink, v.t. min-.

E.

ear n. *-ltumʌl.
early adv. tsʌhoʂ; — morning gunçʌṭ.
eat, to v.t. ṣi- (x sg. obj.); ṣu- (x pl. obj.); ṣe- (y obj.).

52/6

000 eight num. z. altambe.
elder, eldest adj. nyu.
employ, to v.t. — s.o. to do s.t. d-awakal-*.
end n. muj; in the — axer.
enter, to v.i. gi-.
entertain, to v.t. mâlqul st-.
equal to adj. yanis.
evening n. ḫam.
every adj. kor.
expend, to v.t. zorj st-.
eye n. -lči*.
eyelash n. ḫolt.

F.

fall, to v.i. -wal-*.
fall down, to v.i. dohor-.
family n. kapa.
famine n. dorγanj.
far adj. mathan; how —? asa zaψ?
fat adj. daγanom.
father n. tati.
father-in-law n. -askir*.
female adj. (of animal) beke.
field n. maḷ.
finally adv. axer.
find, to v.t. v.a.v. d-aγasi-*.
finger n. -amiṭ*.
fire n. pfu.
firewood n. hum.
first(ly) adv. kawel.
five z tamdi.
fly, to v.i. duwaḷ-.
food n. paqo; a kind of — isput = Hz. Bu. koḍ.
foot n. -hurṭa*; foot-wrapper hrwli.
for prep. — sake of qandi: dat. -a: -ya.
fort n. khai.i.
forty num. alto altor.
found, to be v.i. paida man-; v.a.v. d-aγasi-*.
four z walṭe.
friend n. dust; yar.

522a

S. Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burushо AV7

000 from prep. ʔija; abl. -ənu.
full adj. ʔak.

G.

gallop, to v.i. dukanja-.
get, to v.t. v.a.v. d-ʂyʂal-*.
girl n. dasun.
give, to v.t. -u-* (h and x obj.); -chi-* (y sg. obj.).
go, to v.i. past base: ni-; pret. base: gal-; pres base: ʔakra-, v. § 588.
go out, to v.i. dura-.
goat n. m. halden; f. ʔazgir.
goat house n. hat.
gold n. γundʂ.
good adj. ʔuru.
grass, to v.t. -γaw-*.
great adj. ugu.
green adj. ʂiγam.
greeting n. salam.
grieved, to be v.i. v.a.v. γul-.
guest n. ʂuʂiq.
guilty adj. γunahgar.

H.

hair n. (single) ʔur; woman's — (coll.) -γuγaq*.
hand n. -ʂuni*.
happiness n. ʂuʂuni.
happy adj. ʂuʂun.
hard adj. aaaf.
he pron. ni; ina.
head n. -γuʂin*.
health, in good, adj. ʂandarust; ʂaran.
hear, to v.t. d-ʂyal-*.
heart n. -ʂa*.
heaven n. ʂiγaʂ.
heavy adj. ʂruʂam.
her pron. acc. ma; gen. manu.
here adv. ʂiko; ʂko; from — ʂkaʂam.
him pron. acc. ni; dat. niγa.
his pron. ni; ina; — own ʂu.

5226

hither adv. ikō.
honour n. izzat.
hoof n. kulwā; (horse's) zapak.
hoopoe n. kapwyu.
horn ter.
horse n. kayur.
horse-shoe n. zap.
hot adj. garum.
house n. ka; outer part of — bikni.i.
household n. kapa.
how? adv. bojtum?
how many? adj. bevum(an)i.
how many! bevum burj; akkurum.
how much? adj. bevum(an)?
however much conj. bevum . . . ka. hundred ika.
hungry adj. ikamum.
husband n. -gukar*.

I.

I pron. ja.
ibex n. (male) kuldru.
if conj. . . . ka.
ill adj. ausiam; (mildly) lalaru.
illness n. bikni.i.
in prep. -ajo; -di; from — -ajam.
India n. Hindustan.
Indian corn n. jaurawi.
inside prep. -ajo; — here ikarjo.
intelligence n. kuiyawi. intelligent adj. kuli.aw.
into prep. -ale.
iris n. small wild — brzema.
iron n. ikamur.

K.

keep, to v.t. (servant etc.) -alarurj-; (with pl. obj.) -alarurin-.
kid n. du.
king n. kuldu.
kiss, to v.t. kuk et-.

523 a

For words omitted between "letter" and "lion" see p. 527.

L.

labourer n. hired — mazdur.
lead n. ramra.
lean adj. dikuṇu.
leopard n. tak
lie n. gfaṇ.
light adj. (not heavy) hamaṇkum; (not dark) gori; hangori.
like adj. alta; ju.a; juman; °-ltaṇu; gunia.
little adj. cirum; pl. tryo.
long adj. yamanum.
look at, to v.t. yaru-.
loose adj. ḍruṇu.
lose, to v.t. cyaṇu-.
lost, to become v.i. °-warlu-.
lower, v.a.v. yaltar.
lying-down adj. gaṇlum.

M.

make, to v.t. °-al-; ch-; to cause s.o. — °-ṇṭ-.
male adj. wal.
man n. kir.
manner n. alta; in the — of °-ltaṇu; roil.
many adj. ḍuṇ.
mare n. mardiyu.
mark n. kai.an.
market n. hazar.
marvellous adj. akkri.
me pron. acc. ju; gen. jar; dat. jarye.
merchandise n. sauda.
midday n. dryori.
middle adj. matalu; in the — of alikori.
milk n. mamu.
millet n. ko; cha; gfarpil.
monkey n. barlya.
mouth n. kan; an.
moon n. kalmfa.
morning n. early — gundi.
mother n. mani.

523b

000 mother-in-law n. *-ugwa.
mountain n. ther.
much adv. luq.
my pron. ja'; — own ajya.

N.

naked adj. laq.
name n. -yek.
narrow adj. thanum.
near adv. anuv.
necessary adj. — to do . . . haj.
neck n. -aj.
need n. harjati.
new adj. thol.
night n. thap.
nine num. s huti.
no! hwa!(?).
no one pron. (person) mwa ka . . . (neg.).
not neg. predx with verbs a-; e-; ai-.
not to be v.i. ap-.
nothing pron. hes ka . . . (neg.).
now adv. amartsk.
nowhere adv. ana ka . . . (neg).

O.

O! lo!
oath n. v.n.v. tayjem.
occasion n. wanf.
offspring n. ealard.
old adj. (person) jaq.
on prep. -ti; yaja.
once adv. hok.
one num. h hen; xy hem; u hok.
orial n. m. hawu; f. yatal.
out adv. horja.
out of prep. -ojem.
other than thum.
outside adv. horja.
ovis poli n. m. hawu.
own adj. -ya'.
ox n. hor.

524a

P.

000 parrot n. toti.
pen n. (for sheep and goats) ʒɔr.
penitent adj. peśman.
people n. ʂʂ.
perhaps conj. albʌt.
person(s) n. ʂʂ; one — ʂʂʌn.
pig n. ʂwk.
pigeon n. γɔndʒl.
placate, to v.t. -hɔlikin-.
place n. jʌγa.
plank n. bʌlk.
play, to v.t. (music) -ʌγɔr-.
pod n. khoʃ.
point n. thʌn.
pour, to v.t. thi-; deme-.
present n. hʌi.ʌn.
prince n. badša yɔn.
proceed, to v.i. gots.hɔr-.
proper adj. mɔnɔrib.
property n. daulʌt; mʌl.
pulse n. kind of — γɔrʌʃ.
put on, to v.t. -ʌdil-; — s.t. on feet -ʌlta-; — (clothes) on s.o. -ʌwɔl-.

Q.

queen n. γɔndʒʃ.
question, to v.t. d*-ʌγɔrʒs-; doγʌrʒs-.
quick(ly) adj. adv. hɔmʌlkum.

R.

rafter n. ʃɔnj.
read, to v.t. sin-.
rear, to v.t. d*-ʌsmai.in-.
reared adj. wɔʃim.
reared, to be v.i. dusmai.in-.
reason n. sʌbʌb; by — of gʌndi; sʌxɔn.
reckon, to v.t. ts.hʌn-.
red adj. bɔrdum.
remain, to v.i. d*-wʌs-.
remember, to v.i. v.s.vv. -ʌski; ɔski.
respect n. ʌdʌb; ʒzzʌt.

5246

ring n. (for finger) karvada.
river n. nadi.
road n. gam.
roof n. hol.al; ādi.
run, to v.i. (of man, dog etc.) ha.m-;
(of horse etc.) ch.anjo-.

S.

saddle n. tāl.ag.
say, to v.i. ann-; a.ta.m-.
saying n. ban.
see, to v.i. °-gulo-; yam-.
seem to, to v.i. °-ayaio-.
-self pron. ādro. °-ākar.
woman n. bari.
servant n. dal.ar.
service n. ādāma.al.
set out for, to v.i. vāki ab-.
seven c. thalo.
shade n. sarl.
share n. hayo.
she pron. ma.
sheep n. bāla; v.a.v. bala.
sheep-house n. ād.
shingle n. kal.
shirt n. woman's — parl.
shoes n. kow.ādowa.
side n. this — ākirti; that — ati. sight n. nazir.
sign(al) n. zāwa.
silver n. bari.
since adv. ādja.
sister n. woman's — °-ajo.
sister-in-law n. woman's — °-vā.
sit, to v.i. karvaj- (pl. obj.) karvaio- to make s.o. — °-akarvaj- (pl. obj.) °-akarvaio-.
six num. c kāmdo.
sixty num. ākā ālāw.
skin n. kal.
skirt n. front — of things kam.an.
sky n. aipal.

525a

OOO

sleeping n. — for food hromul.
sleeve n. ziqr.
small adj. sg. cirym: pl. yrqo.
smell n. ger.
smoke-hole n. a.m.
snake n. yuk.ooma.
sock n. jowrp; cloth wrapped over — hem.ej.
some adj. hrrum; ho.
sometimes adv. hajo.
something pron. ho.
somewhere adv. ava.
son n. .qo*.
song n. yer.
sort n. xarf; xail.
sound n. .chir*; hawrqo.
speak, to v.i. xulum-.
spill, to v.t. dmu-.
stand up, to v.i. dk.e-.
star n. ooomum.
stone n. dum; —s yoro.
story n. gyaz.
strand n. (of rope) kaj.
strange adj. ukkaj.
stripe, to v.t. dij-.
such and such adj. fjirrui.
sun n. ao.

T.

take, to v.t. .q.an-*.
take away, to v.t. .dm-*; ilm-.
take out, to v.t. (pl. obj.) d.qrdo-*.
talk, to v.i. ilmig ot-.
talking adj. ilmig ot.m.
tea hrrum.
that pron. b.sg., v. ao; y fo, v. § 515.
that conj. after verbs of 'saying' etc. . . . ho.
thee pron. sg. ge; dat. geyo.
them pron. acc. ao; dat. aoyo.
then adv. fo ooarf; dlo; ho.
there adv. ter; terfo; ivem — terfem.

those pron. h ikuv; s gwiw; y gwin.
they pron. wv; wv.
thick adj. dzynnow.
thin adj. dikynow; (of rod etc.) bi.zzow.
this pron. him ikiw; hf ikuno; s gwu; y gwin, ikuh.
*horn n. 3-pointed —s hukkuhwiki.
those pron. h wv; wv; y ke; s tiu; y ke.
thou pron. sg.
thousand hazzv.
three num. h. tiki; s tiki.
threw away, to v.t. lip -.st*.
threw down, to v.t. gi- (s sg. and y obj.); gu- (s pl. obj.); wani- (s obj.).
thy pron. gi; — own gi gwi.n. thyself pron. reflex. gukkir.
time n. ikiw; wanf; —s zzuwwa.
to prep. (motion towards person) -.zzuiyu*; pahi; (motion into) -ulu; dat. suffix -i; -yu.
today adv. akkwin.
tomorrow adv. jim.zl; day after — kapulu; 3 days after — wurilu.
top n. ikuv; — of hill kuv y.st.
trade n. wuulu.
trader n. wuulugur.
tree n. dir.zzf; kun.
trouble n. wuluggat.
trousers n. cotton — gaiw y pl.
twenty num. ellir.
two num. h ell.ze; s ella.

U.

unmarried adj. wuf.
under prep. gow; gowu.
understand, to v.t. lul st-. undertaking n. wayda.
unfamiliar adj. akkat.
until prep. zurf.
up to prep. zurf.
upper adj. (road etc.) w.ukri.
us pron. acc. ui; dat. uiyu.

V.

000 very adv. huj.
voice n. -chur*.

W.

wall n. hul.
waste, to v.t. ospajo-; demo-.
water n. hihul.
waxie n. wazir.
we pron. mi.
what? pron. hoi; hoi.an?
whatever pron. hewam . . . ha; ho.
when rel. hihe.
when conj. . . . ha.
when? adv. haha?
whence? adv. onem?
where? adv. omalu?; ona?; up to —? ona nayi?; from —? onem?
white adj. hewam.
whither? adv. ona?
who? pron. sg. mon?; mon.an?; pl. mon?; monik?
whole adj. drusi; the — ghik.
why? adv. hoa?; hoin?
wide adj. hogum.
wife n. -ava*.
wish, to v.t. rui ai-.
with prep. hui; -hui*; (— person) -apeiye*; in company — yaw; -ayo*.
woman n. gua.
wood n. hum.
work n. dara.
world n. dunia.
worthy adj. loi.aq.

Y.

Yasin n. Yasin. year n. don.
yellow adj. ajkwi.
yes adv. aun.
yesterday adv. aradi; day before - gawhajin.
you pron. ma; gen. ma; dat. maya.
young n. (of animal) isi.
younger, youngest adj. ahyaw; pl. yaya.

526 b

Words omitted p. 478.

000

level adj. rat; 2. ʃak; bابو; — with ʃaw; to come — with 2. ʃak *-am.
lever n. ʃanal.
liar n. boriqkij; v.a.v. *-umos. 2. a. liberal adj. sanawat; ʃaʃa.
liberality n. ʃaʃakuʃ.
liberty n. at — ʃan; hij; xalaw; awad. lie, to v.i. laʃ et.
lid n. wawtij; to put — on wawtas.
lie n. *-umos.
1. lie, to v.i. gutkaiyas; jrik m.; (in lair) *-yak et.; to make s.o. — *-agutaiyas.
2. lie, to (mentiri) v.i. *-umolo ortas; *-umolo srnas.
life n. ji; — to come jimdas; azawat; for — umar mo; to come to — again d-wowas. V. sale jow.
lifeless adj. bidam.
life-time n. umar.
light n. rat; saqkuʃ; (lamp) gori; little

527a

— pilpili; first morning — sayavi; yavi; adj. (not heavy) hamalkum; (not dark) saŋ.

light, to v.i. hasrv; boyas; v.t. *-aspalas; lam el.; saŋ el.

light on, to v.i. fal *-am.

lightning n. bovē; sheet — tamlam; forked — N. biṭṭeṭ.

like adj. ju.an; — this akhiel; dakhiel; lai; lail.

like, to v.t. d*-amwṭas; mil el.; v.s.v. *-as.

likeness n. mwal; (semblance) baṭ.

limb n. khivts; *-daŋ; cp. ołaŋ.

limit n. 1. mol; gṭṭi.

limp, to v.i qaḍaŋ.

line n. gṭṭi; fin; 2. takir; (of meeting of two planes) gwḍ.

lining n. ivdar.

linseed n. harman.

lintel n. pajam takrij.

5276

5: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5)1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

CLASSIFIED LISTS OF BURUSHASKI WORDS.

000

Many common or important words in Burushaski have no simple equivalents in English, under which they can be entered in an Index.

Such are the names of local implements, utensils and foods, which have no exact counterparts in our culture, and words connected with ceremonies, customs and beliefs peculiar to the people.

Again, there are the names of animals, birds, insects, plants etc. to which only a specialist could attach the correct scientific labels.

Words of some of these types are collected in the following lists, but as classified lists are often convenient I have supplemented them by adding names falling within the same categories, even when more or less specific meanings have been given to them in the Vocabulary.

137

1. Plants.

haruhondzi.	dzughur.	hurman.	sarapur,	Sirijum.
hiwpur.	ghlal.	jaćiv, cp. ćaćiv.	sap.	Sum.
hurzur.	gulgul.	kurpan.	sarpaj.	S. tal.
ćharo.	γaću.	naphinas.	sosan.	tamaću.
ćhaj.	γon.	lili.o.	supander.	tsvnadk.
čapuri.	γolarp.	mordakay.	ćaćur.	thum.
čoγal.	himan.	morpun.	ćipić.	ćaćid.
ćaγaliski.	hosur.	naski.	ćuder.

2. Trees.

hatil.	dujur.	hormak.	majhali gal.	ćuγum.
1. hik.	2. gal.	hakur.	majur.	ćuγuri N.
hirmaj.	gali.	1. jurpa.	pfarć.	2. tal.
haj.	gaćhur.	japur.	pfelin.	tili.
čuγudur.	gindaruur.	2. ju.	phario.	turaj.
dindrć.	gundaru.	kaćul.	ćasi.

3. Birds.

136

bola.	gatshir.	yokuras.	manjaq.	qorayo.
čili baŕbak	ginjaraor čhin.	yuŕn.	mizun.	sindij.
v. Corrigenda,	girgir.	kuŕyo.	pforzj.	fzqujhin.
III. CO. II.	gorji.	kurporpo N.	pfulčin.	3. tal.
dig mayon.	ya.	kapo	purpo.	phafoqas.
gayu.	yenzjčhin.	kuŕ.	qalq.	sepur.
gorvlium kiray.	yoyomlzl.	kuŕči N.

Varieties of Hawk.

bar.	barša čup.	gasanč.	šahin.	šemoqor.
bahri.	čorz.	kiki.	šontin.	šeyun.
barša.	čauli.	kiqhiki N.

4. Insects.

biškokzj yalgu.	hamirlo.	kurkanas.	murndas.	pro.
čumuno.	hirirman.	khuru.	pfurltso.	{ turumas.
čurnju.	horlalas.	khirn.	pfirn.	{ tururas.
gonhorlalas.	khanimajurlo.	khirlo.	pfiran.	trago.
hayore pfiru.	kagha.	kum.	šeqsr.	šiki.

5. Diseases.

164

askur.	1. jak.	loyomots.	pfalanj.	tarlomots.
dalšyor.	zurtsumol.	m.aq.	porizanum.	šiti N.
damkurtai N.	zus.	marang.	rumi.	.urlalo tahil.*
gorurmkuŕ.	2. lam.	mirgi.	sozark.	tanpunas N.
yortaikzja.	lam čam.	narilo.	furlu.	sangzaq dalayor.
yolčikzl.	loyo.

(Of cattle) girdu. (Of grain) matol. 6. tam.

6. Food.

262

a. Varieties of Bread and Cakes, etc.:

hayunda.	garma.	kuči kzturti.	pfiji.	širik N.
diram pfiji.	giyal.	namali.	salodafi.	širu.
doldengi.	yomaldi.	nzula.	tapik.	šižor.
2. dumorgo	jagoi.	lanka.	šero.	tuyo.
gengfiji.

b. Milk and Milk Products:

baq N.	dižor.	skaiqi.	mashu.	qorut.
burur.	yiqiq.	mamu.	pai.	varpin.
čiku.	kilory.	manthil.

529

c. Miscellaneous other c'oods:

262

bapuig.	chap.	hori.	pulur lak N.	iu-t.
bing.	dawlo.	misuqili.	pfuqurk.	tkamik.
burzki.	kaula N.	mui.	lorbat.	utsiyonas.
chamaru.	hoj.	pulsu.	lirdu N.	urark.

7. Vessels, Utensils etc.

415

a. Bags and Sacks:

balilakri.	girgin.	khawaj.	usak N.	aprmots.
laturu.	γoti.	xalto N.	mari.	taγar.
γrγri.	khal.ufa.	uzitu.	qap.	tbriq.

b. Baskets.

chotkus.	čur'a.	giran.	γuturl.	kharoji.	thali.o.

c. Vessels and Containers:

bafalirk.	čilamči.	kamik.	masorba.	qimatdoru.
bayundokri.	churkas.	imakri.	pfaka.	sakay.
bali.	dolgas.	iran(?).	pfatamundal.	talpi.
balorj.	dustsak.	jati.	pfurko.	tsapur.
bira.	gujurr.	khati.	pfurl.	tskaγur.
bujuk.	gurkun.

8. Games.

524

bahal.	čyur čyur.	gatal bala.	tatay.	tskaγura.
bala.	daγu daγu.	tambak.	yaskuvi.

9. Supernatural Beings.

776

bilas.	dangalathas.	jasdara.	peri.	tsarlikri.
boriu.	hiv bilas.	jin.	pfuri.	yaskuvi.

10. Words relating to CEREMONIES, CUSTOMS etc. or Objects which have no English equivalent.

000

bari.	bupfau.	dani.	γorbel.	-mi nemuryu.*
barr.	burzki.	dorman.	γoriagij, (γallopij).	otag.
barzi.	beruri.	durk.		ottiki.
bak bik.	čoruçan.	dazaw.shots.	1. γau.	palow.
balgurin.	1. changu.	gurlja.	ilkan.	pfaniu.
bayinas.	chas.	gnarui.	kurli.	phaqiu.
berita, v. also page 421.	čuraγaruna.	giranu nirus.	sur.	pharotsiu.
	čokuji.	giryri.	lajeri.	peri as.
beriski.	čup.	guj.	mahar.	pasuru.
baral.	dai dai.	γau.	mamqili.	pfi.
bita N.	damba.	γankri.	makala.	pi.aqmur.

530

000

pilpili	izgamafiq.	f.af.ss.	fukoro.	wlaki.
4. pirn.	iutra.	-tharnqi.	turn al.	-yarl.
pirpa.	ta.ociq.	tinqhal.	thumoialiq.	yarkn-yu.
prarq.	thamas.	tornts.	thwthala.	-yarum.
sara.	tarkam.	2. tarri.	ulaci, v. Corrigenda III. 52. II.	yarag.
tarra.	thafakas.	2. thugar.

11. Onomatopoeic and Imitative Words.

a. Animal Sounds:

brd brd N.	mara mara.	qar qar N.	qiqiq N.	quqqororco.
hihiq.	qarq.	qr qr.	qor	mara mara.
kukuk N.

b. Other Imitative words:

bran.	dag dag.	yrrau.	xaf xaj.	farlar.
chachag.	dara dara.	hui hui.	lagay pagay.	falar.
cacar.	dira dira.	jajam.	lari lari.	tirilirig.
carcar.	dur dur.	2. jarjar.	liro liro.	tamtam.
cira cira.	du.ak du.ak.	jorajorag	pyu pyu.	tantan, talan
cira cira.	du.ag du.ag.	jij jaj.	rarrap.	v.a.v. 3. tan.
chuthaf.	gadiyar.sm N.	jujur.	rürür.	tapfap.
dakafak.	yaf.sm.	kurukuruf.	tarq tarq.

5. Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

WORDS COMMON TO BALTI AND BURUSHASKI.

197

In the following table the first column contains Balti (Tibetan) words, taken from the Vocabulary in Read's "Balti Grammar" (RAS 1934), which are either identical with words current in Burushaski, or present sufficient resemblance in sound and meaning to suggest comparison with Bu. words. The question, which I leave to others to settle, is whether in each case the comparison is justified. It seems to me that the answers cannot be determined by any fixed rule of phonetic equivalents, for words may have been borrowed by either language from the other, directly or indirectly (e.g. by Bu. via Shina), at earlier or later dates, and it is further possible that in certain cases the forms borrowed may have been dialectal variants, and not those appearing here. A first essential, in any case, for the determination of doubtful equations is an adequate knowledge of Tibetan.

Where I have been able to trace etymological equivalents of the Balti words in Jæschke's Tibetan Dictionary, I quote them also.

In addition, I have given a few words from Jæschke of which the Balti equivalents are not available. A good many more lending themselves to comparison with Bu. could probably be discovered.

Arabic and Persian loan-words, of which a considerable number are shared by Balti and Bu., have in general been omitted. A few words of probably Indian origin have been included.

In a few instances I have quoted Bu. forms which will not be found in the present Vocabulary. These have been placed in brackets. Parallel forms in other neighbouring languages (Shina, Khowar and Wakhi) may be looked for at the end of the relative entries in the Vocabulary.

A certain amount of sharing of vocabulary between neighbouring languages is natural and has been demonstrated in the comparisons in the Vocabulary, but it is surprising to find words shared by the remote Balti and Khowar which are not recorded in any of the intervening languages, Bu., Wakhi and Shina. I have entered two such below: B. chas chas and cheri.

No attempt has been made to normalise Read's and Jæschke's systems of transliteration.

The following contractions are used by Jæschke:

Ld. = Ladak.
Prov. = provincial.
Pur. = Purig.
Sp. = Spiti.
W. = Western Tibet.

Balti.	English.	Jæschke.	Burushaski.
apo.	grandfather.	—	*-ʌpi.
api.	grandmother.	—	*-ʌpi.
—	—	'ar-gon Ld.	ʌrɣʊn.
azoq.	cake.	—	(ʊrzoq, small cake).
uchaq.	room.	„ü-čag "chimney W.(?)".	učak.
bab.	duty.	„bab Sp.	bʌp.
balti.	room boarded all round.	—	baldi.
baqbu.	brick.	pag-bu (Balti), pag-gu.	(Sh. bʌgbu, a very large sun-dried brick. Also I think in Bu.).
bawa.	father (honorific).	—	bab'a, bavba.
bgyu.	warp.	rgyu.	ɣu, ɣ. ju.
—	buckwheat.	bra-bo (Prov. brau, Pur. bro).	boru.
brangsa.	halting-place, inn.	bran-so.	(Sh. brʌgsa, lodging-place. Also I think in Bu.).
bras.	rice.	brus.	brʌs.
bul-chaq.	tepid.	—	bolburlo.
chadpa.	a fine.	č'ad-pa. punishment.	jorpa.
-chan.	adj. ending.	-čan.	-čan.
chan-chan.	bare, naked.	(? rjen-pa).	(Kho. čʌn, bare, naked Perhaps Bu. čhʌn, empty. V. infra s.v. chon.).
—	green shell of walnut.	čan-čil "?W.".	(čhʌn'jil).
chastan.	mat.	(Cp. stan?).	(jastʌn; Sh. and Kho. častʌn, grass-matting).
cheri.	bug.	ca-ri W.	(Kho. čer'i, čeri, bed-bug.).

197

Balti.	English.	Jæschke.	Burushaski.
chikān.	embroidery.	—	čikʌn.
chon.	free.	(cog-pa, to have leisure. c'og-pa, to be permited, to be at liberty).	čhʌn empty; free, at liberty. Cp. Sh. čon, leisure.
—	now, forthwith, then.	da.	đa.
—	leaf, petal.	dab-ma.	1. tʌp.
—	tuft of wool as is used for spinning.	bal-dab (bal = wool).	dʌp.
—	quiet, calm.	dal-ba ‖ dal-ba (c'u-dal = still water).	4. tʌl.
darba.	to tremble, have fever.	dar-ba, to tremble, shiver.	2. dər. dʌdər (← dər + dər).
darbu.	fever.	—	—
darong.	up to now.	da-ruṅ, still, W. yet.	dərum.
garaz.	pea	—	γərʌṣ.
gat.	knot.	—	gʌṭ.
—	pumpkin, gourd.	gon W.	γoʷn, (goʷn, gaʷuʷn), cp.
—	melon.	ga-gon.	Sh. goʷʌn, muskmelon.
goni.	evil, wicked.	—	γonikṣṭ (probably = γoni + kṣṭ).
gberpa.	poplar.	dbyar-pa (Pur. sbyar-pa, elsewhere, ɟar-pa).	jərpa, cp. Dumāki, bərpa.
hasa.	soft.	—	ʌsa.
hal.	goal.	—	hʌla.
hiling.	noise, row.	—	(hiling).
hish.	breath.	—	1. hiṣ.
hush.	damp, moist.	—	huṣ.
hrtakhpa.	information.	rtags, rtogspa. Ld. tags-pa.	tʌxpa.
janda.	pocket.	c'an-da (v. Eng. Tib. Vocab. s.v. "pocket").	čʌnda.
kaka.	elder brother.	—	kaʷka, kuʷko.
kaṭ.	bed.	—	kʌṭ.
kupās.	cotton-wool.	—	gup'ʌs, cp. Wkh. kup'ʌs, E. Turki, kebás, cotton plant (Raquette), Kho. & Pra. karbas, Skr. karpāsa-.

Balti.	English.	Jæschke.	Burushaski.
khut khut.	short.	—	1. khuṭ, Wkh. kuṭ, kuṭ.
khsamba.	thought, idea, opinion.	bsam-pa.	samba.
laqphis.	handkerchief, napkin.	lag-p'yis.	laqpis.
payu.	salt.	pa-yu (Balti).	baiyu, Dumaki, payo.
phalu.	fruit, bead.	—	1. pfal.
phankhe.	advantage, benefit,	p'an-pa, use, benefit, profit.	(pfaṇke).
pharang.	syphilis.	p'a-ran.	pfalaṇi.
pinpa.	lower leg.	byin-pa, calf of leg.	pini.
polo.	ball.	bo-lo, Ld.	bola.
phu bya.	to blow.	—	pfu stas.
phut.	chaff.	—	pot.
qão bya.	to call, shout.	—	qau stas.
qar.	blanket.	—	qar.
rabat.	rubber.	—	(rabat).
rat, rad.	flat, level.	—	rat.
ruh.	good spirit.	—	rush (Ar., pl. arwah). The spirits of the dead, are considered good.
sang sang.	brightness, light: plain, clear.	snan-ba, to be bright, shine: light.	saṇ.
sikim.	silk.	—	sikim.
sing-ge.	lion; brave.	seṅ-ge.	siṇge.
snamdal.	moustache.	—	salat, cp. Kho. samlat, Wkh. sam'lat.
shang.	sense.	—	(šaṇ).
shang bya.	to be cautious.	—
shaq shaq.	smooth.	—	1. šaq.
shoqa.	cloak, choga.	—	šoqa.
tawaq.	gun.	tu-pag W.	tobaq.
tek.	button.	—	tak *-at., 2. tak.
tik.	spot.	—	tiko.
trampa.	headman.	—	tranfa.
thuk bya.	to spit.	—	thukti, cp. thur thala.
thur.	whip.	—	2. thur.

197

Balti.	English.	Jæschke.	Burushaski.
ʟsir.	line.	(Cp. pag-t'sir, W., a row or layer of bricks).	2. ta.hir.
tson.	captive, slave.	btson.	tson.
zizi.	mother.	—	azzi.

The names of the days of the week in Balti are merely variants of those in use in Shina and Burushaski, which are of Sanskritic origin.

Tibetan proper has a totally different series of its own, based on the names of the sun, the moon and five of the planets.

S: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burushо AV7

CORRIGENDA ET ADDENDA.

000

Vol. I.

Page.	Line.
VIII	4 f. b.	for	indentified	read	identified.
XXVIII	f. n. 2	»	γsεiq	»	γεiq.
	f. n. 4	»	is	»	are.
XLIX	f. n. 1,2	»	equated	»	equated.
	3	»	pasple	»	people.
LV	2 f. b.	»	af	»	of.
4	11 f. b.	»	futher	»	further.
14	4 f. b.	»	inanimate	»	inanimate.
17	6—5 f. b.	delete. V. Vocab. s. v. gil'ʌβu.ro.
39	10—13	ʌsu, ʌsj, chu and ɣfsl are y ʌsa is z.
39	15	ʌsyutiq was not confirmed. The pl. is given as ʌsypeiq.
99	§ 78	to the examples given add: ʌhʌsrowʌsuw dirumin 198. 1.
	13 f. b.	for	sence	read	sense.
110	f. n. 1. ii	»	-ɣm		-ɣm.
194	2 f. b.	QUB repudiated ʌsindarć- and gave ʌkindirć-.
224	§ 256 8	the verb dufo.ʌo is passive, and the du- is invariable.
225	19	for	becomr	read	become.
313	§ 344	with regard to ni, see also Vocab. s. v. nir.
	§ 346	for	"inapplicabitity	read	inapplicability.
329	13	»	dyu ʌsow	»	dyu.ʌsow.
360	§ 406	I am now sceptical of the existence of any Subjunctive tense of this nature, and believe that the explanation of these forms is to be sought in the -ʌo form of the verb.
374	7	for	nć	read	nć.
428	17	»	gubiq	»	gul'iqs.
441	6	»	ʌo	»	fu.
	2 f. b.	Add: In W. the -ʌo form is definitely not used as an Infinitive.
445	8 f. b.	for	op	read	up.

S. Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AVT Suzuki AVT

Page	Line
000
480	8 f. b.	for	wdi	read	wdi.
484	14 f. b.	"	ofymu	"	ofymu.
Plate 8		"	("Sakapo-ki")	"	("Sakapoki

Vol. II.

10	5 f. n.	V. Vocab. s.v. bekaro.
17	f. n. 19.2	for (ne read rne.
24	5	V. Vocab. s.v. dukeso.
30	f. n. 11	so far as my knowledge goes there is no such Subjunctive tense. Forms of this description are, I think, to be referred to the Infin. form in -as.
42	22	dengalas, v. Vocab. s.v. d-angalas* 3.
52	25	read: anilar aitan or anil atan.
62	22	kasaf, v. Vocab. s.v. kkasaf.
68	15	ainaw, v. Vocab. s.v. for revised translation.
	f. n. 17	regarding the negative forms of dowyas, v. Vol. I p. 454, note on 229, 2nd para. I was, however, subsequently informed that dowyas is in fact sometimes used with the negative prefix o-.
92	f. n. 2
94	9	lewat, v. Vocab. s.v.
98	f. n. 4	a number of verbs in d-* appear with do- when the subject is y.
100	f. n.	to the literature quoted add the following item which appeared after this was in type: David Neil, Alexandra, "The Superhuman Life of Gesar of Ling", Rider and Co. London, 1935, and review of same by L. A. Waddell, JRAS 1935 p. 904.
103	9 f. b.	for Ihes gnat read Ihamle ihes.
104	17	" pakaliw " pakalapw.
106	16 f. n.	see further, Vocab. s.v. 2. gfer last 2 para.s.
138	24 f. n.	the second conjecture is correct, V. Vocab. s.v. sowo.
141	8 f. n.	drdgaliw is here transitive, "he was on the point of overtaking them". So also drdgaliw 204.10. V. Vocab. s.v. d-dgaliw* 5.
149	19 f. n.	the form he was overshadowed by QUB.
183	9 f. b.	for Sue read Sur.
190	11 f. n.	dawarinai is correct, v. Vocab. s.v. dawaiw.
198	1 f. n.	Kaka is not, I think, a genitive, but properly Kaka-y, to which the -ny is a paragogic suffix.
203	10 f. n.	drdgaliw is transitive. V. supra note on 144.8
210	6	for jap read jap. V. Vocab. s.v.
214	1 f. n.	Kawaw D., probably Kawawy D., D. son of Kawa. Cp. note on 199.1 above.
220	6 f. n.	*-aja is a in the sg. and y in the pl.
229	7	kof sense, for revised translation see Vocab. s.v. kkof sense.

000

Page	Line
219	1 f. n.	v. Vocab. s.v. nir.
229	11 f. n.	v. Vocab. s.v. dryaṣṭa and d°-aṣṭa.
240	3 f. n.	v. Vocab. s.v. jatpat.
	6	the Ms. has: jmanigo hir ain.
	12 f. n.	there is probably no connection between gatail and takil.
	17 f. n.	the basal meaning of hrši is more probably "ploughing".
242	15 f. n.	tvag is for tafas, "wholly", "completely".
246	15 f. n.	the expression is to be taken literally: "I am going to turn round", i.e. at the end of the furrow.
263	19 f. n.	v. Vocab. s.v. 2 jag.
276	8 f. n.	drayman and drayminai, are causatives. V. Vocab. s.vv. d°-ayaṣa 3. and drayaṣa.
308	17 f. n.	v. Vocab. s.v. thamobhlig. The marriage day is the Saturday preceding the Tuesday on which the Thamobhlig fire celebration takes place.
	20	ertši, v. Vocab. s.v.
320	1 f. n.	my original impression was that Zmarlig was said to be in Nagar, but in the Index of Proper Names, drawn up later, I have suggested that it is in Hunza. I must have had some reason for this which I have forgotten.
332	11	hrum, v. Vocab s.v.
350	1 f. n.	drayan is causative. V. Vocab. s.v. drayaṣa
	5	manaṣ pfuṭrā, v. Vocab. s.v. 1. pfuṭrā and correct the translation given on p. 329.
359	6 f. b.	for bought read rather.
360	20 f. n.	the conjectures given about ronalil are incorrect, v. Vocab. s.v.
	21	substitute a comma for the full-stop after ronaṣ.
361	9 f. b.	before "They give two . . . ." insert: "In addition".
366	3 f. n.	the Berber channel carries water from the Ulter Gorge. Tahala is a minor gorge situated to the West of the former.
368	18 f. n.	read drakṣaṣ, from d°-ṣalṣaṣ q.v.
	15 f. n.	v. Vocab. s.v. -ḍan.
	18 f. n.	for the functions of d°-ayaṣa v. Vocab. s.v.
386	7	yalow being intrans. the translation given can hardly be correct. The meaning is perhaps: "black night has come and the lovers' souls will burn", or, "he burnt up"
	9	ba.ṣas, v. Vocab. s.v. brum.
	10	for maimi.ṣa nir read, as suggested, maimi.a nir, and v. Vocab. s.v. nir.
390	8	ḍaw, v. Vocab. s.v.
394	Notes	delete "8" and "10" and insert 7. before paligajar, and 9. before pa jiman.

Page.	Line.
000 364	13 f. n.	hewaig daltaako, v. Vocab. s.v. where QUB's explanation of the expression is now given.
376	5	mun. The word intended must have been mwrj, mwrj *-m.n.n.e denotes constipation (H. qaly hewa) accompanied by distention of the belly.
379	4	V. Vocab. s.vv. dawsie and fewre. For dawsie read dewsie. Amend the translation, omitting "In a little".
	12	For ofotsma read ofotsma.
398	6	» » » »
	21	» khwrjajw » hwrjajw.
	18 f. n.	yeirkiee. The meaning "yearling" was confirmed by QUB, v. Vocab.
382	5	réde. According to QUB réi may also mean "steel".
	10 f. n.	The word must be nikalow the pps. of *-ikakowm, "to wind s.t." on to s.t. (v. Infra p. 548).
	21 f. n.	Perhaps the translation is "a closed (or, unopened) pumpkin".
384	23 f. n.	ammu. The word is amamu, v. Vocab.
386	14 f. n.	tsamag. The word is samag, v. Vocab.
393	Prov. 16	ghal marje, v. Vocab. s.v. ghal. tsalmarij, or tsilmarij, is a goat-skin which is inflated and used as a support in swimming.
		hilgim = hilkam i.e. (hang up) on the wall. V. Corrigenda to Vol. III, p. 365.
		V. corrections in Vocab. s.v. 1. gforum. The H. represents another version in which ee gforum (of which the sense is perhaps "in jealous") is replaced by daforuri ee tikkar deyaqorri, "hunts, lands itself".
	Prov. 17	for sapat read sepat and v. Vocab. s.v.
394	Prov. 23	v. Vocab. s.v. dokag.
402	6	for ronki read rahi.
406	7	» m.n.tinde » m.n.tinee.
406	23	dumni ino, for revised translation see Worth. Vocab. s.v. d-amni.in-*.

Later information available before the Vocabulary went to press has enabled me to make in it certain corrections in the translations accompanying the texts. Attention may be drawn to the following passages of which amended translations will be found in the Vocabulary under the headings quoted.

Passage in Text.	Vocabulary Entry.
14.2	hirikwrg
88.14	kew
93.12	kag
110.19	qfut

000

Passage in Text.	Vocabulary Entry.
164.15	2. fərq
228.7	1. ākēt
314.4	v. Corrigenda to Vol. III, under 89.11 wlaṭi.
340.2	gərdi
384.10	qahal

Vol. III.

Page.	Col.	Line
9	II	10	for mali.ss read mali.sm.
		8 f. b.	read: *-ugafas and ugafas.
11	I	8 f. b.	add: V. n.v. *-yurb.ss.
	II		entry *-ryun.ss, the correct form is *-yun.ss.
17	I	4 f. b.	for ammrin read ammrin.
24	I	4	entry (*-ufarm.ss), delete this entry and see 1. pfarm.ss.
		18	after "breakfast" add: Cp. Sh. ḥasi, early breakfast of upper classes.
35	I		entry *-mali.ss line 4, substitute a comma for the fullstop after "pat".
38	I	4	for ugafas, etc. read ugafas, etc.
39	I		entry ewhayas, read ewhayas etc. Insert a bracket after -l-, and delete the bracket following hayhawas.
	II	11	for -ši.ss read *-ši.ss.
45	II		entry imuqudi, add: The Ha. form is imuqeṭi.
46	I		entry iwwitin.ss, all the t's in this article should be ṭ; line 3 from end for muwuṭin.ss read *-muwuṭin.ss.
	II		entry iwan, add: Cp. perhaps T. airān and E. Turki iran, buttermilk).
48	I	2d calc.	for ski-lam, ski.wlam read iski-lam, iski.wlam.
49	I	16	for - ši read iši.
52	II		entry wlati. The word denotes the storeroom of a house in which the year's supplies are kept. It is situated behind the back wall of the living room, and is entered by a door in the middle of that wall. Laterally it extends the full width of the house, but from front to rear it measures only about six feet. "wl + ha, inside room, + ti).
60	II		entry ḥrbek. This entry appears to be entirely wrong. "Bird" should probably have been read as "bird", and the combination ṭiṭ ḥrbek is to be identified with the word ṭiṭḥrbek recorded in Wkh. with the meaning of "hoopoe".

5. Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5)1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

Page.	Col.	Line.
61	II	1	delete the meaning "punishment". For ʌtʌs read -ʌtʌs*.
			Entries 1. bʌ·lt and 2. bʌ·lt, bring these into alignment with the ot' r key-words.
62	I	9 f. b.	for dunʌte read dunʌte.
	II	4	» sence » sense.
		10 f. b.	» a-dutʃʌs » a-dutsʌs.
		9 f. b.	» dusuyʌs » dusuyʌs.
63	II	7	» anspending » suspending.
64	I	10	for bʌy read 2. bʌy.
65	II		entry bʌy'eŋ, read bʌy'eiŋ.
67	I		» bʌlʌŋ, add: (Cp. Sh. bʌluŋ).
	II		» bʌlçum. As conjectured, bʌltsum was intended.
74	I		» bʌyum, for Sh. bʌm read Sh. bʌm.
77	II	21	for (? tʌčʌp) read (i.e. tʌdʌk).
80	II		entry bidil, read bi-dil.
81	II		» bilirčʌ, add: (Cp. Sh. brlčʌ).
86	I	8	for brʌm read brʌm.
87	I		entry bul, for i-ʌŋ read -i.ʌŋ.
	II	9	delete the comma after "Ladakhi".
89	II		entry burʃo 2., for ʃrhil read ʃrqil.
93	I		» čʌma l. 8, for "finewrought (?)" substitute "convex". V. entry 2. foŋ.
			last line, for čʌmus read čhʌmus.
	II		entry -čʌŋʌrʌs*, read -čhʌŋʌrʌs*.
94	I		» čhʌp stʌs l. 2., for ʃʌmeʃʃ read ʃʌmeʃʃ.
			last line, for scab read scar.
95	I		entry čərbu l. 2., after "official" insert a comma.
98	II	7	the Sh. nonn has been confirmed as čhərč.
99	II		entry čili. See corrigendum to entry bʌ·bʌk, 60.II above.
101	I		» çuk, for čuk read çuk throughout.
		2 f. b.	for 15 read 16.
	II	13	delete the accent in čhumʌ'rišo.
104	II		entry ʃʌmʌl at end, for Sh. ʃʌmʌl read Sh. dʌmʌl.
110	I		after entry 3. ʃʌm add: There appears to be another word ʃʌm occurring in hik ʃʌm, "once", and perhaps as the base of ʃʌmʌn. Cp. Sh. ʃʌm, time, occasion.
	II		entry ʃʌmbu. The word appears to apply in particular to the "reed" of a reed-pipe.
117	II		entry d-ʌstsʌlʌs*. Transfer this entry to precede d-ʌstsʌyʌs*.
121	I		» d-ʌwərʌnʌs*. Transfer this entry to follow dʌw'ʌni.
122	II		» ʃeŋçuʌs, after ʃ-ʌŋçuʌs* add: or ʃ-ʌ·ʌŋçuʌs*.
127	II		» d-ʌnʌs* 2. l. 2 after "exhausted" insert a comma.

542

Page	Col.	Line.
139	I	3 f. b.	ocodim di.shimi is probably to be read: ocu (i)ñim di.shimi. It has come on least now.
161	II	12	for d°ivim read d°.vi.m.
184	II		entry d°-qaram, add at end: Tra. of daqaram. Transfer this entry to p. 188 II and insert before the entry drag mamra.
185	I		• dayanjam, add at end: The Tra. of this verb is d°-anjam.
186	I		• daw'ram, add at end: The corresponding Tra. is d°-qaram (v. p. 184 II).
	II	6 f. b.	delete "1".
		3 f. b.	insert comma after "confound".
187	I	10 f. b.	for dragam read dragam.
		9 f. b.	entry dragaram. The form dragaram is to be postponed.
	II	2	delete "1".
148	II	7	• the bracket after "sens".
146	I		entry dorsin l. 2., delete "q.v."
149	II		• dawrkam, add at end: The Ca. is d°-arkam.
150	II		• d°-ndr.m, read dehr.m, dehr°-. For the last line substitute: (A d- form of °-ndr.m with neutral vowel).
158	II		entry °faltam. Add: faltam, gfaltam, without the Fa. IV., serve as an Intra. Vb., e.g. ferang wapalt jawir mamini, v.s.v. 2. jawir.
161	II		entry garva. Transfer this entry to follow garvam.
166	II		for entry gaf'i read gf'i.
172	II		transfer entry gurk to follow gurkam.
174	II		entry gus l. 2: for "female for . . ." read: female. For . . .
176	I		after entry ياشيلها insert new entry: yalhgaid, v.s.v. yarhgaid.
212	II		for entry jari read jrj.
216	II		• • 2. jirmal read 2. jirmal.
226	II	6	• kawa read kawa.
227	II	9 f. b.	• "(said to be a Bolti word)" substitute: (Cp. Tib. khag-house).
235	II	4 f. b.	for 22 read 21.
236	II	6	read khajkalo and kalhaar (= khajkaar).
		7	for 64.17 read 64.7.
240	II		to entry nalîw add: Cp. also E. T. galîw.
244	I		entry zur, add: (Cp. Sh. mwaar S. and Khe. mwrak, to moor; Wkh. zur zur, pouring: E. Turki (Raquette) slowly moving).
245	I		entry zurvaf, at end of note add: and Khe. zwrg, third mist.
246	II		entry lal'rv, transfer to p. 247. II to precede entry 1. Lam.
266	II	3	after "Cp." insert: Sh.
283	6	6	this gfard is probably the same word as gfard in the following entry and should have -d.

543

B.Lexikon L-3 (1920-4,1934-5)1835
AVT Baraka: AVT

Page.	Col.	Line.
800	I	18	for phalla read phallu.
808	I		entry g'ryarem, transfer this entry to p. 807. I. to follow geryer.
809	II	16	for lagbawa read ongbawa.
811	II		entry 2. ueyu, transfer "Fra." to entry 1. ueyu.
817	I		to entry mwiq for Makwaja read Makwaja.
818	II	4 f. b.	delete the bracket following "breakfast".
826	II	19	for ad read ad.
832	I	7 f. b.	" ag " ag.
838	II	4 f. b.	" ksyovi " ksyovi.
836	II	9 f. b.	delete the comma after ksyov.
837	II		entry ya.n yaiaq, add: (Cp. yaa).
844	I		" .dkan* I. 8, after dakar insert: (= d'garan, p. 194. II.
845	I	3	for 2. tan read 1. tan.
	II	6 f. b.	" manare " manara.
847	II	5 f. b.	" ferg ferg " ferg ferg.
849	II		entry 2. ferjan, for ffan- read tan-, tan-.
850	I	11	for "(Cp. yaaa?)" substitute: (Cp. ya.n yaiaq and yaaa?)
857	II		entry trap ahan, add: (Cp. Sh. trap ih.)
860	II	4 f. b.	for ladula read ladula.
862	II		entry la.kurij " la.kurij.
865	II		after entry la.kilyawa insert new entry: ladu'ani, ladunvi, pl. ladunvi.ants, -ents s. (Also recorded as ermunij).
			A male goat's skin which is inflated and used as a support in swimming. ladunvij (ldilinaw la the swimming-skin is inflated. ladunvin tam daiji, ladlaw mwin ar farami the swimming-skin swims, and the skin (hanging) on the wall is vexed (or, is jealous, or perhaps, enthusiastic) Prov. 16. V. s. p. 848.
867	I		entry la.kurma, transfer this entry to follow la.kurvilma.
870	II	6 f. b.	for pamkla read pamykla.
873	II	4 f. b.	" gar " kar.
876	II		after entry .gandi* insert new entry: .gandima*, v.a.t. wgandima.
880	I		entry parpali, transfer this entry to follow parvalas p. 879. I.
884	II	5	for al read al.
887	I		entry parvi, transfer this entry to follow parvali.
	II		entry garyar, transfer this entry to follow .gagalants*, p. 886. II.
890	II		transfer entry arma to follow ard.
898	I	8 f. b.	for .akarkma* read .akarla*.
422			" entry Lanh " Lana.

544

SUPPLEMENT to CORRIGENDA et ADDENDA Vol. III. 000

Add to the Vocabulary the following four words originally recorded with Pa. Pt.s, and accidentally omitted when these were sorted:

*-kkakwa, *-kkakwi-, also without the Pa. Pt.,

1. to wind a thing on st., wind up st.
   ekkwa wanigiw ekkakwa he she is winding silk on her head.
   eli'wa kwyanda ekkakwawa they are winding balls of silk.
   Tpn. ekkakw 882.16 f.n. V. corrigendum to yonage.
2. to crowd round, mob (with hostile intent).
   ekkjiw ugwa ehki kkakwawa they had all crowded round me with the intention of beating me.

*-wallawa, *-wallawi-, also without the Pa. Pt.

1. to wind st. on to st., v.a.n. 2 labi.
2. to rub on (medicine, oil etc.) mikinda wwallaw rub on medicaments.
   kil ewallaw (= + wallawa) don't rub on oil.

*-wildir -ln, -i.nda kin.

the term applied to joint fathers-in-law in relation to each other, and by them of and to each other; also used by a woman of her daughter's husband's father 601 kin kin.ana ugwa ivw dowdinni la ina hilaw gwy la da iwa daniwaw nwy kikinwildirda here when a man gets someone's daughter (as wife) for his son, the lad's father and the girl's father are *-wildir to each other.

kinu kinu wildir kwi, wildirda wwathow this man is this man's *-wildir, they are -wildir-a.

Anan la Ziwi wwildir.nda here A and B are -wildir-a (and speak of each other as wildir). (Cp. ceremonially 5b, labi.)

*-wilpua, pl. -wilpada, -wdinda, -wdila (and -ywwdi?) hf. the term applied to joint mothers-in-law, corresponding to the male term *-wildir.

ki kinu wwilpa.nda (wildinda?) here they are *-wilpua to each other.

Ka.a, wilpua! Very good, my *-wilpua! (Cp. ceremonially 5b, labi).

545

[p.546 is blank]

S. Lowinner L-3 (1930-4, 1934-8) 1938
AV7 Burushaski AV7

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

000

	Page.
Preface	V
List of Contractions	XII
Introductory Note	XV
Burushaski—English Vocabulary	1
Werchikwar—English Vocabulary	394
Index of Proper Names	418
Index of English Words in the Burushaski—English Vocabulary	440
Index of English Words in the Werchikwar—English Vocabulary	530
Classified Lists of Burushaski Words	539
Words Common to Balti and Burushaski	583
Corrigenda et Addenda	587

547

For Burushaski-English vocabulary and English index to Burushaski words, see category 116, entire text.

5: Lorimer
104

AV7 Burusho AV7

For Burushaski-English vocabulary and English index to Burushaski words, see category 116, entire text.

o: O'Leary E-4 (no date) 1965 AV7 Burusho AV7

Burusho Cultural Summary

by

Timothy J. O'Leary

Unpublished Manuscript

Human Relations Area Files
New Haven

1965

[title page]

Burusho Cultural Summary

Orientation

105 The Burusho are the inhabitants of Hunza and Nagir, two small Burushaski-speaking states in the northeasternmost part of West Pakistan. The area, in the center of the Karakoram Himalaya, consists for the most part of a close-packed mass of peaks and glaciers, a great number of the former being over 20,000 feet high. Where the Hunza River (an affluent of the Gilgit River which flows into the Indus from the north) has cut its way down from the Pamirs there remain a few shallow terraces which are cultivated by the natives of the regions, the Burusho. They speak an isolated language which as yet has not been traced to any major linguistic stock. Comparative population figures are as follows:

	1878	1921	1931
Hunza	6,000	12,117	13,241
Nagir	10,000	14,188	13,672
Totals	16,000	26,305	26,913

The population density in 1931 for Hunza was 3 per square mile, that for Nagir was 9 per square mile -- Nagir being a much smaller kingdom with more level ground. Since almost nothing has been written on the State of Nagir, most of the following refers to Hunza.

105 The original inhabitants of the kingdoms are said to be descended from three soldiers from the army of Alexander the Great. The rulers of the two states (called Thum or Mir) claim actual descent from Alexander, although their families came from Iran about six centuries ago. At any rate, the physical type is definitely Caucasoid and not Mongoloid, with fair complexions, heavy beard, eyes which are usually brown, but sometimes blue or grey.

Economy

Agriculture is the main occupation of nearly all the inhabitants. The major crops are wheat, barley, several kinds of millet, sweet and bitter buckwheat, potatoes (introduced by the British), and several kinds of pulses. Barley seems to have been the original cultigen since it is basic in all festival and ritual foods. Wheaten bread is much preferred, but barley remains the largest crop. Bitter buckwheat is detested, but a good deal of it is planted, since it is a very hardy plant and will resist cold that would kill other grain crops.

They are skilled farmers and have a good knowledge of crop rotation, soils, and climates. All fields are irrigated, the water being carried by kuhls or aqueducts which extend along the mountain faces, some of them for many miles. This is necessary since nearly all of the fields are high above the river level, and rainfall at the levels at 105 which they live (6,000 to 8,000 feet) is meager.

Seed is sown broadcast in the fields. Fields are ploughed with a wooden plough, and the wooden digging stick, shod with iron, is the other major field implement. The fields are manured patiently with aged animal and human manure -- not a scrap of either being wasted.

Their main food is bread, which is made in a large number of varieties, both leavened and unleavened and with the addition of various pounded fruits and grains. Whole milk is not an article of diet. Milk produced by the cattle, sheep, and goats is generally converted into butter (maltash), curds, and other products. Meat is taken perhaps two or three times a year at festive occasions.

The women have small vegetable plots in which they grow carrots, turnips, marrows, gourds, and a great variety of greens. They also have a few tobacco plants, although not much tobacco is smoked.

After grain and greens, the essential items of Hunza diet are the apricot, fresh and dried, and mulberries. A few apples, pears, and peaches are grown, but these are not particularly valued since they do not dry and preserve well. They also grow a few grapes, which are either eaten fresh or made into wine. Since the growing season is so short there usually is not enough time to make them into raisins.

Some herding is also done, principally for milk and wool. The most animals a family usually possesses is a flock of from 20 to 25

105 sheep, goats, and cows. Some of them are pastured during the summer at higher altitudes and are tended by herdsboys.

Each peasant family is almost entirely self-supporting and independent, eating of the produce of its own fields and herds. There is always a period of extreme scarcity in the early springtime, since the production of all crops is low due to the poorness of the soil. The most that can usually be expected is a tenfold crop, with a sevenfold crop being more usual. They would rather starve than use the seed crop which is put away at the end of the harvest. As a result of all this, the diet is quite poor, especially lacking in proteins. However, the population of Hunza as a whole remains relatively free from disease, possibly due to the stringent cleanliness which custom forces on them.

Weaving is done by many families; the men spin the goat hair and the women spin the sheep wool. However, most clothing is made from cotton cloth which is imported. Clothes are kept until worn out, then picked apart and the thread used to make new cloth.

Social Organization

Hunza is a stratified society, with a hereditary ruler, the Tham or Mir, at the top. The "classes" generally are as follows:

1: The Thamo, i.e., the royal family with the Tham or Mir at the head;

2: The Uyŝngo or Akhbirting - the "Great," the superior officers of the state, but not of royal blood;

105 3: The Bär, Bäre,or Sîs - the cultivators, the bulk of the population;

4: The Shadarsho - the servants, who are exempt from menial labor;

5: The Baldakîyo or Îsîlgalasho - the load carriers;

6: The Bèrîcho - the musicians and blacksmiths.

The latter, the Berîcho, are a small community of ultimately Indian origin who were brought in to supply the blacksmith needs of the people. The Wakhi, an immigrant group, live in the higher areas of the kingdom and speak a different language and have a different culture. They are generally considered inferior to the Hunzukuts (inhabitants of Hunza).

Although the society is stratified, there is remarkably little servility in the population. In effect, there are two strata, the royal family and the rest of the people. There is no age stratification, but the elders generally enjoy higher prestige because of their greater experience. There is no great sex status differentiation. Although the Hunzukuts are Moslem, their sect, the Ismaili, does not force them to debase their women and accordingly they have a quite high status. The Nagar belong to a different, more orthodox sect and the situation is accordingly different there.

Social position is indicated more by the condition of clothing and house than by any outward difference in cut or pattern. The people are generally obedient and seldom defy authority unless there is a grave contravention of established custom.

Marriage

105 Although they are Moslems, they retain their old custom of exogamic marriages between the four main class. Although cross-cousin marriage is the preferred marriage in Islam, it is rarely practiced in Hunza since it savors of incest to them in comparison with the exogamic practice. They very rarely take marriage partners from outside their own Hunza society, although the Mir and his family sometimes exchange wives with the corresponding family in Nagir. Marriage with other groups is almost non-existent. Although polygamy is mentioned in one source, none of the other sources mention this practice, although it probably is permitted.

Child marriages do not take place, but it is very rare that a girl older than 16 or a boy older than 18 is unmarried. A bride price is paid, but it is not large for the poor. It depends on the special status and wealth of the individuals concerned. The Mir's family pays the highest bride price. Divorce is allowed if the wife proves to be incompetent in the management of family affairs, or if husband and wife prove to be incompatible. No stigma is attached to divorce, and widows, widowers, and divorced people commonly remarry.

Inheritance

The majority of peasant families are freeholders. The land passes from generation to generation without tax during life or duty after death.

105 The land is generally not in one piece but in small lots scattered over the area. A woman cannot inherit land. When the father dies, the land is fairly divided among the sons -- the land classified according to the various types of trees on the land, its arability, etc. Although women do not inherit, the men have the obligation to see that the women are successfully taken care of or married. If a wife dies, the husband may remarry again, but if he has had any sons by the first wife he must divide his land equally with these sons. Thus if he had two sons, he will get one-third of the land and only the latter will be passed on to any sons he might have by his second wife. The youngest son inherits the family house, the eldest son inherits the best land.

The Sexes

Man and wife cooperate in their work without embarrassement and no work is taboo for either sex. In work men and women have recognized roles but these roles seem to be regulated by physical capacity and convenience rather than by established custom. There is nothing rigid about these working roles. For instance, usually a woman or girl will drive a ploughing team, but sometimes a man or a boy will take a hand.

The women hold a position of freedom and respect rare in other Eastern societies. It is quite common for a wife to entertain male 105 visitors without her husband being present, and when he arrives he feels no resentment. The women move about freely, unveiled and unaccompanied. They live in extended families, with the son bringing home his wife to live in the father's house. The young couple sleep in the common living room until conception, then they move to the common sleeping platforms, one for the men and one for the women.

Clans

The Hunzukuts are divided into four major clans, which are centered in Baltit, and several minor clans scattered over other villages. These clans are not localized groups since members can be found in every village in Hunza. Exogamous marriage between the clans is the rule. The clans are all of equal status, but the Diramiting clan is considered first in prestige for historical reasons.

Settlements

The Burusho cling to their settlements along the eight or nine mile stretch of the Hunza River below Altit at an altitude of 6,000 to 8,000 feet. They live grouped in several villages along this stretch. The houses are almost indistinguishable from the rocks against which they are built wherever they can stick; since the area is so steep there is no chance for an orderly layout of the villages. The buildings are 105 constructed of mud and stone. In many of them, the pillars supporting the roof, the lintels, friezes, and wainscoting are carved from wood and ornamented. The Hunza dwelling is generally a fortress-like cube whose front door is screened from the hostile mountain air by a barn built onto the house. The door of the barn is strategically placed at right angles to the door of the house and some distance from it. The only ventilation is the central smokehole. The idea is to have a draughtfree house, which is quite necessary in a country so lacking in fuel for fire. In the main part of the house are two sleeping benches arranged along the sides, about 18 inches above the floor. One of these is for the men and the other for the women. The cooking areas are near the ends of the benches. Cooking vessels were originally generally of soapstone, but nowadays aluminum and iron pots and pans are being brought in. Gourds are used as jugs. Spoons and forks are carved from wood or imported.

Administration

The villages are communities which live within definite geographical limits. They were originally centered around the khans (fortified places) which were used for protection before the British entered the area during the 1890s. They have no police. The headmen have no authority generally except for their personal influence and that of the 105 of Pakistan. However, to enter the states it is still necessary to get the acquiescence of the Mirs. General access to the area is still blocked both by the Pakistan government and by the Mirs of Hunza and Nagir.

Religion

The people of Hunza are Mohammedans of the Ismaili (Mauli) sect. They are in no way fanatic. Restrictions, formalities, and ritual are reduced to a minimum. Religious freedom was declared in the state in 1892. There are no mullahs in Hunza, but rather khalifas (lay priests) who are the spiritual leaders or teachers. Religious observances do not play an evident part in Hunza life. The people of Nagir are members of the Shia sect of Islam and are much more strict and orthodox in their observance of the tenets of Islam. The Burusho became converted to Islam about three centuries ago. The people of Hunza became Ismaili heretics about five generations ago.

External Relations

The two states have not been on particularly good terms with each other, particularly since the conversion to Ismailism. In pre-British days, the people had a very bad reputation as warriors and brigands who raided the caravans in Central Asia. They made 105 Mir. There are two or three headmen in most villages. There are a couple of officials in each village who arrange supplies for travelers, and also government appointed men who for a small regular retainer do necessary jobs for the central government. The Mir may deport ill-doers from the country for definite periods.

Each village group is an administrative unit. The Tham (Mir) is represented in it by one to three men who direct his orders to the public. The population is divided into five districts each of which bears one share of rajaki (obligatory labor). These are Baltit, Genish, Altit, Hindi, and Towants.

There is a long series of "courts" for settling disputes. In the first, the heads of the two houses involved and the families have a council. The second is a council of community headmen. Then there is a council of the headmen of the four principal clans. The Mir is the ultimate authority in making legal decisions.

As noted earlier, the Burusho are divided into two states, Nagir and Hunza. A Mir is at the head of each state, but the Mir of Hunza seems to be the more important. Both states were autonomous as regards internal affairs and acknowledged the Maharaja of Kashmir. Since 1947, when Gilgit Agency, which includes these two states, broke from Kashmir, the states have acknowledged the supremacy 105 many slave raids, but usually sold them rather than bringing them back to their own country. Since the British rule in the 1890s they have moved away from their tight-packed villages under the protection of the forts. Warfare as such has become a thing of the past.

Kinship

Although data concerning kinship terminology are poor, the cousin terminology seems to be of the Hawaiian type, i.e., all cousins are either equated with siblings or called by terms clearly derivative from those for siblings. This is reflected in the marriage pattern in which, contrary to Islamic custom, cross-cousin marriage is not the preferred type and in fact is very rare.

Conclusion

Burusho culture as of this date seems to be fairly stable, although contact with the outside world is increasing. Many Hunzukuts work for brief periods in Pakistan and probably as a result mild epidemics of infectious disease which were rare are becoming more common. Contact with the outside world will probably remain fairly limited for some time to come, however, in view of the complicated international situation, since China (i.e. Tibet) is along one border and Kashmir is quite close.

6: O'Leary E-4 (no date) 1965 AV7 Burusho AV7

Bibliography

105
113 Lorimer, David Lockhart Robinson. The Burushaski Language. 3 volumes. Instituttet for Sammenlignende Kulturforskning, Serie B: Skrifter, XXIX, 1-3. Oslo: H. Aschehoug and Co., 1935-1938.

Lorimer, Emily Overend. The Burusho of Hunza. Antiquity, Vol. 12, pp. 5-15. Gloucester: John Bellows, Ltd., 1938.

_____. Language Hunting in the Karakoram. London: George Allen and Unwin, Ltd., 1939.

Rodale, J.I. The Healthy Hunzas. Emmaus, Pa.: Rodale Press, 1948.

Tobe, John H. Hunza, Adventures in a Land of Paradise. Emmaus, Pa.: Rodale Press, 1960.

116

116 TEXTS--a full set of pages from each processed source, arranged in page order, as a means of establishing the context for any particular slip. Sets are arranged in the numerical order of the sources. See also:

Literary texts 539

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

John H. Tobe

HUNZA

Adventures in a LAND OF PARADISE

RODALE BOOKS, INC., Emmaus, Penna.

[title page]
[p. i]
[pp. 1-235 not processed]

CHAPTER 28

Old Baltit Fort

122 SOME TIME BEFORE 6 o'clock in the morning a tray containing a huge pot of tea, cups, sugar and biscuits was brought into our room and placed on a table between our beds. The servant quietly departed.

Friend Cecil[1] was feeling much better this morning and wanted to get up and about, but the doctor had ordered that he remain in bed.

So, sharp at 8 o'clock, after saying good morning and cheerio to Cecil, I trotted down the stairs. At the landing there was young Jahangir waiting for me. I had made a rendezvous with him for this time—the thought being that we should have breakfast together so as to give less trouble to the Mir or his household.

The doctor came up a moment later and said that he would go up and visit his patient and would meet us at the Mir's table.

Both the Mir and the Rani were expecting us and

1 [i.e. Cecil Brunton - Analyst]

after the usual greetings, he asked how Cec was doing. 122
"He seems to be quite a bit better today!"

"I'm awfully sorry he had to leave last night," said the Mir.

I didn't think he'd even noticed it—but he had.

"The doctor is up visiting him now," I told him. "He said he would join us in a few minutes."

"What does he usually have for breakfast?" the Mir asked me.

"Oatmeal, poached or soft boiled eggs, toast, jam and coffee would be wonderful if they are available."

"Not only is it available," said the Mir, "it is ready, for that is part of the breakfast we usually prepare for our guests. It will be taken up to him immediately."

A signal and a few words in Burushaski and Cecil's breakfast was well on its way up.

So we had breakfast in the dining room and chatted 124
and I sought to make every moment count by asking questions that were vital to me . . . that is, questions about Hunza.

I am quite sure that the Rani understood most of [191]
the things that we talked about. She could not have been shamming as she looked both interested and charming while the conversation went on.

"I have arranged for an interpreter to accompany 124
you on your trips and you can go wherever you like, 115 providing you can get through and the roads are open," 191
the Mir told us.

Shortly after, Sultan Ali appeared. He was the schoolmaster and also taught the Mir's children at home. He was to be our interpreter and guide. He was a slender, handsome young man. I'd judge his age as being in the early twenties. His command of English was very good. But I don't think his English was up to the standard spoken by the Mir, who spoke so fluently

124
115 that one would never believe that it was only a second-191 ary language to him.

231 "You know," I said to the Mir, "one of the things
115 that I wanted to see when I came to Hunza was a yak. I understand from my readings that yaks are used in this part of the country and I have been looking everywhere as I walked along the road to Baltit, but I have as yet seen no sign of a yak!"

"That is not hard to explain," the Mir said. "The yaks are further up in the mountains. They cannot stand the heat and we keep them in the higher altitudes where they can be comfortable. If they are brought to the lower altitudes, they suffer. They like to be up around 11,000 feet or higher."

"Well, then how can I get up to see them?" I asked. "I don't mind if I have to walk for a day or two, but see them I must!"

"I'll do better than that," said the Mir. "I will phone and have two yaks brought down as quickly as possible. They will have to come from Passu which is about 38 miles from here. I will have action taken at once and see that the yaks are provided."

115 (Does that not indicate to you the kind of man and 124 host was the Mir of Hunza?)

I then took my leave of the Mir and the Rani and went out with Sultan Ali and Jahangir to look, see, pry and ask questions.

344 Our first jaunt was a good stiff climb to the old 644 palace located about two miles from the Mir's new palace. As the crow would fly I'm sure it would not have been more than ¾ of a mile. But in order to get up there one has to wend and weave and climb slowly.

I was now becoming quite accustomed to the altitude. Kerimabad is up about 8500 feet and I am sure that the old palace is up at least another 500 or 600 feet. It was perched precariously on a huge outcropping of rock that jutted straight up into the air and the entire surface of the pinnacle was used for the building. There was no superfluous area surrounding it.

I had a long list of questions prepared and I knew even before I started that Sultan Ali could not give me all the answers because many of the questions were strictly horticultural—others dealt with dietary principles. I wanted to talk to farmers and individual people and housewives on both of these subjects.

I asked if he could arrange to take me to a group of farmers or even an individual farmer . . . that is, farmers who were capable and efficient—the better, the more intelligent and prosperous ones . . . so that I might delve into their ways and means of field husbandry.

He nodded, "This will be done. When would you like to talk to them?"

"Tomorrow morning, if it can be done," I replied.

"That's fine. I will arrange it!"

Wherever it was possible, I wanted to get my information direct from the people concerned. There is actually only one class of people in Hunza and one occupation, which is farming. I only know of one shop in the area and it sells mostly goods that have been brought in by the Chinese caravans that have passed through. I don't doubt also that there were some goods in this same shop that came into Hunza via Rawalpindi and Gilgit.

However, it was plain and clear that 900 of the citizens of Hunza out of 1000 made their living by means of farming. Therefore, as I had come to Hunza primarily to study the farming and horticultural methods of the people, the preparation of the foods they ate, 121 and of course the kinds and varieties of foods that were used, I attached great importance to this phase of my trip and I was definitely determined that, come what might, this information I would have thoroughly and in detail.

124 No doubt it would have been an advantage had I been able to speak either Urdu, or better still Burushaski, so that I could frame my questions as I saw fit and have answers that would be direct and would not require translation. However, that was not possible. Still, I had no reason to believe that my interpreter would not be a forthright individual who would give me the answers that were relayed to him clearly and to the point.

Mind you, I was seeking no miracle or world panacea. I wanted to find out the simple truth!

Further, I wanted to walk from farm to farm . . . that is, just selecting one at random here and there. I wanted to view the farmer's activities, study his soil and examine it, ask a few questions and thus, I could gather the information that I wanted and which was so vital to me.

344 644 The old palace proved to be in a good state of preservation. I wondered, because of its good condition, why someone didn't live there. Many of the rooms were still furnished. There were even rugs and tapestries placed and hung in their original positions.

[126] When we climbed to the top of the castle—that is, to the roof where I snapped many photos—it seemed mighty high and overlooked everything around us. But [133] in the distance were mountains that were well over 20,000 feet—and that is no exaggeration, but more likely an understatement.

There was a railing around this upper balcony and from this balcony you could walk into other chambers.

These chambers were once living rooms and bedrooms. 344
It reminded me of a penthouse. While it didn't have an 644 elevator to whiz you upwards in a matter of seconds or the best in modern plumbing, it did have the air, the view, the history and fascination that no penthouse in creation could match.

Back about 400 years ago one of the rulers of Hunza [173] [648] married a daughter of the King of Baltistan who, as a gift to his daughter and her husband, dispatched 500 workmen from his country to Hunza to erect the Baltit Fort that we now know. The rulers of Hunza dwelt in that fort and made it their palace until recent times. The present Mir, too, when he took office after the [712] death of his father, resided in this palace known as Baltit Fort.

The new palace, in which we were being wined, [122] dined and entertained, had been completed recently and was taken possession of by the present Mir about 7 years ago. Actually though, the new palace was started by the Mir's grandfather back as far as 1925.

While we were guests at the palace, extensive masonry work was in progress as the Mir was having a broad, low, stone-walled veranda erected. This, I un- [692] [643] derstand, would be used, on completion, as his court, where the citizens of Hunza would come with their problems and where the Mir would preside in judgment.

However, this work in no way interfered with the [342] normal functions of the household, for, even as the people of Hunza follow the custom of moving upstairs for the summer and downstairs for the winter, so did the Mir.

To me, however, old Baltit Fort was an edifice of distinction, charm and beauty and if I were in the Mir's place, I would never have abandoned it.

344 This massive old fortress, for that is what it was,
644 was actually one of the places that had withstood the 712 attacks of invaders for more than 400 years and re-
727 mained impregnable. It has only once been in enemy [175] hands since the day it was built and that was in 1891, when, after the Battle of Nilt, it was occupied by the British. Records further indicate that the British added no glory to their occupation at the time because of their indiscriminate looting of the treasures found in the palace. But the Mir, whether because of his friendship for the British or because of his desire to tell the truth, claimed that it was not the British who looted it, but the Dogra troops who were under British command.

344 Here I would like to quote from E. F. Knight's 644 Where Three Empires Meet:

352 "This massive fortress, which has been for hundreds of years the secure stronghold of the robber kings, inviolate until this day, stands boldly out, set in the midst of a sublime landscape . . . Twigg, Boisragon and myself took up our quarters in the most comfortable chamber we could find, which we soon discovered to have been the apartment of the ladies belonging to the [643] Thum's harem. ("Thum" is Burushaski for ruler, sovereign, king, chief, "Mir". Used especially of the hereditary rulers of the states of Hunza and Nagir.) It was surrounded by a low, broad, wooden divan, on which our bedding was laid. Pillars of carved wood rose from the edge of the divan to the carved beams of the roof, blackened by the smoke of ages. . . . A fire was lit in the open fireplace at one end of the floor, the smoke escaping through a square hole in the roof. Save for the Oriental pattern of the wooden carvings it was just a hall, I imagine, as King Canute might have lived in. . . . We enjoyed a delicious night's rest after our late fatigues.

"We were up betimes on December 23rd, and proceeded to rummage all the nooks and corners of the deserted palace. We had heard that the treasures of many a pillaged caravan . . . were stored here, so the search was an exciting one. The tribesmen had been informed that, provided they gave up their arms, their property would be respected by us. . . But the possessions of the fugitive Thum were declared to be forfeited, so we set to work to collect together all the valuables that were to be found in the place, individual looting being of course forbidden. . . . We were informed that the Thum had made all his preparations for flight long before his defeat at Nilt, and . . . had carried off the bulk of his wealth with him across the Hindoo Koosh. . . . Still, they had not taken all, and we raked together a curious and miscellaneous collection of odds and ends scattered about and secreted away in the various chambers and cellars." 727 344 644

On two sides this mighty fortress (and it is a mighty fortress for that part of the world) is protected by abysses. 344 644

As the views of the mountains and the surrounding country from the balconies were unrivaled, I took many colored photographs and with each click of the shutter I hoped for the best. [126]

I noticed a marvelous old firing piece, gun or matchlock. I don't know how to describe these things as I am not very familiar with firearms. However, I found out that this was a genuine treasure and was almost as old as the fort itself. 411

It was a most unusual firing piece. By actual measurement it was 6 feet long, elegantly and extravagantly decorated with silver and gold, and bore the inscription "946 A.H."

What had evidently been an old calendar portray- 353

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

353 ing an excellent likeness of Queen Victoria in full color hung on the old palace wall. It was still in good condition and told you to use "Mellins Food for Infants and Invalids." I suspect this picture calendar has been hanging there for some 60 years (it was dated 1899). Both the producer of the calendar and the food people could well be proud of the record.

123 One could easily spend a few days in and around the fort and probably write a volume about its history. But I'll leave that for someone else.

I made a careful round of all the rooms in the old palace and by that time Sultan Ali remarked that we'd best be retracing our steps to the Mir's because the Mir had asked him to bring me back in time for lunch, which was at 1.30. So we started our descent.

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 29

Hunzan Crafts and Skills

THE NEXT MORNING Jahangir came to our quarters just as I was ready to leave for breakfast. Cec again remained in bed on the doctor's advice.

The Mir was waiting for us in his bright, pleasant sun room when we entered and with him was another handsome, beaming man whom he introduced as his brother, Ayesh, who had just returned from a trip up country.

It is customary for the Mir's oldest brother to remain unmarried and act as an advisor, assistant, secretary or whatever else this position might be termed. He also acted as the Mir's emissary and was the engineer of the electric light outfit in operation at the palace.

We were then ushered into the dining room for breakfast. The Mir, Ayesh and the Rani seated themselves just to keep us company and of course add delight and conversation while we breakfasted.

124 "You understand," he said, "that the reason I do
[788] not have breakfast with you is due entirely to the fact that I must rise at 3:30 every morning to perform my religious duties . . . and 'tis then I have my morning meal."

"Thank you most sincerely for your explanation. It is most important to me so I may better understand the ways of your people and yourself."

Then the Mir went on, "I have received word that two yaks are being brought down from Passu and should arrive at Altit some time during the night and will be there tomorrow morning."

Then I said to the Mir, "Would it be all right if I walked to Altit and rode one of the yaks back here to your palace?"

"That's exactly what I had in mind for you," said the Mir.

"Well, seeing there are two yaks coming down, as you mentioned, and my friend Cec is confined to his quarters by the doctor, I'll take Jahangir along and he'll ride the other yak back."

"Fine, fine!" said the Mir.

124 Then the conversation continued and the Mir said, 115 "I have another brother and I certainly hope you will 644 have an opportunity to meet him. He is serving in the Pakistan army—as a captain. I expect him back within the next 3 or 4 days and you will enjoy meeting him, I know. He is a most likable and interesting man. I hope he gets here before you decide to leave."

"I'd be very happy to meet him and I, too, hope he arrives before we depart."

"We call him Salat," he said. "That means mous-[302] tache in our language. He has one of those handlebar moustaches and he's a big man—bigger than either Ayesh or I. His proper name is Capt. Jamshed Khan."

Ayesh was a most jovial character. He had the most pleasant smiling happy countenance of any man I've ever met. He was always either laughing or smiling and every time I looked at him I had to smile as well. He was a handsome man but in contrast to the Mir, who had a good head of dark hair, Ayesh was balding, the same as I. 124 115 [644] 142]

It was most pleasant to see the splendid cordial relationship that existed between him and the Mir's entire family.

"How are you coming along with your quest for information?" asked the Mir.

"Exceptionally well, sir," I replied. "But there are also many questions that only you can answer and I'm hoping that you can spare a few minutes some time within the next few days in private so that I may gain this information."

"Any time you say," replied the Mir pleasantly. "I'm at your disposal. You mention the time and that will be it."

"You are indeed very kind to grant me this great favor and I appreciate it," I said.

So there and then we made an appointment for 5 o'clock the following day.

Every meal at the Mir's was a joy and a delight and both the Mir and the Rani were always present. I had already mentioned to him that this was a trouble and an imposition and too much to expect of him. But he said that it was the way he wanted it and that nothing was too good and no effort too great for his guests. Well, what can you do with a man like that? 122 574

Then he informed me concerning my friend's health. "The doctor has things under control now," he told me, "but he will remain here with me as my guest at the palace during your stay so there will be no worries 122 758

122 or cares in regard to Mr. Brunton's condition. The doc-
[758] tor will attend to his duties at Aliabad and look after the hospital there . . . but he only has one or two patients and he will be back and forth from the hospital to the palace. Therefore he will be in constant touch with your friend."

"No man could do more," I assured the Mir. "I don't know how we can ever thank you enough."

"Don't mention it," he said. "You have been very kind, too."

"Now is there anything that you would like me to get for you while you're here? I wish you would tell me because some things may take a few days to procure or prepare and I would like to have them ready for you."

[124] "I'll tell you what I would like and you tell me what you would like me to send you from Canada—and no holds barred." I said to him.

"Fair enough! We'll tell each other frankly what we want."

"Agreed," I joyfuly replied.

126 I always carry a notebook with me. It's a small folding affair made of leatherette or something, that has room for 3 or 4 ball point pens and a pad inside. I was making notes as well as marking down the things the Mir expressed interest in when I spoke of the conveniences available in America. I intended to send these to him anyway.

I had seen quite a few little items around Hunza that I would have liked to have . . . for instance, a Hunzan hat, a cane made in Hunza, a pair of Hunzan boots. The boots are most unusual, being something 291 like the mukluks used in the north by the Eskimos, ex-237 cept that these are made in a simpler manner. They are somewhat like riding boots in shape except they are made entirely of soft pliable leather, the lower part, 291 including the soles, from yak hide and the upper part 237 from cow or ibex hide.

I wanted to learn as much as possible about the 121 good people of Hunza. Therefore I was interested in their crafts and craftsmanship.

All of the cloth used in making the garments the 286 people wear and the special Hunzan hats are woven 291 on looms that have been in use for hundreds of years. They weave 3 distinct types of material. It takes about 3 days to weave a length of approximately 15 yards of the best cloth, which is hardly sufficient to make a man's and a woman's "choga." The woman's requires 7 yards and the man's takes 9 yards. They [437] trade commodities in exchange for the weaving. Then, 294 during the winter, the men of the households cut and 462 stitch the garments into durable, warm clothing.

The village blacksmith is also the music maker. 326 Somehow, to me, that seems most appropriate for the 533 clang of the hammer on the anvil rings a true music. 563
These blacksmiths and musicians live in a section entirely of their own and they seem to keep mostly to themselves. It seems that all of the blacksmith-musicians of Hunza belong to a tribe known as the Bericho.

These people were sent to Hunza long, long ago by [173] the Prince of Baltistan who was repaying a favor rendered him by the Mir of Hunza. These people have retained their independence and identity and do not generally take part in Hunzan activities. They even speak [197] a language of their own known as Dumaki. This is also referred to as the speech of the Doma, or Bericho, of Hunza.

These people dwell in a quaint village or a com- [621] munity entirely of their own located just below Baltit. The history, the behavior and the manners and occupa-

326 tion of these unusual people stirred up an interest within 533 me, and I wanted to know more about them. I found 563 very little data could be obtained from any of the books I had been able to read on the subject.

[173] But after much discourse and questioning, I learned what I had begun to suspect . . . that the Bericho were actually gypsies who had come to India more than 2,000 years ago. From India, as good gypsies would do, they fanned out to spread themselves in small groups over the entire country . . . some ultimately settling in Baltistan, from whence a colony were sent off to Hunza.

Their place of abode is actually a village known as Berishal. It is a known fact that the people of Hunza depend entirely upon the Bericho for their iron-mongering and their tool-smithing and their music-making.

I was very happy to have unearthed this information so I can pass it along to my readers.

[871] These Berichos used to send their children out of [167] Hunza to be educated and the Mir told me that he had to put a stop to this practice . . . not because he objected to the children of the Bericho being educated, but because the children did not return or remain with the trade of their parents. As the Mir's country needed artisans of this type, he had to put a stop to their sending their children elsewhere for education.

The Mir went on to tell me how important these Berichos were to the community. They fashioned farm [414] implements as well as hardware like hinges, latches, razors and many other essential farm and household necessities that are fashioned from metal. Besides making the implements of peace, the blacksmith could also fashion a shotgun barrel.

[651] He further mentioned that each household in the community pays a small tithe as a contribution towards the maintenance of the Berichos and they travel about the villages mending and repairing items requiring attention, and, of course, providing music and entertainment wherever it is required. I guess they could be compared to the traveling tinkers of Ireland. 326 533 563 [651]

The Bericho blacksmith shop contained all the accoutrements found in the blacksmith shops of America. There was a pit in which charcoal was laid and kept alive and glowing by a pair of goatskin bellows . . . the customer usually wielded the bellows while his implement was being manufactured or repaired. There were many necessary tools—hammers of various sizes and tongs and, of course, a large chunk of some old machine that served as an anvil. 325

Then there was the goldsmith. He didn't fashion much out of gold any more because there wasn't much gold. Some time ago there was a quantity of gold washed from the Chalt and Hunza Rivers. This was done at times when the rivers had receded to a low ebb and then the sand left on what was the river bottom a few weeks or months previous was washed for signs of gold. The people who collected or panned or mined this gold were called "marooh." 326 316 135

This Hunzan goldsmith also made silver trinkets, rings, bracelets, medallions, pendants, ear rings, broaches and other articles of the craft. What's more, they were set with attractive colored stones, for the mountains around Hunza abound with many beautiful and valuable stones. As the women of Hunza do love and wear jewelry, the goldsmith was kept quite busy. 306 301 [135]

Yes, there was a wood turner in the area, too. Whether or not his craft has improved since the advent of John Clark, the American engineer who set up a wood carving school with his headquarters in the old Baltit Fort, I am unable to say. But from the work 322 177

322 that I have seen performed, I am not too sure that [177] our wood workers could teach them any new tricks. The thing they're short of is suitable wood.

[415] One of the important functions of the wood turner is to fashion bowls which are made out of either mulberry, willow or apricot wood. The wood turner also [352] makes charpoys, chests, jewel boxes, bowls and chairs and I believe he is capable of making anything that can be fashioned out of wood.

461 One definite thing impressed me about these various craftsmen and that was the fact that time was meaningless. Their craft was the important thing. Whatever had to be done had to be done right whether it required an hour or a day or a week.

461 There were many things that I would have liked to 126 purchase or arrange for but some of them would require days to produce and it was not my desire to hurry anybody. After seeing their pleasant way of life, I had no intention of disturbing it. Whatever was available that I wanted, I would take with me. Anything else could be sent on or else I would do without it.

7:Tobe C, T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 30

Who Are the Hunzans?

I HAVE HEARD the people of Hunza referred to as Hunzans, Hunzukuts, Hunzawals and Hunzas. They prefer to be called Hunzukuts. 101

However, in my writing I am referring to them as Hunzans. I do this strictly as a matter of simplification. I find it easy to say and easy to remember and I also believe it to be the most phonetical of all the terms given.

The Mir claims that the rulers of Hunza were and are direct descendants of Alexander the Great. I could find no proof to either confirm or refute this statement. But it is generally believed that not only the Mir, but the people of Hunza are descendants of Alexander or his soldiers. 643 173

It has been related by many writers that the Hunzans are not by appearance an Asian people. To that I will subscribe completely. They are definitely, in 144

144 countenance and color, not Indian but European.

If you took the first ten Hunzans that you met anywhere and put them in Europe, no one could doubt that they were Europeans. With the exception of a few clearly and unmistakably Chinese-appearing Hunzans, practically each one would pass as a European. It is understandable that a bit of Mongolian blood got mixed in because Hunza is right smack on the Chinese border.

181 The people of this country are unqualifiedly the 173 most energetic and industrious of all the people I came across in the East, which lends credence to the fact that they are of European origin.

173 Even before I went to Hunza I read carefully Ar-643 rian's Life of Alexander the Great. After seeing Hunza 174 and being impressed by the conviction that the people of Hunza did appear to be Europeans, I came back and made a further search through the Life of Alexander the Great.

It is an historical fact that Alexander took unto himself a wife when he was on his Indian campaign. He married Roxana, the daughter of Oxyartes who was king of Bactria. Bactria is in the northern part of Afghanistan—right smack against the Hunzan border.

Alexander had a posthumous son with Roxana. His name was Alexander Aegus.

So the Mir's claim might have sound historical basis. The Hunzans claim to trace their history back about 2,000 years. Well, Alexander married Roxana back in 327 B. C. So you see, the story may have its point.

I'll further state that the Mir himself looked exactly like one would expect a Mediterranean European to look. He might feign a relationship or descendancy from Alexander the Great, but he couldn't feign that Macedonian appearance.

History also relates most pointedly that Alexander had difficulty with his troops at various points in India where they refused to go any further. Then in Taxila, which is not very far from Rawalpindi on the route to Hunza, he left the sick, disabled and older men. It wouldn't be difficult to imagine that some of the younger wounded men, when they got well, crossed the Himalayas through the Babusar Pass and then wandered up to Gilgit and Hunza or when they were in Bactria, it would have been quite an easy matter—in fact, it was just a matter of walking a few miles through the mountains—to reach the Hunza River. 173 174

It is not in my interest to strengthen the Mir's story or the tales that other writers have established about the relationship of Alexander or his men and the people of Hunza. I am merely citing the above from my actual observations and studies. You can accept it or waive it aside.

One would not have a comprehensive understanding of Hunza and the people of Hunza without a few facts about their comparatively early history. 175 643

One of the most colorful leaders that the people of Hunza have ever had was the present Mir's grandfather—Sir Mohomed Nazim Khan, K.C.I.E. (Knight Commander of the Indian Empire)—who was the Mir of Hunza from 1892 until 1938 when he died on July 23 at the age of 79, having ruled for a total of 46 years. 'Twas a long rule for any king in any country.

In 1934 when he was 75 years of age his wife gave birth to a son who was named Sahib Khan. In January, 1938 the British crown conferred the title of K.C.S.I. (Knight Commander of the Star of India) upon Sir Mohomed.

He was followed by his son, Ghazan Khan who ruled from 1938 to 1945—not quite 8 years. Ghazan Khan 175 643 was then succeeded by his son, the present ruler—Mohammed Jamal Khan who has been the ruler of Hunza since 1945.

175 643 669 Here is a quotation from the Mir's grandfather's book in which he tells about the blood-curdling exploits of his brother, Sfdar Ali, whom he succeeded:

"He thereupon had Taighoon, Nematulla and Misiab killed, Sakhawat Shah and Jahandar Shah rolled down a precipice below Ghulkin, their mother put to death and arranged for the murder of Salam Khan in Shimshal."

However, he spared the life of his brother, Nazim Khan and then he wrote to the Maharajah of Kashmir to announce his ascension to the throne in the following descriptive terms:

"By the will of Allah and a decree of fate, my late father and I recently fell out. I took the initiative and settled the matter, and have placed myself on the throne of my ancestors."

This bloodthirsty Mir virtually got away with mass murder and felt that he was cock of the walk and could afford to defy any power.

175 648 From my reading of the Mir's grandfather's autobiography, from studies made from the earlier books written about Hunza and from my observations and discussions on the spot, I have evolved a personal kind of understanding concerning the situation that prevails in Hunza today.

[771] The Mir of Hunza, as well as the other rulers of the principalities in that area, such as Nagir, Punial, Yasin, Baltistan and others, are all Mohammedan and, from what I can gather, they supported or were willing participants in the revolt which tied them together with the central government in Pakistan. This government, bear in mind, is strictly Mohammedan and partition from India was on this religious basis. 175 648

However, records clearly indicate that Hunza had for many years enjoyed a pleasant relationship and trade with her Chinese neighbors through the Province of Singkiang. History shows that for ages the caravans moved continually from Kashgar, Urumchi and Yarkand down through Hunza and on to Gilgit, Peshawar, Afghanistan, Persia and further westward. 175 648 439 [487]

Hunza in those days used a lot of rice, which came from China. Wheat has practically completely replaced rice. [262]

If this gives rise to the impression that Hunza was not as self-sufficient as you imagined, I am sorry, but I am dealing with facts and not myths . . . unless they are so identified. I don't believe nor does data prove that, while caravans moved from Turkestan through Hunza, there was any great trade or barter between the people of Hunza and Turkestan.

But because of the regular movement of these caravans across Hunza territory, it is easy to comprehend that most of the things the Hunzans would use and require would come from China and there would be a strong Chinese or Turkic influence in the area. Upon checking closely into the records and history, I found that the Chinese district bordering Hunza was also principally Mohammedan in religion as are most of the Turkic peoples. Mir Nazim Khan states clearly in his autobiography that the Mir of Hunza had possession of vast acreages in China along the Yarkand River, on which roamed herds of yaks and other domestic beasts. (It wasn't China then as they had not yet claimed it.) 175 648 [177] [643] [423] [233]

The Mirs of Hunza have for many years—in fact, from time immemorial—paid tribute to the Chinese government at Kashgar. From the records that I have been able to find, they paid tribute to Kashgar long

175 before the Chinese government took control of that 648 region. (By that I mean, while it was still in the hands of what is known as the Turki.)

This quotation from the autobiography of Nazim Khan will serve to illustrate the point in question:

"Two years later Colonel Bruce came to Gilgit as temporary British Agent and he told me that the Government had decided that I might still pay my annual tribute to China. To this, however, I demurred as I pointed out to him that having relations with both was like sitting between two stools. He, however, retorted that if this was the case and one stool broke there was always the other to sit on and that no suspicion would attach to me as long as there were friendly relations between the British Government and the Emperor of China. He did make one stipulation, though, and that was that I should let the Political Agent in Gilgit see the letter that accompanied the toll, before it was despatched."

In turn, the Chinese sent a friendly troop of soldiers to Hunza every year with gifts for the Mir and rich, luxurious gifts they were!

175 Now this may sound very strange, almost ridiculous
648 but nevertheless, it is absolutely true. And the reason 487 is simple and easy to understand if you will but follow me. The road through Hunza was by far the shortest route to Gilgit, Rawalpindi, Peshawar, Kabul and Persia as well as Srinagar in Kashmir and other parts of India. Elsewhere along the route the caravans could travel with immunity and safety but in Hunza even the largest caravan—yes, even one protected by gun bearers or soldiers—could easily come to grief. All that would be required would be a few men hidden away in the upper reaches on the slopes to begin dropping stones or to start a landslide at a given moment.

As that entire 200 miles from the Chinese border to Nomal is composed chiefly of this type of terrain, unless a caravan had a guarantee of safe conduct, they just couldn't get through. 175 648 [487]

The Mir was the ruler of Hunza and he held full and complete control over his tribesmen. So what could be more natural and understandable than an annual payment of tribute to the Mir for safe conduct? I know for a fact that right up until the time when the Chinese Communists took over the Singkiang District, the Mir still received a share of the cargo carried by the caravans traveling through Hunza. [643] [487]

Therefore it is my conclusion that the ways, the habits and the mode of life of the people of Hunza were patterned more after the Chinese than the Indians. Further, I suspect that they did a lot more trading with the caravans that came through regularly than they ever did at Gilgit. In one instance the caravans came to them and in the other case they had to go down to Gilgit . . . anywhere from 40 to 200 or so miles away, through the tough mountain roads. 175 648 439 [177]

It was in November 1947, when Pakistan seized part of Kashmir from India by an armed revolt. The circumstances that brought about this event are worth recording and I believe you will have greater understanding of the people of Hunza and Pakistan if you know the story. 175 648

The Pakistanis claim that the Province of Kashmir should belong to Pakistan because the Indian government had agreed to allow all the predominantly Moslem districts to secede and become a part of the newly formed country of Pakistan. Therefore, Kashmir which is more than 90 per cent Moslem should be a part of the Mohammedan nation. Eventually, when partition took place, Kashmir was not permitted out of the fold

175 of India but was held in abeyance by her, not belong-648 ing to one or the other, yet under Indian control.

But in October of 1947, when the Maharajah of Kashmir who was Mohammedan suddenly decided to accede to the side of India because of pressure, threats or promises, word got down to Gilgit and there a few bold, Mohammedan officers and members of the Gilgit Scouts acted. They first approached two British officers who were still in the employ of the government . . . these officers obviously sympathized with their views.

Immediately these officers cut all communications by slicing the telegraph and telephone wires and placed the Governor of Gilgit, who was the Maharajah of Kashmir's representative, along with his few Hindu followers, under arrest.

The Indian government retaliated by bombing Gilgit. The P.A.'s house was hit by one of the bombs but only a small amount of damage was inflicted.

So since that day in November, 1947 the Gilgit area, including Hunza, Baltistan and other parts that were once part of the former Kashmir Province, is now part of Pakistan and forms the Gilgit Agency.

Considering the many casualties that occurred in other parts of Pakistan and India, the Gilgit episode is one that those in charge can be proud of because there were few if any casualties and the entire area seems to be happy under Pakistan authority.

648 Since 1947 the influence in Hunza has been mainly Pakistani. Whether the people of Hunza like it that way or not, I could not ascertain. I did not ask the Mir his opinion. To the best of my knowledge and belief, he is cooperating to the highest degree with the central government in Pakistan.

Actually, from the way the people of Hunza live,

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

I cannot see what difference it would make to them whether they were a part of the British Empire, India or Pakistan, or if they were independent. They receive little or nothing from the outside world and contribute little or nothing in return. They are content to leave the world alone if the world will but leave them alone. The law of "live and let live" seems to be the "Golden Rule" in Hunza. If only more peoples and nations throughout the world would follow this simple principle! 648

Why have the people of this tiny principality so fascinated the world? That is a question that I have sought to answer. 114

I believe it was Mrs. Lorimer's book Language Hunting in the Karakorams that first brought Hunza to the attention of many parts of the world. Then, too, Robert McCarrison mentioned the health of these people in his research writings. Other writers followed. J. I. Rodale in The Healthy Hunzas did a lot to focus attention on the people of Hunza. Then G. T. Wrench, Barbara Mons, Frank and Jean Shore, John Clark, Lowell Thomas, Jr., Owen Williams, Ian Stephens, Peter Fleming, Irene V. Unruh, Ben Ruhe and Dr. Allen Banik.

Here I would like to devote a few lines to the work of the above mentioned authors.

I still believe that the most accurate and detailed information about Hunza was given by Mrs. Lorimer.

Barbara Mons in her book High Road to Hunza gives a splendid account of the people. The only serious thing I found wrong with it was that there wasn't enough . . . her book left me hungry, eager and yearning for more information about these delightful people. I rank her work as the most concise, informative, pleasurable book on Hunza.

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

114 John Clark in his book Hunza—The Lost Kingdom of the Himalayas devoted himself chiefly to his wood carving project and left little or no time to say, examine or do anything about the important happenings in Hunza.

When Lowell Thomas, Jr., and his party were in Hunza, they were too busy with the excitement and work involved in filming the scenes for Cinerama to learn much about the country and its people.

In the National Geographic of January, 1960 appears the story by Tay and Lowell Thomas, Jr. Part of this story deals with their visit to Hunza. However, the National Geographic takes pains not to mention the date of the trip to Hunza, which was December, 1954.

Frankly, I never believed that a magazine of the repute or supposed repute of the National Geographic magazine would stoop to that level—to publish an article about 5 years old and allow its readers to assume that it was of recent vintage. I guess the National Geographic must have been hard up for an interesting Asiatic story, so it dug up that old one of the Thomases.

A very good book that dwells here and there on Hunza in passages and references is one by an Englishman by the name of Ian Stephens. His book is called The Horned Moon. It is well written and this man does know the people of India and Pakistan . . . having been a leading correspondent and executive of one of the English newspapers in that country for many years.

Irene V. Unruh was a German doctor who spent considerable time in Hunza. Her observations concerning the health of the people are most enlightening. She attributes their good health to their unsophisticated, simple way of life and also suggests that the glacial water they consume plays an important role.

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

Owen Williams, who wrote First Over the Roof of the World, was one of the first Americans to see Hunza, although he spent very little time there. He just passed through. Hunza happened to be on the itinerary of the expedition of which he was a member. 114

Ben Ruhe, a young newspaperman from Allentown, Pennsylvania, spent some time in Hunza and Nagir and his account, published in his home town newspaper (and elsewhere) represents some of the best written and presented facts, tales and fables about the people of this part of the world that I have read anywhere and it's a pity that Mr. Ruhe didn't do a book. Perhaps there is still time.

And last, there is Dr. Allen Banik's book, Hunza Land. Dr. Banik was sponsored by Art Linkletter to go to Hunza and he found a great many obstacles blocking his path but eventually, when he did get into Hunza, he unfortunately spent but a short time there and his observations do not correspond very closely with my own. But I salute his inalienable right to differ! Dr. Banik, a genial pleasant man, ready and willing to help anyone, has been busy addressing meetings and making appearances throughout the United States and from the reports that I have read, he seems to be pleasing his audiences.

Peter Fleming's book News from Tartary, while it is to be regretted that he devotes a scant 15 pages to Hunza, is probably one of the best pieces of writing on the country, the scenery and the people that you will encounter—no matter where you search. Also, his findings are pinpointed. Peter Fleming had a keen eye, a sharp mind, an understanding far beyond his years when he wrote News from Tartary. The references, written 25 years ago, are as sharp and as clearly in focus as if written today. I compliment Mr. Fleming 114 on a remarkable piece of reporting!

A splendid bit of writing about Hunza appears in the book called After You, Marco Polo by Jean Shore. Mrs. Shore is a remarkable traveler, a wide-eyed, eager observer and a writer with a fine sense of humor. Although only 36 pages of her book are devoted to Hunza, they are "must" reading for anyone who wants to have a clear picture of the Mir, the Rani and the ways of life and the people. Oh, yes, and her description of the country is a delight.

114 Now I must deal with two books that deal princi-164 pally with the health of the people of Hunza. They are written by G. T. Wrench in 1938 and J. I. Rodale in 1948. If the health of the Hunzans is a myth, then these two gentlemen helped spread or perpetuate the myth. However, here is evidence that should dispel any thought of fancy.

Sir Robert McCarrison, C.I.E., M.A., M.D., D. Sc., L.L.D., F.R.C.P., B.A.O., spent the years 1902-4 as regimental medical officer in Chitral and 1904-11 as the Gilgit Agency surgeon. In that important office he had a splendid opportunity to study the health of the inhabitants of that area. Hunza is a part of the Gilgit Agency.

Dr. McCarrison reports: "During the period of my association with these people I never saw a case of asthenic dyspepsia, of gastric or duodenal ulcer, of appendicitis, of mucus colitis, of cancer. . . . Among these people the abdomen oversensitive to nerve impressions, to fatigue, anxiety, or cold was unknown. Indeed their buoyant abdominal health has, since my return to the West, provided a remarkable contrast with the dyspeptic and colonic lamentations of our highly civilized communities."

This lends credence to the outlines and hypothesis concerning the health of the Hunzans. I have found the observations made by both authors, J. I. Rodale and G. T. Wrench, to be both authentic and comparatively reliable when it is taken into consideration that their work was done in the early years when not much information was available from Hunzaland. They were pioneers in the field to show the people of the world that there was a simple, natural, organic way to health. 114 164

Can anyone doubt that Hunza is located in one of the most inaccessible parts of the entire universe? The fact that a people—a handsome, virile, intelligent, civilized people—could live in such an inaccessible part of the world and still be considered among the healthiest of all people on the face of the globe is intriguing, to say the least. 131 164

Perhaps the story of their health, longevity and energy so shocked our concepts that we had to look twice or read twice to make sure that the statements we were reading could be accepted. Probably because of our smugness—with the feeling of security because of our modern medicines, our miracle drugs, our hospitals, our research techniques, our lab equipment and such—it was incomprehensible to us that a people so remotely located without all of these tremendous benefits could even exist, let alone be considered to be the healthiest and longest living people in the world.

Was it our disdain of eastern methods and way of life that rattled our concepts? 164

Now it could be that the dreamers among us had our imagination fired like it has never been fired before . . . to think that a people living truly on the roof of the world without benefits of modern civilization could subsist or exist, let alone be healthy!

But as one investigates, he finds that Hunza is one of the few places in the entire world, where there is a [177]

164 people who retained their character, independence,
177 freedom and primitive way of life. It is my belief that they are not much further advanced today than they were more than 2,000 years ago. Fearing that you may think I mean this in a derogatory manner, I would hurry and add that their way of life 2,000 years ago obviously was as good in many ways, or better, than our way of life today. But that is a measure for individual acceptance.

131 They owe their strength, their health, their longevity, their happiness to that wall of mountains that surrounds them and keeps out all but the boldest and most venturesome of invaders or travelers. They are surrounded by the most massive, the hugest, the greatest accumulation of mountain grandeur and awesomeness to be found anywhere on the world's surface. With such impenetrable guardians, it is not too difficult to understand the reason for their comparative privacy.

From what I saw and gathered, I found that one would not have to go many miles from any given point in Hunza to reach a location where no human being's foot had ever trod before. Should you have the desire to do just that, you can find millions of acres that have not felt the imprint of man within a few miles from most any given spot in Hunza.

181 Living in comparative isolation has made these people courageous and fearless. They are not stooges of civilization and all its implications. There, in Hunza, a man's individuality is still a characteristic trait to which they cling.

177 Now comes the big question—one that hundreds of people have already asked me . . . people who have but a faint knowledge or have heard a bit of news about Hunza and have been interested and fascinated by the myths and fables circulated about her—can Hunza

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

survive despite the encroachment of modern civilization? 177

I go on record as saying, "Yes, she can survive but it will take good leadership, and the present ruling Mir —my friend, Mohammed Jamal Khan—is capable of this leadership, provided he is not interfered with by the powers that surround him or emanate from Karachi!"

The first detrimental factor that is crawling into Hunza at the present time, and has been for some years, is salt. Already numerous cases of goiter have appeared which did not exist before when they used their native salt. 177 263 164

Travel in Hunza is restricted. In fact, at the present time no foreigner is allowed into the state without a permit and that includes Pakistanis as well. As far as I know, my friend Cec Brunton and I were the last foreigners to enter Hunza. With the political situation as it is today, I doubt if anyone else will be permitted to enter the country until the situation changes. 486 648 123

The fact that China is at the present time encroaching upon India is a rather significant factor. I really can't appraise its implications because the disputed area by any calculation seems to be of little or no value. There are millions of such acres available throughout Tibet and the Himalayan cordillera as well as in the Karakorums. Therefore it must be just for aggrandizement that China is moving. If that is her aim and desire, then Hunza would be right up her alley. 648

Yet it is my firm belief that China will not bother Hunza. I know the Afghans have looked with longing eyes on that part of Pakistan for some years, but they have neither the arms nor the men to successfully invade the area, although with arms from Russia and a little prodding, things could get hot in that area. How-

648 ever, such a move, in my humble opinion, would be most ill-advised because the Pakistan government has splendid leadership, a good army and a mighty impregnable position in Gilgit. Undoubtedly Gilgit is the most accessible point in that entire area and Gilgit which belongs to Pakistan, is most capably staffed, manned and led.

177 [164 167] Even as I write my tale, changes are occurring in Hunza. In a letter received from the doctor just before my book went to press, he told me that many diseases unknown in Hunza before are making their appearance—primarily because they are brought back by native Hunzans who go out to serve in the army or work in other parts of Pakistan and the area.

[161] The population of Hunza is as great now as its land can foster and sustain. There is no reason to believe that the birth rate in Hunza will decrease and that means that more and more of the people of Hunza will have to seek a livelihood elsewhere. But they will keep returning and bringing with them the benefits of civilization. That, in my opinion, will be the undoing of that little paradise on earth.

Being blessed with the earth's most fabulous mountain scenery may also be the cause of Hunza's undoing. I've noticed that exploration parties and mountain climbers have been congregating in that area more and more. British, Swiss, German, Italian and Austrian expeditions have been in or are planning to go into the Karakorums to scale those hundred peaks over 20,000 feet high.

The magnetism of unscaled impregnable mountain summits becomes overpowering to many men. Why bother with the Pyrenees, the Alps, the Rockies or the Andes, when the Himalayas, the Karakorums and the Hindu Kush offer a much more taunting challenge?

And fortunately or unfortunately, little Hunza lies right in the center. 177

These expeditions often consist of 100 men or more. They bring with them huge supplies of western food and commodities. Besides, their pockets are usually bulging with foreign currency. I fear that these will combine to eventually destroy Hunza.

Sad as I am to think that this will happen, I am nevertheless happy that I was there to see it while it was still "Shangri-la."

7:Tobe C.T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 31

Breakfast Chitchat

122 574 THE MIR was a most tolerant and understanding host. I can't say for sure whether or not all his guests were treated as well as I, but I have no reason to believe otherwise.

Sometimes I would get down to breakfast alone at 8 o'clock in the morning. On other occasions there was Jahangir, sometimes Cec and on some occasions the doctor and the Mir's uncle and a few other individuals. I usually tried to get down at 8 o'clock . . . yet, there were occasions when I got down at 6 o'clock, if I had some adventure or specific project in view.

353 792 I remember this specific breakfast because the first thing I said to the Mir after I was seated at the table was, "I would judge that you were very fond of the Aga Khan."

You see, it wasn't very hard for me to judge this fact because our apartment was hung with pictures of the Aga Khan and his wife in various poses and stages of his life. I had given some study to these photographs and many of them were inscribed in the hand of the Aga Khan with endearing terms to his friend, Jamal. 353 792

Our quarters were in the guest house—actually adjoining the palace but on a higher level. This building had been erected by the Mir's grandfather back in 1925. It was a well-built, handsome structure, firmly ensconced on a high rocky ledge of granite. 122 344 644

You walked down the Mir's long staircase from the sun room, then you walked up half a dozen or more stone steps, forward a few feet and then you climbed up a circular, enclosed wooden staircase to the guest quarters. These consisted of a large, comfortable sitting room with many easy chairs and a fine writing desk, a large bedroom with two comfortable beds and further on was the bathroom. Then to the right of the lovely sitting room was a balcony—spacious and inviting. From it you could view Rakaposhi and all its splendor and gorgeous loveliness. [352]

The furniture all round was similar to that which you would find in the average better-class American homes. Photographs adorned the walls, among which were the photos of the old Aga Khan and his French wife. [352] [353] [792]

When I mentioned the Aga Khan to the Mir, he waxed eloquent and his face beamed and he said, "Not only was I fond of him—not only did I love him—but we were close intimate friends. He was the most generous of men and especially to the people of Hunza. I revere his memory! He was a wonderful person. We really miss him since his passing. His ancestors came from Persia to India in 1834. In 1934, one hundred years later, to celebrate the jubilee of the founding of 792 [871]

792 his ancestors' dynasty in India, he donated what is now
871 the Hunzan school system. The fact that the children of Hunza are given a good education, without any cost to them, is due entirely to the kindness and benevolence of that great man. He started and maintained the system and I trust that his son will continue in his father's footsteps."

That the school system of Hunza is working, I can attest.

792 From what I have been able to gather and learn, Hunza was one of the states of India that contributed to the coffers of the Aga Khan. There is some story, true or mythical, that each year all of his religious followers throughout the world gave him a gift of gold or platinum to the extent of his weight. Now I do know [316] that some gold was mined in Hunza and probably that, too, was sent to the Aga Khan or added to the sum or weight sent from all of the countries and the millions of his followers to be his gift but, as far as I know, at the present time there is not much gold being mined in Hunza and nowhere did I see any sign of anything that could be used as a means of export to bring money into Hunza.

124 In the meantime I was enjoying my breakfast and between munching mouthfuls of food, I was asking the Mir some rather important questions.

651 "I read somewhere some time ago, that the revenues
681 you obtain from the fines you levy upon people in Hunza who commit misdemeanors or break rules or laws are added to the coffers of your own estate."

The Mir thought this was a great joke and laughed heartily.

"To begin with," he said, "laws are seldom broken by my people. They are good people and they live peaceably and do not commit serious offenses. During the past year the total collected from fines imposed by me upon the citizens of Hunza totaled less than 200 rupees. You know that my people do not have much money. There is no way or means of earning money—except by the few. We do not require money in order to live in Hunza. Further, the full amount that was collected in this manner was used in the maintenance of the irrigation system."

651
681
[436]
[653]
[312]

I waved my hand and said, "I only asked. I didn't think it was true, but I've read so many tales about Hunza in which ridiculous and fantastic statements are made without any justification or background."

000

"A few years ago," I went on, "two of the most influential and widely circulated magazines in the United States published an article by a famed and capable couple of writers—man and wife. I know they visited Hunza on two occasions because I saw their names in your guest book. Now the story they told and which both of these magazines published stated that it was a custom in Hunza for the mother-in-law to go and live with a newly married couple and remain with them on their honeymoon to teach them the ways of life. You explained that this was the reason why Hunzan marriages were so successful and there was seldom, if ever, a divorce.

114
585

"Before asking you to clarify this, I just want to tell you that I read this story and when I came to this specific part, I could hardly believe my eyes. But, as I have learned, there are many strange customs followed by different people throughout the world and of course, this could be absolutely true. But it certainly is strange and weird sounding to me anyway. So tell me, is that story true? Is it the custom of the people of Hunza to have the mother-in-law stay with the newly married couple during their honeymoon?"

114 "I said it as a joke," replied the Mir. "I had no 585 knowledge that it would be so widely publicized and written and taken as a fact. I did not mean to mislead the writers you mentioned."

"Then it is not true!"

"No," replied the Mir, "I meant it only as a joke!"

643 There was no doubt in my mind that the Mir had 115 a keen sense of humor. In fact, through all my talks
522 and discussions with the Mir which were frequent, there was seldom a time when he would pass by an opportunity for a bit of witticism or to laugh and have a bit of fun. He was just about as pleasant a man as could be found anywhere. He was not only a great ruler but he had a sense of humor. It was too bad that the writers referred to took him seriously. Maybe it was one of their bad days.

249 "Do you grow poppies here?" I asked the Mir bluntly and more or less out of the clear blue sky. I put this question to the Mir for a most definite reason.

On a few occasions I saw what I believed to be a field of flowers waving in the distance. But I wasn't sure. Invariably these patches of color were a mile or many miles away. I wondered what they were but I never could get close enough to see them. They were always sighted at great distance from where the road lay.

[123] You might ask why I didn't definitely, once and for all, set out across the field and find out. But remember, when you're in a more or less strange unusual territory, you just don't go off across the fields into someone else's private property.

All told, I doubt if I saw more than half a dozen of these patches of color during the full length of my travels. There might have been many more but I certainly didn't see them and I have an idea that if they were there, they would have been noticed. 249

It is also possible that from a distance of one or two miles, one might confuse a field of alfalfa hay or barley or wheat and, with golden heads when ripe and the sun's rays striking them, what was grain might resemble flowers, but I think I am well enough versed in plant lore to be able to make the distinction.

I want my readers to bear in mind also that most of my traveling from Gilgit to Baltit was done on Nagir territory.

The reason these bits of color were most conspicuous was obviously because of the practically total absence of anything that resembled flowers—or a bit of brightness.

The Mir answered my question about the growing of poppies as follows, "Yes, some of our farmers are growing poppies but I am going to put a stop to it." 249 276 656

I waited for him to continue with keen interest.

"It appears," he went on, "that some of the people have begun to take to smoking opium . . . and fearing this insidious bad habit will take root, I'm going to ban the growing of this plant."

I did not mention it to him then or since, but somehow I had overheard (perhaps at one of the parties in Gilgit where a group of the roundabout notables had gathered) that opium had been drifting in from some locations and commanding fairly good prices. It also struck me that the Chinese border, being close at hand, might prove to be a very appropriate market for the produce that they would get from the poppy plants.

I did not ask if there were any restrictions against the producing of opium, apart from the fact that the Mir was going to ban it for protection of his people. I do not know whether anyone could prevent the Hunzans or the Nagirwals from growing these colorful plants.

249 plants. Of one thing I was sure and that was that they weren't growing them for the beauty of the flowers.

Now in my strolls and walks about Hunza, I didn't get very far above Altit. Who knows? Maybe a large quantity of poppies are grown further along the river. But actually I doubt it very much.

124 Breakfast was now completed. I was eating alone, of course, in this instance. The Mir and Rani were just keeping me company. I thanked the Rani for her kindness, bowed to her and took my leave with the Mir.

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 32

We Meet and Ride the Yaks

I BELIEVE that every human being has a favorite animal. It is generally accepted that many people like dogs, others like cats, some prefer horses. At this moment I am thinking about other beasts—let us say, the more or less rare or strange beasts. Some people are thrilled at the sight of a lion or tiger and others, a giraffe.

When I was a youngster I was always fascinated by a buffalo. Probably it was because I had read many stories about the adventures and derring-do of Buffalo Bill. But for many years now the yak has somehow intrigued me. Somewhere along the line I had made up my mind that this was the most useful animal on the face of the earth. It is conceded that practically every animal has its uses and fills a place in the natural scheme of things. But to me, a yak embodied all of the wonderful features of the most useful and most 000 needed animals in the world.

231 It is clearly and distinctly established that Tibet, for example, could never exist and people could never live in that part of the world if it weren't for the yaks and yaks are native only to that part of the world —yes, wild ones, I mean. That's where they were originally found and tamed. They still roam wild on some of the higher inaccessible elevations and plateaus in that part of the globe.

No one will attempt to deny that our cow is a most useful and practically essential animal. It gives milk from which we make butter, cheese and cream. We use the carcass for meat and the hide for shoes, baseballs and many other articles but, to the best of my knowledge and belief, the cow as it is today actually couldn't look after herself in the northern latitudes and pasture food must be provided.

[492] Well, the yak does everything a cow does. Besides that, it is one of the finest beasts of burden. Then, too, it is the surest-footed animal to be found anywhere. It can, and often does, forage for its own food. It can live off practically nothing. It is suspected that it can find sustenance in a bit of grass or roots or even a bit of coarse, uninviting (to any other animal) herbage.

[492] [241] Like our cow, it takes to domestication readily. Both the Tibetans and the Hunzans use them to work their fields and flail their wheat, barley and other grains. 231 From the wool on its back, belly and head comes the 237 toughest of woven fabrics, from which is made the [283] sturdiest of clothes for the people and tents for their homes. Wherever you see rope in Hunza, you can be sure that it was made from braided or woven yak hair.

[291] [415] [501] The hide is used for most everything . . . boots and shoes, of course, and water containers and skin boats, which are the means and mode of transportation across and up and down the dangerous rivers and up and down the dangerous rivers. Yes, even the yak bones and horns are never wasted. Picks are fashioned from them. They even find their way into the walls of the homes of the people of Hunza, for they are lighter than stones. 231 237 [342]

Still I haven't yet mentioned what is generally accepted as the yak's most important contribution to the lives of the people in the highest mountain ranges in the world . . . and that is from the little green herbage they get, they give a good quantity of rich milk, from which is made the famous yak butter. Then last and perhaps even most important, it is butchered for its good quality, health-sustaining meat. 231 262

Even the yak tails are useful . . . as brooms or dusters . . . and many are shipped to the Western world and used as Santa Claus beards. And they do make the best Santa Claus beards of all. I know—I have a couple! 231 237 412 439

Now after you have had a chance to read these qualifications, perhaps you, too, will share my admiration and appreciation of the world's most useful animal. 000

I was up bright and early the morning I was to go to meet the yaks. Yes, it was just 6 o'clock when I was walking down the enclosed staircase towards the Mir's palace—leaving Cecil asleep, as he still had to remain in bed as the doctor had advised.

I met Jahangir coming from the other guest house and he joined me. We had agreed the previous night to be up at 6 but I never expected that it would work out right on the beam, as it happened in this instance.

So down we went along the stone staircases from one garden level to another until we reached the Mir's palace and then we began to climb up the long wooden staircase again.

As usual, the Mir was there to welcome us, along with the Rani and his brother and, after the usual sumptuous breakfast, Sultan Ali joined us and the three of us—Jahangir, Sultan Ali and I—took off to Altit. As we left the Mir said, "I'll be waiting here for you and you'll ride the yaks right into the palace yard."

"You'll find the yaks very easy and comfortable to ride," continued the Mir. "What's more—you won't notice the ascents and descents!"

"You're kidding!" I rejoined.

"No, I'm not," he said. "It's true . . . just wait and you'll see!"

It was approximately a 2 mile jaunt to Altit and the terrain was very much like the terrain we had encountered all the way up from Gilgit—washouts, rock slides, boulders strewn all over the place. This all made walking difficult, at least for me.

Now I don't want you to get the idea that when these landslides or rock slides occur they are just left where they fall, because that is the furthest thing from the truth. Immediately after these things happen, crews are put on to get things straightened away. But when you take into consideration that each speck of work is done manually and that they do not have even a wheelbarrow, you can then understand that the job is a difficult one and one that is back-breaking and requires much time.

The only implements I saw them use on the roads were a sort of pinch-bar or wedge and a sledge hammer. You see, they don't have dynamite and when a huge boulder lands smack in the middle or at the side of the road and can't be pushed off, the only other course to follow is to break it into small pieces. Those are the ways and means here of getting rid of huge boulders.

Let it also be clearly understood that the Hunza workers are good workers. They are not to be compared with the ordinary workers found throughout Pakistan and India. They do a day's work somewhat comparable to that done in the West. They are neither slouchers nor slackers. 461

All along the route there were groups of men working here and there. At this time of the year there were not too many employed or working on the roads and this is understandable. Every man in Hunza and Nagir must provide for the winter. Remember, there is, broadly speaking, no money and the only means he has of providing is by the work done with his own two hands. 464 491

The dried apricots and other fruits that he may put away, the wheat or the barley or the buckwheat that he stores in his house, the few roots that he puts into his root cellar are his means of sustenance until next spring. So you can readily understand that there is no great surplus of Hunzans or Nagiriwals during the months of July and August to do work on the roads and I know that the Hunza Road is not maintained by the State of Pakistan. Therefore there would be little or no money forthcoming and those who did work would probably be donating their time. Or perhaps their work would be somewhat similar to a type of taxation, although I dislike using that word when referring to or talking about the people of Hunza! [251]

We were more than a sauntering hour reaching Altit. If you've got any ideas about easy walking in this land, you'd better forget them. 487

As is usual on the entire Hunza trail, with few exceptions, it was climbing or descending all the time. The few places where you were neither climbing nor going down, you were walking along the river bed. In midsummer when the glaciers are melting quickly you 487 often get a sudden heavy flow of water and these rivers get deeper and broader and flood the roads. But then later, when it gets a bit cooler or cloudy, the river recedes and the river bed is again used as a road.

The alternative for the river bed is to climb hundreds or thousands of feet up along a road cut in the rock of the mountain or where a ledge might have been formed. When it is impossible to walk along the river bed, and this occurs regularly, in some places you must climb a few thousand feet . . . that is the only way you can continue your journey.

No matter how difficult, how dangerous or treacherous a roadway may be, there are some people who must get across, who must make their journey at that time. It is true everywhere in the world.

Therefore, when traveling on such terrain, it is positively advisable to try to get there and do your traveling when the rivers are not in flood. You can see why the river bed is preferable.

361 Altit is the name of the town wherein is located the old Altit Fort which was built in the thirteenth century. I don't know whether or not the other members of the party will agree with me but I did think that Altit was an exceptionally clean, tidy and orderly town. It was one of the first villages in Hunza to be settled because the area consists of a wide level, arable stretch of land almost two miles wide from the mountain wall to the bank of the river and here the drop was sheer—straight down for a thousand feet or more.

Oh, yes, all Hunza villages are clean and orderly but somehow it struck me that Altit was better then most. [644] Perhaps the Mir knew this and that is why he had his picnic bungalow built there. I am convinced that Altit was the most attractive village I found in the entire country.

As we wound along the trail and through the streets of the village, I kept looking around to see if I could spot the bit of meadow or field where the yaks would be grazing. I felt certain that if they were being tethered or kept somewhere that there would be some sort of grazing ground for them and I found I was right because, shortly, we came upon a bit of meadow surrounded by shrubs and trees. And sure enough, there were the yaks and the herders. 231 311

The first thing I noticed about them was that they seemed to be snorting like wild bulls. They breathe rather heavily and exhale sharply through their nostrils. The altitude at Altit was probably about the same as that of Baltit—between 8,000 and 9,000 feet—and that was much too near the level of the sea to suit the yaks who wanted it at least 11,000 feet. Undoubtedly that was the reason they were snorting and appeared somewhat uncomfortable. 231 [361] [133]

I liked their rather shaggy, unkempt appearance. The woolly hair that grew around their head and on top of it, looked as though it had been curled. I didn't know whether that made them look ferocious or cute.

I took a keen liking to the strange looking beasts. But I'm not sure that they shared my feelings. At least, they didn't look as though they did.

I have read and been told that you can trust a yak implicitly on any trail. If it's safe and can be traversed, he'll make it. If there's any doubt, he'll be just as stubborn as any mule. Where the way or the road is extremely bad, he will refuse to go and only by brutal pounding and beating and dragging will he continue along the trail that he distrusts.

Through each yak's nose ran a rope—a good thick, heavy rope. This is used to guide or lead the yak, instead of a bridle and bit. [492]

231 The yak is just about the same general build and also somewhat the same in appearance as a buffalo. It is considered to be, by zoologists, a distant relative of the American buffalo. In fact, when I first saw a yak, I thought it was a buffalo and in my mind's eye, I compared it to the buffalos that I had seen in our Canadian zoos or parks. However, yaks do not have that hump around the neck, and they seemed a bit smaller. They are quite shaggy and look wild and ferocious, which belies their actual temperament.

We did find, and I had heard this before, that yaks are very independent—probably the most independent of all domesticated beasts. You just don't take liberties with a yak. You treat him fair and square or he doesn't cooperate—at least not very well.

231 492 I walked around them and examined their shape and form and was especially interested in their broad backs. "Ah," I thought to myself, "that's the kind of an animal I want to ride—where I can sit on a flat surface instead of the apex of a triangle." My posterior was still smarting from the few miles I had ridden astride my horse. Even with the protection of the blanket, his backbone seemed to cut through like a razor. Right there and then I just had to get up on a yak's back and have someone take a picture.

"This should make a good caption," I thought to myself, "Jack on back of yak!"

The yak snorted a few times before and during the time I was getting on his back. But a few words and a jerk on his nostrils by his owner and he remained more or less orderly, but eyed me suspiciously.

Their broad well-filled backs and the sight of their feet with the sort of second set of hooves, fingers or spavins along the forelock told me that what the Mir had said about a comfortable even ride was true.

Many long years ago I learned not to doubt people 231 but to accept what they say until proven incorrect . . . be patient and allow time to speak. I accepted what the Mir told me but I wondered just how that miracle could take place. Upon examining the yak's feet or hooves or whatever else you might call them, I learned how this wonder of wonders occurred and I'm going to describe it to you. It will be difficult and you'll have to follow me rather closely.

If you examined a yak's forelegs, about 8 inches up from the hoof on the inside are appendages that look like spavins or callouses. These obviously are auxiliary paws, cushions or hooves. Therefore, the yak could, when necessary, walk on these appendages. It can be best illustrated by having you put your fingers straight up resting on the table. Then by dropping your fingers flat and putting down your wrist, you immediately shorten your arm by at least 6 inches. The yak could walk on its hooves or on the spavins 8 inches up along the leg.

Jahangir had never ridden a yak either, so he got 124 aboard one and I shot him a few times—that is, with the camera. He was quite pleased with himself, too, because that was something he hadn't anticipated when he started the journey.

Sultan Ali, our guide, said to me after I dismounted, "These men made quite a sacrifice in bringing the yaks down here from Passu. It's about 38 miles, you know, and they lose at least 2 or 3 days from work on their farms."

I knew quite clearly what he meant and I said, "Well, what do you think would be fair recompense for their efforts?"

"Well, about 40 rupees each."

Jahangir was standing besides me while this discus-

124 sion was taking place and he said to Sultan Ali, "That's [1] [434] much too much! Why most people in Hunza don't get that much in a year. I don't think you should ask Mr. Tobe to give them that much money."

Sultan Ali and Jahangir exchanged a few fairly warm words about this and the end result was that Sultan Ali compromised by saying that maybe 20 rupees each would be satisfactory. So I dug into my pocket-book and handed each of them two 10 rupee notes.

[1] [ie. 40 rupees - ANALYST]

7:Tobe C, T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 33

The Mir's Summer Cottage

ALTIT FORT has quite a history. I believe it to be the most historic and most important edifice in all of Hunza. Records that have been handed down would indicate that the fort was about 700 years old and it was erected like a perch, right on a sharp bank of the Hunza River, on what was originally a sharp gigantic precipice. 344 644 712

It may be smaller and perhaps simpler in construction than the larger fort at Baltit, but I thought it was big enough after I walked all around it and went in and out of all its chambers. Then, too, it is much larger now than it was in those days because the present Mir had a new wing erected so that when he holds court and carries out the seed-sowing ceremony, there will be plenty of room for his family, guests and visitors. [643]

I gained the impression that it was a tight little fortress—well built from blocks of rock, expertly

344
644 wedged together to form a formidable protection 712 against invaders of their day.

796 'Tis for the Festival of the Bopfau, which is the 241 Burushaski name given to the barley-seed-sowing festi-643 val, that the Mir comes dressed in all his regal finery and robes of state to practice a ritual that has been carried on for hundreds of years by the Mirs of Hunza.

[173] It would appear this ceremony is a carry-over from that performed by the ancient Greeks and the people of Hunza like to emphasize this, as though forging another link in the chain of evidence that would tie them in as descendants of Alexander the Great.

[292] On this occasion the Mir wears a magnificent gown with a wide belt fastened around his waist, in harmony with the gold brocade that bedecks the gown. At his side he carries the ceremonial sword in a carved ivory scabbard. He makes a most imposing, handsome figure with his head crowned with a clerical cap with flowing egret feathers held in place by a large golden pin. The Mir's brother, Ayesh, and the Mir's eldest son, the heir apparent, come similarly attired.

With an assembled crowd watching, the Mir drives a plough pulled by two oxen or a yak down and back along the field and into this furrow he sprinkles seed mixed with gold dust. The ceremony is repeated three times and then the Mir throws handfuls of the seed [789] into the air. Fable has it that if anyone catches a grain of seed and takes it home and mixes it with his own seed, he will be assured of a fine harvest.

The seed-sowing ceremony is not only performed at Altit but in two other Hunzan villages so that the Hunzan farmers can come and catch a seed to insure themselves of plenty for the following year. By doing it in three different locations, it means that no Hunzan farmer will have to walk more than a few miles to partake of the Mir's blessings.

partake of the Mir's blessings. 000

In comparing the fort at Altit and the one at Baltit, 344
I gained the impression that the one at Altit had more 644 rooms . . . smaller ones they were, but there seemed 712 to be more of them. The old fort at Baltit was much larger and more impressive. Yet somehow I became more attached to the Altit Fort. I had the impression that it was almost impregnable.

Then I recalled the true story of the capture of the 712 fort by the British and, after appraising its isolation, 648 strength and precipitous banks and sides, I thought to myself, "Any group of men who had the courage to attempt to scale and capture any fort in Hunza deserved a lot more glory and loot than they would ever get in Hunza . . . and that is for certain!"

On one of the balconies stood a man with a bowl 124 of apricots and Sultan Ali said, "This man is the chowkidor, or guardian, of the fort and it is customary to give him a gift."

"Of what?" I asked.

"Oh, about 10 rupees," replied Sultan Ali.

Jahangir almost jumped a foot when he heard that and he said, "For what? He hasn't done anything and we haven't eaten any of his apricots."

"Well," Sultan Ali said, "it's just customary!"

"Customary or no," said Jahangir, "I think it's ridiculous!"

I turned to Sultan Ali and said, "Normally I'd be 124 glad to give him the tip that you suggest, but the truth 122 of the matter is my fund of Pakistan rupees is just about nonexistent. When we set out for Hunza from Pindi we calculated in advance approximately how many rupees we would need and then we added on 100 extra, and that's what we came with.

"From the stories that we read and from the infor-

124 mation that we could gather, we were under the im-
122 pression that no money was used in Hunza. Therefore we didn't calculate on spending any. So far we have parted with approximately 300 rupees and to place the matter squarely in front of you, we don't have enough money to buy our plane tickets back from Gilgit to Rawalpindi! I'm hoping we'll be able to get some money at the bank in Gilgit because I did notice that there's a bank there, so I'm afraid I'll have to pass up the 10 rupees that I'm supposed to give the chowkidor of the fort. But tell him I enjoyed my visit to the fort very much anyway!"

344 While we were wandering around on the open bal-
644 cony of the old fort, Sultan Ali pointed to a neat looking place down below, but not far distant, and said, "That is the Mir's picnic place, where he comes every Saturday evening with his family. He stays there Sunday and Monday, returning to the palace for his various duties Monday evening. This practice is followed during the summer months."

"Well," I replied, "that's a custom that's followed pretty well in the West and probably in most places around the world . . . where one tries to get away from the usual home conditions and seeks refuge in a cottage. We, generally speaking, call this our summer cottage. And you know what? Many folks and families travel hundreds of miles just for the weekend, just as long as they can get away from home and the sameness of living for a few days at a time!"

"I guess we've seen everything here at the old fort worth seeing. So let's go down and make for the Mir's picnic place," I said as I headed for the stairs.

It was a walk of but a few hundred yards and we were soon at the garden gate of the bungalow. Sultan Ali spoke in Burushaski to one of the chowkidors who

7:Tobe C.T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

produced a key and opened the door. 344

Soon I was wandering through the well-appointed summer cottage. It was neat, tidy, clean and solidly built but of course it was not on par with the palace—nor would one expect it to be. After all, as mentioned, it was but a weekend spot and what we would call a summer cottage back home. Yet, of course, it was much nicer than the average summer cottage, but not as good as some of our elegant ones back home. 648

I was rather surprised and quite amused to note that the walls were covered rather widely with shiny lithographed pictures . . . yes, it was good printing or lithographing work. The pictures were obviously put out by the Chinese communist government and everywhere they showed workers and working girls with beaming faces, wearing good clothes and looking prosperous, but no one could doubt that these pictures were splendid specimens of communist propaganda. 353 648

One of the most effective pictures for propaganda purposes, I gathered, was one that showed the happy beaming faces of whites, yellows, blacks—all mixed and enjoying life together.

At first I thought that the Mir couldn't have known about these pictures hanging in his bungalow, but then I gathered that he must know about them. Evidently he doesn't fear them or worry about them. Perhaps he knows his people better than anyone else.

I do not have to go into a long discourse to prove to myself or to anyone else that the Mir does not have communistic leanings because communism would quickly and definitely stamp out any form of absolute rule like his Mirship. Yet I can also see the absolute necessity of the Mir keeping on friendly terms and not antagonizing either the Russian or the Chinese Communists. Then to make the situation even more hazard- 648

648 ous, the Russians have infiltrated Afghanistan. Therefore, Hunza is now completely hemmed in by what I would call the bamboo, the iron and the stone curtains.

I can't visualize where the Mir has too much to fear from Communist aggression. From what I have seen and learned, the Communists like their spots plush, soft and succulent. None of these conditions exist in Hunza!

The Communists like locations where they can eventually, if not immediately, take out more than they put in. That would never take place in Hunza. Then, too, people who have chosen to live on the north bank of the Hunza River would not be easily shackled [643] or enslaved. Admittedly, the Mir is an absolute monarch but there are no signs of that type of rule in evidence anywhere in Hunza. There's a parallel in England. While England has a queen, a monarch whom the people respect and revere, whom they would follow in life and in death, the monarch would never make demands on her people.

I do not believe there is a more democratic nation on the face of the globe than Great Britain . . . and that includes the United States or other republics. I believe the same situation holds true in Hunza.

Another point to be considered by possible invaders is . . . What would they gain besides possible armed conflicts with Pakistan and perhaps India?

[353] No, I would suggest that Hunza is comparatively safe from communist aggression and the Mir can afford to have the communist propaganda pictures on the walls of his summer bungalow in Altit as a gesture of friendship.

247 The yard or garden around the bungalow[3] was aglow 177 with flowers of every description and hue imaginable.

[3 [ie. of the Mir - ANALYST]

They were obviously of American or European origin . . . probably grown from seeds that someone had sent him. Plants like zinnias, snapdragons and asters were readily recognizable. 247 177

Then, I was very much surprised to see in front of the bungalow, of all things, a swimming pool . . . and the youth of the district were swimming and enjoying themselves to the fullest possible extent. They were shouting, laughing, splashing and cavorting about just as you would expect boys and girls to do in any swimming pool in America. They displayed the same reckless abandon, glee and happiness that our children do. 529 643 [644]

At this time I thought to myself that here was another mark of the Mir's bigness. He was allowing the children of the town to make full use of his personal family swimming pool. This was quite different from what most people expect of eastern potentates.

I'm not sure that this little incident impresses you but I assure you I was quite impressed by it. It added to my conviction that the people of Hunza were really free and democratic.

A little way off were our yaks and their guides. "Let's go," I said to Jahangir and Sultan Ali, making straight for the yaks. "The Mir and Cec will be waiting for us, so I guess we'd best be off." 000

I selected the larger of the two yaks because I'm quite a bit heavier, or almost twice as heavy as Jahangir. I was assisted on to the yak's back and the yak didn't seem to be too happy about it! For the first time since I'd been riding, which wasn't very long, I felt really comfortable. The well-padded broad back of the animal was delightful to sit on and, best of all, he had a western style saddle. I'm always afraid of falling off a horse with those English saddles because I've got nothing to hold on to except the reins and for my kind of 492

492 riding, I need more than that. Here I didn't have any reins but I could put my hands on the horn of the saddle. This was a case where I had the horn to hold onto and didn't need it. With those scrawny, skinny horses I could have used that appendage but I didn't have it.

This is also an excellent time to emphasize that a yak, whatever his sterling qualities, is by no means ever a speed demon . . . and that is for certain. He is built for comfort and security and my, oh, my, how important that is in the Karakorum or Himalayan terrain. The usual expected speed of a yak is approximately 9 miles per day which is somewhere around 1 mile per hour. However, I did not complain of the time that it took us to get from Altit to Baltit. I was having the time of my life and for once I wasn't the least bit afraid of falling off.

491 The road from Altit to Baltit actually is quite hilly —precipitous and steep in some places. But true to the Mir's prediction, I felt neither ascent nor descent because of the flexibility of the yak's legs.

Here I was 8,000 or 9,000 feet up in the firmament windingly wending my way around ledges and narrow trails while resting comfortably on the back of a yak. For the first time since leaving Gilgit I felt no fear or worry while riding. The beast on which I was sitting gave me a feeling of confidence.

The top of the final climb took us to the narrow opening of the valley. Here, if you turned right, the road led to the polo field and old Baltit Fort; if you turned left, to the Mir's courtyard.

115 I noticed what I thought to be a particularly unusual figure coming from the opposite direction, heading towards the pathway that led to the Mir's courtyard. He was in the company of another individual whom I recognized as being a typical Hunzan. But the 115 old fellow who caught my attention did so because he was so strange looking. He was slightly stooped, short of stature, looked very old, had a firm yet halting walk and a beard of bright henna red and wore a long brown coat that touched his boots. It didn't require intuition or even a keen mind to recognize that this man was not ordinary in any sense of the word and I remarked to Sultan Ali that this was someone with whom I would like to converse—by means of an interpreter, or course.

We headed the yaks over so we'd be directly in front of the two as they passed by, and Sultan Ali spoke to them. Then he turned to me with a smile and said, "You are quite right, there is something most unusual [165] about this man. He says he's 105 years old today—it's [643] his birthday—and he's come to pay his respects to the Mir."

I allowed myself to slide down off the beast's back as I asked Sultan Ali to introduce me to the fine old fellow and we shook hands. He said, "Salaam aleikum!" and I, too, said, "Salaam aleikum!"

I was really very happy and felt privileged to meet a grand old man like this!

I appraised him from head to foot, scrutinized every part of him—up, down, to the right, to the left—and I smiled as best I knew so as not to offend the fine old fellow. He was indeed a patriarchal old man, but he still looked in mighty fine fettle; he'd come from a little farm a few miles away, on foot!

The old man's name was Dado and he lived in Hasanabad. He has one son, two grandsons, three granddaughters and fifteen great-grandchildren. Dado [165] has 10 close friends, all of whom are more than 95 years of age. Membership in that exalted group is hard to come by . . . a most restricted organization.

115 Now I didn't see his birth certificate and I might as 165 well tell you, right here and now, that no vital statistics are kept in Hunza. I accept the figure of his age as he told me but remember, I was not there at the time of his birth!

344 When I was through with my spasm of inspection 644 and admiration, we began to parade up the long driveway that led into the Mir's garden. This area is flanked on the right by space that looks as though it were a parking lot, and maybe that's exactly what it is, but instead of cars, the guests or members of the family park—or should I say tether—their horses and yaks in this area. Maybe now they park their jeeps there.
[493] The Mir owns two of them, but one, I understand, was away in Pindi being repaired. (Or was it the shambles and horrible wreck of a jeep that I came across a week later, on the road back to Gilgit?)

126 Now I noticed that the Mir, Ayesh, the doctor and Cec were coming along the roadway to meet us, and soon we joined forces and were gathered in one group. I thought this was the ideal time to take some photographs and, luckily for us, they were the best photographs we took on the entire trip. Photography is something that has never interested me and I had never taken half a dozen pictures in my life. Before leaving [122] home, I did try to learn a bit about photography, but I couldn't learn enough fast enough.

124 When the fun, excitement and fast-flowing humorous remarks had subsided, I said to the Mir, "If you've nothing more important to do or if you would care to give me a little more of your time, we could start that question and answer session that I arranged with you for this afternoon."

"I am at your service," he replied pleasantly and with alacrity.

So the Mir, the doctor and I proceeded up the stairs 124 to his famed reception sun room. He instructed one of his people, in his own language and soon we were comfortably seated with an assortment of cold drinks before us.

The Mir, the doctor and I then had a long session. I asked questions of the doctor just as readily as I did of the Mir and both answered with equal frankness. At no time did one look at the other to ascertain whether or not he should answer the question. Everything was done on a strict, clear-cut, frank basis.

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 34

About the People of Hunza

164 THE CLAIMS made for the people of Hunza border on 165 the fantastic. It is claimed that there they live to be 140 and more years of age without trouble and that their mountain home is the genuine Shangri-la, where a man can live without worry or stress in perfect joy and happiness. The claim is also made that their men can sire children when they're 70, 80, 90 and even 100 years of age.

Yes, and another visitor to Hunza said that the women of 80 and 90 are as youthful and as beautiful as our own women of 30 and 40. Well, apart from the [644] Rani who I truly believe was one of the most beautiful women I have ever been privileged to see, I didn't notice anything spectacular about the women of Hunza.

123 Let me be even more frank . . . I hardly saw any women at all. Over the many miles of Hunza territory that I walked, I seldom saw a woman. I saw a few girls here and there and most of them snickered, giggled and hid or turned their backs so that I couldn't see their faces, just as the girls and women did in Nagir. I did notice and pass many women constantly in the fields, but not once did I think that they even compared with our own attractive women . . . let alone surpass them! 123

Nor do I want you to get the impression that I am prejudiced. To me, at least, a woman can be beautiful whether she be black, yellow, tanned or white. I believe myself to be the kind of a man who shows no prejudice, at least where women are concerned, if you know what I mean!

Here I also want to state that it could be I was somewhat at a disadvantage. In the Western world, when one meets or sees a woman, it is usually at her best or close to it. Here the situation was, I admit, drastically different. I either saw them in the fields or coming or going to and from the fields to their homes or doing household chores in their homes. None of these occupational hazards would give a woman a chance to show herself at her prettiest or to her own best advantage.

I did not inquire as to the Rani's age. I am generally fairly bold but I just wasn't bold enough to pose that question to the Mir or to the Rani herself, although I had ample opportunity to do so had I the courage. 644 165

She would compare favorably in every way with any woman in her twenties. If I did not know her position and I were asked to estimate her age, I would say 24 or 25 but remember, she is the wife of the Mir and has borne him 9 living children, one of whom is married and another of whom is engaged to be married to the Prince of Chitral. Their eldest daughter is married to Yaseen Durishahwar and they have two sons, which means that the Rani is a grandmother. But I still insist that she doesn't look a day over 25.

128 As I sat and pondered my experiences—things that I had actually seen and witnessed, people whom I had met and talked to—I wondered and asked myself, "Will I be the man who will destroy the myth or will I corroborate it?"

Then I did a little soul searching. When an individual does that, it means he is troubled . . . and I admit that that was exactly my predicament.

I have tried to ascertain the truth of everything I have recorded and related in this book. Most of the time I was fortunate enough to see and do these things for myself. However, some information I had to obtain by asking questions and probing, but in every case I believed the information sincere and honest. You will note that, at all times, I sought my information from the highest and best informed sources available—even at the danger of annoying my host. Friendship and decorum are important conventions but, with me anyway, the quest for knowledge knows no bounds.

There may be errors and omissions and even falsehoods in my story but if there are any, it is by sheer accident or by willful misrepresentation on the part of someone else. Inasmuch as I am concerned, every statement made in this book is true, to the best of my innermost belief and knowledge.

124 There were many instances, while gathering this in-128 formation, where facts, stories and other data were related to me and I doubted their veracity. So right there and then I said so. In some instances, I told the people who were giving me information that what they said did not make sense, and either they must have misunderstood or there was something being lost or twisted in the translation. I recall at the moment three such specific instances with entirely different groups and in each case, upon studying and revamping the question, the error was cleared up. 128

Remember, I do not claim to be a Sherlock Holmes 124
or smart enough to detect by scent or otherwise an untruth or misunderstanding, so they may crop up in various places in the book.

Long before I left home I had prepared a set of queries. Among them were things for me to investigate —places, customs and chores for me to see and do. And from all this I was to make my own values and estimates as to the validity of the claims made about Hunza and its people. I tried to cover every aspect of importance and interest and I believe that, with very few exceptions, I faithfully accomplished my mission.

In preparation for the trip I read every book I could 122 find or locate that involved Hunza and in each case 114
the author had done a credible job, but most of them had failed miserably to give sufficient information—at least, for me—because 'twas information that I wanted. I wanted to know more about the agriculture of Hunza, about the health of the people, about their methods, their means and their way of life. None of the authors gave much of that vital data.

Right from the first moment that I made plans to go 12 to Hunza I decided that, if I wrote a book, it would 114 contain the most complete, the most detailed and the most thorough study of the people of Hunza yet accomplished by any writer. This determination came upon me from the frustrations I felt when I read the available books on Hunza and was left with a feeling that only the surface of the subject had been scratched.

In my endeavors to fulfill this undertaking, I have spared neither time, effort, risk nor expense. I certainly don't want my readers to be left with the feeling that all about Hunza has not been told. I definitely realize that no one in a short few weeks or even months could

121 learn all there is to know about these most unusual 114 people. At least I wanted to learn the answers to the many questions that come into the average individual's mind.

Therefore, it is my hope that I have not failed in these positive respects.

If my narrative is not everything that you hoped and expected, I sincerely trust that I will make up in the details and information of an authentic nature that I give to you concerning these remarkable people.

142 The facial features of the people of Hunza are most striking. They are invariably finer featured than the people of the West—more angular, more clearly outlined and defined, without being harsh or bold. Their facial characteristics can best be described by the phrase "finely, delicately chiseled physiognomy" . . . like the intricate creations of a gifted sculptor.

Whether because of the rugged outdoor life they lead or because of the tanning or curing process of their smoke-filled homes during the winter, the texture of their skin is quite unusual. I think I can describe it best if I say that their faces looked as though they were made out of smooth chamois.

I was struck by the similarity of the features of the people of Hunza. In the West, everybody you meet or know doesn't look like anyone else that you know. In fact, if you do happen to come across someone who has the likeness or features similar to those of someone else you know, you're immediately struck by that resemblance, which illustrates my point. In the Western world, there is a wide divergence of facial features and characteristics. In Hunza that does not hold true.

A little thought will establish the reason for this [143] situation. Intermarriage during the centuries must have been the order of the day because of the confining nature of their homeland.

nature of their homeland. 000

However, the Mir pointed out to me most clearly and emphatically that intermarriage among members of one tribe is absolutely forbidden. There are four tribes in the Baltit area and they can marry among these four tribes . . . Diramiting, Khorokoch, Borong, Barataling . . . but definitely not among their own tribe. 582 143 [101]

Lest this sounds like a difficult matter to hold in check, I want to explain that this is easier to control than may be imagined, for the simple reason that all marriages must be sanctioned and performed by the Mir. Therefore he positively knows who is marrying whom. [585]

However, even if this has been the rule for many hundreds of years, the total population of Hunza, even today, stands at something less than 25,000 souls and Lord Curzon in his memoirs states that in 1894, the total population of Hunza was only 6,000. Therefore, among so small a population, it is almost impossible for them to marry very far beyond a family relationship. (In 1934 it was estimated that the population had risen to 15,000.) 161 582 143

Let's put it in another way. If the people of Hunza have remained more or less a pure people for nigh on 1,000 years and the population today is only 25,000, there must have been fairly close intermarriages. Perhaps that would, as I mentioned, account for the similarity of features.

I want to stress, at this point, that I came to Hunza primarily to learn and study (1) about their health and longevity and (2) about their means and methods of agriculture. 121

Let's examine or re-examine a few of the more pertinent details of their unusual country. 000

Hunza is a country that lies along the Hunza River

131 Hunza is a country that lies along the Hunza River from Secunderabad to the Chinese border, a distance of somewhere around 200 miles, but no one has ever actually measured it. At the narrowest point it is less than half a mile wide. At its broadest, it is not quite [133] two miles. Usually the only piece of flat land in a village [134] is the polo field. Good, rich, deep soil as Westerners know it is absolutely unknown in Hunza.

311 Whenever a house is built here, they seldom ever use [361] a piece of fertile soil or soil of any kind. They usually erect it on rock or on a steep hillside where that piece of land could not have been used for agriculture anyway.

[241] Practically every bit of farm land is terraced. It can be said, it is actually cut out of the rocks of the mountainside which is the north bank of the Hunza River.

[134] Of the total length of 200 miles, only a small fraction is at all arable. Most of it is solid rock or terrain so steep that horticulture of any nature is impossible.

312 Rainfall is scanty. They cannot depend upon it at all [132] for crops. In order to get sufficient water, hand built and similarly maintained conduits bring water down [241] from glaciers. These conduits are carefully erected and trained to run alongside the villages where the water can be trapped to flow where desired and used to irrigate their lands, also for drinking and all other necessary purposes.

There are four main conduits in Hunza and they are as follows:

Murku—This is at the highest level of all the aqueducts and carries the most water.

Barbar—Supplies the Baltit-Altit area.

Dala—This is the longest—extends as far as Aliabad. Supplies Kerimabad.

Hamachi—The smallest which runs as far as the tiny village Ganesh, located on a cliff's edge.

Water rights are regulated by law and a man can use the water from the conduit that passes his land at certain definitely established periods. The flow or shut-off is controlled by placing a large stone or rock at the opening of the channel into the individual's waterway. It may sound a bit baffling to the average individual, but upon viewing it and examining it, it is easy to understand and, what's more important, it is simple and practical. 312 [423]

Nowhere did I see these waterways covered or encased in pipes—although they did in many places run under the roadway.

As their water supply is glacier-fed, there is never any danger of a supply failing . . . at least, not in the imminent future. However, in cloudy periods the flow slackens and an extended cloudy period causes a severe water shortage.

Lest you get the idea that these conduits or waterways are a simple matter, I want to assure you that they are a marvel of engineering. Further, when you consider that the first one was built about 1860 without any man made tools or iron or steel, you can then believe what a difficult and gigantic undertaking it was. It is a monument to their industry, intelligence and foresight. At least now, they have iron picks with which to dig, rather than having to use ibex horns. [412]

Here I want to mention very definitely that the same type of waterway exists on the other side of the river . . . that is, in Nagir territory.

They do not, in any sense of the word, have orchards as we know orchards in the West, because they don't have a piece of land large enough or flat enough to compare with what we know as an orchard. In the West orchard sites are usually selected with the premeditated view of providing excellent drainage. There- 245 311

245 fore, knolls or rolling lands are preferred and gravelly, 311 sandy or light loam soils are chosen.

There are neither rolling lands nor tilthy knolls in Hunza. Here they have to take what they can get and make the best of it. The precipitous bits of arable land are terraced to prevent erosion and the flat pieces, such as there are, create no drainage problem because there is no danger of too much rain.

You will seldom see more than a few dozen fruit trees in one group or area. They are scattered here, there and everywhere and are planted only where and when they can grow to best advantage.

I would also like to mention that fruit and walnut trees are found growing almost everywhere along the roads or trails in the populated area, so no bit of arable land, no matter where it is found, is wasted.

245 I do not know if there is any dispute as to who owns the crops but all the way from Gilgit to Altit I did not find a bit of ripe fruit on the trees—which means most clearly that somebody harvests the crops at just the right time or when the fruit is at or about proper maturity.

433 From some of the larders that I examined, I gathered 251 that they certainly wouldn't have any overabundance and I further felt that, by the time winter and early spring passed and before the new crops were ready to harvest, some bellies might have thinned out and some more might even be hungry.

There was no reason for me to disbelieve the Mir when he said Hunza was the "land of just enough" but I still felt that, by the look of things, there would be many occasions when that "just enough" might have to be stretched a little. I was convinced that they certainly did not have too much of any food commodity.

142 The only two stout men that I met on my entire sojourn through the area were the Mir's two brothers. 142

The Mir himself, while not tall, is well-built and muscular, but shows no sign of fat.

The Hunzan fruit crops, from my careful observa- 245 tions, are as follows: apricots, Persian walnuts, mulberries, peaches, plums, pears and cherries. These were the sweet cherries. Nowhere did I see any sign of the sour or pie cherries.

Further, I noticed that all of the trees of this type that I saw were old. There were not many young trees, but that is understandable because they allow a tree to grow as long as it is able to bear fruit and they have little or no new space to plant young trees.

The walnut, the mulberry and the apricot trees grow to enormous size—far stronger, broader and heavier than they ever grow in America, although I have seen huge walnut trees and huge cherry trees in the Western world. Peach, pear, plum and apple are not grown nearly as much as the other kinds mentioned.

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 35

The Hunzan Economy

243 FROM THE thrice-told tales of people who write about Hunza and its fertile fields, one might rightfully expect to see bountiful crops of grain bending in the breeze, but I did not expect to see great expanses of waving golden wheat fields in Hunza, so I was not disappointed. The flight from Pindi to Gilgit told me the story better than words. The harsh, flint rock mountains and meager valleys made agriculture a serious, unrelenting affair that taxed man's ingenuity and endurance.

In field crops the Hunzans grow wheat, which I found to be one of their most important foods. I saw more wheat than any other grain. Then there were [244] buckwheat, peas, broad beans, lucerne, millet, barley, rice, onions, potatoes, carrots, turnips and lettuce.

It is said that they can grow two crops a year and, while I did not actually see two crops produced, I noticed that the wheat was harvested in late July and there would still be ample time to grow another crop 243 before the frost came. Therefore, that adds credence to the statement that they can grow two crops a year.

I gathered that buckwheat was their most important second crop and it was not hard to understand, because it thrives on the poorer and lighter soils, where other grains might not do as well. Further, it needs only about ten weeks to mature and it has the added advantage of flowering and setting its crops continuously, so that a fair harvest can be had at most any time.

Then, too, it is a crop that can stand the colder weather; that is, the chilly nights in early fall and spring that they are bound to have in these high mountain areas. In actuality, the buckwheat blooms continually and flowers, green seed and ripe seed can be found on the plants at one and the same time.

There is another good reason why the Hunzans grow a lot of buckwheat. It invariably leaves the soil in splendid physical condition and believe me, that is very, very important to the people of Hunza. In addition, [231] this crop makes splendid food for their farm animals. It makes a fine green manure as well as a weed smother crop.

It must be remembered that buckwheat makes a dandy emergency crop if and when other earlier crops have failed. So it is not hard to understand why it would be one of the most important grain crops in Hunza.

They don't have bees in Hunza, I was sorry to learn, 262 and therefore there is no buckwheat honey. 231

The Hunzans are chiefly vegetarians—whether by [311] choice or necessity is hard to establish, although I would say that they had little choice in the matter because they just don't have the area to waste on animals. They can't afford to get their food second-hand. While there 311

311 were a few valleys where a bit of pasture might have been established or used, they just couldn't afford to waste acres for pasture purposes.

234 I did not see any cheese—that is, cheese as we know 251 it—in Hunza, but I maintain that their stored butter is 262 cheese. I knew from what I had read and learned that they have a most unusual method of storing their butter, and one day the Mir sent one of his servants out to bring some in. In a few minutes the servant returned, carrying on a tray a huge bundle that looked like and was slightly larger than a football. He placed it in front of me and told me to go ahead and unwrap it, which I did. It was neatly and firmly wrapped in birchbark and when I removed layer after layer of wet, dripping bark, I at last came to the so-called butter. It was gleaming pure white. A knife was handed to me and I dug a little piece out of the side and tasted it. It was absolutely delicious. It had a fresh wholesome flavor. I thought it was cheese and that is what I really believe it is.

234 Their method of making this butter is as follows: Goat, sheep, cow or yak milk is used. Their method of churning butter is strictly Eastern. They do not use wooden or metal churns as they are found and known in the West. Usually goat skins are used. They are turned inside out so that the smooth, tanned side is outside. Then the ends of the hide are carefully sewn together. Openings are allowed to remain by means of the legs, and these are used for filling the skin with the milk to be churned and later to extract the butter. While the churning is taking place, the leg openings are firmly tied.

Then the milk-filled hide is joggled, weedled, spanked, turned and twisted over the knees and this is maintained continually until some sort of solidification takes place. Just as with us, impatience and inquisitiveness become master and the shaking is stopped, while a peek is taken by untying a leg opening to see if the process is beginning. 234

When at last butter is formed, it is squeezed out of the skin churn and then they make firm round balls out of it. It is wrapped in birchbark, placed underneath a water channel and left there for months, or years as the case may be. One record through which I poured related that this butter was sometimes kept for 100 years. I found no verification of this from the citizens of Hunza. Perhaps in this instance the butter was forgotten and was discovered many years later, but it is kept for years and is usually brought out for special celebrations and other occasions. 234 251 [262]

Now you will hear the word "ghee" referred to on every hand when talking about food. This is the selfsame butter but heated to the melting point and allowed to harden. By then it turns into a bright yellow color. It is used as a spread but also for cooking, baking, frying and such. Most Hunzans prefer "ghee" over the plain ordinary butter. The Mir told me that he and his household all preferred it to butter. 234 262

So therefore, besides the fruit, nuts, grain and vegetable crops, they have curd, ghee, butter (cheese) and milk. Those who do eat meat would be lucky if they could afford to have it more than two or three times a year, but I understand meat is available for most festive occasions. 262

While in all probabilities they dry other types of fruit, I did not see any other dried fruits but apricots. On my travels throughout the country I saw thousands of trees and probably millions of apricots but I did not see one go to waste. Everywhere I went apricots were drying. They had been split open, the stone removed and stored and the fruit left for the sun and air to cure and dry 251

251 them. Even apricots that were bruised, damaged or even starting to rot were put out to dry. No treatment of any kind was used . . . just simply nature at work.

245 [428] [423] An apricot tree is a most valuable asset in Hunza. It is a fact that an apricot tree is often willed to a daughter by parents and she can retain her rights to the tree and of course the crops that come from it for her lifetime.

In the Western world, the apricot is not considered a long-lived tree. In America, especially, it is considered not much longer lived than a peach or a plum and that means at the most, 25 or 30 years of life. When you take into consideration the truth that in Hunza apricot trees live to be well over 100 years, one wonders just where the difference comes in.

245 242 I really believe that I have the answer. In Hunza apricots are grown from seed. No matter where I looked or sought I could find no tree nursery in either Nagir or Hunza. (I did find a small government nursery in Gilgit.) Therefore I would assume that every Hunzan farmer grows his own trees from the planting of the apricot seeds. No doubt some Hunzan farmers are more adept at this task than others and they probably grow a few extra ones and maybe trade them for other things with their neighbors.

But, as explained, the trees here last many, many years and the orchard space or land to grow them on is very limited. Therefore, there would be little or no demand for nursery stock. I inquired wherever I went concerning grafting and I tried to establish whether or not they knew anything about the process and how much they knew, but I came up against a blank wall. I could gather no definite information. That they know how to graft and are acquainted with the process, I am sure but to what extent it is used, I could not establish.

Now the case in the Western world and specifically 245 in America is entirely different. Most of the apricots 242 in America are positively grafted or budded on either plum or peach rootstock. This tends to make the tree bear a crop much sooner than it would on its own roots. On a plum root the apricot tree will grow in damp soils that would not be tolerated by the apricot itself or by the apricot grown on a peach root. However, the fact that the apricot is budded on peach or plum definitely makes its life span about 30 years at the utmost.

To the best of my knowledge and belief, nowhere in America can you purchase apricot seedlings, nor are they listed by any of the wholesale nurseries or growers. This would clearly indicate that apricots are invariably grown on a foreign rootstock as mentioned above. Undoubtedly this has much to do with the longevity of the Hunzan apricot trees. In Europe apricot seedlings are available and used as the rootstock on which to graft and bud apricots, which is as it should be.

However, from my investigations, I did learn that more than 20 different kinds of apricots are known and grown in Hunza. This does prove that grafting or budding or both are known in Hunza. The fruit that I 245 did see and eat was by no means superior to that grown in the rest of the world. In fact, if anything, it was of inferior size and quality.

This may come as a shock to many people who believe that everything the people of Hunza do is superior to that done anywhere else in the world. Unfortunately, I must relate things as I found them.

In America, for example, a farmer would not hesitate to remove a tree or even an orchard that was producing undersized or inferior quality fruit, because he's depending on his fruit for marketing purposes. Remember, too, in America size and yield are the two most im-

245 portant qualities desired by all fruit growers. The reason is obvious . . . because the consuming public will readily buy the larger fruits. The quality is practically always judged by appearance, not by its flavor.

For the moment I am using exactly the same yardstick in Hunza and it is upon that fact that I am making my comparison. I have discovered the reason why all travelers to Hunza report the high succulent good flavor of the Hunzan apricot, and the explanation is simple. Invariably, when you eat an apricot in Hunza, it has been tree-ripened or you pick it directly from the tree and eat it and it is at its pinnacle of flavor and goodness, whereas in America, when you buy apricots, whether at a fruit stall or supermarket, that selfsame apricot might have been picked two weeks prior when it was green and ripened artificially or at least ripened away from its parent. Therefore, no comparison in flavor can be made.

Another valid reason for the popularity, or should I say necessity, of growing apricots in that mountainous region is because the apricot is one of the first trees to ripen its fruit. Apricots as a rule mature with cherries. However, the cherry requires a much shorter period from blossom to fruit and to make up this period, the apricot blooms very early. In fact, it is generally conceded to be the first of all tree fruits to show its flowers. A few warm sunny days in the early spring will bring out the apricot blossoms in their full charm and beauty.

It is seldom that they get through their blossoming period without frost of lighter or greater degree striking them, whether it be in Hunza or Niagara. But the apricot blooms, even though beautiful and tender of look, are really rugged and hardy, can take the cold weather and mature large crops of delicious fruit in spite of the chilly, frosty weather at blossoming time.

Among people—yes, even experienced old-time gardeners and orchardists—there are many who believe that pollination by bees is required in all cases to set a crop of fruit. For many types of fruit and plants, this holds true; pollination by bees or other insects is essential. But in the case of the apricot and many others, wind pollination is the means that nature employs, and actually it is safer and surer than pollination by insects. Rain is also an effective pollinator, contrary to many people's conception and belief. I believe I would be safe in stating that wind pollination is the means of fertilizing more plants than can be claimed for bees and other insects combined. 245

All Hunzans own their own land and house. They pay no rent or taxes. Each citizen does his share of road building, taking care of the water channels and maintenance. The Mir leases his land to various individuals, most of them young people who as yet own no land of their own, or those who have insufficient for their needs. They pay him by means of services rendered and shares of the crops. 423 651 [653] 427 643

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 36

2000 Years of Bread!

256 ONE OF THE THINGS that I did want to witness with my own eyes was the feeding and operation of a flour mill in Hunza. Apart from all of the other important and interesting data that I had hoped to gather while in this part of the world, the operation of the wheat mill was one that to me had great portent. I wanted to see the wheat actually going into the mill and coming out as flour.

000 Bread is said to be the staff of life. Well, whether it is or not remains a moot question. But to me at least, bread is important. I always have been a big bread eater.

121 Now it was only during the past few years that by 262 reading and learning I found out how useless or even harmful the pleasant white loaf that we know in America is and can be. Having a fair idea about the health record as it exists in America and knowing the kind of bread we eat, I was greatly interested when I heard about the people of Hunza and then found out that they eat only bread that is made from whole grain. 121 262

Then, when the same books or facts brought to light that the people of Hunza knew few of the world's ills, my interest was aroused to almost a fever pitch. I wondered if there was any connection between the kind of bread that we ate and our health and the kind of bread they ate in Hunza and their health.

From my own observations I also learned that wheat was the most important crop in Hunza, with the exception of apricots. I have also tried to establish which was the first domesticated grain in the annals of human history and I have not been able to establish clearly whether it was wheat or millet. But wheat is more adaptable to the temperate zones, whereas millet leans more to the warmer climes and it is clearly established that wheat is preferred by the white races. 243 000

I soon learned that there was a flour mill that functioned regularly, located on the route that we took from the palace at Baltit to the old palace or old fort. So on one of my walks I made it a point to investigate thoroughly the location, the workings and the construction of this old mill. 256

On my way up when we stopped at Chalt I saw one of these mills in operation, but I did not actually see the grain being made into flour.

For a man who has spent most of his life in the country and on a farm, I feel embarrassed to admit that I had never seen a flour mill in operation before.

During the past quarter of a century, or even a longer period, milling has, generally speaking, come into the hands of large corporations and that is why, I assume, I got it into my head that milling was a complicated big-time operation that required a great investment

256 and the hiring of many employees. I've tried to analyze how I mentally reached these conclusions and eventually I saw the light. I knew that the grain had to be stored in huge elevators, then transported to the mill in carload quantities and from the railroad cars it was carried or blown into huge bins and then from there into hoppers that fed it into the rolling mill itself. Then the process of separating the bran, then the wheat germ and then the flour took place. The next process, I understood, was for the flour to be ground even more minutely and then bleached. After this had all been accomplished there were some government rules or regulations that compelled the mills to fortify or replace some of the important values that had been removed.

Now after you have read the above, can you blame me for getting the idea that milling was a costly and complicated process? Again, I must confess, even to the extent of being embarrassed, that I had to travel to Hunza to learn the truth about milling. Then perhaps I need not be ashamed of my ignorance because the problem of making bread from grains has been plaguing mankind for more than 6,000 years, during which time much blood has been shed, governments have been overthrown and billions of dollars in profits have been made. Yes, the whole story of human existence can be written and told in terms of man's staff of life—bread!

When we stop to realize that bread has been the mainstay of human diet for almost 6,000 years, we ought to bury our heads in shame to admit that our knowledge concerning this life-giving or life-destroying food is so meager and inadequate. Not one person in a thousand realizes, knows or understands, what is contained in the food upon which he leans heavily and of which he consumes large quantities, not only every day but in most cases, at every meal. 256

It came as quite a surprise to me to learn that milling was one of the most simple operations that could be devised and that difficulties and complications only arose when we sought to deviate from the natural way of doing things.

So now at last I was there watching a Hunzan flour mill in action. In all probabilities the same milling process is followed in practically all countries of the world where flour is milled in a simple manner.

My first impression as I watched the flour pouring from between the revolving stones was, "How easy—how utterly simple! Why should anyone in the world be denied access to that vital health-giving food?" Any man can have his own pure whole wheat flour, from which he can have made his wholesome delicious whole wheat bread, by the simple means of putting a grain of wheat between two stones and rubbing the two stones together.

In this Hunzan flour mill, wheat is poured into a suspended hopper made of wood, but shaped like and about the same size as a grain sack and tapered to a narrow opening just above the millstones. Attached under the opening is a small trough, tilted slightly. This trough sits with its lower end over the hole in the stone. Then right there at the mouth of the trough a wooden stick is attached so that it will dangle at the mouth of the opening and as the mill rotates, this stick taps against the opening and causes the grain to drop out in regulated amounts. Thus, the flow of the wheat into the opening of the millstone is governed.

The millstone is rotated by direct drive from the water wheel. From the conduit up above, a stone is removed and the water is allowed to run down a spillway, which leads under the mill house and is made to [37.6]

256 splash against the water wheel or paddle. The force is [376] sufficient to make the millstone revolve at a tremendous pace. The water can be quickly shut off by just putting the missing stone back in place, diverting the water flow down the conduit.

The millstones are enclosed by a tray or bin about 5 or 6 inches high. As the ground wheat or flour is forced out between the stones, it slowly fills the bin. Then it is scooped up into goatskin bags, usually by a woman who is looking after the mill. In this manner it [262] is carried to the individual homes to be used in making the wholesome whole wheat Hunzan bread and chapatties.

There appeared to be no large scale or assembly line grinding. Each individual came in with a container of wheat to be ground.

[262] Barley and rye are also used for flour and occasionally, millet and buckwheat.

262 The earliest crop that can be ground into flour in Hunza is barley. After the long winter, food supplies [243] are worn to the near starvation level and when the first [527] barley is ready for harvest, people of Hunza have cause to celebrate and do so in their barley festival.

252 I soon learned why chapatties were used in prefer-262 ence to bread, not only in Hunza but all over Pakistan and India. A chapatty requires only flour and water, a bit of mixing and then rolling out and laying on a piece of metal that is laid over a fire. In a few minutes it can be turned and then it is ready for eating. Even though bread might taste better, it certainly would require a lot more preparation. Simplicity is the keynote!

251 From what I saw, very little flour is stored and probably the people of Hunza have long ago learned their lesson, that wheat ground into flour does not have long keeping qualities.

There is more wheat grown in Hunza than any other 243 single grain crop. Therefore the wheat they use must [164] be one of the vitally important contributors to the health of these people.

If you will take time to study the habits or the peculiarities concerning the growing of wheat, you will quickly learn that wheat will not grow on poor or unbalanced soils. One of the first things that my father taught me many long years ago was that your best land must be used if you want to grow a good crop of wheat. Rye or barley, he told me, you can grow most anywhere, but wheat is fussy. If the nutrients aren't there in the soil, the wheat will not grow and your crop will be a failure. All through my travels in Nagir and Hunza I saw wheat and it looked good. It wasn't the same tall wheat that we grow in the Canadian West, but it was wheat and the yield was comparatively bountiful, which means that the Hunzan soil must contain the required nutrients—and to grow wheat, there are many.

Therefore there is a direct connection between the nutrient contents of the soil of Hunza and the wheat that it grows, the flour that they use, the bread that they eat and the health of these people.

Here and now I want to explain that I am not 243 making decisions for anyone. I am trying to lay down 134 the facts as I found them. As stated above, in order to grow good wheat or even to grow wheat at all, the soil must contain all of its required nutrients. It is obvious, therefore, that the soil has the required nutrients and as all of the Hunzan soil is shallow, these nutrients must be regularly reincorporated into the soil.

I have already related that everything that is taken 243 from the soil is returned to the soil by the natives.
Consequently we know that nothing is lost. Hunza does [439] not export food. That I know, because there is barely 243 sufficient for their own needs. They often trade or [438] barter with the Nagirwals for short items.

Therefore, is the ordinary means of field husbandry as practiced by the people of Hunza the answer? It must be at least part of the story, but how big a part, I am unable to say.

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 37

Hunza Fat Factory

I SOMETIMES BELIEVE—in fact, it is a conviction of mine—that in America we waste or cast aside the most vital parts of many foods and we use as food the part that is of lower nutritive content.

In Hunza the kernels of the apricots are gathered and stored. Some of them are cracked and eaten out of hand. But the major portion is put away for future use and then turned into apricot oil.

Never, ever did I see one single apricot kernel wasted in Hunza. If you tasted the kernel of the apricot, you'd soon know why. It is every bit as delicious and fine flavored as the finest almond. In fact, the almond, peach and apricot are very closely related. I contend that the flavor of the apricot seed is every bit as good as that of the almond. The almond, however, gains its popularity and superiority because of its thinner shell, which means easier cracking.

251 It is clear that the Hunzans have long, long ago learned a secret that we in the Western world have only discovered recently . . . that the nut or kernel of a fruit or seed deteriorates rapidly and can be the cause of ill health if allowed to remain for any length of time outside its natural shell or covering and then consumed . . . for the Hunzans never crack the hard coat of the apricot stones until they want to use the kernels. From 000 my experience with seeds of varying kinds and types during the past 30 years—whether grain, vegetable, fruit, nut or other—I have learned that no living seed whatsoever should have its skin or shell broken or removed until it is actually going to be eaten, planted or put to some other use.

Within the walls of the seed or nut coat are contained some of nature's greatest miracle workers. Underneath that ingenious covering are found the required enzymes, the spark of life, that breaks dormancy and tells the seed when to start to grow . . . or that can hold that large, tiny or microscopic embryo in suspended animation for a few hours or a thousand years, until conditions amenable to the needs of that species are located. If and when the environmental factors are met, the seed coat immediately fulfills its function and growth begins.

Therefore, it is never advisable to remove the shell or the protective coat from any seed or grain—especially of those that are going to be eaten.

It has been recently disclosed by science that seeds whose outer coatings have been removed can be harmful if eaten by a human. In some instances, it is suspected that they can be of carcinogenic character. Is it not remarkable that these people, who have had little or no contact with what we know as civilization and learning, have for almost 2000 years known enough not to do things that we have learned about only recently?

I had never seen oil made or rendered from any fruit, 252 food or grain and I asked if I could be allowed to witness this process from the beginning. Arrangements were made and I went to visit a plain ordinary Hunzan house where the mistress was prepared and willing to demonstrate the making of apricot oil.

The lady and some of her children sat on the floor with a neat stack of apricot stones beside them. Then she and one of her youngsters took each individual stone and split it open with a rock. The meats were taken out and piled into a stone mortar. Then, when they had [412] filled the mortar, the lady got her pestle and began to pound the kernels until they were made into a meal. Next, she rubbed it with her hands until it was worked into a paste. This she placed into an iron skillet, which was placed over a three-sided stone stove. Then she broke up some small chips of wood that she had ready, ignited them and moved the pan about over the heat until it began to warm up. She kept rubbing and kneading the meal with her hands in the skillet until it got quite warm—but not hot, for she used her hands for turning it in the pan.

Then, she lifted up the mass and put it into a round, [415] solid, earthenware or stone receptacle about 12 inches in diameter, with the sides about two or two and a half inches high. She kneaded this with her fingers and knuckles firmly, much more firmly than one would in kneading dough for bread.

Then, a tablespoonful of water was poured over the meal and the massaging process was continued. It was explained to me that sometimes tea is used instead of water. If the pits are bitter pits from the wild fruit, plain water is used, but for sweet pits from the propagated apricots salt water is used.

The bitter pits are gathered from the trees that grow [222] [373]

252 wild in various parts of the area. The oil rendered from [222] these kernels is probably used only for lighting, because [373] it is poisonous. Due to their heavy content of prussic acid, a handful of them is considered deadly. In Ni-[762] agara, if somebody wants to commit suicide, he jumps over Niagara Falls; in Hunza, they eat a batch of wild apricot kernels.

The kneading process is continued and the vessel is kept tilted so the oil runs down and forms a small pool. As the oil begins to form, the kneading becomes even more vigorous until every drop of oil possible is extracted. While the rendering of the oil may be hard on the knuckles, nothing could be simpler and the resulting product is probably the most healthful and finest fat product that human hands can produce.

[231] The pulp that remains after the oil[1] is extracted is [302] fed to milk-giving goats, sheep or cows, and is often used as a concoction or shampoo in which the Hunzans wash their heads. The oil of course is used in cooking, baking, frying, for lighting—and even for the hair.

[461] The good woman who performed the oil extracting task for me did not seem to be the least bit overburdened or taxed from this sort of arduous work. It probably would have been a hard day's work for a Western woman.

I would like to stress at this point that the heating process was not a cooking process in any sense of the word. Just a slight warming was all that was needed.

251 The apricot oil is never rendered and stored in casks 252 or otherwise, like many other people do with their oils. They may make sufficient to last them a few days but not more. This is poured into an earthen vessel or a bottle, if available. When a further supply is required, the pits are cracked and they go through the entire process as outlined.

1 [ie - oil from apricot seeds - ANALYST]

7:Tobe C, T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

133
241
311

The largest area of land suitable for farming in Hunza—located near Baltit.

[facing p. 326-]
A

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

311
241
361
137

Human fields are small, and are worked with hand tools.

[p.326-B1]

7:Tobe C, T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

311
241
361
139

[p. 326-B2]

262
164
252

Whether or not apricot oil contains any special qualities I am unable to say. Perhaps someone will do some research on it in the near future and perhaps we will learn that apricot oil is another of the reasons why the Hunzans keep their health.

But for the moment, contrast the way the Hunzans get their oil and the way the people of the Western world get theirs. I know of no oil that is offered for general sale in America that is not treated or rendered by a harsh chemical solvent. Nor do I know of any oil sold or that is generally procurable on which a color extractor or bleach is not used. There is no reason why we cannot have apricot oil in the West, but if we did have it, I'm afraid any or most of its good, health-giving effects would be lost, if a solvent or a bleaching agent were employed.

Yes, I do know that there are vegetable oils offered on the market that have been prepared by the expeller method, but such oils are seldom seen, are quite expensive and only the keenly health-minded people who know what they want will pay the price and look for them.

Maybe sunflower seed oil, corn oil or olive oil are every bit as good as apricot oil, but the process—therein lies the secret of health or disease. The most satisfactory method of rendering oil from grains or nuts is the simple natural cold press process, after which it is filtered.

The accent during the past few years has been markedly towards the vegetable oils against animal oils. Researchers seem to have proven without any fear of contradiction, that the vegetable oils are much less harmful or actually beneficial to the human system, whereas the animal oils are suspected as being prime contributors in most cases to arteriosclerosis and ultimately, heart disease.

7:Tobe C.T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

526
291

Choosing sides for a polo match. Rakaposhi is in the background.

[Facing p. 327]

252 So now, almost every housewife is turning towards vegetable oils to prolong the life of her husband and give greater health to her family and herself. However, I suspect that the processing has rendered any benefits not only doubtful, but maybe has turned them into something that has a physically degenerative effect.

Again the people of Hunza seem to have won an easy victory over us in the matter of what oil to use by simply staying with nature, working with her and taking what she has to offer, rather than trying to beat her at her own game.

There is another aspect that I would like to point out at this time and that is that I believe, for the oil process, it would be better if stored stones or pits were used, rather than fresh ones. If fresh pits were used, there would be a much higher moisture content and therefore the oil would require much more working or kneading before it would be rendered.

I see no reason why apricot pits couldn't be stored for more than one year if kept in a comparatively cool, dry place. Thus, they would give their oil more readily, because only the water would be evaporated during the lapse of time.

A handful of apricot meats would be required to render about one ounce of oil.

CHAPTER 38

Crop Rotation--Harvesting

WHENEVER I TALKED to a farmer—and, of course, practically all people in Hunza are farmers—I asked what crops they grew and then asked how many years they had been growing wheat or potatoes or barley on a specific field. In every case the answer came back that some other crop different from the present one was raised there last year. I tracked this down carefully because I wanted to clearly establish whether or not they followed the rotating program in raising their food crops.

Even before setting foot in Hunza, I was certain that they could never have remained alive and in good health under such difficult conditions and with the limited available land, unless a rigid scheme of crop rotation was followed. Yet from what I actually saw on the scene, I reached the conclusion that this was easier said than done. It's all right to rotate crops where you have 242 lots of land and where, if necessary, you can allow some of it to lie fallow. But here they needed every bit of land they could get. It was actually a matter of life and death.

In a country where land is as scarce as it is in Hunza, there would be a very strong temptation against allowing land to lie fallow. I assure you that this technique is positively practiced. Then, too, there is a strong temptation to use a few pats of cow or yak dung for fuel during the cold winter nights. Yet, in most of Hunza, common sense and wisdom prevail and the excrement is used where it belongs—on the land.

I can see no hope that the land situation in Hunza will improve, but the very fact that it has continued to exist and flourish for over 1,000 years is ample proof that their way of life, their methods and means of agriculture, are right. It is only by practicing rigid, persevering methods of control and natural methods of agriculture that they have been able to survive.

With land so scarce one might be tempted to get away from crop rotation. But the people of Hunza are too wise to succumb to that type of thinking. They know that if crop rotation were not practiced rigorously, disease, sickness and death would soon follow. They know that no people anywhere in the world are "healthier than their soil."

History relates and offers proof of many civilizations who failed to follow the practices and principles of sound agriculture and to return to the land that which belonged to and came from the land. This practice invariably led to ruin and extermination. This selfsame horticultural technique is being practiced in many countries throughout the world today and the results will be the same—disastrous—as only time will prove.

No matter where I walked or went or rode in either

Hunza or Nagir, not once did I see a bit of organic material of any kind wasted or destroyed. The people made regular foraging trips to different parts of the country and always brought back for their land any grass or other organic material that was found and could be brought home. 242

They would walk many miles in search of grass or green growth of any kind. Regularly I saw men, women and boys carrying huge packs on their backs. It was a mass of green packed into a cloth and carried to their farm to be fed to the animals or distributed over the small fields. [452] [231]

Up until the present time chemical fertilizers have not invaded Hunza. Whether there is any connection between the splendid health of the Hunzans and the fact that they have never used commercial fertilizers, I am unable to state. But it is worth considering!

Remember, there are no forests, peat bogs or other sources of organic material like we have in most parts of Europe and America. Every bit of organic material that the Hunzan farmer uses or procures is got at the expense of hard work or difficult travel. So it is easy to see why they can afford to waste not one iota of this life-sustaining substance.

If you have ever traveled to Switzerland, you would probably be struck or amazed by the neat piles of manure that are built in front of most farm residences and there a man's prestige and intrinsic value are estimated by the size of his manure pile. Don't laugh—I'm not joking! I'm dead serious and I swear this is absolutely true! Wise, oh, very wise, are the Swiss!

In Hunza, unfortunately, manure piles are seldom if ever encountered because the manure is placed on their fields as soon as it is ready. I looked into countless animal stables but never once did I see a manure pile . . .

242 either there or anywhere else. Obviously it is placed directly on the fields or at least at definite short intervals.

Here the Hunzan system again showed some notable difference from the method practiced in the West. Practically all farmers in the West allow their manure to accumulate in piles or actually stack it in that manner. It is usually left there from one season to another at least and often longer. I've heard them refer to the older manure piles as well cured ones. I've always bemoaned this fact—yes, back as much as 20 years ago—because with every rain and with the snows in the winter, potent, rich, nutrient-ladened juices flowed off into the streams from my land and other lands. No one can deny that a fair part of the value of the manure is leached away forever.

In Hunza it is spread regularly on the land, between crops in the spring and summer. I distinctly saw many farms on which the manure had been distributed being plowed in. This is never done, to my knowledge, in the West. Therefore the Hunzan farmer does not lose any of his valuable, natural manures by leaching.

242 514 Because there is such a scarcity of organic materials, it is obvious that excrement must be used to the fullest extent. I looked, I gazed, I searched, I peered but nowhere did I see a sign of any human excrement being accumulated, saved or being used on the Hunzan farms. This mystified me.

In practically all parts of India and in some parts of Pakistan and perhaps in other Eastern countries, it is customary for the citizenry to stoop at the curb, right out in the middle of the street or sometimes beside a bush or planting of shrubs, and right there and then evacuate water or feces. No, this is not an exaggeration or a fairy tale, but the simple, unadulterated truth that is seldom told.

That people avoid discussing this unpleasant topic is understandable; yet, by doing so, you and others who have no opportunity of visiting these areas are often given an incorrect picture. Whereas, in Pakistan and India, this unpleasant business took place practically everywhere, it was with a genuine feeling of relief and thankfulness that I found in Hunza it is positively never practiced—at least, I never saw even a sign of any such thing taking place—but evidently human excrement is used there. It is buried and eventually finds its way to the fields. 242 514

It took quite a search to track down the ways and means and methods of using this night-soil. I know that it is used extensively in the East and for that matter, it is also used in Mexico and perhaps in other parts of the Western world. There is no reason why it shouldn't be used if proper methods of curing or mellowing are followed. After all is said and done, our septic tanks are only putting a natural principle to work, but the shame of it is that in most cases it is entirely wasted.

The most common method of using night-soil in Hunza was to place it in a deeply (as deep as the rocky terrain of Hunza would allow) dug pit, which was carefully kept covered, and eventually, a year or two later, it was distributed over the fields.

Harvesting a crop of grain in Hunza is very much unlike our Western methods. They do not cut their grain but each wheat plant, or other grain, is pulled out individually, root and all, by hand. Then it is laid in neat bundles on the ground. When the harvesting or grain pulling process is complete, the roots are separated from the stalks by being cut or chopped off in bundles. 243

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 39

Oh, Happy, Happy Day!

WHAT CONSTITUTES a Hunzan's day?

If anyone were to ask you to describe a normal, ordinary, usual American's day, you might be harder pressed than you think if you tried to outline it clearly and distinctly. And the reasons are manifold. Seldom, if ever, are two days identical.

For example, a city man may assume that the farmer's day is all cut and dried and fixed and that he follows a regular routine from the moment he arises until he goes to bed that night. If you were to ask a farmer about a city man's day, he would just casually assume that a definite pattern were followed from the time he arose, shaved, brushed his teeth, had his breakfast and caught the trolley or took the car to his business . . . then a period off for lunch and perhaps a coffee break . . . then he'd put in some more time till 5 o'clock came round and then back home he'd go again . . . have his evening meal, watch TV and then to bed. 500

While this may all sound very good and very logical and fit into what we believe is a pattern, the average day is really unlike what I have described here for either the city dweller or the farmer. The truth of the matter is that, as I said at the start, no two days are entirely alike.

The day of the week plays an important role. The weather contributes its variation. Then we all know full well that not even a minute is predictable. So how could anyone expect to give a clear-cut résumé of what any person's day consists?

That is somewhat the way I felt when I set out to outline what a day would be like as lived by the average citizen of Hunza. The only thing that I can hope to set out is a pattern. It may have a few or even hundreds of variations but at least the general pattern will be clear. So here is what I believe to be the procedure of one day—an ordinary day—in the life of a Hunzan. 512

The people of Hunza are Mohammedans of the Ismaili sect. They are in no way fanatical. In fact, the Ismaili are probably the least religious of all Mohammedans. The call to prayer is at 3:30 in the morning. Only the more pious and devout attend the service at the mosque. 512 788 [771]

A good true religious Mohammedan prays 5 times a day and on each occasion the prayer will last up to one hour, but through my entire travels through both Nagir and Hunza I saw very few instances where they took time off to pray during the day except on religious holidays or festivals. But, as I mentioned, prayer starts at 3:30 A.M. and I didn't have occasion to see them in action. Those who are devout usually pray from 3:30 to 4:30 and then go have their breakfast and so to the fields.

512 The breakfast, most meager by our standards, con-262 sists of a bowl of fresh or boiled apricots with chapatties.
264 This is sufficient to keep the family working in the fields or doing other household and farm chores until 10 o'clock.

Then lunch is served and it is made up of fresh or boiled vegetables, dried apricots and chapatties. The men get two chapatties for this meal, whereas the women and children are restricted to one chapatty. Then off again to their duties—invariably on the land.

The midday meal is usually taken between 1 and 2 o'clock and in the summer this would mean, during the hottest part of the day. For this meal dried apricots, rubbed with the hands in water to form a soup, constitute the main course. A bowl or cupful of this gruel is drunk. This is the procedure during the months when fresh apricots from the trees are not available. During the period from late spring until autumn, fresh apricots are always available and these are used instead of the dried ones.

The dinner hour usually reigns from 5 to 7 o'clock. For this meal more food than for the other meals is used and consumed. Vegetables, either or both boiled and raw, are eaten along with any one of the fruits like plums, peaches, pears, apples or apricots—then always chapatties.

If I haven't made it clear before, chapatties are the bread that is used almost exclusively throughout Pakistan and India. These are flat unleavened sheets of bread made from whole wheat—stone ground. They are the Indian "staff of life."

252 Cooking and preparation of meals as we know it in 262 the average home in America is definitely not part of the Hunzan way of life. Whereas in our way of life most foods are prepared by boiling, frying, baking, roasting or broiling, in Hunza most of the foods are eaten raw or lightly cooked. 252 262

To me, at least, the reason was plain and clear . . . they have little or no fuel. Coal is unknown, wood extremely hard to get . . . they have to go a long way to find a bit of forest or woodland. I saw practically none in the Hunza area. In another area I visited—Punial—one could see a few trees and copses that represented their woodlands. But timber suitable for firewood was not within reach of the people of Hunza. The bit of wood they did get would most likely come from an apricot or other fruit tree that had outlived its usefulness. 372 313

One of the most important reasons that apricots have become such an important part in the Hunzan diet is the fact that, by having found or created early, mid-season and late varieties, the Hunzan season for apricots extends two full months. This is a most vital consideration and is well worth remembering. 245 262

The staple oil or fat of the people is apricot oil. Ghee is used regularly, but butter can only be afforded and used on special occasions. 262

During the entire summer seldom, if ever, is meat served or seen on an average Hunzan's table, but during the three hard winter months (December, January and February) meat or chicken is sometimes used, if available (which is seldom). Even then, it is used only by the more prosperous or wealthy people. The poorer people can't afford to kill their cattle and use them for beef except on special occasions or religious holidays. [556] [231]

When I say the poorer people, I should qualify this statement, for there are no class distinctions whatsoever in Hunza. However, there are those families who own but one acre of land and there are those who own 10 acres. Therefore it is to be expected that there would be a difference in their living standards. 565 423 556

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7

262 A farmer who owned and worked 10 acres of work-556 able land might be able to afford to slaughter a sheep, 231 a goat or a bullock once a year. Yet this luxury could not be dreamed of by the farmer with but one acre.

273 Also, while winter lasts, a glass of wine made from 245 Hunzan grapes is enjoyed occasionally . . . but chiefly by the male head of the household.

415 Knives, forks and spoons as are used in the West are [912] not seen in the average Hunzan home and even earthenware plates are rare. But cups and earthenware bowls are to be found in most homes. Wooden bowls fashioned out of walnut by the wood-turner of the village are also used in many homes.

352 The rooms are quite bare in most homes. Furniture is a luxury and a rarity. In the homes there are found usually a chest, a chair or a couch and a table. Shelves to hold dishes are seen in most every home. Occasionally, a dresser or cabinet can be found. The floor in an average Hunzan home is an earthen one with a large 354 square hole in the center for the fire. Then, of course, there is a large square hole in the roof to allow the smoke to leave and to allow light to enter, for there are no glass windows. This is fully open in the summer but during the colder winter days the hole is kept 164 partly or almost closed. This is the chief contributor to the eye troubles which affect many people in Hunza, as mentioned elsewhere in this book.

439 At one time little or no money ever entered Hunza 437 and the meager trade that they did do with passing caravans was by means of barter. The caravans coming through from China would bring cooking utensils, cloth, silk, tea and other commodities. For these, the people of Hunza would trade some of their crops or would work as coolies, porters or bearers.

000 During the past few years a bit of money has come

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7

During the past few years a bit of money has come 436 into Hunza. At the time I was there, there were four 177 expeditions doing mountain and glacier climbing—as 464 well as investigations and research, not in Hunza, but in the vicinity. There were groups from Great Britain, Italy, Switzerland and Germany. In each and every case these expeditions would require bearers, guides, horses and pack animals. These would be recruited from among the Nagirwals and Hunzans and they would be paid in Pakistan rupees. I wish to emphasize that this has only taken place during the past few years. Prior to this period expeditions in this area were extremely rare.

While today money does make its appearance, it is 436 still comparatively scarce. The Mir believes that the 177 coming of money, modernization, and civilization as 643 we know it will only harm his people and he seeks to prevent this, if possible. It is my sincere and humble conviction that the Mir is honest and thinking of his people in his endeavors.

"There is no doubt that the people of Hunza know 461 and enjoy the true thrill of leisure." When I mentioned this to my staff, I was quickly brought to bay by one of my more astute employees who said, "How can that be when they are occupied from dawn till dusk?"

I was caught off balance and I had to reflect a moment and when I reflected, the picture was clear to me. Would a man who has never worked understand what is meant by a holiday? Would the average individual who spends his working days sitting at a desk checking figures, making phone calls and chatting with visitors, understand what leisure is? I contend that in order to know the true joy of leisure one must work and the harder one works, the greater is the enjoyment found in utter relaxation.

Can a man know leisure when after his day's work is done and he turns on his television set, he is bombarded with commercials that seek to hypnotize his brain by making him believe he needs those products, when in reality he needs them like a hole in the head? Can a man know the meaning of true leisure when his head is throbbing with the bills he must meet on the morrow, the food he must buy and the clothing he must procure for his family, for which in many cases ready money is not available? Can a man who is harassed by and has pressing about him a hundred problems that must be reckoned with, find leisure or peace by escaping to the country for a weekend or by taking to drink?

Of course not! True relaxation and leisure are as far away from him as the moon!

Therefore, when I say that the people of Hunza know and enjoy the true thrill of leisure, I mean every word of it sincerely. While they rise at 3.30 or 4 o'clock in the morning, they go to bed between 7 and 8, and in the winter time even earlier, if there is no celebration or dancing in the village. They are without doubt the most industrious people that I have met—especially in the East. Laziness is positively foreign to Hunza!

Wherever I went I noticed that the Hunzans had ample time to talk and chat, and seldom did they appear to be in a hurry although whenever they walked, their walk was brisk—much more so than the average Western gait. In fact, this is one of their most recognizable and admired traits.

Lest anyone should get the impression that life in Hunza is dull, let me clearly emphasize that there is great fellowship between families and the selfsame group-gathering that we know of in our way of life is also practiced and followed by the people of Hunza. Further, religious gatherings are quite frequent and play an important role in the social life of the people.

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 40

Amusements

MUSIC IN HUNZA has been cultivated to a greater 533 degree than many or most other arts and crafts. It is entirely different from the European or Western style of music. Authorities claim that the music of Hunza can be likened to that of the medieval European music.

It is interesting to note that a people so remotely placed away in a small aerie in the mountains, are so fond of music and they have their own types and kinds of instruments which are played by masters at the art.

In Hunza music is not purely for entertainment It is the essential ritual at all social functions and when the Mir returns from his visits to Altit and other parts of the country, he is greeted by the band playing music specifically prepared and used for such gala functions. Of course at the beginning of every polo match the [526] band plays and plays and plays and continues playing till the end of the match. At every festival music is an 533 important part of the proceedings.

533 They have their big feast day just before harvest 535 time and it takes place in the month of Ramadan. At 527 this festival, the musicians set things in motion by starting very early in the morning, and the entire band joins in the sound and the fury. This is followed by dancing and they dance continually, though the same tune is being played over and over and over again in utter monotony. The musicians sit on the floor and make music without pausing, while the dancing goes on in the same way. There are no intermissions or stops.

[643] At this feast the Mir sits on a raised platform in full [292] regalia. He wears a hat made of Persian lamb, the type of hat you've seen policemen wear in the cold climates in the wintertime.

562 The men invariably dance with their faces turned [535] towards the Mir. No, the women do not dance, strange to relate. They are merely onlookers. They take no part in any of the social functions or in sport or entertainment. Such Hunzan activities are marked by the distinct absence of women. The Mohammedan religion does not allow women to take part in the social life of the community. This, as far as I can ascertain, has no counterpart in any other religion on earth.

Further, women have no rights or privileges.

After learning of these restrictions by the Mohammedan faith, I felt that there would be no mass migration on the part of the women of the West to Hunza.

535 The harvest dance is very similar to what might be 292 termed a victory dance or a great celebration. The most colorful and interesting dances are the sword dances. The men wear gaily colored costumes that are really very attractive. Their costumes are densely figured and brocaded and the heavy Chinese silks are used as the material. The swords and shields are handmade.

The dancers follow the music and keep time with it. 535
The onlookers, in many cases, keep rhythm with their feet. The dancing and music go on until most of the spectators and the participants eventually leave.

One of their most useful instruments is known as a 534 sitar. It is a wooden stringed instrument very much like our mandolin. Then there is the rebab. It is a much larger stringed instrument and is evidently identical with the Indian's rebab. Then they have their wind instruments, too. The first is the surnai. It is a big clarinet with an unusual, remarkable intensity of sound. Another unusual instrument is the tutek which is but a simple small wooden flute. The third type of wind instrument is the gabi which is a very long transverse flute. Its special use is in plays or music that includes fairies and is used chiefly for the fairies' incantation. Its music is exceedingly sweet sounding and very high pitched. And last but not least are the many kinds of drums. They come in all sizes from tiny ones that can be worn around the neck by a young boy to the big bass boom-boom.

Like all oriental forms of music, the Hunzan band 533 seems to capture the true style so well known to the East . . . pleasing, high pitched sounds but with very little variation. After a little while all of the sounds seem the same and appear to be one repetition after another—most monotonous!

During the summer there is not much social life in 517 the evenings because the people are tired. They work hard all day. But in the winter there is regular dancing and meetings with friends.

I would gather that the people of Hunza don't need 526 sports too badly because life and living in Hunza compels the individual to be active. Thus, he doesn't have to indulge in sports to get exercise.

526 I do know, however, that tennis is played in Hunza 481 because the Mir has a tennis court in an area around the garden. I also know that swimming is practiced because I saw a swimming pool at the Mir's summer home at Altit.

It was July when I was in Hunza and not one single person did I see swimming in either the Gilgit or Hunza Rivers or, for that matter, in any of the nullahs or creeks we passed.

I will admit that we had our feet soaked in most of them—some deliberately when resting and others in crossing, chiefly on foot because I didn't trust my horse. He has four slender legs with any of which he can get into trouble. I have only two to watch and worry over and they are sturdy and stocky, of the "Pict" type.

133 It would take a mighty good man or boy to swim in 526 the nullahs in Hunza or the surrounding area: first, because the icy waters of the rivers or nullahs would freeze you to death in no time flat. The water, winter and summer, never gets much higher than the freezing point and I doubt if any human being or even these human polar bears could stand water like that. Besides, there are no clear calm patches that are without a devastating current.

From scrutinizing the area, I doubt very much if there are very many places along the entire reaches of the Hunza River that can be forded, even with mighty good animals, capable of swimming, at least during the spring and summer. I know of one well prepared expedition that tried to cross one of these rivers and came to grief.

526 Polo is the national game or sport of Hunza and of practically all the principalities in that area . . . and, brother, it is a wild and woolly game as played by these

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

hardy, mountaineering people. 526

Some authorities would have us believe that polo as a game had its origin in Tibet, which you can readily see is only a short hop from Hunza. Actually it is right on the border of what was properly old Tibet, but which the Chinese prefer to call Sinkiang. It is also known as Chinese Turkestan. 526 177

The word polo is actually a Tibetan word describing or meaning "root of the willow tree," for it was from the dried stumps of the willow tree that polo balls were originally made. The willow wood, from my intimate knowledge of the tree and the wood, would give quite a bit of bounce if made into a ball and that is exactly what was required.

From the best sources that I am able to dig into and locate, it seems that the modern game of polo as we know it throughout the West, originated in Persia. From there it found its way into Turkey and then it was adopted in India, Tibet, China and Japan. In 1869 the British saw it played in the Turkestan-Hunza regions and began to play it in India, where it became the favorite sport of the British army officers. That was well over 100 years ago. In 1869 it was also introduced into England where it caught on very quickly. Then it made its entrance into the United States in 1876.

Here is a strange fact. While many of the characteristics of the game have changed, the selfsame old willow ball is still used and one of the men still gallops down the center of the polo field and strikes the ball off into play. In the Western world it is the umpire who does this. In Hunza, it's still the Mir or some other distinguished personality. [643]

If any of you have had the opportunity of seeing a polo game in action—that is, Western polo—you might even then get the impression that it is a rough, some-

526 what dangerous game. But if you saw the selfsame 177 sport played without an umpire, and only a score keeper, in Hunza, you'd probably think it the most bloodthirsty game in creation. And who am I to say it is or isn't!

Of course, the British changed the rules and regulations somewhat along the line of the Marquis of Queensbury, and a good thing, too, for our men aren't quite as tough as the Hunzans.

526 Practically every village in Hunza has a polo team 628 and matches are being arranged continually . . . and the day of a match is really a red letter day for that village. The villagers may not have too much room for orchards and other farming, but they do have polo [311] fields. Invariably the best and flattest piece of land in the area is used as a polo field. So you see, sport, for [367] sport's sake, ranks high among the Hunzans and the Nagirwals as well.

526 The polo field at Baltit sits just below the old castle 367 on the precipice and rather close to the school and the mosque . . . a sort of towering civic square, if it might be called that. A well-maintained low stone wall sur-[417] rounds the polo field.

While putting in my attendance at the polo field this day, I recalled that a few days previous I had followed a trail that led down from a cleft in this polo field to visit some of the Hunzan farms.

Above the raised wall, in places, are chairs and seating spaces for the spectators.

526 Everybody goes to the polo matches. And why not?
[562] To these affairs even the women go. And even though [291] their clothes be drab their red, skillfully embroidered Hunzan hats make the spectacle glow with splendor and color.

[533] The Hunzan band is there to do the honors and they play from the time the game starts until it finishes. 526

I don't know who would be more tired . . . the musi- [533] cians, the polo players or the excited, active, shouting spectators.

I paced off the field and counted 90 good paces [367] long and 40 wide. This would make it approximately 270 x 120 feet. This is quite a bit smaller in size than the modern polo field which is 300 x 200 feet, and would tend to make the Hunzan sport more hazardous and nerve-racking.

Instead of goal posts they use two large white stones at either end.

The game was started into action by the Mir, in [643] this case, who started off at the further end at a gallop. As he reached the center, he threw the ball high into the air and as it came down he clobbered it and the game—or the mad scramble—was on!

There are 6 players on each team and as the ball is pummeled from one place to another, the screams of the spectators and the players are more frenzied than those heard at a baseball game.

There are no rules—except that the team who scores 9 goals first is the winner, and the game doesn't stop until one of the teams has scored 9 goals. They don't have rest periods; they don't change horses or men; there are no penalties and no fouls. So you can just imagine the carryings-on.

If the ball is struck or bounces off the wall and is caught by one of the players, this permits him to ride through the goal posts and deposit the ball and score a goal . . . if the opposition will let him! Any means can be and usually are undertaken to prevent him from reaching the goal to which he is entitled to proceed. If they're bold enough and strong enough, they can even pull him from his mount.

526 They seldom ever score 9 goals in less than an hour and many times a game will last half a day. And [533] through all this gleeful yelling and shouting—everybody seems to scream like mad—the band is playing its martial tunes.

When a player scores a goal, he proceeds to pick up the ball and follow the same procedure as the Mir did when he started the action. He races madly down the field, screaming and yelling at the top of his lungs. With the scoring of every goal they change ends; that is, what was the first team's goal now becomes their opponent's goal.

[164] From Gilgit to Altit, whenever I saw someone who had a broken nose or some other definite sign of body injury, I would know even before inquiring, that it was gained in honor on the polo field.

[535] When at last one of the teams scored 9 goals and the game was finished, both teams took part in a dance. The winning team dances first and when they have completed their dance, the losing team do their stint. How they could have the strength and energy required to dance, after hours of unrelenting top-pitch physical activity is more than any Westerner can understand.

The horsemanship displayed at the polo matches beggars that seen at western rodeos. In fact, a Hunzan polo game makes the wildest of rodeos seem almost tame. When it comes to horsemanship, you'd have to go a long way to get anyone to beat these tough, hardy mountaineers.

[164] So furious was the game that I inquired if anyone was ever killed playing polo. The Mir replied that he had never heard of any fatalities from a polo game, but that on many occasions a player was incapacitated. I [743] felt that it would be a good idea if they could build their polo fields close to the hospital at Aliabad!

In discussing the Hunzan game of polo with some 526 friends, when they heard me mention the fact that the 311 best and largest piece of flat land was used for a polo field, they said, "Now, John, this is very contradictory. You claim they are intelligent people and every bit of arable land is needed and used for cultivation and now you tell me that the best piece of land and the largest level space is used for a polo field!"

My reply was, "What I've told you is absolutely true, but sometimes there are considerations involved which neither you nor I nor others in the Western world understand. For example, could we ever explain to the 000 people of Hunza why we rush, swish, hurry and risk our necks driving down the highways, actually risking life and limb—not only our own, but countless others—only to get to our destination . . . and there do nothing!

"Or there is another example that may be even better. A man in America strives all his life to achieve the means of acquiring a home with all modern conveniences and comforts, including every electrically operated appliance or gadget devised to save time and effort. Then when this victory is achieved, he tries to get enough money to buy a summer cottage way up north. There he parks his family for the summer. Then over every weekend he drives hundreds of miles to get there and when he gets there what has he got? Outdoor plumbing, no hot water, no garbage disposal, no electricity—using a lamp or even a candle for light and carrying every bucket of water in from the lake or the creek. You just try to explain that to a Hunzan. There is no more rhyme and reason in one than there is in the other. But who am I to judge?"

It is a positive fact that the men in Hunza do beat 593 their wives. I checked and double checked on this 683 rather important question. The Mir told me he knew 593 of only one case where a man excessively and unjustly 683 administered thrashings on his spouse. In all other instances the men are not punished or sent to prison for it. If a wife doesn't do as her husband commands, he beats her. If she were too generous in giving away her husband's property to her parents, he would also beat 837 her. If she is unfaithful to him and he catches her, he has a right to kill both her and her seducer.

This seems to have an excellent effect in maintaining a high standard of loyalty. I am not sure as to how 000 the people of the West will regard the people of Hunza for the light I have shed here, but whatever your judgment and opinion, I have laid the facts before you.

?:Tobe C.,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 41

Cleanliness

ON VARIOUS OCCASIONS I have read and heard reports that the Hunzan homes are scrupulously clean. To that I will not subscribe. I just can't go along with any such assertion. 356 114

I peeked into, looked over at and viewed hundreds of the homes in Nagir on the trek and I also had a chance to see into many of the homes in Hunza and there isn't any question about it—the Hunzan homes are cleaner, tidier and have fewer odors (or none at all) than the others of this same area. But to say that they are scrupulously clean or that you could eat off the floor is, to my mode of thought, a gross exaggeration.

Obviously, the places the other writers saw were very clean and tidy. But, to me anyway, it is clear that the owners were notified in advance that they would have visitors.

Being curious and nosy by habit and turn of mind, I 356 123 managed to peer into a few of the places and noticed that they weren't as spic and span as some people say they are. In fact, we were taken through one home on a tour. We visited their downstairs apartment and then climbed the ladder to visit the upstairs one. I will admit and am in complete agreement with the other writers, that the place was scrupulously clean, swept and neat.

But—and this is important, so follow me—I had stuck my head and eyes into that selfsame home the day before, probably unknown to my guide, and had seen the condition that this same house was in then. While it was not filthy, nor could I even say dirty, it certainly was not in the same immaculate condition that it was in now, since this time the people were advised that we were coming.

So let it be said and accepted that the Hunzans are much cleaner than the Nagirwals and are generally, by and large, a clean, wholesome people, both in body and in home.

I have long ago accepted the clear-cut situation that hygiene and cleanliness are strictly matters of habit, custom and necessity and these factors vary from country to country. For example, the standard of cleanliness in Switzerland is quite different to that of neighboring France. And in Italy, especially in the southern part, it bears no resemblance to that practiced in either France or Switzerland. Then in England the standard changes again and when you get to America, well, there again it is so different that one would believe it was a different world.

Undoubtedly, the people of Hunza in their hygienic habits are far above those of India or Pakistan. I am here referring to the mass level, of course. Then, too, the Hunzan habits were far better than those in Italy.

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

The house of the average Hunzan farmer was not quite as good as the average European house. In my opinion, Hunzan cleanliness is as good as is desirable when all matters are considered. 356

Cleanliness as we know it in the West is neither desirable nor is it a necessity in a country like Hunza. To begin with, they have more important duties to perform than doing a lot of unnecessary housekeeping. Usually in the West, the man earns the wherewithal to sustain the home and the woman looks after the cooking, housekeeping and the rearing of the children. In Hunza the father, the mother and the children, as soon as they are old enough to know what to do, take part in the work. You see, it is practically a full time job for the entire family during the spring and summer to procure sufficient food to last throughout the year. 356 462

Therefore it is neither desirable nor necessary for a Hunzan wife to have a lot of furniture and other things that would require work and attention in her home.

If you are trying to compare the cleanliness of the average American city or town person's home with that of the Hunzan homes, then you are miles and miles away from reality, because very, very few people of the world—especially those in the more or less underprivileged countries or in remote districts—live in homes that are in any way comparable to the average city home in America. 356

In the locality where I live, the Niagara District, the choicest locations along the lake front are selected for subdivision sites and beautiful spacious homes with fine grounds are created. That may be all well and good in America, where rich arable land is readily available, but in Hunza, remember, every bit of land that they own and use for growing their life-giving crops has to be torn from the rocks of the mountain- 361

361 sides. Few, if any, Hunza homes are ever built where the land can be tilled. Usually the site that is selected for a home is part of a rocky promontory or some other location where the land could not be used for crops. They just can't afford to use a piece of tillable soil for a homesite.

342 The houses or homes are usually built of stones or rocks. No cement or any other binding compound is used. Yet the homes seem sturdy enough to stand most anything. I also saw some that were built of clay.

342 231 The lower floor of the Hunzan house is usually divided into two sections. One section has either no roof over it or just a part roof or covering and there is an opening in the wall, but no door. This is where the animals are kept. The Hunzan pasture and forage supply doesn't allow for the larger beasts. The cattle of Hunza are the diminutive kind, bred and selected for their dwarfishness, so that they will require less feeding, but still yield an abundant udderful of rich milk. This applies to goats, sheep and cows. The partial covering over the courtyard is so that the animals will have some form of protection overhead.

342 Then beside this is the house proper, probably half again as large . . . maybe 12 or 14 feet square.

The Hunzan farmer steps from his home into the stable, so to speak. This, of course, would horrify the people of America but it is not to be regarded as a sort of calamity, as utter degradation, or as a matter of filth and ill health, because this system is practiced in most other parts of the world even at the present time.

231 775 The Hunzans, being Mohammedans, do not raise pigs. Therefore they don't have the conditions that pigs would create.

356 I'm sure that I visited many of these courtyards and

I don't think I was struck by any unpleasant or bad odors. No doubt you would assume that being a farmer, the excrement of animals wouldn't offend me and in saying that you'd be very, very right, but even with a city man's view, I don't think you would have found the Hunzan barnyards smelly or dirty. 356

The roof of the living quarters is just high enough so that a tall man can stand up in it without bumping his head. The Hunzan roofs usually have heavy timbers strung across—at least 3 inches thick and placed about 12 inches apart. They have to be that thick and heavy because on top of this is laid earth. Practically every home has an earthen roof. The floor, too, is of hard earth that has been pounded through years of use, until it is a good sound firm floor that can be readily swept and kept clean. 342

Apart from the Mir's palace, every other home that I visited in Hunza and in Nagir had earthen floors. Now naturally one wouldn't expect an earthen floor to be spic and span or shine and glisten the way a good hardwood floor can be made to shine and glisten. These earthen or clay floors can be made smooth and even be polished, and it is actually done.

Often the room is divided off to allow for a storage room, where the dried apricot stones and other fruits and vegetables are kept for winter use. [251]

In the center of the room a hole is dug and often stones are laid at the bottom. Here the fire is laid and this is how they keep warm during the winter and where they do their cooking. Above is a hole about 18 inches square to allow the smoke to escape. The people sleep on the floor within warming distance of the fire. Beds in the average Hunzan homes are unknown, but they have bed rolls or other cloth contraptions to make the floor softer. Some of the wealthier or well-to-do [354] 513 352 352 352 Hunzans have charpoys. Most homes have a chest, or two or three or more, in which they store and keep their belongings. The chests are used to sit on and perhaps eat off. The Hunzan home we visited had a table also.

513 286 Every Hunzan home has blankets for covering during the winter and these blankets are made of homespun wool which is carded, loomed and woven by the villagers. They are equal in weight and warmth to the best blankets that are made in the West. There is no danger of the blankets not being 100 per cent wool, because wool they can get from the sheep or yak's backs.

342 Practically every Hunzan home has an upstairs, too, and this is where the family lives during the summer. It is related that each spring on the 21st of March the family moves upstairs. When there are 4 or 5 members in the family the upstairs is usually divided into two sections or rooms, leaving an open balcony in the center.

342 512 The usual Hunzan home is a place to shelter the family against storms, rain, cold and snow. It is not used nearly as much for social intercourse as it is in the West. Therefore, they don't spend as much of their time in the homes. Practically all daylight hours during spring, summer and fall are spent in the fields.

164 Some authorities attribute the good health of the Hunzans to the fact that most of their time is spent out in the open air and sunlight. Could it be that we in the West spend too much of our time inside our comfortable homes and not sufficient outside in the glorious outdoors? This is something worthy of thought and study.

Considering the heights, the ledges, the precipices and steep inclines that are found throughout this country, it is remarkable that there are few cases of injury like broken or fractured limbs, serious accidents due to falling and such. But you must remember that from infancy, children are trained and learn how to stay aloft. Heights offer no terror for any Hunzan— 164 man, woman or child. I think if a Hunzan suffered injury because of a fall from a height, he would be ashamed and embarrassed, but let me admit that they do have falls and broken limbs, too. I found this out [752] when I met Hunzans who were expert bone-setters.

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

I have to admit that generally speaking the Hunzans' 291 clothes are nondescript. However, I was strongly attracted to the Hunza hat which is best described as a rolled, sausage brimmed, soft white woolen covering. But it is really and truly an ingenious contraption. It is made of native homespun wool, white or creamy in color and mighty good wool, it is, in my opinion.

These hats are worn summer and winter by the boys and men. I tried them and found that they did keep out the summer heat. Wherever I met the boys and men of Hunza they always wore these hats. In the winter they can be rolled down to cover not only their ears but their faces and necks as well. I attest that it is a valuable and completely satisfactory headpiece. I thought they were quite attractive and enhanced the handsomest of the Hunzan men.

They have the choga which is a long flowing cloak worn by both men and women during the winter. This cloak is made of the same grey homespun wool and is never dyed but its creamy color is attractive and pleasing to the eye. Evidently this choga is quite [173] similar to the toga worn by the ancient Romans. Who knows? Maybe some of Alexander's men or Alexander himself brought a toga with him from his homeland when he came to the East.

Apart from the attractive, useful, comfortable, Hunzan sausage-brimmed hat and choga, the best I can say for the rest of the clothes worn by the people of Hunza is that they are utilitarian.

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 42

Government

212 I DON'T KNOW whether to describe the mode of gov-671 ernment of Hunza as being complex or simple. The [197] language of the people of Hunza is Burushaski and this language is totally unwritten. Therefore, they have no written code of laws.

114 The first dictionary of the Burushaski language was written by Colonel David Lorimer in 1935 and at the present time Doctor Hermann Berger, a German language professor, a specialist in Sanskrit, is seeking to write another and perhaps a more thorough and complete dictionary of that language.

I recall in Chalt, while I was enjoying the company of Professor Berger, he showed me a set of books that was published in Norway in 1935. They were Colonel David Lorimer's dictionary of the Burushaski language.

In my estimation Dr. Berger's work should be a masterpiece, because never in my life have I seen any human being take to a task so assiduously and with so 114 much profound love and feeling. I don't know when it's going to be published or by whom, but I'll certainly make sure to get a set or a copy of the volumes, even if they are printed in German.

The word "Burushaski" is pronounced almost as it 104 is written, except there is a "u" sound in the last 197 syllable rather than an "a" sound. My reaction was to spell the word "uski" and all through the writing of my manuscript that was the way I spelled it, but as I found every other source, with one exception besides myself, spelled it "aski" I had to admit defeat and also use that spelling. The spelling of "uski" was used by the Mir and his grandfather in his book. I still think it sounds like "uski" rather than "aski". Dr. Berger agreed with me that it did sound like "uski" but he felt that for the sake of uniformity, it would be better if I, too, used the "aski".

Nevertheless, though their code of laws remains un- 671 written, justice does not seem to suffer. The people of Hunza are well acquainted with the laws in vogue. I believe it was Napoleon who said that a nation that has many laws has a lawless people. Perhaps because the Hunzans do not have many laws, they are law-abiding.

Until the partition of Pakistan from India, Hunza 648 was a part of India or, at least, it was definitely included on the map as Indian territory. But there is nothing in Hunza to indicate that they obeyed, owed or acknowledged sovereignty to India.

The Mir was and is the absolute ruler. He supposedly 643 has the power of life and death over all his subjects. I 175 know this power has never been used or abused by the [642] present Mir, who came to the throne in 1945 at the death of his father who ruled but 8 years. Very little is said or recorded about his father's tenure in office.

643 Therefore, I assume that it was an unimportant or 175 uneventful period or, maybe for other reasons, they don't want to say very much about it. However, his grandfather, Sir Mohomed Nazim Khan, has been famed both in fact and fiction and was well educated.
[538] He left an autobiography, and I am the owner of a copy of it, which was given to me by the present Mir.

648 Today Hunza is a part of Pakistan but again, I could 177 see no Pakistani influence in the country, although 167 quite a few of the Hunzan citizens serve in the Pakistani army. But when the Hunzan men and boys return on furlough or after finishing their term of service in the Pakistani army, they take off the uniform and dress in typical Hunzan garb.

643 The Mir is still the absolute monarch of the country.
648 Just what part the Pakistani government takes in his government I do not know, but to all intents and purposes, Hunza is ruled and governed by the Mir.

648 From the most reliable sources that I could contact
642 and glean information from, I learned that Hunza is even today considered an independent state. Hunza and Nagir, its neighbor on the other side of the Hunza River, are said to be the only two remaining independent states in Pakistan, in spite of the fact that, by agreement, the Pakistani government looks after and takes charge of their foreign policy.

436 Apart from the fact that they use the Pakistani ru-177 pee, and even then only a few of them appear, there seems to be no other Pakistani influence in either Nagir or Hunza.

205 Pakisani postage is also used in Hunza. The mail is [177] brought in and sorted twice a week. All of the Mir's letters hat I have received bear Pakistani airmail postage and they are postmarked "Experimental P.O." I doubt if anyone but the Mir gets any mail, with the exception of the doctor or visitors. There was a letter 205 from my office awaiting me when I reached the Mir's palace. The Mir told me about it right after our first greeting. He was understanding enough to realize I would be happy to hear from home.

I guess many of the things about Hunza wouldn't 642 allow the country to come under the heading of a democracy, but from what I saw of life and living in Hunza, I assure you it is more of a democracy than any other democracy in existence today.

Hunza has no policemen, no soldiers, no bureau- 692 cracy, no customs officers or immigration officers. They 643 do have the Mir who is the ruler and true head of the [647] state and the Mir appoints the Wazir who is his right [693] hand man and acts as judge.

All major squabbles and disputes are handled by the Mir. He holds court regularly and makes the decisions and his word is law and cannot be challenged or contested by anyone. Minor cases are looked after and into and tried by the Wazir.

Hunza does not have a jail. There is no lockup 697 whatsoever. If and when a crime is committed, the 681 criminal or culprit is banished to a place called Shimshal. At Shimshal the criminal or guilty person is not confined or jailed. He just has to live in that rugged place, where living is grim. The altitude is somewhere [133] around 12,000 or 13,000 feet, and eking an existence out of the land there is most difficult and precarious. Actually the form of punishment is a sort of ostracism.

Evidently the threat of being sentenced to live in 674 Shimshal is a great deterrent, because few crimes are committed. There have only been two instances in the last ten years where serious crimes have occurred. In [689] one instance it was a youth who had posted indecent signs on trees and other places. He was hailed before

674
689 the Wazir and given a stern warning and that ended that!

682 Another case occurred about 10 years ago when the Wazir's son became involved with a young man and girl. In this case the boy and girl (for that is what they were, rather than young man and woman) were misbehaving in the area adjacent to the Wazir's home. An argument was started when they were asked to leave the premises. The young man became unruly, then offensive and he said many unkind and indecent things. The Wazir's son warned him to move on and behave himself, but the young man refused to listen and persisted in his actions. The Wazir's son went into his home, got a gun, and said to him, "Now move away from here or I'll shoot you!"

But still the young hoodlum refused to listen or be warned. So the Wazir's son shot him. At the trial he claimed that he did not know the gun was loaded and he just made the threat in an effort to frighten the lad and make him go about his business. The boy died and the Wazir's son was charged with murder, and for this he was banished to Shimshal for 10 years.

A short time later the dead boy's parents appeared before the Mir and begged him to remit the sentence to the Wazir's son, as they claimed they believed him and that he did not intend to shoot their son. Besides, their son had provoked the attack. After he had been in Shimshal for two years, the Mir had him brought back and as the matter stands at the present moment in Hunza, this lad is now the Wazir.

681 In the olden days, a form of punishment in Hunza that was administered on instructions from the Mir was to immerse the culprit in the cold waters of the Hunza River. A 15-minute immersion in these icy waters was tantamount to a death sentence.

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

Here are some interesting quotations from Sir Mohomed Nazim Khan's autobiography 127

"During my thirty-nine years as Mir there have been two murders only in my country and all the people have been happy and prosperous. The Government of India had never interfered with the internal administration of the country and as my people see more of the world they have added cleverness to their previous simplicity. 674 [648]

"There is not enough land for the growing population and so I encourage my people to go out into the world and get work in other places. . . . 167

"There are four clans in Hunza and in each village there are appointed four 'Makaddams' (men of good family who settle any little disputes that may arise.) If they consider a crime is too serious for them to settle they refer it to the Trangfas and they, in turn to the Mir's court which is ever open and from sentence of which there is no appeal. 692

"If it is considered that a death sentence is called for, the people are collected and if any one will speak up for the culprit, his sentence is remitted. Otherwise he is executed in the presence of the people. 695 681

"In the former times if anyone committed adultery, his house could be destroyed, his animals slaughtered and his trees felled without any trouble falling on the offenders and though that custom has fallen into desuetude, it is still considered right for a man to kill his wife's lover if he can catch them 'flagrante delicto'! 684 837

"Marriage is not allowed between near relations and whenever possible, people marry into a clan different from their own. Child marriage is discouraged and tribal customs have been moulded to conform to modern ideas since I became Mir. . . . 582 [177]

"In former years Shimshal was used as a place to 681

681 which people were exiled and as officers were continually asking me what sort of place it was, I determined to go there and see for myself. The track there 491 was very bad indeed and in two places there were goat hair bridges which were very unpleasant to cross. A ring of wood was used and the traveler was drawn from one bank to the other and if he wore a beard most of the hairs were dragged out on the way. . . .

643 "My father[1] had six wives, three of which were of the 595 ruling classes and three from the Zemindaris. All however, were married to him according to the law and so he left behind no bastards."

276 The Mir told me that of late some of the young boys
177 have taken to smoking cigarettes. This they have picked up and learned from the Hunzan men who have been serving in the Pakistani army. Cigarettes can be pur-685 chased in the shop in Baltit and a few occasions of 276 petty theft have been encountered. In each case it [443] seems that they stole in order to get money to buy cigarettes. These few petty crimes of course did not [681] involve ostracism to Shimshal. It is expected that this condition will continue or even become aggravated as the youth of Hunza become more familiar and acquainted with smoking. Some of the men in Hunza smoke the "hookah" which we know as the water-pipe.

249 Some forms and varieties of tobacco have been tried
123 in Hunza. I promised to send the Mir seeds of the various types of tobacco that we grow in America, such as Virginia, Burley and Quesnel. Perhaps if they can learn to grow tobacco, it will enable the youth to get their hands on some tobacco and satisfy their craving for it without resorting to other ways and means. However, they would have to get paper from somewhere for none is made or improvised in Hunza.

674 It is obvious from what I have seen, that crime and misdemeanors on the scale that we know them in the Western world are practically unknown in Hunza. That being the case, it behooves us to investigate and study family life in Hunza, for juvenile delinquency is becoming a very serious and ever broadening problem in America.

[1] [ie - the father of Sir Mohomed Nazim Khan - ANALYST]

I saw samples of Hunzan justice. Its simplicity made me weep . . . when I recalled our procrastinating, shackled, unwieldy, judicial system. In the Western world civil cases take months and even years to be heard in court before a judge. In Hunza there are so few cases of wrongdoings, or even individual or family problems, that a hearing can be arranged almost immediately.

Petty squabbles or differences between husband and wife or even other disputes can be brought before the Wazir or before the Mir in private. When something more serious is at stake, the grieved party or parties bring their case to the "morning durbar," which is held regularly in the courtyard surrounded by the beautiful gardens at the entrance to the Mir's palace. At the time I was at Baltit many workmen were busily engaged in erecting a large stone enclosure or balcony where the "durbars" will be held, allowing more room for spectators and greater comfort for the council.

During the proceedings the Mir sits comfortably ensconced on a square-shaped wooden divan, luxuriantly smothered in rugs, fancy cushions and tapestries. There is none of the strict court procedure or dourness and frigidity known to our Western judiciary system. Here one feels that he is talking to a friend—a fellow citizen—or at least, an acquaintance.

Perhaps we have carried our ideas of justice, freedom and democracy a bit too far. In order that everyone may be afforded justice and fair treatment at the hands of his fellow man and see that it is fairly and impartially carried out, we have made it too complicated. Is there any justifiable reason why it should take months or even years for a civil case to be heard in court? If there are not sufficient judges, I'm sure it would not be difficult to appoint or elect more of them. If there are not enough court rooms and court houses, I feel confident that, with American construction at its high peak of efficiency, it wouldn't take long to correct that.

Then why isn't it done? I don't know the answer. Do you? The Hunzan system of justice seems to be functioning in a most satisfactory manner. Anyone may petition the Mir and unless he is away, can get an almost immediate hearing. If the Mir is not available or if the problem is not a weighty one, then the Wazir can attend to it.

In truth, justice can be simple!

* * * * *

In order to get into Hunza you must obtain a permit from the Pakistani authorities in the capital, which is Karachi, but I understand the government is being moved from Karachi to Rawalpindi or a new site close to it. I still think it is more important to have the Mir's invitation, because even though you could get into Hunza, you would be practically helpless without the Mir's assistance and cooperation.

[124] Unless you brought a guide with you and one who could speak English and translate for you, you'd find the going very, very difficult in either Nagir or Hunza. Therefore I would suggest that if you contemplate a visit into this area, you obtain the Mir's invitation or permission first. Then go after the Pakistani government's permit.

648 131 Why the Pakistan government regards Hunza as a strategic region or area is not hard to understand if you realize that Hunza's neighbors are Afghanistan, 648 China and India and slightly above a narrow corridor [131] of Afghanistan there is Russia, just a scant few miles from the Hunzan border.

Therefore, any person who wanted to start trouble with either Russia or China could get into the Hunza area and it wouldn't take too much maneuvering to cause an international incident, especially if the Chinese or Russians were looking for an excuse. So I don't blame the Pakistani government for being cautious and realistic about those possibilities.

Just a few years ago an American scientist working 648 with funds raised by an organization started for that 177 purpose, known as the Central Asiatic Research Foundation, wanted to take a couple of the Hunzan boys to the United States and have them educated there and then brought back again to Hunza. At first the Mir flatly refused. Then after reconsidering the matter, and perhaps in consultation with others, he changed his mind and gave his permission. I did not inquire as to the exact rhyme and reason for the developments that took place, but eventually the Pakistani government decisively and definitely refused to allow the boys out of the country.

It appeared to me that the Mir felt that there was no reason why he should refuse when the foreign policy of his country was being looked after in Karachi. I am more than certain that the Mir's opinion was recorded in Karachi.

But John Clark, the writer of a book about Hunza, [114 and some American authorities were very annoyed at this and felt that the Mir was being unreasonable, ungenerous and to say the least, unkind in not allowing these boys to come to America.

I did not know then the true reasons behind the Mir's refusal and what other intrigues were involved, and when I questioned him about this and he explained, I realized that he had acted wisely—and so will you.

"If I allowed those boys to go to America to be educated and then come back to Hunza in a few years, both the Chinese and Russians could say that I sent them to America to be brainwashed, filled with propaganda or trained in subversive capitalistic activities.

"Well, I'm not giving Russia or China any excuses. We are a peace-loving people, we get along with the Chinese and the Russians, we mind our own business and we intend to stay free of entanglements and embroilments, if humanly possible.

"They said that I had refused to let the boys go because I was afraid that when they came back they would teach the people the American way, and that would undermine my rule and to a degree that is true, because I think my people are the happiest and healthiest in the world, and that is more than any other nation can claim. So I would like to keep them that way, if possible.

"But I'm not afraid of my people becoming educated because we do everything within our limited powers to further their education now and have done so for some years."

This statement I found to be absolutely true. The Hunzans by and large are the best learned people of that or any other area in India or Pakistan. Please don't misunderstand. I don't mean that there are no better educated individuals in these two countries because that is not so. I mean that there are few places in Pakistan or India where all of the male citizens are afforded the opportunity of getting an education without cost. That is true in Hunza.

These schools that I saw seemed to be comparable to the average little red school house in the West. The one in Baltit was quite a bit better and as good as any of our schools of 25 years ago . . . which I would say was mighty fine going for a far off place like Hunza. 871

Then I asked the Mir what had happened to John Clark's woodworking school and he told me, with calm deliberation, that he knew and felt that Mr. Clark was an earnest, honest man with the best of intentions. . . . "But, how could he," went on the Mir, "hope to improve the economy of our little country by means of a woodworking school and the training of our men in woodcraft when we do not have the required wood? We can't cut down our apricot trees, which are our very life, in order to get wood to use in making things that we could export to the United States!" 874 322 177 114

Then I recalled from Mr. Clark's book that he did have great difficulty in locating suitable lumber for his school.

From what I have read and learned on the scene about Clark's work, I know he was a man of high caliber and integrity and did a mighty good job with the boys, but for some strange reason there is an unusual silence about his work and his efforts. I could neither understand nor explain it. I'm still trying to get the true impression of the people concerning this matter.

At this point I want to emphasize that I am not seeking to pick a battle with anyone, but from my travels back and forth and around the Hunzan territory, it is fantastic to believe that there could ever be sufficient timber to make it worthwhile to run a woodworking school, especially to make woodcraft for export purposes.

Stonecraft, yes—for stones, even including some of the more precious and rare types, could without doubt be found in Hunza or at least in the mountains close

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

874
177
322
114

by. And if they were taught to make useful jewels and do other types of work with rock, then they would have something, because the supply is absolutely unlimited.

I agree wholeheartedly with the Mir that the thought of making a worthwhile contribution to the people of Hunza by opening a woodcraft school is utter nonsense.

7:Tobe C.T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 43

The Happy Hunzans

MY CHIEF OBJECTIVE in going to Hunza was to try, first, to find out if the people of Hunza were as healthy and as long lived as many writers and reports claim them to be. 121 164

Secondly, if they were the healthy specimens of mankind that the writers said, then I wanted to find out how this came about!

I don't claim to have any special perceptive powers, but the moment I arrived in Gilgit, I resolved that all of my faculties would be centered on observing the why's and wherefore's bearing on the health of these people.

I didn't have to be a very keen observer to realize quickly that in Gilgit the Hunzan aura of health did not hold. But remember, that was in Gilgit.

Gilgit reminded me very much of the typical frontier towns as we knew them in America, except Gilgit 361

361 didn't just spring up overnight. By the appearance of [342] the stone and mud houses, as well as all other features about the city, it was obvious that the city had been there for a long, long time.

Gilgit is indeed a strange city. It is one of these places that is right in the middle of nowhere, but to that mountain-harnessed area, Gilgit is a mighty important, strategic spot. Somehow I had the feeling that if there was a place called the "crossroads of the East" Gilgit had the sole right to the appellation, for through Gilgit would pass caravans from China, as well as travelers from Russia, Afghanistan, Persia, India, Pakistan and yes, undoubtedly from all other parts of the Eastern world.

While I did see quite a bit of the city and the surrounding country, I regret today that I didn't dig a little deeper and get about even more. I think Gilgit has many interesting stories to tell . . . how could it be otherwise? And if I ever go back (and I intend to) I would like to be the one who brings these tales to light!

121 The Gilgitis, from a health standpoint or from ap-
[164] pearance in general, did not impress me one bit. The people were somewhat similar to what you would find or expect in Pakistan or India. However, the moment I crossed the bridge over the Gilgit River and got into the hills, I resolved to concentrate, coldly and with deliberate calculation, on every individual we met. So many confusing and contradicting statements had been made about the people of Hunza, that I was firmly resolved that if study and scrutinization and observation would do the trick, then I would find out the truth.

124 Akbar was keeping pace with Cecil most of the time, while Sherin was with me, and I questioned him closely about every person that we happened to meet or pass. I had no trouble—none whatsoever—in spotting a Hun-

zan. And it wasn't because I was smart. There obviously was a distinct difference and anyone could pick out a Hunzan from a Nagirwal or any of the other citizens thereabout. 124

Much has been said about the walking habits of the people of Hunza . . . the long distances, the climbs, their endurance and their sprightly gait. I have had little experience with their endurance, but of their gait I can speak with some degree of authority. They have the lightest, easiest walk or pace that I have seen anywhere in my life. They seem to glide or spring effortlessly. If any people on the face of the earth have learned to walk without wasting any energy, I believe the people of Hunza have learned that secret. That's the only way I can account for our guides, for example, being in exactly the same condition when they finished their day's travel as when they started. I fully realize that they are accustomed to doing this. On occasions at home I have walked 12 miles at one march—and enjoyed it—but I was tired and mighty glad to take a good rest when I reached my goal. 481 [147]

I cannot recall one occasion where I saw a Hunzan resting after a walk. I practically retraced every foot of my journey back and forth and also the side excursions, but I couldn't find one occasion on which the Hunzan men had to rest. They not only seemed, but actually were, totally imperturbable, nonchalant and at ease wherever they went. Their stride was livelier and lighter than anything I have ever seen. [147]

Furthermore they never slouched, whether walking, standing or sitting. No matter where you saw them, they held their heads erect and chests out. [516]

Now this is not an afterthought because I began my search and observations the moment I left Gilgit. They didn't walk—they seemed to float! I wish I knew their

7:Tobe C.T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

481 secret . . . but perhaps it isn't a secret! It's most likely inherent—they have it when they're born.

000 The closest thing to the Hunzan gait that I ever saw was in Agra where the famed Taj Mahal is located. There were a couple of hours unfilled in our time schedule, so we took a stroll through the city. What a city! (But that is another story.) My eyes were rolling like a man in a delirium to take in all of the scenes that were going on about me. When I heard what sounded like a song or a chant, I turned about trying to find the source of the merriment or music, and then I saw the source. I stood and waited and a troop of men passed by in front of me, single file and spread about 10 feet apart. Most of them wore but a loin cloth; the day was hot and sunny. On their shoulders they carried a wooden yoke, that stretched out on either side about a foot from their shoulders. From each end there hung a string and at the end of the string was a platter. The entire affair resembled a balance—the kind that justice is supposed to bear. On each of the platters stood a bottle with a fluid in it. The gait of these men was light, flowing and even; the men were all singing.

I stood and watched them file past me. There were about 70 of them. I looked about me, searching for someone who could explain these goings-on. A few inquiries led me to a native lady of the upper caste who spoke fluent English. She told me that these men had been to the Ganges 60 miles away and they were carrying holy water in the glass containers that were placed on the balanced platters. Their load could not be put down until they reached their destination. They had already gone 60 miles and some had a mile or two more to go and others had 10 miles and some even 50 more miles. They could transfer their load to some other willing helper, but it must not touch the ground.

These men were carrying water from the holy of holies—the Ganges. They were intoxicated—not with wine, but with their faith. They were excited with the mysticism of their god; they were inspired; they were in seventh heaven. Yes, the gait of these divinely influenced people was close to the pace followed by the people of Hunza. 000

If I had seen somewhere along in my travels a Hunzan who slouched, dragged himself or in some other way showed a sign of weakness or debility, I would say so, but no such Hunzan did I see. 481

I fully realize that I scoffed at my Hunzan bearer that the Mir sent along with me from Kerimabad to Nomal, especially when he wanted to take the horses back from Chalt and leave us because he said he had blisters on his feet, due to the exceptionally hard push we had made that day, but remember, he was 20 years older than I! His feet probably told his age but he certainly didn't look it.

If there are sick and infirm men in Hunza, they must be exceptionally well-hidden, because I didn't see or find any. 164

Then, too, writers and observers of the people of Hunza always mention and stress the fact that they are a happy pleasant people. To this I must also assent. I did not see a sad or disgruntled Hunzan. I do not mean to suggest that they ran about the streets giggling and laughing, but they were of cheery, amiable countenance. Here I am going beyond those with whom I walked and talked and ate; I am delving into the citizenry that I passed on the roads or streets, those whose farms and homes we visited and also those whom I observed in passing. 157

Let me here illustrate another point. For example, it is understandable that we here in America, or people 181 in other countries distant from Hunza, would attach an aura of mystery or superhumanness to the people of Hunza, but the truth of the matter is that even in Pakistan the belief or the tale concerning the superiority of the Hunzan people also exists. In Karachi, when I mentioned I was going to Hunza or seeking to go to Hunza, ears pricked up quickly. They were interested, they were intrigued, for they knew and had heard tales of the prowess of the Hunzans.

A few weeks before I left home I learned that there was a Pakistani boy employed in Niagara-on-the-Lake and I made an attempt to contact him. My wife just about that time met the Pakistani lad and his wife at a social function and she told him that I wanted to see him and talk to him about Pakistan and about the people of Hunza. Then, when he heard that I intended to go to Hunza, he excitedly informed my wife and stressed that she be sure to tell me not to go because the roads in the mountains were terribly dangerous, that one could penetrate into that country only at the greatest of risk and danger and that many people had set out for Hunza and never been heard of again.

When my wife brought this tale to me, I was perturbed. I was worried and my wife was even more concerned. If a native of Pakistan, and not an illiterate, I want to remind you (this man was a technician), held these people in such awe and fear, you can see that the myth about the people of Hunza is universal.

It is further claimed that the people of Hunza have endurance that is unsurpassed by any other people on earth. I believe it was Eric Shipton, the famous mountain explorer, who said that the Hunzans had more endurance than even the Sherpa guides that are found on the borders of Nepal and Tibet. These Sherpas have long been considered the people with the greatest endurance and stamina known anywhere, and if Shipton says that the Hunzans had more endurance and stamina than these people, no higher tribute can be given.

It is my humble opinion that too much has been written about the people of Hunza by people who have never been there and know little or nothing about the actual conditions that prevail in that country. Then, too, many visitors spent most of their time taking pictures, viewing the scenery and dining at the Mir's and didn't pay much attention or learn anything about the actual living conditions of the people.

The people of Hunza have not in the least benefited by the visitors that have reached Hunza, and if future visits are discouraged, I believe there would be good cause for it.

Most of the diseases known to civilization are unknown in Hunza. I do not ask you to take my word for it but that is my report from consulting the resident doctor in Hunza, as well as a German woman doctor who visited Hunza.

It is further true that the Mir's wife, the Rani of Hunza, had her appendix removed and she took a trip to Rawalpindi to have it done. But in the first place she does not live according to Hunza standards and besides, it was probably stylish to have an appendix operation. On the other hand, if a good surgeon were let loose in Hunza for a few weeks, there's no doubt about it, he'd have hundreds of appendixes removed before he could be stopped.

Another important point that I wish to make at this time is that I paid my own way to and from Hunza. I had no financial backing. Therefore I am not committed to aid anyone or any product or radio station or newspaper. I have no one to fear and no one to please. I can afford to tell the truth.

I do not intend to set the Hunzans down as a pattern or an example of how we should live because it just couldn't be done. However, unless you are stone deaf, blind and dumb, you can't help but realize that there is something drastically wrong with our way of life and living. That is why so many eyes and ears are being trained on Hunza. We hope, we pray that they have the answer.

There has been an awakening and it is growing throughout America. People are seeking health today more than they ever did in the history of mankind. But even with all the enlightenment available, they're still groping . . . they don't know where or how to find it, and the pity of it is that it is really so simple.

Too long already have we left our health and well being in the hands of doctors and surgeons and other types of healers, without going to the proper source—oneself and one's food. You forget that doctors, nurses, trained technicians and hospitals and other similar institutions are there to try to cure, not to prevent or advise. There is just no profit for anyone in propounding or teaching the simple, natural method that can keep everyone in good health. After all, a large share of our entire economy is now built around medicine, medical provisions and medical institutions. No one—not even the heads of our governments—would risk the shock that would be felt throughout the country if this gigantic, needless, useless structure were to be abandoned as it truly should be.

From what I have seen, from what I have heard and from what I have learned, I have reached this definite conclusion: no one single factor can be held up as the reason for the splendid health of the people of Hunza.

7:Tobe C.T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 44

Health

For Me To Say that the Hunzans are the healthiest people of the world, which many authors and writers have claimed, would be sheer effrontery . . . mainly because I have not studied the health of all the peoples of the world, nor have I even met them. However, I do attest from what I have seen and observed, that the Hunzans are one of the healthiest people of the world.

To say that they are completely free from diseases or health problems is definitely not true. At the time when I visited Hunza there was a resident doctor located at Aliabad, where he was in charge of a 10-bed hospital. I conversed with him and questioned him daily during my stay and he answered my pressing questions with complete frankness and candor.

He is only a young man, a Pakistani, and his name is Dr. Mohammed Yusuf Khan, M.B., B.S. He is a handsome, capable, well educated doctor and is, in my 759 humble opinion, equal to the best medical men that we 115 can turn out of the European or American universities. Besides his medical degree, he also has a bachelor of science degree which most of our doctors do not have. So if anything, he is perhaps a little bit better learned than our average physician.

164 One of the first questions that I asked of the Mir of Hunza was, "Are there many known epileptics?"

The Mir thought for a moment and then shook his head and said, "No!"

So I turned to the doctor who was on my left and said, "Doctor, do you know of any epileptics in Hunza?"

At that instant the Mir got up and left the room . . . and I wondered about this.

There was a definite purpose behind my question concerning epilepsy. You see, it has always been my conviction—or at least for 25 years—that epilepsy is strictly nutritional. Of the few epileptics that I knew in my life all had peculiar eating habits . . . that is, they had their positive likes and dislikes . . . and from that day to this I have believed that epilepsy was basically nutritional.

"Yes," the doctor replied, "right at this present time I am treating three epileptic patients. One is from Nagir and two are from entirely different locations in Hunza. But the Nagir case is one of these dream cases —the kind that every doctor hopes he'll come across some day in his work."

"Yes," he went on, "this Nagir case performs every act described in the medical journals. He's a perfect textbook case. The sick man has every condition, symptom and manifestation of epilepsy known to medical science."

Statistics indicate that in America there is one epileptic to every 350 of the population. The population of

Nagir and Hunza would be somewhere around 50,000 164 people. That vould allow the people of these two principalities 140 epileptics, to be on par with America.

When I mentioned this to the doctor, he pooh-poohed the idea and aid, "I'm sure there wouldn't be a dozen epileptics on both sides of the river. In fact, with these three I think I have them all."

"What is the most prominent complaint that you find among the people?"

"Dysentery," he replied, without hesitation.

"Do you know the cause?" was my next question.

"I'm afraidI can't answer that question with any degree of authoity or proof, but I can tell you this . . . that it is seldom very serious and the condition usually clears up in afew days. I know of no deaths caused by it."

Now the Mir returned and I was relieved, for I felt 124 that I had ofended the fine man by asking the doctor if there were any epileptics in Hunza, when he had told me there wern't any.

So I turnel to the Mir and explained the situation to him, stating that in my eagerness to get the data I had asked the same question of the doctor and mentioned my fear of offending him.

He replied "I believe friendship is made of sterner stuff than that."

I was surprised and delighted by this statement.

Then he explained that he was called by one of his servants whohad signaled to him—concerning preparation for an event that was to take place that evening.

My next question to both the doctor and the Mir 164 was, "Is there anything in the line of health or disease that is developing in Hunza different from the old pattern? Things that didn't occur before, that are beginning to appear now?"

164 "Yes," said the doctor, "I am alarmed at the great increase in goiter cases in Hunza, especially among the younger people, where it is rampant. Also, cavities in the teeth of the people are being found regularly, whereas a few years ago tooth trouble in any form was practically unknown, judging from the information at my disposal!"

When he spoke to me he was genuinely distressed at the increased occurrence of both of these maladies.

"To what do you attribute the increase in these conditions, Doctor?" I asked.

He replied, "As yet I have been unable to lay my finger on anything specific concerning this."

I have been interested in Hunza for many years and 262 during this period I have devoured every available 263 piece of literature on these fascinating people. Thus, marshalling my mental forces, I said to him, "Have any major changes taken place in the diet or living habits of the people of Hunza?"

"Not that I am positively aware of," he said meditatingly.

"Where do the people of Hunza get their salt from?"
[439] I asked.

"It is usually flown in from Pindi to Gilgit and then carried up the trail to Baltit and other parts of Hunza."

I learned that it was also carried by jeep and pack animals from Rawalpindi across the Babusar Pass into Gilgit as well.

"How long has this been going on?"

This the good doctor could not answer. But the Mir [439] was close by and he said it was longer than ten years now that the salt had been imported.

"Where did you get your salt from before?" I said to the Mir.

263 "Why," he replied, "the people of Hunza have been 317 mining salt from an area around Shimshal for many hundreds of years." 263 [317]

"Is there any difference between the salt that you import and that of Shimshal?"

"Much difference," said the Mir. "The salt that we import is pure white and very salty, whereas the salt mined in the Shimshal area was in its natural state and contained many impurities. The people prefer the imported salt because of its sharper saltier flavor."

"So it is true then," I said to the Mir, "that this aspect of modern civilization has crept into Hunza!" [177]

The Mir and the doctor looked at each other and then somewhat reluctantly nodded in agreement.

Speaking somewhat forcibly, I said to both of them, "It is obvious that the imported salt is pure sodium chloride, whereas the salt that is brought down from Shimshal is something that has never been analyzed and obviously contains many minerals, so-called impurities."

Obviously the people of Hunza in the past did not know, did not care or did not feel the need to purify their salt, because even to a layman like myself, it is clear and obvious that by making a brine, the pure salt could be extracted.

Whether by error or design, this has never been practiced in Hunza.

"Does it not seem possible," I said to the doctor, "that the salt that was formerly used by the people of Hunza was the means of keeping goiter and dental caries away or at bay?" 164

"I hadn't thought of it before," replied the doctor, "but I will admit that it sounds logical and undoubtedly it is true!"

The Mir further admitted that little or no salt was being mined in Shimshal at the present time. Therefore it would seem to be indicated that the importation of 164 salt is causing the present goiter and dental caries situations in Hunza today.

"How would you describe the health conditions of the people of Hunza?" I next asked the doctor.

[758] "Since my coming to Hunza a little less than a year ago, I have treated but a few patients a day and seldom are there more than one or two of the hospital beds utilized at one time. Apart from the greatly increasing incidence of goiter and dental caries, no other disease seems to have a firm hold in Hunza.

164 167 "Now that many of the boys and men of Hunza are leaving to go into the army in Pakistan, as well as seeking employment in other adjacent areas, diseases never known in Hunza before are making their appearance.

753 757 "Another unfortunate characteristic that I have to contend with is the fact that the people feel quite shy of coming to a doctor for advice and treatment, especially when it is concerned with the personal parts of the anatomy. Actually they are callously indifferent to medical science. The majority of them are, in fact, still living in the bygone age when diseases were supposed to be due to influences of evil spirits. So they depend to some degree and waste much of early precious time in useless superstitious pursuits of driving away the ghost."

164 These one or two patients that he treats daily have in most cases only minor ailments and, at that, a good share of these come from across the river and from the neighboring state of Nagir.

It occurred to me that there would probably be more illness during the winter. Many cases of eye troubles are treated during the winter, due, primarily, to the fact [354] that most Hunzan homes are smoke-filled, because of the floor center fires and only the hole in the roof to allow the smoke to escape. Visitors invariably find living indoors and the smoke intolerable, but the people of Hunza are more or less used to it. However, it does cause trouble with the eyes of the natives. It also weakens the lungs of some of the older women, who probably spend most of their time indoors during the cold months of the year. 164

I questioned the doctor and the Mir concerning prenatal care, but from what they told me, I could find no provisions whatsoever made for prenatal care outside the individual home. 843

The death rate at childbirth, they told me, was next to zero, but the doctor also mentioned that a woman would not consider going to a doctor for gynecological reasons under any circumstances. She would rather die. 165 845 757

He also told me that before and after delivery of a child, Hunzan women do not know of any rest. The pregnant woman works harder and does more laborious jobs till the last day of the term, in the belief that hard and laborious work makes delivery easier and uneventful. 843 846

"But," he went on, "they are very careful in exerting themselves during the early days of conception. After delivery they are again up and doing again, only after a short rest."

It seems to be obvious that the method followed by the women of Hunza prior to childbirth "works" because both mother and child come out of it "uneventful." When events occur at such times, it usually means serious trouble. 843

He went on to tell me further that gallstones, renal calculus, coronary heart disease, hypertension, valvular lesions, myxoldeama thyrsotoxcasis, mental deficiencies, cancer, poliomyelitis, arthritis and diabetes are absolutely unknown in Hunza. 164

From what I have seen and gathered I am worried about the situation. They are now importing their sugar, 177 263 439

177 their salt and soon there will be a few more items added 263 and, as more of their people go out of the country to 439 earn a living and come back to visit or retire, more of civilization's curses will be brought back with them.

165 The doctor rather clearly indicated that infant mor-114 tality was not as low as some writers would like us to believe. I repeat—he made this quite clear.

164 Now I'll let you decide how it ties in with the statements made by Sir Robert McCarrison: "During the period of my association with these people I never saw a case of asthenic dyspepsia, of gastric or duodenal ulcer, of appendicitis, of mucous colitis, of cancer. . . . Among these people, the abdomen oversensitive to nerve impressions, to fatigue, anxiety, or cold was unknown. Indeed their buoyant abdominal health has, since my return to the West, provided a remarkable contrast with the dyspeptic and colonic lamentations of our highly civilized communities."

276 Smoking in general is not an addiction in Hunza. The water-pipe or hubble-bubble is used by some of the people, usually at gatherings or ceremonies. It is then passed around in a wide circle, each one taking a puff [562] or two. The women are included, but only after all the men have finished.

Some of the citizens use snuff. It is tobacco mixed with the ash of a plant called "sopa," which is indigenous to that area. They take the tobacco and the sopa ash, put in a dash of water, stir it up and mix it into a paste. Then they place gobs of this paste under their lip, exactly the same as the snuff chewer does in the West, although this practice has been dying out in the Western world.

164 Just how much of the health of the people of Hunza 132 is due to the fact that they get a lot of sunlight? That is a most pertinent question and one that will take a lot of study before an answer can be given. They do get more sunshine than the Nagirwals—of that there is no doubt. While in Nagir fields are definitely in better tilth, their land is deeper, they have broader and more fertile valleys and can grow more and better food, yet undoubtedly the people of Hunza are by far the handsomer, healthier, more industrious and more energetic. 132 164 [133]

For my part I wasn't completely sold on the principle that the people of Hunza did have much more sunlight than the people of Nagir and I debated the matter with a few individuals. But each of them maintained stoutly that they did and claimed that they had scientific proof that Hunza did get more sunlight.

The last man with whom I did battle on the subject was Dr. Hermann Berger of West Germany. From his investigations he said that he had reached the conclusion positively and unequivocally, that the northern slope of the mountains through which the Hunza River flowed did get more sunlight than the southern slope which was Nagir. 132 114

As I found considerable difficulty and doubt concerning the theory of the people of Hunza getting more sunlight than the people of Nagir, I decided to draw a little chart that would illustrate the situation as I eventually found it to be. After seeing the drawing I think it will prove to you that the principle is natural and reasonable. (See Fig. 1.) [A]

[A] [facing p. 390 – ANALYST]

7:Tobe C, T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 45

Where Is Hunza?

131 AT FIRST I HAD TAKEN it for granted that everyone knew exactly where Hunza lay. Then after many folks had queried me about the location of this strange country, I found that Hunza was seldom listed on any map and not even mentioned in many encyclopedias and gazetteers. Therefore, it is only fair and right for me to tell you where Hunza is and, if you do know, I trust you will pardon my repeating the position, but I want to establish its area clearly.

At the extreme northerly tip of Pakistan, rubbing shoulders with Afghanistan on the west, China on the north and northeast is Hunza and just 14 miles beyond the narrow corridor of Afghanistan lies Soviet Russia. [133] The gateway between Hunza and China is the famed Mintaka Pass which is the original route followed by Marco Polo back so many hundred years ago. Hard-by is where the Hunza River has its source. This area along the Hunza River is the principality called Hunza. 431

It is nestled in a most enchanting setting, surrounded by three of the world's greatest and tallest mountain systems. Another piece of knowledge that adds even greater interest and appeal is the meaning of the names of the three mountain systems: Hindu Kush means "killer of Hindus" because so many Hindus have lost their lives in crossing this range; Himalaya means "abode of snow", well-named when one considers their height and the vast masses of glaciers lying on the mountains' breasts; Karakorum means "the black rock" and one has to actually penetrate this system to realize how accurately those hard bare stone walls are named. The word Kush is pronounced with an "oo" sound. Himalayas is pronounced with the accent on the "al". The Karakorums are pronounced with the broad "a" accent for the first syllable and "oo" sound for the "um". This word can be spelled either "am" or "um". I prefer "um" because that is more in keeping with the sound as spoken by the people of that area. 133 [103] [104]

Hunza actually forms a part of what was the old Kashmir and on maps it is shown as part of Kashmir and Jammu.

During my travels through the area I was plagued with the questions . . .Where exactly are the Hindu Kush, the Karakorums, the Himalayas? Where among these ranges is Hunza? 'Tis simple, you say? That's what I said, too, until I began to investigate and ask questions. Then I found myself in a maze of confusion from which I found it difficult to extricate myself.

Surely one would believe that learned people, high school or university graduates both in America and abroad, would know a bit about the most important mountain systems in the world. But, no! Ask them yourself. See the ambiguous answers you get. Then you

131 will understand why "it plagued me thus."

133 Many writers who have visited the area, and many [114] others who have not, refer to Hunza as being in the Himalayas. I am sorry to be forced to contradict these good people, but from my research—and I repeat, research—I have come to the conclusion that Hunza is definitely in the Karakorum system and not the Himalayas.

[114] If this error was made just occasionally by casual visitors or tourists, it could go unmentioned, but when men with science education and degrees make this mistake, it is somewhat unpardonable. There are very few maps or gazetteers that give this information accurately, and if you think I came by this information easily, I would suggest that you take down whatever maps you have available and do some research on the topic.

The eventual decision as to which are the Karakorums and which are the Himalayas came about when it was firmly laid down in one place that the northwest upper Indus separates the Karakorums from the Himalayas. The Karakorums seem to start about where the Hindu Kush ends in Kashmir. The exact spot, according to the best data that I could obtain, is 74 degrees east longitude and from there the Karakorums run approximately 300 miles southeast down to the main bend of the Shyok River. Even encyclopedias are not completely reliable in this instance, because one encyclopedia (in fact, Columbia is the one I'm talking about) lists Mountain K2 which is now known as Godwin Austen as the second tallest mountain peak in the world and places it both in the Karakorums and in the Himalayas. The Hindu Kush culminates at Tirach Mir —26,426 ft. high. Just about there the Karakorum range takes over and extends as specified above.

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

132
133

The Hunzans are conceded to have superior health to their neighbors. Nagir land is more shaded by mountains. (Figure 1.)

256

A water powered stone mill used by the Hunzans for making flour. (Figure 2.)

[facing p. 390]
[p. 390-A]

7:Tobe C.T-3 (1959)19o0 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

361
342
311

[p. 390-B1]

7:Tobe C, T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

361.
342
311

Hunzan houses have no chimneys—just a hole in the roof for smoke to escape.

[p. 390-82]

7. Tobe C.T-3 (1959)19o0 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

133
311

View from the Fort at Baltit.

[p. 390-C]

Part or all of the armies of Alexander the Great 131 wound their way through the Hindu Kush mountains. 133 Whether or not they ever found their way into the [173] Karakorums, history does not designate, but I suspect that they did, because the Hunzans are supposed to be descendants of Alexander the Great or his soldiers and Hunza is in the Karakorums.

The Himalayas in the encyclopedia are stated to lie in India, Tibet, Nepal, Sikkim, Bhutan and China but I know for certain the Himalayas extend into Pakistan as well.

At this point I am not seeking to take issue with any [114] gazetteer, encyclopedia or other volume of facts. I am just pointing out the difficulty I encountered in getting the information down to a semblance of order and accuracy. Further, I have consulted with, written to and requested details from many sources who should know the facts, and in practically every case I came to a dead end. It seems as though very few people in the world know the exact location and extent of these three mountain systems.

One man who did seem to know them and placed them accurately was Eric Shipton and by the heavens, he should know—he spent more time among these mountains than any white man in history.

A curious thing about the people of Hunza . . . they 823 do not have names for the peaks in the area and there 103 are some mighty lofty peaks. Even the famed Raka-poshi has no individual name in Hunza. It is just called "Dumani," the same as every other high mountain or mountain peak that they came across. Actually, "dumani" means "covered with a cloud."

I guess they're so accustomed to seeing these awesome peaks that they become impervious to them. So what? Another hill! Every time I asked one of the 823 bearers the name of yon mountain, he pointed to it 103 and said, "Dumani!"

It was quite some time before I found out that it wasn't the same mountain we kept seeing from different views or angles. In fact, after the second day's travel and the only peak that we had passed was "Dumani," I began to get suspicious and thought that somebody was pulling my leg. As a matter of fact, I didn't find out that "Dumani" meant "covered with a cloud," "high peak" or "big mountain" until I came across Professor Berger in Baltit. He, being interested in the language of the people, put me straight on the "dumani" business.

What made matters even worse—or should I say, more difficult—was the fact that long after we had left the Hunza area, people kept telling me about the "Dobani" nullahs and the "Dobani" mountains. Sometimes they said "Dobani," other times they said "Dubani" and then they would also say "Dumani" and "Domani." I don't think they know themselves exactly [133] what they mean. Of course when they said Dumani Nullah, it would mean the "river flowing from the glacier on the breast of the mountain" and when they pointed to a hill and said "Dumani," they meant it was a big hill.

133 In trying to relate the circumstances covering our travel and journey from Gilgit to Hunza one must maintain a sort of running encounter of the trail and the incidents surrounding it. Then, too, in other parts of the book I try to tell about the agriculture, the habits and health of the people of Hunza. Therefore little time remains for one to describe the charm, the beauty and whatever else may be said about the scenes one passes.

So will you bear with me while I try to describe as graphically as possible one day's journey through these 133 mountains.

There is little beauty to be seen until one gets beyond Nomal. I felt that the enchantment of the mountain terrain did not begin until we reached Chalt. From there to Baltit was one bit of indescribable grandeur after another.

From broad undulating valleys and river beds you suddenly come to a place where the mountain walls seem to come together to form a gorge. Here the river churned and frothed in its azure murkiness. The dark rock walls in all their sharp angled beauty presented an awesome spectacle and gave one the feeling of being suddenly closed in. For thousands of feet upward, shelves, abutments, butts, curves and gradings swept on in seemingly never-ending succession. Not a tuft of grass or even a bit of green moss or lichen could be seen by the naked eye. 'Twas bare but still beautiful . . . unadorned, but bejewelled. Then above were the light and clouds . . . and beyond, the blue sky and occasionally the sun could be seen.

The road would climb, weave and wind. It would 133 broaden to 3, 4, or even 5 feet. Then 'twould narrow 487 down sometimes to a bare 14 inches where the outside shoulder of the road had collapsed or fallen away, leaving a ragged, rugged edge which one took good care to avoid.

In places where the trail all but disappeared the solid rock face of the mountain wall had been chipped away or incut to allow a body or a small animal to pass. One had to crane one's neck or stoop to prevent a whack on the head that could send you hurtling down thousands of feet.

Continually there were patches of scree or morain that might be a hundred feet or a mile or more in 133 length. Over this the horses clattered judiciously, plac-487 ing one foot down firmly somewhere before they lifted another. 'Twas the only way they could maneuver through this pebble and rock dashed remains of a slide. Masses of mountains dimmed in the distance.

Now and then a nullah would leap into view and [491] had to be crossed or forded. Yes, many of them, the more or less permanent ones, were covered by bridges . . . some sound, durable and strong and others, more or less makeshift, which one had to cross with prudence and yet alacrity.

133 Whenever a rafik hove into view, I unconsciously 487 would suck in my breath quickly and steel myself for 491 the mental ordeal to come. There I knew the trail was held up or was maintained by a few slabs of rock pressed into fissures on the rock surface of the cliff or even a built up wall of stones, laid carefully one on top of another without being cemented in any way. At other times there were rods of steel driven into the rock surface and upon this the boards or road was laid. How these supports held, heaven only knows and there they were, jutting out over emptiness or nothingness. Did they fall away? Was there any danger? Well, you can answer that question for yourself. If you were going to travel along the trail to Hunza, they had to be crossed and the fact that they were continually being erected was ample proof that they were continually falling away.

133 In many places the road ribbons to a narrow ledge 487 along a precarious outcropping of rock . . . courses that have been cut and built into the very face of the sheer and protruding cliffs, and many from a few hundred to many thousands of feet above the valley floor and often more than 15,000 feet above sea level. Landslides, washouts, rains of gigantic boulders, disintegration of rafiks have played havoc with travelers and 133 caravans on this route since the first enterprising man 487 inched his way across. Yet then and now bold, brave, fearless men were attracted and fascinated by the call to the serene loveliness, adventure and danger.

Then islands of greenery began to appear more fre- 133 quently. These were the terraced fields, the oases that 311 marked the villages. It was a pinpoint of light in a sea of darkness where rest, drink and food could be found, even if unappetizing and unabundant. These spots of green at sky-line-blue heights, among the millions of acres of barren rock and emptiness were pleasing both to the eye and soul and comforting, too, for the traveler.

Elsewhere, in the Hindu Kush or the Himalayas, could be found verdant valleys and hills and mountain-tops that were furry and treed. But in the harsh, bleak, black Karakorums, such heavenly blessings could seldom, if ever, be found. Even the terraced tiny green fields could not, by any stretch of the imagination, be compared to a tree-covered hillside or mountain. Yet, let it not be said or thought that these bleak, barren hills did not have their loveliness and charm. They possessed beauty! Yes, they did! Like a tiger, 'twas fierce, sharp and untamed, but nevertheless, true beauty!

In the distance, one could always watch as the hills 133 rolled, soared, dipped and then fell away to merge with 487 the blue of the horizon. I know at times, allowing my vision to soar and wander about the mountains in the distance, my fatigue and weariness were forgotten and I plodded on, unmindful of the trail. My mind soared from peak to peak—some cloud-haloed, others bold and sharply defined.

One was always meeting the Hunza River, either face to face or having it course along at your side. Then, too, as you rose where the road led on high crests, you could see the river winding, twisting, bending in the distance and you knew that you would be there soon—in an hour or a few.

As you course your way along the trail, you see the snow and ice covered mountain ranges with their glorious majestic crests gleaming in slides of silvery softness. You follow a road, that was known for at least a thousand years as a snaking, curving road of exceptional beauty, mid towering heights, nameless peaks and grave hazards.

'Twas but a scant few decades ago—yes, even that short a time—that one or two successful caravan trading trips, winding their way from China to the Khyber Pass via Peshawar, Pindi, Gilgit and the Hunza and Nagir Valleys, could make a trader rich, if he could get through without mishap and avoid being robbed by brigands.

The camel caravans would be laden with silks, gaily colored cloth, clothing, tea, porcelain, earthenware, jewels, gold and silver, ivory, salt, sweetening, spices, trinkets and bottles, fancy slippers, foot coverings, vases, trays and fancily inscribed artware, bars of iron and steel, knives, cooking utensils..

On this caravan route, animals do not walk side by side, but one behind the other.

It is no wonder that the owners of the caravans were glad to pay tribute for safe conduct through these defiles and passes.

We met caravans but they were evidently coming from the Pamirs and heading towards Gilgit, Peshawar and Srinagar. They were good sized ones with many donkeys and camels. The altitude wasn't high enough for yaks.

They looked sort of nondescript to me. I thought

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

they would be more interesting. But what can one expect from hard working travelers through a wicked terrain? They didn't look rich or impressive, but I was forced to admit that it did take courage and determination. 'Twas not meat for a weak man. 487 439

It occurred to me that a caravan would not be easy picking for a bandit or bandits. They'd best have superiority of numbers because men with weak stomachs or weak heads don't travel in caravans.

What is the lure that mountains hold for many men? I've learned that they can be as beautiful, as enchanting, as alluring and yes, even as demanding and possessive as any woman. I have never known a man who went to his death for a woman, but I have read and known of many who went to their death for a mountain . . . Nanga Parbat, especially. 000

They must exert a tremendous influence over man. And it is a fascination that never wears off. It's easy not to fall in love with them as long as you have never seen them and been among them but, if you are so unfortunate as to have made their acquaintance and mingled in their company, then you are lost. You will never be indifferent to their charms again. They'll permeate your heart and soul and penetrate reaches that you never knew you owned—and you own them no longer, for they are possessed by peaks and snows and summits and glaciers. You will never again know rest or settling down, for the glaciers' gleam has struck home and to it you will have to return!

[pp. 398-404 not processed]

7:Tobe C, T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 47

Hunza Agriculture -- "Use and Return"

IN A COUNTRY like Hunza where land is so scarce and therefore precious, it behooves the man who tills the soil to get everything he can out of it and, what is even more important, to put back everything humanly possible so that he will be able to maintain it indefinitely, in a high state of health and fertility.

The people who farm that land realize full well that their health, their well-being and their very lives depend entirely upon the crops that are produced. In order to maintain the soil in good health and tilth, nothing can be wasted.

Where irrigation is used, the leaching of soil nutrients can and often does become a serious problem. For example, at Gilgit when I was visiting the P.A.'s garden, he informed me that he was having trouble growing certain crops, which were infested with insects. Now this is not in Hunza, but in Gilgit.

241 After close examination of the various factors, as well as the slope of the soil and the supply of water, I reached the conclusion that the trouble he was having was positively caused by the overflowing water—too often and too much. Whoever it was who was irrigating his garden allowed too much water to come down the trenches and when it overflowed, it took with it many of the water-soluble nutrients from the soil.

Therefore, wherever overflows or runoffs are allowed on terraced and irrigated soils, there will be a positive leaching of the nutrients, which will end in imbalance and cause crop difficulties and bring on insects and diseases.

In Hunza, each farmer applies his water personally and when sufficient water is put onto his fields and crops the flow is immediately stopped. In Gilgit, the P.A.'s gardener didn't worry if there was any runoff. In the first place, the land wasn't his own. Secondly, he had a large area to look after and probably couldn't give it as close attention as it required. But with the Hunza farmer it was entirely different. He had only a small amount of land ranging from ¾ of an acre to 5 acres, sometimes made up of 3 or 4 pieces—some as small as 1/10 of an acre each. Therefore he could afford to watch every inch of it with care, affection and understanding, and I'm sure the Hunzans learned long ago that the overflow could in subsequent years bring disease, crop failure and destruction.

As I walked among the farms in Hunza, I specifically looked for the overflowing of irrigated terraced lands, but I did not in one case see this happen . . . which led me to believe that the Hunzan farmers have learned that principle well.

Along the trail, whenever I came in sight of the irrigated patches that indicated the cultivated farmland of the area, I tried to figure out exactly what the 241 different crops were. In my travels throughout other parts of the world—for example, in Europe—I would be hard pressed to pick out the different crops that were being grown in the fields by their color, their height and the way they bent or leaned with the breezes that blew. But all along the trail leading to Baltit, on both the Nagir and Hunza sides, this problem was not as great, nor did it cause me as much difficulty for identification purposes, because the majority of crops growing was wheat.

I kept looking for rice paddies, because I definitely had the feeling that throughout this part of the world a lot of rice would be grown. And while I found a lot of rice being grown in Pakistan, Afghanistan and India, in Hunza and Nagir rice in the fields or paddies was distinctly conspicuous by its absence. I did find a field here and there, but they were definitely few and far between.

Students and those interested in organic agriculture have looked upon Hunza for many years now as the last stronghold of nature's way. Because of the importance attached by many people to conditions in Hunza, I tried to make my study as careful as possible. As yet there is no sign whatsoever of chemical fertilizers being used.

Because of the terraces built one upon the other, Hunza farming has been termed "staircase farming" and this staircase farming has some, if not many, advantages. First, it effects good drainage. Second, it gives a deeper penetration of air into the soil. This soil aeration is considered beneficial to soil microorganisms and it promotes rapid growth, and enables the bacteria and the roots of plants to derive much benefit from the elements contained in the air, which can be combined with those in the soil.

The glacial waters definitely do contain a variety of 241 minerals and by allowing these glacial streams to be spread over the soil, the nutrients are left in the soil as the water soaks into it.

The principle of returning to the land that which belongs to the land has been and is, at the present time, scrupulously followed. The only farm implement which [407] I could find on the Hunzan farms was the primitive [492] plow and invariably it was pulled by a bullock. The plowing is never deep and is practiced chiefly to sort of clean the field, cover the organic matter that has been spread upon it or left upon it and prepare the field for the next crop.

[464] All the work that has to be done is done by hand—with or without the assistance of domesticated farm animals. There is no substitute for manual labor and the men, women and even young children share in the farm work.

[137] From what I could observe, weeds were not a problem and the reasons are clear. There are few indigenous, native plants in the area. Practically all of the growing plants that I could spy were in cultivated areas. The maxim in Hunza evidently is if a place can grow weeds, then it should be cultivated and usually that principle is followed. This all adds up to the fact that there are few weed seeds distributed in the area and therefore they are not in the soil to spring up, whenever the farmer's back is turned.

[134] I want to stress once more that the mineral requirements of the fields of the Hunza farmer are met and replenished by the fine silt, ground by the glaciers from the rocky surfaces and carried down to the Hunza farmers by the conduits and spread on their land.

Our modern civilization attaches great importance to and stresses the value of flavor and appearance in the commodities that they eat. If that is the criterion, 241 then I am forced to admit openly that the fruits, vegetables and cereal grains of Hunza do not compare with those of the West.

Contrary to what any writer, expert or visitor to [114]
Hunza has stated, in my opinion and belief, Hunzan fruit, vegetables and grains are not superior to those of the West. From the strict viewpoint of taste, size and appearance the American fruits, vegetables and grains are far better than those grown in Hunza. In this matter I must humbly yet fairly state, that the American standards and qualities in fruits make the similar varieties of fruits of other countries seem poor, puny and second rate by comparison.

Hunza need not feel too badly because of this as millions of dollars are spent annually in America by a hundred or more experimental farms of vast acreages, breeding fruits, nuts, vegetables, forage crops and grains. If some of these newer varieties of fruits or vegetables and grains were grown on Hunzan soils and under Hunzan conditions, I might have a different story to tell.

Let me cite an example. In America, in order to find a better strain of strawberries, millions—and I repeat, millions—of seedlings have been planted. These plants have been carefully tended and watched. Then a selection of a mere handful from all of these for further testing was made. From these results a few new varieties which have shown an excellence of habit of growth, vitality, good foliage, ease of propagation, resistance to various diseases, flavor and color of fruit, good bearing qualities and other important factors were selected and disseminated throughout the country. No one in his right mind would expect tiny Hunza to follow such a procedure. In fact, only in the United 000 States would such an undertaking be possible.

It is difficult to make comparisons flavorwise because there are many varieties of each and every fruit and vegetable. We have all eaten peaches that were filled with juice and flavor and others that were flavorless and mealy. We have all eaten carrots that were sweet and crisp and we've also had them where they had no flavor and tasted like dried wood or were bitter. Two different kinds of carrots grown on the same soil can have an entirely different flavor. This could be applied to beets, peas or any other garden crop. The fault therein does not always lie in the soil, but in the inherent characteristics of the variety itself. Therefore the superiority of the flavor of the fruit in most cases lies in the variety, rather than in the soil in which they were grown. Sometimes time of harvest is a factor, too.

241 While I would very much like to say that the natural organically grown Hunzan fruits and vegetables and grains were much superior in flavor to those grown in the West where chemical fertilizers are used, I am afraid that I cannot honestly make that statement.

But I suggest that the thoroughly inbred organically minded individual take heart. If the people of Hunza had soil that even remotely resembled our best near virgin soils in tilth, humus content and expanse, along with the newer and better strains of fruits, vegetables and grains, I am sure they would have the best flavored, best tasting and best quality food crops in all creation.

I know for an absolute fact that there are many farmers—hundreds and probably thousands of them in both Canada and the United States—who do not use chemical fertilizers. Perhaps it is my good fortune to eat most of my grain, fruits and vegetables from such farms and in truth, I strive in every instance to procure organically grown fruits, vegetables and grain. Further,

7:Tobe C.T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

on my own farm we definitely and positively use neither 241 chemical fertilizers nor sprays.

You can understand in Hunza that tastewise there is no interference or problem from chemical fertilizers and sprays.

I believe that the myth about the flavor and succu- [114]
lence of the Hunzan apricots came about because visitors ate the apricots ripe and freshly picked from the trees, whereas at home the apricots they ate were picked from the trees days before, because they had to be shipped long distances, and therein lay the difference in flavor.

In January, 1959, I sent the Mir of Hunza good 123 sized packages of the different kinds of hardy wheat 241 that were created by the experimental farms of the 177
Dominion of Canada. It was special seed, tested for hardiness in the colder areas and of such quality that would produce a fine loaf of bread.

I also sent the best strains of carrots, cabbages, Brussels sprouts, lettuce, beets and other vegetables. But when I was dining with the Mir and asked him about the results with the seeds, he admitted that the only seed they had got planted that year was the lettuce, which was being enjoyed at the Mir's table. He said that he would try the rest of them the following year.

It is understandable that the Western world would have better varieties of fruits, vegetables and grains, because here we spend millions and millions of dollars on hybridizing, trials, selections and improving the various strains . . . so we should get some results from our efforts . . . and we do! Therefore, without question, the Hunzans could profit by using Western strains of grains, vegetables and fruits. This is one aspect of modern civilization that could help them greatly.

The apricots that I saw, tasted and ate were not the 123 huge fine quality products that I was told they were. I 241 admit here further that I was in Hunza in July and the 177 later, perhaps the better, varieties were not available or ripe yet. But upon questioning the various people, there was no information given to me that indicated the later maturing kinds were superior to the earlier ones.

So as in vegetables and grains, their fruit could be greatly improved by adopting some of the Western varieties. This could easily be done by having budwood sent to them and they in turn would graft this budwood onto their young stock.

I have made arrangements with the Mir of Hunza and the P.A. at Gilgit to supply them with this required grafting wood at the proper time, and it will be duly sent to them, so that in the future they may have some of the benefit of the West's hybridization and research program. I took along with me a few of the best budding knives that I could procure and I left two with the P.A. at Gilgit and the others with the Mir of Hunza and I explained their use.

245 In talking with the Mir about the planting of new varieties and improved strains, he claimed that his people did graft and seek new varieties and strains, but from the little time I had to inspect things, I did not see any young trees or any great number of grafts that would indicate this being a widely practiced policy. I found nothing resembling a nursery in Hunza or Nagir, but there was a small, unimpressive nursery run by the Pakistani government in Gilgit. Maybe this is the forerunner of bigger and better things to come.

241 There appears to be no central source of seed supply in Hunza. It seems that each farmer saves seeds for next year's crops or barters with his neighbor. In some [T-3] years, when, because of any one of many conditions that may exist or be created in an agricultural community, no seed is available, the Mir has been known to procure supplies from neighboring states and supply his people with sufficient planting stock. 241 643

While through the entire East cow dung and yak dung are used for fuel, in Hunza this is positively not true. The Hunzans are too intelligent to use the mainstay of their lives for fuel. Once it is burned it is gone; but if it is put back into the land, it is there to produce crops for another year. They show their intelligence, if proof of their intelligence is needed, by this one sound principle of self-survival in their means of agriculture. 241 372

However, in the more northerly sections of Hunza, closer to the Chinese border, they do use yak dung for fires because of the almost total lack of wood or other types of fuel. They just have to keep themselves warm during the winter.

Here is a list of the vegetables grown in Hunza—potatoes, turnips, carrots, beans, peas, lettuce, pumpkins, tomatoes, melons, watermelons, radishes, onions, cabbage, spinach, cauliflower. 244

In fruits there are mulberries, apricots, apples, pears, peaches, grapes, walnuts, almonds, a few plums and some cherries. 245

Grapes are grown fairly extensively because they can plant them against most any wall, as long as they have a bit of soil in which to gain a foothold for their roots. From these grapes they make their Hunzan wine. [273]

They grow a few strawberries, but I could find no currants, gooseberries, raspberries—nor did they know what raspberries were.

The grains grown in Hunza, starting from the most important, are wheat, barley, rye, millet, buckwheat and a small quantity of rice. Some alfalfa is grown as a forage crop. 243 246

231
[263]

There are no bees in Hunza and, consequently, no honey unless it is imported. This will probably come as a surprise to most people. I suspected this even before I reached Hunza. That is why I went in search of bees and honey in Hunza. But search and peer as I did, no bees were to be found and upon questioning I found that, though they had even tried importing them, they didn't remain or they died off.

Obviously the Hunza terrain is too tough and arduous for bees. Bees, contrary to what most people believe, like it soft. Set out a field of clover or a good sized patch of asters or other good honey-makers and bees will flock to your land, but, where you have a scattered flower here and there, the bees either won't bother or won't be able to find them.

Probably from a purely economic reason the bee finds Hunza uninviting. He probably would have to fly too far and too high to get any supply of nectar or honey and I don't think he'd make as much food as would be required to supplant the energy that was being used up. So after taking the important factors into consideration, it is clear that it is unwise for bees to live in Hunza. Even if it were possible to get a couple of colonies of bees established, it would do the Hunzan farmer no good because if he took away part of their honey, they would starve to death. A bee in most instances, where at all possible, stores more honey than he will require. He plays it secure by allowing a margin of safety. But in Hunza he'd have a hard enough time getting sufficient honey to keep him through the winter—let alone having some for the Hunzan farmer! From this it would appear that bees are not as smart or diligent as we think they are—or are they? Can they be blamed for seeking more colorful flowerier pastures?

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 48

Religion and Customs

THE PEOPLE of Hunza are Mohammedan. From all reports that I have been able to gather and from their own voluntary statements, I assume that religion with them is something that they don't go overboard about. As a matter of fact, Hunza is one of the few countries in all the world where there has never been any religious strife, nor does even the faintest glimmer of it exist there today.

In other words, they can take their religion or leave it alone!

Just how important a part this plays in the economy of the people is hard to estimate, but one thing is sure —religion does not make the demands upon their time that it does with many other people. In the East, where religion can be a mania or almost a complete absorption or way of life for many people, this can be of vital consequence.

643 Here I will quote from The Autobiography of Sir 771 Mohomed Nazim Khan, K.C.I.E. (Mir of Hunza from 798 1892-1938 and grandfather of the present Mir):
[127] "The people of Hunza were originally idolators and they became Shias when intermarriage with the ruling family of Baltistan was arranged and later, when my great grandfather Shah Salam Khan was on the throne, most of the country became Maulai. In Ganesh and Hinni, there are still a few Shias and two Sunnis. When I became Mir I declared to the people that they could adopt what religion they would, which annoyed my advisers who said that a country with many religions was bound to fall. I said that religion had nothing to do with ruling and have proved myself right in that there has been no religious strife in the country since that time."

788 Maybe the Hunzan farmer mumbles his prayers while he is working, but he seemingly doesn't appear to stop from his efforts on behalf of his farm.

000 From my actual experiences in seeing and viewing religions throughout the world, I am of the opinion that, where religion demands too much of a man's time, his industry suffers and this affects his standard of living. It is a possibility that pious, religious people throughout the world will take exception to this but, nevertheless, I am stating this as my own opinion, based on my findings and observations, and that's all it is. If anyone wants to debate the point with me, I'd be happy to provide the time and the opportunity.

The Hunzans are not fanatics and therefore they can devote more time to their labors than those who spend their time praying and resting, because of religious holidays and observances.

852 Being Mohammedans, circumcision is practiced on 304 all male children. Normally this operation is performed when a child is one month old. Due to any one of many circumstances, it can be put off, but it is performed before the child becomes of school age in practically all cases. 852 304

The Mir told me a case of a man who came from Murtazabad. He had gone away to Persia when he was just young and eventually returned to Hunza uncircumcised. Then he met a girl, fell in love and wanted to get married. Before the marriage ceremony could be performed, he had to allow himself to be circumcised. This, in a mature male can amount to major surgery and a long period of illness, pain and recovery. 582 304

Evidently circumcision has been proved beneficial to mankind because, from the information that I have received, it is now generally practiced throughout the Western world as well. It is unthinkable that any Mohammedan would take unto himself a wife before he had been circumcised. By law a man can marry at 15 and a woman, or should I say girl, when she is 9 years of age. Therefore it is almost compulsory that circumcision be performed before a male is 15.

It is quite common for the parents to arrange for their children's marriages when quite young. That is, the parents betroth the children to each other even from the tender ages of childhood. Nowadays in Hunza the men marry between the ages of 19 and 21 and the girls from the ages of 13 to 15. Actually that isn't too far different from the custom in the West. 582 [584]

All marriages take place at one time of the year in Hunza—usually December 21st—and there must be snow on the ground on the Hunzan wedding day. Where the Mohammedan law runs in opposition to the Hunzan law, the Hunzan law invariably prevails. 585 [671]

Yes, there is divorce in Hunza, but it is very rare. 586

586 The Hunzan law says that in such cases a child must remain with the mother until it is at least 10 years of age. Of course the child can remain with the mother after that period, too, but the father does not have to pay for its keep after that. Divorce is granted to a man only on the grounds of adultery.

Under Hunzan law a woman cannot get a divorce due to any action on the part of her husband. How-[643] ever, on some occasions where there has been extreme provocation or other clear logical reasons, and the woman brings her justifiable complaint for divorce before the Mir in person, and if the Mir believes her case merits divorce or separation from the man, he will ask or demand of the man that he divorce his wife.

If the wife decides or wants to leave her husband's bed and board of her own free will, the husband does not have to pay for her keep. She will not receive sustenance from him, but he does have to supply her with clothing twice a year.

587 In the event of the death of his wife, the husband is required to wait two months and seven days before he can remarry. However, with the woman, in the event of the death of her husband, she must wait three months and ten days before she can remarry.

586 683 The Mir gave me an example of a divorce case where a certain man had the insidious habit of beating his wife. It seemed he would administer a sound thrashing at the slightest, or even without provocation, until the girl's parents and friends began to fear for her life. In this instance the wife-beater was notified quite clearly and distinctly that it would be in the best interests of all concerned if he gave his wife a divorce.

586 I don't know in what light they regarded this, but now that they knew the man was an avowed wife-beater, if any other woman took the risk of marrying him, she would at least know beforehand what she had to contend with. Then again, as the Mir performs all marriages, maybe he wouldn't allow this young man to take a second wife. I did not inquire any further into the details concerning this case, but I admit that I was somewhat surprised to think that a good healthy happy Hunzan would resort to one of civilization's favorite pastimes . . . wife-beating. 586

Wife-beating generally seems to be broadly practiced in Hunza. This struck me as being most strange for I could see little cause or likelihood of opportunities for misdemeanors on the part of the wife. 593 683

Upon taking the matter up with the Mir, he told me that most cases of wife-beating were brought about by nagging, and in Hunza that is sufficient justifiable cause for a man to administer a sound thrashing to his wife and she can't take him to the Mir's court about it, either. The next most frequent cause for wife-beating is over-generosity to her parents with her husband's possessions.

Wife-beating under such provocations as stated might meet with universal support and approval on the part of mankind. There may be principles and practices in Hunza that will not find widespread support in the West, but I'll bet on the basis of the two causes for wife-beating there will be broad, if not general, male approval. 000

By Hunza law a daughter cannot inherit property. The best that she can get in a property settlement is the use of the property for her lifetime. It then must revert to a male member of the father's family. There have been instances where a daughter has been willed an individual tree—in most cases, an apricot tree. This remains her property, or at least the crops do, for as long as the tree or she lives. 428 423

684 837 Morality in Hunza is of a high level, equal to that of the best records in the world. Sexual promiscuity on the part of either male or female is practically unknown. It is clear and established that they are clean thinking and clean living people. However, the Mir did tell me that on rare occasions there was trouble involving the eternal triangle.

644 853 608 The strangest custom that I found practiced in Hunza was that followed by the royal family . . . that is, the Mir's family . . . and it pertained to their children. As soon as a child is born to the royal family, it is given out to foster parents to be reared and brought up by these parents as their own. And there the royal child remains for an unspecified period of years. The child is brought to the palace on occasions and then returned to its foster home.

The exact purpose for this practice was hard to pin down. I felt that probably it was done to save the queen or Rani the difficulty of raising the child through its infancy. I also thought that perhaps this would allow the queen to have more children, and thus be sure to create a long line of descendants to follow in the ruler's footsteps or lineage. It was also suggested that this was a way or manner or means of strengthening the ties of the ruler with his people—a sort of democratic gesture.

The people to whom the child is given out for rearing are referred to as "milk parents" or "milk family." The tie that is thus established with these people is never broken. The individual members of the family are referred to as the milk-mother, the milk-father, the milk-brother and the milk-sister.

In every case, before the child is given out to its milk parents, their character, their habits and their way of life are carefully scrutinized so that the royal couple know that the child will be given a fine upbringing. 644

It is to be expected that the milk parents will be given much consideration and favors from the Mir's household and family . . . and the Mir has and still does provide better than average homes or residences for these selected people. 853 608

In Hunza at the present time, the Mir has built a row or unit of bungalows for these milk parents and they are given food and necessities from the royal kitchen.

I have tried to find some connection of this practice with other nations or peoples. So far my search has been unsuccessful in this regard.

Death is not the serious thing with the people of Hunza that it is with most other peoples throughout the world. That does not mean that there is no sadness and mourning, but it does not take on the same scope and seriousness that it does in the West. This is primarily due to the religion and beliefs of the people. Being Mohammedans, they believe in predestination . . . "So Allah wills." 761

Seldom are graves of departed kinfolk visited—nor are flowers laid upon them. In fact, very little maintenance is ever carried out on graves. Visits to the graves or graveyards are definitely not encouraged. The dead are revered, but visiting the grave of the departed is not really the accepted thing in Hunza. 769 765

The dead are often commemorated by having roadside lean-tos or "baldies," as they call them, erected for them . . . where a man can stop and find a bit of shelter during a storm, or rest his pack or load. They also build "jhurks" or water holes to serve the same purpose. Women are seldom commemorated in this manner. The best that a woman can hope to get is a rock pile erected in her memory. 769 764 [484] [312]

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza
Nagir

CHAPTER 49

Hunza vs. Nagir

184 AFTER I'VE had some time to think over the experiences of my visit to Hunza, I've been asked by others and I've also asked myself, "Is there any reason for the evident superiority of the Hunzans over the neighboring peoples?"

So I took the case of the people of Nagir, for example, and made comparisons with them. I'm not even sure whether that is a fair or proper means of comparison.

It seems somewhat strange to me that while the virtues of the people of Hunza were being extolled, the bad features or unredeeming qualities of the people of Nagir were being brought to the fore. So I took pains [101] to search and investigate and I came up with the fact that the people of Hunza and Nagir are of identical stock and that it was people originally from Hunza who populated Nagir.

7:Tobe C, T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza
Nagir

Then wherein lies the difference? What happened through the years to create the obvious difference that everyone sees and feels the minute he comes into the territory? I am not an anthropologist, nor have I training in any scientific field. Therefore, I am quite unprepared to speak with any degree of authority, but I am told the difference is that the people of Nagir accepted or welcomed strangers and settlers from other parts of the area and thus, they became a polyglot group of mixed blood, habits, customs, religions and thought, whereas the Hunzan people, then and today, discourage outsiders from coming to live among them in their country. Then, too, I guess another important factor looms and that is that Hunza is not nearly as inviting from an economic viewpoint to a man coming from another part of the world to settle, whereas Nagir does offer many more advantages.

For me to assert that there are no mixed bloods in Hunza would be an untruth, because even in my travels about the towns and along the road, I saw distinct types that were not of the run-of-the-mill Hunzans. Some were distinctly Chinese and I am also reasonably sure that there is a fair amount of Afghan blood among the Hunzans, besides Russian—for, as you may recall, Russia is but a scant 14 miles away.

It is not my intention to try to build up a case for true-bloods as being the Hunzan heritage, for history clearly indicates that it is among the people of mixed bloods where the greatest advances are made in science, industry and the creative human arts.

In Hunza there are very few plains or expanses where farming on a large scale could be practiced. However in Nagir it is quite different. There were sections through which we passed that were wider than the eye could reach, covered with good soil that was carrying

184 a good crop of various kinds of grains, forage, vege-
241 table crops and fruits. In Hunza this just doesn't occur.
311 The terrain is steeper, more precipitous, more difficult and seldom if ever does a flat open area come within the limits of normal vision.

[133] Then, too, Nagir has many more nullahs formed by the melting glaciers. Rakaposhi is located in Nagir and surrounding it are many snowfields and glaciers which are used, trained and harnessed to irrigate their country.

Indubitably, the fates and nature have been much kinder to Nagir than they have to Hunza.

438 Let me also tell you frankly that on many occasions the people of Hunza purchase or barter various types of food from Nagir. I asked the ways and means that [437] were used in effecting these deals and found that in most cases money—earned by the Hunzans in service in the army, portering for expeditions and given to them as gifts—was the means.

184 One might gather from what I have said and even [628] from talking to various people or natives of the area, that the Nagirwals and the Hunzans are deadly enemies. But that is not true. The people of Hunza [186] think themselves much better than the people of Nagir. They do believe that they are handsomer, healthier, cleaner and are better husbandmen, but yet there does not appear to be any cases of conflict, physical or armed, between the two peoples.

123 I recall a little incident that may be of some interest. We rounded a spot—I guess it was 10 or so miles from Minapin—on the way up to Baltit and there we saw a decrepit, ragged looking Nagirwal. In his hands he [231] held a pair of chickens. They were the typical chickens of the area—full grown but the size that our chickens are when they're half grown. He waved them in front of us as though indicating they were for sale or could be

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza
Nagir

had. We slowed down—we didn't actually stop—and 123 our guide asked the price, or got into some hassle-tassle about them anyway. The discussion took place in Burushaski.

There didn't seem to be too much palavering and our bearers took the two scraggy birds and stuffed them into their coats—one each, just as we would stuff something into our inside breast pocket. The chickens' heads stuck out, but they didn't seem to make any great attempt to get away. I didn't see any money change hands.

Then the old fellow disappeared behind a thicket for a moment; it was a group of willows and other shrubs or trees growing there. He came back with a butchered one and he tried to press it upon me. I didn't want it, but the man was so earnest in his desire to present it to me. I didn't know if he wanted money or not, but he didn't seem to care. He just wanted me to accept the chicken. I didn't want to offend him and as pleasantly as I could I kept shaking my head. But he did not heed my protestations and tried to force the chicken on me.

Then I got off my horse and when I did, I more or less subconsciously began to rub the muscles of my legs. He quickly dropped the chicken and kneeled down beside me and began to massage my legs for me. I tried to stop him and my bearers intimated to him that I didn't want anybody rubbing my legs, but he insisted. When at last I got him to desist, we began to walk on and he followed us for two or three miles, still trying to give me the chicken. So I asked Sherin if he wouldn't take the chicken or get one of the other boys to take it.

He was undoubtedly the friendliest coot I ever saw in my life. He was as dirty as the dirtiest pig and 123 smellier than limburger cheese. But so help me, dirt, stink and all, he was a likeable fellow. If only we could have ducked him in the water and got a scrubbing brush and some soap, I probably would have enjoyed his company.

Somewhere near the next village he left us. He was almost in tears at the thought of parting. I had a quarter rupee silver coin in my pocket and gave it to him. He didn't want it but he thanked me at least 200 times for it. I'm sure he would have given me his lousy old shirt if I would have accepted it. As it was, he waved us good-bye with tears in his eyes.

643 The Mir of Hunza and the Mir of Nagir are on 628 friendly terms, but I don't for a moment imagine that they are bosom companions. Yet the Mir of Hunza's wife, the Rani, is a Nagirwal. Her uncle is the present [582] Mir of Nagir. In fact, through the centuries, while the people of both these states were at loggerheads with each other, the ruling class intermarried and were always on amicable terms . . . and so it continues.

I will quote here again from The Autobiography of Sir Mohomed Nazim Khan, K.C.I.E: "From time to time we have tried to have relations with Nagir that were friendly but they have never lasted, although there have been marriages between the ruling families of both countries. My father and Zafar Khan, Mir of Nagir used occasionally to meet and I remember well the formality of these occasions. Each would come with a large number of followers and would halt on his side of the river. On one occasion Uzar Khan came over to Hunza and there was a great feasting; on another the Mir came and I and some other people from Hunza had to go over to the Nagir bank of the river and remain there as hostages until the Mir returned."

000 The Hunzans do not only show their superiority over

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza
Nagir

The Hunzans do not only show their superiority over the Nagirwals, but over others as well. The P.A. at Gilgit, in a discussion that I had with him, admitted that when the Hunzans moved down the valley to the Gilgit area, they showed their heritage by surpassing anyone else in the district when it came to working their lands and producing their crops. They worked harder, they worked longer, they worked better. They used their experience and intelligence to greater advantage, with the net result that they were soon buying more and better land. 157

So far only a few of the Hunzans have come down to Gilgit, but the native Gilgiti farmers are already showing their resentment. Obviously they find it difficult to compete with the Hunzans on an equal basis. [167]

I compared the Hunzans with the Scotch people and I think the comparison has many realistic qualities. Both peoples live in a more or less barren, hilly, rocky, rough country. Both peoples have learned the value of being frugal and thrifty. They waste naught and want naught. They are chiefly outdoorsmen. They are strongly nationalistic. Then, too, they are physically independent and have little or no fear of anyone. 181

When I was talking to the P.A. I called the Hunzans "the Scotsmen of the East" . . . and I trust the Scotsmen won't be offended. In fact, they should be flattered.

Where I think the people of Hunza gain most of their superiority is in leadership. From the little research and reading I have done on the subject, it appears that for many long years the Hunzans have had good capable leaders—really strong men who ruled their people with a firm hand. 643

In reading the autobiography of the Mir's grandfather, one quickly sees that he was not only a man of action but one of ability, foresight and reason.

Now I did not meet the Mir of Nagir. Although I [123]

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza
Nagir

643 wrote to him and asked if I could come and visit him,
123 he did not reply to my letter. No, I'm not annoyed nor am I saying anything unfavorable about the Mir because he didn't answer my letter, but I would have liked to meet him so that I could speak more authoritatively about the many unfavorable statements made about him and his people.

However, I spoke to many people who knew the Mir of Nagir personally. I passed right by his official residence both on the way up and on the trail back. It was pointed out to me and I stopped and looked it over.

643 Whereas the Mir of Hunza is respected—not only in Nagir and Hunza and the entire surrounding country, but in most nations throughout the world—the Mir of Nagir is more or less unknown and does not even have any great amount of social intercourse with his own people.

Whenever I met a Hunzan on the road and spoke to him about the Mir of Hunza and the Mir of Nagir, he would hold himself erect and say through our interpreter something like this, "Our Mir is loved and respected by his people and everyone else. His name and fame have spread throughout the world. The Mir of Nagir, nobody knows of or likes him!" If this was said to me only once or twice, I would pay little or no attention, but a similar vein of thought and expression was portrayed on many occasions.

643 I think further that the Mir of Hunza has given a 186 high standard and caliber of leadership to his people. It was apparent wherever I went. He made his people believe and feel that they were good people, that they were equal to the best people of the world and that they were cleaner, stronger, healthier and more intelligent than others, and he was not telling them anything but the truth! The Hunzans hold their heads high.

7:Tobe C, T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza
Naqir

Therefore, it is my belief, one of the reasons for the Hunzan high standing throughout the world is due to the excellent quality of leadership that they have enjoyed for many years, and is being continued by the present Mir and his staff and family. 643

I don't want anyone to run off with the idea that everything I saw about the Hunzans impressed me or that I thought they were exceptional in every way, because that definitely is not true. I did then and I do today admire the people of Hunza for all the splendid qualities that make them outstanding people. Anyone who could live in the harsh, tough, back-breaking terrain of Hunza must be made of stern fiber. Yet they have their foibles and weaknesses as well. 123 114

You see there are no immigration rules or laws to stop them from going anywhere in that area . . . at least, there weren't until recently. They could have gone to China, India, Afghanistan, Russia, Pakistan or anywhere else where the pickings might have been easier. But their love of freedom and intelligence that told them they were better off than most people in the world, even though financially poorer, kept them on the mountain slopes that are the banks of the Hunza. 486

No book on Hunza would be complete to even a small degree, unless some mention was made of the fact that it was not always known as Hunza. In fact, back before the turn of the twentieth century, Hunza was known as Kanjut and the people as the Kanjuts. 101

From records that I have located, I learned that, when the rulers of Shignam came to Hunza, they called the valley Kanjut. That name remained until the time of the Girkis and they called the country Hunza, because all of the people were united like the arrows in a quiver. In the Burushaski language Hunza means "arrow."

CHAPTER 50

Flora and Fauna

123 My Visit to Hunza was not basically a botanical or horticultural visit, much as I would have enjoyed spending a few weeks hunting, searching, climbing, delving into crevices and peeking into and over the rocks, crannies, cliffs and river beds—yes, and fields and anywhere a bit of green could be seen.

The speed at which I traveled along the mountain roads was slow and tedious, but it was even slower because of my interest in horticultural specimens that I noticed here and there and which I stopped to examine. But my stops to examine the flora were not very frequent during the first few miles, due to the simple fact that there was not much flora to investigate, except the omnipresent Fog plant, which no terrain seemed to deter. Then of course, there was a great similarity in the flora and once I had seen a plant, I did not stop to investigate another of the same species.

137

However, I did stop often enough on plant examinations so that I was always a few miles behind my friend, Cec, who was not concerned with the flora. 123 137

I want you to understand that I did not do an exhaustive detailed study of the flora of the Hunza district. I am sure there are many, many more plants in the area than I have indicated or found. I just examined what I happened to pass and see. I definitely did not go out and search for specimens away from the beaten path.

You can take my word for it, the vegetation under any and all circumstances is definitely not spectacular. However, any of the plants that are found growing in this area most certainly should be hardy enough and virile enough to do well in most other parts of the arable world. 137

It is my belief that the flora of the Hunza Valley is neither varied nor numerous, apart from the fruit and nut trees which are in most cases not indigenous. The apricot, though, could be native to that part of the world . . . at least, that is what I gathered from my studies and observations.

Apricots were grown in the greatest number, followed by mulberry, walnuts, apples, plums, peaches and pears. Here and there I came upon a pomegranate tree. These, I am positive, are indigenous to the surrounding area, if not to Hunza. [245]

The trees that I passed most frequently on the roads and trails and in the towns were eucalyptus, willow, birch, poplar and the oriental plane, sometimes called sycamore and known in Hunza as the "chenar" tree. I believe these are all native to the vicinity.

I was disappointed, surprised and even shocked to find the area completely devoid of conifers or evergreen trees. I saw one pine tree in the P.A.'s garden in 137 Gilgit. With the eyes of an eagle I scanned the roadways, the byways, the mountain slopes, the rocks, the cliffs, the highlands, the lowlands, but nary a conifer did I spy.

One day when we got to see a different slope of Rakaposhi, I looked up and there about two-thirds of the way up on its higher reaches or slopes was a cluster of trees and they looked like and must have been conifers. But wait . . . Rakaposhi, according to the [133] records, is 25,550 feet high. Unless I'm as blind as a bat and cockeyed, to boot, that cluster of trees was at least two-thirds of the way up. I was standing at 9,000 or 10,000 feet. So two-thirds of the remaining 15,000 feet would be 10,000 feet. So 10,000 plus 10,000 makes 20,000. Am I trying to tell you that I saw trees growing at approximately 20,000 feet? The tree experts say it couldn't be. They would scoff, deride and ridicule my statement, for it is written and believed that the timberline is somewhere around 10,000 or 11,000 feet —or does that apply only in the North American scheme of things? Well, that might be in America, but I will swear and attest that it doesn't hold true in the Himalayas or the Karakorums. Could be that I may be erring by a couple of thousand feet or even three thousand but it would still mean that this copse or group of trees was at least 17,000 feet up. Yet I know, I feel, I am convinced that it must be 20,000 feet. I repeat this even at the risk of being called a lunatic. I've been called that before!

Other writers claim they saw pines on their travels in this district. I think they were just talking or trying to grasp something to describe in that bleak, bare area. I saw the one single pine tree I mentioned earlier in Gilgit . . . and it had been planted! Well, I'll have to let you figure it out. I'm just telling you what I saw and what I think.

I admit that I would very much like to some day climb and find out exactly what those trees were, but Rakaposhi is one of the most difficult of all mountains on earth to climb. It took 23 attempts to conquer Rakaposhi. The first 22 attempts failed, but a British expedition succeeded in scaling her summit in 1958. One side is almost a sheer drop, so from that side I'll stay clear. Of course there wouldn't be anything growing there, anyway.

The ascent of Rakaposhi was accomplished by the British Pakistan Forces Himalayan Expedition, 1958. Captain Shah Khan, the Mir's uncle, was a member of the expedition. I quote from the account . . .

"Captain Shah Khan was a most important and useful member of the expedition. He personally selected our 6 Hunza porters, and being a Hunza man himself, in fact the uncle of the Mir, we hoped for great things from them. We were not in the least disappointed."

The expedition started May 12th from Gilgit and established a base camp on May 26 at 14,000 feet. It was on June 25th that two members of the expedition, Mike Banks and Tom Pattey, reached the summit, under terrible conditions of winds and drifts.

Varieties of shrubs in Hunza were more numerous. I saw a few wild roses just like any wild rose you see anywhere. The flower had a slight fragrance and was reddish-pink in color.

Then there was a plant that resembled barberry, except it had a blue berry instead of a red one. The berry was edible. I tried some and found the taste pleasing and sweet, but there was very little meat or pulp. It was practically all skin and seeds. It was much 137 more prickly than our barberry. In fact, it seemed to have 5 prickles for every one that ours have and they were longer and stronger and more painful.

I recognized a variety of honeysuckle, too.

Then, of course, there was the imperturable "chush." It was found growing everywhere. I understand that its orange colored berries, which vary greatly in size, from that of a grain of millet to that of a large pea, also are edible, although they weren't as sweet or as pleasant tasting as the blue barberry, as I call it.

Caragana seems to grow widely in the area. I saw caragana plants ranging in size from 10-12 feet to one that was barely 6 inches tall, replete with all the trimmings, including the ripened seed pods. I stood entranced and marveled at the sturdy little plant growing out of the bit of soil that had fallen on the surface of a rock. I was strongly tempted to take some seeds back with me but I was quite certain that if the seed were sown in our fertile soils, the plant would quickly lose its dwarfing habit and only because it was so tiny did it look so cute and appealing.

Tamarix grows broadly. In fact, it is the most widely seen plant, shrub or tree in the area. On a few occasions we stopped, rested and found a bit of shade and comfort under a tamarix thicket or bush.

Herbaceous plants were more common again. At varying places along the river bank could be found fairly extensive patches. There was "fog" to which I will refer a little later, and a most formidable looking thistle, that neither man nor beast nor insect could get close to without feeling the barbs. My guides and bearers all warned me to stay away from it. I wanted to get some of its seed and feel, handle and examine it. On a few occasions I was determined to investigate it thoroughly, but they actually pleaded with me to leave it alone. It contains poison, they told me, and it would actually make me sick and my skin would break out in sores or a rash. 137 [824]

In truth, I wasn't much worried, but, on the other hand, prudence must be considered. I was a long way from home, with a medicine kit that consisted of a bit of bandage and some salve, and I was in no position to do battle with some unknown, dangerous and perhaps poisonous plant. So I heeded their entreaties and left that symmetrical, unusual, neat but murderous looking plant alone. [122]

The plants that I actually saw in flower along the trail or in the fields were very few. There was the wild rose, the fog, the inconspicuous flowers of chush and the fringed gentian and a few poppies. Remember, this was in July and very few plants, shrubs or trees are in flower at that period.

Yet, I must bear in mind that from Gilgit to beyond Altit the difference in maturity would run about two weeks. While I ate some of the last of the cherries at the Political Agent's table in Gilgit, when I got to Baltit I was eating the first of the cherries that the Mir had picked from his trees of exactly the same species and variety. In fact, I came upon many peculiarities caused by the altitude and the proximity to the river. In one place the fog plants, for example, were in flower and in other places along the route, they had already formed seed pods. Again, in other spots the seed pods had already burst.

This is not unusual, because if you examine the situation in the Niagara District, for example, at Queenston the cherries are in full blossom when in Niagara-on-the-Lake, along the lake, the buds haven't even swelled. There is a difference of 10 days to two weeks between Niagara-on-the-Lake and Queenston and the distance is a scant 7 miles.

The plant that impressed me most was the fog plant.

137 I've tried to locate it in my botanical encyclopedias but so far have met with failure. It appeared to be an annual but such a robust growing annual I have never known before in my life. (It could have been an herbaceous perennial—I'm not 100% certain. But I do know it started from the surface because there was no old wood or old stems on any of the thousands of plants that I saw and the hundreds that I examined closely.

If you know the winter creeper, or euonymus, then you can quickly understand what this fog plant looked like. It seemed to thrive in practically any location that would give succor to a living plant. In some places it was small and compact. In other locations it grew large and sprawling. It grew out of the rocks and hung down. It grew against the sides of the mountains and climbed up. It resembled, in many instances, a low growing shrub, but it was entirely void of wood. In other cases it grew erect and in still other places I found it sprawling around the ground in a wide area, making an excellent ground cover.

It is my estimate that I did not come across more than 30 different types of perennials or annual herbs. I am sure you will agree that it is understandable that the flora of this area would not be wide or tremendous.

133 Undoubtedly the valleys along the Nagir side were more lush, looked better and were larger than the cultivated areas along the Hunza side. One of the reasons for this condition is the fact that the Hunza side is more precipitous and the walls of the canyon or mountains are steeper and more sheer, leaving less opportunity for soil to accumulate, be cultivated and grow plants.

247 In the homes, from my observations, and I made careful study of this aspect, I did not see a sign of one single house plant. This applies to the Nagir side as 247 well. Of course this is readily understandable when [354] you realize that they have no glass or light. The only light they would have in a Hunzan home would be the bit that streaks in from the hole in the roof or through the doorway. This lack of light would not be conducive to growing plants indoors.

I recognized and found one lone dandelion plant and 137 believe me, when I found it, my heart was glad, gladder than it would have been if I'd found a beautiful rose.
It has always been my belief and contention that dandelions are found where'er plant life can survive and this plant bore out (to a degree) my lifelong contention. As long as a dandelion can be found, one need not fear starvation. The greens of the dandelion, es- ooo pecially when young and tender, make delicious salads
. . . but remember, be sure to get the young tender shoots. The roots are roasted and ground, and they make a beverage that some authorities say is as good as coffee. The root can also be used the same as parsnips. Herbalists prescribe dandelion coffee for dyspepsia, gout and rheumatism and they claim, with sincerity, that it possesses most beneficial properties for such ailments. It is also recommended by the herbalists for kidney and liver disorders and Potter says it is perhaps one of the most generally prescribed remedies
. . . "It may be given in any form but its beneficial action is best obtained when combined with other agents." Now besides all the above virtues, its flowers and milky stalks make delicious wine.

This one single lone dandelion—the only one I saw 137 on my trek—had caught a foothold in a crevice of a rock and was growing on this steep wall. I felt like ooo embracing it and pressing it to my heart. But if I had,

000 I would have crushed it, so I desisted. I'm sure I spent 10 minutes admiring, blessing and caressing that dear little dandelion.

So the next time you're in your garden or weeding your lawn and you go to raise your voice against the dandelions and perhaps take a weeding tool in your hands to play havoc with them and ruthlessly cleave them from your lawn and garden, think of Tobe pressing that lonely little dandelion plant to his heart . . . this poor, lone dandelion struggling against the harsh elements and millions of tons of hard rock on a little perch in the high Karakorums. There is Tobe speaking to that gold-headed flower and plant, as though it were a lifelong friend that he has met or encountered in an outlandish place—yes, there on the true roof of the world! Allow a drop of milk of human kindness to drip from your heart. After all, a dandelion has green leaves and a truly beautiful, soft, luxurious looking, golden flower!

* * * * *

136 I was almost tempted to leave out this part about the fauna in the Hunza area, primarily due to the fact that I didn't see much fauna. Not being a hunter, I didn't go after any animals and very few crossed my path. However, in describing the fauna of a country, I guess it is not absolutely essential that one see all of the specimens with his own eyes in order to describe them or tell about them.

000 I recalled that some years ago I took a trip through Alaska and the Yukon and, in a trek that encompassed well over 4,000 miles up and back, all I had to show for my perseverance was the sight of one moose. But that would not, as you well understand, indicate that there were no animals in the Yukon and Alaska area, because that area abounds with wildlife. So I'll have to let that yardstick stand for Hunza, too.

I didn't see any water buffalo in Hunza itself, but they are to be found in the Gilgit area and therefore I suspect they are to be found, if not in the principality of Hunza, at least in close proximity. Well, if you find water buffalo, then there is sure to be the Mana or Lali bird. It's a medium sized bird that is very much like our cow bird. He perches right on the back of the water buffalo and works away like a woodpecker, picking out the insects that infest the water buffalo's leathery hide. Thus, he prevents serious injury and disease from spreading from the hide into the flesh of the animal. 136

This is just another one of the myriad of intricacies that follow in the paths of Mother Nature—how she seeks to balance things for the benefit of all. Here the bird finds a way and means of obtaining food and nourishment and the buffalo keeps healthy and everybody is happy!

Ibex are part and parcel of the Hunza scene. So are the ovis poli or mountain sheep which are actually quite scarce, but are found if one goes high enough into the mountains. The Hunzans call the ibex "markhors." I learned that "markhor" means "eater of snakes," for the ibex, which are actually goats, are known to the people of Hunza for this habit. This also indicates that snakes are found in Hunza. As a matter of fact, every now and then one hears or comes across a snake on the trail. When this happens on a narrow trail high up on a ledge and your horse rears on his hind legs, pawing with his fore . . . 'tis not conducive to a long and boring life! [825]

The Mir of Hunza is quite a hunter. He enjoys shooting and is a true sportsman. My friend, the P.A. at Gilgit, is also an ardent sportsman. Between them, they told me that they had bagged, at one time or another, crows, vultures, golden eagles, geese and ducks, pheasants (two kinds), chicoris (which are their partridge), 224 [643] 136

136 pigeons and doves. They also vouch for the fact that sparrows, skylarks, nightingales, canaries, magpies, falcons and hawks were part of the common scene throughout the district.

The P.A. told me that on his hunting excursions he has on a few occasions come across both brown and black bears and I know there are also leopards, because the P.A. presented me with the hide of one of them, which now graces the living room of my son's home.

Inasmuch as small animals are concerned, I don't think you'd find too many. They like to go where food is more readily available than is the case in the sparsely vegetated Hunza area.

[134] I don't think burrowing animals would be common to the district, because one can't very readily burrow through rock, and that is what 99% of the Hunza terrain consists of.

231 Incidentally, the goats that are kept by the Hunzan farmers are not by any stretch of the imagination similar to the larger ibex that are found in the hills. The Hunza goat is a diminutive fellow that is bred for its dwarfness and ability to give lots of milk for its size.

223 224 Apart from the fall duck hunt when myriads are felled, and the occasional hunt with shikari to bring down the renowned ovis poli (Marco Polo sheep) from the 18,000 foot pinnacles, Hunza cannot be called a hunter's paradise.

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 51

They Chose Years Ere Comfort

I WILL NOT go on record as stating that some Hunzans have sired children at the ripe old ages of 80, 90 or more, because I have no proof of such occurrences, although this information was relayed to me by some people of authority. 842

Yet, I would not disbelieve or laugh at that statement, because from my studies I have found that where the human body is fed natural proper food, the regenerating process in the body can be maintained for a long time. Yes, and all the faculties can be alert and keen well into a ripe old age. Most certainly the people of Hunza have lived and still live, in the main, according to the laws of nature.

I would, without hesitation, accept the fact that the people of Hunza are longer-lived than most people. Everything about their way of life seems to lend credence to the tales. I investigated, I asked questions and 165

165 I checked as thoroughly as possible and there are at least a dozen men in Hunza over 100 years old and no doubt a hundred over 90. Yet the oldest man that I met was 105 years old but by his appearance, his speech and his activity, he'll be around for a good many years.

No, I don't think anybody was trying to fool me about their ages. I can't see what they could gain by it. On the other hand, I don't think I'd be the easiest man in the world to fool. At least my friends don't think I would be. If and when you meet the Hunza people, you will find that you accept them as a fine, upstanding, honest race. Therefore I cannot see why they would necessarily lie about their ages. Of course [217] no vital statistics are kept in Hunza and therefore they cannot offer proof by means of birth certificates concerning their ages.

I met a few groups of men, all of whom claimed to be in their 70's and over, and they were a mighty healthy looking bunch of individuals. Most certainly the average group of people in any part of America at that age wouldn't remotely resemble that fine group of Hunzans.

164 I don't think that is hard to understand. People who have been denied luxuries and who have had to work all their lives and spend a lot of time in the open air doing manual labor should be healthy, especially when they have good natural foods.

[165] It is my sincere belief that the ages and the health of the people of Hunza have not been too greatly exaggerated.

It is possible that I have strange ideas, but I've always believed that physical work and exercise have a lot to do with a man's health. Well, in Hunza if exercise will make them happy and healthy, they should be the happiest and healthiest people in all the world. There are, remember, no transportation facilities whatsoever, There 164 except the Mir's jeep which the citizens of Hunza don't [493] get a chance to use. There is no other wheeled vehicle in the entire country. Practically every step is a climb or a descent. So no one could really accuse me of exaggeration if I were bold enough to say that they're probably the most active and energetic people in creation. It could hardly be otherwise.

To illustrate another proof of their hardiness, all 147 along the trail we met people from Hunza walking barefoot—from young children to boys and young men and old men. While some wore shoes, most of them were [291] barefoot. They walked over sand, over gravel, over stones, over plain dirt roads without any misgivings.

I watched them with awe as they ran, walked and skipped over these exceedingly rough spots and I was convinced they must have exceptionally strong, sound. healthy feet and legs.

On a few occasions I watched the Hunzans digging [412] with a shovel. 'Tis done the ordinary natural way there —barefooted. That certainly proves, at least to me, that their feet are in wonderful condition. Most people in America can't dig worth a darn wearing heavy boots!

It is unqualifiedly a fact, in my humble opinion, that 164 the people of Hunza owe their splendid vital good health in part to these sound principles—their way of life, their food production and the way they prepare the fields for their crops—all accomplished in a natural normal way. Civilization may have many advantages—great discoveries have been made, machinery has been invented that does the work of many, many hands. In this modern machine age, a man need only work a couple of hours a day to supply himself with all the food, clothing and shelter that he can possibly use, but 164 obviously this type of living has taken its toll. Thousands, if not millions, of men are dying at 40 and 50, struck down by heart disease, diabetes and cancer. Well, isn't it strange that these diseases are unknown in Hunza?

000 "For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" MARK VIII: 36

Of what use is it if man has leisure, food, clothing, the best and most comfortable of homes, if he doesn't have the years of life in which to enjoy them? What good is it striving, straining, sweating when you are young so as to have a pleasant old age, when there just won't be any middle or old age?

I'm not suggesting that anyone give up the comforts to which they are accustomed, but I would suggest that modern living has caused a softening or a decadence in the very fibres of our bodies, which is showing the result in the deaths of many men in their prime —at 35, 45 and 55!

If you had the choice of dying at 50 or living in Hunza under their austere conditions to be 80 or 90, which would you choose? Think it over. I know . . . you'd choose the 50 years of soft, modern, debilitating life because you are led to believe that it is a good life. Methinks you'd be making a terrible mistake. Not many men in America are smart enough to live to be 80 or 90. In Hunza it happens whether you're smart or not, because you can't commit suicide by eating. If you want to die by your own hand, you've got to jump off a precipice.

'Tis true, the people of Hunza do not have any of the modern doubtful blessings to which I refer, but they do have, for you and all to see, health, strength, endurance, a smiling and pleasant countenance and many years of life free of disease and sickness.

I would very much like to have you ask of me now a question such as this one, "To what do you attribute the health and the long life of the people of Hunza?"

In reply I would just love to say, and allow my voice to ring both loud and clear, "Their natural way of living! The way they follow nature's path!"

While the above is absolutely true, it is not the whole story nor is it that simple. The path or road to health and long life is not an easy road. No, it is totally unlike the paved, graded, banked highways that we know in the West. It is exactly like the Hunza Road through the glittering peaks of the world's highest, most perilous mountains.

Good health and long life seldom, if ever, come to a man by sheer good fortune, luck or accident. My observations tell me that health and long life, like the price of freedom, are to be had only by eternal vigilance. One must continually watch how he lives, how he practices field husbandry, what he eats and how much he eats. It is absolutely true that the people of Hunza use no chemicals either on their farms or in their foods. To begin with, they do not have the wherewithall with which to buy them. Secondly, it is problematical as to whether or not they would take to them. But as I have related, they have taken to salt and some sugar, so the chances are they may take to other of civilization's titbits and ways, if they get the opportunity.

Yes, I feel that I have learned the secret of the excellent health and long life of the people of Hunza. I did not learn this by accident, either, but it gradually dawned upon me and came to light when I combined my actual observations on the scene, my close and insistent questioning of innumerable people, and last but not least, from actual scientific research in an ap-164 proved laboratory by a qualified technician.

164 Their food is natural, simple, unsophisticated, with-262 out any unnatural, inorganic, synthetic additives whatsoever. There is no fragmentation in the foods they eat. They do not separate any part of the wheat when they make flour, nor do they separate any part of the other grains when using them.

252 Due to necessity they do not cook foods too much, nor do they cook any food that can be eaten and enjoyed without cooking.

Food is a serious, all prevalent problem. The few trees that they have and that they can grow must be protected for food, shade and timber.

However, I must truthfully admit that the reason that the Hunzans do not cook their food is because of the scarcity and inaccessibility to supplies of fuel.

751 Vaccination is not practiced and, as far as I know, 744 is unknown in Hunza. Pasteurization in any form is neither practiced nor known. Chlorination is unheard of. Fluoridation is unheard of. No coloring whatsoever is added to any of their food, not even their butter.

263 Up until recent years the salt used by the people of 439 Hunza came from the Shimshal area, somewhere near where the Shimshal River and the Muztagh join together. This salt is unrefined and used just as it is mined from this mountain area. It obviously contains many natural so-called impurities.

493 The only wheeled vehicles—two jeeps, in fact—are owned and used by the Mir chiefly for bringing in supplies, when road conditions permit. Therefore one must walk for every chore. There is no motorized 377 equipment used in Hunza with the exception of the electric light plant in the Mir's palace. Apart from what 401 I have mentioned here, mechanization of any sort is unknown.

Both the irrigation water which they use on their fields and their drinking water come from the Ultar Glacier. Therefore, their entire water supply is glacial. 312

Their entire economy is dependent upon their agriculture and everything that is taken from the soil is religiously returned to the soil. Chemical fertilizers or chemical sprays of any type are unknown to the people. It may be possible that the Mir has used sprays in his palace grounds. He might have brought them with him from his visits abroad, but I saw none and, to the best of my knowledge and belief, none are used. I saw no insect infestation of any kind or type through my entire travels and investigations. In Gilgit I did see insect injury in a garden and it was apparent to me that the soil of Hunza was in balance and therefore it produced food that was balanced. Therefore, it is understandable, the people of Hunza are healthy! 241 [433]

The food of the people of Hunza is in the main, raw food. It is neither dissected nor desiccated, but is eaten in the whole. The only exception that I could find to this rule was in their milk. When they made butter, they drank the remains or the buttermilk. Of course, in due time, they ate the butter. 262

All children born in Hunza are breast fed for at least two years. Male children are often breast fed until they are 3 years old. 853

I do not intend to stress any one factor of the points mentioned above. I am submitting them to you for your consideration and study. 000

It is, however, my belief that their soil and location does not lend itself to mechanization and therefore their good health should continue. If they could mechanize, then they would not get the needed beneficial exercise which, as you can gather, is one of the important contributors to their good health and longevity. 241 164

842 The country cannot afford or support a greater population than exists there today. Therefore, they will have to practice birth control, which it is claimed they already do but with which I disagree, or they will have to send their youths out of the country, which, as a matter of fact, they are doing.

311 There is very little chance of finding or creating more arable land in the country. I believe they have practically every inch tilled now that is tillable. There is no land left in that part of the world that is yet to be broken.

000 Their land and their fruit trees are their whole life. Their health, pleasant dispositions and industry, which they possess to the highest degree, are their entire wealth.

578 Quarreling among children and adults seems to be something that doesn't exist in Hunza. I found close affection and love was the general, accepted pattern throughout the area. This is even more surprising when you realize that most of the houses in the villages are built practically one on top of the other.

181 It was clear to me that they knew no worries and 152 that they create no worries. There was absence of jealousy, greed, covetousness and hurry. Their outlook on life is most unpretentious. They are proud people and do not grovel before anyone and they do not pretend to be anything but what they really are.

433 Every Hunzan farmer is completely self-sufficient, even though he might trade for something that is in short supply or that he would like to possess. He grows wheat, barley, potatoes, millet, cabbage, beans, onions, lettuce and occasionally a bit of rice. In their orchards they have apricots, apples, pears, walnuts and mulberries. Every family has sheep and goats and sometimes a cow or an ox, and occasionally a yak. They till their own land. They spin their own wool. Then they 433 weave it into cloth from which they cut and sew their [286] clothes. However he can also buy or trade for woolen cloth or he can have his own wool woven for him.

They have little or no money. The few dollars that 436 he might get during the year would come from the 485 expeditions that congregate in the area and hire the Hunzans as porters. And they are unsurpassed at this difficult and arduous work.

A man has a right to inflict corporal punishment 593 upon his wife if she nags him. Perhaps that is why the men of Hunza have that cheerful look.

The children are never neglected because the parents are always at home. Further, the children do their 857 share of the work in the fields and are taught to do so from early childhood. This also eliminates juvenile delinquency.

The people of Hunza have splendid dispositions. 157
They are genial, pleasant, smiling and cheerful. They 181 have deep respect for authority, profound love of the land, affection, compassion and understanding for their neighbors and they are most hospitable to strangers. They hold their heads high, their chests out and they are strong, honest and hard-working. To me this showed ~~000~~ clearly and positively that people can live and that agriculture can exist and thrive without chemistry, chemical fertilizers, chemical sprays or synthetic medicines and drugs.

They enjoy happiness without modernization, long life without doctors, nurses and hospitals, democracy without bureaucracy, law and order without police and self-sufficiency without money. Part of the answer, if not most of it, is their loyalty to and their faith in their land, a pure case of unremitting agriculture and putting everything back into the soil which was taken 000 from it the organic method of land use.

262 From what I have seen, I have deduced the fact that the people of Hunza use less fat of any kind than most people found throughout the world. Some nations may lack animal fats, but make it up by fats found in [133] fish. The people of Hunza have very little animal fat and no fish, for there are few lakes in the area and the only fish that are found in the streams are those that were placed there, in an attempt to stock the Hunza and Gilgit Rivers and some of the nullahs.

They do get some fat from the butter that is made from the milk of the goats, sheep and a few cows and yaks. They also get a bit of fat from their walnuts and the kernels of the apricot seeds, neither of which can be considered to be high in fat content.

Lest you think that this lack of fat would have some effect on the people, let me stress that there are no more energetic people found in the world and they are continually active.

251 As soon as fall sets in and the harvest is completed, they carefully select and store and prepare their winter's larder. Then they divide and apportion all of their foods so they will last them throughout the winter.

262 An important addition to their winter diet is a gruel or a soup that they make from the various grains and this is eaten with their chapatties.

515 164 Dentifrices or toothpastes or powders of any kind are not used in Hunza. Yet the people have unusually fine teeth. False teeth, plates or dentures are unknown. So even at the expense of antagonizing the toothbrush and toothpaste people, it would appear that these implements and concoctions do not create good healthy teeth.

* * * * *

000 I have debated within myself whether or not I should make my findings public and there were many reasons why I felt that I should keep my findings to myself, the first of these being the fear of ridicule. My findings are so radical and unusual that they will no doubt be hailed as fantastic. Next, in this modern day a college degree seems to imply that when you speak, you speak with authority, with knowledge and with proof. For myself, I do not accept that theory, but it is accepted by the public by and large. I hold no university degrees. I am an empiricist. Call it quackery if you like—I won't flinch. I believe that the knowledge and experience gained through thousands of years is not to be treated lightly, that it ought not be discarded as soon as some pseudo-scientific fact is heralded by paid-for publicity in newspapers, magazines, radio and television.

Therefore, when the whole mass of statements and events are simmered down, they amount to the following: I have no axe to grind; I have no commodity to sell; I have no demagogic theories to expound; I am not a vegetarian nor a communist nor a capitalist; I do not seek a following; I am not trying to found a new religion; I do believe in helping my fellow man wherever possible, not by forcing my views upon him, not by brainwashing, not by repetitive jingles, rhymes or slogans, but by the simple expedient of reason; I seek to tell you what I believe, what I have seen, what I have learned and observed. Just how you use that information is strictly your own affair.

I have performed not only my duty, but my purpose, and that is to inform and enlighten you. If you do not see fit to use or accept the illumination, that is strictly your affair and I'll neither condemn nor applaud you. It could be that you regard this so-called philosophy of mine as naive or oversophisticated. Then I will agree that you have a right to your own opinion.

 [pp.452-456 not processed]

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 53

Hunza Health Secrets

RIGHT HERE at the beginning of this very important chapter, I want to state emphatically that it is easier to remain healthy in Hunza than it is here in America.

I realize that this may sound paradoxical and that many people will question the truth and the validity of this statement. But I reiterate boldly and clearly that it is easier to remain healthy in Hunza than it is here in America.

I have been asked over and over and over again by people in all walks of life and by both sexes, "What is the secret of the health and longevity of the people of Hunza?"

"There is no secret!" I reply.

"Is there a secret or mysterious food they use in Hunza that brings about their good health and long life?"

"There is no secret manna, food or jelly that is used 000 in the process of creating health and long life in Hunza!"

Here I have summarized my conclusions, which I believe account for the superior health, the unbounded energy and the long life of the Hunzans. Call it a set of rules if you like. I prefer to believe that it is the common sense way of life adopted by an intelligent people.

262 (1) Their food consists chiefly of natural fruits, grains and vegetables. Meat is eaten only on festive and other rare occasions. While grains—that is, the whole grains—are stored, they are ground for use in baking and gruel, only as required.

241 (2) Their soil is maintained by natural cultural practices. That which is taken from the soil is returned to the soil—both vegetable and animal.

461 (3) Most of the people of Hunza, including women and children, work daily in the fields. There is no Sabbath or weekly rest day, although there are religious holidays and festive days. Therefore, they work seven days a week . . . and in most cases, from dawn until darkness falls. Therefore, practically all the inhabitants of Hunza do their share of physical work. There are few, if any, completely sedentary occupations in Hunza.

262 (4) Very little fat of any kind is consumed by the people. The fats that are used consist of ghee, butter, apricot oil and negligible quantities of animal fats.

[241] (5) Complete absence of foreign additives. Nothing whatsoever is added to either the soil or the food of the people or the animals.

263 (6) Natural, unrefined salt was used by the people up until a few years ago . . . and this was an important factor in maintaining their health.

241 (7) No sprays or spray materials of any kind are used on their crops, and no unnatural chemical fertilizers are used on their lands. 241

(8) All children in Hunza are breast fed. There is no specific prenatal care, and the good health of the mother is passed on to the infant . . . and the breast feeding gets the child off to a good start. 853 843

(9) All fruits and vegetables that are dried for storing have been exposed to the sun and air. No foreign substances are added or treatments used. 251

(10) Native herbs are used extensively . . . both as seasoning and as food. 262

(11) Glacial waters are the only waters used both for drinking and irrigation purposes. These glacial waters definitely contain many valuable minerals and nutrients, as revealed by laboratory tests. 312 146

(12) Apricot kernel oil is the most important source of fat. It is used in cooking as well as for salads. No solvents or extreme heat is used to extract the apricot oil. 262

(13) Natural whole grains are used broadly. There is no fragmentization in Hunza. While they do bake a bread, their chief form of bread is an unleavened type which they call chapatties. They are composed of whole ground grain made into a dough and rolled very thin. Then they are heated or baked slightly.

(14) Hunzans are light eaters. Their diet is comparatively meager.

There is no doubt that, if any human being were to follow the health rules of the people of Hunza, he could regain or maintain health. There is no magic formula connected with this set of rules. They are simple and to the point. In fact, they are so simple that most people will doubt their value. To these people I would say, "All of the great things in life—the important things and things of value—are invariably simple!"

In Hunza the following established Western health 744

744 processes are unknown and unused: chlorination, pasteurization, hydrogenation, inoculation, fluoridation.

262 The single most important food, as used by the people of Hunza, consists of dried apricots and whole ground grain mixed together to form a toddy or a gruel. This is actually drunk cold and is enjoyed by all members of the family. It is usually partaken of during the late afternoon or early evening.

Their other important foods consist of the following: potatoes, garlic, beans, peas, carrots, tomatoes and some leafy vegetables. In fruits, they have mulberries, apples, walnuts and a few plums, pears and cherries. Grapes are used chiefly for making wine.

They grow a fairly broad selection of grains: millet, wheat, barley, rye, buckwheat and a little rice. Lucerne [231] or alfalfa is generally used for cattle fodder.

[245] The Persian Walnut is the chief nut grown in the area. Almonds are raised, and their cultivation is increasing. A fair quantity of apricot kernels are used.

Ghee is used for baking and as a spread on their chapatties or bread—the oven-baked loaf. Sour milk, buttermilk and curd are a regular part of the diet.

Meat does not form an important part of the Hunzan way of life.

Most foods are consumed raw. The lack of wood or other heating materials probably accounts for the paucity of cooked foods in their culinary art.

147 There are practically no cases of overweight among the people of Hunza. The importance of this factor cannot be overestimated.

000 The path to health is a simple, easy-to-follow road. It is the most natural way in the world to the people of Hunza. However, to follow a similar path in America would involve complications, difficulties and many frustrations.

I have personally given the matter much careful thought and consideration. My conclusion is that, in order to follow the Hunza principles of good health, one would have to own a small plot of land or a farm . . . or dwell in a part of the country where one would be close to a supply of natural foods.

But there just isn't the faintest doubt about it. It is the sure road to good health and long life.

[pp. 462-464 not processed]

7:Tobe C, T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 55

Treasured Gifts

EITHER I AM most naive or I have an awful pile of unmitigated gall, because I kept harassing my fine and wonderful friend, the Mir, with continued questions. Luckily for me, the Mir is a most understanding man and he tolerated my questions. In fact, I sometimes believe he welcomed them. 115

I recall on this day we were chatting in his sun-living room and I said to him out of the clear blue sky, "Do you have any hermaphrodites in Hunza?" 838

A puzzled expression appeared on his face and he shook his head and said, "I don't know what you mean. I never heard the word before."

I smiled and said, "Don't let that make you feel too badly because most people, even native born English or Americans in many instances have never heard the word before either."

I started to grope for another word that would

838 describe what I meant, when I spied the doctor standing close by. So I called him and waved to him to come over, which he did. I then said to him, "Would you explain to the Mir the meaning of the word hermaphrodite."

Now, as I have told you, the doctor was a Pakistani but although young, he was learned, having both his science degree and his medical one. With a flicker of a smile on his lips, he translated the word to the Mir in Urdu.

A glow appeared on the Mir's face and suddenly he broke into a chuckle and then it went on to uproarious laughter. I stood by mystified. Even the good doctor wore an air of puzzlement.

I waited a minute or two for the Mir's laughter to die down and then I said to him, "Tell us the joke, too, so we can join in the laughter. After all, laughter is something that should be shared."

At this he broke out laughing again. So we waited calmly until he cooled down. Then I said, "Now take it easy and tell me just what the joke is."

Containing himself as best he could, he replied, "Why I've got one of those things you mentioned working for me right here in the palace."

Then we all began to laugh. When it was all over, he said, "Strange you would ask about a thing like that. Actually I know of one other one in Hunza. That makes a total of two."

"If you are interested," he went on to say, "the name for hermaphrodite in Burushaski is 'mukhanas' . . . but enough of this!"

* * * * *

123 After lunch the Mir said, "Come with me! I have something I'd like to show you."

He then led me into the room I've been referring to as his trophy room. There, neatly laid on a long table, 123 was a beautiful ornate set of silverware, a three piece [415] tea service. It was the most unusual and elaborate design I'd ever seen. I recognized it as the leaf of the chenar tree, which is similar to our maple. I do not profess to be a connoisseur or one who appreciates objects of art, but I did recognize this as being something especially fine and unusual.

He said, "This is from the Rani and I. I hope your wife will like it!"

He then presented me with a most unusual cane. It 123 is made out of some native Hunzan wood, white in 481 color—chenar I imagine. The handle is made very ingeniously, so that you have something to hold firmly in your hand, as well as a place to rest your thumb. Then the entire length of the cane and the handle were studded at regular intervals with what the Mir explained were pieces of ibex horns.

Ibex are found in the hills. They are a wild moun- 136 tain goat, usually found above the snow line. They are a good sized, hefty animal, standing between 3 and 3½ feet high at the shoulder. They're sturdy beasts as they well must be to live among the highest and most precipitous hills in all creation. For agility there is no animal that can match them. They are crowned with long ridged horns curved backwards, usually black in color. These tough, imperturbable mountain goats reminded me of the people of Hunza and I thought there was a great deal of similarity between them. They are, as far as I know, afraid of nothing.

I'm not a hunter—I didn't go after them. Some of the men said they could be found readily. Others said you had to go far up into the mountains in order to find them. But by the number of horns of the ibex I saw in Gilgit, Baltit and all along the route I traversed, 136 I was of the opinion that the ibex are quite plentiful, and if anyone went to Hunza with the idea of shooting game, he could without too much difficulty satisfy his bent.

[224] Then, too, the rare ovis poli, the true Marco Polo sheep, can also be found in this area. While they are by no means easy to locate, if you took the trouble to arrange for proper trackers or shikari, I'm quite certain that within one or two days' travel you would find and shoot ovis poli. If you're going to try to tackle the Marco Polo sheep, make sure you're a good mountain climber, because they are seldom found below 16,000 feet and usually a thousand or two thousand feet above that.

I asked the Mir where the big difference came in between the ibex and the ovis poli. It seems that the ovis poli are larger with a body as large as that of a donkey and the horns have three distinct sweeps. Of course the ibex is a goat and the ovis poli is a sheep.

080 He wanted to know if I was interested in shooting them. I said, "No, thanks. There are many other pleasures I prefer."

I can understand and appreciate the shooting of game for food or clothing but for sport . . . well, I've always felt that a man can prove his prowess without slaying useful, harmless beasts. Let it be said in fairness to the sportsman and hunter that in most cases he protects, disseminates and raises more than he shoots and therefore he pays for his sport. If it were not for the true sportsman (and I am saying that qualifiedly and reservedly—the true sportsman) many birds and beasts that exist today would have been exterminated by wanton killers, who also sometimes parade under the name of "sportsmen."

I will go along further and say that the sportsman who climbs the lofty crags around Hunza to bring down 000

the Marco Polo sheep or ovis poli is entitled to his bag. But after all, who am I to deal so generously with the life of another animal?

Then the Mir had for me two Hunzan hats of the 123 type that the men wear and also two women's hats, the 291 latter brightly colored and very neatly embroidered. [531]
He also gave me a bolt of elegantly embroidered red silk, displaying a young man and woman, a bird of paradise and what was more appropriate, a yak. Then last but not least, laying beside the other items was a white hairy mass, which for the moment I did not recognize. It was a yak's tail.

Then he said, "There is a pair of typical native Hunzan shoes being made especially for you and they will be sent to you as soon as available. I'd like to send the shoes to you later, because I am waiting for some new hides which some of my men will bring down from high up in the mountains when they've had a chance to bring down some of the ovis poli. I want you to have the best."

"I guess I can wait for the shoes," I jested. "The ones I am wearing, plus another pair that I have in my knapsack, will carry me back along the Hunza trail, I think, but I certainly will be happy to have a pair of Hunzan shoes as another momento of my visit to your most enchanting country."

Then suddenly a thought occurred to me and I said 302 to the Mir, "I notice all of your men are clean-shaven . . . that is, except for the occasional one now and then who has a little beard around his chin. Therefore I know for certain that you must practice shaving in Hunza. Yet I have seen nowhere a sign of a razor. Further, I'm reasonably sure that this is one part of the world that King Gillette has not invaded with his

302 safety hair removing instruments. So please tell me what kind of an instrument the people of Hunza use to remove the hair from their face."

[326] "I'll be glad to show you!" . . . and with that, he displayed a homemade razor, one made by the smithy of the village. "Similar instruments are made by the smithys in the various other villages throughout Hun-[795] za," he went on. "Our religion recommends that our faces be kept clean of hair."

"I will also have a razor made for you and sent along with the shoes."

123 "Thank you very much," I said to the Mir. "I am very grateful. I was really and truly hoping you'd say that, because that is another item that I would love to add to my collection."

I didn't know how to thank him for all these very lovely gifts, but I was somewhat concerned as to how I'd carry them all the way home. It was absolutely unthinkable to ship them individually or separately because I certainly wouldn't want any of them lost.

With the exception of the silver tea service, the other items were things that I had specifically wanted and had mentioned at one time or another. The Mir had keen ears and each and every item that I had mentioned was there as a gift for me.

To my friend, Cec Brunton, he also presented a Hunza hat and a cane of a little different type.

Not being a hunter it is understandable that I would not appreciate an ibex or a Marco Polo sheep head as a trophy, but most assuredly I would hang or display all of the items that the Mir was presenting to me most conspicuously in my home. And if perchance my wife wouldn't feel that some of them were sufficiently ornate or perhaps were unbecoming to her living room, then I would proudly hang them in my office. In fact, I felt even here that I would be happy to wear that Hunzan hat on my strolls during the winter around my home town. The fact that some of the villagers might think me a bit queer wouldn't bother me one iota, because I haven't the faintest doubt they think I'm queer anyway. So a little added fuel won't make much difference. 123

I hate to admit this but truth will out, so I might as well confess. I actually coveted a Hunzan spinning apparatus and loom, but I didn't have the courage to ask the Mir for one of them. I thought perhaps this might be a little too much. I was bothered by the fact that perhaps they needed it worse than I and I would be depriving them of it if I took it back to Canada with me. But I did want one and I tried to think of a way or a means of purchasing or getting one without asking the Mir for it. Perhaps my readers can understand my predicament. Here was a man who was doing most everything that a human being could possibly do for another, for me. I would have gladly paid him for the spinning apparatus and loom, but I knew he wouldn't take any money and if I told him I wanted it, it might be an imposition—I knew he would get it for me. So after debating the matter with myself in my mind—which took probably 5 seconds but takes 5 minutes to tell—I decided to let the matter rest for the moment.

[pp. 472-479 not processed]

CHAPTER 57

So Long--But Not Good-Bye, I Hope

WHEN WE reached the dining room at the appointed hour practically the entire group of the previous evening was there. Both the Mir and the Rani were present, of course.

This was the customary breakfast and, as usual, I chose the Hunzan bread rather than the chapatties. Somehow I never could take a liking to the chapatties, but I did eat them in places where there was no alternative such as Hunzan bread. Their bread is truly one of the most delectable breads I have ever eaten anywhere. They must use yeast in making it because it is not flat like a chapatty. On the other hand, it is not high like our bread either. It is an oval shaped loaf about 3 inches thick in the center and about an inch thick at the edges. Yes, it is made out of stone ground, untreated, whole wheat flour. I can vouch for that because I saw the actual wheat being ground into flour.

Then there was ghee or yak butter to be used as a spread. Most of them at the table selected ghee. I chose the white yak butter. 262

Western types of raw vegetables on the table are conspicuous by their absence. I had all my meals at the palace and the only raw vegetable on the table at any time was lettuce and the lettuce, the Mir informed me, was from seed that I had sent him some months prior to my arrival.

So it is clear that vegetables like lettuce, celery, cucumbers, cabbage, carrots, radishes and such are not generally used in this part of the world as a fresh salad with meals. I do know they use onions and peppers. The onions that I saw were of the green type and I recall being presented with a bunch of them by a youngster who popped out of one of the houses on the trail. I gave him a small coin as a gift or reward. The child couldn't have been more than 3 or 4 years old and he shouted with glee and joy to his mother, holding the tiny coin aloft for everyone to see. He seemed happier at the gift of that coin than any youngster I can ever recall. I'm sure the big hundle of green onions was worth many times what I had given him! 123 436

I believe this illustrates just how scarce or unusual money is there!

This was a sad breakfast for me because now I was on the threshold of leaving and I wasn't too happy to go from this enchanted place. I walked slowly down the long staircase that led from the palace and the rest followed behind. 123

There in the yard was the jeep with the driver and a few servants waiting and watching. Our baggage was placed aboard.

I left a sum of 40 rupees with the Mir to divide among the many servants who had given so graciously 123 and generously of their services.

Then, with sincere good-byes, good wishes and promise of the Mir to come and visit us in America, where I promised him the use of my home for the duration of his stay, the jeep was off!

We were following the same trail that we had come up on, only this time Cec and I were in much better shape than when we arrived.

492 'Twas hardly more than 15 minutes before we pulled up at the end of the jeep road. The horses were waiting. Mine was a big black heavy fat pony and, I quickly observed, a stallion, to boot! He looked a little bit too bold for me but the Mir had assured me that he was as gentle as a kitten, strong as a bull, fast, sure-footed and intelligent. The horse Cec was to take looked very much like mine except he was brown. They were two mighty splendid pieces of horse or pony flesh. There was another horse in the group which we presumed was to be used as a pack animal.

291 I noticed when Jahangir got out of the jeep and was walking towards the horses and bearers that he limped somewhat. He was still wearing the pair of heavy, thick-soled and metal heeled army boots with which he had set out from Gilgit. Somehow this reminded me of the folly of trying to beat a man at his own game. The people of Hunza have been living with and under these conditions for 2,000 years or more and it is somewhat superfluous to say that they would have gathered by now the right kind of footwear to put on their feet. And here is what I found.

Practically all of the children wore no foot coverings. They went about barefoot. This I do not mean to infer as being the case only around their homes, but on the mountain crags and trails as well. Most of the boys and girls were barefoot, but there were some who wore shoes and these were similar to the general type of 291 shoes that are worn in the West, except they didn't lace up in the front, but folded over and your toes stuck out. This type of shoe could be purchased in any of the shops throughout Pakistan and India and even the small town bazaars offered these shoes for sale. It was a sort of heavy-soled sandal, although the tops did have a little more leather and it wasn't quite as open as an ordinary sandal. These shoes are called "chaplis" and are best described by saying they are heavy-soled, sandal-type shoes worn chiefly by the people who live in or near the rugged mountain areas.

Another type of shoe that was worn (or should I say, foot covering) was the actual native type. They were made of soft leather. To me it felt very much [237] like chamois or suede, but I know from questioning that it was made from ibex, sheep, cow or yak hide. The skins of any of these animals were used for making these shoes as well as other commodities. The soles, too, were soft but of a little heavier consistency than the uppers. They usually reached to about the knee and they were tied with a piece of string, usually around the ankle.

Occasionally I saw another type of foot covering and this was as old as time itself and consisted of rags wound around the soles of the feet and the ankles. I'm sure back before man learned to spin and weave, he used leaves and bark on the soles of his feet, as protection against the rough terrain and rain, snow and sleet.

I had already learned the reason for the open-toed affair. The fact that it allowed air to circulate around the foot is good enough reason in itself, but in the event of a pebble or a small stone becoming lodged in the boot, it could be shaken free without stopping and unlacing the boot and removing the stone. With the 291 open toes it could be just shaken out. These were the low or oxford-type footwear. Then the reason for the high tops on the other kind of shoes was clear. It meant that pebbles and stones and debris couldn't fall into them.

291 I learned, too, that in walking over trails of this type
122 one should always have on shoes that were sewn and in which no nails were used. On more occasions than I can attempt to recount, I stepped on a sharp rock and the nail in my soles or rubber heels went piercing through the soles of my feet. I had to stop on each occasion, unlace and remove my shoe, then get hold of a suitable rock and bang away until I bent the nail so it would no longer prick the sole or heel of my foot. So if you ever contemplate walking on roads or trails of this type, remember my warning, make sure that your shoes are sewn and have no nails in them.

122 The pack animal that was prepared for us was good enough to ride—much better than either of the animals that we had come up with. So Jahangir decided to use this mare as his mount and he sent his guide scurrying about to see if he could locate another pack animal.

At the P.A.'s in Gilgit, Jahangir had told me that he was taking off for Hunza alone. Now here as we were leaving Aliabad, I found that a guide turned up and it was apparent from the words that were spoken that this soldier had come up with him from Gilgit. The insignia on his shoulder clearly indicated that he was a soldier in the famed Gilgit Scouts.

I asked Jahangir how come he had a guide and he then informed me that the Scout Commander had flatly refused to allow him to set out alone for Baltit. Apart from anything else, in deference to Jahangir's parents with whom he was friendly, he would under no circumstances allow him to make the journey without the services of a guide.

I can assure you that the Commander carefully selected the man, too. Although he looked like a boy, he was tall—about 6 feet 2 inches—lithe, alert, in fact, as smart and as capable a type of human being or soldier or both as 'twould be possible to find anywhere. Not that Jahangir needed it, but he certainly was in "high caliber" hands.

Bearing in mind that the two ponies we had were stallions, I began to wonder if we might not have some trouble on the trail, because Jahangir's mount was a mare. To you, this may not appear to be a genuine source of worry, because in the West the horses used for riding are practically always gelded and this eliminates any risk of difficulty. So you either ride a mare or a gelding.

I thought to myself, "What would happen if either one of our stallion ponies began to get ideas on some of these high tortuous, winding mountain trails?" I knew from my reading that it does happen.

A man can work himself up into quite a stew by thinking of such things, and by now I was greatly worried about what would happen if my black stallion did become rambunctious on the trail. So I made up my mind that I would give that mare as wide a berth as possible.

I buried my worries by getting busy and snapping a few pictures of the type of houses that we found here at Aliabad. They didn't differ very much from those we found elsewhere. They were not as well built and as clean as those we had found at Altit, but they were still quite neat and tidy by most other standards. Practically all the houses are built one on top of the other, as close together as the undulating region would allow, and it sure was obvious that a person couldn't

342 keep many secrets from his neighbors. From what I
361 saw, it was obvious that when a house was built in Hunza no attempt was made to level the ground but it was allowed to stand as nature made it and the house was erected according to the natural levels, dips, falls or heights.

As we wandered around the little Hunzan homes in this area, we had to climb up to get to this one, we had to drop down to examine that one and there were really no two on an identical level.

132 Then I remembered that the average annual rainfall in Hunza was 2 inches and to myself I thought, "Mighty good thing, because if it rained any more than that, what a quagmire this area would be!"

122 We heard the clatter of hooves and, looking up, we saw Jahangir's guide coming back and leading another horse. This meant we'd be ready to take off in a couple of minutes, so Cec and I worked our way towards the road.

Soon all of our belongings were firmly balanced on the horse's back and we were ready to start for the Hasanabad Bridge.

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 58

Baltit to Chalt--A Long Hard Day

THE EXHILARATING morning mountain air and the expanse of blue sky, landscaped by undulating masses in the distance and sparkled with a wisp of cloud here and there, made the march seem like a living dream. How often since I have been home have I longed for a day to begin this way. 122 487

The climb into the mountains started the minute we crossed the bridge at Hasanabad. We were now taking the trail that had almost spelled disaster for me on the way in. Those twists, those turns, those climbs, those declines had just about worn my legs to stubs. Never, through all my years of work, had I ever known what the word "tired" meant until then!

As Friend Cec remarked a few days later when we discussed this part of the journey, "Never did I see you look so grim! If any man could be said to be dragging his rear, it was you when you reached the jeep!"

122 But now it was entirely different. I didn't regard the 487 snaky curves and loops with distrust and misgivings as I had the other day. In fact, then, I remember hating every turn I had to take. Now, with a good mount between my legs, I felt elated, happy, cheerful. Even though I started off riding, I knew that I wouldn't ride very far because I enjoy walking too much. But, still, it was mighty nice to know that you had a good horse in case you needed it.

From the start in the morning we knew it was to be a hard ride if we wanted to get to Chalt in one march. There was a full 32 miles to go. It was actually 36 miles but I figured the jeep had driven us 4 of them so that left 32.

[485] Neither Cec nor I discussed or mentioned it but I think we fully realized that, if we felt it was going to be too tough, we could stop off at Minapin which was but 15 miles away and would find the usual rest houses there. Yet, I couldn't see myself holing up at Minapin for the night. Why, we should be there shortly after noon, I figured, and I certainly had no intention of calling it quits then.

Besides, my recollections of Minapin weren't very appealing. It was the poorest looking and the dirtiest town of all we had passed through. We had stopped [485] for a few minutes at the rest house on the way up and it had proved to be a disappointment. We couldn't get anything to eat there and the chowkidor expected a handsome donation because we stopped there and, I believe, had a glass of water.

Then, too, I knew that this was the stage for us to make time, as we'd have more protection from the sun because there were more trees in this area than there would be further down. Villages dotted the landscape [361] as this was one of the more fertile districts and towns and villages are invariably built where there are trees 122 of one kind or another. So it was our best bet to tackle 487 the sun while we had some protection against it. [361]

I remembered also that in this area there were lots [133] of nullahs and that conduits were found everywhere, so we could refresh ourselves with good fresh cold water all along the route. Further down there were very few nullahs or any other means of getting water except by marching down to the river's edge and this, friend, could be an undertaking!

At this stage the elevations ranged around 7,000 to 133
10,000 feet. I didn't carry an altimeter with me but I was informed that in some places we climbed to 12,000 feet. It certainly felt like it by the rarity of the atmosphere and the way my chest and lungs were behaving.

All through this broad area the mountain scenery is idyllic. It just can't be beat or improved upon, no matter where in the world you go. When I came up this selfsame trail on the inward trek, I was in no mood to appreciate beauty or mountain grandeur and I knew that I hadn't taken in very much. But now, I was determined to feast my eyes, my heart and my soul on the most beautiful, the most varied, the most awe-inspiring mountain vastness that is known to exist.

I was happy—I was carefree—I felt so light that I thought the horse wouldn't even know he was carrying a passenger. In all probabilities I'd never come this way again and I wanted that beauty engraved on my memory.

Through the years I had spent many weeks and months in the Rockies, from Alaska right down to the Mexican Sierras, and I believed the Rockies to be the most impressive range of mountains I had ever known. When I saw the Alps and compared them, well, there 133 was no basis for comparison. The Alps were pretty hills!

But here again was something entirely different. We flew through and over the Himalayas from Rawalpindi till we neared Gilgit and from the moment we saw the Karakorums I was impressed with their appearance of hardness, massiveness—yes, and their coldness, too, but they certainly weren't very cold here on our way to Chalt where the metallic content of the rock absorbs every bit of heat and seems to hold it. Whereas the [139] Rockies are mainly grassed or timbered, the Karakorums are bare, naked and distinctly metallic looking.

Of course there are bare mountains in the rockies and there are treed and grassy ones in the Karakorums but it's the exception, in both cases, rather than the rule. Apart from a bit of grass or a few trees in an occasional valley, the mountains in general were bare rock. It is indeed a tribute to the courage, ingenuity and resourcefulness of the people of Hunza and other races who live in these rocky valleys, that they can manage to eke out an existence.

In the Rockies anything over 10,000 feet is rare and unusual. When you hit 12,000, 13,000 or 14,000 feet it is an event of major importance. But here in the Karakorums, when you are trudging along, everywhere the mountains are 14,000, 15,000 and 16,000 feet high. It seems that the ridges all around you are 12,000 to 14,000 feet, with something like Rakaposhi occasionally poking up at 25,550 feet. Even that is nothing of any spectacular mention, because within a few scant miles as the crow flies could be found ten peaks as high or higher and dozens or maybe hundreds somewhat smaller, but still much bigger and more impressive than most found in the Rockies and the Alps.

Just to illustrate my point I'll mention a few, starting at the Afghan border and working over to Singkiang in China, and down a few miles to the Skardu district. 133

This area covers a circle within a 100 mile radius of Baltit, but look at the peaks that are found therein. These are just a few of the ones over 20,000 feet high that are found in that small area:

Haramosh	24,270	Saltoro Kangri .	25,400
Mukorum	23,050	unnamed	22,400
unnamed	25,868	Saser Kangri ...	25,170
Kampire Dior ..	23,434	unnamed	21,270
unnamed	21,200	unnamed	22,891
Kanjut Sar	25,460	Nanga Parbat ..	26,660
unnamed	23,440	unnamed	21,870
unnamed	25,540	unnamed	22,200
Godwin Austen		unnamed	22,120
(K-2)	28,250	Rakaposhi	25,550
Masherbrun ...	25,660	Bilchhar Dobani	20,126
Gasherbrum ...	26,470	unnamed	21,907
Teram Kangri .	24,489	unnamed	23,890

This list was taken from the actual military map of the area. Nowhere else could I find anything as detailed.

It is a positive fact that so far there are more than 60 summits over 22,000 feet recorded in the Karakorums alone—mostly unnamed and unconquered—and remember, the Karakorums extend only for 300 miles.

I'm not trying to impress you with a mass of figures, but I just wish to lend credence to the facts that will bear out my contention that this is the most spectacular outcropping of mountains and peaks in the entire world and that this point has the right and probably the only right, to be called the true "Roof of the World."

Maps refer to this territory as the Pamirs. I think they say Afghanistan Pamir, Russian Pamir, Chinese Pamir. The word "pamir" in Persian means "roof of the world." If the world has a roof, then without ques-

133 tion or doubt, this area holds that lofty title!

I know that Tibet is called the "Roof of the World" but it is my contention that this is not right. Lhasa is at an elevation of approximately 13,000 feet and is surrounded by peaks whose heights are not more than 18,000 feet, whereas Baltit, the capital of Hunza, is located at an elevation of 8500 feet and the mountains surrounding it go well above 25,000 feet. So I don't think anyone can argue or deny that this, the Hunza area, is the true "Roof of the World."

122 At the time I visited Hunza, maps of the Kashmir
133 and Jammu and Gilgit agencies were hard to come by and anyone holding them might be arrested and charged with being a spy by the military authorities in Pakistan or India, because that area is zealously guarded by both sides.

It was a major operation to get a map of that area showing the various territories, the peaks and the ranges and such, but with the aid of a good friend I managed to procure a very good one.

133 For anyone interested in mountains, glaciers, hidden valleys and such things as dreams are made of, this map makes fabulous reading and studying. Besides, you can daydream away pleasant, carefree, happy hours like mad, if so inclined. Try it! Your cares will float away like bubbles!

122 Profiting from the mistakes of the past, when we found a nice cool comfortable spot, we stopped to rest and munched on the sandwiches that were so kindly prepared by the Mir's staff for us to take along. They were put into a little tin box where they kept in good shape. I would have liked to eat more of the sandwiches but after I gave one to Cec and had one myself, I passed the rest along to the guides and bearers. (Jahangir carried his own provisions.)

Actually, I think this in many ways is a mistake. 122
Anything that you bring along for yourself on a trail like this should be kept for yourself and the reason is clear and obvious. On the trail both coming and going neither group of bearers or guides offered us as much as a nibble, whereas in every case anything that we had we passed along or shared with them.

The reason I contend this is wrong is simple. They are in their own territory. They know where food and water are available. I know, as I saw them procure it when they wanted it. In our case we were up against a stark, high, blank wall and had to ask for, drive for and pay for every morsel of food that we got on the trail.

If I were doing this selfsame job over again, I would plan my travels without worrying or consulting them one iota. Their opinions, their judgment and estimations are completely unreliable, when it comes to distance, time, height, depth, temperature—yes, and even dangers!

Now I'm not referring to the people in the category of the Mir or the P.A. or Jahangir. I am talking about the average citizen that one meets along the trails or in the towns or villages. While you are supplied with a 122 guide and bearer or bearers and you feel you can rely 485 upon them, they do not take into consideration that you are a stranger, a tenderfoot, and know little or nothing about the terrain and the place to which you are going.

I'm not trying to impress you with the fact that these people are ignorant because they are not ignorant. It is just that these things are beyond their ken and you must rely upon yourself and prepare accordingly. They have been ordered or hired to guide you to a certain defined place or to look after your horse and that is all they will do—nothing more!

122 This does not mean to imply that they are unreliable
485 or unfriendly, because undoubtedly if you remained with them for any great time, you would become friendly with them and perhaps a feeling of camaraderie or loyalty would spring up. This belief has been confirmed by my conversations with people who have traveled through similar territories over longer periods. But in cases like this, where you hire a man for a day or two and you can't talk his language or make yourself clearly understood to him, the chances of getting any great amount of service are rather remote . . . that is, beyond the call of regular duties. In fact, I have learned and found that they will do only what they have to do and even getting this done will often take reminding!

122 The collapse of my friend on the first day out of Gilgit would never have occurred had we taken charge of the situation ourselves and stopped and rested every few hours for a few minutes, like any individual with common sense should have done. But we relied upon our bearers and guide. We were tenderfeet and stupid ones, to boot!

We were now beginning to feel like veteran mountaineers. It's funny how quickly a man can learn if his life depends on it. We weren't going to make the same mistake that we made coming up. This time we had no guide—just bearers—although Jahangir's soldier could be taken as a guide. In fact, he was probably better than most guides.

However, we were confident enough about the situation to carry on without any guiding or leading. I'm not trying to give you the impression that we were smart guys. It was just that we found out that there was no cause for fear or anxiety and once you beat that feeling, then you can go on through most anything.

From what I have learned about mountaineering, I 122 find that this principle generally is true. When you know the natives and appraise and understand the country you are in, the rest is just a task. It may be a difficult one but a task that, with good management and a bit of luck, can be accomplished.

In this instance we had good horses—the best. Secondly, we knew and understood the regions through which we must travel. Then, we had prepared a bit of food. But on top of it all, we were masters of the situation and we were not depending on anyone else!

The worst part of the day was from about 10 A.M. until 2 P.M. After that the sun and heat slowly headed downwards.

It was about 1.30 when we went through Minapin. [485]
This is normally the first stopping place from Baltit. We'd been up and about and on the trail for almost 8 steady, heat-filled hours, but we never even considered the idea of staying there.

However, this was where the owner of the pack horse lived—the one that Jahangir's guide had managed to procure at Kerimabad—so we had to unload it. Jahangir dismounted and the luggage and all the trappings were carefully tied to fit around this horse that the Mir had sent along as a pack animal.

I took no part in the proceedings. Jahangir and his guide, as well as the two bearers, did the job and they did it right, unlike our first experience when we left Gilgit. We hadn't gone a mile along the Gilgit River when we began to have trouble, and hadn't we been at least half awake, we would have lost some of our belongings.

Here it was different. Whether it was due to the fact that we had Hunzan bearers, as compared to Gilgitis, 122 or the fact that Jahangir and his guide were on the job, I don't know, but the loading of the horse was done properly.

"Why don't you arrange for another pack animal?" I asked Jahangir.

"In the first place, I don't know if I can get one. Then it would take a lot of time, especially if we want to make Chalt before night."

"But how's your foot?"

"Oh, I think it'll be all right," he said, smiling. At the same time he flexed his toes by standing on them a couple of times to see how his sore, chafed heel was taking the jolt.

"I know little or nothing about the mountains and climbing but it would be foolish if we went on and you ran into difficulty, when, by waiting a few minutes or even an hour or two, we could save you pain and trouble."

"Oh, I'm confident everything will be all right," he replied.

"Anyway, I'm not riding very much. So that hefty pony is available any minute you want him."

"No, thanks. I'll get along without him. I feel fine."

Now I had the feeling that Jahangir was somewhat annoyed at the Mir because the Mir had neglected to send along a horse for him. However, I have no proof or knowledge of this because first of all, Jahangir hadn't asked for one and secondly, he had come to Hunza with a guide without horse or pack animal and therefore the Mir would not rightly suspect or know that he wanted one to go back with. So all this may be pure conjecture on my part, but that was the impression I got and that's what I'm telling you.

000 I had met Jahangir just as soon as we landed at the P.A.'s residence in Gilgit. I didn't know who he was

 [pp. 497-609 not processed]

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 71

Misconceptions

121 THIS CHAPTER I find the hardest of all the chapters in 114 the book to write.

So many gross errors or misrepresentations concerning Hunza have been given widespread publicity that I felt it was high time these errors were corrected.

It is established that a writer or a speaker who makes statements must stand behind the statements that he makes. That is all well and good in such instances and cases where the truth can be readily verified by means of encyclopedias, dictionaries or other reliable sources of information.

197 Inasmuch as Hunza is concerned, this definitely is not possible. To begin with, the language, Burushaski, is spoken only by the people in Hunza, Nagir and in a small area thereabouts. Dr. Berger in his intimate studies and broad travels has come upon only one other spot on the earth's surface where a similar tongue is spoken. The good professor espouses the theory that 197 the Burushaski language is genealogically related to the language of the Basques, spoken only by a handful of these people who live in the Pyrenees in southern France and northern Spain. Therefore, it is difficult, if not impossible, for any stranger or outsider to have a good working knowledge of the language.

When you are given the name of a place or a thing 126 and wish to write it down, you have to do it entirely 192 by means of phonics. For example, I wanted to know the name given to a part of the flour mill and after much actual jawing, I wrote down the word "yine."
Later, in checking with another Hunzan who articulated in deliberate, clearcut fashion for me, I got the word "yang." Now repeat those two words over yourself and see just how much similarity there really is between them.

I sought the name of the word given to the galleries 126 —that is, the wooden galleries or it could be the stone 192 galleries that were built up along the ledges when the 491 road fell away. One of the writers had given the name for these places as "rafiks," which I followed. But I also had come across the word "paharis" when I was in Hunza and they didn't seem to use or have heard the word "rafik."

Then upon investigation, I find that the words "rafik" and "paharis" are not the actual words used to describe this bit of fancy roadwork. The meaning of "rafik" is actually Arabic for a companion or comrade and the meaning of "paharis" is Urdu for "people who live in mountainous regions." From usage so far and the best of searching, it appears that "rafik" is the term used to describe the built up stone galleries that shore up a "fallen away" gap of road. "Paharis" is the term for the wooden platforms that are erected over

126 "nothing" where the ledge once led . . . a few well 192 appointed steel rods forced into fissures being the total 491 support. As yet I have failed to discover or learn the proper word describing these galleries.

114 I must admit that many or most of the errors or misconceptions concerning Hunza are due to the fact that insufficient time was spent by some of the writers who visited Hunza.

At first it was my wish to pass by this chapter on misconceptions because I did not feel that I should be involved in a hassle with other writers. But then I asked myself if I had any doubts as to whether or not I was right. And this made me feel that I definitely wanted to write the chapter on misconceptions.

It is not my intent or desire to be contradictory nor arbitrary. I am not seeking to pick a quarrel with anyone. But the facts and statements herein related are based on my seeing, hearing, research, questioning and investigating.

I have tried to make my book as accurate as humanly possible. And if and when errors are found, I trust they will be brought quite forcibly to my attention. I would like to believe that if I can dish it out, I can take it, too!

134 Fertile valleys—Some writers have referred to various valleys in Hunza as fertile valleys. By the standards to which we are accustomed, there is not one single fertile valley in all of Hunza. That the soil is productive and the valley green and beautiful, no one will deny. But at best the soil in Hunza is shallow and to be productive, it must be maintained assiduously. I repeat, in Hunza there are no such things as naturally fertile valleys as compared, for example, to parts of the Willamette Valley in Oregon.

131 Hunza is scarcely 60 miles long, says one writer. An-133 other says it is 80 miles long and elsewhere I saw it mentioned as being 100 miles long. 131

A few miles above the spot where the Hunza River meets the Gilgit is a village called Secunderabad. It is here that Hunza begins and if you follow the Hunza River up to its source beyond Misgar, almost on the Chinese border, where it springs from a glacier, you will find in following the contours of the river that the country is almost 200 miles long. I have carefully checked this figure with the best authorities—the Mir being one of them—and I found that the 200 mile figure was as close as it can possibly be measured. 133

They are Asians. Of course they are Asians because they dwell in Asia. But in appearance they are definitely unlike Asians. Without trying to sound dramatic or authoritative, the general appearance of the people of Hunza shows marked European characteristics. They are totally unlike the Indians, the Afghans or the Chinese. To me they looked like the Mediterranean peoples. At this stage I am not harping or relying on the fact that they claim to be descendants of Alexander the Great or some of his soldiers. 144

Primitive—Most writers refer to them as primitive people or say that their way of life is primitive. I will agree with the use of that term in describing the people of Hunza, if you will agree with me that the Christian world is primitive, because it too follows the teachings of the Bible which was written 3,000 or 4,000 years ago. It is agreed that the people of Hunza follow a primitive form of agriculture and use no chemical fertilizers or modern sprays and insecticides. But then, they don't need chemical insecticides and chemical fertilizers. They use no modern machinery on their small, hard won, shallow surfaced fields. Their conduits which guide the glacial waters to their fields are, I agree, primitive, but no better form is known anywhere. 105 105 241.

105 where. They use water to turn the mill that grinds [376] their bread and that is primitive. But many thousands of people throughout the world would say that it is the right way. The adroitness and the ability of the Hunzan men would match that of any people in the Western world.

I cannot say that I found anything about them that was primitive. Further, they can choose the modern way of life if they so desire it. But the only people who seek it are those who are forced to leave Hunza because of the shortage of actual living room.

511 Poverty stricken—One writer referred to them as being poverty stricken. If the beast of the fields and forests and the birds of the air are poverty stricken, then I guess we would have to admit that the people of Hunza are poverty stricken as well. If you want to feel sorry for birds, because they have to seek shelter in their unheated nests high up in the trees, where the winds blow around them, and because they do not have oil heating for their nests or motors for their wings as a sign of poverty, then I will be forced to agree with you.

As long as the people of Hunza are free, have a bit of land to till and a house of their own that is not mortgaged or tax-ridden and are in good health and attain long life, I definitely cannot accede that they are poverty stricken.

142 Fair complexioned—Now and then some author refers to them as being fair complexioned. I did not see one fair complexioned person in all of Hunza. Perhaps [144] the writers meant to say that they were Caucasians, which is true, as compared to Orientals or Negroes. They are not a fair people any more than the Spaniards, Italians or Greeks are fair complexioned peoples.

805 Precise, exacting—An occasional writer sought to compliment them by mentioning among their qualities 805 the fact that they were precise and exacting. That statement is about as far-fetched as a statement can be.

In the cities of Asia and when dealing with government officials, one found them quite observant of time. An appointment for a certain hour was usually kept at that hour. However, in dealing with the people of [804] Hunza I found that time and distance were meaningless. All rivers were nullahs, all mountains were doranis. Haste and speed caused consternation. They did not understand the necessity or need for it. I stress again however, that in the official capacity this did not necessarily apply.

Birth control—More than one writer, and some who 842 should have had more common sense, has referred to the extraordinary method of birth control as practiced by the people of Hunza. From my observations I would state clearly and to the point, that they don't know what birth control means and it is from my observations and conclusion definitely not practiced.

The average family in Hunza consists of 7 people [163] which means that they have 5 living children. Many have more, some have less. If you can call that birth control by any stretch of the imagination, well, that's your privilege.

Even the most primitive of people know that as long as the child is sucking at the mammary glands the ovum somehow doesn't come down the fallopian tubes . . . nature's own method of survival, as common sense will indicate.

I know—I know—I know that some or many obstetricians and general practitioners say that it doesn't mean a thing, but they are just trying to prove that science is greater than empiricism. Sure, I know that conception can take place under the circumstances 842 mentioned above and so do women who have reached the menopause age become pregnant, but it doesn't happen every day.

Siring children at 90 and 100 years of age—The only conclusive proof or record that I could find concerning men well up in years siring children was that of the Mir's grandfather, Sir Mohomed Nazim Khan, K.C.I.E. It is definitely recorded that he sired a son when he was in his 75th year.

Upon questioning and during discourse with the Mir, the resident doctor and the affected individuals themselves, it is clearly established that the siring of offspring at the age of 70 and upwards is quite common. Invariably it was revealed in these studies that the men had married younger women, their second or third wives. It is suggested that the answer lies somewhere close to this very important related fact.

165 [217] Living to the age of 140 years. The oldest man that I could find in Hunza was said to be 105 years old. I want to stress firmly that no vital statistics are kept in Hunza. Therefore it is not easy to establish any definite age or date. I will, however, accept this old man's age as being correct and established beyond doubt. The fact that he was alive before the Mir's grandfather was born (who died when 79 years of age in 1938) is ample proof that the statement is correct and true.

There are many people in Hunza over 90 years of age, quite a few over 95 years of age and some over 100 years.

142 165 Their women are beautiful when they are 70 and 80 years old. This I will agree is a statement that depends entirely upon a man's appreciation or understanding of beauty. I have seen old women of 80 who I thought were beautiful in a frail, wrinkled, grandmotherly way.

I found the Rani to be the most beautiful woman in Hunza. I didn't dare ask her age, but I know she was married to the present Mir in 1934. Therefore she must be close to or in her 40's. She could undoubtedly pass with any woman in her early 20's. But there were few, if any, women in Hunza like her. 142

I further will grant that I, or anyone else for that matter, would have very little opportunity of seeing Hunzan women at what might be their best. To state my views candidly, I'd say the men definitely looked youthful, but the women looked to be older than their years.

Perfect health—I have never seen, as yet, a race of people that was as healthy as the people of Hunza. But to say that they were a race that enjoyed perfect health, I would consider a bit of an exaggeration, because the doctor does treat a few patients now and then and the hospital does harbor a few sick people. I must honestly admit that I did not see any sick people in Hunza, but there are quite a few who do not enjoy perfect health. 164

A pre-Bronze Age people—Here I suspect someone wanted to show his knowledge in archeology or anthropology, whichever it may be. (I am expressing my ignorance to begin with.) They are no more Bronze Age than was the writer who referred to them as such. This would take them back between 4,000 and 5,000 years which is utter and sheer "poppycock." He further stated that they were isolated for 2,000 years. If that is true, they were isolated because they wanted to remain that way. 174 [177]

It is a fact that there is a caravan trail right through Hunza. It is the shortest route from China to Persia and leads through Hunza, past Gilgit and across the Babusar Pass and then on westward or southwestward. 487 177

487 I am sure that a people who saw these caravans coming 177 and going could not be called isolated by any stretch of the imagination. They just like their little piece of paradise too well to leave it.

133 Hunza empties into the Indus. Two famed writers who should know better . . . or should I say, should have checked more closely . . . made the statement that the Hunza River flows into the Indus. Even a cursory glance at a map would show that the Hunza empties into the Gilgit and the Gilgit empties into the Indus.

585 Mother-in-law taken along on honeymoon—This bit of stupidity, or should I say absurdity, appeared in no less than two of the foremost publications in America.

Who ever heard of a honeymoon in Hunza? Not having a Niagara Falls, probably they'd go up and sit on top of Rakaposhi with the mother-in-law between them to cool their ardor.

When the Mir made this statement, he was joking, never believing for a moment that anyone would take such a broad joke as being factual.

481 Hunzans walk 60 to 100 miles as though it were 147 nothing. In fact, one author stated somewhere that the Hunzans could walk 60 miles easier than she could walk upstairs.

I will readily grant that I believe the Hunzan people are the world's best walkers and well they would have to be, because there just happens to be no other mode of locomotion. I'll even go further and say that all through my travels in that territory I did not once see a Hunzan man, or for that matter a Nagirwal, who appeared to be worn from the rugged walks and climbs. So it is clear that they have tremendous reserves of energy and stamina . . . but let's not go overboard!

486 Anyone can visit Hunza. Contrary to the assertion 114 made by one writer that anyone can get into Hunza, I would like to mention that since 1950 here is a list of 486 all the people who were allowed into Hunza from the 114 outside world: Franc and Jean Shore, April, 1952; Lowell Thomas, Jr. in December, 1954; Benjamin Ruhe in July, 1956; Barbara Mons, May, 1956; Dr. Allen Banik, July, 1958; and John Tobe and Cecil Brunton in July, 1959.

I've a letter here from the Embassy of Pakistan, 486
Washington, D. C.:

"Dear Dr. Keller,

"Please refer to your letter of September 29, 1959, regarding your request to visit Hunza.

"The Government of Pakistan have regretted their inability to grant permission for your visit to this area. We would like to mention that we have received a number of similar requests from other individuals and we have not been able to comply with those requests.

"We have been informed by Dr. Francis Pottenger of Monrovia, California, that he and Dr. William Albrecht of the University of Missouri, also planned to accompany you on your proposed visit. We would appreciate it if you could kindly convey our regrets to Dr. Albrecht. We are writing to Dr. Pottenger ourselves.

"Yours sincerely,
A. Fatch, Second Secretary"

This should establish clearly, once and for all, whether or not it is easy to get into Hunza.

Court fines go to Mir's treasury. This statement was 652 made by one of the writers on Hunza and when brought to the Mir's attention by me, it was vigorously denied.

Any revenue obtained in this manner goes to the state and helps maintain the canals and aqueduct sys- [312] stems. Further, the total obtained from fines during a year would not exceed 200 rupees, about $40.00.

534 644 The piano in the palace was brought by the Mir's grandfather. This was stated in one of the books I read about Hunza.

The story from the Mir's own lips is, "The piano was brought to Gilgit via Bandipoor and Burzil Pass from Kashmir for the Political Agent who was British. It was installed in the Political Agent's house in Gilgit in 1895. In 1947 when the partition came, it was presented to me by the last British Political Agent, Colonel R. N. Bacon, along with the Union Jack which is unfurled in Gilgit. The piano was brought to Baltit on [482] the backs of 24 men."

164 Disease is unknown in Hunza. Oh, how I wish that were true! It was the fondest wish of my heart and soul when I left for Hunza that I could return and be able to attest the fact that disease is unknown in that country.

From definite assertions made by the doctor who was stationed at Aliabad in Hunza, it is true that such diseases as cancer, diabetes, heart disease and hypertension are absolutely unknown in Hunza. But there are other diseases, perhaps not as crucial but, nevertheless, maladies of a serious nature.

As more of civilization's luxuries become known and used in Hunza, it is assured that many more of the diseases of civilization, as yet unknown in Hunza, will make their way into that country.

165 No infant mortality—I am unable to speak for the past, but at the present day infant mortality is known in Hunza. As mentioned elsewhere in this book, statistics are unavailable as no records are kept. But the present doctor in Aliabad forcibly states that infant mortality is a force to be reckoned with in Hunza at the present time.

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

Hunzan fruits taste better than those of other parts of the world. Most travelers who reach Hunza invariably state that the apricots and other fruits found there are much better flavored than those found in other parts of the world. I did not find this to be true. 245

Because they do not grow fruits for export or shipping, they can be tree-ripened. Therefore they have a better flavor than fruit that has to be picked in a green or unripened state. It is this fact that makes many people believe that Hunzan fruits taste better than the fruit they are accustomed to eating.

I happen to live in a part of the world where fruit is grown extensively and I must state categorically that Hunzan fruit does not taste any better than that grown on the farms adjacent to my home. Here, also, it must be admitted that most of the fruit I eat, especially during the fruit season, is also tree-ripened.

The people of Hunza are ignorant and uneducated. From my association with the people of Hunza, I must state boldly that they are neither ignorant nor uneducated. 871

There are schools of the same type as our grade schools in every large center in Hunza. It is admitted that only the male children are taught in these schools and there is no formal education offered to girls. This school system is entirely free and has been in existence for more than 25 years. It is emphasized that the native language of the people of Hunza is Burushaski and it is an unwritten language. However, they teach Urdu, Persian and other essential subjects. The intelligence and the abilities of the natives of Hunza rank with those found throughout the world.

The people are fierce and dangerous. There have been only 3 cases of murder recorded in Hunza in the 882

682 past 40 years. Never to my knowledge has a stranger [609] or a visitor ever been harmed or injured.

175 In bygone days the Hunzans were considered good 648 fighting men and were feared by the Chinese, the Afghans and neighboring tribes. It is a fact that they have only been conquered or beaten once in their history and that was by a British force that defeated them at the Battle of Nilt. The British did not seek to conquer the country. It was at the time when the British were the rulers of India. They requested that the Mir of Hunza allow free passage of the mail to Kashgar in China. The Mir at that time, Safdar Ali, felt that he could count upon the aid of the Russians and the Chinese and challenged the British authority. Then the British force went into the field and it required deliberation and courage to assault the high fortress, but it was accomplished by the British and the
[643] Mir fled for his life. The British then appointed his brother as the ruler and departed peacefully. Apart from this, the British did not interfere in the affairs of the Hunzans.

123 You lose face if you carry anything yourself or do any work. In all my travels throughout the world, including Hunza, I always did my share of the carrying. I wasn't going to stand by and see one or two men burdened down with my belongings while I walked about empty handed. I will not allow it to be said that I lost face because of this.

I don't want it to be thought that I am better than anyone else nor will I allow them to think that they are better than I. Wherever there was work to be done or burdens to be borne, I always did my share and I intend to keep on doing it.

131 Hunza in the Himalayas. Some writers keep referring to Hunza, Gilgit and Rakaposhi as being in the Himalayas. They call Hunza "The Lost Kingdom of the Himalayas," "Himalayan Valley" and "Himalayan Region" and make other erroneous references. 131

However, truth is truth, fact is fact, and Hunza, Nagir, Gilgit and Rakaposhi are all in the Karakorums and the Karakorums are a mountain system of their own and are not part or parcel of the Himalayas.

How these misconceptions came into existence, I am not prepared to state, but when dealing and conjecturing with a country as fascinating as Hunza, that lends enchantment to the heart and escape to the mind, one can understand errors mushrooming into life.

Whether or not I have exploded any myths concerning this fabulous country depends entirely upon what you have read or heard and your individual viewpoint. I returned from Hunza with the conviction that I had seen, visited and been among one of the most fabulous peoples on the face of the earth. 000

Perhaps I have shattered your illusions. If so, I am genuinely sorry because in this modern day and age, a man's soul needs some illusions and I would be the last man to deprive you of them. Yet, it was my purpose when I went to Hunza and then decided to write this book, to tell the truth and lay the facts before you as I found them. That is what I have done.

If I have failed you or brought your idols tumbling at your feet, I am sorry! Yet in spite of any shortcomings that have been exposed in my narrative, the little hidden kingdom of the Karakorums will always be "Shangri-la" to me.

CHAPTER 72

Reflections

I'D BEEN in Hunza for a few days, when it suddenly dawned upon me that there was something unusual about the demeanor, the countenance and the expression on the faces of people. I didn't allow it to particularly prey on my mind . . . yet that feeling remained with me during my entire stay and wanderings throughout that land.

I couldn't put my finger on it, but that intangible difference eluded me, though I was within reach of mentally snaring it on many occasions. Even after I reached home, one night when in a meditative mood, I went over this particular situation in my mind carefully . . . but I couldn't fathom the mystery. Still, I kept asking myself what there was about the people of Hunza that was so unlike the people of the West. Yes, and even unlike the people of the East . . . because there was that marked difference that distinguished them from any other group of people that I have met or seen anywhere.

I discussed the situation with friends and acquaintances. I mentioned it to folks whose experience and intelligence I respected—thinking, hoping that they could give me a clue to the answer. But nothing came of it. I was still floundering and groping about in the dark.

'Twas a blizzardly night in March . . . I sat in my office at the nursery . . . writing. Suddenly the answer came to me . . . and it was so obvious, so apparent and so simple that I am ashamed I hadn't come up with the answer on the spot.

Perhaps you are more alert than I and you have already guessed the answer. And if you have, I compliment you. You have your ears and your eyes open . . . and you have benefited greatly from the written experiences of my travels in Hunza.

The big thing—the important thing—the simple thing that I discovered was the fact that the people of Hunza find joy and happiness in simply being alive. Living, in itself, is to them the grandest, the greatest and the most fascinating adventure in the world.

We in the Western world have 1,001 things to please us, to entertain and excite us, to thrill and enthrall us. The people of Hunza—they have their little cradle in the sun and that is all!

We must have cocktails and drinking parties to get ourselves into a mood. We must parade off to the theatre to get a laugh and relaxation. We go to a doctor or a priest for comfort and assurance.

The people of Hunza get their joy and pleasures out of the simple things in life—the natural, the commonplace, the ordinary. They are, from infancy to old age, continually attuned to nature. They are intelligent—they look intelligent. Yet the happy carefree outlook of a child bespeaks their countenance.

We seek relief from our troubles and woes by entertainment, excitement, smoking and drinking.

Let us face the realities of life for what they are. Is it not a fact that our way—our modern way of living—has got out of hand and is now too much for us and we just can't cope with it? That is why we release our pent up furies and frustrations in drink and smoke. Is it not true that we have become a serious, troubled, dour race of people and that too many—yes, too many—responsibilities are oppressing our minds?

No people in the world's history have been so burdened with responsibilities as we in America. The world wars weren't ours, yet we had to become involved . . . and the world looks to us now to enforce or maintain world peace. And what a herculean task it is!

We have the burden of education—not only for ourselves, but for most of the world. Our people have become sick and disease ridden. We have to worry about the maintenance of elaborate homes, automobiles, appliances. We have to consider our vocations and our means and sources of food. We must be ever vigilant . . . there's both foreign encroachment and our own politicians to consider. We have to worry about mortgages, loans, financing, insurance, taxes, interest and the world's most expensive political setups.

We must not only be concerned about our wives and our children and ourselves, but we must share the responsibilities of our neighbors, our countrymen, and now, we have also included the rest of the world.

There no longer exists such a thing as individuality within us . . . for we are but one of almost 200,000,000 bees—all busy and buzzing in unison, creating a great institution. But who wants to be a bee in a hive or a number in an institution?

Let's face it! Isn't it true that our responsibilities are becoming too big a burden for us? Aren't we trying or attempting to encompass a little too much? Aren't we reaching beyond our ken—beyond our abilities?

You see, the people of Hunza aren't burdened with all the things I've mentioned above, and therefore, it is easy to see why they enjoy just being alive and healthy.

It must be recognized that the people of Hunza lead, probably, what is the most simple life known to any people on the face of the globe. They are not trying to master the world, their own fates or that of their neighbors. They are busily occupied in looking after just themselves.

Selfish? I don't know. They certainly don't interfere with anyone else or ask anyone for anything. In Hunza a man's responsibilities consist of tilling a bit of soil to produce food for himself and the members of his household. The house is actually small—usual'y a two-roomed affair. He has to make provisions to store sufficient food for his winter needs—plus a mite for a neighbor who might run short. Then he may be called upon to contribute a day's work or two a year on the roads or toward maintaining the aqueducts. And that's it! From there on out, his time, his life and his liberty are his own. They even have it better than the red Indians in America . . . because the Hunzans have a permanent abode rather than a windy tent.

Do you think that mankind can improve on a setup like that?

It could be that some of our difficulties stem from the fact that we try to work against nature, whereas in Hunza, when nature pulls the switch and brings on winter or creates other conditions that bring activities to a halt, the people are resigned to it for the time being. They have found that they can't stem the avalanches or the receding glaciers. So they work with them, instead of against them.

It would be sheer "humbug" on my part to tell you that the people of Hunza have no responsibilities and no worries or cares, because we all know that no human being can exist on the face of the earth without some. But the people of Hunza have learned not to burden themselves with any more than they can help . . . and they stay quite clear of entanglements.

Most of their cares consist of sowing their crops at the right time, harvesting them before the bad weather sets in, storing sufficient to last through the winter and procuring a bit of fuel.

They lack the continued harassments of our modern, up-to-date civilization. One big thing to bear in mind is that the people of Hunza do not have an expensive, elaborate, many tentacled political setup. Hunza has a government of the simplest form . . . and apart from being an emblem and a guide, it does not interfere with or does very little for the inhabitants of Hunza. No government does anything for any people that the people could not do better for themselves if properly organized . . . this holds true anywhere in the world.

Have we ever stopped to think just what a large proportion of our daily work goes for maintaining our government and for which we receive neither remuneration nor thanks? During World War II, I was astounded to learn that it took 30 men behind the lines to keep one man up front. I discredited it and refused to believe it . . . but subsequently, after tracking down the source of the report, I learned that it is true and that for every fighting man there must be 30 down the line to lend support.

Well, I had to accept the fact that there were 30 men for every fighting man . . . but no one will ever make me believe that it is necessary. Why this is, I don't know. But it seems that everybody wants to help to support a fighting man. Therefore, all and sundry latch onto the hero and do a lick here and there . . . and of course demand and receive good pay for it!

This kind of a setup, the people of Hunza do not have or subscribe to. Perhaps herein lies the distinction between paradise and the other place.

Now, let me get down to bedrock and examine and discuss the health of the people. When actually on the scene, one can easily get carried away. Therefore, it is wise to wait, and reach a decision after time has mellowed the experiences and observations. At present I am convinced that good health is a natural development of the way of life of the people of Hunza. And it will remain theirs as long as they follow the same simple life that they have followed for almost 2,000 years.

Should our modern civilization make inroads into Hunza's culture and should the Hunzans seek to derive the benefits and comforts we have in the West, they will have to pay the price as the attached tags will indicate.

If the people of Hunza want to buy into civilization, they will have to subscribe at the same rates as the others . . . by a breakdown in their health and a shortening of their long life.

It must be related that I am neither amazed nor astounded at the remarkable health of these fine people. To tell the truth, I'm not even surprised . . . because after I've had a chance to study the situation and observe it objectively, I ask, "Why shouldn't they be healthy, why shouldn't they be strong, why shouldn't 000 they have the powers of endurance that they possess? Heavens to Betsy, why not?"

They lead a life that nature intended and equipped man to lead. They eat the food that nature provided for man to use. They do the kind of work that nature expected a man to perform. In every case, they have cooperated and worked together with nature. Therefore, I cannot see where the results could be any different.

Good health and long life are the simple products of natural living—according to nature's laws.

Here and now, I refuse to become involved in a long harangue or bickering about the evils of modernization, of civilization, of chemicals, of fertilizers and any number of other questionable detriments. I am not seeking to curry favor with one group or to antagonize another. I am completely and whole-heartedly concerned with the why's and wherefore's of the health of a remarkable people.

I have earnestly sought to find a way and a means that I might contribute something of value to the people of Hunza—that might improve their health or aid in their longevity. I've had it drilled into me that with our knowledge, techniques and hygiene in hospitals, institutions, medical care and the healing arts, we are miles and miles ahead of any other people of the world.

After all, I've had this type of propaganda and knowledge pumped into me for almost 50 years—ever since I was a baby. And I believed it! But I learned, to my joy and surprise, that, when people live according to the laws of nature, the modern healing arts and their accoutrements and attributes are completely superfluous.

Would the big boons of modern civilization be of any value to the people of Hunza? Let's examine them. 000

Let's start with pasteurization. Well, it would be very 744 difficult to pasteurize in Hunza. First of all, they don't have the means of providing the required heat. Besides, they don't suffer from any conditions which pasteurization would cure—if it does cure anything.

How about hospitalization? Well, they have a com- 743 paratively new, modern hospital in Aliabad, but the people don't use it very much. They distrust the hospital and they distrust the doctor, even though he is a fine capable fellow. Besides, I did not notice, particularly, any sick or ailing people sitting around, waiting for a hospital bed.

Then how about inoculations? To begin with, what 751 would you inoculate them against? They don't seem to 164 have many, if any, of our diseases. Then, too, there are no inoculations against cancer, diabetes, heart disease, arthritis and such, anyway. Oh, yes . . . besides, these diseases have never been known in Hunza . . . not even poliomyelitis.

The Mir has a huge medicine chest that was given 757 to him by the German expedition, which was stationed 177 across the river in Nagir. Yes, it did prove most useful 123
—for it helped a man get well. However, I must admit rather dejectedly that the man the medicine chest helped was my companion and not a citizen of Hunza.

They could use a dentist and right here you have 759 struck gold! However, it would be most difficult to get 164
a dentist to set up shop in Hunza, unless he were given room in the Mir's residence, for that's the only place where electric power is provided . . . unless the dentist didn't mind going back to the old days when the old foot pedal was used for power.

But let's be realistic about it! Wouldn't it be much [263] better to give the people of Hunza back their old 759 164 .263 natural salt, which was mined at the confluence of the Mustagh and Shimshal Rivers? Then a dentist wouldn't be necessary. I trust you will pardon me if, here and there, as the situation demands, I become my own interrogator.

000 So after all is examined and said and done, how can the Western world help the people of Hunza?

If you asked me this question, I wouldn't want to answer it openly or boldly. But if you pressed me, reluctantly I'd say that the greatest contribution that the West can make to Hunza, or to their good health and longevity, is to stay away. Leave Hunza alone!

Somebody asked me if I would like to live in Hunza. In some respects, that is an unfair question.

It's like this. The climate of California is considered to be the most salubrious and pleasant in all of the United States. Well, why don't all the people of the United States move to California? Economic reasons? That might be a factor . . . but not a very important one. There are other considerations, too, I guess. But basically, everyone doesn't want to live in California—even if it has the most wonderful climate and they have sunshine all the time.

I'd love to go back to Hunza and spend a few more weeks there . . . and if I had been born in Hunza, I'm sure I'd never want to leave the place. But I doubt if, at my age, I'd be able to adjust myself to a change as drastic as the one I would have to meet in Hunza. After all, I am a product of Western civilization—whatever that is.

"Do you think conditions would be too difficult for you in Hunza?"

I believe a young, normal, healthy, strong individual of sound mind could adjust himself to the conditions of Hunza without too much trouble. I am not maintaining, or even suggesting, that the people of Hunza are supermen. I consider them every bit as good as we are . . . but I do not admit they are better, except physically.

I am not a Hunzaphile . . . any more than I am an Anglophile or an Americaphile. I prefer to call myself a Homophile. I like all people and all human beings—except the dastardly ones.

"Would you change anything in Hunza if you could?"

I think I have outlined, in a chapter in the book, that I could not make one suggestion that would improve their life, their health and their way of living . . . except to give them back their old salt mine.

"Do you think if I had a serious or deadly disease, I could cure it by going to Hunza? I'm referring specifically to a disease that is unknown in Hunza."

You're asking and I'm going to answer. If you went to Hunza and could live as they live and eat the way they eat and work in the manner they work, then I certainly believe that you would partake of the health that they enjoy. But first you've got to be able to get into Hunza . . . which at this time is . . . impossible!

"If some people from Hunza came to live in America, would they still enjoy their bountiful health?"

I'm ready with an answer. If they adopted our methods of eating and drinking and working, they'd probably run into the same diseases and illnesses and what-not that we have. But if they followed the way of life and natural living that they did in Hunza, I think they'd remain as healthy as they were back home.

Again, I want to reiterate at this time that I didn't go to Hunza to prove or disprove anything. I went to Hunza to see, to observe and to learn.

"Have you learned anything from the people of Hunza that can benefit you? In other words, have you profited, inasmuch as your own health is concerned, 000 from what you saw in Hunza?"

I'm glad to have the opportunity of answering this question. I believe the lessons I have learned in Hunza have already removed years from my appearance. I am healthier, more active and of happier countenance. I possess boundless energy and seldom tire.

Since my return from Hunza, I have drastically decreased my intake of cooked foods. In their place I am consuming as much as possible (depending upon my ability to make the change) of natural, unprocessed, uncooked foods. Today I say that the only excuse for eating cooked foods is that they taste good or have a nicer flavor and are pleasant and appetizing. But I do not believe any food is nutritionally improved by cooking, baking, frying or roasting. Again I repeat, you may improve its palatability, its flavor, its taste and its succulence . . . but you have positively not improved it nutritionally.

I believe that I can live to be 100 years old if I care to live that long . . . and if the good Lord is willing . . . by following the lessons learned in Hunza.

"If you are convinced that there are so many benefits in following the ways of the people of Hunza to health, why don't you start a crusade?"

114 Well, let's be sensible. Mrs. Lorimer did a very nice delineation on the people of Hunza in her writings. McCarrison did a terrific piece of work in showing people how, by following the health habits of the people of Hunza, they could maintain or regain their health. So did Wrench and J. I. Rodale, Unruh and others. But only a small segment of the people of the world—even among those who have read the books—followed the principles. What makes you think they would follow my admonitions and advice, any more than they did

000 those capable illustrious ones who wrote before me? I am not a do-gooder or a crusader! Compliment me if you wish, and say I am Socratic in my efforts!

I'm pleased to have the opportunity to present the situation before you. If you believe that I can be trusted and that I am telling you the truth, then you can also maintain or regain health and live to a ripe old age . . . by following the simple, natural laws that are part of the Hunzan way of life.

I, today, believe that the chief reason for the people of the West not adopting and taking up the Hunzan way of life is because it's too much trouble. Since my return from Hunza, my wife complains that she has a lot more work to do in the kitchen than ever before. For example, I used to love soups. So she'd take all the vegetables she could lay her hands on, including barley, rice and cabbage . . . and either cut or uncut, she'd throw them all into the big stewing kettle, put in some salt and pepper, a chunk of meat or a bone . . . and a few hours later we'd have a big kettle of soup—enough to eat for a couple of days. That's right!

Now she has to gather together (seldom does one shop have them all) at least a dozen kinds of vegetables . . . but better, 15 or 20 . . . slice them all up into small pieces or grate them as she often does, including potatoes, beets, turnips and spinach and incorporate them into my uncooked, raw salad. It takes her hours to do a really good job. But I demand uncooked foods . . . and salads are one of the answers.

Then to fruits . . . before she would put a can into the electric can opener, the top would come off and she'd dump the contents into a bowl and put it on the table . . . and there was fruit or fruit salad in one and a half minutes flat from can to platter. Now I demand at least 12 different kinds of unprocessed fruits in my fruit salad and she has to dice them up, slice them or cut them and it must be made fresh all the time. She says if I want to eat like a monkey, I should go to the zoo or into the jungle. I, in turn, tell her that the monkeys in the jungle wouldn't have any human being in their midst if they could avoid it.

But there it is, folks. To live like the people of Hunza would require a great effort and many changes in our habits. Perhaps now you can actually see what I mean. I can just visualize my wife, or yours, rubbing dried apricots in water to form a gruel, along with a bit of oatmeal or ground wheat that has been soaked from the night before. Sure, it's probably one of the healthiest meals in the world—but who's going to prepare it in the prescribed fashion in this modern day and age? Not your wife or mine, you can bet your boots!

In thinking back, I felt that there in Hunza was one place on the earth's remote vastness where man is not always challenging and fashioning nature to his own selfish liking. It is here that nature teaches a profound, abject lesson to all mankind. By seas of tumbling peaks and towering summits, she reminds him of his insignificance, lest he should get visions of his own grandeur.

Here, nature has truly marshalled her forces and has them piled willy-nilly, miles high, in a heap, so as to stagger even man's unsurmountable, egotistical opinion of his own powers.

Lest it be thought that I am making outlandish claims for the people of Hunza, I want to keep the record straight and in order. I don't know how you feel about figures and statistics . . . but it has been my experience that they usually reflect only that which the quoter of the statistics wants them to reflect.

If I go to a lecture or read a treatise, I want to be told or enlightened concerning the pros and cons of the topic. I, for example, judge a man's honesty as much by what he omits as by what he states. In this instance I 000 am somewhat on the spot. I don't want to fall prey to the errors and omissions which I have condemned in others. I did pointedly seek and ask details concerning 164 the ailments of the people of Hunza. I did seek to find out the diseases that are unknown in Hunza. I also wanted to learn the diseases that are most common and that generally affect the health of the people. And here is the picture.

They have trouble with their eyes. They suffer from stomach disorders—chiefly dysentery and worms. They are subject to skin infections, fevers, weak lungs, goiter and dental caries. Whether or not you wish to attach any great importance to the maladies I have outlined above, I feel that I should explain one or two of the contributing factors.

Remember, the Hunza homes do not have chimneys. [354]
Besides, they have so little fuel that they don't want to waste any of the heat . . . and the smoke is allowed to escape only through a hole in the roof. I don't know if this affects their lungs. It probably would. But I know that it does cause most of the eye ailments.

Concerning stomach disorders, it may be possible that the ingestion of continuous quantities of mineral laden glacial waters contribute to this condition . . . but I am unable to state categorically if this is true.

Goiter and caries of the teeth have become a leading health problem. But these conditions were comparatively unknown when they used their native salt.

All through my travels in that area I did not come across one sick native. But that need not have any great significance, because sick people probably stay out of sight, and therefore they wouldn't come within range of my vision or my wanderings.

I must emphasize here that every man that I saw in 164 Hunza appeared to be the picture of health and contentment.

000 Since my return from Hunza I have become noticeably health-conscious. And I have been appalled by the number of sick, ill and ailing people around me. It is becoming rare and unusual to meet a person who will boldly say that he is in perfect health at 35 or 40 years of age. And is there a large mature-membered family about, who doesn't have one of its members ill, dying or dead from one of our many dread diseases?

No, I resent any insinuation on the part of anyone to the effect that I am overdramatizing or accentuating the picture or situation. I believe that every community in America has had additions or new hospitals built, and even with all that, they are unable to take care of the applicants who desire to enter them as patients.

No wonder people are interested in the "Healthy Hunzans."

Taking all factors under close observation and consideration, I have reached the conclusion that ours is a condition of ill health and that the people of Hunza enjoy good health. Whether it is due to their way of life, as compared to our manner of living, depends entirely upon what you are willing to accept. It is my conviction that we can enjoy the same health that the people of Hunza enjoy if we will live according to the rules and laws of nature—right here in America!

 [pp. 639-646 not processed]

116

116 TEXTS--a full set of pages from each processed source, arranged in page order, as a means of establishing the context for any particular slip. Sets are arranged in the numerical order of the sources. See also:

Literary texts 539

8: Clark N-5 (1948-1951)1963
AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

Natural History

Incorporating Nature Magazine

THE JOURNAL OF THE AMERICAN MUSEUM OF NATURAL HISTORY

Vol. LXXII OCTOBER 1963 No. 8

ARTICLES

GRAVITATIONAL FORCES AND EFFECTS Kenneth L. Franklin 12
SECRETS FROM COLD STORAGE William J. Cromie 20 PINK-HEADED WARBLER Walter Dawn 28
ECOLOGICAL PARADOX OF COASTAL PERU E. Yale Dawson 32
HUNZA IN THE HIMALAYAS John Clark 38
ENIGMATIC LIZARD Otto von Frisch 46

DEPARTMENTS

REVIEWS Bruce C. Heezen 4
SKY REPORTER Simone Daro Gossner 52 NATURALISTS' NOTEBOOK: PROWESS OF A WHEEL BUG 56 ABOUT THE AUTHORS 60
NATURE AND THE CAMERA David Linton 62

[Title Page]

133
361
487

[P. 38]

[caption appears at the bottom of photograph on p. 39-A]

8:Clark N-5 (1948-1951) 1963
AV7 Burnho AV7
Hunza
[P.39-A]

Hunza in the Himalayas

Storied Shangri-La undergoes scrutiny

133
291
292
622
613
344

TERRACED country, left, is ruled by the Mir, shown with village chiefs, above, at his palace at 8,000 feet altitude. Background peaks exceed 20,000 feet.

8:Clark N-5 (1948-1951) 1963
AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza
[P.39-B]

By JOHN CLARK

123 169 THE FOLLOWING IS AN ENTRY in my weathered notebook of a decade ago, written when, as an American living in the Himalayas in a run-down castle, I was operating an infirmary:

[526] "'Salaam aleikum, Hazoor! my trouble is very great,' said old Bohar. He raised his white-stubbled chin and pointed to the source of his pain.

"I looked and shuddered a little. Four oozing, open holes, each the diameter of a pencil, pierced his chin and jawbone. I asked him to open his mouth, and he complied, exposing a row of teeth worn absolutely flat. I ran my finger across his lower teeth; four were so loose that I was able to

8:Clark N-5 (1948-1951) 1963
AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

[P.39-C]

/23 pull them out with my fingers. Bohar
/169 gasped, then relaxed as the extraction permitted the abscesses at the roots to drain more freely."

/181 This was in Hunza, the small, moun-
/131 tainous, Central Asiatic kingdom
/121 bordering on China, Kashmir, and Afghanistan, about which there has been recurring publicity, characterizing the land as a Shangri-La peopled by men and women of extraordinary /121 health and longevity. Since the beginning of man's role as a traveler, tales of far-off earthly paradises have been brought home to entertain the untraveled. No matter how many such El Dorados perish under examination, the next is inevitably welcomed into the lists with unblemished credulity.

[text continues on p. 40-B]

8:Clark N-5 (1948-1951) 1963
AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza
[P. 40-A]
142
291
302
779
888

FABLED ELDERS of Hunza are products of rugged mountain life, scarcity, Moslem faith, and an autocratic tradition. If they exaggerate age, it is done to claim society's veneration.

8:Clark N-5 (1948-1951) 1963
AV7 Burushо AV7
Hunza
[P 40-B]

121 In Hunza, say the romanticists, a race
[278] of Moslems—descended, according to their traditions, from the lost legions of Alexander the Great—exist in a Himalayan paradise, thrive on simple foods, live a life free of the corruptions of Western civilization, and reach ages of 120 to 140, the men still fathering children when more than 90 years of age. After being exposed to the realities of Hunza life, one feels more than a sense of irony when he comes upon these representations of a way of life that is among the bitterest in Asia. The "Healthy Hunzas," the "Democratic Court," and the "Land Where There Are No Poor" — almost all of this is born of too-hurried observation by Western tourists.

648 Politically, Hunza is a protectorate
284 of Pakistan, which controls its foreign

670 affairs, its defense, and its single tele-206 phone line. Hunza pays no taxes to the 693 Pakistani Government. Instead, they [65] are paid to the Mir, who is absolute [622] ruler of the small border state. The Mir [624] appoints an arbop, or village chief, and a chowkidar, or local sergeant at [627] arms, for each village. Local disputes are tried by village chiefs. Anyone has 693 the right of appeal to the Mir's court, 692 which consists of the Mir, his hereditary grand vizier, plus the Mir-appointed chiefs of all the villages within [646] walking distance of the palace. However, since the loser usually pays a fine to the Mir's treasury, and the winner traditionally gives the court a present equal to the loser's fine, not many 795 cases are appealed. The Aga Khan 693 (literally "Grandfather King") is spiritual leader of the Ismaili reli-

8.Clark N-5 (1948-1951) 1963
AV7 Burushо AV7
[P 40-D] Hunza

796 gious sect to which all Hunzas belong:
693 the Mir of Hunza is administrator, but not religious deputy, for the Ismailians of the Central Asian District.

114 THE notes about Bohar and his teeth were made after I had worked with the Hunza people for almost three years during two prolonged stays in the small kingdom. I was introduced to this part of Asia as a reconnaissance engineer on General Stilwell's staff, and returned twice be-
114 tween 1943 and 1951. My primary 123 purpose as Director of the Central Asiatic Research Foundation was to discover what resources were available to the Hunzas, and to teach them to use these to their own best advantage. From the start of my second visit I operated a general dispensary with

[Text continues on p. 41-A]

Ø Clark N.5 (1948-1951)1963

AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

[P.40-E]

142
291
302
562
262

8:Clark N-5 (1948-1951) 1963
AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

[P. 41- A]

114 Western equipment. (Training in anat-123 omy, some concentrated informal studies of Asian diseases, plus previous experience, made this possible for me. In addition, I ran three experimental gardens and founded a craft school, with the Mir's approval.)

164 Bohar had developed scurvy, after 146 which staphylococcus infected the
123 gums and abscessed the roots of his teeth; the abscesses had then eroded downward through the jawbone and out through the flesh and skin. After washing out the sores, I gave him vitamin C tablets to stop the scurvy, and vitamin D with calcium lactate to cure the rickets that were stiffening his knees. The old man was by no means [152] atypical. My dispensary was always beset by lines of waiting patients, all with afflictions that belied popular beliefs about "the Healthy Hunzas."

8:Clark N-5 (1948-1951) 1963
AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza
[P. 41-B]

164 beliefs about "the Healthy Hunzas."
123 Altogether, I was able to treat 5,680
[243] medical cases—the country had no other dispensary—during my stay in 164 Hunza. My daily group of patients did not suffer from many of the diseases [158] common to our civilization. There were no true neurotics; no cases of stomach ulcers, appendicitis, or gout;
only one case of cerebral hemorrhage,
[41] and but four cardiac cases. The few [143] bad hearts had been damaged either by malarial anemia or by overexertion at high altitudes, as was the case with one man who had carried the Mir's piano on his back up twenty miles of mountain trail. On the other hand, my Hunza patients did have malaria. They also had at least two kinds of intestinal worms, and to see for the first time a man with Ascaris

8:Clark N-5 (1948-1951) 1963
AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

[P.41-C]

164 worms impacted in his duodenum is appalling. The disease is more painful than the ulcers Hunzas do not have. Hunzas also suffer from trachoma, pneumonia, tuberculosis, a fatal type of dysentery, and violent staphylococcic infections of their eyes, teeth, and skin. I never observed cancer.

Total blindness, too, often afflicts the Hunzas and is caused by staphylococcus infections, cataracts, and pterygium. (More than five per cent of the population had trachoma.) I cannot forget the father who brought me his nine-year-old daughter with both her eyes horribly swollen from staphylococcus. They came the day after I had run out of antibiotics. The next shipment arrived by caravan two months later when the little girl was permanently blind.

[Text continues on p. 42-B]

8:Clark N-5 (1948-1951) 1963
AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza
[P.41-D]
644
142
291
302

[562] [584] MIR'S DAUGHTER, the Princess Nilofar, is spokesman for Hunza's women, who, despite public segregation and their low status, never are forced to marry against their will.

8-Clark N-5 (1948-1951) 1963
AV7 Burumbo AV7
Hunza
[P.42-A]

FAMILY LIFE on Hunza's flat roofs bespeaks the country's dry climate and the cramped quarters that prevail inside a typical stone abode, forcing inhabitants to seek increased living space in the open. A meal is being prepared, above.

133
252
291
362
415
516

125 One evening, I took a census of the 165 nine teen-age boys in my wood-carv-
[123] ing school. Of these, all from well-to-do households, how many had seen death in their immediate families?
165 Here was the roll:
551 Gohor Hayat: mother, three brothers, two sisters; Sherin Beg: one brother, one sister; Nur-ud-Din: mother, two brothers, two sisters; Md. Hamid: mother, one sister; Burhan Shah: one brother, one sister; Nasar Md.: mother, two brothers, one sister; Mullah Madut: two brothers; Suleiman: one brother; Ghulam Rasul: father. In a country fabled for the long lives of its inhabitants, these are depressingly typical Asian statistics.
165 Moreover, there is little reason to be-576 lieve that any of the old men are really as old as is claimed.

"How old are you?" I once asked a venerable patient.

"Ninety, Hazoor!" he answered.

"How do you know you're ninety?"

"Well, Hazoor, my hair is white, and I know I'm very old, and ninety is very old, so I must be ninety."

[124] My teen-aged assistant, Gohor Hayat, broke in impatiently, "Why do you waste time asking such questions?
[217] You know there are no records, be-
[212] cause so few of my people can write!"

I had thought the old man might have a way of keeping count. "How old are you, Gohor Hayat?" I asked.

Gohor Hayat responded loftily, "I'm

[text continues on p. 43-C]

8: Clark N-5 (1948-1951)1963

AV7 Burusho AV7

[P.42-C]

Hunza

286
291
292

[463]
[433]

Craftsmen like this weaver are not numerous in Hunza; the demanding mountain economy requires the full-time effort of the society to raise food.

8: Clark N-5 (1948-1951)1963
AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

[P43-A]

SCENE MORE TYPICAL of neighboring Gilgit than of Hunza is this one showing boys at a community fountain. Until a short time ago, little if any pipe had been available in Hunza. Water, called "glacial milk," comes from ice sheets.

142
291
312
333

8:Clark N-5 (1948-1951) 1963
AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

[P.43-B]

256
291
516

GRINDING of barley and wheat, above, is done by centuries-old technique.

142
252
291
415
516

CHAPATTIES are the end product of the country's milling and baking.

165 seventeen." Two years before he had 856 told me he was thirteen.

165 Because the Hunzas, themselves, [117] have no written records, I attempted to [128] estimate longevity on the basis of physical signs of age.

165 THE elderly Hunzas, I discovered
145 firsthand, show impressive dental evidence of being no older than sixty to seventy-five, not an unusual old-age [146] in Western countries. Owing to a lack of vitamin D and milk in their diet, the great majority of Hunzas have soft teeth. A young man of about twenty-one, just cutting his wisdom teeth, typically has six-year molars that are worn flat. This allows a rate-of-wear calculation that is relatively dependable in determining age. For instance, a man over one hundred years old, at this rate, would have all his molars worn down to the jawbone, but this does not occur even in the teeth of the very oldest Hunzas.

262 "Purity" has been attributed to the [214] Hunza diet, but the diet itself has seldom been more than superficially observed or related to its highly seasonal pattern. In the summertime the Hunza cuisine is limited, but not too bad.
[272] Chapatties—shaped like pancakes and made of coarse, whole-barley flour and water—form the staple, and salted tea is the beverage. Mulberries, fresh apricots, cucumbers, and occasionally sheep-milk butter, round out the

262 meals. By September, wheat replaces the barley, and fresh grapes, carrots, and some melons are available. The [273] grapes are either eaten fresh or made into wine; the supply of both is always exhausted by spring.

796 Tumushuling, the great winter cele-
585 bration in mid-December, is a sort of delayed thanksgiving feast. December 19, the day before the Tumushuling celebration, is the day in Hunza on which all weddings are celebrated. Each bridegroom, accompanied by several of his friends, goes to the home of his betrothed and sits outside her door, which is kept partially open. Periodically, he hands in gifts of cloth, food, or perhaps even a dish or pan [43] from Pakistan. Meanwhile, his friends give chapatties with butter, a real luxury, to any wayfarers who may pass by—a custom that encourages some travelers to take circuitous routes in order to encounter the well-to-do [492] marriages. By evening the gifts are exhausted and the groom returns home, leading his veiled bride, who either walks or is mounted on a donkey. Tumushuling thus is a group wedding celebration as well as a harvest festival.
[493] The Mir gives a small gift, usually a [90] piece of cloth, to every bridegroom who comes to claim it.

515 As in most Asian cultures, Hunza 583 marriage is civil rather than sacramental. The ceremony is really a not-too-symbolic purchase of the bride.

[P44-A]

587 Marriages are not arranged against 586 the will of either party, and although divorce is legally very easy for men 593 or women, it is not common. Women are neither abused nor overworked, and the mother is the reported chief of the house, as the father is of the [5A] farm. Marriage does not encompass companionship as we know it: men [562] spend their spare time in the company of other men, and women visit exclu-562 sively with other women. They hold 535 their dances on separate threshing floors a half-mile or so apart, on the same night, and woe betide the eager teen-age boy who dresses in his sister's clothes and sneaks into a girls' dance.

262 At the time of the Tumushaling, [296] and only then, Hunza families
[231] butcher a sheep or two; cold weather
[25] preserves the meat for the few days before it is all eaten—and it is virtually all eaten. Even the long bones are cracked to extract the last marrow. After this taste of meat, the winter of the dietary year sets in. Gradually the supply of carrots and potatoes fails, then the wheat, the barley, the dried [149] apricots, and the tea. By springtime the poorer folk may eat only once in two days. No one starves to death, but no one has enough to stop hunger.

146 The regular Hunza diet has no fats, no animal proteins, no vitamin A, no vitamin D, a deficiency of vitamin B, and a serious deficiency of calcium. Apricots contain some sugar and vitamin C, but the poorer families are un-295 able to raise large crops. (The size 556 of apricot orchards determines a man's wealth and status.) Hunzas use 372 every bit of the apricot, as they do of 829 the sheep. They cut the pits from the fruits, crack them, and remove the al-
[412] mond-like nuts. The women hand-grind these with stone mortars, then squeeze the meal between a hand-stone [359] and a flat rock to express the oil. Apricot oil is fuel for the saucer-shaped lamps that illuminate their houses, as lamps of this type have done since the 829 Bronze Age. The oil is very bitter, na-278 turally enough, because of its high content of prussic acid, fifty drops of which are said to be lethal in about [278] four hours. Men add a few drops, as bitters, to their wine, and occasion-[762] ally a disappointed woman takes a dose in order to commit suicide.

164 Mild cases of rickets and scurvy 146 are rampant every spring—not enough to kill, just enough to loosen teeth, cause aching knees, and deform ribs

[P44-B]

164 146 into the "fine, barrel chests" reported by travelers. (I found that when they took off their shirts the fine, barrel chests revealed strong asymmetry, with ribs notably warped by rickets.) During my first winter, I developed a typical case of beriberi, even though my diet was more varied than theirs and was adequate in quantity.

133 161 [10] The basic trouble rests not with the Hunzas, who are neat, intelligent, and hard-working, but with their country. There is no flat land in all of Hunza.

[36] [31] Villages and farms are built on alluvial cones—fan-shaped masses of gravel dumped by streams rushing from mountain glaciers down into the valleys—and the small cultivated areas simply are not extensive enough to support the constantly increasing population. (The Mir estimated the population of his country at 25,000 in 1951. According to one of the last of the British agents stationed in nearby Gilgit, Hunza's population was increasing at the rate of 30 per cent each decade. Rising emigration and the absence of written records obscure the reality, as one might imagine.)

[67]

311 241 Hunza's slopes are so steep they must be terraced by the laborious construction of hand-built retaining walls of boulders. I measured one cultivated slope of 60 degrees—so steep that the retaining walls were twice as high as the miniature plots they supported. And sometimes Hunza farmers will even create arable soil on top of bare rock. After a crescent-shaped wall at the foot of any fairly gentle rock slope is built high enough so the top of the wall is level with the top of the slope, the wall is carefully chinked and mud-calked, then sandy water from the nearest irrigation ditch is admitted to make a small pond. When the sand settles out, the clear water is drained, and more sandy water is admitted. This process is repeated for about two years, until enough sand accumulates to allow cultivation.

134 311 Much of the "soil" of Hunza fields is thus not really soil. Rather, it is a jumble of unweathered boulders, gravel, and sand. Since Hunza is a cool but exceedingly dry desert, practically no plant food is formed. The scant rain that falls soaks rapidly through the spongy sand, leaches out any traces of plant food that may be present, and carries it down to the river. Not even sagebrush will grow on the unirrigated areas, so most slopes are barren. Newly irrigated areas are

[33] [13]

134 so sterile that Hunzas have told me, "If 311 you irrigate new land, you must eat for five years somewhere else."

241 HUNZAS are skillful at building a 134 limited fertility into their sterile
[237] material, given enough time. All sheep manure is carefully saved, and the fields are fertilized with it four times during each growing season. Frequent irrigation works with summer warmth and mountain ozone to decompose the manure rapidly. The growing plants thus have a few weeks of available food after each fertilization, before drainage again removes the plant food. Hunza farming is actually hydroponic gardening, with the soil functioning merely to anchor the plants.

Plainly, the plants will receive enough of only those foods that occur abundantly in sheep manure. Nitrates, phosphates, and probably calcium are deficient. Yields of wheat and alfalfa are notably lower per acre than are yields from better-fertilized American acres. Apricot trees generally have reddish leaves at the growing tips, a sure sign of soil deficiencies.

433 Even the most painstaking hydro-241 ponic gardening cannot compensate
237 for deficiencies in the food chemistry. Moreover, their system makes Hunza one of the few countries where an agrarian economy is absolutely dependent upon the pastoral economy.
[233] Even in the high mountain summer pastures, the sheep are carefuly herded into small cotes in order to preserve each night's droppings. Every few days a man climbs down the steep trail with a load of manure on his back. Effectively, the fertility of the high mountain pastures is being transferred down to Hunza's fields.

433 Unfortunately, the human popula-
161 tion has already grown so large that the fields cannot provide sufficient 167 food. Hunzas are moving out of their country in rather large numbers. Although the exact total of annual emigrees is unknown, it is clear that most of them go to the lower villages near Gilgit, where they soon displace their less industrious Sheena predecessors. Hundreds of Hunza's young men [64] join the Pakistan army. Others take [164] work as servants, where their honesty, [181] industry, and common sense make them highly valued. The Hunzas realize, as certain Western tourists do not, that their country is a land of little food, and even less opportunity for the future, picturesque as it is.

[P.45]

585
291
411
714

[662]

Consumption of wedding ceremonies is enjoyed exclusively by male participants and spectators. Segregation of the sexes prohibits women, including brides, from viewing ceremonies. On many public occasions, women hold a separate gathering.

Lorimer 7-8 (1920-4; 1934-8) 1938 AV7 Burusho AV7

The Burusho of Hunza

by E. O. Lorimer

THE small state of Hunza is the most northerly in British India. It consists for the most part of a close-packed mass of unscaled and unscalable mountain peaks over 20,000 feet, seamed by untrodden rivers of snow and ice; as might be anticipated, it is mainly uninhabited. Its frontiers march with Afghanistan on the northwest and with Chinese Turkestan on the north and northeast. But where the Hunza river has cut its way down from the Pamirs to join the Gilgit river and ultimately the Indus, there remain, clinging to the mountain sides, a few sloping, rocky terraces which, if water can be brought to them, can with diligence be rendered fit for human habitation. These oases of green amidst the barren desolation of rock and cliff and mountain peak are the habitat of a sturdy mountain people, the Burusho, speaking a difficult but extremely interesting language, of so great antiquity that no affinity between it and any other known form of human speech has yet been traced by the comparative philologist.

When D.L. was posted as Political Agent, Gilgit (1920–24) he made it one of his leisure tasks to collect material for a scientific study of Burushaski (the language of the Burusho) the result of which is a three-volume work*—grammar, texts and vocabulary—of which the last volume is just issuing from the press. In 1934—ten years after his retirement—we returned unofficially to Hunza, armed indeed with a considerable knowledge of the language but with no facility in speaking it, to live amongst the peasants and make such a study of their customs, agriculture, economics, etc., as amateur anthropologists might.

During our four years in Gilgit we had not failed to discover that the Hunzukuts (dwellers in Hunza) were the most attractive of all the likable mountain peoples of the Gilgit Agency, the most physically prepossessing, the most intelligent and the most trustworthy. All classes in Hunza gave us a warm welcome, from the Mir—who has

* The Burushaski Language, by Lt.-Col. D. L. R. Lorimer, Oslo, 1935 (England: Williams and Norgate) published by the Norwegian Institute for Comparative Research in Human Culture.

[pp 1-4 contain no textual material]

NOTE

121 THIS is not a serious book. Comparative philologists hoping for news of Burushaski, anthropologists interested in the highly civilized though materially primitive life of the Burusho of Hunza, ethnologists curious as to their origin, the scientifically-minded of every sort, are once for all referred to the published and to the yet unpublished books and articles of my husband, Lieutenant-Colonel D. L. R. Lorimer, late of the Indian Army and the Foreign and Political Department of the Government of India, hereinafter referred to as David or DL.

121 114 I have been concerned merely to set down our personal day-to-day experiences—they do not merit the name of adventures—and our first impressions of the delightful people who for fourteen months in 1934–35 were our neighbours and our friends.

The journey to and from Hunza and the semi-camp life there had at an earlier period been the commonplace, all-in-the-day's-work life of ourselves for four years (1920–24), as of a long series of other Political Agents and their wives both before and after us. The only thing that lent a spice of adventure to this last tour was our delightful freedom from all official responsibility, and our age. Changes of climate and altitude, shortages of food and sleep, fatigues of travel, at which one smiles at forty present a graver challenge to fifty-five.

120 The triumph of our elderly excursion lies not alone in the sheaves carried home by DL, but in the fact that we both came back more than a little battered, it must be confessed, but still smiling; and treasuring memories which are worth incomparably more than the price exacted.

121 My excuse for writing so superficial—perhaps worthless—a book at all must be that it has made me happy to recall this silver honeymoon spent in the Karakoram and to pay a tribute to our hospitable and beloved Hunzukuts as they were in 1935, as they must have been for uncounted generations in the past, as they may be for generations yet to come, if the poverty

NOTE

/2/ and inaccessibility of their country happily keep them safely quarantined against "the sick fatigue, the languid doubt," the unrest and fear and hustle of our civilization.

For the map I am indebted to DL; the illustrations are my own.

E. O. LORIMER

UNIVERSITY WOMEN'S CLUB

April 1938

P. 6

1.6 1.8 England I settled down first to translating the texts and working out the vocabulary, and then to an intensive comparative study of every word and every grammatical form occurring in my material. On this basis I then prepared and annotated the Texts and drew up the Grammar and Vocabulary as they now stand. This took in all four and a half years, from January 1926 to June 1930.

I have dwelt at some length on my methods of work, because without such knowledge it is impossible for the reader to form any just estimate of the degree of authority to which the book can lay claim. For the same reason I have made a free use of question marks in the Vocabulary and elsewhere to indicate points in regard to which my information is uncertain. I hope I have stated nothing as a fact except on reasonably adequate grounds.

1.4 The whole edifice stands essentially on the foundation of Jemadar Imam Yar Beg's Burushaski, a foundation the general reliability of which I think no one in Hunza would dream of questioning. But this statement requires serious qualification: it is IYB's Burushaski as affected by the misheanings and misunderstandings of the recorder. That there are such I have not the slightest doubt. I am only surprised that the substance of the Texts has worked out so homogeneous and, as I have now some ground for believing, so correct.

A special word of warning should be given in regard to the Phonetics. I am myself no phonetician and made no constant systematic attempt to distinguish by all means at my command between different sounds which sooner or later I knew to exist, but could not myself certainly distinguish. This applies specially to the two parallel series of cerebrals and non-cerebrals, aspirates and non-aspirates. Many cerebrals and aspirates may have escaped undetected; I can only say that where a sound is marked as cerebral or aspirate, it may safely be assumed to be such.

1.21 My general aim in the preparation of this work is now sufficiently evident; it is simply to give a perfectly objective view of what I was able to ascertain about the language. I have created a hypothesis only where it seemed necessary to attain brevity and clarity in the statement of facts. Such is my theory of the initial *-a- of many nouns and verbal bases, and the combination of it with the pronominal prefixes. Otherwise I have avoided speculation in realms outside my competence. I have raised no questions of the relationship between Burushaski and other languages and I have also intentionally omitted to point out many parallels in grammatical usage and idiom between Burushaski and the adjacent, though non-related, languages Shina and Khowar. In the Vocabulary on the other hand I have noted when the same word, or obviously a form of the same word, is in use in those languages. I have done this because I believe that many of these Shina and Khowar words have not before been recorded, and even when they have been, will not always be readily accessible to the reader.

3c Lorimer L-S (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935 AV7 Burushо AV7

As I have eschewed questions of relationship, so for still better reasons I have abstained from any attempt to propound linguistic theories of a more general nature. With less certain virtue I have also failed to supply any new grammatical terminology. Another terminology than that of my boyhood's reminiscences of Latin Grammar is certainly needed to describe the phenomena of Burushaski. I do not know that such exists, and I have thought it wise to leave this thorny matter to hardened experts and not to complicate the issues by amateur attempts which would only prove a stone of offence.

The principal work that remains to be done for Burushaski as I see it is:

1. To make a scientific determination of the phonetic system.
2. To clear up existing grammatical problems and to discover more.
3. To ascertain the relative frequency of various syntactical usages. Some which in my material occur rarely are probably in fact common enough.
4. To make a parallel study of Nagiri Burushaski and local variations in phonetics and vocabulary.

&Lorimer L-3 (1920-4;1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burushko AV7

PREFACE.

The following Vocabularies are based on the material collected in 1923—24, to which reference has been made in the Introduction, Volume I (pp. lvi. ff.), and were completed in 1930—31. 122 128

Thanks to assistance received from the Leverhulme Research Fund, I was able to revisit Gilgit and Hunza in 1934—35, and I then collected a considerable amount of new material.

Of this practically nothing has been incorporated in the present work. The additions, in the way both of new entries and of the elaboration of the existing entries, would have been considerable, and their preparation would have entailed great delay in publication. As matters stand I have not yet worked out the new material[1], and this has saved me from much temptation. 128

The revision of the Burushaski—English Vocabulary as it already existed, was, however, one of the many items of a too ambitious programme, which I did carry out, if only in a hasty and perfunctory way.

For this work I was fortunate in obtaining the assistance of Qudratullah Beg (QUB), son of Subadar Muhabbatullah Beg, a literate and extremely intelligent young man, with a remarkable feeling for language and the refinements of phonetics. [115]

A thorough examination of the forms, meanings and uses of the words in even this very modest vocabulary would have been a major task requiring an almost infinite amount of time. I had therefore 128 121

[1] Attention may, however, be called to a note on certain features of Burushaski published in the BSOS Vol. VIII, 1936, pp. 627—636, which throws light on some grammatical and phonetic devices of the language.

S. Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burushe AV7

128 to restrict my aims to improving the phonetic representation of 121 the words, principally in regard to distinguishing cerebrals and non-cerebrals, aspirates and non-aspirates, and to clearing up doubts indicated by question marks in the original script, which chiefly related to noun-categories and to plural and pronominal-prefix forms, but also sometimes to meanings. Even these limited aims were not completedly realised; many forms and queries escaped notice or otherwise resisted determination.

128 One point resulting from this revision may be noted. The keyword as given in the Vocabulary, or the first form, where alternatives are offered, is the representation of the word, which from all information available I believe to be the correct one. Many words are misspelt, as regards cerebrals and aspirates, in the Grammar and Texts, which were in print before this revision was carried out. No attempt has been made to correct them in the quotations given in the Vocabulary. The reader is therefore asked to concentrate his mind on the keyword forms.

It will be observed that among the meanings given Arabic and Persian words frequently occur, to all which "H" (Hindustani) has been prefixed. This is for the sake of simplification and because explanations were usually given in Hindustani (or Urdu) in which these words are current.

Occasionally another Burushaski word is quoted under the description "Bu. Syn." (Burushaski Synonym). This is not to be taken as meaning that the one word exactly duplicates the other in meaning, but only that the second was used to explain the first.

This volume began to go to press while I was still in Hunza, and Professor Morgenstierne very generously undertook the unpleasant task of working my emendations into the earlier part of the script and revising the proofs of the first few sheets. This resulted in a very considerable saving of time.

I regret to have to append a lengthy list of corrections and additions. These are due in large part to the upsetting effect of growing knowledge and the alterations in the text which it entailed,

& Lorimer L-3 (1930-4; 1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

For the rest I can only hope that they may be attributed to physical limitations rather than to economy of endeavour on my part. I have made a vast number of corrections in the proofs, but unfortunately this is a case where anything short of complete achievement acquires no merit. 128

I have made no effort to turn this into a comparative philological dictionary, a task beyond my competence, but I have aimed at indicating obvious loan-words, for the benefit of those who may approach Burushaski with a mininum knowledge of other oriental languages 121 192

The bulk of these loan-words will be found to be Arabic-Persian, i.e. Arabic words current in Persian, most of which have probably been acquired, more or less indirectly, from the latter language. 192

The original source of dissemination of Persian in all this part of the world has undoubtedly been the language of the Tajik population of the plains of what is now known as Tajikistan in USSR territory. This Tajik Persian is now beginning to receive attention (Cp. W. Lentz, "Pamir Dialekte, I" Göttingen, 1933, Introd. pp. 31 ff. and H. Sköld, "Materalien zu den iranischen Pamirsprachen", Lund 1936, Introd. pp. 8 ff.). Work has been done on it in recent years by Soviet scholars, but copies of their publications are not easy to obtain. [113]

What proportion of the Persian words recorded by me in Burushaski are familiar to all Burushaski speakers, I cannot definitely say. Illiterate and untravelled men and most of the women would not, I think use, or know, many Persian words for which there are adequate Burushaski equivalents. Against this, every child in Hunza seemed to know the word tasvir for "photograph". It was a very old man who, when he had lost or damaged his portrait, asked if he could have another copy of the girmisum, the "script".

Other non-adjacent languages which have been laid under contribution are Hindustani and Punjabi.

With Tibetan I have no direct acquaintance but I have noted a few words in Burushaski which can be found in the standard Tibetan dictionaries.

Scherimer L-3 (1920-4;1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burushaski AV7

Preface

Apart from indicating undoubted loan-words, often to me of unknown origin, which are shared by Burushaski with one or more of the neighbouring languages, I have made no attempt to pronounce on the authenticity of those words which primâ facie appear to be true Burushaski. Sanskrit cognates have been suggested for some of them by Professor Morgenstierne. 192 121

One important question remains to which I can give no precise or certain answer: What proportion do the Burushaski words in this Vocabulary bear to the total word-stock of the language? When I returned to Hunza in 1934 one of my hopes was to record sufficient new words to make my collection fairly complete as regards words in daily use and known to everyone. I was well aware that the still popular belief that peoples living in primitive conditions must possess simple languages and employ small vocabularies had been abundantly disproved by facts, but I had not realised what a lengthy business it is to collect and adequately record even a few hundred words after the first couple of thousand in constant daily use have been noted. How many new words I actually recorded I have no idea, but I am certain that they will go only a short way towards making the vocabulary complete. I could always easily get new words, the difficulty was to find time to have them elucidated and to write them down. 192

Burushaski possesses a large number of nouns of a technical nature relating to all the ordinary occupations of life, which, given time, can be ascertained by observation and enquiry, but it also appears to be very rich in verbs, and these are not so easily and quickly discovered by any direct method.

The Werchikwar—English Vocabulary remains much as it was when it was originally compiled. In 1934—35 I made several efforts to bring Werchikwar-speakers to Hunza to work with me there, but failed to secure competent men. The principal result was disappointment and wasted time. Eventually I paid a visit to Yasin and found an old acquaintance, with whom I worked there and whom I brought back to Hunza and kept with me for a few 126 that the old palace is up at least another 500 or 600 feet. It was perched precariously on a huge outcropping of rock that jutted straight up into the air and the entire surface of the pinnacle was used for the building. There was no superfluous area surrounding it.

I had a long list of questions prepared and I knew even before I started that Sultan Ali could not give me all the answers because many of the questions were strictly horticultural—others dealt with dietary principles. I wanted to talk to farmers and individual people and housewives on both of these subjects.

I asked if he could arrange to take me to a group of farmers or even an individual farmer . . . that is, farmers who were capable and efficient—the better, the more intelligent and prosperous ones . . . so that I might delve into their ways and means of field husbandry.

He nodded, "This will be done. When would you like to talk to them?"

"Tomorrow morning, if it can be done," I replied.

"That's fine. I will arrange it!"

Wherever it was possible, I wanted to get my information direct from the people concerned. There is actually only one class of people in Hunza and one occupation, which is farming. I only know of one shop in the area and it sells mostly goods that have been brought in by the Chinese caravans that have passed through. I don't doubt also that there were some goods in this same shop that came into Hunza via Rawalpindi and Gilgit.

However, it was plain and clear that 900 of the citizens of Hunza out of 1000 made their living by means of farming. Therefore, as I had come to Hunza primarily to study the farming and horticultural methods of the people, the preparation of the foods they ate, 121 and of course the kinds and varieties of foods that were used, I attached great importance to this phase of my trip and I was definitely determined that, come what might, this information I would have thoroughly and in detail.

124 No doubt it would have been an advantage had I been able to speak either Urdu, or better still Burushaski, so that I could frame my questions as I saw fit and have answers that would be direct and would not require translation. However, that was not possible. Still, I had no reason to believe that my interpreter would not be a forthright individual who would give me the answers that were relayed to him clearly and to the point.

Mind you, I was seeking no miracle or world panacea. I wanted to find out the simple truth!

Further, I wanted to walk from farm to farm . . . that is, just selecting one at random here and there. I wanted to view the farmer's activities, study his soil and examine it, ask a few questions and thus, I could gather the information that I wanted and which was so vital to me.

344 644 The old palace proved to be in a good state of preservation. I wondered, because of its good condition, why someone didn't live there. Many of the rooms were still furnished. There were even rugs and tapestries placed and hung in their original positions.

[126] When we climbed to the top of the castle—that is, to the roof where I snapped many photos—it seemed mighty high and overlooked everything around us. But [133] in the distance were mountains that were well over 20,000 feet—and that is no exaggeration, but more likely an understatement.

There was a railing around this upper balcony and from this balcony you could walk into other chambers.

made entirely of soft pliable leather, the lower part, including the soles, from yak hide and the upper part from cow or ibex hide. 291 237

I wanted to learn as much as possible about the good people of Hunza. Therefore I was interested in their crafts and craftsmanship. 121

All of the cloth used in making the garments the people wear and the special Hunzan hats are woven on looms that have been in use for hundreds of years. They weave 3 distinct types of material. It takes about 3 days to weave a length of approximately 15 yards of the best cloth, which is hardly sufficient to make a man's and a woman's "choga." The woman's requires 7 yards and the man's takes 9 yards. They trade commodities in exchange for the weaving. Then, during the winter, the men of the households cut and stitch the garments into durable, warm clothing. 286 291 [437] 294 462

The village blacksmith is also the music maker. Somehow, to me, that seems most appropriate for the clang of the hammer on the anvil rings a true music. These blacksmiths and musicians live in a section entirely of their own and they seem to keep mostly to themselves. It seems that all of the blacksmith-musicians of Hunza belong to a tribe known as the Bericho. 326 533 563

These people were sent to Hunza long, long ago by the Prince of Baltistan who was repaying a favor rendered him by the Mir of Hunza. These people have retained their independence and identity and do not generally take part in Hunzan activities. They even speak a language of their own known as Dumaki. This is also referred to as the speech of the Doma, or Bericho, of Hunza. [173] [197]

These people dwell in a quaint village or a community entirely of their own located just below Baltit. The history, the behavior and the manners and occupa- [621]

question, the error was cleared up. 128

Remember, I do not claim to be a Sherlock Holmes 124
or smart enough to detect by scent or otherwise an untruth or misunderstanding, so they may crop up in various places in the book.

Long before I left home I had prepared a set of queries. Among them were things for me to investigate —places, customs and chores for me to see and do. And from all this I was to make my own values and estimates as to the validity of the claims made about Hunza and its people. I tried to cover every aspect of importance and interest and I believe that, with very few exceptions, I faithfully accomplished my mission.

In preparation for the trip I read every book I could 122
find or locate that involved Hunza and in each case 114
the author had done a credible job, but most of them had failed miserably to give sufficient information—at least, for me—because 'twas information that I wanted. I wanted to know more about the agriculture of Hunza, about the health of the people, about their methods, their means and their way of life. None of the authors gave much of that vital data.

Right from the first moment that I made plans to go 121
to Hunza I decided that, if I wrote a book, it would 114 contain the most complete, the most detailed and the most thorough study of the people of Hunza yet accomplished by any writer. This determination came upon me from the frustrations I felt when I read the available books on Hunza and was left with a feeling that only the surface of the subject had been scratched.

In my endeavors to fulfill this undertaking, I have spared neither time, effort, risk nor expense. I certainly don't want my readers to be left with the feeling that all about Hunza has not been told. I definitely realize that no one in a short few weeks or even months could

•121 learn all there is to know about these most unusual
114 people. At least I wanted to learn the answers to the many questions that come into the average individual's mind.

Therefore, it is my hope that I have not failed in these positive respects.

If my narrative is not everything that you hoped and expected, I sincerely trust that I will make up in the details and information of an authentic nature that I give to you concerning these remarkable people.

142 The facial features of the people of Hunza are most striking. They are invariably finer featured than the people of the West—more angular, more clearly outlined and defined, without being harsh or bold. Their facial characteristics can best be described by the phrase "finely, delicately chiseled physiognomy" . . . like the intricate creations of a gifted sculptor.

Whether because of the rugged outdoor life they lead or because of the tanning or curing process of their smoke-filled homes during the winter, the texture of their skin is quite unusual. I think I can describe it best if I say that their faces looked as though they were made out of smooth chamois.

I was struck by the similarity of the features of the people of Hunza. In the West, everybody you meet or know doesn't look like anyone else that you know. In fact, if you do happen to come across someone who has the likeness or features similar to those of someone else you know, you're immediately struck by that resemblance, which illustrates my point. In the Western world, there is a wide divergence of facial features and characteristics. In Hunza that does not hold true.

A little thought will establish the reason for this [143] situation. Intermarriage during the centuries must have been the order of the day because of the confining nature of their homeland.

nature of their homeland.

However, the Mir pointed out to me most clearly and emphatically that intermarriage among members of one tribe is absolutely forbidden. There are four tribes in the Baltit area and they can marry among these four tribes . . . Diramiting, Khorokoch, Borong, Barataling . . . but definitely not among their own tribe.

Lest this sounds like a difficult matter to hold in check, I want to explain that this is easier to control than may be imagined, for the simple reason that all marriages must be sanctioned and performed by the Mir. Therefore he positively knows who is marrying whom.

However, even if this has been the rule for many hundreds of years, the total population of Hunza, even today, stands at something less than 25,000 souls and Lord Curzon in his memoirs states that in 1894, the total population of Hunza was only 6,000. Therefore, among so small a population, it is almost impossible for them to marry very far beyond a family relationship. (In 1934 it was estimated that the population had risen to 15,000.)

Let's put it in another way. If the people of Hunza have remained more or less a pure people for nigh on 1,000 years and the population today is only 25,000, there must have been fairly close intermarriages. Perhaps that would, as I mentioned, account for the similarity of features.

I want to stress, at this point, that I came to Hunza primarily to learn and study (1) about their health and longevity and (2) about their means and methods of agriculture.

Let's examine or re-examine a few of the more pertinent details of their unusual country.

Hunza is a country that lies along the Hunza River

CHAPTER 56

2000 Years of Bread!

256 One of the Things that I did want to witness with my own eyes was the feeding and operation of a flour mill in Hunza. Apart from all of the other important and interesting data that I had hoped to gather while in this part of the world, the operation of the wheat mill was one that to me had great portent. I wanted to see the wheat actually going into the mill and coming out as flour.

000 Bread is said to be the staff of life. Well, whether it is or not remains a moot question. But to me at least, bread is important. I always have been a big bread eater.

121 262 Now it was only during the past few years that by reading and learning I found out how useless or even harmful the pleasant white loaf that we know in America is and can be. Having a fair idea about the health record as it exists in America and knowing the kind of bread we eat, I was greatly interested when I heard about the people of Hunza and then found out that they eat only bread that is made from whole grain.

Then, when the same books or facts brought to light that the people of Hunza knew few of the world's ills, my interest was aroused to almost a fever pitch. I wondered if there was any connection between the kind of bread that we ate and our health and the kind of bread they ate in Hunza and their health.

From my own observations I also learned that wheat was the most important crop in Hunza, with the exception of apricots. I have also tried to establish which was the first domesticated grain in the annals of human history and I have not been able to establish clearly whether it was wheat or millet. But wheat is more adaptable to the temperate zones, whereas millet leans more to the warmer climes and it is clearly established that wheat is preferred by the white races.

I soon learned that there was a flour mill that functioned regularly, located on the route that we took from the palace at Baltit to the old palace or old fort. So on one of my walks I made it a point to investigate thoroughly the location, the workings and the construction of this old mill.

On my way up when we stopped at Chalt I saw one of these mills in operation, but I did not actually see the grain being made into flour.

For a man who has spent most of his life in the country and on a farm, I feel embarrassed to admit that I had never seen a flour mill in operation before.

During the past quarter of a century, or even a longer period, milling has, generally speaking, come into the hands of large corporations and that is why, I assume, I got it into my head that milling was a complicated big-time operation that required a great investment

7:Tobe C, T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 43

The Happy Hunzans

MY CHIEF OBJECTIVE in going to Hunza was to try, first, to find out if the people of Hunza were as healthy and as long lived as many writers and reports claim them to be. 121 164

Secondly, if they were the healthy specimens of mankind that the writers said, then I wanted to find out how this came about!

I don't claim to have any special perceptive powers, but the moment I arrived in Gilgit, I resolved that all of my faculties would be centered on observing the why's and wherefore's bearing on the health of these people.

I didn't have to be a very keen observer to realize quickly that in Gilgit the Hunzan aura of health did not hold. But remember, that was in Gilgit.

Gilgit reminded me very much of the typical frontier towns as we knew them in America, except Gilgit 361

361 didn't just spring up overnight. By the appearance of [342] the stone and mud houses, as well as all other features about the city, it was obvious that the city had been there for a long, long time.

Gilgit is indeed a strange city. It is one of these places that is right in the middle of nowhere, but to that mountain-harnessed area, Gilgit is a mighty important, strategic spot. Somehow I had the feeling that if there was a place called the "crossroads of the East" Gilgit had the sole right to the appellation, for through Gilgit would pass caravans from China, as well as travelers from Russia, Afghanistan, Persia, India, Pakistan and yes, undoubtedly from all other parts of the Eastern world.

000 While I did see quite a bit of the city and the surrounding country, I regret today that I didn't dig a little deeper and get about even more. I think Gilgit has many interesting stories to tell . . . how could it be otherwise? And if I ever go back (and I intend to) I would like to be the one who brings these tales to light!

• 121 The Gilgitis, from a health standpoint or from ap-
[164] pearance in general, did not impress me one bit. The people were somewhat similar to what you would find or expect in Pakistan or India. However, the moment I crossed the bridge over the Gilgit River and got into the hills, I resolved to concentrate, coldly and with deliberate calculation, on every individual we met. So many confusing and contradicting statements had been made about the people of Hunza, that I was firmly resolved that if study and scrutinization and observation would do the trick, then I would find out the truth.

124 Akbar was keeping pace with Cecil most of the time, while Sherin was with me, and I questioned him closely about every person that we happened to meet or pass. I had no trouble—none whatsoever—in spotting a Hun-

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 71

Misconceptions

121 THIS CHAPTER I find the hardest of all the chapters in 114 the book to write.

So many gross errors or misrepresentations concerning Hunza have been given widespread publicity that I felt it was high time these errors were corrected.

It is established that a writer or a speaker who makes statements must stand behind the statements that he makes. That is all well and good in such instances and cases where the truth can be readily verified by means of encyclopedias, dictionaries or other reliable sources of information.

197 Inasmuch as Hunza is concerned, this definitely is not possible. To begin with, the language, Burushaski, is spoken only by the people in Hunza, Nagir and in a small area thereabouts. Dr. Berger in his intimate studies and broad travels has come upon only one other spot on the earth's surface where a similar tongue is

8:Clark N-5 (1948-1951) 1963
AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

[P.39-C]

123 pull them out with my fingers. Bohar
164 gasped, then relaxed as the extraction permitted the abscesses at the roots to drain more freely."

101 This was in Hunza, the small, moun-
131 tainous, Central Asiatic kingdom
121 bordering on China, Kashmir, and Afghanistan, about which there has been recurring publicity, characterizing the land as a Shangri-La peopled by men and women of extraordinary 121 health and longevity. Since the beginning of man's role as a traveler, tales of far-off earthly paradises have been brought home to entertain the untraveled. No matter how many such El Dorados perish under examination, the next is inevitably welcomed into the lists with unblemished credulity.

[text continues on p. 40-B]

8:Clark N-5 (1948-1951) 1963
AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza
[P 90-B]

•121 In Hunza, say the romanticists, a race
[279] of Moslems—descended, according to their traditions, from the lost legions of Alexander the Great—exist in a Himalayan paradise, thrive on simple foods, live a life free of the corruptions of Western civilization, and reach ages of 120 to 140, the men still fathering children when more than 90 years of age. After being exposed to the realities of Hunza life, one feels more than a sense of irony when he comes upon these representations of a way of life that is among the bitterest in Asia. The "Healthy Hunzas," the "Democratic Court," and the "Land Where There Are No Poor" — almost all of this is born of too-hurried observation by Western tourists.

648 Politically, Hunza is a protectorate
206 of Pakistan, which controls its foreign

Chapter 5

A DREAM COMES TRUE

122 THOUGH happily occupied with his other language work, David was pondering sadly on how much Burushaski there was yet to learn; how many questions of custom, beliefs, etc., he had not been able to pursue; how many knotty problems could only be resolved by a visit to Hunza and a study of peasant life on the spot. We toyed with the idea; it haunted us; it lured us. But a military pension in a post-War world, with a daughter still at school, could not by any arithmetical juggling be made to finance a private expedition to the Karakoram. Then luck took a hand. An elderly maiden aunt in Scotland, whose very existence David had almost forgotten, on whom we had no claim and from whom we had no "expectations," came to die, and left a small legacy. Prudence might suggest investing it, but what is the annual income from a couple of hundred pounds, which may at any moment be "converted" into even less? Common sense pointed out that this was not nearly enough for so long and expensive a journey and a lengthy stay. It wasn't. Then luck once more took a hand. One day we read in The Times of the new Leverhulme Research Fellowships for advanced workers, who lacked means or opportunity to complete a piece of research already begun. Not for some days did the idea dawn on us that perhaps David might come into the category of possible "fellows."

We pooh-poohed it to each other. The research would need to be on the line of pulverizing atoms, or curing cancer, or curving space, or liquefying air, or adding another span to already useless lives; it could hardly cover research into the speech and life of the Burusho of Hunza. Yet while laughing at the thought that our work could seriously engage the attention of the Leverhulme Trustees, DL decided to lay his 122 programme and his financial problems before them. We could hardly believe our eyes or ears when we found that he was one of the first seventeen fortunate workers to be awarded a fellowship for which there had been four hundred applicants. We wasted some sympathetic philosophizings on the 383, and then began to think. There was a lot to think of.

It would take time to make preliminary arrangements, and while these were going forward DL attended lectures on Anthropology at London University, since clearly the anthropological approach to our task would be the most helpful, though his interest was primarily linguistic. We were both reasonably widely read in the subject, but in Professor Malinowski's lectures and seminars at the London School of Economics he got encouragement and stimulus, as well as new and useful points of view, and made many valuable acquaintances. In the interval various negotiations were proceeding. Would the Government of India permit an ex-Political Officer to return and settle for a year or more unofficially in his successor's bailiwick? Would the present Political Agent have enough faith to raise no objection? Would the Mir of Hunza, firm friend though he had always been, welcome the proceeding? The suggestion was entirely unprecedented. Retired officials do not come back.

> Our sons inherit us, our looks are strange,
> And we should come like ghosts to trouble joy.

Obviously an indiscreet ex-Political Agent might raise all kinds of trouble. Could all these parties be convinced that DL's interests were wholly scientific? Could they believe that he would show tact and detachment enough to cause no disturbance in the happy but always delicate relations between the Mir and his people, the Political Agent and the Mir?

To everybody's credit—not least, perhaps, to the memories of goodwill and understanding that DL had left behind him—Government opposed no objection, while the Mir and the Political Agent, Major Gillan, offered a cordial welcome; but all this varied correspondence took time.

A DREAM COMES TRUE

122 We were grateful for what was ultimately accorded: permission to go at all; to use the Government rest-houses en route, subject, of course, to the prior claims of officers travelling on duty; to draw supplies on payment from depots of the Indian Army Service Corps (more familiarly known to us by its original name of the Supply and Transport Department); to bring in kit and equipment duty free. This was a very great deal.

I seem perhaps to be dwelling rather sordidly on money matters, but despite the generosity of the aunt and the Leverhulme, we were going to have to exercise the utmost economy at every step if we were to avoid bankruptcy. A minor deficit we might hope to make good by spartan retrenchment on our return—though our normal way of life left little room for more spartanism—but a major deficit would be a disaster. And the expenses ahead were impossible to estimate.

3: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935 AV7 Burusho AV7

000 5. To complete the vocabulary and to collect obsolete and obsolescent words. There are a multitude of general terms to be collected, while there is undoubtedly an immense field of "technical" terms, in the widest sense, to be covered.

In this last task the most fruitful line of approach will be by the way of anthropological interests and anthropological methods. Burushaski also appears to have a great facility in the metaphorical use of specific words, especially verbs. These uses can only be educed with time, patience and experience.

To these various subjects for enquiry, except the first, I now hope to be able to make some contribution.

114 Self-determination and luck have brought me again, after ten ●122 years, to the land of the Burusho, in the midst of whom, at Aliabad in Hunza EOL and I are now living. This luck I owe "first", as they would say here "to the grace of God", and then to the "kindness" of the Trustees of the Leverhulme Research Fellowship Fund, who have granted me substantial financial assistance. It is a short time spent again with Burushaski-speakers that has enabled me to say above that the Texts and Grammar appear to be generally sound beyond my dreams. This does not at all mean that they are impeccable.

How much can now be done will again be governed by the time factor — the harvest is ripe, but the labourers are few.

But this is anticipating.

000 Meanwhile in what concerns the present work there remains to me the pleasure of paying many debts of very genuine gratitude. To the Tham of Hunza, Sir Muhammad Nazim Khan, K.C.I.E., I have paid my tribute in the Dedication. To him I owe much personal kindness and hospitality and also the services of IYB over a long period. The Burushaski of the Dedication, I may say, has been constrained with much expert advice to an unprecedented use.

Next I have to thank my active collaborators, to whom ultimately everything is due, Jemadar Imam Yar Beg, Inayat Ullah Beg,

5:Lorimer L-3 (1920-4;1934-5) 1935
AV7 Burusho AV7

PREFACE.

The following Vocabularies are based on the material collected in 1923—24, to which reference has been made in the Introduction, Volume I (pp. lvi. ff.), and were completed in 1930—31. 122 128

Thanks to assistance received from the Leverhulme Research Fund, I was able to revisit Gilgit and Hunza in 1934—35, and I then collected a considerable amount of new material.

Of this practically nothing has been incorporated in the present work. The additions, in the way both of new entries and of the elaboration of the existing entries, would have been considerable, and their preparation would have entailed great delay in publication. As matters stand I have not yet worked out the new material[1], and this has saved me from much temptation. 128

The revision of the Burushaski—English Vocabulary as it already existed, was, however, one of the many items of a too ambitious programme, which I did carry out, if only in a hasty and perfunctory way.

For this work I was fortunate in obtaining the assistance of Qudratullah Beg (QUB), son of Subadar Muhabbatullah Beg, a literate and extremely intelligent young man, with a remarkable feeling for language and the refinements of phonetics. [115]

A thorough examination of the forms, meanings and uses of the words in even this very modest vocabulary would have been a major task requiring an almost infinite amount of time. I had therefore 128 121

[1] Attention may, however, be called to a note on certain features of Burushaski, published in the BSOS Vol. VIII, 1936, pp. 627—636, which throws light on some grammatical and phonetic devices of the language.

CHAPTER 28

Old Baltit Fort

SOME TIME BEFORE 6 o'clock in the morning a tray containing a huge pot of tea, cups, sugar and biscuits was brought into our room and placed on a table between our beds. The servant quietly departed.

Friend Cecil[1] was feeling much better this morning and wanted to get up and about, but the doctor had ordered that he remain in bed.

So, sharp at 8 o'clock, after saying good morning and cheerio to Cecil, I trotted down the stairs. At the landing there was young Jahangir waiting for me. I had made a rendezvous with him for this time—the thought being that we should have breakfast together so as to give less trouble to the Mir or his household.

The doctor came up a moment later and said that he would go up and visit his patient and would meet us at the Mir's table.

Both the Mir and the Rani were expecting us and

1 [i.e. Cecil Brunton - Analyst].

after the usual greetings, he asked how Cec was doing. 122

"He seems to be quite a bit better today!"

"I'm awfully sorry he had to leave last night," said the Mir.

I didn't think he'd even noticed it—but he had.

"The doctor is up visiting him now," I told him. "He said he would join us in a few minutes."

"What does he usually have for breakfast?" the Mir asked me.

"Oatmeal, poached or soft boiled eggs, toast, jam and coffee would be wonderful if they are available."

"Not only is it available," said the Mir, "it is ready, for that is part of the breakfast we usually prepare for our guests. It will be taken up to him immediately."

A signal and a few words in Burushaski and Cecil's breakfast was well on its way up.

So we had breakfast in the dining room and chatted 124
and I sought to make every moment count by asking questions that were vital to me . . . that is, questions about Hunza.

I am quite sure that the Rani understood most of [191]
the things that we talked about. She could not have been shamming as she looked both interested and charming while the conversation went on.

"I have arranged for an interpreter to accompany 124
you on your trips and you can go wherever you like, 115 providing you can get through and the roads are open," 191
the Mir told us.

Shortly after, Sultan Ali appeared. He was the schoolmaster and also taught the Mir's children at home. He was to be our interpreter and guide. He was a slender, handsome young man. I'd judge his age as being in the early twenties. His command of English was very good. But I don't think his English was up to the standard spoken by the Mir, who spoke so fluently

These chambers were once living rooms and bedrooms. 344
It reminded me of a penthouse. While it didn't have an 644 elevator to whiz you upwards in a matter of seconds or the best in modern plumbing, it did have the air, the view, the history and fascination that no penthouse in creation could match.

Back about 400 years ago one of the rulers of Hunza [173] married a daughter of the King of Baltistan who, as [648] a gift to his daughter and her husband, dispatched 500 workmen from his country to Hunza to erect the Baltit Fort that we now know. The rulers of Hunza dwelt in that fort and made it their palace until recent times. The present Mir, too, when he took office after the [712] death of his father, resided in this palace known as Baltit Fort.

The new palace, in which we were being wined, [122] dined and entertained, had been completed recently and was taken possession of by the present Mir about 7 years ago. Actually though, the new palace was started by the Mir's grandfather back as far as 1925.

While we were guests at the palace, extensive masonry work was in progress as the Mir was having a broad, low, stone-walled veranda erected. This, I un- [692] derstand, would be used, on completion, as his court, [643] where the citizens of Hunza would come with their problems and where the Mir would preside in judgment.

However, this work in no way interfered with the [342] normal functions of the household, for, even as the people of Hunza follow the custom of moving upstairs for the summer and downstairs for the winter, so did the Mir.

To me, however, old Baltit Fort was an edifice of distinction, charm and beauty and if I were in the Mir's place, I would never have abandoned it.

Ayesh was a most jovial character. He had the most pleasant smiling happy countenance of any man I've ever met. He was always either laughing or smiling and every time I looked at him I had to smile as well. He was a handsome man but in contrast to the Mir, who had a good head of dark hair, Ayesh was balding, the same as I. 124 115 [644] 142]

It was most pleasant to see the splendid cordial relationship that existed between him and the Mir's entire family.

"How are you coming along with your quest for information?" asked the Mir.

"Exceptionally well, sir," I replied. "But there are also many questions that only you can answer and I'm hoping that you can spare a few minutes some time within the next few days in private so that I may gain this information."

"Any time you say," replied the Mir pleasantly. "I'm at your disposal. You mention the time and that will be it."

"You are indeed very kind to grant me this great favor and I appreciate it," I said.

So there and then we made an appointment for 5 o'clock the following day.

Every meal at the Mir's was a joy and a delight and both the Mir and the Rani were always present. I had already mentioned to him that this was a trouble and an imposition and too much to expect of him. But he said that it was the way he wanted it and that nothing was too good and no effort too great for his guests. Well, what can you do with a man like that? 122● 574

Then he informed me concerning my friend's health. "The doctor has things under control now," he told me, "but he will remain here with me as my guest at the palace during your stay so there will be no worries 122 758

122 or cares in regard to Mr. Brunton's condition. The doc-
[758] tor will attend to his duties at Aliabad and look after the hospital there . . . but he only has one or two patients and he will be back and forth from the hospital to the palace. Therefore he will be in constant touch with your friend."

"No man could do more," I assured the Mir. "I don't know how we can ever thank you enough."

"Don't mention it," he said. "You have been very kind, too."

"Now is there anything that you would like me to get for you while you're here? I wish you would tell me because some things may take a few days to procure or prepare and I would like to have them ready for you."

[124] "I'll tell you what I would like and you tell me what you would like me to send you from Canada—and no holds barred." I said to him.

"Fair enough! We'll tell each other frankly what we want."

"Agreed," I joyfuly replied.

126 I always carry a notebook with me. It's a small folding affair made of leatherette or something, that has room for 3 or 4 ball point pens and a pad inside. I was making notes as well as marking down the things the Mir expressed interest in when I spoke of the conveniences available in America. I intended to send these to him anyway.

I had seen quite a few little items around Hunza that I would have liked to have . . . for instance, a Hunzan hat, a cane made in Hunza, a pair of Hunzan boots. The boots are most unusual, being something 291 like the mukluks used in the north by the Eskimos, ex-237 cept that these are made in a simpler manner. They are somewhat like riding boots in shape except they are

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 31

Breakfast Chitchat

122 574 THE MIR was a most tolerant and understanding host. I can't say for sure whether or not all his guests were treated as well as I, but I have no reason to believe otherwise.

Sometimes I would get down to breakfast alone at 8 o'clock in the morning. On other occasions there was Jahangir, sometimes Cec and on some occasions the doctor and the Mir's uncle and a few other individuals. I usually tried to get down at 8 o'clock . . . yet, there were occasions when I got down at 6 o'clock, if I had some adventure or specific project in view.

353 792 I remember this specific breakfast because the first thing I said to the Mir after I was seated at the table was, "I would judge that you were very fond of the Aga Khan."

You see, it wasn't very hard for me to judge this fact because our apartment was hung with pictures of the Aga Khan and his wife in various poses and stages of his life. I had given some study to these photographs and many of them were inscribed in the hand of the Aga Khan with endearing terms to his friend, Jamal. 353 792

Our quarters were in the guest house—actually adjoining the palace but on a higher level. This building had been erected by the Mir's grandfather back in 1925. It was a well-built, handsome structure, firmly ensconced on a high rocky ledge of granite. 122 344 644

You walked down the Mir's long staircase from the sun room, then you walked up half a dozen or more stone steps, forward a few feet and then you climbed up a circular, enclosed wooden staircase to the guest quarters. These consisted of a large, comfortable sitting room with many easy chairs and a fine writing desk, a large bedroom with two comfortable beds and further on was the bathroom. Then to the right of the lovely sitting room was a balcony—spacious and inviting. From it you could view Rakaposhi and all its splendor and gorgeous loveliness. [352]

The furniture all round was similar to that which you would find in the average better-class American homes. Photographs adorned the walls, among which were the photos of the old Aga Khan and his French wife. [352] [353] [792]

When I mentioned the Aga Khan to the Mir, he waxed eloquent and his face beamed and he said, "Not only was I fond of him—not only did I love him—but we were close intimate friends. He was the most generous of men and especially to the people of Hunza. I revere his memory! He was a wonderful person. We really miss him since his passing. His ancestors came from Persia to India in 1834. In 1934, one hundred years later, to celebrate the jubilee of the founding of 792 [871]

partake of the Mir's blessings. 000

In comparing the fort at Altit and the one at Baltit, 344
I gained the impression that the one at Altit had more 644
rooms . . . smaller ones they were, but there seemed 712
to be more of them. The old fort at Baltit was much larger and more impressive. Yet somehow I became more attached to the Altit Fort. I had the impression that it was almost impregnable.

Then I recalled the true story of the capture of the 712
fort by the British and, after appraising its isolation, 648 strength and precipitous banks and sides, I thought to myself, "Any group of men who had the courage to attempt to scale and capture any fort in Hunza deserved a lot more glory and loot than they would ever get in Hunza . . . and that is for certain!"

On one of the balconies stood a man with a bowl 124
of apricots and Sultan Ali said, "This man is the chowkidor, or guardian, of the fort and it is customary to give him a gift."

"Of what?" I asked.

"Oh, about 10 rupees," replied Sultan Ali.

Jahangir almost jumped a foot when he heard that and he said, "For what? He hasn't done anything and we haven't eaten any of his apricots."

"Well," Sultan Ali said, "it's just customary!"

"Customary or no," said Jahangir, "I think it's ridiculous!"

I turned to Sultan Ali and said, "Normally I'd be 124 glad to give him the tip that you suggest, but the truth 122 of the matter is my fund of Pakistan rupees is just about nonexistent. When we set out for Hunza from Pindi we calculated in advance approximately how many rupees we would need and then we added on 100 extra, and that's what we came with.

"From the stories that we read and from the infor-

124 mation that we could gather, we were under the im-
122 pression that no money was used in Hunza. Therefore we didn't calculate on spending any. So far we have parted with approximately 300 rupees and to place the matter squarely in front of you, we don't have enough money to buy our plane tickets back from Gilgit to Rawalpindi! I'm hoping we'll be able to get some money at the bank in Gilgit because I did notice that there's a bank there, so I'm afraid I'll have to pass up the 10 rupees that I'm supposed to give the chowkidor of the fort. But tell him I enjoyed my visit to the fort very much anyway!"

344 While we were wandering around on the open bal-
644 cony of the old fort, Sultan Ali pointed to a neat looking place down below, but not far distant, and said, "That is the Mir's picnic place, where he comes every Saturday evening with his family. He stays there Sunday and Monday, returning to the palace for his various duties Monday evening. This practice is followed during the summer months."

"Well," I replied, "that's a custom that's followed pretty well in the West and probably in most places around the world . . . where one tries to get away from the usual home conditions and seeks refuge in a cottage. We, generally speaking, call this our summer cottage. And you know what? Many folks and families travel hundreds of miles just for the weekend, just as long as they can get away from home and the sameness of living for a few days at a time!"

"I guess we've seen everything here at the old fort worth seeing. So let's go down and make for the Mir's picnic place," I said as I headed for the stairs.

It was a walk of but a few hundred yards and we were soon at the garden gate of the bungalow. Sultan Ali spoke in Burushaski to one of the chowkidors who

115 Now I didn't see his birth certificate and I might as 165 well tell you, right here and now, that no vital statistics are kept in Hunza. I accept the figure of his age as he told me but remember, I was not there at the time of his birth!

344 When I was through with my spasm of inspection
644 and admiration, we began to parade up the long driveway that led into the Mir's garden. This area is flanked on the right by space that looks as though it were a parking lot, and maybe that's exactly what it is, but instead of cars, the guests or members of the family park—or should I say tether—their horses and yaks in this area. Maybe now they park their jeeps there.
[493] The Mir owns two of them, but one, I understand, was away in Pindi being repaired. (Or was it the shambles and horrible wreck of a jeep that I came across a week later, on the road back to Gilgit?)

126 Now I noticed that the Mir, Ayesh, the doctor and Cec were coming along the roadway to meet us, and soon we joined forces and were gathered in one group. I thought this was the ideal time to take some photographs and, luckily for us, they were the best photographs we took on the entire trip. Photography is something that has never interested me and I had never taken half a dozen pictures in my life. Before leaving [122] home, I did try to learn a bit about photography, but I couldn't learn enough fast enough.

124 When the fun, excitement and fast-flowing humorous remarks had subsided, I said to the Mir, "If you've nothing more important to do or if you would care to give me a little more of your time, we could start that question and answer session that I arranged with you for this afternoon."

"I am at your service," he replied pleasantly and with alacrity.

question, the error was cleared up. 128

Remember, I do not claim to be a Sherlock Holmes 124
or smart enough to detect by scent or otherwise an untruth or misunderstanding, so they may crop up in various places in the book.

Long before I left home I had prepared a set of queries. Among them were things for me to investigate —places, customs and chores for me to see and do. And from all this I was to make my own values and estimates as to the validity of the claims made about Hunza and its people. I tried to cover every aspect of importance and interest and I believe that, with very few exceptions, I faithfully accomplished my mission.

In preparation for the trip I read every book I could 122
find or locate that involved Hunza and in each case 114
the author had done a credible job, but most of them had failed miserably to give sufficient information—at least, for me—because 'twas information that I wanted. I wanted to know more about the agriculture of Hunza, about the health of the people, about their methods, their means and their way of life. None of the authors gave much of that vital data.

Right from the first moment that I made plans to go 121
to Hunza I decided that, if I wrote a book, it would 114 contain the most complete, the most detailed and the most thorough study of the people of Hunza yet accomplished by any writer. This determination came upon me from the frustrations I felt when I read the available books on Hunza and was left with a feeling that only the surface of the subject had been scratched.

In my endeavors to fulfill this undertaking, I have spared neither time, effort, risk nor expense. I certainly don't want my readers to be left with the feeling that all about Hunza has not been told. I definitely realize that no one in a short few weeks or even months could

000 of his fellow man and see that it is fairly and impartially carried out, we have made it too complicated. Is there any justifiable reason why it should take months or even years for a civil case to be heard in court? If there are not sufficient judges, I'm sure it would not be difficult to appoint or elect more of them. If there are not enough court rooms and court houses, I feel confident that, with American construction at its high peak of efficiency, it wouldn't take long to correct that.

692 643 Then why isn't it done? I don't know the answer. Do you? The Hunzan system of justice seems to be functioning in a most satisfactory manner. Anyone may petition the Mir and unless he is away, can get an almost immediate hearing. If the Mir is not available or if the problem is not a weighty one, then the Wazir can attend to it.

In truth, justice can be simple!

* * * * *

486 122 In order to get into Hunza you must obtain a permit from the Pakistani authorities in the capital, which is Karachi, but I understand the government is being moved from Karachi to Rawalpindi or a new site close to it. I still think it is more important to have the Mir's invitation, because even though you could get into Hunza, you would be practically helpless without the Mir's assistance and cooperation.

[124] Unless you brought a guide with you and one who could speak English and translate for you, you'd find the going very, very difficult in either Nagir or Hunza. Therefore I would suggest that if you contemplate a visit into this area, you obtain the Mir's invitation or permission first. Then go after the Pakistani government's permit.

648 131 Why the Pakistan government regards Hunza as a strategic region or area is not hard to understand if durance and stamina known anywhere, and if Shipton says that the Hunzans had more endurance and stamina than these people, no higher tribute can be given. 114 [147]

It is my humble opinion that too much has been written about the people of Hunza by people who have never been there and know little or nothing about the actual conditions that prevail in that country. Then, too, many visitors spent most of their time taking pictures, viewing the scenery and dining at the Mir's and didn't pay much attention or learn anything about the actual living conditions of the people.

The people of Hunza have not in the least benefited by the visitors that have reached Hunza, and if future visits are discouraged, I believe there would be good cause for it. 177

Most of the diseases known to civilization are unknown in Hunza. I do not ask you to take my word for it but that is my report from consulting the resident doctor in Hunza, as well as a German woman doctor who visited Hunza. 164 [759]

It is further true that the Mir's wife, the Rani of Hunza, had her appendix removed and she took a trip to Rawalpindi to have it done. But in the first place she does not live according to Hunza standards and besides, it was probably stylish to have an appendix operation. On the other hand, if a good surgeon were let loose in Hunza for a few weeks, there's no doubt about it, he'd have hundreds of appendixes removed before he could be stopped.

Another important point that I wish to make at this time is that I paid my own way to and from Hunza. I had no financial backing. Therefore I am not committed to aid anyone or any product or radio station or newspaper. I have no one to fear and no one to please. I can afford to tell the truth. 122

actually make me sick and my skin would break out in sores or a rash. 137

In truth, I wasn't much worried, but, on the other hand, prudence must be considered. I was a long way from home, with a medicine kit that consisted of a bit of bandage and some salve, and I was in no position to do battle with some unknown, dangerous and perhaps poisonous plant. So I heeded their entreaties and left that symmetrical, unusual, neat but murderous looking plant alone. [824] [122]

The plants that I actually saw in flower along the trail or in the fields were very few. There was the wild rose, the fog, the inconspicuous flowers of chush and the fringed gentian and a few poppies. Remember, this was in July and very few plants, shrubs or trees are in flower at that period.

Yet, I must bear in mind that from Gilgit to beyond Altit the difference in maturity would run about two weeks. While I ate some of the last of the cherries at the Political Agent's table in Gilgit, when I got to Baltit I was eating the first of the cherries that the Mir had picked from his trees of exactly the same species and variety. In fact, I came upon many peculiarities caused by the altitude and the proximity to the river. In one place the fog plants, for example, were in flower and in other places along the route, they had already formed seed pods. Again, in other spots the seed pods had already burst.

This is not unusual, because if you examine the situation in the Niagara District, for example, at Queenston the cherries are in full blossom when in Niagara-on-the-Lake, along the lake, the buds haven't even swelled. There is a difference of 10 days to two weeks between Niagara-on-the-Lake and Queenston and the distance is a scant 7 miles.

The plant that impressed me most was the fog plant.

291 open toes it could be just shaken out. These were the low or oxford-type footwear. Then the reason for the high tops on the other kind of shoes was clear. It meant that pebbles and stones and debris couldn't fall into them.

291 I learned, too, that in walking over trails of this type
122 one should always have on shoes that were sewn and in which no nails were used. On more occasions than I can attempt to recount, I stepped on a sharp rock and the nail in my soles or rubber heels went piercing through the soles of my feet. I had to stop on each occasion, unlace and remove my shoe, then get hold of a suitable rock and bang away until I bent the nail so it would no longer prick the sole or heel of my foot. So if you ever contemplate walking on roads or trails of this type, remember my warning, make sure that your shoes are sewn and have no nails in them.

122 The pack animal that was prepared for us was good enough to ride—much better than either of the animals that we had come up with. So Jahangir decided to use this mare as his mount and he sent his guide scurrying about to see if he could locate another pack animal.

At the P.A.'s in Gilgit, Jahangir had told me that he was taking off for Hunza alone. Now here as we were leaving Aliabad, I found that a guide turned up and it was apparent from the words that were spoken that this soldier had come up with him from Gilgit. The insignia on his shoulder clearly indicated that he was a soldier in the famed Gilgit Scouts.

I asked Jahangir how come he had a guide and he then informed me that the Scout Commander had flatly refused to allow him to set out alone for Baltit. Apart from anything else, in deference to Jahangir's parents with whom he was friendly, he would under no circumstances allow him to make the journey without the services of a guide. 122

I can assure you that the Commander carefully selected the man, too. Although he looked like a boy, he was tall—about 6 feet 2 inches—lithe, alert, in fact, as smart and as capable a type of human being or soldier or both as 'twould be possible to find anywhere. Not that Jahangir needed it, but he certainly was in "high caliber" hands.

Bearing in mind that the two ponies we had were 122 stallions, I began to wonder if we might not have some 492 trouble on the trail, because Jahangir's mount was a mare. To you, this may not appear to be a genuine source of worry, because in the West the horses used for riding are practically always gelded and this eliminates any risk of difficulty. So you either ride a mare or a gelding.

I thought to myself, "What would happen if either 122 one of our stallion ponies began to get ideas on some of these high tortuous, winding mountain trails?" I knew from my reading that it does happen.

A man can work himself up into quite a stew by thinking of such things, and by now I was greatly worried about what would happen if my black stallion did become rambunctious on the trail. So I made up my mind that I would give that mare as wide a berth as possible.

I buried my worries by getting busy and snapping 342 a few pictures of the type of houses that we found [126] here at Aliabad. They didn't differ very much from those we found elsewhere. They were not as well built and as clean as those we had found at Altit, but they were still quite neat and tidy by most other standards. Practically all the houses are built one on top of the [361] other, as close together as the undulating region would allow, and it sure was obvious that a person couldn't

342 keep many secrets from his neighbors. From what I
361 saw, it was obvious that when a house was built in Hunza no attempt was made to level the ground but it was allowed to stand as nature made it and the house was erected according to the natural levels, dips, falls or heights.

As we wandered around the little Hunzan homes in this area, we had to climb up to get to this one, we had to drop down to examine that one and there were really no two on an identical level.

132 Then I remembered that the average annual rainfall in Hunza was 2 inches and to myself I thought, "Mighty good thing, because if it rained any more than that, what a quagmire this area would be!"

122 We heard the clatter of hooves and, looking up, we saw Jahangir's guide coming back and leading another horse. This meant we'd be ready to take off in a couple of minutes, so Cec and I worked our way towards the road.

Soon all of our belongings were firmly balanced on the horse's back and we were ready to start for the Hasanabad Bridge.

7:Tobe C, T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 58

Baltit to Chalt--A Long Hard Day

THE EXHILARATING morning mountain air and the expanse of blue sky, landscaped by undulating masses in the distance and sparkled with a wisp of cloud here and there, made the march seem like a living dream. How often since I have been home have I longed for a day to begin this way. 122 487

The climb into the mountains started the minute we crossed the bridge at Hasanabad. We were now taking the trail that had almost spelled disaster for me on the way in. Those twists, those turns, those climbs, those declines had just about worn my legs to stubs. Never, through all my years of work, had I ever known what the word "tired" meant until then!

As Friend Cec remarked a few days later when we discussed this part of the journey, "Never did I see you look so grim! If any man could be said to be dragging his rear, it was you when you reached the jeep!"

122 487 But now it was entirely different. I didn't regard the snaky curves and loops with distrust and misgivings as I had the other day. In fact, then, I remember hating every turn I had to take. Now, with a good mount between my legs, I felt elated, happy, cheerful. Even though I started off riding, I knew that I wouldn't ride very far because I enjoy walking too much. But, still, it was mighty nice to know that you had a good horse in case you needed it.

From the start in the morning we knew it was to be a hard ride if we wanted to get to Chalt in one march. There was a full 32 miles to go. It was actually 36 miles but I figured the jeep had driven us 4 of them so that left 32.

[485] Neither Cec nor I discussed or mentioned it but I think we fully realized that, if we felt it was going to be too tough, we could stop off at Minapin which was but 15 miles away and would find the usual rest houses there. Yet, I couldn't see myself holing up at Minapin for the night. Why, we should be there shortly after noon, I figured, and I certainly had no intention of calling it quits then.

Besides, my recollections of Minapin weren't very appealing. It was the poorest looking and the dirtiest town of all we had passed through. We had stopped [485] for a few minutes at the rest house on the way up and it had proved to be a disappointment. We couldn't get anything to eat there and the chowkidor expected a handsome donation because we stopped there and, I believe, had a glass of water.

Then, too, I knew that this was the stage for us to make time, as we'd have more protection from the sun because there were more trees in this area than there would be further down. Villages dotted the landscape [36] as this was one of the more fertile districts and towns and villages are invariably built where there are trees 122

of one kind or another. So it was our best bet to tackle 487
the sun while we had some protection against it. [361]

I remembered also that in this area there were lots [133]
of nullahs and that conduits were found everywhere, so we could refresh ourselves with good fresh cold water all along the route. Further down there were very few nullahs or any other means of getting water except by marching down to the river's edge and this, friend, could be an undertaking!

At this stage the elevations ranged around 7,000 to 133
10,000 feet. I didn't carry an altimeter with me but I was informed that in some places we climbed to 12,000 feet. It certainly felt like it by the rarity of the atmosphere and the way my chest and lungs were behaving.

All through this broad area the mountain scenery is idyllic. It just can't be beat or improved upon, no matter where in the world you go. When I came up this selfsame trail on the inward trek, I was in no mood to appreciate beauty or mountain grandeur and I knew that I hadn't taken in very much. But now, I was determined to feast my eyes, my heart and my soul on the most beautiful, the most varied, the most awe-inspiring mountain vastness that is known to exist.

I was happy—I was carefree—I felt so light that I thought the horse wouldn't even know he was carrying a passenger. In all probabilities I'd never come this way again and I wanted that beauty engraved on my memory.

Through the years I had spent many weeks and months in the Rockies, from Alaska right down to the Mexican Sierras, and I believed the Rockies to be the most impressive range of mountains I had ever known. When I saw the Alps and compared them, well, there 133 tion or doubt, this area holds that lofty title!

I know that Tibet is called the "Roof of the World" but it is my contention that this is not right. Lhasa is at an elevation of approximately 13,000 feet and is surrounded by peaks whose heights are not more than 18,000 feet, whereas Baltit, the capital of Hunza, is located at an elevation of 8500 feet and the mountains surrounding it go well above 25,000 feet. So I don't think anyone can argue or deny that this, the Hunza area, is the true "Roof of the World."

122 133 At the time I visited Hunza, maps of the Kashmir and Jammu and Gilgit agencies were hard to come by and anyone holding them might be arrested and charged with being a spy by the military authorities in Pakistan or India, because that area is zealously guarded by both sides.

It was a major operation to get a map of that area showing the various territories, the peaks and the ranges and such, but with the aid of a good friend I managed to procure a very good one.

133 For anyone interested in mountains, glaciers, hidden valleys and such things as dreams are made of, this map makes fabulous reading and studying. Besides, you can daydream away pleasant, carefree, happy hours like mad, if so inclined. Try it! Your cares will float away like bubbles!

122 Profiting from the mistakes of the past, when we found a nice cool comfortable spot, we stopped to rest and munched on the sandwiches that were so kindly prepared by the Mir's staff for us to take along. They were put into a little tin box where they kept in good shape. I would have liked to eat more of the sandwiches but after I gave one to Cec and had one myself, I passed the rest along to the guides and bearers. (Jahangir carried his own provisions.)

Actually, I think this in many ways is a mistake. 122
Anything that you bring along for yourself on a trail like this should be kept for yourself and the reason is clear and obvious. On the trail both coming and going neither group of bearers or guides offered us as much as a nibble, whereas in every case anything that we had we passed along or shared with them.

The reason I contend this is wrong is simple. They are in their own territory. They know where food and water are available. I know, as I saw them procure it when they wanted it. In our case we were up against a stark, high, blank wall and had to ask for, drive for and pay for every morsel of food that we got on the trail.

If I were doing this selfsame job over again, I would plan my travels without worrying or consulting them one iota. Their opinions, their judgment and estimations are completely unreliable, when it comes to distance, time, height, depth, temperature—yes, and even dangers!

Now I'm not referring to the people in the category of the Mir or the P.A. or Jahangir. I am talking about the average citizen that one meets along the trails or in the towns or villages. While you are supplied with a 122 guide and bearer or bearers and you feel you can rely 485
upon them, they do not take into consideration that you are a stranger, a tenderfoot, and know little or nothing about the terrain and the place to which you are going.

I'm not trying to impress you with the fact that these people are ignorant because they are not ignorant. It is just that these things are beyond their ken and you must rely upon yourself and prepare accordingly. They have been ordered or hired to guide you to a certain defined place or to look after your horse and that is all they will do—nothing more!

122 This does not mean to imply that they are unreliable
485 or unfriendly, because undoubtedly if you remained with them for any great time, you would become friendly with them and perhaps a feeling of camaraderie or loyalty would spring up. This belief has been confirmed by my conversations with people who have traveled through similar territories over longer periods. But in cases like this, where you hire a man for a day or two and you can't talk his language or make yourself clearly understood to him, the chances of getting any great amount of service are rather remote . . . that is, beyond the call of regular duties. In fact, I have learned and found that they will do only what they have to do and even getting this done will often take reminding!

122 The collapse of my friend on the first day out of Gilgit would never have occurred had we taken charge of the situation ourselves and stopped and rested every few hours for a few minutes, like any individual with common sense should have done. But we relied upon our bearers and guide. We were tenderfeet and stupid ones, to boot!

We were now beginning to feel like veteran mountaineers. It's funny how quickly a man can learn if his life depends on it. We weren't going to make the same mistake that we made coming up. This time we had no guide—just bearers—although Jahangir's soldier could be taken as a guide. In fact, he was probably better than most guides.

However, we were confident enough about the situation to carry on without any guiding or leading. I'm not trying to give you the impression that we were smart guys. It was just that we found out that there was no cause for fear or anxiety and once you beat that feeling, then you can go on through most anything.

From what I have learned about mountaineering, I 122
find that this principle generally is true. When you know the natives and appraise and understand the country you are in, the rest is just a task. It may be a difficult one but a task that, with good management and a bit of luck, can be accomplished.

In this instance we had good horses—the best. Secondly, we knew and understood the regions through which we must travel. Then, we had prepared a bit of food. But on top of it all, we were masters of the situation and we were not depending on anyone else!

The worst part of the day was from about 10 A.M. until 2 P.M. After that the sun and heat slowly headed downwards.

It was about 1.30 when we went through Minapin. [485]
This is normally the first stopping place from Baltit. We'd been up and about and on the trail for almost 8 steady, heat-filled hours, but we never even considered the idea of staying there.

However, this was where the owner of the pack horse lived—the one that Jahangir's guide had managed to procure at Kerimabad—so we had to unload it. Jahangir dismounted and the luggage and all the trappings were carefully tied to fit around this horse that the Mir had sent along as a pack animal.

I took no part in the proceedings. Jahangir and his guide, as well as the two bearers, did the job and they did it right, unlike our first experience when we left Gilgit. We hadn't gone a mile along the Gilgit River when we began to have trouble, and hadn't we been at least half awake, we would have lost some of our belongings.

Here it was different. Whether it was due to the fact that we had Hunzan bearers, as compared to Gilgitis, 122 or the fact that Jahangir and his guide were on the job, I don't know, but the loading of the horse was done properly.

"Why don't you arrange for another pack animal?" I asked Jahangir.

"In the first place, I don't know if I can get one. Then it would take a lot of time, especially if we want to make Chalt before night."

"But how's your foot?"

"Oh, I think it'll be all right," he said, smiling. At the same time he flexed his toes by standing on them a couple of times to see how his sore, chafed heel was taking the jolt.

"I know little or nothing about the mountains and climbing but it would be foolish if we went on and you ran into difficulty, when, by waiting a few minutes or even an hour or two, we could save you pain and trouble."

"Oh, I'm confident everything will be all right," he replied.

"Anyway, I'm not riding very much. So that hefty pony is available any minute you want him."

"No, thanks. I'll get along without him. I feel fine."

Now I had the feeling that Jahangir was somewhat annoyed at the Mir because the Mir had neglected to send along a horse for him. However, I have no proof or knowledge of this because first of all, Jahangir hadn't asked for one and secondly, he had come to Hunza with a guide without horse or pack animal and therefore the Mir would not rightly suspect or know that he wanted one to go back with. So all this may be pure conjecture on my part, but that was the impression I got and that's what I'm telling you.

I had met Jahangir just as soon as we landed at the P.A.'s residence in Gilgit. I didn't know who he was

 [pp. 497-609 not processed]

157 them in the fields and ask what they were at, and why, and what their various implements were called. They were quick to understand what we tried to say, and except when several of them talked at once we could usually make out most of their replies. They often started amusing arguments among themselves, not agreeing about certain words, just as at home you can set a discussion going in any company about "apple dumplings" or "pies."

243 I had a most entertaining half-hour my second afternoon.
123 Some women and little girls were beating a pile of green stuff on the threshing-floor just below, whacking it with a sort of wooden mallet. So I ran out (with pencil and notebook), greeted them, and sat down beside them on the nice dry ground and watched the whole performance. The crop was a small lentil or purple pea, and the heap was a pile of plants, stalks, roots, pods and all. They just beat and beat till all the pods had burst open, then piled pods and seeds into a big sieve and tossed it till most of the seeds were shaken out. Next they transferred it into a big flat tray and shook it to and fro till they could skim the pods off the top. Everyone was taking a hand, and after I had jotted down all the words I could conveniently collect, I took the various articles in turn and caused much amusement by saying carefully: "This is a sieve, I toss the lentils," "This is a tray, I shake it to and fro," etc. I felt rather like a star turn at a variety show, and brought down the house at the end with: "This is a little thorn bush, I sweep up the threshing-floor."

123 It is a sort of improved Berlitz method of teaching yourself. I found that when my Burushaski ran out I could still delight them by chattering on in English in a friendly way. They felt the goodwill, and they didn't know I was saying: "You're a nice-looking little minx, but you'll look better when you wash your face." I got most of their names written down, and then when they began to get ready to go home I had a romp with the small ones, who ran off squealing when I tried to catch them, just like English kiddies of the same age. I hadn't had such fun since our own youngster was small enough to romp with.

SETTLING IN

123 609 771 It was at once clear that there was not going to be any initial hostility or distrust to overcome, even amongst the women. This is rather remarkable when you think that not one of them has ever been more than five or six miles away from her home village, and that they have never seen a white woman at close quarters before. They are a fine, healthy, good-looking crowd, and always appear cheery and good-tempered. Undoubtedly the short-cut to the women's hearts was to make much of their youngsters. In a superstitious place this would be dangerous; they would be terrified of the Evil Eye; but we noted with thankfulness that these entirely non-Oriental people were as free from inhibiting superstitions as we ourselves. This promised to make our work immensely easier.

746 Hunza has, of course, no charitable societies, but everyone is related distantly or immediately to other families, and no one, however poor or orphaned, is allowed to starve.

123 It was sad to think that when this harvest thanksgiving came round again next year we should no longer be in Hunza. If we had been we should, I am certain, have been allowed to attend the all-night prayer. But, so soon after our arrival, to have suggested this might have been bad policy or doubtful taste even if we had had sufficient notice to sound the feeling of headmen and khalifas. We were in every detail most scrupulously careful to give rise to no anxieties by prematurely taking liberties, even such as would be gladly accorded. The slightest breath of resentment or suspicion roused in even one household might have spoiled all our future relations with our neighbours or given trouble to the Mir. It was wiser to forgo an occasional experience, however interesting and unique, than to take risks.

866 outrageous hat, must be a terrifying sight when it advances on you for the first time—but I learned cautiously to admire the babies from afar, though the father or mother always wanted to show them off. Only little Faqér, initiated so young, was always unafraid, and would stretch out his little hands and gurgle at me and let me take him in my arms or tickle him.

123 Soni, of the next house to Bibi Gimo's (I had to call it 866 No. 1A, because in my first notes I had confused the two households) had a little girl Afrots—quite the ugliest and brightest atom of three years old in Hunza. She had cried the first day on seeing me but immediately made friends, and ever after if I were sighted would run up to me and put out an abnormally grubby little paw and say "How do you do?" in imitation English fashion. On general principles we resisted all temptation to teach the children English ways or words or tales. This was almost my one lapse from grace, but Afrots was by general consent a special case, and her old grandfather, Aliko, was extraordinarily proud when he was witness to our meetings.

123 In the very first days of romping with the children of No. 1 535 and 1A on the threshing floor I had—stupidly—thought it might 562 be fun to teach Shamúli, Bano, and Afrots to dance. So I stood 273 up and started on a Highland schottische, and endeavoured, with little success, to coax them to join in. I was puzzled by something a little frigid in the air and soon gave up the attempt. When I climbed home for breakfast Dádo gravely and kindly said: "Excuse me, Mother, but Hunza women do not dance. It is thought unseemly." I thanked him for the warning; I wasn't sure whether the fear was that I should corrupt the girls or merely make an unseemly exhibition of myself. Either danger was to be avoided, so that began and ended my dancing lessons. Later Qudrat Ullah explained that in the olden days, when the Hunzukuts distilled a powerful araq from their mulberries, men and women used to dance together in drunken orgies that had untoward consequences. The Mir had long since forbidden the spirit, which provoked quarrels as well as dances, and "mixed dancing" fell under the same ban. This was the only man-made restriction on woman's freedom that I encountered in Hunza, and it did not seem to worry anyone.

231 to keep her strength up—and this in one of the poorest houses, 844 where they have had no bread nor butter for themselves for 262 weeks. Doudo is one of the nourishing dishes you make for a human mother, and the cat was such a pet that the kittens were considered as a birth in the family, one of the emergencies budgeted for. There is as little need in Hunza for an R.S.P.C.A.
231 as for an anti-litter crusade. Everyone is devoted to his animals, 562 and the children have pet names for eve mb and kid. You will often see a boy or girl carrying home tired animal slung over the neck like a fashionable lady's fur. Only people who have lived in the East can realize how amazing was this affectionate care for a pet; or how still more amazing this happy family life where father could come in and find his wife and daughters entertaining two strange men and be obviously delighted to see the guests. At least, if this sort of thing is possible elsewhere in the East, I have not heard of it.

231 When we passed next day we heard that a strange cat, which must be the only other one in Aliábád, for in general everyone is too poor to keep either cat or dog, had come in while the mother was mouse-hunting and had killed two of the kittens.
[115] Yaman, the only brother of our most beloved young friends, and most intelligent of informants, lifted a pathetic little white body with his toes from the field to show us. The children were half horrified and half amused at the kittens' fate.

137 There were a few wild flowers these June days amongst the scanty grass of the toqs: red bladder campion, stitchwort, and an occasional starved-looking forget-me-not. The children were much amused when we told them what the English call it, and that sentimentalists amongst us use it as a love-token. After that, one or another would run up to us offering a tiny blue flower and saying, "Don't forget me!" Some future linguist, language-hunting like ourselves, may be puzzled to hear of je til ekel growing in Hunza fields and rack his brains as to how 123 the idea came to the Karakoram. On principle we have tried to avoid poisoning the ground for future workers by importing European ideas, legends, or phrases, and in this connection the forget-me-not, the "one little pig" and Afrot's How do you do? are the only sins on my conscience.

3: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935 AV7 Burusho AV7

312 And so life seems to go on. Even water rights, the turning of 423 the carefully-husbanded water on to the land of the various groups in succession, appear to be exercised, according to the recognised scheme, by those concerned without recrimination. But at this season water is plentiful.

562 Women here hold a position of freedom and respect rare in the 884 East. Young and old they move freely about, unveiled and unaccompanied. They mingle and converse quite naturally and unselfconsciously with men. No doubt everyone knows everyone else and many are related. Young marriageable girls are as free and open-faced as the married women.

609 To the stranger within their gates, at any rate to the Sāhib and 123 Mim sāhiba, strayed out of another world, everyone is courteous and cordial, welcoming approach and questions, anxious to give information, amused at and appreciative of stumbling efforts to speak their difficult language, inviting them to their work parties in their fields or their leisure gatherings in their shady gardens. Always there is perfectly natural, self-respecting courtesy and good feeling, never that servility, false familiarity, self-assertiveness or aggressiveness characteristic of those who suffer from a sense of real or imagined inferiority.

This may appear a roseate, even idyllic picture, and no doubt there must be darker patches on the reverse side of it, but these do not appear to dim the general effect.

184 So much for the Hunzukuts Burusho. Of their Nagir neighbours 157 I can say little. In casual contacts I have found them also friendly and courteous. The general impression is that they are not so actively cheerful as the Hunzukuts.

000 We may now turn our attention to the speakers of Werchikwār (Werčikwar). That language is spoken only in the Wershigūm valley, known as the Yasin district from the name of the village adjoining the administrative headquarters. The linguistic situation existing in Yasin is shown in the following table:

353 ing an excellent likeness of Queen Victoria in full color hung on the old palace wall. It was still in good condition and told you to use "Mellins Food for Infants and Invalids." I suspect this picture calendar has been hanging there for some 60 years (it was dated 1899). Both the producer of the calendar and the food people could well be proud of the record.

123 One could easily spend a few days in and around the fort and probably write a volume about its history. But I'll leave that for someone else.

I made a careful round of all the rooms in the old palace and by that time Sultan Ali remarked that we'd best be retracing our steps to the Mir's because the Mir had asked him to bring me back in time for lunch, which was at 1.30. So we started our descent.

survive despite the encroachment of modern civilization? 177

I go on record as saying, "Yes, she can survive but it will take good leadership, and the present ruling Mir —my friend, Mohammed Jamal Khan—is capable of this leadership, provided he is not interfered with by the powers that surround him or emanate from Karachi!"

The first detrimental factor that is crawling into Hunza at the present time, and has been for some years, is salt. Already numerous cases of goiter have appeared which did not exist before when they used their native salt. 177 263 164

Travel in Hunza is restricted. In fact, at the present time no foreigner is allowed into the state without a permit and that includes Pakistanis as well. As far as I know, my friend Cec Brunton and I were the last foreigners to enter Hunza. With the political situation as it is today, I doubt if anyone else will be permitted to enter the country until the situation changes. 486 648 123

The fact that China is at the present time encroaching upon India is a rather significant factor. I really can't appraise its implications because the disputed area by any calculation seems to be of little or no value. There are millions of such acres available throughout Tibet and the Himalayan cordillera as well as in the Karakorums. Therefore it must be just for aggrandizement that China is moving. If that is her aim and desire, then Hunza would be right up her alley. 648

Yet it is my firm belief that China will not bother Hunza. I know the Afghans have looked with longing eyes on that part of Pakistan for some years, but they have neither the arms nor the men to successfully invade the area, although with arms from Russia and a little prodding, things could get hot in that area. How-

114 "I said it as a joke," replied the Mir. "I had no 585 knowledge that it would be so widely publicized and written and taken as a fact. I did not mean to mislead the writers you mentioned."

"Then it is not true!"

"No," replied the Mir, "I meant it only as a joke!"

643 There was no doubt in my mind that the Mir had 115 a keen sense of humor. In fact, through all my talks
522 and discussions with the Mir which were frequent, there was seldom a time when he would pass by an opportunity for a bit of witticism or to laugh and have a bit of fun. He was just about as pleasant a man as could be found anywhere. He was not only a great ruler but he had a sense of humor. It was too bad that the writers referred to took him seriously. Maybe it was one of their bad days.

249 "Do you grow poppies here?" I asked the Mir bluntly and more or less out of the clear blue sky. I put this question to the Mir for a most definite reason.

On a few occasions I saw what I believed to be a field of flowers waving in the distance. But I wasn't sure. Invariably these patches of color were a mile or many miles away. I wondered what they were but I never could get close enough to see them. They were always sighted at great distance from where the road lay.

[123] You might ask why I didn't definitely, once and for all, set out across the field and find out. But remember, when you're in a more or less strange unusual territory, you just don't go off across the fields into someone else's private property.

All told, I doubt if I saw more than half a dozen of these patches of color during the full length of my travels. There might have been many more but I certainly didn't see them and I have an idea that if they

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 34

About the People of Hunza

164 THE CLAIMS made for the people of Hunza border on 165 the fantastic. It is claimed that there they live to be 140 and more years of age without trouble and that their mountain home is the genuine Shangri-la, where a man can live without worry or stress in perfect joy and happiness. The claim is also made that their men can sire children when they're 70, 80, 90 and even 100 years of age.

Yes, and another visitor to Hunza said that the women of 80 and 90 are as youthful and as beautiful as our own women of 30 and 40. Well, apart from the [644] Rani who I truly believe was one of the most beautiful women I have ever been privileged to see, I didn't notice anything spectacular about the women of Hunza.

• 123 Let me be even more frank . . . I hardly saw any women at all. Over the many miles of Hunza territory that I walked, I seldom saw a woman. I saw a few girls here and there and most of them snickered, giggled and hid or turned their backs so that I couldn't see their faces, just as the girls and women did in Nagir. I did notice and pass many women constantly in the fields, but not once did I think that they even compared with our own attractive women . . . let alone surpass them! 123

Nor do I want you to get the impression that I am prejudiced. To me, at least, a woman can be beautiful whether she be black, yellow, tanned or white. I believe myself to be the kind of a man who shows no prejudice, at least where women are concerned, if you know what I mean!

Here I also want to state that it could be I was somewhat at a disadvantage. In the Western world, when one meets or sees a woman, it is usually at her best or close to it. Here the situation was, I admit, drastically different. I either saw them in the fields or coming or going to and from the fields to their homes or doing household chores in their homes. None of these occupational hazards would give a woman a chance to show herself at her prettiest or to her own best advantage.

I did not inquire as to the Rani's age. I am generally fairly bold but I just wasn't bold enough to pose that question to the Mir or to the Rani herself, although I had ample opportunity to do so had I the courage. 644 165

She would compare favorably in every way with any woman in her twenties. If I did not know her position and I were asked to estimate her age, I would say 24 or 25 but remember, she is the wife of the Mir and has borne him 9 living children, one of whom is married and another of whom is engaged to be married to the Prince of Chitral. Their eldest daughter is married to Yaseen Durishahwar and they have two sons, which means that the Rani is a grandmother. But I still insist that she doesn't look a day over 25.

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 41

Cleanliness

ON VARIOUS OCCASIONS I have read and heard reports that the Hunzan homes are scrupulously clean. To that I will not subscribe. I just can't go along with any such assertion. 356 114

I peeked into, looked over at and viewed hundreds of the homes in Nagir on the trek and I also had a chance to see into many of the homes in Hunza and there isn't any question about it—the Hunzan homes are cleaner, tidier and have fewer odors (or none at all) than the others of this same area. But to say that they are scrupulously clean or that you could eat off the floor is, to my mode of thought, a gross exaggeration.

Obviously, the places the other writers saw were very clean and tidy. But, to me anyway, it is clear that the owners were notified in advance that they would have visitors.

Being curious and nosy by habit and turn of mind, I 356 123

/123 managed to peer into a few of the places and noticed 356 that they weren't as spic and span as some people say they are. In fact, we were taken through one home on a tour. We visited their downstairs apartment and then climbed the ladder to visit the upstairs one. I will admit and am in complete agreement with the other writers, that the place was scrupulously clean, swept and neat.

But—and this is important, so follow me—I had stuck my head and eyes into that selfsame home the day before, probably unknown to my guide, and had seen the condition that this same house was in then. While it was not filthy, nor could I even say dirty, it certainly was not in the same immaculate condition that it was in now, since this time the people were advised that we were coming.

[515] So let it be said and accepted that the Hunzans are much cleaner than the Nagirwals and are generally, by and large, a clean, wholesome people, both in body and in home.

000 I have long ago accepted the clear-cut situation that hygiene and cleanliness are strictly matters of habit, custom and necessity and these factors vary from country to country. For example, the standard of cleanliness in Switzerland is quite different to that of neighboring France. And in Italy, especially in the southern part, it bears no resemblance to that practiced in either France or Switzerland. Then in England the standard changes again and when you get to America, well, there again it is so different that one would believe it was a different world.

356 Undoubtedly, the people of Hunza in their hygienic habits are far above those of India or Pakistan. I am here referring to the mass level, of course. Then, too, the Hunzan habits were far better than those in Italy.

681 which people were exiled and as officers were continually asking me what sort of place it was, I determined to go there and see for myself. The track there 491 was very bad indeed and in two places there were goat hair bridges which were very unpleasant to cross. A ring of wood was used and the traveler was drawn from one bank to the other and if he wore a beard most of the hairs were dragged out on the way. . . .

643 "My father[1] had six wives, three of which were of the 595 ruling classes and three from the Zemindaris. All however, were married to him according to the law and so he left behind no bastards."

276 The Mir told me that of late some of the young boys
177 have taken to smoking cigarettes. This they have picked up and learned from the Hunzan men who have been serving in the Pakistani army. Cigarettes can be pur-685 chased in the shop in Baltit and a few occasions of 276 petty theft have been encountered. In each case it [443] seems that they stole in order to get money to buy [681] cigarettes. These few petty crimes of course did not involve ostracism to Shimshal. It is expected that this condition will continue or even become aggravated as the youth of Hunza become more familiar and acquainted with smoking. Some of the men in Hunza smoke the "hookah" which we know as the water-pipe.

249 Some forms and varieties of tobacco have been tried
123 in Hunza. I promised to send the Mir seeds of the various types of tobacco that we grow in America, such as Virginia, Burley and Quesnel. Perhaps if they can learn to grow tobacco, it will enable the youth to get their hands on some tobacco and satisfy their craving for it without resorting to other ways and means. However, they would have to get paper from somewhere for none is made or improvised in Hunza.

674 It is obvious from what I have seen, that crime and

1 [ie - the father of Sir Mohomed Nazim Khan - ANALYST]

on my own farm we definitely and positively use neither 241 chemical fertilizers nor sprays.

You can understand in Hunza that tastewise there is no interference or problem from chemical fertilizers and sprays.

I believe that the myth about the flavor and succu- [114]
lence of the Hunzan apricots came about because visitors ate the apricots ripe and freshly picked from the trees, whereas at home the apricots they ate were picked from the trees days before, because they had to be shipped long distances, and therein lay the difference in flavor.

In January, 1959, I sent the Mir of Hunza good 123
sized packages of the different kinds of hardy wheat 241
that were created by the experimental farms of the 177
Dominion of Canada. It was special seed, tested for hardiness in the colder areas and of such quality that would produce a fine loaf of bread.

I also sent the best strains of carrots, cabbages, Brussels sprouts, lettuce, beets and other vegetables. But when I was dining with the Mir and asked him about the results with the seeds, he admitted that the only seed they had got planted that year was the lettuce, which was being enjoyed at the Mir's table. He said that he would try the rest of them the following year.

It is understandable that the Western world would have better varieties of fruits, vegetables and grains, because here we spend millions and millions of dollars on hybridizing, trials, selections and improving the various strains . . . so we should get some results from our efforts . . . and we do! Therefore, without question, the Hunzans could profit by using Western strains of grains, vegetables and fruits. This is one aspect of modern civilization that could help them greatly.

The apricots that I saw, tasted and ate were not the 123 huge fine quality products that I was told they were. I 241 admit here further that I was in Hunza in July and the 177 later, perhaps the better, varieties were not available or ripe yet. But upon questioning the various people, there was no information given to me that indicated the later maturing kinds were superior to the earlier ones.

So as in vegetables and grains, their fruit could be greatly improved by adopting some of the Western varieties. This could easily be done by having budwood sent to them and they in turn would graft this budwood onto their young stock.

I have made arrangements with the Mir of Hunza and the P.A. at Gilgit to supply them with this required grafting wood at the proper time, and it will be duly sent to them, so that in the future they may have some of the benefit of the West's hybridization and research program. I took along with me a few of the best budding knives that I could procure and I left two with the P.A. at Gilgit and the others with the Mir of Hunza and I explained their use.

245 In talking with the Mir about the planting of new varieties and improved strains, he claimed that his people did graft and seek new varieties and strains, but from the little time I had to inspect things, I did not see any young trees or any great number of grafts that would indicate this being a widely practiced policy. I found nothing resembling a nursery in Hunza or Nagir, but there was a small, unimpressive nursery run by the Pakistani government in Gilgit. Maybe this is the forerunner of bigger and better things to come.

241 There appears to be no central source of seed supply in Hunza. It seems that each farmer saves seeds for next year's crops or barters with his neighbor. In some [643] years, when, because of any one of many conditions

184 a good crop of various kinds of grains, forage, vege-
241 table crops and fruits. In Hunza this just doesn't occur.
311 The terrain is steeper, more precipitous, more difficult and seldom if ever does a flat open area come within the limits of normal vision.

[133] Then, too, Nagir has many more nullahs formed by the melting glaciers. Rakaposhi is located in Nagir and surrounding it are many snowfields and glaciers which are used, trained and harnessed to irrigate their country.

Indubitably, the fates and nature have been much kinder to Nagir than they have to Hunza.

438 Let me also tell you frankly that on many occasions the people of Hunza purchase or barter various types of food from Nagir. I asked the ways and means that [437] were used in effecting these deals and found that in most cases money—earned by the Hunzans in service in the army, portering for expeditions and given to them as gifts—was the means.

184 One might gather from what I have said and even [628] from talking to various people or natives of the area, that the Nagirwals and the Hunzans are deadly enemies. But that is not true. The people of Hunza [186] think themselves much better than the people of Nagir. They do believe that they are handsomer, healthier, cleaner and are better husbandmen, but yet there does not appear to be any cases of conflict, physical or armed, between the two peoples.

123 I recall a little incident that may be of some interest. We rounded a spot—I guess it was 10 or so miles from Minapin—on the way up to Baltit and there we saw a decrepit, ragged looking Nagirwal. In his hands he [231] held a pair of chickens. They were the typical chickens of the area—full grown but the size that our chickens are when they're half grown. He waved them in front of us as though indicating they were for sale or could be

had. We slowed down—we didn't actually stop—and 123
our guide asked the price, or got into some hassle-tassle about them anyway. The discussion took place in Burushaski.

There didn't seem to be too much palavering and our bearers took the two scraggy birds and stuffed them into their coats—one each, just as we would stuff something into our inside breast pocket. The chickens' heads stuck out, but they didn't seem to make any great attempt to get away. I didn't see any money change hands.

Then the old fellow disappeared behind a thicket for a moment; it was a group of willows and other shrubs or trees growing there. He came back with a butchered one and he tried to press it upon me. I didn't want it, but the man was so earnest in his desire to present it to me. I didn't know if he wanted money or not, but he didn't seem to care. He just wanted me to accept the chicken. I didn't want to offend him and as pleasantly as I could I kept shaking my head. But he did not heed my protestations and tried to force the chicken on me.

Then I got off my horse and when I did, I more or less subconsciously began to rub the muscles of my legs. He quickly dropped the chicken and kneeled down beside me and began to massage my legs for me. I tried to stop him and my bearers intimated to him that I didn't want anybody rubbing my legs, but he insisted. When at last I got him to desist, we began to walk on and he followed us for two or three miles, still trying to give me the chicken. So I asked Sherin if he wouldn't take the chicken or get one of the other boys to take it.

He was undoubtedly the friendliest coot I ever saw in my life. He was as dirty as the dirtiest pig and 123 smellier than limburger cheese. But so help me, dirt, stink and all, he was a likeable fellow. If only we could have ducked him in the water and got a scrubbing brush and some soap, I probably would have enjoyed his company.

Somewhere near the next village he left us. He was almost in tears at the thought of parting. I had a quarter rupee silver coin in my pocket and gave it to him. He didn't want it but he thanked me at least 200 times for it. I'm sure he would have given me his lousy old shirt if I would have accepted it. As it was, he waved us good-bye with tears in his eyes.

643 The Mir of Hunza and the Mir of Nagir are on 628 friendly terms, but I don't for a moment imagine that they are bosom companions. Yet the Mir of Hunza's wife, the Rani, is a Nagirwal. Her uncle is the present [582] Mir of Nagir. In fact, through the centuries, while the people of both these states were at loggerheads with each other, the ruling class intermarried and were always on amicable terms . . . and so it continues.

I will quote here again from The Autobiography of Sir Mohomed Nazim Khan, K.C.I.E: "From time to time we have tried to have relations with Nagir that were friendly but they have never lasted, although there have been marriages between the ruling families of both countries. My father and Zafar Khan, Mir of Nagir used occasionally to meet and I remember well the formality of these occasions. Each would come with a large number of followers and would halt on his side of the river. On one occasion Uzar Khan came over to Hunza and there was a great feasting; on another the Mir came and I and some other people from Hunza had to go over to the Nagir bank of the river and remain there as hostages until the Mir returned."

000 The Hunzans do not only show their superiority over

7:Tobe C, T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza
Nagir

The Hunzans do not only show their superiority over the Nagirwals, but over others as well. The P.A. at Gilgit, in a discussion that I had with him, admitted that when the Hunzans moved down the valley to the Gilgit area, they showed their heritage by surpassing anyone else in the district when it came to working their lands and producing their crops. They worked harder, they worked longer, they worked better. They used their experience and intelligence to greater advantage, with the net result that they were soon buying more and better land. 157

So far only a few of the Hunzans have come down to Gilgit, but the native Gilgiti farmers are already showing their resentment. Obviously they find it difficult to compete with the Hunzans on an equal basis. [167]

I compared the Hunzans with the Scotch people and I think the comparison has many realistic qualities. Both peoples live in a more or less barren, hilly, rocky, rough country. Both peoples have learned the value of being frugal and thrifty. They waste naught and want naught. They are chiefly outdoorsmen. They are strongly nationalistic. Then, too, they are physically independent and have little or no fear of anyone. 181

When I was talking to the P.A. I called the Hunzans "the Scotsmen of the East" . . . and I trust the Scotsmen won't be offended. In fact, they should be flattered.

Where I think the people of Hunza gain most of their superiority is in leadership. From the little research and reading I have done on the subject, it appears that for many long years the Hunzans have had good capable leaders—really strong men who ruled their people with a firm hand. 643

In reading the autobiography of the Mir's grandfather, one quickly sees that he was not only a man of action but one of ability, foresight and reason.

Now I did not meet the Mir of Nagir. Although I [123]

643 wrote to him and asked if I could come and visit him,
•123 he did not reply to my letter. No, I'm not annoyed nor am I saying anything unfavorable about the Mir because he didn't answer my letter, but I would have liked to meet him so that I could speak more authoritatively about the many unfavorable statements made about him and his people.

However, I spoke to many people who knew the Mir of Nagir personally. I passed right by his official residence both on the way up and on the trail back. It was pointed out to me and I stopped and looked it over.

643 Whereas the Mir of Hunza is respected—not only in Nagir and Hunza and the entire surrounding country, but in most nations throughout the world—the Mir of Nagir is more or less unknown and does not even have any great amount of social intercourse with his own people.

Whenever I met a Hunzan on the road and spoke to him about the Mir of Hunza and the Mir of Nagir, he would hold himself erect and say through our interpreter something like this, "Our Mir is loved and respected by his people and everyone else. His name and fame have spread throughout the world. The Mir of Nagir, nobody knows of or likes him!" If this was said to me only once or twice, I would pay little or no attention, but a similar vein of thought and expression was portrayed on many occasions.

643 I think further that the Mir of Hunza has given a 186 high standard and caliber of leadership to his people. It was apparent wherever I went. He made his people believe and feel that they were good people, that they were equal to the best people of the world and that they were cleaner, stronger, healthier and more intelligent than others, and he was not telling them anything but the truth! The Hunzans hold their heads high.

Therefore, it is my belief, one of the reasons for the Hunzan high standing throughout the world is due to the excellent quality of leadership that they have enjoyed for many years, and is being continued by the present Mir and his staff and family. 643

I don't want anyone to run off with the idea that everything I saw about the Hunzans impressed me or that I thought they were exceptional in every way, because that definitely is not true. I did then and I do today admire the people of Hunza for all the splendid qualities that make them outstanding people. Anyone who could live in the harsh, tough, back-breaking terrain of Hunza must be made of stern fiber. Yet they have their foibles and weaknesses as well. 123 114

You see there are no immigration rules or laws to stop them from going anywhere in that area . . . at least, there weren't until recently. They could have gone to China, India, Afghanistan, Russia, Pakistan or anywhere else where the pickings might have been easier. But their love of freedom and intelligence that told them they were better off than most people in the world, even though financially poorer, kept them on the mountain slopes that are the banks of the Hunza. 486

No book on Hunza would be complete to even a small degree, unless some mention was made of the fact that it was not always known as Hunza. In fact, back before the turn of the twentieth century, Hunza was known as Kanjut and the people as the Kanjuts. 101

From records that I have located, I learned that, when the rulers of Shignam came to Hunza, they called the valley Kanjut. That name remained until the time of the Girkis and they called the country Hunza, because all of the people were united like the arrows in a quiver. In the Burushaski language Hunza means "arrow."

CHAPTER 50

Flora and Fauna

123 My Visit to Hunza was not basically a botanical or horticultural visit, much as I would have enjoyed spending a few weeks hunting, searching, climbing, delving into crevices and peeking into and over the rocks, crannies, cliffs and river beds—yes, and fields and anywhere a bit of green could be seen.

The speed at which I traveled along the mountain roads was slow and tedious, but it was even slower because of my interest in horticultural specimens that I noticed here and there and which I stopped to examine. But my stops to examine the flora were not very frequent during the first few miles, due to the simple fact that there was not much flora to investigate, except the omnipresent Fog plant, which no terrain seemed to deter. Then of course, there was a great similarity in the flora and once I had seen a plant, I did not stop to investigate another of the same species.

137

However, I did stop often enough on plant examinations so that I was always a few miles behind my friend, Cec, who was not concerned with the flora. 123 137

I want you to understand that I did not do an exhaustive detailed study of the flora of the Hunza district. I am sure there are many, many more plants in the area than I have indicated or found. I just examined what I happened to pass and see. I definitely did not go out and search for specimens away from the beaten path.

You can take my word for it, the vegetation under any and all circumstances is definitely not spectacular. However, any of the plants that are found growing in this area most certainly should be hardy enough and virile enough to do well in most other parts of the arable world. 137

It is my belief that the flora of the Hunza Valley is neither varied nor numerous, apart from the fruit and nut trees which are in most cases not indigenous. The apricot, though, could be native to that part of the world . . . at least, that is what I gathered from my studies and observations.

Apricots were grown in the greatest number, followed by mulberry, walnuts, apples, plums, peaches and pears. Here and there I came upon a pomegranate tree. These, I am positive, are indigenous to the surrounding area, if not to Hunza. [245]

The trees that I passed most frequently on the roads and trails and in the towns were eucalyptus, willow, birch, poplar and the oriental plane, sometimes called sycamore and known in Hunza as the "chenar" tree. I believe these are all native to the vicinity.

I was disappointed, surprised and even shocked to find the area completely devoid of conifers or evergreen trees. I saw one pine tree in the P.A.'s garden in 838 describe what I meant, when I spied the doctor standing close by. So I called him and waved to him to come over, which he did. I then said to him, "Would you explain to the Mir the meaning of the word hermaphrodite."

Now, as I have told you, the doctor was a Pakistani but although young, he was learned, having both his science degree and his medical one. With a flicker of a smile on his lips, he translated the word to the Mir in Urdu.

A glow appeared on the Mir's face and suddenly he broke into a chuckle and then it went on to uproarious laughter. I stood by mystified. Even the good doctor wore an air of puzzlement.

I waited a minute or two for the Mir's laughter to die down and then I said to him, "Tell us the joke, too, so we can join in the laughter. After all, laughter is something that should be shared."

At this he broke out laughing again. So we waited calmly until he cooled down. Then I said, "Now take it easy and tell me just what the joke is."

Containing himself as best he could, he replied, "Why I've got one of those things you mentioned working for me right here in the palace."

Then we all began to laugh. When it was all over, he said, "Strange you would ask about a thing like that. Actually I know of one other one in Hunza. That makes a total of two."

"If you are interested," he went on to say, "the name for hermaphrodite in Burushaski is 'mukhanas' . . . but enough of this!"

* * * * *

123 After lunch the Mir said, "Come with me! I have something I'd like to show you."

He then led me into the room I've been referring to

as his trophy room. There, neatly laid on a long table, 123 was a beautiful ornate set of silverware, a three piece [415]
tea service. It was the most unusual and elaborate design I'd ever seen. I recognized it as the leaf of the chenar tree, which is similar to our maple. I do not profess to be a connoisseur or one who appreciates objects of art, but I did recognize this as being something especially fine and unusual.

He said, "This is from the Rani and I. I hope your wife will like it!"

He then presented me with a most unusual cane. It 123 is made out of some native Hunzan wood, white in 481 color—chenar I imagine. The handle is made very ingeniously, so that you have something to hold firmly in your hand, as well as a place to rest your thumb. Then the entire length of the cane and the handle were studded at regular intervals with what the Mir explained were pieces of ibex horns.

Ibex are found in the hills. They are a wild moun- 136
tain goat, usually found above the snow line. They are a good sized, hefty animal, standing between 3 and 3½ feet high at the shoulder. They're sturdy beasts as they well must be to live among the highest and most precipitous hills in all creation. For agility there is no animal that can match them. They are crowned with long ridged horns curved backwards, usually black in color. These tough, imperturbable mountain goats reminded me of the people of Hunza and I thought there was a great deal of similarity between them. They are, as far as I know, afraid of nothing.

I'm not a hunter—I didn't go after them. Some of the men said they could be found readily. Others said you had to go far up into the mountains in order to find them. But by the number of horns of the ibex I saw in Gilgit, Baltit and all along the route I traversed, who climbs the lofty crags around Hunza to bring down 000

the Marco Polo sheep or ovis poli is entitled to his bag. But after all, who am I to deal so generously with the life of another animal?

Then the Mir had for me two Hunzan hats of the 123 type that the men wear and also two women's hats, the 291 latter brightly colored and very neatly embroidered. [531]
He also gave me a bolt of elegantly embroidered red silk, displaying a young man and woman, a bird of paradise and what was more appropriate, a yak. Then last but not least, laying beside the other items was a white hairy mass, which for the moment I did not recognize. It was a yak's tail.

Then he said, "There is a pair of typical native Hunzan shoes being made especially for you and they will be sent to you as soon as available. I'd like to send the shoes to you later, because I am waiting for some new hides which some of my men will bring down from high up in the mountains when they've had a chance to bring down some of the ovis poli. I want you to have the best."

"I guess I can wait for the shoes," I jested. "The ones I am wearing, plus another pair that I have in my knapsack, will carry me back along the Hunza trail, I think, but I certainly will be happy to have a pair of Hunzan shoes as another momento of my visit to your most enchanting country."

Then suddenly a thought occurred to me and I said 302
to the Mir, "I notice all of your men are clean-shaven . . . that is, except for the occasional one now and then who has a little beard around his chin. Therefore I know for certain that you must practice shaving in Hunza. Yet I have seen nowhere a sign of a razor. Further, I'm reasonably sure that this is one part of the world that King Gillette has not invaded with his

302 safety hair removing instruments. So please tell me what kind of an instrument the people of Hunza use to remove the hair from their face."

[326] "I'll be glad to show you!" . . . and with that, he displayed a homemade razor, one made by the smithy of the village. "Similar instruments are made by the smithys in the various other villages throughout Hun-[795] za," he went on. "Our religion recommends that our faces be kept clean of hair."

"I will also have a razor made for you and sent along with the shoes."

123 "Thank you very much," I said to the Mir. "I am very grateful. I was really and truly hoping you'd say that, because that is another item that I would love to add to my collection."

I didn't know how to thank him for all these very lovely gifts, but I was somewhat concerned as to how I'd carry them all the way home. It was absolutely unthinkable to ship them individually or separately because I certainly wouldn't want any of them lost.

With the exception of the silver tea service, the other items were things that I had specifically wanted and had mentioned at one time or another. The Mir had keen ears and each and every item that I had mentioned was there as a gift for me.

To my friend, Cec Brunton, he also presented a Hunza hat and a cane of a little different type.

Not being a hunter it is understandable that I would not appreciate an ibex or a Marco Polo sheep head as a trophy, but most assuredly I would hang or display all of the items that the Mir was presenting to me most conspicuously in my home. And if perchance my wife wouldn't feel that some of them were sufficiently ornate or perhaps were unbecoming to her living room, then I would proudly hang them in my office. In fact, I felt even here that I would be happy to wear that Hunzan hat on my strolls during the winter around my home town. The fact that some of the villagers might think me a bit queer wouldn't bother me one iota, because I haven't the faintest doubt they think I'm queer anyway. So a little added fuel won't make much difference. 123

I hate to admit this but truth will out, so I might as well confess. I actually coveted a Hunzan spinning apparatus and loom, but I didn't have the courage to ask the Mir for one of them. I thought perhaps this might be a little too much. I was bothered by the fact that perhaps they needed it worse than I and I would be depriving them of it if I took it back to Canada with me. But I did want one and I tried to think of a way or a means of purchasing or getting one without asking the Mir for it. Perhaps my readers can understand my predicament. Here was a man who was doing most everything that a human being could possibly do for another, for me. I would have gladly paid him for the spinning apparatus and loom, but I knew he wouldn't take any money and if I told him I wanted it, it might be an imposition—I knew he would get it for me. So after debating the matter with myself in my mind—which took probably 5 seconds but takes 5 minutes to tell—I decided to let the matter rest for the moment.

[pp. 472-479 not processed]

Then there was ghee or yak butter to be used as a spread. Most of them at the table selected ghee. I chose the white yak butter. 262

Western types of raw vegetables on the table are conspicuous by their absence. I had all my meals at the palace and the only raw vegetable on the table at any time was lettuce and the lettuce, the Mir informed me, was from seed that I had sent him some months prior to my arrival.

So it is clear that vegetables like lettuce, celery, cucumbers, cabbage, carrots, radishes and such are not generally used in this part of the world as a fresh salad with meals. I do know they use onions and peppers. The onions that I saw were of the green type and I recall being presented with a bunch of them by a youngster who popped out of one of the houses on the trail. I gave him a small coin as a gift or reward. The child couldn't have been more than 3 or 4 years old and he shouted with glee and joy to his mother, holding the tiny coin aloft for everyone to see. He seemed happier at the gift of that coin than any youngster I can ever recall. I'm sure the big hundle of green onions was worth many times what I had given him! 123 436

I believe this illustrates just how scarce or unusual money is there!

This was a sad breakfast for me because now I was on the threshold of leaving and I wasn't too happy to go from this enchanted place. I walked slowly down the long staircase that led from the palace and the rest followed behind. 123

There in the yard was the jeep with the driver and a few servants waiting and watching. Our baggage was placed aboard.

I left a sum of 40 rupees with the Mir to divide among the many servants who had given so graciously 123 and generously of their services.

Then, with sincere good-byes, good wishes and promise of the Mir to come and visit us in America, where I promised him the use of my home for the duration of his stay, the jeep was off!

We were following the same trail that we had come up on, only this time Cec and I were in much better shape than when we arrived.

492 'Twas hardly more than 15 minutes before we pulled up at the end of the jeep road. The horses were waiting. Mine was a big black heavy fat pony and, I quickly observed, a stallion, to boot! He looked a little bit too bold for me but the Mir had assured me that he was as gentle as a kitten, strong as a bull, fast, sure-footed and intelligent. The horse Cec was to take looked very much like mine except he was brown. They were two mighty splendid pieces of horse or pony flesh. There was another horse in the group which we presumed was to be used as a pack animal.

291 I noticed when Jahangir got out of the jeep and was walking towards the horses and bearers that he limped somewhat. He was still wearing the pair of heavy, thick-soled and metal heeled army boots with which he had set out from Gilgit. Somehow this reminded me of the folly of trying to beat a man at his own game. The people of Hunza have been living with and under these conditions for 2,000 years or more and it is somewhat superfluous to say that they would have gathered by now the right kind of footwear to put on their feet. And here is what I found.

Practically all of the children wore no foot coverings. They went about barefoot. This I do not mean to infer as being the case only around their homes, but on the mountain crags and trails as well. Most of the boys and girls were barefoot, but there were some who wore

682 past 40 years. Never to my knowledge has a stranger
[609] or a visitor ever been harmed or injured.

175 In bygone days the Hunzans were considered good 648 fighting men and were feared by the Chinese, the Afghans and neighboring tribes. It is a fact that they have only been conquered or beaten once in their history and that was by a British force that defeated them at the Battle of Nilt. The British did not seek to conquer the country. It was at the time when the British were the rulers of India. They requested that the Mir of Hunza allow free passage of the mail to Kashgar in China. The Mir at that time, Safdar Ali, felt that he could count upon the aid of the Russians and the Chinese and challenged the British authority. Then the British force went into the field and it required deliberation and courage to assault the high fortress, but it was accomplished by the British and the
[643] Mir fled for his life. The British then appointed his brother as the ruler and departed peacefully. Apart from this, the British did not interfere in the affairs of the Hunzans.

• 123 You lose face if you carry anything yourself or do any work. In all my travels throughout the world, including Hunza, I always did my share of the carrying. I wasn't going to stand by and see one or two men burdened down with my belongings while I walked about empty handed. I will not allow it to be said that I lost face because of this.

I don't want it to be thought that I am better than anyone else nor will I allow them to think that they are better than I. Wherever there was work to be done or burdens to be borne, I always did my share and I intend to keep on doing it.

131 Hunza in the Himalayas. Some writers keep referring to Hunza, Gilgit and Rakaposhi as being in the value to the people of Hunza? Let's examine them. 000

Let's start with pasteurization. Well, it would be very 744 difficult to pasteurize in Hunza. First of all, they don't have the means of providing the required heat. Besides, they don't suffer from any conditions which pasteurization would cure—if it does cure anything.

How about hospitalization? Well, they have a com- 743
paratively new, modern hospital in Aliabad, but the people don't use it very much. They distrust the hospital and they distrust the doctor, even though he is a fine capable fellow. Besides, I did not notice, particularly, any sick or ailing people sitting around, waiting for a hospital bed.

Then how about inoculations? To begin with, what 751 would you inoculate them against? They don't seem to 164 have many, if any, of our diseases. Then, too, there are no inoculations against cancer, diabetes, heart disease, arthritis and such, anyway. Oh, yes . . . besides, these diseases have never been known in Hunza . . . not even poliomyelitis.

The Mir has a huge medicine chest that was given 757
to him by the German expedition, which was stationed 177
across the river in Nagir. Yes, it did prove most useful 123
—for it helped a man get well. However, I must admit rather dejectedly that the man the medicine chest helped was my companion and not a citizen of Hunza.

They could use a dentist and right here you have 759 struck gold! However, it would be most difficult to get 164
a dentist to set up shop in Hunza, unless he were given room in the Mir's residence, for that's the only place where electric power is provided . . . unless the dentist didn't mind going back to the old days when the old foot pedal was used for power.

But let's be realistic about it! Wouldn't it be much better to give the people of Hunza back their old [263]

8:Clark N-5 (1948-1951) 1963
AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza
[P. 39-B]

By JOHN CLARK

123
164

THE FOLLOWING IS AN ENTRY in my weathered notebook of a decade ago, written when, as an American living in the Himalayas in a run-down castle, I was operating an infirmary:

[576] "'Salaam aleikum, Hazoor! my trouble is very great,' said old Bohar. He raised his white-stubbled chin and pointed to the source of his pain.

"I looked and shuddered a little. Four oozing, open holes, each the diameter of a pencil, pierced his chin and jawbone. I asked him to open his mouth, and he complied, exposing a row of teeth worn absolutely flat. I ran my finger across his lower teeth; four were so loose that I was able to

8:Clark N-5 (1948-1951) 1963
AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

[P.39-C]

123 pull them out with my fingers. Bohar
164 gasped. then relaxed as the extraction permitted the abscesses at the roots to drain more freely."

101 This was in Hunza, the small, moun-
131 tainous, Central Asiatic kingdom
121 bordering on China, Kashmir, and Afghanistan, about which there has been recurring publicity, characterizing the land as a Shangri-La peopled by men and women of extraordinary 121 health and longevity. Since the beginning of man's role as a traveler, tales of far-off earthly paradises have been brought home to entertain the untraveled. No matter how many such El Dorados perish under examination, the next is inevitably welcomed into the lists with unblemished credulity.

[text continues on p. 40-B]

798 gious sect to which all Hunzas belong;
643 the Mir of Hunza is administrator, but not religious deputy, for the Ismailians of the Central Asian District.

114 THE notes about Bohar and his teeth were made after I had worked with the Hunza people for almost three years during two prolonged stays in the small kingdom. I was introduced to this part of Asia as a reconnaissance engineer on General Stilwell's staff, and returned twice be-
114 tween 1948 and 1951. My primary 123 purpose as Director of the Central Asiatic Research Foundation was to discover what resources were available to the Hunzas, and to teach them to use these to their own best advantage. From the start of my second visit I operated a general dispensary with

[Text continues on p. 41-A]

[P. 41- A]

114 Western equipment. (Training in anat-123 omy, some concentrated informal studies of Asian diseases, plus previous experience, made this possible for me. In addition, I ran three experimental gardens and founded a craft school, with the Mir's approval.)

164 Bohar had developed scurvy, after
146 which staphylococcus infected the
123 gums and abscessed the roots of his teeth; the abscesses had then eroded downward through the jawbone and out through the flesh and skin. After washing out the sores, I gave him vitamin C tablets to stop the scurvy, and vitamin D with calcium lactate to cure the rickets that were stiffening his knees. The old man was by no means [752] atypical. My dispensary was always beset by lines of waiting patients, all with afflictions that belied popular beliefs about "the Healthy Hunzas."

8:Clark N-5 (1948-1951) 1963
AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza
[P. 41-B]

164 beliefs about "the Healthy Hunzas."
●123 Altogether, I was able to treat 5,680
[243] medical cases—the country had no
other dispensary—during my stay in 164 Hunza. My daily group of patients did not suffer from many of the diseases [158] common to our civilization. There were no true neurotics; no cases of stomach ulcers, appendicitis, or gout;
only one case of cerebral hemorrhage,
[482] and but four cardiac cases. The few [147] bad hearts had been damaged either by malarial anemia or by overexertion at high altitudes, as was the case with one man who had carried the Mir's piano on his back up twenty miles of mountain trail. On the other hand, my Hunza patients did have malaria. They also had at least two kinds of intestinal worms, and to see
for the first time a man with Ascaris

[P.42-B]

125 One evening, I took a census of the 165 nine teen-age boys in my wood-carv-
[123] ing school. Of these, all from well-to-do households, how many had seen death in their immediate families?
165 Here was the roll:
551 Gohor Hayat: mother, three brothers, two sisters; Sherin Beg: one brother, one sister; Nur-ud-Din: mother, two brothers, two sisters; Md. Hamid: mother, one sister; Burhan Shah: one brother, one sister; Nasar Md.: mother, two brothers, one sister; Mullah Madut: two brothers; Suleiman: one brother; Ghulam Rasul: father. In a country fabled for the long lives of its inhabitants, these are depressingly typical Asian statistics.
165 Moreover, there is little reason to be-
576 lieve that any of the old men are really as old as is claimed.

"How old are you?" I once asked a venerable patient.

"Ninety, Hazoor!" he answered.

"How do you know you're ninety?"

"Well, Hazoor, my hair is white, and I know I'm very old, and ninety is very old, so I must be ninety."

[124] My teen-aged assistant, Gohor Hayat, broke in impatiently, "Why do you waste time asking such questions?
[217] You know there are no records, be-
[212] cause so few of my people can write!"

I had thought the old man might have a way of keeping count. "How old are you, Gohor Hayat?" I asked.

Gohor Hayat responded loftily, "I'm

[text continues on p. 43-C]

2: Lorimer T-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1939 AV7 Burusho AV7

Chapter 14

FIRST WALKS ABROAD

THE very day after our arrival we went out for a stroll to take 487 stock of our immediate surroundings. Along the Dála, the little stream which ran in front of our house, there is a tiny footpath, just wide enough for one. On our right was the channel in its carefully made bed with a stone revetting wall above it holding up the field above; on our left a fine hedge of quickthorn to keep passing beasts from jumping into the field 4 or 5 feet below. We could hear a merry sound of drums and 527 pipes coming from somewhere downhill, and asked what was 624 on. It seemed that just before we arrived the first barley- 534 cutting had been celebrated with various ceremonies, which we could only hope to see in detail next year, and some of the jollification was still being kept up. Qudrat Ullah was with us, and a "levy." I must explain the levies. In most villages 624 Government chooses, no doubt on the Mir's advice, one or 124 two of the most respected peasant-farmers who are not headmen or officials of the Mir himself, and pays them a small (very small) monthly wage so that they may be ready to do any little Government jobs that are wanted. There are three in Aliábád, which is relatively a large place with about two hundred scattered houses, and the Political Agent had kindly instructed them that one of their jobs was to be useful to us. I may as well at once introduce the two first: Kalbi is a fine upstanding man, rather darker in colour than the average; and Hurmat, a younger, very cheery fellow with dashing moustaches. They are both intelligent and extremely friendly and eager to help. We didn't see why they should waste time on us for nothing, so David at once agreed with them that he

2: Lorimer T-3 (1929-4; 1934-5) 1939 AV7 Burusho AV7

624 would pay them a small retaining fee if they would take it in
● 124 turns to be "on duty" with him in their spare time. They would obviously be useful informants.

487 We had to walk along in single file. There is no "road" in 312 Hunza where two people can walk abreast, or along which you can ride, except the "Great North Road" running through from Kashmir to Kashgar, and even it is never more than 4 to 6 feet wide. The other tracks run mostly beside small water-channels to enable people to get from one sluice to another to juggle the water now off, now on. Even when you have a neat little track fairly horizontal (there are only three of these possible for ordinary walking) it is broken every few yards by a sluice which you must jump or step over carefully so as not to interfere with the water arrangements or, alternatively, break your leg. The sluices are the simplest things imaginable—just a gap in the side wall of the channel which can be closed with a couple of convenient, slab-like stones and plastered up with mud from the watercourse. Occasionally there is a little wooden shutter which can be raised or lowered in wooden slots at the side.

As we went along David asked the names of the various kinds of water-channels, fields, etc., that we saw (the names he already knew, but not at first hand which kind was which), and presently we had a train of bright-eyed boys in the fields on each side, full of amusement at this new game. One would cry: "This stone is a flint; this is a stink-stone," whereupon he would crack it and give it to us to notice the faint smell of sulphur it gave out. Another would run up: "Here's a poppy and a poppy-head"—so we were not going to lack for willing teachers.

After a little we turned down a narrow "lane," less like an English lane than anything else on earth. It plunged downhill pretty steeply, sometimes just a rocky slope, sometimes just one boulder below another making a very crude flight of steps varying from 18 inches to 3 feet or so. Beside the "path" ran the inevitable water-gutter in which you could walk, as it happened at the moment to be dry.

417 On each side, a bare 3 feet apart, were the usual walls of 333

2: Lorimer T-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1939 AV7 Burusho AV7

There were two dear little girls, Shamúli and 524 Banu, about six and four, who played with me and let me 177 tickle them with straws and play "One little pig went to market . . ." with their dusty little toes. This game proved such a success that I roughly translated it into "One little sheep went to drink. . . ." They would never have seen a pig, and if they had they ought to think it unclean, so I thought a lamb was safer. My first version gave one little lamb bread to eat, "bread" being a general word for "food." This caused great laughter: "Lambs wouldn't like bread, Mother dear." "Well, what do you think they'd like best?" "Oh, grass or leaves." "One little lamb had grass to eat and one little lamb had none." Thus amended, my little rhyme was approved, and other youngsters turned up to play "little lambs" till the game grew so popular that whenever I sat down on anyone's threshing-floor baby feet would be stretched out towards me: "One little lamb, Mother . . ." till I got quite tired of ". . . baa, baa, baa, all the way home," but it never palled on them. Centuries hence, when we shall have long been sleeping in the Garden of Rest at Golders Green, some anthropologist will come along and wonder what process of "diffusion" took "one little pig" to Hunza, or whether Hunza spontaneously generated the jingle for itself.

My pencil and little notebook were a great source of amuse- 124 ment, and the youngsters would crowd round: "Have you put 476 my name in? I'm Shamúli." "So you are; but whose Shamúli are you? I've got two Shamúlis already. Who's your Daddy? How many brothers have you got; how many sisters, are they bigger or smaller, what are their names? And which house is yours?" Thus gradually I got to know most of our immediate neighbours, but it was no easy matter to sort the families out, for groups would gather on each other's threshing-floors, and anyone whose own immediate work was done would join in to help the workers. I finally gave numbers of my own to all the nearest houses, and tried bit by bit to plot out the various relationships.

Meantime the threshing went steadily on, and I noticed that 243 the driver carried always a flat bowl shoulder high in her left 237 hand. "Now what's that for?" asked I. "Why, that's the dung-

2: Lorimer J-3 (1932-4; 1936-8) 1939 AV7 Burusho AV7

243 wheat—the usual "Ha! Ha! Ha!" encouraging them and the usual dung-dish unostentatiously circulating behind. It was an interesting, very typical scene, and not a hundred yards below 000 our house. I sent a message up to David (there is always a small candidate to act proudly as messenger) to tell him that he might care to bring his camera. In a few minutes he was picking his way cautiously down the breakneck track while a great cheer of welcome rang from the little crowd. They had all been genuinely concerned about his illness, and were delighted to see that he was better and able to come down and watch things himself. It was his first visit to one of the field working parties. He sat on a low wall in a tiny speck of shade, made friendly chat all round, and was a great social success.

601 While I pottered each morning in the fields, enjoying myself among the people, he was usually hard at work indoors with
● 124 Qudrat Ullah, taking notes of how the irrigation is managed and the system on which the water is distributed by clans and families, and working out genealogical trees. This latter is a weary affair but most useful, for it gives you insight into all their marriage alliances, how many children each family has, how many boys and how many girls, who is allowed to marry whom, and what the relationship terms are, both in the vocative between the various members of a family group, and in the third person when others are talking of them—a highly com-601 plicated but most instructive subject. An elder brother will address the younger by one method, while the younger will use a more respectful term towards the elder; all the younger boys of a family will use to their eldest sister the same respectful form of address as to their eldest brother, though to the uninitiated it would seem to imply that she was a male. A man addresses his wife's father and mother in precisely the same terms and with the same respect as his own. A child's "uncle" is a mother's brother only; the father's brother is "Little Father" or "Big Father" according as the speaker's own father (about whom there is no ambiguity) is older or younger than the uncle concerned. The children of brothers who all share the one home speak of each other as brother and sister, unless there is need to be more explicit, in which case they will

Chapter 25

LEARNING AN UNKNOWN LANGUAGE

124 BEFORE we quit Hunza for our trip to Yasin, I may perhaps interpolate—for language lovers only—a few notes on the more technical side of our work.

People at home, whose idea of learning a new language—if they want to do anything so eccentric and unusual—is to buy grammar and dictionary, instal a set of Linguaphone records, attend classes, or hire a teacher, often ask how you can tackle the problem of learning an unwritten language where such aids do not exist and whose speakers are what the Germans call analphabetisch. It may be of interest to them to know how DL has usually set about it, though other pioneer language workers have doubtless evolved other methods.

You first select a few intelligent men who speak their language well and clearly, and work with them until you light on the one best suited to your purpose. You then annex him to the household at a fixed, generous salary, so that he will always be available when wanted, whether at home or on tour. I may mention incidentally that in our life the language hobby involved a considerable regular outlay in wages, pony hire, travelling expenses, etc., for such language retainers, of whom we often had two, three, or four in tow at once, and such a post with us was much coveted.

As long as he was an official, David had, of course, to fit this private amusement of his into the nooks and crannies left by his work, which naturally took unquestioned precedence, and was often so exacting as to leave no time at all save for meals and a minimum of essential exercise, so that these costly informants might be unused for days or weeks.

Having picked a suitable and congenial man—there is no use trying to work if it can be avoided with a person you dislike—the game begins. In our regions it was usually possible to find a man with some smattering of Hindustani, Persian, or Pashtu, which helped to speed up the preliminary stages. You get him in, squat him on the floor, and by means of your medium language get hold of a few everyday words: 124 ●

2: Lorimer T-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1939 AV7 Burusho AV7

father	mother	grandchild	good	bad grass	tree	wheat	arm	leg, etc.

then the primary colours: black, white, red; the numerals, pronouns, and a few simple time-expressions.

Oddly, many non-European languages have only one word for blue and green, but you take refuge in blue as the sky, "blue" as grass. Again, oddly as it seems to us, many have ambiguous time-expressions that look indifferently before and after (like the French tout à l'heure) so that yesterday is the same as tomorrow, i.e. one day before or after to-day.

The next most urgent item is, of course, the verb. You choose the seemingly simplest verbal idea "to have" but immediately strike a snag. I have a stick seems straightforward enough to an English mind, but you extract only "the stick is with me," "the stick is beside me," "the stick is in my hand"; there is, in fact, no verb "to have." So you take to go and try to get the forms of the present tense: I go, thou goest. . . . Bearing in mind that your man has no idea of grammar, you will not be surprised or daunted by arriving at something of this sort: 124 193

I'm off	we're making a move
thou goest	you are clearing out
he's starting	they flee

You're an old hand and you guess at once that the verb is not bedevilled, but that you have got a clue to six verbs instead of one and to the future as well as to the present tense. Pursuing the past tense of a verb which lets its action be graphically illustrated you may extract something like:

Yesterday I smote	We had beaten
thou hast hit or banged	you thrashed
he struck	they whacked or belaboured again with a merry assortment of different roots and a confusion of various shades of past-ness. All these various things you ultimately succeed in pigeon-holing.

According to the intelligence of your man—and many of these untutored folk are quite as intelligent as the average headmaster or Oxford don—and the amount of time you have to spare and the intricacy of the language (Burushaski being at least ten times as difficult as Shina or Khowar) your rate of progress will vary. In any case, you will find that, however bright and willing your informant, he is wholly unused to sustained concentration, and must immediately be released at the first sign of weariness or boredom. Also that you must spend many hours working through and sorting your notes and tabulating your results before the next interview, if this is to be profitable.

It was DL's practice to escape at the first possible moment from the thraldom of the intermediate language. First because translation from another tongue is always liable to distort and colour the speaker's own idiom, and secondly because both your and your informant's knowledge (especially his) of the second language is imperfect and often inaccurate, and the amount you actually have in common very limited. It is therefore at best an untrustworthy crutch.

You then bid him think over some short narrative—a fairy tale, an anecdote of real life (a wedding, a funeral, or a raid)—and be prepared to tell it to you very slowly. It is not the affair of a day to train him to speak at a pace you can carefully record, and at first if he has outstripped you and is asked to "say that again" he will repeat himself in totally different words till your text is an agglomeration of bewildering anacolutha.

Having got a first short text on to paper phonetically—without being at all clear of its meaning or the right division of words—and having deciphered of it what you can, you read it aloud to him next day, making corrections as required, and if he can understand it, you have made your first step forward. The more unsophisticated he is, the more enchanted he will be to hear his own words again verbatim, and you are half way to making a philologist of him; you have, at any rate, enlisted an interested collaborator. But you yourself have not got one 126 word in ten, perhaps not one in fifty. You then work painstakingly through the text, getting a rough translation by means of the medium language, asking plural forms and other verbal tenses and acquiring in the process a mass of extra material in your notes.

2; Lorimer T-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1939 AV7 Burusho AV7

As the days go on, your man becomes more and more helpful, he gets to know something of your grammatical wants and will now volunteer the plural forms, or stop his tale to interpolate: "he went, he goes, he will go, he has gone," or the like; or he will offer an equivalent expression, no longer as an anacoluthon, or digress to tell of some native custom, the details of some cooking process or some current superstition.

It is no easy task to keep your notes in such form as to be readily available for reference; it is still less easy to keep at command—in your head and on your tongue—all that you have already learned. Here, of course, the whole-time philologist has untold advantage over the busy man who can only snatch odd moments before or after a hard day's work, and sometimes after long blank intervals, for the pursuit of this most exacting of hobbies.

I never lost my admiration of the determination with which 124 ●
DL would give all his leisure to these exhausting séances. It might be half an hour before breakfast; it might be a pause between the reception of two official visitors; it might be a few minutes' interval while an important paper was being fetched from the office files, or a draft despatch typed for signature. Even on tour, when each day meant a mountain march of eighteen to twenty-five miles, in heat or cold, in rain or sun, over difficult and often dangerous country, plunging through banked-up sands by the river-bed, skirting precipitous cliffs along a rock-cut track eked out by the frailest of wooden bridges, or across the dreaded face of a stone shoot where the perpetual trickling of surface pebbles was an ominous reminder that any moment loose boulders might bombard the treacherous track; when each arrival at the rest-house of the day was the signal for visits of courtesy by some local headman or royalty, for the reception of petitioners and the sympathetic

8: Lorimer T-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1939 AV7 Burusho AV7

124 hearing of complaints; no sooner had these matters and a cup of tea been disposed of, than out came pen, paper, and writing-board and one informant or another was on the floor beside the Sahib's chair. If we were passing through a district whose speech might be some variant of the "classical" Shina of Gilgit, some local man would be fetched in to throw light on the local patois and its divergence from what it was convenient to take as the norm. These extra séances by the road yielded, for instance, seven different methods—all instructive and all mutually illuminating—of conjugating the transitive verb in Shina.

Whether the locality had fresh local matter to offer or not, there was always some language-informant in our train, and in defiance of fatigue or headache, work could be and was pursued.

As knowledge accumulated, the word for word translation of texts was no longer necessary, and difficult passages were explained and commented on in the language itself, so that the last shred of possible misunderstanding and obscurity arising from the intermediate language was eliminated.

The problem constantly arose at every stage, whether with limited time at your disposal and limited endurance at the informant's, it was better to linger over a seemingly insoluble riddle or to pass on. DL found that in practice, though it went against all military principle to leave a fortress untaken in your rear, this sometimes fell of itself, if you ignored it and continued your campaign. In other words, that a tangle of to-day, which seemed only to grow worse as you wrangled with it, might unravel itself by some new turn of phrase acquired to-morrow, or a week hence—or a year.

Lest all this sound too easy, let me make it more vivid by an analogy. Suppose yourself shipwrecked on the coast of France, where the community are illiterate fishermen and peasants, and there are neither books nor schoolmasters. You get down to acquiring spoken French. There may be a couple of sailors among the foreshore folk who have, like yourself, a limited knowledge of Dutch. You set to work:

u(n)	deu(x)	troi(s)	quatre
cinq	six	se(p)t	huit	neuf

Having got the simple numerals you proceed:

u	nenfant	une	femme
deu	zenfants	deu	femmes
troi	zenfants	troi	femmes
quat	trenfants	quatre	femmes
cin	kenfants	cin	femmes
sé	tenfants	sé	femmes
hui	tenfants	hui	femmes
neu	venfants	neu	femmes

It will take a little time to work out the true initials of the nouns and the finals of the numerals, to discover the secret of the vowel—the h mute you will never reach for it is an orthographic fiction—and to formulate the rules of liaison.

You will not at once discover when the adjective precedes and when it follows its noun, nor which inanimate objects will be considered masculine and which feminine—why, in fact, un couteau but une fourchette, un sofa but une chaise—what principles govern the use of du and de, beaucoup de but bien des.

And when you turn to verbs it will take perseverance to disentangle the four "regular" conjugations and the handsome varieties of the "irregular." The uses of me and moi may hold you up a bit, and the idiomatic vagaries of en, y and que. By the time you have entirely reduced to order, say, the verb s'en aller and can account to your own satisfaction for n'est-ce pas? jusqu'a ce qu'il ne vienne, a moins qu'il ne soit, si j'etais que de vous, vas-y, ne voilà-t-il pas? and have recorded verbatim all the folk-lore, local history, and gossip that you can track down, your hair may well be turning somewhat grey. Yet French is a language closely allied to our own, of familiar structure, full of cognate roots and basing on Latin which we know; the Frenchman's customs and modes of thought are akin to ours; his religion and morals are variants of our own. Try Burushaski.

I am conscious that in writing of all we heard and said I may have seemed to imply—though I trust not with the unblushing disingenuousness of some travel-writers—that conversation always flowed smoothly and easily. This was not wholly the case. The worst brick I heaved was when I saw a

2: Lorimer T-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1939 AV7 Burusho AV7

124 relatively strange woman clearing up after a day's work and breezily accosted her: "Jú nø, sister, I see you are sweeping up the threshing floor with your little bastard." In extenuation I may remark that the words for "broom" and "bastard" differ only in ending in s and sh respectively, and that the s-one turns its s into sh in the plural. Any offence that might have been given was quenched in the delighted laughter of the people with me, but I was afraid to talk of brooms, whether singular or plural, for many a day.

Even at the end of fifteen months of strenuous practice in talking (and several years of preceding hard work), neither of us had acquired the skill or fluency in speaking that would have rewarded the same effort and goodwill expended on a language like Persian, German, or Shina. The most confirmed language-smatterer could not truthfully say that Burushaski is an easy language to "pick up." It may amuse the reader to know something of the snags that it holds for the unwary—and the wary, too.

193 Burushaski rejoices in four noun categories, roughly corresponding to "genders" in Greek or Latin, but not, as will be seen, based on sex-distinction. If, however, we think of the gender eccentricities of French and German we may indeed question whether grammatical gender in the European languages is really sex-linked as our terminology implies. Professor Meinhoff has other theories about its origin.

Be that as it may, Burushaski divides its nouns into names denoting human male and female—which is straightforward enough—but treats the names of all non-human, living animals as belonging to Class 3, cows and bulls, cocks and hens, mares and stallions alike, while including in the same class the names of a large number of inanimate concrete objects. Class 4 comprises the names of all abstract things—heat and cold, kindness and dreams—of all inanimate objects of indefinite shape and form (such as flour, water, cloud, and sand) besides a distressing number which might seem to belong equally well to Class 3 but just don't.

Amusing facts are that the same word in Class 3 denotes an apple, but in Class 4 an apple tree; in 3 the belly of a living

DIGRESSION TO YASIN

There was no advantage in my also trying to slog at Werchikwar as we were not staying long enough to turn it to account. So we had decided beforehand that I could best employ working hours in trying to work out the major differences between Hunza and Nagir Burushaski which are perhaps too nearly identical to be styled separate dialects, but yet naturally show some distinctive variations. To this end we had borrowed from the Mir of Nagir a morganatic brother-in-law of some education, Ali Ausat by name, a young man about the same age as Qudrat Ullah, and annexed him—at a salary, of course.

The two had travelled together in our train since Aliábád with instructions to talk together about everything under heaven, and make notes of all the points, however trifling, in which their speech differed. While DL toiled away with Muslim in one room of the spacious rest-house, I set up my writing table in another, and got the two young men in to help me to set on record whatever observations they had made. Each day I suggested one set of things for them to work out together before the morrow—household utensils and field implements, irrigation terms, the vocabulary of relationship, etc., etc., and we then ran through their comparative lists with ample digressions whenever any point of interest challenged attention. It proved a most amusing game, and their good-humoured wrangles over which of two forms of expression was the more classical Burushaski were a constant amusement to all three of us. I hope it will prove that we covered most of the vital points; it is for DL to work out the material in due course.

Superficially the main items that leaped to the eye (or ear) were: first, that the Nagir vocabulary has been far more deeply interpenetrated—or corrupted—by Shina than Hunza Burushaski, but that on the other hand Nagir has been more conservative in preserving full verbal forms and un-telescoped vowel sounds. Nagir preferring, as it were, "I shall" to "I'll," "he does not" to "he doesn't," "we will not" to "we won't," and the like. The differences, however, between the Hunza and Nagir speech proved (as we already knew) to be trifling compared with those between Hunza Burushaski and after the usual greetings, he asked how Cec was doing. 122

"He seems to be quite a bit better today!"

"I'm awfully sorry he had to leave last night," said the Mir.

I didn't think he'd even noticed it—but he had.

"The doctor is up visiting him now," I told him. "He said he would join us in a few minutes."

"What does he usually have for breakfast?" the Mir asked me.

"Oatmeal, poached or soft boiled eggs, toast, jam and coffee would be wonderful if they are available."

"Not only is it available," said the Mir, "it is ready, for that is part of the breakfast we usually prepare for our guests. It will be taken up to him immediately."

A signal and a few words in Burushaski and Cecil's breakfast was well on its way up.

So we had breakfast in the dining room and chatted 124 and I sought to make every moment count by asking questions that were vital to me . . . that is, questions about Hunza.

I am quite sure that the Rani understood most of [191] the things that we talked about. She could not have been shamming as she looked both interested and charming while the conversation went on.

"I have arranged for an interpreter to accompany 124 you on your trips and you can go wherever you like, 115 providing you can get through and the roads are open," 191 the Mir told us.

Shortly after, Sultan Ali appeared. He was the schoolmaster and also taught the Mir's children at home. He was to be our interpreter and guide. He was a slender, handsome young man. I'd judge his age as being in the early twenties. His command of English was very good. But I don't think his English was up to the standard spoken by the Mir, who spoke so fluently

•124
115 that one would never believe that it was only a second-191 ary language to him.

231 "You know," I said to the Mir, "one of the things
115 that I wanted to see when I came to Hunza was a yak. I understand from my readings that yaks are used in this part of the country and I have been looking everywhere as I walked along the road to Baltit, but I have as yet seen no sign of a yak!"

"That is not hard to explain," the Mir said. "The yaks are further up in the mountains. They cannot stand the heat and we keep them in the higher altitudes where they can be comfortable. If they are brought to the lower altitudes, they suffer. They like to be up around 11,000 feet or higher."

"Well, then how can I get up to see them?" I asked. "I don't mind if I have to walk for a day or two, but see them I must!"

"I'll do better than that," said the Mir. "I will phone and have two yaks brought down as quickly as possible. They will have to come from Passu which is about 38 miles from here. I will have action taken at once and see that the yaks are provided."

115 (Does that not indicate to you the kind of man and 124 host was the Mir of Hunza?)

I then took my leave of the Mir and the Rani and went out with Sultan Ali and Jahangir to look, see, pry and ask questions.

344 Our first jaunt was a good stiff climb to the old
644 palace located about two miles from the Mir's new palace. As the crow would fly I'm sure it would not have been more than ¾ of a mile. But in order to get up there one has to wend and weave and climb slowly.

I was now becoming quite accustomed to the altitude. Kerimabad is up about 8500 feet and I am sure that the old palace is up at least another 500 or 600 feet. It was perched precariously on a huge outcropping of rock that jutted straight up into the air and the entire surface of the pinnacle was used for the building. There was no superfluous area surrounding it.

I had a long list of questions prepared and I knew even before I started that Sultan Ali could not give me all the answers because many of the questions were strictly horticultural—others dealt with dietary principles. I wanted to talk to farmers and individual people and housewives on both of these subjects.

I asked if he could arrange to take me to a group of farmers or even an individual farmer . . . that is, farmers who were capable and efficient—the better, the more intelligent and prosperous ones . . . so that I might delve into their ways and means of field husbandry.

He nodded, "This will be done. When would you like to talk to them?"

"Tomorrow morning, if it can be done," I replied.

"That's fine. I will arrange it!"

Wherever it was possible, I wanted to get my information direct from the people concerned. There is actually only one class of people in Hunza and one occupation, which is farming. I only know of one shop in the area and it sells mostly goods that have been brought in by the Chinese caravans that have passed through. I don't doubt also that there were some goods in this same shop that came into Hunza via Rawalpindi and Gilgit.

However, it was plain and clear that 900 of the citizens of Hunza out of 1000 made their living by means of farming. Therefore, as I had come to Hunza primarily to study the farming and horticultural methods of the people, the preparation of the foods they ate, 121 and of course the kinds and varieties of foods that were used, I attached great importance to this phase of my trip and I was definitely determined that, come what might, this information I would have thoroughly and in detail.

124 No doubt it would have been an advantage had I been able to speak either Urdu, or better still Burushaski, so that I could frame my questions as I saw fit and have answers that would be direct and would not require translation. However, that was not possible. Still, I had no reason to believe that my interpreter would not be a forthright individual who would give me the answers that were relayed to him clearly and to the point.

Mind you, I was seeking no miracle or world panacea. I wanted to find out the simple truth!

Further, I wanted to walk from farm to farm . . . that is, just selecting one at random here and there. I wanted to view the farmer's activities, study his soil and examine it, ask a few questions and thus, I could gather the information that I wanted and which was so vital to me.

344 644 The old palace proved to be in a good state of preservation. I wondered, because of its good condition, why someone didn't live there. Many of the rooms were still furnished. There were even rugs and tapestries placed and hung in their original positions.

[126] When we climbed to the top of the castle—that is, to the roof where I snapped many photos—it seemed mighty high and overlooked everything around us. But [133] in the distance were mountains that were well over 20,000 feet—and that is no exaggeration, but more likely an understatement.

There was a railing around this upper balcony and from this balcony you could walk into other chambers.

7:Tobe C,T-3 (1959)1960 AV7 Burusho AV7
Hunza

CHAPTER 29

Hunzan Crafts and Skills

THE NEXT MORNING Jahangir came to our quarters just as I was ready to leave for breakfast. Cec again remained in bed on the doctor's advice.

The Mir was waiting for us in his bright, pleasant sun room when we entered and with him was another handsome, beaming man whom he introduced as his brother, Ayesh, who had just returned from a trip up country.

It is customary for the Mir's oldest brother to remain unmarried and act as an advisor, assistant, secretary or whatever else this position might be termed. He also acted as the Mir's emissary and was the engineer of the electric light outfit in operation at the palace.

We were then ushered into the dining room for breakfast. The Mir, Ayesh and the Rani seated themselves just to keep us company and of course add delight and conversation while we breakfasted.

•124 "You understand," he said, "that the reason I do
[788] not have breakfast with you is due entirely to the fact that I must rise at 3:30 every morning to perform my religious duties . . . and 'tis then I have my morning meal."

"Thank you most sincerely for your explanation. It is most important to me so I may better understand the ways of your people and yourself."

Then the Mir went on, "I have received word that two yaks are being brought down from Passu and should arrive at Altit some time during the night and will be there tomorrow morning."

Then I said to the Mir, "Would it be all right if I walked to Altit and rode one of the yaks back here to your palace?"

"That's exactly what I had in mind for you," said the Mir.

"Well, seeing there are two yaks coming down, as you mentioned, and my friend Cec is confined to his quarters by the doctor, I'll take Jahangir along and he'll ride the other yak back."

"Fine, fine!" said the Mir.

124 Then the conversation continued and the Mir said, 115 "I have another brother and I certainly hope you will 644 have an opportunity to meet him. He is serving in the Pakistan army—as a captain. I expect him back within the next 3 or 4 days and you will enjoy meeting him, I know. He is a most likable and interesting man. I hope he gets here before you decide to leave."

"I'd be very happy to meet him and I, too, hope he arrives before we depart."

"We call him Salat," he said. "That means mous-[302] tache in our language. He has one of those handlebar moustaches and he's a big man—bigger than either Ayesh or I. His proper name is Capt. Jamshed Khan."

Ayesh was a most jovial character. He had the most pleasant smiling happy countenance of any man I've ever met. He was always either laughing or smiling and every time I looked at him I had to smile as well. He was a handsome man but in contrast to the Mir, who had a good head of dark hair, Ayesh was balding, the same as I. 124 115 [644] [142]

It was most pleasant to see the splendid cordial relationship that existed between him and the Mir's entire family.

"How are you coming along with your quest for information?" asked the Mir.

"Exceptionally well, sir," I replied. "But there are also many questions that only you can answer and I'm hoping that you can spare a few minutes some time within the next few days in private so that I may gain this information."

"Any time you say," replied the Mir pleasantly. "I'm at your disposal. You mention the time and that will be it."

"You are indeed very kind to grant me this great favor and I appreciate it," I said.

So there and then we made an appointment for 5 o'clock the following day.

Every meal at the Mir's was a joy and a delight and both the Mir and the Rani were always present. I had already mentioned to him that this was a trouble and an imposition and too much to expect of him. But he said that it was the way he wanted it and that nothing was too good and no effort too great for his guests. Well, what can you do with a man like that? 122 574

Then he informed me concerning my friend's health. "The doctor has things under control now," he told me, "but he will remain here with me as my guest at the palace during your stay so there will be no worries 122 758

122 or cares in regard to Mr. Brunton's condition. The doc-
[758] tor will attend to his duties at Aliabad and look after the hospital there . . . but he only has one or two patients and he will be back and forth from the hospital to the palace. Therefore he will be in constant touch with your friend."

"No man could do more," I assured the Mir. "I don't know how we can ever thank you enough."

"Don't mention it," he said. "You have been very kind, too."

"Now is there anything that you would like me to get for you while you're here? I wish you would tell me because some things may take a few days to procure or prepare and I would like to have them ready for you."

[124] "I'll tell you what I would like and you tell me what you would like me to send you from Canada—and no holds barred." I said to him.

"Fair enough! We'll tell each other frankly what we want."

"Agreed," I joyfuly replied.

126 I always carry a notebook with me. It's a small folding affair made of leatherette or something, that has room for 3 or 4 ball point pens and a pad inside. I was making notes as well as marking down the things the Mir expressed interest in when I spoke of the conveniences available in America. I intended to send these to him anyway.

I had seen quite a few little items around Hunza that I would have liked to have . . . for instance, a Hunzan hat, a cane made in Hunza, a pair of Hunzan boots. The boots are most unusual, being something 291 like the mukluks used in the north by the Eskimos, ex-237 cept that these are made in a simpler manner. They are somewhat like riding boots in shape except they are

792 his ancestors' dynasty in India, he donated what is now
871 the Hunzan school system. The fact that the children of Hunza are given a good education, without any cost to them, is due entirely to the kindness and benevolence of that great man. He started and maintained the system and I trust that his son will continue in his father's footsteps."

That the school system of Hunza is working, I can attest.

792 From what I have been able to gather and learn, Hunza was one of the states of India that contributed to the coffers of the Aga Khan. There is some story, true or mythical, that each year all of his religious followers throughout the world gave him a gift of gold or platinum to the extent of his weight. Now I do know
[316] that some gold was mined in Hunza and probably that, too, was sent to the Aga Khan or added to the sum or weight sent from all of the countries and the millions of his followers to be his gift but, as far as I know, at the present time there is not much gold being mined in Hunza and nowhere did I see any sign of anything that could be used as a means of export to bring money into Hunza.

•124 In the meantime I was enjoying my breakfast and between munching mouthfuls of food, I was asking the Mir some rather important questions.

651 "I read somewhere some time ago, that the revenues
681 you obtain from the fines you levy upon people in Hunza who commit misdemeanors or break rules or laws are added to the coffers of your own estate."

The Mir thought this was a great joke and laughed heartily.

"To begin with," he said, "laws are seldom broken by my people. They are good people and they live peaceably and do not commit serious offenses. During 249 plants. Of one thing I was sure and that was that they weren't growing them for the beauty of the flowers.

Now in my strolls and walks about Hunza, I didn't get very far above Altit. Who knows? Maybe a large quantity of poppies are grown further along the river. But actually I doubt it very much.

124 Breakfast was now completed. I was eating alone, of course, in this instance. The Mir and Rani were just keeping me company. I thanked the Rani for her kindness, bowed to her and took my leave with the Mir.

Many long years ago I learned not to doubt people but to accept what they say until proven incorrect . . . be patient and allow time to speak. I accepted what the Mir told me but I wondered just how that miracle could take place. Upon examining the yak's feet or hooves or whatever else you might call them, I learned how this wonder of wonders occurred and I'm going to describe it to you. It will be difficult and you'll have to follow me rather closely. 231

If you examined a yak's forelegs, about 8 inches up from the hoof on the inside are appendages that look like spavins or callouses. These obviously are auxiliary paws, cushions or hooves. Therefore, the yak could, when necessary, walk on these appendages. It can be best illustrated by having you put your fingers straight up resting on the table. Then by dropping your fingers flat and putting down your wrist, you immediately shorten your arm by at least 6 inches. The yak could walk on its hooves or on the spavins 8 inches up along the leg.

Jahangir had never ridden a yak either, so he got aboard one and I shot him a few times—that is, with the camera. He was quite pleased with himself, too, because that was something he hadn't anticipated when he started the journey. 124

Sultan Ali, our guide, said to me after I dismounted, "These men made quite a sacrifice in bringing the yaks down here from Passu. It's about 38 miles, you know, and they lose at least 2 or 3 days from work on their farms."

I knew quite clearly what he meant and I said, "Well, what do you think would be fair recompense for their efforts?"

"Well, about 40 rupees each."

Jahangir was standing besides me while this discus-

124 [434] sion was taking place and he said to Sultan Ali, "That's ½ much too much! Why most people in Hunza don't get that much in a year. I don't think you should ask Mr. Tobe to give them that much money."

Sultan Ali and Jahangir exchanged a few fairly warm words about this and the end result was that Sultan Ali compromised by saying that maybe 20 rupees each would be satisfactory. So I dug into my pocket-book and handed each of them two 10 rupee notes.

½ [ie. 40 rupees - ANALYST]

partake of the Mir's blessings. 000

In comparing the fort at Altit and the one at Baltit, I gained the impression that the one at Altit had more rooms . . . smaller ones they were, but there seemed to be more of them. The old fort at Baltit was much larger and more impressive. Yet somehow I became more attached to the Altit Fort. I had the impression that it was almost impregnable. 344 644 712

Then I recalled the true story of the capture of the fort by the British and, after appraising its isolation, strength and precipitous banks and sides, I thought to myself, "Any group of men who had the courage to attempt to scale and capture any fort in Hunza deserved a lot more glory and loot than they would ever get in Hunza . . . and that is for certain!" 712 648

On one of the balconies stood a man with a bowl of apricots and Sultan Ali said, "This man is the chowkidor, or guardian, of the fort and it is customary to give him a gift." 124

"Of what?" I asked.

"Oh, about 10 rupees," replied Sultan Ali.

Jahangir almost jumped a foot when he heard that and he said, "For what? He hasn't done anything and we haven't eaten any of his apricots."

"Well," Sultan Ali said, "it's just customary!"

"Customary or no," said Jahangir, "I think it's ridiculous!"

I turned to Sultan Ali and said, "Normally I'd be glad to give him the tip that you suggest, but the truth of the matter is my fund of Pakistan rupees is just about nonexistent. When we set out for Hunza from Pindi we calculated in advance approximately how many rupees we would need and then we added on 100 extra, and that's what we came with. 124 122

"From the stories that we read and from the infor-

•124 mation that we could gather, we were under the im-
122 pression that no money was used in Hunza. Therefore we didn't calculate on spending any. So far we have parted with approximately 300 rupees and to place the matter squarely in front of you, we don't have enough money to buy our plane tickets back from Gilgit to Rawalpindi! I'm hoping we'll be able to get some money at the bank in Gilgit because I did notice that there's a bank there, so I'm afraid I'll have to pass up the 10 rupees that I'm supposed to give the chowkidor of the fort. But tell him I enjoyed my visit to the fort very much anyway!"

344 While we were wandering around on the open bal-
644 cony of the old fort, Sultan Ali pointed to a neat looking place down below, but not far distant, and said, "That is the Mir's picnic place, where he comes every Saturday evening with his family. He stays there Sunday and Monday, returning to the palace for his various duties Monday evening. This practice is followed during the summer months."

"Well," I replied, "that's a custom that's followed pretty well in the West and probably in most places around the world . . . where one tries to get away from the usual home conditions and seeks refuge in a cottage. We, generally speaking, call this our summer cottage. And you know what? Many folks and families travel hundreds of miles just for the weekend, just as long as they can get away from home and the sameness of living for a few days at a time!"

"I guess we've seen everything here at the old fort worth seeing. So let's go down and make for the Mir's picnic place," I said as I headed for the stairs.

It was a walk of but a few hundred yards and we were soon at the garden gate of the bungalow. Sultan Ali spoke in Burushaski to one of the chowkidors who

115 Now I didn't see his birth certificate and I might as 165 well tell you, right here and now, that no vital statistics are kept in Hunza. I accept the figure of his age as he told me but remember, I was not there at the time of his birth!

344 When I was through with my spasm of inspection
644 and admiration, we began to parade up the long driveway that led into the Mir's garden. This area is flanked on the right by space that looks as though it were a parking lot, and maybe that's exactly what it is, but instead of cars, the guests or members of the family park—or should I say tether—their horses and yaks in this area. Maybe now they park their jeeps there.
[493] The Mir owns two of them, but one, I understand, was away in Pindi being repaired. (Or was it the shambles and horrible wreck of a jeep that I came across a week later, on the road back to Gilgit?)

126 Now I noticed that the Mir, Ayesh, the doctor and Cec were coming along the roadway to meet us, and soon we joined forces and were gathered in one group. I thought this was the ideal time to take some photographs and, luckily for us, they were the best photographs we took on the entire trip. Photography is something that has never interested me and I had never taken half a dozen pictures in my life. Before leaving [122] home, I did try to learn a bit about photography, but I couldn't learn enough fast enough.

124 When the fun, excitement and fast-flowing humorous remarks had subsided, I said to the Mir, "If you've nothing more important to do or if you would care to give me a little more of your time, we could start that question and answer session that I arranged with you for this afternoon."

"I am at your service," he replied pleasantly and with alacrity.

So the Mir, the doctor and I proceeded up the stairs to his famed reception sun room. He instructed one of his people, in his own language and soon we were comfortably seated with an assortment of cold drinks before us. 124

The Mir, the doctor and I then had a long session. I asked questions of the doctor just as readily as I did of the Mir and both answered with equal frankness. At no time did one look at the other to ascertain whether or not he should answer the question. Everything was done on a strict, clear-cut, frank basis.

128 As I sat and pondered my experiences—things that I had actually seen and witnessed, people whom I had met and talked to—I wondered and asked myself, "Will I be the man who will destroy the myth or will I corroborate it?"

Then I did a little soul searching. When an individual does that, it means he is troubled . . . and I admit that that was exactly my predicament.

I have tried to ascertain the truth of everything I have recorded and related in this book. Most of the time I was fortunate enough to see and do these things for myself. However, some information I had to obtain by asking questions and probing, but in every case I believed the information sincere and honest. You will note that, at all times, I sought my information from the highest and best informed sources available—even at the danger of annoying my host. Friendship and decorum are important conventions but, with me anyway, the quest for knowledge knows no bounds.

There may be errors and omissions and even falsehoods in my story but if there are any, it is by sheer accident or by willful misrepresentation on the part of someone else. Inasmuch as I am concerned, every statement made in this book is true, to the best of my innermost belief and knowledge.

●124 128 There were many instances, while gathering this information, where facts, stories and other data were related to me and I doubted their veracity. So right there and then I said so. In some instances, I told the people who were giving me information that what they said did not make sense, and either they must have misunderstood or there was something being lost or twisted in the translation. I recall at the moment three such specific instances with entirely different groups and in each case, upon studying and revamping the

question, the error was cleared up. 128

Remember, I do not claim to be a Sherlock Holmes 124
or smart enough to detect by scent or otherwise an untruth or misunderstanding, so they may crop up in various places in the book.

Long before I left home I had prepared a set of queries. Among them were things for me to investigate —places, customs and chores for me to see and do. And from all this I was to make my own values and estimates as to the validity of the claims made about Hunza and its people. I tried to cover every aspect of importance and interest and I believe that, with very few exceptions, I faithfully accomplished my mission.

In preparation for the trip I read every book I could 122
find or locate that involved Hunza and in each case 114
the author had done a credible job, but most of them had failed miserably to give sufficient information—at least, for me—because 'twas information that I wanted. I wanted to know more about the agriculture of Hunza, about the health of the people, about their methods, their means and their way of life. None of the authors gave much of that vital data.

Right from the first moment that I made plans to go 12
to Hunza I decided that, if I wrote a book, it would 114 contain the most complete, the most detailed and the most thorough study of the people of Hunza yet accomplished by any writer. This determination came upon me from the frustrations I felt when I read the available books on Hunza and was left with a feeling that only the surface of the subject had been scratched.

In my endeavors to fulfill this undertaking, I have spared neither time, effort, risk nor expense. I certainly don't want my readers to be left with the feeling that all about Hunza has not been told. I definitely realize that no one in a short few weeks or even months could of his fellow man and see that it is fairly and impartially carried out, we have made it too complicated. Is there any justifiable reason why it should take months or even years for a civil case to be heard in court? If there are not sufficient judges, I'm sure it would not be difficult to appoint or elect more of them. If there are not enough court rooms and court houses, I feel confident that, with American construction at its high peak of efficiency, it wouldn't take long to correct that.

Then why isn't it done? I don't know the answer. Do you? The Hunzan system of justice seems to be functioning in a most satisfactory manner. Anyone may petition the Mir and unless he is away, can get an almost immediate hearing. If the Mir is not available or if the problem is not a weighty one, then the Wazir can attend to it.

In truth, justice can be simple!

* * * * *

In order to get into Hunza you must obtain a permit from the Pakistani authorities in the capital, which is Karachi, but I understand the government is being moved from Karachi to Rawalpindi or a new site close to it. I still think it is more important to have the Mir's invitation, because even though you could get into Hunza, you would be practically helpless without the Mir's assistance and cooperation.

[124] Unless you brought a guide with you and one who could speak English and translate for you, you'd find the going very, very difficult in either Nagir or Hunza. Therefore I would suggest that if you contemplate a visit into this area, you obtain the Mir's invitation or permission first. Then go after the Pakistani government's permit.

Why the Pakistan government regards Hunza as a strategic region or area is not hard to understand if

361 didn't just spring up overnight. By the appearance of [342] the stone and mud houses, as well as all other features about the city, it was obvious that the city had been there for a long, long time.

Gilgit is indeed a strange city. It is one of these places that is right in the middle of nowhere, but to that mountain-harnessed area, Gilgit is a mighty important, strategic spot. Somehow I had the feeling that if there was a place called the "crossroads of the East" Gilgit had the sole right to the appellation, for through Gilgit would pass caravans from China, as well as travelers from Russia, Afghanistan, Persia, India, Pakistan and yes, undoubtedly from all other parts of the Eastern world.

000 While I did see quite a bit of the city and the surrounding country, I regret today that I didn't dig a little deeper and get about even more. I think Gilgit has many interesting stories to tell . . . how could it be otherwise? And if I ever go back (and I intend to) I would like to be the one who brings these tales to light!

121 The Gilgitis, from a health standpoint or from ap-
[164] pearance in general, did not impress me one bit. The people were somewhat similar to what you would find or expect in Pakistan or India. However, the moment I crossed the bridge over the Gilgit River and got into the hills, I resolved to concentrate, coldly and with deliberate calculation, on every individual we met. So many confusing and contradicting statements had been made about the people of Hunza, that I was firmly resolved that if study and scrutinization and observation would do the trick, then I would find out the truth.

124 Akbar was keeping pace with Cecil most of the time, while Sherin was with me, and I questioned him closely about every person that we happened to meet or pass. I had no trouble—none whatsoever—in spotting a Hun-

zan. And it wasn't because I was smart. There obviously was a distinct difference and anyone could pick out a Hunzan from a Nagirwal or any of the other citizens thereabout. 124

Much has been said about the walking habits of the people of Hunza . . . the long distances, the climbs, their endurance and their sprightly gait. I have had little experience with their endurance, but of their gait I can speak with some degree of authority. They have the lightest, easiest walk or pace that I have seen anywhere in my life. They seem to glide or spring effortlessly. If any people on the face of the earth have learned to walk without wasting any energy, I believe the people of Hunza have learned that secret. That's the only way I can account for our guides, for example, being in exactly the same condition when they finished their day's travel as when they started. I fully realize that they are accustomed to doing this. On occasions at home I have walked 12 miles at one march—and enjoyed it—but I was tired and mighty glad to take a good rest when I reached my goal. 481 [147]

I cannot recall one occasion where I saw a Hunzan resting after a walk. I practically retraced every foot of my journey back and forth and also the side excursions, but I couldn't find one occasion on which the Hunzan men had to rest. They not only seemed, but actually were, totally imperturbable, nonchalant and at ease wherever they went. Their stride was livelier and lighter than anything I have ever seen. [147]

Furthermore they never slouched, whether walking, standing or sitting. No matter where you saw them, they held their heads erect and chests out. [516]

Now this is not an afterthought because I began my search and observations the moment I left Gilgit. They didn't walk—they seemed to float! I wish I knew their people. That would allow the people of these two principalities 140 epileptics, to be on par with America.

Nagir and Hunza would be somewhere around 50,000 164

When I mentioned this to the doctor, he pooh-poohed the idea and said, "I'm sure there wouldn't be a dozen epileptics on both sides of the river. In fact, with these three I think I have them all."

"What is the most prominent complaint that you find among the people?"

"Dysentery," he replied, without hesitation.

"Do you know the cause?" was my next question.

"I'm afraid I can't answer that question with any degree of authority or proof, but I can tell you this . . . that it is seldom very serious and the condition usually clears up in a few days. I know of no deaths caused by it."

Now the Mir returned and I was relieved, for I felt 124 that I had offended the fine man by asking the doctor if there were any epileptics in Hunza, when he had told me there weren't any.

So I turned to the Mir and explained the situation to him, stating that in my eagerness to get the data I had asked the same question of the doctor and mentioned my fear of offending him.

He replied, "I believe friendship is made of sterner stuff than that."

I was surprised and delighted by this statement.

Then he explained that he was called by one of his servants who had signaled to him—concerning preparation for an event that was to take place that evening.

My next question to both the doctor and the Mir 164 was, "Is there anything in the line of health or disease that is developing in Hunza different from the old pattern? Things that didn't occur before, that are beginning to appear now?"

125 One evening, I took a census of the 165 nine teen-age boys in my wood-carv-
[123] ing school. Of these, all from well-to-do households, how many had seen death in their immediate families?
165 Here was the roll:
551 Gohor Hayat: mother, three brothers, two sisters; Sherin Beg: one brother, one sister; Nur-ud-Din: mother, two brothers, two sisters; Md. Hamid: mother, one sister; Burhan Shah: one brother, one sister; Nasar Md.: mother, two brothers, one sister; Mullah Madut: two brothers; Suleiman: one brother; Ghulam Rasul: father. In a country fabled for the long lives of its inhabitants, these are depressingly typical Asian statistics.
165 Moreover, there is little reason to be-
576 lieve that any of the old men are really as old as is claimed.

"How old are you?" I once asked a venerable patient.

"Ninety, Hazoor!" he answered.

"How do you know you're ninety?"

"Well, Hazoor, my hair is white, and I know I'm very old, and ninety is very old, so I must be ninety."

[124] My teen-aged assistant, Gohor Hayat, broke in impatiently, "Why do you waste time asking such questions?
[217] You know there are no records, be-
[212] cause so few of my people can write!"

I had thought the old man might have a way of keeping count. "How old are you, Gohor Hayat?" I asked.

Gohor Hayat responded loftily, "I'm

[text continues on p. 43-C]

3: Lorimer L-3 (1920-4; 1934-5) 1935 AV7 Burusho AV7

In the first case the answer is easy. The Wakhis are certainly 563 of totally distinct stock from the Burusho. Much more difficult is the question of the relation of the Burusho and the Shina-speakers. My visual impressions would lead me to regard the Shèn of lower Nagir as an essentially different people from the Burusho of Hunza. They seem to me to represent a distinctly lower type in regard to apparent mentality and sanitary ideals. A large proportion of the child-population of Minapin and the villages below it are cretinous in appearance and dirty in person. I have not had an opportunity of comparing the people of the Hunza Shèn villages of Hindi and Mayun, either with their Nagir vis à vis or with their Burusho fellow-"nationals". How far again is there any difference between the 184 Burusho of Hunza and the Burusho of Nagir? That is a question 517 which I cannot answer from any adequate personal observation; 361
